THE limit of the marvelous! Such, in brief is my estimate of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" the cinemasterpiece that is now attracting the public attention at the Broadway Theatre.

Jules Verne was the possessor of one of the most amazing imaginations ever known and but little inferior to the imagination of the distinguished Frenchman is that of Mr Stuart Paton who from Verne's famous novel, produced the wonderful combination of pictures I saw last night at the Broadway Theatre.

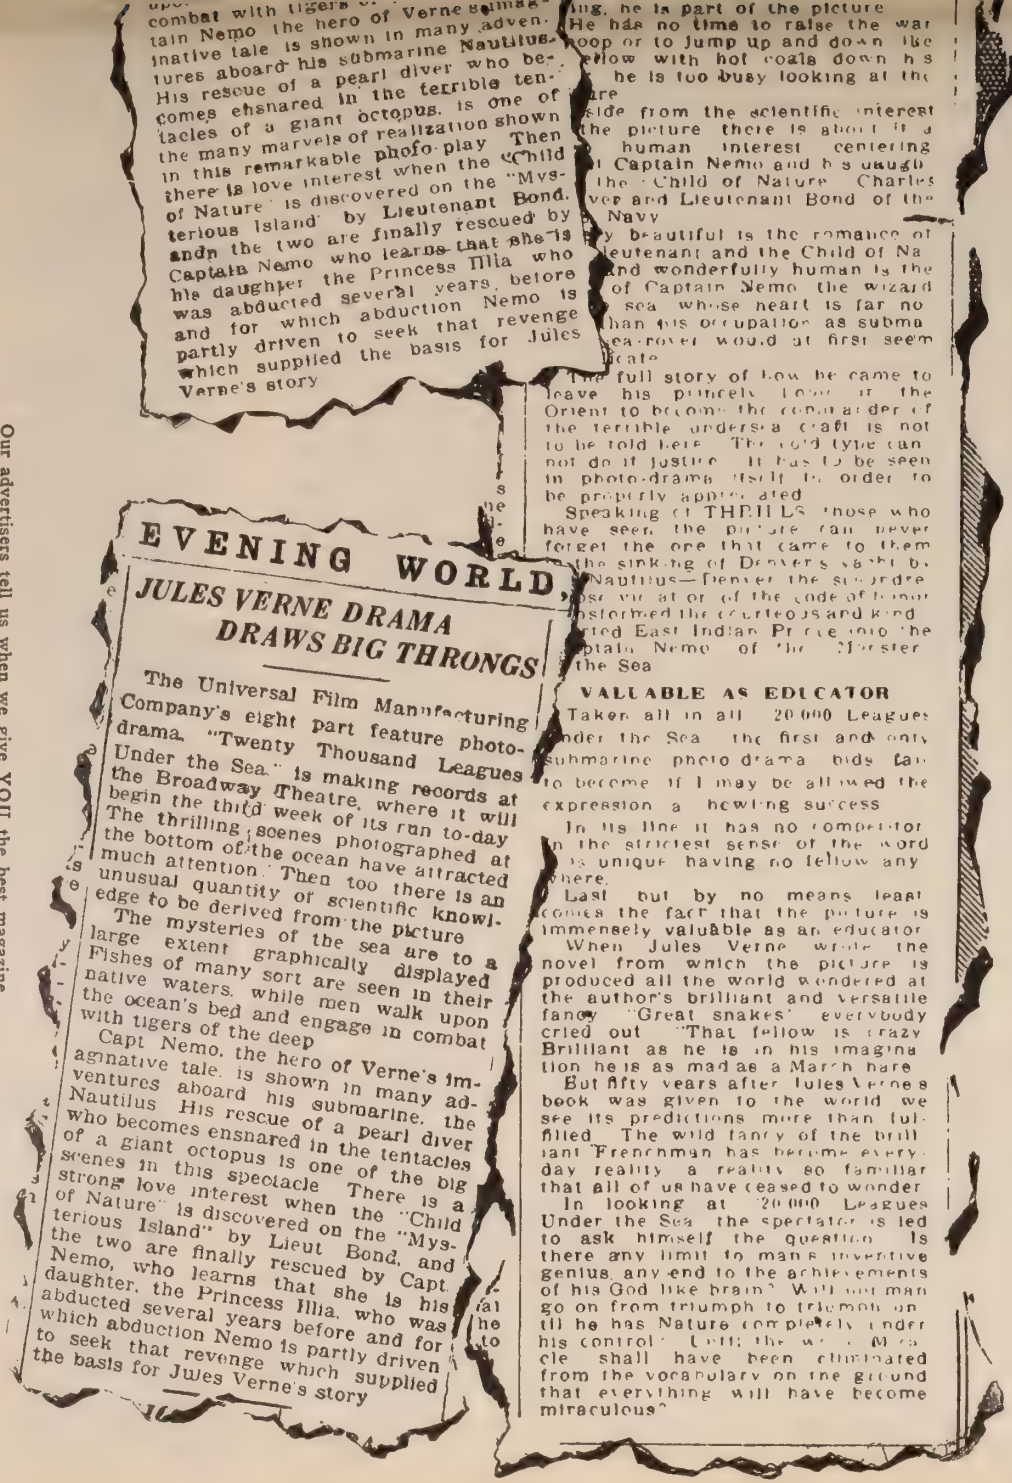
The eight reels are full of such thrills as are to be found nowhere else. I say this deliberately. There is no end to thrills. They are as thick as leaves in the Summer forest. But there are thrills and thrills—thrills that affect the nerves mainly and thrills that reach and electrify the mind.

It is the latter sort of excitement that abounds in "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea"—the excitement of the Man within the Man, the Man who thinks and peers into the mysteries of things and wonders at the miracles he runs across.

NO TIME FOR WHOOPS.

In looking at the pictures in "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" one does not feel like raising the war whoop and scalping all creation and the rest of mankind. He is just interested — deeply absorbingly

Photo Plays



BOADWAY THEATRE.

THE Universal Film Manufacturing Company's eight-part feature photo drama, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" is smashing all "movie" box office records at the Broadway Theatre where it will begin the third week of its run to-day.

The thrilling and amazing scenes photographed at the bottom of the ocean add sufficient story to satisfy the masses of photoplay "fans." Then too there is an unusual quantity of scientific knowledge to be derived from the picture. The mysteries of the sea are to a large extent graphically displayed and in such a manner as appeals to old and young alike.

Many sorts are seen in

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

combat with tigers of Verne's imag-tain Nemo the hero of Verne's inative tale is shown in many adventures aboard his submarine Nautilus.
His rescue of a pearl diver who becomes ensnared in the terrible tentacles of a giant octopus is one of the many marvels of realization shown in this remarkable photo-play. Then there is love interest when the "Child of Nature" is discovered on the "Mysterious Island" by Lieutenant Bond. and the two are finally rescued by Captain Nemo who learns that she is his daughter the Princess Illia who was abducted several years before and for which abduction Nemo is partly driven to seek that revenge which supplied the basis for Jules Verne's story

ing. he is part of the picture
He has no time to raise the war hoop or to jump up and down like fellow with hot coals down his he is too busy looking at the are side from the scientific interest the picture there is about it a human interest centering

Captain Nemo and his daughthe Child of Nature Charles ver and Lieutenant Bond of the Navy

y beautiful is the romance of ieutenant and the Child of Na nd wonderfully human is the of Captain Nemo the wizard sea whose heart is far no han his occupation as subma ea-rover would at first seem icate

The full story of how he came to leave his princely home in the Orient to become the commander of the terrible undersea craft is not to be told here The cold type can not do it justice It has to be seen in photo-drama itself in order to be properly appreciated

Speaking of THRILLS those who have seen the picture can never forget the one that came to them the sinking of Denver's yacht by Nautilus—Denver the scoundrel ose villainy of the code of honor stormed the courteous and kind ted East Indian Prince into the ptain Nemo of the Monster
the Sea

VALUABLE AS EDUCATOR

Taken all in all 20 000 Leagues nder the Sea the first and only submarine photo drama bids fair to become if I may be allowed the expression a howling success

In its line it has no competitor n the strictest sense of the word is unique having no fellow any here

Last but by no means least comes the fact that the picture is immensely valuable as an educator

When Jules Verne wrote the novel from which the picture is produced all the world wondered at the author's brilliant and versatile fancy "Great snakes" everybody cried out "That fellow is crazy
Brilliant as he is in his imagina tion he is as mad as a March hare

But fifty years after Jules Verne's book was given to the world we see its predictions more than fulfilled The wild fancy of the brill iant Frenchman has become everyday reality a reality so familiar that all of us have ceased to wonder

In looking at 20 000 Leagues
Under the Sea the spectator is led to ask himself the question Is there any limit to man's inventive genius any end to the achievements of his God like brain? Will not man go on from triumph to triumph until he has Nature completely under his control Until the word Miracle shall have been eliminated from the vocabulary on the ground that everything will have become miraculous"

EVENING WORLD,

JULES VERNE DRAMA DRAWS BIG THRONGS

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company's eight part feature photo-drama, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," is making records at the Broadway Theatre, where it will begin the third week of its run to-day. The thrilling scenes photographed at the bottom of the ocean have attracted much attention. Then too there is an unusual quantity of scientific knowledge to be derived from the picture.

The mysteries of the sea are to a large extent graphically displayed. Fishes of many sort are seen in their native waters, while men walk upon the ocean's bed and engage in combat with tigers of the deep.

Capt. Nemo, the hero of Verne's imaginative tale, is shown in many adventures aboard his submarine, the Nautilus. His rescue of a pearl diver who becomes ensnared in the tentacles of a giant octopus is one of the big scenes in this spectacle. There is a strong love interest when the "Child of Nature" is discovered on the "Mysterious Island" by Lieut. Bond, and the two are finally rescued by Capt. Nemo, who learns that she is his daughter, the Princess Illia, who was abducted several years before and for which abduction Nemo is partly driven to seek that revenge which supplied the basis for Jules Verne's story.

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

In response to the advertisements published in the Motion Picture News, Moving Picture World, and other Film Trade publications last week we have been swamped with inquiries and communications on State Rights on "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA."

Two of the biggest State Rights Buyers in America, who made a special flying trip to New York to buy this production, were given evidence extraordinary (without any talk) by simply viewing the jamming, cramming throngs, three times daily, fighting their way into the Broadway Theatre where this production is now playing. Already the following states have been sold: S. Carolina—Georgia—Alabama—Mississippi—Tennessee—Arkansas—Florida—Texas—and Louisiana—Maine—New Hampshire—Vermont—Massachusetts—Rhode Island and Connecticut—Illinois—Missouri—Minnesota—North and South Dakota—Montana—and arrangements pending for other territory.

Now Playing to S. R. O.
at the Broadway, New York City

If every State Rights Buyer could but see the surging mass of humanity three times daily, 2:15, 4:30 and 8:15 P.M., daily at the Broadway Theatre, cramming and jamming their way in to see this remarkable film drama, there wouldn't be a State open for sale in five minutes after viewing this sight. Every house record at the Broadway has been smashed in point of attendance and receipts. For the weeks of December 25th to 31st and 1st to 7th the Broadway took in over $21,000 in cash, and a stream of cash has been and is NOW pouring into the Box Office of the Broadway Daily. THAT'S THE ANSWER, MR. STATE RIGHTS BUYER. Ask for a copy of the elaborate Ad Campaign book that tells you HOW to get the big money in ANY city or town like it was gotten in Chicago and New York. Direct all communications to the STATE RIGHTS DEPT.

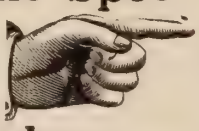
OF THE
UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK



Our advertisers tell us when we give YOU the best magazine.

On the UNIVERSAL Specialties

Book these Special Features released on the Regular Universal Program because they are genuine attractions that will get the money for you. Any one of these releases—Comedies, Cartoon and Educational, or that Unusual Screen Novelty, The Universal Screen Magazine—will bolster up your performance and popularize your house.

These Universal Specials, including the Red Feather five reel feature may be booked separately at a slight advance over their pro rata cost on the full Universal Program. No producer—no Program on earth offers you such genuine attractions as these. Look them over and wire or write your nearest Universal Exchange for immediate bookings.

If you must have Specialties—These are the Specialties you must have—Book them separately or get them on the UNIVERSAL Program

Special Releases on the Universal Program for the Week of Feb. 5

RED FEATHER—"THE SCARLET CRYSTAL"—Five Reel Drama—Herbert Rawlinson, Dorothy Davenport, Betty Schade.
NESTOR—"HIS WIFE'S RELATIVES"—One Reel Comedy—Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Edith Roberts.
L-KO—"THAT DAWGONE DOG"—Two Reel Comedy—Sammy Burns.
POWERS—"GIANTS OF THE AMERICAN FOREST"—One Reel Educational.
JOKER—"OUT FOR THE DOUGH"—One Reel Comedy—Gale Henry and Wm. Franey.
POWERS—"FEARLESS FREDDIE IN THE WOOLLY WEST"—Comedy Cartoon and "JOY AND TEARS IN CHINA"—Educational—Split Reel.

Twenty-nine Reels in all—including "Special" and "Regular" Releases—the backbone of the entire Program field. The Universal Program is divided as shown merely to give Exhibitors an opportunity to make individual bookings. On the full, complete Universal Program there is a varied and scientifically balanced list of releases that are making thousands of Exhibitors successful. If you are tired of struggling with a Feature Program that does not pay, write or wire today to your nearest Universal Exchange for full particulars regarding the complete Universal Program.

Book the Complete

AL PROGRAM
Regular Releases

Here on the Regular Universal Program is the cream of the moving picture market. Here are one, two and three reel Dramas, Comedies, Educationals and the Universal Animated Weekly—each and every one so far in advance of the average program release that there is no comparison. On this side you read the releases of the week of Feb. 5, and they aggregate a list of attractions such as can be found on no other program on earth.

Regular Releases on the Universal Program for the Week of February 5

GOLD SEAL—"WON BY GRIT"— Three Reel Drama — Neal Hart and Lois Wilson.

VICTOR — "THE VALLEY OF BEAUTIFUL THINGS"— One Reel Juvenile Comedy.

BIG U—"RED VENGEANCE"— One Reel Indian Drama.

REX—"THE MELODY OF DEATH"— Two Reel Drama —Douglas Gerrard, Ruth Clifford and Maude George.

IMP—"AVARICE"— One Reel Drama — Claire McDowell.

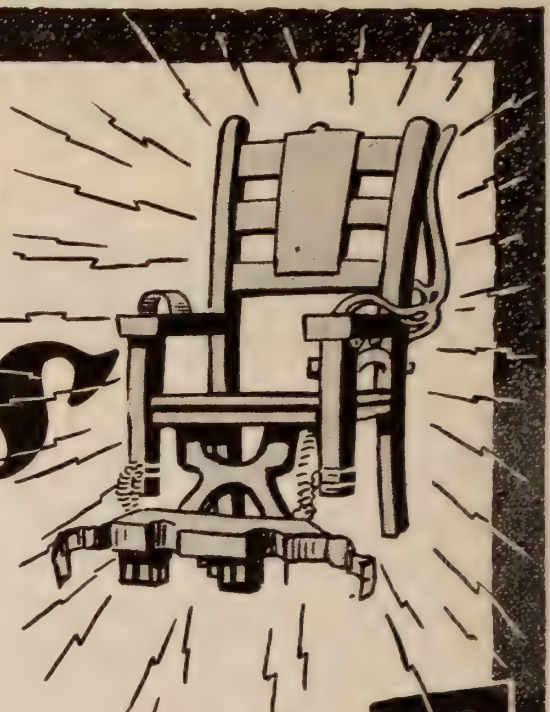
BIG U—"THE LAST HOUR"— Two Reel Drama— Title subject to change.

VICTOR—"THE HIGH COST OF STARVING"— One Reel Comedy — Eileen Sedgwick.

101-BISON—"THE OUTLAW AND THE LADY"— Two Reel Drama — Louise Lovely, Harry Carey.

LAEMMLE — "A STUDIO CINDERELLA" — One Reel Drama.

IMP—"WHEN THIEVES FALL OUT"— Two Reel Drama —Harry Benham.



REX—"IN THE SHADOWS OF NIGHT"— One Reel Drama —William Shay.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SPLIT ARRANGEMENT—It enables you to pick the cream of the world's special releases, it gives you a chance to add just the sort of one, two or three reel feature to your present program—that will make it strong where it is now weak—or, if you realize that the public taste is demanding the full program of short subjects you can book the complete Universal Program and build such a success as you have never dreamed of. Wire or write for full particulars to your nearest Universal Exchange, or UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO., Carl Laemmle, Pres., "The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe," 1600 Broadway, New York.

UNIVERSAL Program

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

State Rights

Now Selling On the Marvelous LOIS WEBER Picture---That Terrific Arraignment of the Evils of Capital Punishment---Direct From Its Successful New York Run

THE SENSATIONAL PRODUCTION

"The PEOPLE VERSUS JOHN DOE"

WRITTEN AND PRODUCED BY LOIS WEBER PRODUCER OF "WHERE ARE MY CHILDREN"

Pronounced the "Most Powerful Film Drama Ever Shown on Any Screen." Striking and Sensational Paper and specially prepared Advertising Matter FREE to State Rights Buyers. "The PEOPLE Against JOHN DOE" will create a sensation wherever shown. Endorsed by New York's Press and Public. Some choice territory still open. Communicate immediately with the STATE RIGHTS DEP'T of the UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO., Carl Laemmle, Pres., "The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe," 1600 Broadway, New York.

Viola Dana Has Another One of Those Harem-Scarem-Winsome Roles in the Forthcoming Metro-Columbia "Threads of Fate"

Metcalfe and Turner Sign with Van Dyke

Earl Metcalfe and William H. Turner have been signed by the Van Dyke Film Corporation to appear in that company's next Art Drama, "Her Good Name," in which Jean Sothern is being starred.

Earl Metcalfe was for a long time a stock favorite, before appearing on the screen. He has been featured in a number of Lubin pictures, and has also directed for that company. While with the Lubin Company he appeared in "The Nation's Peril," "Three Men and a Woman," "The Thief in the Night" and many other productions. He also plays the leading part in "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters," a series which is now being released by Mutual.

William H. Turner was featured for a number of years on the legitimate stage, playing in "David Harum," "The Governor and the Boss." He was with the Lubin Company, for a long time, and played in many of their important productions.

Boone Opens Agency for Script Sales

J. Allen Boone has resigned as vice-president and secretary of the Amalgamated Photo Play Service and has taken offices on the seventh floor of Aeolian Hall, 38 West Forty-second street, New York, where he will act as business representative for a number of well-known screen directors, players and writers, and will join with Charles Emerson Cook in general publicity.

Helen Christene Hoerle, who has been connected with the scenario departments of the Equitable, Fox and Rolfe-Metro companies in an editorial capacity, and who is widely known as an authority on scenario values, will be associated with Mr. Boone in handling photoplay material.

Mr. Boone is well known in the film, newspaper and magazine worlds. Previous to his affiliation with the Amalgamated Photo Play Service he was publicity director for Lubin. His work as a newspaper and magazine man has taken him to all parts of the world.

Large Newspaper Advertising for "Patria"

Pathe Plans Wide Publicity for Serial Originally Brought Out by International

"PATRIA," the International's serial romance of society and preparedness by Louis Joseph Vance, featuring Mrs. Vernon Castle, is being widely booked by leading exhibitors everywhere, the company reports. "Patria" is set for release January 14 through Pathe Exchange under the arrangements just completed between Pathe and International.

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, is greatly pleased with the reports of advance bookings.

A few of the theatres that have booked "Patria" for long runs are:

Kings, of St. Louis, seven days; Miles of Cleveland, seven days; Bowdoin Square, of Boston, six days; Shenandoah, St. Louis, seven days; Strand, St. Louis, four days; Beacon, Fenway and Shawmut of Boston, three days; Superba, Los Angeles, seven days; Grand, Columbus, O., four days; and Plaza, Fall River, Mass., two days.

In addition, reports just wired in which do not name the theatres show that San Francisco has a seven-day first-run booking; Akron, O., three days; Louisville five days, Dayton five days, Omaha three days, New Bedford, Mass., six days, and Providence, R. I., six days.

The advertising campaign on "Patria" began in the press of the nation on Sunday, January 7, when the picture was announced in half and full page advertisements. This campaign will continue throughout the fifteen weeks of the serial.

The following list gives an idea of the representative papers that are being selected:

New York American; Boston American; Atlanta Georgian; Chicago Examiner; San Francisco Examiner; Los Angeles Examiner; Philadelphia North American; Louisville Herald; Omaha News; St. Paul News; New Orleans Item; Baltimore American; Washington Post; Pittsburgh Post; Cleveland News; Buffalo Courier; Indianapolis Star; Columbus Monitor; St. Louis Globe-Democrat; Minneapolis News; Milwaukee Free Press; Rochester Photoplay News; New York Evening Journal; Chicago American; Los Angeles Herald; San Francisco Call. Hundreds of smaller papers will publish the story by arrangement with the Western Newspaper Union.

The advertising matter includes a full line of novelties; a stock one-sheet poster; stock twenty-four-sheet, one, three and six-sheet posters on each episode; banners, slides, heralds, window cards, lobby displays, newspaper cuts and campaign books. Magazine advertising on an extensive scale will be employed on "Patria" and there will be feature illustrated stories every week during January and February in Sunday magazine sections of important newspapers.

Estabrook Is Engaged to Direct Miss Martin

Howard Estabrook, recently engaged by the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company as director, will supervise Vivian Martin's production following "The Wax Model," which is scheduled for release on the Paramount Program in February. The name of Miss Martin's first production under the direction of Mr. Estabrook has not yet been decided upon, but the script is already in hand.

Mason Signs for Bluebirds

The Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., has engaged Sidney Mason to play opposite Violet Mersereau in forthcoming productions. Mr. Mason is remembered on the speaking stage as Blackie Daw in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," and in other Cohan and Harris productions. At one time Mr. Mason was with the Gaumont and the Famous Players companies. The Bluebird pictures in which he has appeared are "The Honor of Mary Blake," "The Boy-Girl" and "Susan's Gentleman."

Scenes from Broadway Star Feature Company Single Reel Comedies

Marie Cahill Is a Mutual Star

Freuler Signs Actress for Series of Two-Reel Comedies, Released Every Two Weeks

PRESIDENT JOHN R. FREULER of the Mutual Film Corporation announces the closing of a contract with Marie Cahill, under the terms of which she will appear in a series of two-reel comedies to be released every two weeks.

The date of the first release has not yet been set, but studio operations are already under way in New York, where the Mardan Photoplay, under contract with the Mutual Film Corporation, is preparing for immediate work in connection with Miss Cahill's engagement.

Miss Cahill is the latest among many distinguished stars, including Marjorie Rambeau, Nance O'Neil and Gail Kane, with whom contracts have been recently announced by Mr. Freuler, and the engagement of the clever comedienne is renewed evidence of the Mutual's determination to live up to Mr. Freuler's announced policy "only big stars for the Mutual."

Marie Cahill is known from one end of the country to the other as one of the cleverest comediennes on the American stage. Before signing a contract with the Mutual, Miss Cahill had appeared but once on the screen, when her most successful comedy, "Judy Forgot," was screened.

Miss Cahill is to be surrounded by a thoroughly capable company of actors and actresses, Mr. Freuler having declared an intention to give personal attention to the selection of her support.

Because it is Miss Cahill's idea that a comedy to be effective must be short and snappy, two-reel productions will be the limit of any picture in which she appears under the present contract. The first of the Cahill comedies will be "Flirting with Romance."

Among Miss Cahill's most pronounced successes on the speaking stage in recent years were "Molly Moonshine," "Nancy Brown," "Marrying Mary," "The Boys and Betty," "The Opera Ball" and "Flirts."

Miss Cahill is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y. She made her first stage appearance in that city in "Kathleen Mavourneen" and later her regular professional debut at Poole's Eighth Street Theatre in "C. O. D." Her next appearance was as Patsy in Charles Hoyt's "A Tin Soldier," and after that she appeared at the Shaftesbury theatre in London in "Morocco Bound." Later productions in which Miss Cahill scored successes were "Sporting Life," "A Runaway Girl," "Monte Carlo" and "Three Little Lambs."

Next Ivan to Have Russian Setting

Ivan Abramson, the general director of the Ivan Film Corporation, is now engaged in the preparation of a photoplay dealing with the problems of Russian life.

Mr. Abramson, to add to his experience and knowledge, is now engaged in research work, getting all his material from the original Russian sources. Much interest is being shown in the production already because of the success of "Enlighten Thy Daughter," the latest Ivan.

Marie Cahill—Mutual

Railroad Wreck Staged for "The Whip"

On Wednesday, January 3, at Greenwood, Del., railroad wreck was staged as the final step in the Paragon production of "The Whip." The remainder of the film version of the play was completed some weeks ago.

Ten full size cars and an engine were required, and these were purchased outright, including a baggage car and a palace horse car such as those used for the transportation of valuable race horses. The remainder of the train was made up of passenger coaches.

In the play there is a scene showing an attempt to destroy a railway train in one of the cars of which a certain thoroughbred has been shipped to the track with the reasonable certainty that he will win the feature event of the next day's racing, if not prevented from starting. The train itself is badly smashed, but the horse is saved and of course wins the race, releasing the sporting hero from impending ruin.

After the railway equipment had been bought and assembled there was difficulty in finding a road that would permit the wreck to be made upon its property at a spot in keeping with the purport of the scene, and this was not accomplished until last week, when the Paragon's agent secured the sanction of officers of the Greenwood and Delaware railroad.

On Tuesday afternoon the Paragon party, consisting of the principal owners, the director of "The Whip" and two assistants, flanked by a force of ten camera-men and the actors to participate in the scene, departed from New York for Greenwood, and early in the following forenoon the episode was "shot" with what is said to have been the utmost success.

The cost is estimated by the company at approximately $25,000. Last Summer the principals in the cast were sent to Saratoga during the regular race meeting, where they played their parts one forenoon at the course, mingling with a crowd of several thousand persons attracted by a newspaper advertisement. Later the same actors were projected into the annual flower show at Long Branch to secure a number of unusual scenes for the picture.

Current Triangle Productions show at the left Frank Keenan and Thelma Salter in "The Crab." At the Right Wilfred Lucas in "Jim Bludso." Charles Kay Occupies the Central Space

Louise Huff Leaves New York for Lasky Studio

Louise Huff, Famous Players star, who has added to her laurels recently by her charming work as the co-star of Jack Pickford in the screen adaptation of Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen," departed for Hollywood, Cal., on the day after Christmas, where she will remain at the Lasky studio for several months.

The transfer of Miss Huff to the Lasky studio is in accordance with the announced plan to send Paramount stars to any studio of the producing companies that artistic purpose or producing exigencies may require, and follows shortly the arrival of Thomas Meighan, Lasky player, at the Famous Players studio.

The immediate object of Miss Huff's departure is the fact that she is soon to co-star with Jack Pickford in an adaptation of Gene Stratton Porter's celebrated novel and play "Freckles," the western atmosphere of which demands a typical California setting. Jack Pickford will follow Miss Huff west in a very short time.

The first Famous Players production in which Miss Huff appeared was the screen adaptation of Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead," in which Frank Losee was featured, released on the Paramount program a year ago. She was next engaged as the star of "Destiny's Toy," which was followed by "The Reward of Patience."

Miss Huff's departure followed the completion of the Famous Players adaptation of Charles Dickens' celebrated novel "Great Expectations," in which she will co-star with Jack Pickford on January 8. It was directed by Robert G. Vignola, who also directed the adaptation of the Tarkington novel.

Good Support for Wilbur

In the cast of "Unlucky Jim" with Crane Wilbur are Florence Printy, who plays the part of the girl; Nan Christy, the sister; Ila Lewis, the mother; Harrish Ingraham, the father; James Faussett, the butler and Jud Mullally, in the role of the "heavy."

Increased Demand for World-Brady Pictures

Departure from Present Policy Not Deemed Wise by Corporation Head

DIRECTOR-GENERAL WILLIAM A. BRADY declares that there has been an increased demand for World Pictures, Brady-made, manifested in all parts of the country and also in Europe, where the Gaumont Company, of London, reports that the entry of these pictures has been successful.

In recently declining to compete for the services of a very prominent star who was in the market for a special release, Mr. Brady said:

"Probably there would be a large profit for the corporation in such an alliance. In fact I am convinced that there would be. But of its wisdom in the long run I am not so certain.

"The further we proceed the more I am convinced that the present policy of the World is the right one. It involves nothing more than getting out the best pictures it is possible to get out, and selling them absolutely on their merits, never promising anything more than we can deliver.

"Even and reliable excellence is what we are after. We have many reasons for the belief that the public has grown to look for precisely this quality when it sees a World Brady-made announced, and that the condition is becoming more and more widespread every day.

"Why disturb such a situation by throwing all our energy and a large sum of money into a special feature with a high priced star, necessitating big fees from the exhibitors and increased prices at the box office?

"We feel that in the present development of the art we could not make better pictures than we are making, and that if we were to merely make longer ones and charge more for them—as we should be compelled to do by reason of the advanced cost—we would be 'dealing double' with exhibitors and the public, and bamboozling ourselves.

"We have been told repeatedly that our pictures ought to be released as 'specials,' and in some instances we have been invited to pad them out and sell state rights to the inquirers, some of whom called personally, while others applied by mail. It is our aim to make every World picture as good as any 'special,' but none of them will be padded out, and all will be released in the regular course and regular way on the World program.

"The returns from first finding a good plan and then sticking to it are illustrated in the plain, unalterable fact that every one of the World's exchanges, without exception, has tremendously enlarged its business during the past few months, while contracts already in hand for 1917 make it a practical certainty that the receipts will nearly, if not quite, double those of the previous year."

It is worthy of comment that the World is "pat" with its exhibitors.

Eleanor Black (Private Feature)

Kalem Plans Concentration on West Coast

All the Producing Companies Will Be Located at Glendale—Studio Enlargement Under Way

DEFINITE plans concerning the future policy of the Kalem Company with respect to concentrating their producing forces on the west coast, were made known last week by William Wright, secretary-treasurer, who has paid the producing studios in Los Angeles his semi-occasional visit.

It is the intention that all companies of the Kalem will be located at the Glendale studio, where extensive improvements are to be made. This will mean the closing of the Hollywood studio where in the past the "Ham" Comedies and the "Hazards of Helen" companies have worked, and the bringing out from Jacksonville the producing unit upon the completion of "Grant, Police Reporter" serial. In addition to concentrating the forces, the number of producing companies is to be enlarged and two additional directors and many players will increase the list.

Phil Lang, who has been in charge of the scenario and production work, supervising it from the New York office, will be located at the Glendale plant and assume the title of Manager of Production. Mr. Lang went to the coast several weeks in advance of Mr. Wright, and has already taken up the work of reorganizing and rebuilding.

Accompanying Mr. Wright to the coast were Storm V. Boyd, who has been with the Kalem Company for seven years, and for the past year has been at the Jacksonville studio serving as technical director. Mr. Boyd will have charge of the technical work for all of the companies. He is a graduate architect, and his many years' experience with the Kalem Company will make it possible for him to greatly aid west coast producing companies.

Harold M. Mitchell also went west with Mr. Wright, and is to direct the filming of the second "Stingaree" series. Mr. Mitchell was for five years with Thanhouser, and later with Lubin for some time.

In speaking of the plans for production, Mr. Lang stated that Director James Horne would continue with the filming of the "Girl From 'Frisco" series, and it is the intention to make additional two-reel releases so that there will be thirty-five episodes in all. Frederick Bechdolt, writer for the Saturday Evening Post and other publications, has been engaged to write the stories for this series, succeeding Robert Wells Ritchie, who is at present engaged in writing "Grant, Police Reporter" serial. E. W. Matlack, a Pittsburgh train dispatcher, and Herman A. Blockman, New York Central mail clerk, will furnish plots for the "Hazards of Helen" stories. Mr. Lang will be aided in the continuity department by Frank Howard Clark, who has been with the Kalem Company in the capacity of writer for the past two years, and has but recently come to the west coast.

The new adventures of "Stingaree" are to be filmed from plots furnished by E. W. Hornung of England, author of "Raffles" and other well-known stories. Since the release of the first "Stingaree" pictures, the Kalem Company have been negotiating with Mr. Hornung to write directly for them, and after many months of correspondence, the officers have finally succeeded in persuading him to follow this plan. The stories filmed in the first fifteen episodes were adapted from short stories written by him which appeared in a well-known magazine. It is believed by this engagement that the Kalem Company has set a new record in inducing a writer of the highest rank to write directly for the screen. Director Mitchell will have True Boardman as leading man playing the name role. Mr. Boardman created this part in the first series. James Farley has been engaged to play the part of Howie, the bush savage, and Miss Marin Sais will appear as leading woman in the first episode.

Mr. Wright has made a new lease for the property on which the Kalem Glendale studio is located, and has secured the use of eleven additional acres of land adjoining. On these grounds, the site of the present studio which is to be razed, a practically new producing plant will be built. There will be large open air stages, and a mammoth enclosed studio with artificial lighting means will be built. More dressing rooms are to be constructed, there will be larger scene docks, and later a new administration building. In connection with the latter a laboratory will be installed.

Beban in "His Sweetheart"

Helen Jerome Eddy, Harry De Vere, Kathleen Kirkham, "Peaches" Jackson, Sarah Kernan, Robert E. Rolson, J. N. Leonard, Cecil C. Holland and Charles Yorba are among the principal players who will appear in support of George Beban in the Morosco-Paramount Picture, "His Sweetheart," scheduled for release during the last of the month.

The story was written by George Beban and Lawrence McCloskey in collaboration before the former went West to begin work on the production.

The production was made under the direction of Donald Crisp, and for the street scenes in the Italian quarter asphalt paving was actually laid in the studio yard, gutters and sidewalks were built and stores were erected along the street which are said to resemble in every detail a typical section of the Italian quarter of New York.

Universal Buys 300 Scripts

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, through the Authors Associated Agency, has purchased more than 300 scripts from writers of note. These scripts will be immediately used for Universal productions and include one, two, three and five reel feature scenarios, both comedy and drama.

Among the authors whose works were purchased are C. N. and A. M. Williamson, Epes Winthrop Sargent and Burton C. Durand.

Broadway Cast for Pickford Subject

IN selecting his cast for Mary Pickford's new Artcraft production, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," a screen adaptation of the popular Eleanor Gates play and novel of the same name, Maurice Tourneur has succeeded, it is announced, in assembling a company of artists of talent and experience.

As the careless mother of Gwendolyn, who seeks high social standing rather than the love of her child, is Madeline Traverse, whose many years of theatrical and screen experience it is expected will result in making this characterization one of the features of the production. On the speaking stage in this and other countries Miss Traverse has met with considerable success in such well-known offerings as "The Chorus Lady," "Joseph and His Brethren," "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "Reaping the Harvest."

Earl Metcalfe Supporting Jean Sothern in "Her Good Name"—Van Dyke-Art Drama

In the part of the father of Gwendolyn, who prefers the excitement of Wall street to his home, is Charles Wellesley, with the Vitagraph Company for the past four years. Prior to his becoming connected with the silent drama, Mr. Wellesley became widely known in theatricals during his twenty years' association with the "legit" stage. Under the managements of Charles Frohman, Henry Savage, William A. Brady, Chauncey Olcott and other prominent producers he appeared in many big successes here and in England.

Gladys Fairbanks, who appeared in the original stage production of "A Poor Little Rich Girl," again displays her talents in the play before the motion picture camera as Jane, the nurse.

Frank McGlynn, who portrays the part of the kindly plumber, has achieved success as a director as well as an actor. In his career of twenty years on the legitimate stage he appeared in such well-known plays as "Officer 666," "The Only Way" and "Under the Red Robe." Other important characters in "A Poor Little Rich Girl" have been entrusted to Emile Le Croix, Marcia Harris, Charles Craig, Frank Andrews, Herbert Prior, George Gernon and Maxine Hicks, all well known on stage and screen.

Steger to Direct for Schenck

Joseph M. Schenck has entered into an agreement with Julius Steger, president of the Triumph Film Corporation, whereby the next and future screen appearances of Norma Talmadge, to be released through the Lewis J. Selznick Enterprises, Inc., will be personally directed by Julius Steger and Joseph A. Golden.

Messrs. Steger and Golden have a long list of successful photoplays to their credit, the most recent of which are "The Prima Donna's Husband" with Holbrook Blinn, Clara Whipple and Kathryn Browne Decker, and "The Libertine" with John Mason and Alma Hanlon.

Mr. Steger has selected for Miss Talmadge a story based upon a well-known play of modern life.

Mr. Schenck is also associated with Messrs Steger and Golden in the production of a photoplay of which Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will be the star.

"Beware of Strangers" Is a Selig

Walter Howie, city editor of The Chicago Tribune, has blossomed forth into a scenario writer and director. It was Mr. Howie who conceived the basic idea carried in the forthcoming Selig feature film "Beware of Strangers." Mr. Howie also collaborated with Gilson Willets in writing the scenario, and gave many valuable suggestions to Colin Campbell, the producer.

The picture is an expose of the methods employed by notorious swindlers who, within the past few months have robbed the confiding public of millions of dollars. It is said that many of Mr. Howie's experiences as a newspaper man are included in the story, which also is reminiscent of the blackmailing exposes which caused such a sensation in Chicago and other large cities recently.

The cast includes Tom Santschi, Fritzi Brunette, Ed Coxen, Vivian Rich, Bessie Eyton, Jack Richardson, Frank Clark, Eugenie Besserer, Harry Lonsdale and others. The sets are said to be among the most elaborate ever seen in Selig pictures.

Warwick to Begin "Court of St. Simon"

Robert Warwick, who has just completed his first Selznick-Picture, an adaptation of the detective drama, "The Argyle Case," will begin work immediately upon a film version of "The Court of St. Simon," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

For this production Harry Rapf, president of the Robert Warwick Film Corporation, has secured the services of the French director, Leonce Perret, who arrived in America last week. His most recent screen triumph was the presentation in Paris of a spectacular film, entitled "The Heroes of the Yser."

Perret is best known on this side of the Atlantic through his direction of the Suzanne Grandais features that were all the rage four or five years ago. Until his departure for this country Perret was director general of the Gaumont Company, and supervised the production of almost all its biggest features.

Flag Making by Uncle Sam in "U" Magazine

THE object of the Universal Screen Magazine is to perform an educational service in the community as well as amuse, and its purpose is being carried out successfully, according to an announcement of the company.

No fewer than nine subjects, all of them embodying information valuable to the theatre-goer, comprise the Screen Magazine for the coming week. The subjects have been culled from out more than twenty reels submitted by the Screen Magazine's corps of three hundred odd cameramen who ply their activities in every state and city of importance in the union.

It is not commonly known that a great majority of the American flags used in the United States Navy are manufactured in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and that a lengthy process is involved from the time the cloth is cut until the national emblem is assembled. The flags pass through a score of hands and intricate machinery is used in their making. This process is shown in the Screen Magazine.

Other subjects to be covered in this week's issue of the film magazine are:

Inspection of food by deputies of the Department of Health, a procedure required by law before the products reach the ultimate consumer; an interesting invention to be used on a bicycle to make more effective this vehicle in time of war, workers who risk their lives for paltry wages; a legless man who performs feats normal humans would hesitate to essay, and numerous other subjects of interest.

The Screen Magazine will be issued each week. It is not associated with the Universal Animated Weekly, a news feature which will be continued, but is, as its name implies, a screen magazine.

Sennett Announces Keystone Titles for February

MACK SENNETT last week gave out the Keystone lineup of comedies for the month of February, which are to be rented through the Triangle program as independent subjects to any exhibitors whether they rent other releases from the Triangle program or not.

The Mexican war comedy, "Villa of the Movies," with Glen Cavender in the name part, and an array of fun makers including George (Slim) Somerville, Bobbie Dunn, and pretty Peggy Pierce will be issued the first. Following this comes Chester Conklin in a double role vehicle, "Dodging His Doom," which was directed by Harry Williams, with Dora Rodgers, the Keystone "vamp," Guy Woodward, the always good heavy, and Dale Fuller as the wife of Chester's twin brother.

The last two releases for the month were completed last week. One is "Her Fame and Shame," the stranded burlesque show story with an entirely new angle and scores of kicks to it. Charles Murray romps away with the role of manager, Sylvia Ashton, as the leading woman of the troupe will get the undivided attention of the baldheads' row, and Louise Fazenda, the small town restaurant keeper's daughter, who falls for the lure of the footlights, offer a rare combination that make this a whirlwind of laughs. Frank Griffin was director of this comedy which Murray says is like a page from his own life.

"A Maiden's Trust," comes the last week of February, with a cast composed of Ford Sterling and Hugh Faye as a bogus baron and duke, Myrtle Lynd the daughter and Alice Davenport the mother, decidedly ambitious socially. It is a mixup of one real and four phony pearl necklaces, the genuine having been secured by the baron by making a deposit of one dollar at a pawn shop. All see the genuine by replacing it with a substitute and the results may easily be imagined.

It is intimated about the Keystone studio that Mr. Sennett has sent a company of players to the Orient, but no definite statement would be given out by any of the officials. A number of prominent players are absent from the producing plant.

Robert Vaughn, Thanhouser Star

Barrymore Company Off for Florida

Ethel Barrymore, Metro star, B. A. Rolfe, president of Rolfe Photoplays, Inc., and John W. Noble, her director, with the supporting cast and executive staff, have gone to Jacksonville, Fla., for the exterior scenes of Miss Barrymore's screen version of Edward Sheldon's play entitled "Egypt."

The company includes Robert Whittier, William B. Davidson, William C. Mandeville, Frank Montgomery, Hugh S. Jeffrey, Mrs. Allen Walker, of the supporting cast. Of Mr. Noble's executive staff that went to the Florida Metropolis were Herbert T. Carleton, photographer, and his assistant Marty Malone.

Donovan Will Go to Los Angeles

Director Frank P. Donovan, producing a series of comedy slapstick offerings, has returned to Baltimore, Md., where he has been for the past six months.

IN THE STATE RIGHTS FIELD

"Twenty Thousand Leagues" is Sold in 21 States

Universal Undersea Picture, After Record Showing in Broadway Theatre, New York, Is Taken Rapidly by State Right Buyers

WITHIN two days after the announcement in the motion picture trade journals of the sale of Universal's submarine feature, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," on a state rights basis, twenty-one states have been disposed of.

"Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" did the greatest business in the history of the Broadway theatre, New York, where it is now showing to filled houses daily. The business for the first two weeks at that theatre amounted to $22,000.

William Oldknow, the Universal representative in the South, who has offices at Atlanta, Ga.; Dallas, Tex., and New Orleans, reports that the territories of North Carolina, Alabama, Texas, Florida, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia and Arkansas have already been closed.

Mr. Oldknow saw "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" at the Broadway theatre.

The Boston Photoplay Company has secured the rights for the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

I. Van Ronkel has bought the state rights for Illinois.

J. V. Bryson has bought state rights for Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Montana.

The Universal Company can be said to have one of the most remarkable propositions ever offered in the state right market. It has many unique features.

The story of Jules Verne is known to the majority of the motion picture's public. Added to that the fact that the Williamson undersea photographic apparatus was used, and that the greater part of the scenes in the picture were taken on the bed of the Carribbean, it is an easy matter to understand to what extent the imagination and curiosity of the public can be stimulated. Judicious advertising will accomplish this effect of stimulation.

An elaborate brochure in colors has been prepared by the publicity and advertising departments of the Universal staff. Besides press matter of all kinds, it contains several pages of electrotyped ads for use by the exhibitor in his newspaper campaigns.

That the submarine spectacle is going over in fine style in all parts of the country is evidenced by a number of telegrams, which have come to Carl Laemmle. Two of them are reprinted here.

One is from Edward James, Broadway theatre, Portland, Oregon, and reads:

"Never before in the history of this city have such big audiences been so well entertained as I have shown today in my new Broadway theatres . . . 20,000 leagues packed the house from 11 A. M. to 11 P. M.

The other telegram is from C. A. Metzger, the Universal agent in Portland, Oregon, and reads:

"Twenty thousand leagues opened today James Broadway total receipts $1,306.75. This business was done in face of strongest competition in history of show business in Portland."

"Witching Hour" in Mid-West

"The Witching Hour" is being handled throughout Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma by the Super-Attraction Film Company, just organized by Paul Le Marquand and associates in Omaha. Le Marquand, who is head of the Fontenelle Feature Film Company, as well as being owner and manager of the Empress theatre, recently returned from New York City, where he bought the state rights on the picture. Other features will follow.

Westcott Buys "Masque of Life" for Eight States

E. A. Westcott of the Wescott Film Corporation, Minneapolis, has purchased "The Masque of Life" from the Signet Film Corporation for eight states: Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Missouri, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska.

Robarge Has "Witching Hour"

R. W. Robarge, with offices at 410 Jefferson street, has purchased from the Art Dramas Film Corporation, of Chicago, the Northern Wisconsin, North and South Dakota and Minnesota rights of "The Witching Hour." This picture is attracting wide attention in the Middle West, and Mr. Robarge anticipates very heavy bookings as soon as his feature is put on the market.

Hirsh Acquires "Maciste"

"Marvelous Maciste," featuring the Giant of "Cabiria", has been purchased by Nathan Hirsh, president of the Pioneer Feature Film Corporation, who will distribute it in New York and New Jersey.

"Civilization" Offices in Strand Building Enlarged

The Civilization Film Corporation, Mr. Frank G. Hall, president, have taken the entire first floor of the Strand theatre Building, where they are making extensive alterations and preparations for booking "Civilization" and "War's Women."

These features are now being released to the New Jersey trade on a daily rental basis.

The Civilization Film Corporation will, from time to time, release other productions.

Selznick, Inc., Buys "Masque" for Illinois

Aaron J. Jones announces that his Central Film Corporation, which has become known as Lewis J. Selznick, Incorporated, of Chicago, has purchased from J. L. Kempner, of New York, "The Masque of Life," the feature film recently shown at the La Salle, for the territory covering Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Kentucky. It will be released immediately.

Director Edward Sloman rehearsing a big scene for "A Son of Battle," latest Mutual-American Maxine Elliott in Goldwyn Pictures

Jane Cowl

Mae Marsh

Harwell Buys Control in Unity Service Corporation

H. W. Harwell has purchased the controlling interest in the Unity Service Corporation and has been elected president to succeed W. R. Merrill.

The Unity Service Corporation is an independent exchange handling Unity and other releases and in the short time they have been in business has established an enviable reputation. Mr. Harwell is well-known to the exhibitors in New York territory, and should have no trouble in building up a lucrative business.

Mr. Harwell has just concluded negotiations with A. J. Cobe, vice-president and general manager of the Unity Sales Corporation, whereby he will have the exclusive handling of the Tweedledum Comedies and also "Glory," a seven-reel feature in which Juanita Hansen and Kolb and Dill are featured, to be released by the Unity, January 15.

Sherrill Plans Three New Features

William L. Sherrill, president of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, announces that he is considering three new productions, one of which he will bring out in the near future. He declined to make a more definite announcement than that the new feature will contain no less than eight reels.

"The Witching Hour" has had remarkable success. Only two territories remain unsold. The success of this picture is paving the way for a demand for new Frohman Amusement Corporation productions.

Ultra Going Well

The first release of the Ultra Pictures Corporation, "The Woman Who Dared," featuring Beatriz Michelena the prima donna and dramatic artist, insures for the Ultra a healthy start, as the production is said to be excellent and bookings are rapid.

Schwartz Films, Inc., to Handle Wilcox Films in Mid-West

THE new firm of "Schwartz Films, Incorporated" has made its advent into the feature film field of the Middle West. The officers of "Schwartz Films, Incorporated" announce that they will operate a special publicity service in connection with each feature distributed with the intention of opening up new avenues of film advertising for the exhibitor and practically insure capacity patronage for every picture booked.

Among the first of the features handled by "Schwartz Films, Incorporated," will be the series of six two-reel pictures based upon the poems of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and distributed by them to exhibitors in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana.

The titles of the six dramas are announced as "A Married Coquette," "Angel or Demon," "Meg's Curse," "Lais, When Young," "Divorced" and "Lord, Speak Again." Among the stars in the various casts are Arthur Ashley, Lucile Taft, Walter Miller and Charlotte De Felice.

Baby Lorna Volare (Consolidated)

Marcus Loew has arranged for the entire series to play his string of New York theatres, and the Proctor circuit has contracted for the second run following the Loew showing. "Schwartz Films, Incorporated" have announced that they will book the six Ella Wheeler Wilcox pictures for this territory in one booking, releasing them to the exhibitor at the rate of one each week.

The officers of "Schwartz Films, Incorporated" are, William M. Schwartz, president and general manager; M. Schwartz, vice-president; Jack M. Schwartz, treas.; and I. Maynard Schwartz, sec'y.

Bromberg Opens State Rights Offices in Atlanta

A. C. Bromberg, manager of the Atlanta branch of the International Film Service, has resigned to open offices for himself.

Mr. Bromberg is to handle the Coles Moving Picture Machine in the Southern states, and his intentions are to secure the best of state right pictures for the Southern territory.

The offices are at present located on the second floor of the Hirsch Building. Mr. Bromberg stated that he would be glad to hear from state right producers relative to purchasing special features.

Mr. Bromberg is one of the old timers in the film business, starting in Birmingham, Ala., ten years ago.

His friends number many among the exhibitors and exchange managers, and they will no doubt be glad to hear of his new undertaking.

Selznick Buffalo Branch Sold

Louis T. Rogers has bought the controlling interest in Selznick Pictures, Inc., of 15 Swan street, Buffalo, N. Y., of which Lewis J. Selznick is president and Edward Speigel, treasurer.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Exchanges Opened to Supply South and West

Art Drama Offices in Denver, Dallas and Salt Lake City to Maintain Publicity and Service Bureaus

ART Dramas Exchanges have been opened at 1911 Commerce street, Dallas, for the distribution of their films in the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas, and at Welton street, Denver, and 137 E. Second street, South, Salt Lake City, for the states of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and Idaho. Francis J. Gilbert, a widely known exchange man, will take personal charge of the Dallas office and Lester Parks, equally well-known in film circles, will personally supervise the Denver office.

From these offices will be distributed the releases of Art Dramas, the William L. Sherrill Feature Corporation, the U. S. Amusement Corporation, the Van Dyke Film Corporation, the Erbograph Company, and Apollo Pictures, Inc.

A publicity and service department is being installed in all offices to the end that all exhibitors in the states covered will receive all possible assistance in the showing of the pictures.

Art Dramas is starring such well-known artistes as Jean Sothern, Gertrude McCoy, Anna Q. Nillson, Dorothy Bernard, Alma Hanlon and others of equal note.

Mr. Gilbert is one of the pioneer film men in the section of the country, he is elected to represent having distributed the All-Star features, produced by Harry R. Raver several years ago; he also handled the distribution of Cabiria, the first of the big spectacular pictures, in his territory. Before entering the field of film, Mr. Gilbert was connected with the Stair and Havlin circuit of legitimate attractions, and has also managed many metropolitan legitimate theatres, and is generally conceded a showman of unquestioned integrity and sound ability.

Barr to Represent Twenty Exhibitors

After a year's service as manager of the New Orleans branch, Maurice F. Barr, of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., will resign that office, effective January 15.

Barr will become the executive and confidential representative at New Orleans for twenty leading Southern exhibitors. He brings to his new position ample experience for such a trusted post, as his career covers the exhibiting, advertising and exchange end of the business.

In 1914 he edited the first motion picture page in the South for the New Orleans Item, which department as conducted today by R. E. Pritchard, is generally accredited to be one of the best published in the United States. From The Item he went to the World Film under the Selznick management, remaining there for a year as manager of the New Orleans branch. He has been with Bluebird in the South since its organization a year ago.

The rapidly increasing importance of New Orleans as a film centre; the construction of several theatres there which in the aggregate represents an investment of nearly a million dollars, and the different phases of state rights marketing plan has put several wrinkles upon the exchange sales system, which leading exhibitors in the Southern territory argue opens a new field of activity for a man thoroughly versed in the business.

Barr will enjoy a rare advantage in his new position, which is thoroughly original in the South. Every client of his is personally acquainted with him; he knows their towns having sold them for the past few years, is acquainted with their house policy, and knows the individual needs of each situation as applied locally.

Pathe, Omaha, Moves

The Pathe exchange in Omaha, Neb., has moved, since the consolidation with the International, from the rooms at 1312 Farnam street to the International rooms at 1417 Harney, with the entire staff, headed by Manager J. E. Kirk. The International staff of employees, including Manager Edgar Moss, remains with the consolidated exchange until January 13, when it was announced further disposition of their places will be made.

Manager Dunham Palmer of the Vitagraph exchange, 1111 Douglas street, Omaha, Neb., has installed an exhibition room and will show to exhibitors every Monday.

Maurice F. Barr

Lombard Joins Famous in Minneapolis

M. R. Lombard, who has been in the show business for the past twenty years, and who has a wide experience in every branch of the industry was recently added to the sales forces of the Famous Players Star Feature Film Service, of Minneapolis, distributors of Paramount Pictures in that section. Mr. Lombard is thoroughly familiar with Minnesota, the territory he will cover, and he is personally acquainted with nearly every theatre man in the section.

F. W. Bauer, has also been added to the sales force of this exchange. He went from Detroit, Mich., where he has had extensive experience in selling in that city, having been associated with a number of large automobile concerns. Mr. Bauer will travel through Wisconsin with headquarters in Milwaukee.

All Exchanges on Pleasant Street, Boston, by Spring

The early spring will see the last of the film exchanges housed on Pleasant street, Boston, when the Mutual moves from its present location to the building nearing completion at 39 Church street. It will have an entrance on Melrose street and North Canton place. There will be 10,000 square feet of floor space thoroughly equipped with up-to-date appliances. Hunter Bennett, Mutual exchange supervisor in Boston, has been making the arrangements.

The Community Motion Picture Bureau has moved to new quarters in the Social Union Building, 142 Berkeley street, Boston.

Riter Finds Knickerbockers in Demand

W. C. Riter, special representative for Knickerbocker star features and Vim comedies, has just left for Philadelphia after spending several days in New York.

Mr. Riter has covered the far West and the East in the interest of these brands, and finds they are in much demand.

Koerpel's Clever Exchange Idea

J. A. Koerpel, manager of the World in Philadelphia, has conceived an original plan which is sure to make for better service between his exchange and the theatres.

Mr. Koerpel believes in enlisting the cooperation of the operators and has offered money prizes each month to the operator who has the highest record for bringing back films to the exchange most promptly and in the best condition. A system has been devised by which each operator will get a certain number of credits on every reel returned by him. In four months a grand prize will be awarded to the operator who has won the largest number of monthly credits.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC., PRESENT
"THE DEVIL'S PAY-DAY"
FEATURING FRANKLYN FARNUM
-THE ROMANTIC DRAMA OF A MAN WHO SINNED—AND PAID—
DIRECTED BY WM. WORTHINGTON

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS

MEETING EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS ON MERIT BASED ON THE POLICY OF "THE PLAY'S THE THING"

ALL things are founded on fact. Fact is Fact and can't be disproved. It is a fact that "God's Crucible" is one of the most beautiful photoplays the screen has ever seen. With Grand Canyon forming a magnificent background, with a story of rare charm and sweetness, with stars, direction and magnificent photography effects that will win applause wherever shown, "God's Crucible" stands as a lasting monument to the genius of those responsible for its production.

It is immeasurably superior to the average costly feature photoplay. It surpasses the average feature in EVERY detail. Its exhibition will stamp your House as the House where the World's finest screen productions are to be seen. If you ARE showing BLUEBIRDS this release will clinch your claim to exhibiting the world's finest pictures. If you are still to book and show BLUEBIRDS "God's Crucible" will make a most auspicious introduction. With such productions as "The Devil's Pay Day" (announced on the reverse side of this advertisement) and the others before and to follow, you practically insure lasting prestige and continuous profits for your House. 10,000,000 people are reached every week with our BLUEBIRD ads in the Saturday Evening Post. A tremendous power for growth and expansion. Think it over—It's for YOUR benefit.

(Watch for the new BLUEBIRD idea in our next announcement.)

Book thru your local BLUEBIRD Exchange or thru

EXECUTIVE OFFICES

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (Inc.)

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

ER.

Nininger, Jr., Back with Pathe

A. R. Nininger, Jr., of the International Film Service, has announced his return to the Pathe fold, after having been away from this organization for the past seven months.

Mr. Nininger has enjoyed an enviable reputation as a film salesman, especially in the state of Florida, where he has been for over a year. He was for some months with the World Film Corporation acting in the capacity of special road representative in the Atlanta territory, prior to his first engagement with Pathe, and has maintained one of the highest standings for salesmen in the Southeast.

For many years he held a leading position in the exhibiting end of the film business.

Pictures in Towns of Less Than Six Hundred

Attempts made in the past two or three months to conduct theatres in Southern California towns of a population of less than five hundred, have been found successful. These houses are open from one to three nights each week. The Progressive Motion Picture Company, the Paramount exchange of Los Angeles, is at the present time furnishing film to fifteen such theatres. They serve as an outlet for film after it has become six months or more old, and has been used by all other patrons of the exchange.

Form Exchange Managers' Association in Montreal

Within the past few days there has been formed an Exchange Managers' Association in Montreal. The members of this organization are: T. O. Byerle, president, Universal; C. Lalumiere, secretary, Pathe exchange; and M. West, treasurer, Fox Film.

The Board of Directors consists of: E. Weils, General Film Company; E. English, Regal Films Limited; H. Hoffman, Famous Players; and Mr. Laurent, Kline Edison Company.

Mutual Film Celebrates Its Second Anniversary

W. F. Holdermann, manager of the Mutual Film Corporation at Albany, N. Y., banqueted his entire staff on the 4th instant, the occasion being the second anniversary of the opening of the Albany office of the corporation. The whole force was present and none but congratulatory words were spoken, for Mr. Holdermann has made an enviable record for himself in promoting absolute harmony among his assistants and co-workers.

Pleasing Report from Nebraska

Manager Jake Mitchell of the Laemmle Film Service in Omaha announces the new sales promotion department is proving successful with the Universal in this territory. The traveling representatives are co-operating with the exhibitors in arranging advertising campaigns, and in putting the show before the public. The work is bringing a closer co-operation, Mitchell says, between the exchange and the exhibitors.

Gookin Publishes Snappy "V" House Organ

W. C. GOOKIN, branch manager of Vitagraph V. L. S. E. in Kansas City, Mo., is publishing a weekly house organ, which he calls "The Pepper Box and Ginger Car News," for the benefit of the employes of that exchange. It is a four-page bulletin, devoted to the interests of Vitagraph and Vitagraph exhibitors.

In "The Pepper Box," Mr. Gookin also publishes a sort of sales manual, in which he shows the salesmen how the results may best be accomplished by that co-operation between exchange and exhibitor which Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, insists shall be the basis of his company's relations with its customers.

Mr. Gookin also devotes considerable space to his allotment of territory, whereby the whole branch may at all times know how the theatres are divided up as to groups, districts and subdivisions.

Some pithy little paragraphs find their way from Mr. Gookin's pen to "The Pepper Pot." Among them are:

"Salesmen invariably make more money wearing out shoe leather than trouser seats."

"Every member of this organization must play fair; but he must hit the line hard! This is no ping pong business."

"Remember that if you make one statement that the exhibitor knows to be untrue all the rest of your statements are without weight."

W. K. Day has been promoted to be shipper of the Kansas City Vitagraph V-L-S-E branch; H. M. Lozier has succeeded Howard Curtis as receiving and poster clerk; P. A. Engler has resigned to go to Atlanta. The sales force now consists of L. J. Scott, Y. Darnell, A. J. Reed and F. F. Nine.

Minneapolis Screen Club Disbands

The Minneapolis Screen Club has been disbanded and the officers are returning dues and initiation fees to the members. Many of the men belong to other organizations and have not found time to attend its functions. The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the Northwest holds weekly meetings which take all the spare time of exhibitors in that city.

Undersea Film in Northwest

James V. Bryson, well-known Milwaukee and Minneapolis film man, on Tuesday closed a deal whereby he takes over the state rights for Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, to "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," the Williamson submarine picture which is now having such a successful run in Chicago.

Mr. Bryson is reported to have paid well over $50,000 for the rights for these four states. He will probably open up a Wisconsin office in Milwaukee in the near future.

N. H. Spitzer, New York Exchange Manager, Whose Comments on the Advance Deposit Question are Printed in This Issue

Y. F. Freeman of Southern Paramount Uses These "Stickers"

Herewith is a unique "sticker" which accompanies every letter or invoice from the Paramount exchanges owned by the S. A. Lynch interests, C. E. Tandy, general manager. The idea was from the fertile brain of Y. F. Freeman, who spends most of his time thinking out ways and means of meeting the exhibitor at least half way.

> If anything should occur in our handling of your business that is not entirely satisfactory to you, be kind enough to let us know at once. Our exhibitors MUST be satisfied for we cannot afford to have one dissatisfied customer and will not, if there is any way within our power to prevent it.
>
> SOUTHERN PARAMOUNT PICTURES CO.
>
> Atlanta, Ga. Dallas, Tex.
>
> New Orleans, La.

Malcom Goes to McClure

Mr. Malcom, present manager of the Mutual Film Company, Montreal, leaves shortly to take up his duties on the Coast with the newly formed McClure Pictures Corporation.

Taube Joins Regal

Sidney Taube, formerly Montreal branch manager for the Universal, has joined the staff of Regal Films, Limited, Toronto, Canadian distributors for World Brady-made pictures, whose headquarters have been established at 37 Yonge street.

Newspaper Men in Capital City See "Intolerance"

D. W. Griffith gave a private presentation of "Intolerance" to the Press Club of Washington, D. C., Monday evening, January 8, in the New Willard Hotel.

During the intermission Mr. Griffith was called upon for a speech. His theme was the attempts that have been made to establish a Federal censorship of film productions.

JUST FOR FUN

By LONGACRE

"DIANA" HUNEKER who once conducted the Woman's Page of the Philadelphia Inquirer and who is now in the scenario department of Goldwyn Pictures bears the distinction of having answered letters touching on and pertaining to every question under the sun. Our only request is that "Diana" send us her ideas on the future of the motion picture business.

PHILIP LONERGAN, Thanhouser scenaroist, rises to protest about being deprived of the credit for the continuity of "King Lear." "Shakespeare and I," writes Phil, "had many conferences while I was making this adaptation, and he feels that I should have received credit for it." As long as Shakespeare doesn't mind, we herewith give Phil all the credit due him, which incidentally is quite a lot.

THE haunting wail that drifted New Yorkwards from Los Angeles recently was only William Farnum bemoaning the loss of his trained kodak in a studio fire.

OUR statistical department quotes that the last week which went by without some star announcing the formation of his or her own company was in April, 1891.

JOSEPH WEINSTOCK, our celebrated Park Row exhibitor, paid fifty dollars for a seat on the Stock Exchange the other day. It's sort of mean to charge that rate when the S. R. O. sign is up all the time.

NORMA TALMADGE, who appeared in "Panthea" at the Rialto last week, dropped into Mr. Rothapfel's office Thursday to learn if it were true that the glass sill of the box office had been worn out by the money pushed across it since Sunday. When she was assured that it was even so she departed quite happily, pausing only to chat with Mr. Rothapfel for half an hour, watch her picture through once, and give out an interview to a reporter who happened to chance in at the moment.

ONCE more has the married Maverick Terrell become our correspondent, this time submitting ten very good reasons why a comedy scenarioist should get married. Maverick was originating convulsions for Charlie Chaplin up to a short time ago, but now he gives as his address "Somewhere in California and the Films." Here are the ten:

If any scenarioist can find anyone that will take him seriously he should marry her if she is a she.

Marriage is perfect continuity.

To court a sense of humor and hold it a man should certainly be married.

Two heads must make more tales than one.

They say women have no sense of humor yet they marry us.

Fun, real fun, is a precarious bird. Two people certainly have more chance to sprinkle salt than one.

It is a comfort to have some one handy to support you if necessary. In comedy more than anywhere else good support is at a premium.

A sense of humor should be fed. Frequently.

A builder of film comedy must have someone close by that can tell him he isn't funny. Someone he can believe.

A good wife bespeaks a fine pal. A fine pal makes life worth while. That means good digestion, sound nerves, contented mind. And believe me it takes that and more to be a successful film comedy tailor —and live.

WE eagerly await next week's mail for some hundreds of proposals that, if accepted, might really make this celebrated page funny.

THOSE fellows who rig themselves up in the paraphenalia of deep-sea divers and parade the streets of Gotham advertising Universal's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," stayed at home one day last week, the reason being that it was raining.

VIRGINIA PEARSON, noted cream bather and silhouette-beauty-spot wearer of Fox pictures has jibed off on another tack, i. e., the writing of poetry in her spare moments. She has already composed three beautiful little pieces one of which we reprint below, and if the applause is sufficient more will follow just as fast as Virginia can write them.

GOOD FORM AND REFORM

Little dog and little cat
Played at baseball with a bat.
Little baby passed that way,
Saw the cat and dog at play,
Threw her hands up in dismay,
Tried to speak—could only coo,
"What is this world coming to?"
And she was right!

Little man and little miss
Played at swapping hug and kiss.
Old reformer passed along,
Saw aright and thought it wrong,
Went and preached to all the pokes,
"Boys and girls are awful folks!"
And he was right!

"INDEPENDENT municipality of 20,000 persons, its law and justice administered by William Fox, organized and maintained, with hospitals, courts of justice and every other adjunct of a modern city." No, the above is not an application for a city charter, but an extract from the program of the Lyric theatre, where "A Daughter of the Gods" is running ever so merrily along. It all bears on the making of the picture down Jamaica way.

The Longacre Lampoon

All the News That Fits, We Print Longacre Square, N. Y., January 27, 1917

EDITORIAL

We get sort of tired of blaming the directors and authors for something or other all the time. But when one sees sixty or seventy thousand feet of film a week he is liable to see a score of foolish little things that oughtn't to be. Take the character who has his story to tell for instance. It is most likely that he be telling it to a jury. And the scene fades and the spectator is carried back to incidents connected with the murder or whatever the trial is about. And the character tells all about things that he never saw happen. He comes in late just in time to get mixed up in the climax of the affair and then on the stand he knows just what happened previously. Knows who pulled the gun, pulled the trigger, et al. The scene then comes back to the court room and the witness steps from the stand and the trial proceeds. Everyone in the picture has believed his story and you are supposed to believe it too. After all when you come right down to it, there's a little too much of this "going back" stuff. The more progressive a picture is the better it holds the well known interest.

LOCAL NEWS

—F. Price jr., the only man in this town who can drink a tall beer with his left hand, is now to work for Universal, and H. H. Van Loan is back on his job after a short illness.

—There is more cause for worry as a new female reviewer has been added to the staff of the Billboard.

—Bill Reynolds, w. k. in w. k. theatrical circles, has become a staunch supporter of the m. p. ever since seeing Cecil De Mille's show, "Joan, the Woman," which will be interesting reading for many.

—Donald McDitto has denied personally all reports that he is dead.

—Dave Griffith is hovering intolerantly about N. Y.

—Everyone around here is extending the glad hand to "Weed" Dickinson, who is back doing m. p. stuff for the m. or I. Morning Telegraph. Dick says the advent of Les Darcy to these shores had nothing to do with his quitting the sporting dep't.

—L. Rubenstein goes to all the trouble to tell ye ed about a story about a rooster that crew so, the object being to make a pun on "Robinson Crusoe." The same joke was pulled in these pages several months since.

—Bebe Daniels got a lawnmower for Christmas, she being a bungaloafer, says P. A. Parsons. P. A. are his real initials.

—This is the season when offices are in receipt of calendars.

—Jack Pickford was seen dancing around up at the Plaza one P. M. last wk., Mayor J. P. Mitchel being there 2.

—Phil Mindel is gadding about town after his usual fashion and with his w. k. cane.

—Doug Fairbanks is causing considerable excitement in the m. p. bus. these days which is 1 of the things Doug likes 2 do.

NEWSY REPORTS FROM ALL SECTIONS

Lunch Held by Baltimore Exhibitors

A luncheon was tendered the Baltimore exhibitors on Wednesday, January 3, by George M. Mann of Washington, D. C., manager of the Famous Players Exchange there. The event was attended by many of the Paramount exhibitors together with officials of the Paramount offices of New York and Washington.

Carl H. Peirce of the New York office was present at the luncheon.

H. P. Mulford, Paramount publicity manager for the Washington office, told the exhibitors what the office was prepared to do in aiding them in publicity. E. R. Carr of the sales department gave a short talk on salesmanship and the relation of the salesman to the exhibitor.

Following these talks there was a general discussion of conditions which was participated in by Myer Fox of the Rialto theatre; Harry W. Webb, president of the Parkway; Bernard Depkin, manager of the Parkway; G. Horton Gaffney of the New Pickwick; Arthur Price of the Rialto; Louis Rome of the Broadway and the Aladdin; J. Baker of the Peabody theatre; and Thomas D. Goldberg of Goldberg's theatre and the new Gordon theatre.

Pennsylvania Passes "Truant Soul"

The Pennsylvania board of censors finally has passed Henry B. Walthall's Essanay feature, "The Truant Soul," after holding up its presentation in the Quaker state for two weeks. The Ohio board of censors previously had reconsidered its objections to the film and passed it in that state. This action opens the door to this picture, which Walthall says is his greatest, through the country.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Fred Mace, the well known Keystone comedian, is in New York city.

Mannie Gotlieb, of Favorite Feature Film Company, of Minneapolis, is in the East.

Harry Charnis, of the Standard Feature Film Company, of Cleveland, is in New York city.

W. W. Kulp, of the Ohio Feature Film Company, Cleveland, is in New York looking for state rights' offerings.

Joseph Grossman, manager of the Standard Theatre, Cleveland, is in New York, stopping at the Astor.

Louis B. Mayer, of Boston, arrived in New York last week.

Mr. Cohan, of the New York office of Metro, is now in San Francisco.

James B. Clark, of Pittsburgh, arrived in New York city last week.

A. D. Flintom, the prominent Kansas City film man, is in New York for a short stay.

Milwaukee Paper Turns to "News" for News

High Cost of White Paper Makes Average Press Agent Story Unusable—Screen Editor Uses "News" for His Information Source

AS the cost of print paper continues to soar, and the white space decrease, newspapers the country over are turning more and more to some authentic source of news for material for their "movie" pages.

The demand is growing daily for some source of information that will give the "movie" editor the facts he wants in a crisp, snappy form, with all of the wind blown out of the story and the facts presented so that he can run them in his now limited space, with the least outlay of white space.

And the result has been that he has turned to the MOTION PICTURE NEWS for his "press dope," almost altogether discarding the press sheets which flood his mail daily, and which, sad to say, contain some sixty to seventy-five per cent. "bunk" unavailable for use in the "movie" sections.

A striking example of this may be secured from the "movie" page of the Milwaukee Journal. Last Sundays' issue contained three feature stories with cuts, two of these stories were taken from the MOTION PICTURE NEWS and the cuts from the Journal files. One of the stories dealt with Mme. Petrova leaving Metro for Lasky, while the other was an original story compiled from the NEWS by Sam Levy, the "movie" editor, on "Child Film Performers." In addition to this, there was a very copious reference made to the studio directory and about two sticks of short sidelights compiled from the NEWS.

The coming Sunday will see a story taken from the studio directory issue dealing with the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Wetting hold record for playing continuously together since their marriage 24 years ago, and that they are Wisconsin people. On the same page will also appear a cut of Maxine Elliott—a story taken from the NEWS on her joining the Goldwyn Players, a cut of Alice Joyce, with a story taken from the NEWS on her being saved from drowning recently.

If this last-named story had been contained in a press sheet, it would undoubtedly been branded as a fairy tale, but its appearance in the NEWS gave it the final stamp of authenticity that is needed.

Other stories that the Journal will run is one on Margaret Swain being engaged by the Art Craft to play opposite George Cohan, one on Mignon Anderson joining the Universal, and one on Maude Fealy joining Lasky to play opposite Theodore Roberts.

According to Mr. Levy, the great majority of the press sheets fail to deliver the material the photoplay editor wants. They go wide of the mark. In the pages of the NEWS, however, he finds what he wants.

Other papers in Milwaukee are also availing themselves of the NEWS for their "movie" news, not only because the NEWS goes into all of the editorial sanctums, but because it goes to the "movie" editor direct, and it contains what he wants.

South Dakota Exhibitors Win Sunday Opening Fight

In South Dakota, a number of towns, large and small, have been seized with the idea that motion picture theatres should not operate on Sunday. Exhibitors have put up a sturdy fight and in most instances they have won. South Dakota is without a state organization of exhibitors.

The latest fight has been at Mitchell, one of the largest places. The council passed an ordinance allowing Sunday pictures, but the church people fought it. The three exhibitors finally won. In Oldham, S. D., reformers got an injunction against Paul Anderson operating on Sunday, but he operated anyway, going into court. He did not intend to make a practice of Sunday shows, he said, but intended showing on Sunday whenever he took a notion to.

"Crisis" at a Dollar in Minneapolis

In Minneapolis, the home of Sherman and Elliott, who are handling "The Crisis," the picture is showing at dollar admission prices. This is the fourth time a picture has been put on at a Minneapolis house at this price.

G. Hepburn Wilson and Dorothy Day Illustrating "The Toddle," Season's Latest Dance, and Gaumont-Mutual "Reel Life" Number 40

Gail Kane — Kolb and Dill in "Beloved Rogues"—Mutual Stars — Mary Miles Minter

Banner Xmas Business in Nebraska and Iowa

Exhibitors Establish Record Patronage for Holiday Season in That Territory

EXHIBITORS of Nebraska and Iowa, realizing that the holiday time usually means losses to them in patronage, decided this year to change the program and make it a time of banner business. How they did it, establishing a record for good business at this season, will no doubt be of interest and possibly of benefit to exhibitors elsewhere.

Early in December, when business was excellent, the exchanges began warning the exhibitors of the coming dull season and advising them to take extra measures to head it off. "Advertise—Boost," they warned, by special letter, by telegram, and by messages carried by their road men.

B. R. Atkinson of the Royal at Carroll, Neb., was one of those that listened. He decided December 21, four days before Christmas, would be about the dullest time. He owns the Carroll Index, a weekly newspaper. He began boosting "The Life of the Savior," his feature for December 21. He gave a matinee for children only, twenty cents admission, at 9:15 a. m.; gave a matinee in the afternoon, twenty-five cents admission, and two shows at night, twenty-five cents admission. His house, two hundred capacity, was filled at every show.

H. E. Boatwright of the Glidden theatre, Tabor, Ia., arranged days in advance, sent to the Kalem people in the east and secured "From the Manger to the Cross" for Christmas day. He advertised the trouble he had gone to get this particular picture, and crowded his house at every show. Exhibitor Boatwright has made a big success of children's matinees.

The express companies were the only disappointing factor; they were so crowded they could not handle the films with the rapidity desired.

Manager L. A. Getzler of the Mutual, to add his personal influence, took a trip through the territory and found exhibitors busy everywhere. "They were rustling up the business," he declared, "and they were getting it, too. They were not sitting down and letting the holiday business swell into a slump." Incidentally, Manager Getzler got a number of contracts signed.

In the Pathe exchange the "dull season" developed such a rush an extra bookkeeper and an extra inspector were put on.

The Saturday before Christmas the vaults in the General exchange were practically cleaned out. Manager Taylor had more films this Christmas than ever before. He declares the demand was greater than ever before during the holidays in the Omaha territory. "The exhibitors put on stronger programs and gave extra shows," he said. "In many instances the small town exhibitors put on two different programs on Christmas day, thereby accommodating the same crowds twice."

The Bluebird picture, "The Right To Be Happy," taken from Charles Dickens' famous "A Christmas Carol," was one of the swiftest successes of the season. The Omaha Daily News, circulated throughout the territory, publishes a novel a week. Calvert went to them and got them to publish, during the week before Christmas, "A Christmas Carol." Several days before Christmas he turned over twelve accounts to the Universal that he was unable to fill. "I need more prints," he declared, when confronted with the same problem on New Year's day.

GUY LEAVITT.

Old Stunt Worth Repeating

The Temple, an uptown motion picture house in Cleveland, has used an old method of advertising in a new way. They offered a prize for the capture of a "stranger" to whom the catch question had to be asked. "What's showing at the Temple tonight?" David Schlessel, a Leader-News newsboy didn't know anything about the contest, even, but he asked the catch question in good faith. So now David is ten dollars to the good, and is very much in favor of motion picture advertising. He has become a movie fan as well.

Amusement Men Asked to Help Draft Theatre Laws

THE officers of the Amusement Association of Kansas have been asked by P. J. McBride, labor commissioner of that state, to assist in drafting amendments to the laws affecting moving picture houses and their operation. Mr. McBride made an address to the association at one of its meetings in Topeka last summer, in which he said that he saw the necessity of state officers cooperating with exhibitors and exchange men, on matters affecting the exhibitors; and now, Mr. McBride has demonstrated his sincerity by asking for this cooperation when it would be most valuable to all concerned. The theatre men will extend hearty cooperation.

The chief matters to be taken up are with reference to the structure and maintenance, as well as operation, of motion picture houses. Details of equipment will also be considered, and the general conditions surrounding those who are employed in the houses. It is probable that the conference will be extended to cover matters of fire prevention, as well as safety and sanitation.

L. J. Scott, secretary of the Amusement Association, will arrange for the representatives of the industry who will assist in the preparation of amendments to existing laws, and the introduction of such new measures as may seem advisable.

A Live Idea from Australia

"Get them coming and going" is evidently the slogan of Hoyt's Ltd. Theatre in Sydney, Australia. The American exhibitor might do well to take heed of the advertising and money saving device employed by this house. The idea is simplicity itself. The house runs two features on every bill and in dressing the lobby with a canvas display sheet, the management has the forthcoming attractions heralded on the back of this sheet so that patrons as they come from the house can take note of the coming show. Later when the features so advertised are shown the sheet is merely reversed after having the next two attractions painted thereon.

Scenes from "Seven Deadly Sins," McClure Pictures, and Nance O'Neil

Third After-Xmas Boom in St. Louis

For the third consecutive year St. Louis has experienced a boom in motion picture "record" business immediately after the Christmas holidays.

Two years ago exhibitors were wondering if they could possibly last until after the first of the year, not knowing how things would turn as a result of the weather and the tastes of their patrons. But after Christmas the tide turned their way, and their houses became literally packed by the people who had not lost their taste for pictures, but who had been too busy making presents and shopping —until they were too tired to go to a show, even just around the corner.

In December, 1915, the attendance did not fall off quite so much as the year before, and during the past December (1916), although the attendance did fall off to some extent, the exhibitors did not worry or lose any sleep, because, at that, they could truthfully say that business was much better than during the Decembers of the two preceding years.

The New Grand Central, the West End Lyric, the Pageant, the Shaw, King's, the Cinderella, and all the smaller houses, in all parts of the city, have played to capacity every day since Christmas.

Last year marked a peculiar phenomenon in the motion picture business in St. Louis. Many of the theatres that had been in the habit of charging ten and twenty cents, raised their price to fifteen and twenty-five cents. Other houses charging only five cents, except in case of a specially large feature, have raised their admission price to ten cents. It is not at all uncommon to find a regular ten cent house charging fifteen cents on Charlie Chaplin night, and it is remarked how few regular patrons turn away from the box office on those nights.

Serials and five-reel features continue to hold their own. The higher priced houses change programs once a week, or at most twice a week, but the five and ten-cent houses change every day, and three serials a week is the rule at many of these theatres. One five-cent house in North St. Louis and another on the South Side each ran five serials a week for several weeks not long ago, and did excellent business throughout the run.

Picture Theatres at Atlantic City Thrive

Patronage in Winter Months on the Increase—Permanent Population Responding to Exhibitor Efforts

EXHIBITORS in Atlantic City, N. J., are enjoying excellent business for this season of the year.

In the picture houses in the city proper, situated for the most part on Atlantic avenue, only two blocks from the Boardwalk, the number of strangers is so small as to be negligible, so these houses must depend entirely on the natives.

There is a steady population of about 50,000 people. In the height of the season this is augmented to 250,000.

The Atlantic avenue houses are more substantially built and more lavishly decorated than those on the Walk. In some cases they also offer more in the form of music and other attractions than the latter. The reason for this is evident. An all the year steady patronage is more particular in its requirements than the transients. Several houses, amongst them the City Square and Colonial are well pleased with conditions and are averaging well up the year around. The latter is under the direction of the Stanley Company and runs continuous performances.

The former owned by Thomson and Reed is under the management of Edward J. O'Keefe, as is also the Cort. At the City Square only two performances a day are given. There are 1,150 seats. The theatre is tastefully decorated in old ivory and red. There is a seven piece orchestra. An organ is planned for the near future.

This theatre is about five years old and cost about $200,000. A popular contest with the prize, a season pass, was held to name the house. A little girl suggested "City Square" and won the pass. This is a peculiarly appropriate name as the theatre is situated right opposite City Hall and other public buildings. New staircases are being built for balcony patrons, which will prevent congestion of exit and entrance.

Besides the two theatres already mentioned there are on the Avenue the Liberty, Park, Cozy and Central. On the Boardwalk, the Virginia, Criterion, Cort and Bijou are strictly picture houses. The Million Dollar Pier shows pictures every day in the year in addition to its other attractions, using service with short reel subjects.

The Nixon shows pictures the three winter months, usually having special features. The "Birth of a Nation" showed there and "Intolerance" followed. Being an enormous place and not being built for pictures, it has always been a problem (not always solved) to get proper projection.

The Virginia with 1,400 seats and the Criterion with 1,250 are owned by Joseph Snellenburg of Philadelphia, and managed by Max Farbisch. The booking is through the Stanley Booking Company. Both are comparatively new houses.

The Virginia has an Austin Orchestral organ and boasts one of the finest organists in the country, Otto Beck, formerly of Canada. A special feature is made of the organ recitals.

The Criterion, with 1,250 seats, has just had a successful week's run of the "Crisis," the first presentation in the East of this picture. The prices were raised to twenty-five and fifty cents. A good orchestra played the incidental music.

Competition is always strong on the Boardwalk. In summer there is business enough and to spare for all. In winter outside of the special holidays there is a decided slackening.

The management of the Cort determining to overcome this and cater to a steady all the year patronage, started an innovation on January 6.

It consisted of a high class orchestra of fifteen pieces under the leadership of Signor Salvatore Oriunno. Noted soloists have been engaged to give vocal selections. The opening attraction was Pathe's "The Romantic Journey," with Alice Dovey and William Courtney.

Kiddies Invited to Pictures

Through the courtesy of the Cosmos theatre management and the Howard theatre management, Washington, D. C., one thousand poor children enjoyed motion pictures. These arrangements were made under the auspicies of the Salvation Army, which selected a program that would entertain and not oppress. The kiddies had a wonderful time while local papers gave big space to the affair.

Alaskan Film Well Received in Los Angeles

DURING one of the first weeks in November a remarkable scenic film "Alaska Wonders in Motion" was shown at Tally's Broadway theatre, Los Angeles, Calif. The critics of the daily press of Los Angeles were enthusiastic to the letter in reviewing these pictures of the far north, many of them placing its merits considerably higher than those of the dramatic features displayed the same week.

The expedition of which Mr. Smith was a member set out from Seattle, Wash., on May 10, 1916. Its destination was Kodiak Island Alaska; its objective to hunt the famous Kodiak bear. During the two thousand mile trip to the island Mr. Smith secured many scenes of interest aboard the old steamer. On the island it is said that Mr. Smith worked a full month before getting his remarkable pictures of the gigantic bruin, the first time that such an animal has ever been "shot" by a motion picture camera.

The rest of the pictures are comprised of wonderful views of the interior of Alaska into which Mr. Smith penetrated accompanied by his wife during the summer of the year past. Starting from Seward he made his way into the interior only with great difficulty. Maitland Davis, writing for the Los Angeles Morning Tribune describes these pictures enthusiastically. "The film carries one from Seward," he writes, "into the interior of Alaska through the rough country and finally discloses to view one of the great glaciers of that country in motion. It is a picture of really absorbing interest. From time to time great masses of ice break away from the main body and go crashing down into the water below, blocking the course of the river and rasing a tidal wave that sweeps up against the rushing current with all the force of an avalanche. Nothing like it has been shown on the screen before and it is very much worth seeing."

Mr. Smith is offering the feature to states rights buyers in five reels from his office at 303 South Hill Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Film Men Join Kansas Ad Club

AMONG the varied and interesting subjects in the Universal Screen Magazine, No. 5, one that attracts widespread attention is devoted to presenting to the housewife the methods used by dishonest dealers in chickens who defraud the public by mixing sand and gravel in the feed to increase the weight of fowl.

These pictures were taken under the supervision of the Bureau of Weights and Measures and instruct the buyer how to tell whether, when purchasing chickens, he is paying for false weight. As New York City alone consumes between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 worth of chickens annually it can easily be seen that the exposure of the fraudulent methods is a vital matter.

Another feature of the Screen Magazine is the department devoted to teaching simple and healthful exercises. This department which was started in an earlier issue of the Universal's animated magazine is continued in this number. The Animated cook book photographed under direction of the officials of the National Housewives' League this week shows how to make fluffy and delectable waffles.

The scientific side of the reel is devoted to showing the latest invention in the engineering line devised for the more economical and more rapid handling of coal. Every detail of the vast business of shipping coal with its many ramifications is vividly depicted. The travelogue section of the films shows many public buildings and homes of notable men in New York.

Ann Murdock (McClure Pictures)

Frankie Mann in Pittsburgh

In order to satisfy the many exhibitors and friends of Frankie Mann she is to come to Pittsburgh and appear in person at all of the theatres where the "Sex Lure" is to be shown. This feature is being shown here through the Liberty Film Renting Company.

The film company visited all of the local newspaper offices making plans for the extensive advertising campaign which will be started as soon as this popular movie star arrives here.

Some of the exhibitors in talking of the time when Miss Mann will be here said that they expected extremely heavy business during the time when she was here as the patrons of the theatres are always anxious to see any of the stars and were more than willing to come to the theatre when they had a chance to see the stars in real life and hear them talk.

This is one of the favorite stunts of the Liberty Film Renting Company and it is said that a number of the other film exchanges will take the lead of this company and put forth efforts to get other stars to come to Pittsburgh for a short time.

Watkins Is a Proud Papa

M. G. Watkins, general manager of the American Standard Motion Picture Corporation of Chicago, is the proud father of an eight pound son. While this first heir of the popular "Wat" was too late for a Christmas present and a little early for a New Year's remembrance, his father is nevertheless greatly tickled.

J. E. Willis of the American Bioscope Company, Chicago

Will Separate Manitoba and Saskatchewan Boards

The Manitoba and Saskatchewan censor boards, which have heretofore been united, became separate and distinct bodies on the first of the year. The Manitoba board for the present consists of J. W. Horn and Mrs. V. Patriarche. In case these two differ until a new member is appointed the decision will be made by the provincial inspector of amusements, J. Hedley Garland.

Charles Robson, who was the Saskatchewan representative on the joint board, will sit with the others under an agreement made with the Saskatchtewan government. He will, however, have no voice in the operation of the machines or as to Manitoba decisions, but he will make a report of his own to the Saskatchewan government in which he will pass or condemn the films shown.

J. L. STEELE.

Milwaukee Puts Ban on School Shows

What promises to develop into a nation-wide fight against the showing of pictures in social centers and schools improperly equipped for the projection of motion pictures was started in Milwaukee last week, Friday, when Building Inspector Harper issued an order directing Superintendent M. C. Potter, F. M. Harbach and H. O. Berg, superintendent of the extension division of the public schools, to cease exhibiting motion pictures in school buildings until more adequate fire protection was provided.

The text of the notice reads as follows: "This will advise you that from and after the date of this notice no moving picture machines will be allowed to be operated in any school building in the city of Milwaukee unless such building is constructed of fireproof material throughout, and then only on the first floor of such building, and that moving picture machines must be protected and all the requirements of the attached ordinance relative thereto must be complied with."

Cincinnati Tenders Farewell Dinner to Bugie

That exchange men and exhibitors of Cincinnati are closely affiliated and are ready for the right kind of co-operation was demonstrated on the evening of January 5, when a group of Cincinnati exhibitors arranged a farewell dinner at the Cuvier-Press Club in honor of Harry A. Bugie, manager of the Kleine-Edison office in that city, who has just been appointed manager of the company's office in Philadelphia.

At this dinner, which was presided over by W. S. Wessling, manager of the Pathe exchange, were represented exhibitors, exchangemen, newspapermen and film salesmen. One exhibitor, Harry W. Kress, went all the way to Cincinnati from Piqua, O., to attend the meeting. Addresses were made by Charles Weigel, representing the exhibitors; C. E. Holah of the International and C. C. Hite of the Triangle Film Company, H. Serkowich, managing secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and the Associated Film Exchanges of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, and others.

Co-operation was the keynote of all the addresses. Near the conclusion of the dinner Mr. Bugie was presented with a handsome traveling bag.

Among those present were: W. J. Wessel, Harry O'Rear, Harry Price, W. J. Ransom, Philip Selznick, C. E. Penrod, L. W. Greenstein, L. J. Bugie, W. F. Bugie, R. H. Haines, Thomas A. Reily, C. E. Holah, R. S. Eastman, H. W. Kress, Charles Weigel, H. Serkowich, Paul Kreiger, W. S. Wessling, P. B. Elliott, C. P. Gray, O. L. Lasater, S. W. Hatch, Walter E. Harris, L. S. Muchmore, P. Niland, C. C. Hite, J. P. Gruwell, F. B. Chase, Nate Le Vene, Jr., Roy C. Lutes, Jack Needham, Clay E. Brehm and S. Leavick.

"Civilization" in Mid-West

The Mid-West Civilization Corporation which handles the Thomas H. Ince spectacle "Civilization" for the states of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico, etc., report many bookings for the picture in the territory. The picture is to be shown shortly at Pueblo and Colorado Springs, by the Moore Graves Amusement Company; then at the Atlas theatre, Cheyenne, and in other large theatres of the territory. It is stipulated by the holders of the territorial rights that the admission charges in these and other theatres shall be from twenty-five cents to seventy-five cents per person.

The offices of the Mid-West Civilization Corporation are at 763-764 Gas and Electric Building, Denver, Colorado.

"Purple Mask" Draws Big Crowds in Montreal

"The Purple Mask," the new Universal serial, has started out in Montreal with capacity business. At the Midway, with the theatre featuring the serial, it drew the largest business in the history of the house, necessitating the employment of two ticket sellers. Even with this addition they were compelled to turn people away. This house seats 1,300 people, and was open from 9 A.M. to 11 P.M.

Myers Forms Encore Pictures Corporation

APPLICATIONS for a charter under the laws of Florida have been filed by the Encore Pictures Corporation, whose capital stock is placed at $50,000 with $30,000 paid in. Harry C. Myers, star of Vim comedies de luxe, and former Vitagraph player, is president of the organization. Tweedledum, star of Eagle "Tweedledum" comedies is vice-president; C. M. Hosch, a prominent business man of Jacksonville, is treasurer and G. Alfred Walker, of the Motion Picture Exchange is secretary and business manager.

The company states that it will produce two-reel Myers-Theby comedies, and one-reel "Tweedledum" comedies. Tweedledum will play leading roles in the latter company. The company will also carry on a general motion picture producing, printing and developing business; rent stage space to visiting companies; handle film and stage properties, scenery, supplies and accessories.

In speaking of the new organization, Harry C. Myers, who is well-known in the motion picture world, gives out the following statement:

"I believe the public are appreciating more every day the production of refined comedies in which there is a small amount of 'fast action' to appeal to the varied tastes of the audience, and having been connected for a number of years with different motion picture producing companies, I have decided that my talents are worth more to me than to anyone else, and believe the lovers of high class comedies will appreciate my renewed efforts to amuse them.

"Rosemary Theby will continue to appear with me in the new productions as heretofore, and with the addition of 'Tweedledum,' the famous European star, I believe the Encore Pictures Corporation will turn out comedies that are 'new, better and different,' ensuring the exhibitor two entirely different kinds of productions for his audiences."

The new company has secured a site for its studio, covering five acres, and work on two separate stages has already begun. Both the Myers-Theby and "Tweedledum" companies will use one stage, and the other will be leased.

Confer on Proposed Increased Censor Fees

T. O. Byerle of the Montreal exchange of Universal Company, writes that the proposed raising of the censor fees from two dollars to five dollars a reel, and from one dollar to five dollars for reconsideration was taken up again by Mr. Ouimet, Mr. La Ronte and himself in the presence of Mr. Mitchell, provincial treasurer, and after considerable discussion these exchangemen were successful in having the bill reduced to read three dollars a reel for censor fees and five dollars for reconsideration. A promise was also given that the censor board would be carefully examined and several much need reforms instituted.

Quite a commotion was caused among Toronto exchangemen the other day when it was learned that the Toronto board of police commissioners were considering charging five cents per sheet for the censoring of every poster to be used in front of a theatre or on a bill board. The Exchange Managers' Association immediately held two emergency meetings to discuss the situation and as the time happens to be just before the monthly meeting, it is expected that something will be done.

M. B. J. Abrams, Special Representative, Knickerbocker

"Crisis" Gets First West Coast Showing

The first west coast showing of the Selig production, "The Crisis," and the second opening in the country, occurred Christmas eve at Majestic theatre, Los Angeles, when the film began an indefinite run. The attendance on the opening night brought out the S.R.O. sign, a very unusual event for this theatre, and one that was last performed during the showing of "Civilization" in May of this year.

The advance seat sale is reported good, and judging from the newspaper reviews, the production is destined for a very successful run. This showing was in charge of S. L. Warner, of Warners' Features, Inc., with main office in San Francisco, who have rights for California, Nevada and Arizona. The Warners are opening a Los Angeles exchange at 731 South Olive street.

Mutual Weekly First in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., the home of so many producing companies, has long been regarded as the city in which competition is the keenest between producers to get their film on the screen.

It is therefore a matter of gratification to the Gaumont Company and the Mutual Film Corporation to announce that The Mutual Film Weekly has a seven days' run at Clune's Broadway theatre, the finest motion picture house in Los Angeles. It is used from Sunday to Saturday, inclusive, to be succeeded by the next issue.

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"The Barrier"

(Rex Beach Pictures Company—Ten Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A POWERFUL picture is "The Barrier," an adaptation of Rex Beach's novel. Director Edgar Lewis has really given us Mr. Beach on the screen with few and only minor changes. It is a picture not to be rated by average standards. The story, with its many crises, forbids that. The people with whom it deals are far removed from your average picture hero, heroine and villain. Not that the picture is void of dramatic conflict. Far from it. But the parties of "The Barrier" don't stoop to picayune quarrels. Their fight is over something big, and you are immediately caught with the bigness of the whole thing. To our notion, it is there that the power of "The Barrier" lies. It is bigness spelled in capitals.

A Tense Moment in "The Barrier"

The barrier is the barrier of race. Lieutenant Burrell loves Necia, and Necia is thought to be a half-breed. The prologue has let you know that Necia is a full-blooded white girl, but that knowledge doesn't detract from the suspense of the love affair one whit. Rather does it add to it. And when the lieutenant, after a stormy session with himself, decides to throw all prejudice to the winds and marry Necia anyway, you are pleased to the point of tears. And speaking of tears, there is cause for many in the picture. Necia is also loved by 'Poleon Doret, an Alaskan, of French-Canadian extraction. 'Poleon's is a losing fight, and after it's all over he paddles away in his canoe, singing at the top of his lungs.

Necia and her lieutenant stand on the shores and smile because he is laughing and they think him happy. But the old squaw stands apart and grunts out a few words to the effect that 'Poleon is sad and that is why he sings. We have yet to see such a likable character as 'Poleon in a motion picture.

To make such a long picture as "The Barrier" a really powerful picture must have been something of a difficult task. But the underlying theme practically always defies any thought of the clock. The several climaxes that appear at one time or another serve to emphasize the theme. The producers give you fights galore, real fights that make you shiver at their very realism, but each one of them has its place in the story. And while of a necessity the interest drops a degree or so after each big episode has drawn to a close, it is quickly picked up again with the commencement of the next.

The cast which enacts the principal roles of "The Barrier" contains some brilliant performers. Mitchell Lewis as 'Poleon carries away stellar honors. The look of suffering that spreads over his face when he at least realizes that Necia is not his is genuine. Mabel Julienne Scott is pleasing as Necia. She is a good actress and plays her scenes with ease and skill. Victor Sutherland is a mighty good Lieutenant. Russell Simpson as the guardian of Necia, John Gale, delivers unusually fine work in his scenes. His makeup is truly marvelous. The cast would not be complete without naming W. J. Gross, who as "No Creek" Lee, an old miner, who only discovers gold after forty years, furnishes an abundant supply of comedy. Howard Hall and Edward Roseman share the heavy honors, and Mary Kennevan Carr as the old squaw contributes a good character performance.

"The Barrier" makes a full evening's entertainment. It is worth top prices. In the cast there are no "stars," in the exhibitor's sense of the word. There are performances, though 'way above anything that it is customary for stars to offer. And then there is the author's name, Rex Beach. The advantages of featuring him should be remunerative to a big degree.

How "The Barrier" will be released is not yet decided. At present its length measures 9,600 feet. The last reel might be edited somewhat, as there are several scenes that give the impression that the end has come when it hasn't. Otherwise lay low for "The Barrier," and be sure to catch it when it comes along.

"The Happiness of Three Women"

(Morosco-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS adaptation of Albert Payson Terhune's clever story is well done, and gives Myrtle Stedman and House Peters a chance to register very attractively on the screen. It is a story of the jealousy of an unreasoning husband, and the complications arising from an innocent bit of "killing time" between this man's wife and one of their best friends, who take an auto ride and get lost, while the bank of which a close friend is cashier is robbed, and the only alibi of this friend is the chance meeting between these parties in the middle of the night on the road to a disreputable resort.

The combination of House Peters and Myrtle Stedman should prove very profitable from the box-office standpoint, if backed by such excellent story and direction as we find in this picture. The use of stories from famous authors, if the points of the story are strengthened as they should be in a well produced film, gives a box-office value. And this is such a case. It is an unusually clean story, suitable for Sunday showing. There is at no point even a suggestion in the minds of any of the principals of real wrongdoing, although the suspense is of course due to the fear by the wife of the insane and unreasoning jealousy of the husband.

Billy and Constance Forget Time's Passing

Thos. H. Ince
announces
the appearance during 1917
of Dorothy Dalton
Clara Williams
William S. Hart
William Desmond
Enid Bennett
Bessie Barriscale
Louise Glaum
Charles Ray in his Kay-Bee productions.
Kessel and Baumann, Executives
KB
KB

Ince
Studios de Luxe Inceville,
and Culver City,
Cal.

THOS. H. INCE
introduces ENID BENNETT
soon to appear in
"PRINCESS
of the DARK"

In this KAY-BEE production of Mr INCE'S, is offered an enchanting, powerful story of the Virginia Hills
As effervescent and wholesome as "PEGGY"

Kessel and Baumann
Executives

KB

"Watch for Release Date!"

"The Ghost of Fear"

(Peerless-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

HERE is a picture of a woman with a past—she acquires it while married—and she is fearful lest her husband learn about it and finally to make sure he never will, she kills the fellow who holds the secret of it. This is from a story by Rosalind Ivan and makes an average picture. It is benefited by a telling performance given by Ethel Clayton in the role of the wife and some excellent light effects. When Skinny rows out on the moonlit lake and throws the body overboard there is the sheen of the moon on the water and all else is darkness. It is a superb bit of photographic work.

Vesta marries a New Yorker, forsaking her old love, Dick Mortimer. Dick keeps up the pursuit of Vesta, finally calling on her at a hunting lodge in the mountains after her husband has left for the city. Skinny, the burglar, happens along too, and when attacked by Dick he draws his gun and there is a dead man. Skinny disposes of the body but after a while when Vesta has returned to the city he starts to blackmail her. And he keeps on doing it until Vesta reaches the point where she can stand it no longer and so she kills him one night when he enters her house. The police believe she did it in self defense—and so she did after a certain fashion.

Travers Vale directed. He has a good eye for effects but something of a poor ear. When Skinny taps several times on the window in the midst of a reception, Vesta is the only one who hears it. When Vesta shoots her blackmailer none of the servants take heed of the shot, but when she fires again with the purpose of summoning help they all file dutifully to her side. It is a mistaken idea to think that sound has nothing to do with a motion picture.

Skinny Attempts Escape

Rockliffe Fellowes as Vesta's husband and John Bowers as Dick have the main supporting roles. Arthur Ashley contributes a great bit of character work as Skinny. Frances Miller and William Nash, a colored pair, furnish a fairly good supply of comedy. Edward Kimball, George Moran and Elsa Bambrick are others.

"Panthea"

(Selznick-Schenck—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS first production of Norma Talmadge's under her own banner comes forth with a big dramatic flourish. There is an N. T. designed on every subtitle and the brilliant star herself celebrates the occasion by wearing a wedding ring. The adaptation of Monckton Hoffe's play teems with dramatic episodes that send the shivers chasing swiftly up and down the spinal column. Panthea sells her body to save her husband and acts of the buying is pictured vividly. The sensitive ones may even be shocked.

However, to our notion, the whole thing is strength personified and Miss Talmadge's splendid performance and the excellent manner in which the story has been treated lays a convincing force over the picture even though leaving little to the imagination. As presented at the Rialto by S. L. Rothapfel every possibility in the picture was taken advantage of. There are many, chiefly musical. There are violin solos and piano solos and opportunities where a little high class "sob" music helps tremendously. Every exhibitor booking "Panthea" might do well to procure Mr. Rothapfel's score if such a thing is possible.

Mr. Hoffe's play was written before the war, for the principals of the story journey from Russia to England and to Paris without much interference. But in aiming at a comedy touch the adapter has introduced a minor English character as "too tall for the trenches." This takes away something from the realism of the illusion and one can not help but think of the impossibility of those easy journeys in this present day and wonder what a doctor with a Teutonic "von" in front of his hind name is doing in Paris. But this is all in the subtitles and if the producers aim for complete conviction they can remedy the fault with ease.

Love at Second Sight

Miss Talmadge's performance deserves the highest praise. As the woman who stoops to such extreme measures to save her husband as Panthea does the star makes her every scene convincing—that is, to the mind of a mere male. Such truly warranted and realistic emotional work as Miss Talmadge does is all too rare.

The production was in charge of Alan Dwan. Those who are familiar with his work of the past may look forward to seeing the same sort of highly polished picture. Practically all of his scenes are arranged with a strong light in the center with hardly any on the borders. Thus is the action centralized to a great degree and the point of each scene made clear, direct and easy to grasp. And in "Panthea" there is a point to every scene.

A fine cast was assembled to support the star. Roger Lytton as the chief heavy and George Fawcett and Murdock MacQuarrie as less prominent but no less villainous villains, are all excellent. Earle Fox as husband is a little too youthful at times, but plays the role of the weak willed fellow convincingly. Eric Von Stroheim, Norbert Wicki, William Abbington, Winifred Harris, Ieleen Peisey, Stafford Windsor, Dick Rosson and Frank Currier are others.

"The Gold Rush"

(Signal-Mutual—Two Reels)

REVIEWED BY AGNES D. CAMP

HELEN HOLMES takes time from her strenuous adventures in Chapter 10 of "The Lass of the Lumberlands" to attend a really good football game. That by no means implies that events are not bringing plenty of action to the little daredevil. "The Gold Rush" is without any exception the most thrilling episode of the story, so far.

Dollar Holmes, the scheming mine investor, agitates the men employed by Dawson, Helen's champion, to strike, and participate in the falsely reported gold rush. Helen volunteers to go to the nearest town to secure more men to carry on the work that must reach a certain point by an appointed date. Holmes telephones to McClusky, the employment agent, with the result that nowhere in town can the girl procure men. She meets, accidentally, an old friend, who takes her to a football game.

After the game he calls upon the fans to volunteer. Helen gets her hundred men, and starts for home with her new friends. McClusky calls up Holmes, who brings out his "roughnecks." They hold up the station agent and the train with Helen and her men. She seizes upon a slight chance to board and start the train. The "roughnecks" give chase and she is lassoed from the engine. She dangles limply in front of a man, riding furiously after the train now run by Helen's friend.

The horse upon which she is hanging falls and Helen jumps to her feet, then swift as a hare she springs upon the train, which is still in motion. They soon leave the "roughnecks" behind. There is some very fine scenery shown with exceptionally good photography in this chapter, and the thrills and jumps are of the healthiest type. Exhibitors should have no hesitancy in booking these chapters of a very entertaining serial.

"Image Makers"

(Thanhouser-Pathe—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

VALKYRIEN has the featured role in this picture which parallels a story of ancient Egypt with one of modern times. Events in the romance of the Pharaoh's son with the image maker and in the modern day affair of a society man with an actress-sculptress-motion picture star are likened to one another throughout. The scenes switch from one to the other and back to the other again and show variety of setting but little variation in incident. And while the B. C. romance ends in tragedy with the heroine thrown to the crocodiles, the other closes with hero and heroine in one another's arms.

The Statue Takes Form

The fact that the two stories are such counterparts comes because the author has chosen to sponsor the reincarnation idea. His modern people are supposed to be the same as those of long ago. The Pharaoh's son is the society man, the image maker is the sculptress and the villainous Pharaoh is a motion picture magnate. The picture with its novel settings and its contrasts of methods manages to interest fairly. There is nothing strikingly dramatic in it nor is there any sustaining vein of action carried right through.

Valkyrien, or the Baroness De Witz, whichever you will, plays both her ancient and modern role prettily. Harris Gordon is opposite with an average performance while others are Arthur Bauer, Morgan Jones and Inda Palmer. The story was written by Emmet Mixx and produced by W. Eugene Moore.

"The Butterfly Girl"

(Fischer-Mutual—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY AGNES D. CAMP

MARGUERITE FISCHER is so pretty and winning in this picture one forgets to laugh at the absurdities of the plot. The setting is the Panama Exposition. There is quite a good Hawaiian village and some pretty girls in shredded wheat skirts, who dance and sing the Hula Hula.

Molly Pep O'Malley, with her little sister Bess, arrives at the exposition grounds with a letter to her aunt, Madame Boniface, "The Human Flyer." She receives Pep warmly, and the children are put to work, principally fetching beer for the husband of Boniface. This worthy assures the crowd, through a megaphone, that no wires are used by this wonderful flyer. Later we see Pep and Bess turning a handle back of the scenes. They forget to stop at the appointed time, and the fair flyer is seen in a tangle of wires, trying to embrace the ceiling. This is a really funny scene and the acting of the children is quite captivating.

Robert Whipple, son of the ex-governor of Hawaii, befriends Pep on several occasions, shielding her from the obnoxious attentions of her uncle. She is given an old spangled frock and puts it on. This gives her uncle an idea. He has Peg dressed prettily and advertises "The Butterfly Girl." She is a great success, but her uncle continues to annoy her and she runs away.

Young Whipple, a sort of scapegrace, is singing Hula songs in the Hawaiian village. He takes Pep there and disguises her in a Hawaiian costume. About this time Whipple's parents arrive at the exposition grounds and Robert promises to return with them on condition that Pep and Bess become members of his family. His parents are horrified, and Pep, with her little head full of a romantic story Robert has told her, decides not to cause trouble for the young man. She slips away, and in a few minutes is seen with Bess, climbing the artificial Mount Pele, which is fully illuminated with red and blue flame in honor of the goddess of fire. The two girls are seen to throw themselves into the crater, but a wire screen prevents them from falling far, and Robert arrives in time to rescue them.

The parents are touched by this earnestness of purpose and decide to take the girls home with them. "The Butterfly Girl" is a pretty nonsense play for children, but it is a pity that it was considered necessary to introduce so many cans of beer. Aside from that the direction by Henry Otto is quite satisfactory.

"Her Right to Live"

(Vitagraph-Blue Ribbon—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY AGNES D. CAMP

IN this picture Peggy Hyland, as Polly Biggs, shows not only a right to live, but a determination to live her own way. In order to do this she accomplishes some feats, the thought of which would make the average girl go into hysterics. But Polly smiles through it all. That is, when she is not crying, but Polly rarely cries except when she is confronted with a kitchen full of dirty dishes—if you were the niece of a mayor and made to wash dishes for his cross wife you would cry too.

Polly Biggs is a good little mother to three mischievous brothers and sisters, but orphans cannot live on kisses and hugs, and so, although Mayor Hoadley refused to help his sister during her life, after her death, in order to make a good impression upon the voters rather than from goodness of heart, he takes the four children to his home. The brutal mayor shows how dishonest a public servant can be to gratify his ambition.

Polly Biggs and the little Biggs go fishing in a local brook; they encounter John Oxmore, son of the opposing candidate for mayor at the approaching election. He makes a drawing of the children and calls it "Kids Fishing." Although Polly despises

One Man Gets What He Deserves

Mayor Hoadley she does not forget that she is Mayor Hoadley's niece. She resents being called a kid and shows as much haughtiness as a miss in bare feet paddling in a brook can.

Later she learns that all the little Biggs are to be sent to the poor house after election. Without waiting for this important event, Polly bundles up the orphans and takes them to the institution herself. They arrive footsore and weary and the matron in charge puts them to bed. Hoadley, terrified at the effect this move will have upon the public, hastens to bring the youngsters back.

From her bedroom window, Polly sees his car approach. Determined not to return with her uncle, she scrambles out the window at the end of a ticklish looking rope and directs the children to follow. They creep through the woods in the silence of the night until they come to what they believe to be a deserted bungalow. The little mother tucks her brood into a cosy bed found there, and then sits down to read. She is disturbed by the owner, who is no other than John Oxmore. The young man is fast falling in love with Polly and is delighted to be of service.

The following day he is accused of a murder committed by Hoadley. The evidence shows that the crime was perpetrated at the identical time when John was at the bungalow. Fearing to compromise Polly, he refuses to say where he was at the time in question. He is about to be sentenced. Polly is attracted to the story through John's picture in the paper. She hurries to the city, is put off the train because she has no ticket or money, leaps back to the moving train, and arrives at the court in time to save John.

The picture was well directed by Paul Scardon. Eulalie Jensen is the disagreeable Mrs. Hoadley, John Oxmore is played delightfully by Antonio Moreno. John Robertson is the dishonest Mayor Hoadley and the little Connelly children and Mildred Platz are the mischievous orphans.

"Her Right to Live" will delight the kiddies because all children love to see other children get into harmless mischief.

"Homesteaders' Feud"

(Kalem. Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco." Two Reels)
REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

MARIN SAIS as Barbara Brent in this series is still the figure in chief, both in initiative and daring, and it is due to her rapid-fire mental deductions that many parlous situations are saved. It is she who nerves John Wallace (True Boardman), the land agent and her fiance, to abandon the idea of resigning when trouble bubbles appear, and it is she who leads the raid against the tools of Anson Dukes (Ronald Bradbury), the homestead broker; and still further it is she who effects the latter's downfall, when she learns he is using his Government position in furtherance of the prosecution of his own personal grievances.

Anson Dukes Brought to Bay

The plot of "Homesteaders' Feud" is most assuredly well founded and centers around the homesteading of acreage on Tarantula Creek, and the broker, harboring a long-standing grudge against Ace Brent (Frank Jonasson), seeks to colonize this territory with men antagonistic to Brent in the hope that they will wire in the creek and so bring about the extinction of Brent's vast herd of cattle.

Ronald Bradbury, who has figured in so many phases of these Western episodes, is still carrying himself in dress parade order, but under Western conditions—he has essayed and made good in many of these phases, and is still declaring himself a correct delineator of Western atmosphere, and the balance of the cast fill out a truly characteristic Western show.

The photography is uniformly good, and this picture will surely be amply applauded wherever "The Girl from 'Frisco" has once appeared.

"Heart Strings"

(Red Feather-Universal—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE tone of the production given this release is excellent. One may well expect great things from Allan Holubar in the future. "Heart Strings," which he directed, points to them. But coming down to the point he has made a good picture from material of familiar weave. The story of E. M. Ingleton's being of a nature somewhat conventional and of a construction somewhat meandering, while supplying Mr. Holubar with few great opportunities, manages to get over with good effect because of his work.

The Challenge

In brief it tells of the manner in which a young doctor was lured away from his fiancee by an adventuress. The guardian of the girl, another doctor, goes to the woman and begs her to give the young fellow up for the sake of his ward. She laughs at him but later discovers that the girl is her own daughter. Then influenced by the guardian's pleadings, she reliquishes her hold on both the young people. But the ward has had enough of the weak willed doctor and prefers to substitute herself as the wife of the older doctor instead of the ward.

Mr. Holubar appears as the guardian, Maude George as the adventuress, Francelia Billington as the ward and Paul Byron as the young doctor. Irene Hunt and Charles Cummings have minor roles. Perhaps the biggest mistake in the picture is its opening, which pictures the trial of one of the adventuress' victims (Mr. Cummings) when his character is only incidental to the story proper.

The settings of the picture are very good and there have been some excellent light effects introduced. Fred Myton did the scenario.

"The Crab"

(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

IT is rarely that you see two such capable stars in one picture as you do in "The Crab." They are Frank Keenan and little Thelma Salter, Mr. Ince's child actress. Mr. Keenan is the "crab," a hard and cynical old man ever since the loss of his wife, the only person who was ever near enough to be dear to him. Thelma is a homeless waif. It is her task to soften the old crab, and it takes her the whole of three reels in which to do it.

The climax of the picture arrives in a country court room where the crab is being tried. The villagers had previously mastered their fear of the crab and had given him a summons to appear in court on a charge of cruelty to his ward. But the little girl, instead of testifying against her guardian, says that he is the kindest man in the world, that he plays "horse" with her and everything else. The trial ends in a riot. The judge says he thinks everything is all right, and the crab buys all the toys in town for the child and really plays the guardian angel and becomes a crab of the soft-shell species.

The Crab Surveys a Strange "Package"

C. Gardner Sullivan has supplied his two stars with a series of scenes in which characterization is everything and plot is nothing. He might, it seems, have added something of a story and so obliterated the possibility of it growing tiresome. Because, for all the fine performances of Mr. Keenan and Thelma, the bare fact remains that the transformation of the crab could have been effected more effectively in much less space.

Walter Edwards has given the picture an adequate production, while the work of the supporting cast, which includes J. P. Lockney, Gertrude Claire, Thomas Guise and juvenile Ernest Butterworth, is good when it has a chance to be.

"Betty to the Rescue"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS is a picture which will hardly compel deep interest, although the novel plot, written especially for Miss Ward by Beatrice deMille and Leighton Osmun, has a certain merit as a vehicle to display the personal charm of the star. The play reminds one distinctly of the ten-twenty-thirty melodramas that used to be so popular, in which the little girl of the mountains was always fleeced by the villain, the "little girl" always being carefree and rollicksome to a finish, and the villain villainous to the last degree.

Betty Discovers Who Really Loves Her

The presenting of a character in make-up that does not appeal to the popular idea of good wholesome, everyday American manhood places a handicap on the hero, too. It is not the Jack Dean we like, but a pointed-beard, goggle-eyed man, possibly true to the type pictured, but hardly suggesting romance. Had the plot been treated seriously, without these idiosyncrasies of the studio handling, we would have liked the story better.

The plot presents Fanny Ward in the role of a hoyden little girl, who proceeds thoughtlessly to ruin her guardian's orange crop, and after this is accomplished and her guardian has had hard luck and is bankrupt, she takes a mining pick and discovers gold in a mine she has had left her, and which said guardian has refused, for sentimental reasons, to sell to the villain, who knows all the time what a rich property it is. As an exposition of orange growing, there is merit in the orange grove scenes. Otherwise they have little real connection with the theme of the plot. Also paddling in the muddy water of the irrigation ditch gives Miss Fanny a chance to romp about as a sixteen-year-old girl in overalls.

The orange grove and mining scenes, with the charm of Miss Ward's personality, connect a plot based on accidental variations of fortune to a love scene as a climax. We failed to note a single "big thrill" or any unusual bit of big acting, to distinguish this picture from the ordinarily acceptably acted "feature." Staging and photography are well handled, as may be assumed coming from the Lasky studios.

"God of Little Children"

(Apollo-Art Drama—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

THIS picture shows most vividly how a man's weakness for little children is exploited by a grafter, and though the woman the latter uses as a tool to effect his purposes marries the victim, still she is compelled to continue "bleeding" her husband to supply funds for the grafter.

The plan hit upon by Harry Chandler, the author, is not absolutely new, but he handles the various situations in a manner so novel as to spread an aroma of newness, and Alma Hanlon as Mary Keene does a creditable piece of work in her dual life—dual in that she loves her husband, yet fears that he will learn of her association with Robert Moran (Charles Hutchinson), an unscrupulous crook, whose bidding she has always obeyed.

John Ingalls (Bigelow Cooper) is known as a stern, severe member of the bar. His name is used by nurses as a bugaboo to scare children into behaving themselves, and yet there appears nothing in the picture to warrant this, but, on the contrary, his soft side is "kiddies," and Moran, having learned this much, compels Mary Keene to take a position as stenographer in the lawyer's office. Once there, she tactfully worms her way into the lawyer's confidence and affection, and at the opportune time springs her coup.

He surprises (?) her one day at work on a child's dress, and in response to his questioning she tells him the dress is for her younger sister. He, of course, never knew she had a sister, and would like to see her. So a child is borrowed and drilled in the necessary lies and becomes the old man's beneficiary. That is only the entering wedge. A little later a decoy letter is, supposedly by accident, found by the lawyer among the typewritten correspondence he is about to sign. This letter is from Moran, now posing as Mary Keene's brother, and saying if he only had a few thousand dollars he could buy a certain business and so enable Mary to live as she should. The lawyer falls for this, and after apologizing to Mary for having read her personal letter, hands her a blank check, which she fills in for $3,000 to hand to Moran. Still he is not satisfied, and after the lawyer and Mary are married and she keeps up the deception of her little sister, she is bound to continue to furnish funds to him.

The latest attempt, however, of Moran and his accomplice to murder Ingalls and make it appear as a case of suicide fails.

The picture is full of interesting detail, the exteriors and interiors are well selected and clearly photographed, and the music accompaniment from a melodious organ is very appropriate and accentuates the light and shade of an innocent career.

Others in the cast are William Hartman as "Hard Tack," Moran's accomplice; Blanche Burns as "Sunshine," the borrowed child; Jack Burns as Judkins the butler; William Miller as Waters, valet, and James O'Neill as Rev. Father Farley.

"Infidelity"

(Erbograph-Art Dramas—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. STOREY

THIS picture is really in four reels and a prologue. The jealousy of two men, one of whom insists on pursuing the woman who marries the other, carries a certain amount of interest, culminating in the suicide of the disappointed one, with the conviction of the other man, the husband, as a murderer, with a twenty-year sentence. Then we have a lapse of twenty years, during which time Elaine, the child of this unhappy marriage, has grown to beautiful womanhood.

Elaine's mother has supported herself through a fashionable dressmaking establishment, and now treasures Elaine and guards her against the outside world with special care, but fate sets the trap for the consequences to follow by having Elaine inherit the strong art talent of her father, long since banished as a topic of discussion between Elaine and her mother.

Elaine's talent is discovered by one of her mother's patronesses, and Elaine is taken into the class of a wonderful artist. The denouement is Elaine becomes the target, because of her beauty, of the wily attentions of a Hindoo art student, who, using hypnotic influence, all but accomplishes his vile wish, when the artist Wayne and Elaine's fiancee break into the studio and—Elaine discovers a protector, a lover, and a long-lost father, who is soon forgiven by her mother.

Ford Resents the Hindoo's Hypnotic Test

Dramatically this picture interests, although the reason for the title or the why of the mother's bitterness against the man who murdered in self-defense is not clear. There is no infidelity on the part of the mother, as the audience knows the facts, and it is not clear why Elaine's father refused to allow her mother to testify the truth about the other man's presence in her rooms. If his believing his wife unfaithful is the thread which ties the story to the "infidelity," it is indeed a slight one, and one with which the audience will not sympathize, for the audience knows the wife is faithful, and the man's taking his punishment stoically, refusing to call on the woman to clear him of guilt, is not brought out with sufficient force to register as the big motive of the piece.

Anna Niellson as Elaine and Eugene Strong as Ford Maillard register pleasingly, while Fred Jones in the role of the Hindoo and Miriam Nesbitt as Elaine's mother handle their parts with marked talent.

"Bitter Truth"

(Fox Film—Six Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

WHENEVER the producers of Fox pictures want a vehicle they call upon the name of Mary Murillo. Mary Murillo seems to cover a multitude of scenarioists. "Bitter Truth" is credited to her. It is a picture in which a poor girl, reared in the slums, seeks vengeance on a judge who sent her to the "pen" for a year when she was innocent. Upon release she essays to practice the tactics of the vampire on the unsuspecting judge, who is quite susceptible, as his wife is very plain and very domestic. But the girl, instead of wrecking the career of the judge, forswears the whole thing, as she falls in love with him. She gives up, confesses, and then marries another ex-convict who had reformed for her sake.

The vehicle is there, and Virginia Pearson it is who carries the role of the poor girl who seeks revenge, but forgets to reckon with love. You see her first as the drudge, then you see her as a prisoner. From this position she jumps to that of private secretary, and from there she jumps into the judge's home, resplendent in a different gown in every scene and possessing all the gracious manners of a queen. The transformation is rather sudden when you stop to think. The only solution is that the girl must have been to the movies a lot to see just how the thing was done.

But when a producer knows his public after the manner of William Fox you have to recognize the box-office points of his pictures over and above such little things as mere inconsistencies. In "Bitter Truth" they are Miss Pearson and a picture of many thrills. Not the least of these is the scene in which the star leaps overboard from a Hudson River boat, and the climax, in which the good ex-convict takes a bad ex-convict and hurls him through a window into a fountain. A few healthy brawls serve to liven the action up to a considerable degree. A good bit of the attempted comedy touches should never have been attempted, though. The humor is rather flat; sometimes it borders on vulgarity, and only a little of it has anything at all to do with the story.

William H. Tooker, Jack Hopkins, Alice May and Sidney D'Albrook support Miss Pearson. Kenean Buel directed.

"The Gilded Youth"

(American-Mutual—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"THE Gilded Youth" is a weak production inasmuch as the producers started out minus a good foundation. They had no story. A good many other evils usually result from this lack of a foundation and they have meandered in to "The Gilded Youth" and made themselves right at home. The picture lacks the property customarily described as "punch." The first two reels are just composed of scenes which under other circumstances might be described as colorful.

The lives of the majority of motion picture characters have much more action in them than those of the two lovers here in hand. She is a slavey in a boarding house and he is one of the inmates who loves her. They get the saving habit and open a bank account and then he skimps himself of even a shave and goes to the office every day with a trampish hirsute adornment that makes him the laughing stock of the office and of the audience for a short time. Subsequently his eyes are opened to the fact that "clothes make the man" and with fine traiment he is able to wend his way to a fashionable restaurant where brokers dine and speak of stocks that are going way up. He acts on his eavesdropped information and becomes a millionaire over night. The slavey thinks the end of the romance has come but it only remains for her to get some good clothes too.

Richard Bennett is featured and gives a performance terribly handicapped by excess footage. Rhea Mitchell is a pretty slavey—very pretty—but never looking the part. Aaron Hoffman is the author and Anthony Coldeway the scenarioist.

"The Girl Who Can Cook"

(Star-Mutual—Two Reels)
REVIEWED BY AGNES D. CAMP

MARY SHELDON, impersonated by Lois Meredith, proves that a wise man who is going to depend upon his wife for a good dinner is proof against good looks, fine clothes and a fashionable demeanor, if the owner of these attractions cannot cook.

Robert Blake and his uncle pay a visit to Mrs. Sheldon and her two daughters, Lucy and Mary. Robert is expected by his uncle and the ladies to propose to Lucy during this visit. Lucy is a student of good style, and her sister is just Mary. At an early stage of the visit Mrs. Sheldon finds a big darkie dining in her kitchen. She tells her servant that she does not allow friends to be entertained that way. To which the cook retorts that the man is not her friend—he is only her husband. She is mightily offended, and leaves.

Lucy is instructed to cook luncheon while her mother and Mary go to the city for another maid. They are told that a girl will be sent next day; this leaves another meal to be cooked by the family. The luncheon cooked by Lucy is a dismal failure, and Robert is about ready to bring his visit to a close, when little Mary offers to cook the dinner. The men prepare to make martyrs of themselves, but the dinner is such a success that Robert declares to his uncle that Mary is fashionable enough for him. The little cook of the family has been hopelessly in love with Robert all along, and is now rewarded by an offer of marriage.

"The Girl Who Can Cook" is a good little comedy. The points are brought out without any housebreaking and somersaulting.

"God's Crucible"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

IF ever there was a director who took full advantage of the scope of his art it is Lynn Reynolds. His stage knows not the limit of any line of the studio. He gets all the bigness of outdoors into his pictures. For "God's Crucible" he got the Grand Canyon of Arizona for a setting. The old guide in the picture makes some remark to the effect that to stand on the rim of the canyon and to look down to its distant depths is to "get religion." "God's Crucible" is not preachy at all, but to put it plainly, it gets you.

In the marvelous setting supplied by the Grand Canyon Mr. Reynolds tells a story of an old grouch who is reformed and made a jovial fellow by a little boy. It is rather a slim story when you come right down to it, but strange as it may seem, it never drags the slightest bit. The beautiful scenery and the skill of the director takes care of that. There are other threads to the plot besides. The old grouch didn't want his son to marry the daughter of his old friend just because the friend had said that the boy must reform. So the son left home and just at the propitious moment when the shell of the grouch has been removed, the son happens along and everything is lovely—for the girl, and her father arrives too.

George Hernandez is starred as the grouch. His is a remarkably fine performance tinged with humor of the highest order. Myrtle Gonzales, Val Paul, Frederick Montague, Jack Curtis, Edward J. Brady, Francis Lee and Harvey Griffith have the supporting roles. The photography, an all-important issue in a subject of this kind, is excellent.

"The White Raven"

(Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

HERE is a good story, with really something to tell, and the director and star have made it alive in pictures. From dance hall singer in abbreviated dress to handsomely gowned grand opera prima donna, Miss Barrymore acts a natural part with distinction, and with an obvious feeling that every moment of the life pictured is real and worth attention.

We have not in a long time witnessed a more enjoyable five reels. Charles Logue's story kept on going, kept unfolding, and there were not pauses, and flash-backs, and views of everything from the clouds in the sky to the depths of the ocean, because (we imagine) the director had enough story to go around, for five reels.

Nan, whose father has been broken by an unscrupulous banking partner, finally lands in a frontier mining camp, and then passes out leaving his daughter as his only legacy a five dollar bill given him by his cruel partner who says, "Take this and buy a gun and shoot yourself." Nan, finding this life unendurable, offers herself as the stake "for tonight—tomorrow I go free," and "The Stranger" wins her with a lone pair of deuces.

Finding her not the ordinary dance hall girl, The Stranger does not claim his prize, but takes an I. O. U. from Nan—"I. O. U. Myself, Nan Baldwin." It is agreed that at the moment of her triumph as a grand opera prima donna, The Stranger may claim her. This creates the suspense, and after we have followed Nan to the pinnacle of success, and through the accomplishment of her life's desire to punish the man who ruined her father, she is claimed by The Stranger, who first wins her true love, and all ends happily, as it should.

Ethel Barrymore takes her place among the big stars of the pictures in this production. William Davidson as The Stranger, George Wright as Smithson, Nan's father's clerk, Walter Hitchcock as Blaisdell, the villain, and Ethel Dayton as Sylvia, his daughter, are the prominent members of the supporting cast, which is well balanced and meets every requirement.

Audiences are going to like this play. It can be heralded as an offering of first magnitude and will meet expectations.

"The Princess of Patches"

(Selig-K-E-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY

TAKE the plots of half a dozen successful serials, boil them down to five reels, and you will have a close approximation of "The Princess of Patches." In it are the same sort of action and incidents that characterize the average serial—the mystery and melodrama; the plotting and counter-plotting; the "proofs" that are stolen, regained, and restolen; the unalloyed wickedness of the villains, and the impeccable righteousness of the good characters; and everywhere the straining arm of coincidence to keep the story moving.

Exhibitors who have found serials a paying proposition will make no mistake in booking "The Princess of Patches." Its basic appeal is identical with that of the continued photoplay. The picture will also find favor in theatres that do not regularly run serials, since the spectator loses the impression of improbability in the rapidity of the action.

Major Silverthorne, a Southern plantation owner, discharges Judas, a field hand. Judas later kills the Major, and kidnaps Selma, his baby daughter. The major's will provides that his large estate shall go to Selma, if she is found within twenty years, otherwise it is to go to his nephew and niece, Lee and Juliet.

The part of Selma in her younger years is taken by Violet DeBiccari. Miss Biccari is an unusually gifted and good looking child actress, and is easily the best player in the cast. Her work in the picture will make the film attractive to children. Vivian Reed portrays Selma's riper years with considerable charm. The remainder of the cast, consisting of Burke Wilbur, Hildor Hoberg, Roy Southerland, Cora Lambert, Frank Weed, Charles Le Moyne, Maude Baker, Grant Wood, Margaret Pitt, and R. H. Kelly, do conventional but effective work.

Al Green was responsible for the good directing. The Southern atmosphere is excellently created. The comedy touches are very well done. The sets and photography are fair. The locations used are good.

Complete Settings
for Motion Picture and Stage Productions
Furniture — Properties
All makes and periods. All descriptions.
Dealers, Builders and Furnishers of every studio stage essential
RENTALS SALES CONTRACTS
The William Bradley Studios
318 West 43d Street, N. Y. 'Phone, Bryant, 8173

MAVERICK TERRELL
Film comedy builder, having severed connections with Mr. Charles Chaplin is
AT LIBERTY
As samples of work see: "SHANGHAIED" in films; "THE REAL Q" in vaudeville; "TEMPERAMENT" in "Smart Set" magazine
Address: 1607 Alice Place, Los Angeles, California
Telephone: Wilshire 1271

LOBBY DISPLAY FRAME SPECIALISTS
MENGER & RING, Inc.
NEW YORK 304 W. 42nd St. CHICAGO 2021 Federal St. ATLANTA, GA. Southern Theatre Equipment Co.

Elsie Mackay
of Commonwealth
Pictures Corporation

Faithfully Yours
Elsie Mackay

"Patria" to Be Shown in Keith Houses

"PATRIA," the photoplay serial of society and preparedness, had its first New York showing in the entire B. F. Keith circuit of theatres in Greater New York commencing Monday, January 15. Negotiations to this end have been progressing for some time past and final arrangements were only recently consummated between E. F. Albee and A. Paul Keith of the Keith circuit and executives of the producers after all the fifteen episodes had been shown.

In booking "Patria" at the Keith houses, Messrs. Albee and Keith claim they are introducing an innovation and establishing practically a new policy for their houses, particularly for the Palace. The latter theatre caters to the better element of audiences, and it was because of this that "Patria" appealed so strongly to the management.

Mrs. Castle's personal appeal and her great popularity, too, had much to do with the decision of the management to book "Patria." The success of the private showings of "Patria" in the grand ball room of the Ritz-Carlton several weeks ago was also an important factor. Upon that occasion more than one thousand members of New York society viewed the picture, and were most enthusiastic over it. So great was the crowd that two showings were given, the second starting at 11 o'clock. Since the showing at the Ritz, similar private showings have been held at the Congress Hotel in Chicago, at the Tremont Theatre in Boston, Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia, Georgian Terrace in Atlanta, St. Francis in San Francisco, Alexandria, in Los Angeles, and at leading hotels in Providence, Omaha and other cities. Arrangements are now being made for a private showing in Washington, D. C., which is to be attended by government officials, as well as the delegates to the preparedness congress to be held in the capital.

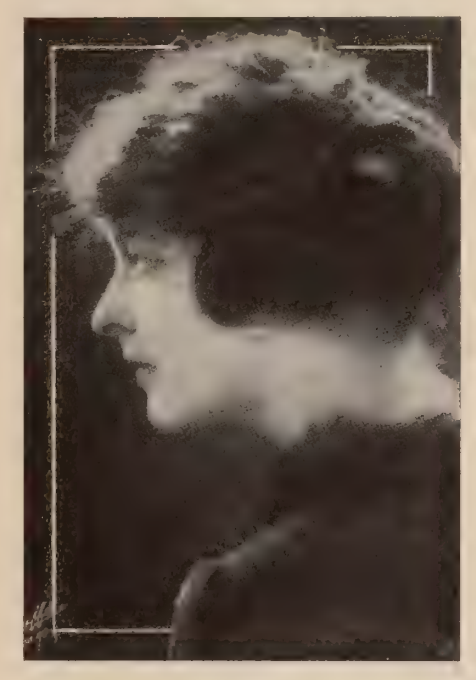
According to an official of the producing firm, "Patria" has cost half a million dollars to place on the market. He says: "When the idea was first conceived, W. R. Hearst directed that no expense be spared.

Metro Holds Election

At the annual meeting of the Metro Picture Corporation, held last Friday, John Kunsky, a prominent Detroit film man, was placed on the board of directors.

The officers were re-elected with the exception of Mr. Fitzgerald, the first vice-president, who retired some time ago.

The elected officers are: Richard A. Rowland of New York, president; first vice-president, Louis B. Mayer of Boston; second vice-president, James B. Clark of Pittsburgh; treasurer, Joseph W. Engel of New York; general counsel, J. Robert Rubin of New York; executive committee, Richard A. Rowland, Joseph W. Engel and Louis B. Mayer; directors, Richard A. Rowland, Joseph W. Engel, Louis B. Mayer, John Kunsky, L. Lawrence Weber, A. S. Beymer, O. N. Davies, John D. Clark and James B. Clark.



How a Star was Pulled Out of the Sky

A Sprightly Interview with H. A. Spanuth, Who Has Secured Elsie Mackay for Three Years

Elsie Mackay (whose portrait appears as a supplement in this issue) now playing leads with Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, has signed up with Commonwealth Pictures Corporation for three years.

Blue Monday could be nothing compared to the Gray Wednesday we were enduring—fog pressing upon the roofs and sneaking through the windows—when suddenly our door was flung open and in breezed H. A. Spanuth, President of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation.

His smile filled the room and his spirits could only have come from good news.

Elsie Mackay

"Out with it!" we said. "A blind man could see you have something on your mind."

"I don't have to be urged," gloated Spanuth, "We have invaded the sky and pulled down its biggest star."

"They all say that," we ventured. "Talent?"

Spanuth beamed.

"Looks?"

Spanuth emitted a sound between a sigh and a whistle and made a dive into his pockets.

"I have an eye—an eye you can't fool—but when it comes to words I'll pass the description of this particular brand of beauty to specialists in that line. Here's what my friend, Dick Little—"

"But who is she?" we broke in, sitting forward a bit.

Spanuth flared up. "Can't you guess? Where've you been. Elsie Mackay! of course."

This time we did the whistling!

Spanuth dashed on. "I should think you would sit up! Ever since her Chicago debut as Anne Boleyn in Sir Herbert Tree's production of Henry VIII, the country has been eating out of her hand. This is what Dick Little said of her in the Chicago Herald, December 3, 1916:

"And now a few words regarding Elsie Mackay, at present the toast of the town. It's like the good old days when an actress becomes the talk of clubs and parlors and places of general and popular resort.

Miss Mackay is so lovely as Anne Boleyn that when she makes her first appearance in the scene in Wolsey's palace everybody in the audience gasps with delight and revises his previous notions concerning old Henry VIII. No longer can one blame Henry for divorcing Katherine in favor of Anne Boleyn, not if Anne looked as Elsie Mackay does. But Anne didn't. If she had, Henry never would have permitted her head to be cut off. And even if he had ordered it done, nobody would have carried out the royal mandate.

"The headsman would have taken one good look at Anne Boleyn and then gone right over to the palace and chopped off the king's head, and the army and the nation after they saw Anne would have backed him up. Go to the Illinois and then ask yourself what you would do if the mean old king said: 'Off with her head!'—why—if they even tried to do that in the play the audience, led by the orchestra, would climb right up on the stage and tear down the scenery and chase the supe army down the alley.

"Mary Pickford hasn't been mentioned since Elsie Mackay burst upon the delighted gaze of the audience last Monday evening. Nor any movie queen for that matter. An actress upon the legitimate stage is again a public idol. Managers raced wildly after her the day following her first appearance at the Illinois."

"I beat three of them by a nose," Spanuth added, then reaching into his pocket again:

"Hammond of the Tribune—about the most fastidious of them all—has this to say:

"Miss Mackay was so blithe and so beauteous a chit that I believe that there was in the audience no King Henry who would not have divorced his queen to acquire her, even if Conscience had not figured in the consideration. She was, as a matter of reporting, the hit of the play. What care we for Kings and Cardinals when Sirens are about!"

Spanuth paused for breath.

"I've just started," warmed the enthusiast. "Charlie Collins, in the Chicago Evening Post, writes:

"Elsie Mackay must not be forgotten—everyone who sees her performance pays tribute to her in a mood of something like ecstacy. She is an enchanting Anne Boleyn and a most radiant winner of hearts. Affections capitulate to this slender Shakespearean heroine with greater unanimity than to any of Mr. Ziegfeld's choicest sirens."

"They say," Spanuth proceeded, "she has received 475 proposals of marriage by mail since December 1, that she has an income of $50,000 a year from her father, who has a big kangaroo, or sheep, or some kind of ranch in Australia.

TABLOID REVIEWS FOR BUSY EXHIBITORS

General Film Service

"The Black Circle" and "The Trail of Graft." (Kalem. Episodes of Grant, Police Reporter. One reel each.)—Robert Welles Ritchie, the author of "Grant, Police Reporter," is evidently leaving no stone unturned to provide perilous positions for the nervy George Larkin, and the latter apparently knows not what fear is, for he undertakes every hazard without a tremor and comes up smiling. The same amount of thrills fills the films and the subjects treated are, in a measure, new material and where not new, are treated in a novel, appreciative manner. In "The Black Circle," of course, Larkin's keen detective ability comes into play, but in "The Trail of Graft" a novel scheme is introduced to defeat the nefarious machinations of a corrupt and grafting politician. Grant gains the good-will and the confidence of Edna Dale, secretary to Boss Kelly, and from her he is to obtain the data for a newspaper article he has promised the Chronicle.

From the window of a vacant office over Boss Kelly's, Grant lets down a telephonic outfit, one end of which the stenographer attaches to her typewriter, and she, being also an expert telegrapher, clicks off on her typewriter through the medium of the Morse code a message which Grant interprets as "have all necessary papers—meet me at Field's restaurant at 2 o'clock."

Boss Kelly, however, at this time has missed these incriminating papers, one of his henchmen in the composing room of the Chronicle having put him wise to what was coming off, and he uses every endeavor to curtail the reporter's activities. Things now get interesting indeed—thrill follows thrill in rapid succession, and though for a time put "hors de combat," Grant recovers, places his story, causes the arrest of the boss politician and receives the congratulations of Mansfield (William McKey), his city editor.

"The Wrecked Station" and "The Railroad Claim Intrigue." (Kalem. Episodes of "Hazards of Helen." One reel each.)—Up to the standard in photography, plot and technique these two episodes of "Hazards of Helen" add still more lustre to this already acknowledged winner in film life.

Helen Gibson as the operator at Lone Point has already performed many stunning feats, but in "The Railroad Claim Intrigue" she almost excels herself in ready wit and quick conception.

An old game of buying antiquated automobiles to have wrecked on an out of the way railroad crossing and collect damages therefor is the theme. One such deal goes over successfully and the crossing flagman is discharged for "negligence," but on a second scheme of the same calibre being staged, their plans are overheard by the discharged flagman and then he inadvisedly announces his presence and his intentions to exploit them and it devolves upon Helen and the railroad detective to prevent not only a railroad wreck, but a murder, for the man being rendered unconscious was left in the "stalled" auto right in the path of the oncoming limited. Helen saves the day.

This picture is another of the series full of thrills and exciting situations and will doubtless be well received wherever Helen Gibson has been allowed to present her personality.

"The Making of Bob Mason's Wife." Selig. Sat., Jan. 13.)—Judging from the moralistic plot and the clothes worn by the players, this release was filmed some time ago. The picture will doubtless get by in houses that do not require ultra-modernity in story or treatment. The cast is composed of Robyn Adair, Virginia Kirtley, and E. J. Brady. Bob Mason, a ranch-owner, marries Kittie Gray, a city girl, and takes her to his ranch. She soon tires of the monotony, and plans to elope with Jack Duncan, the local ne'er-do-well. Bob discovers this plan, and his gentleness reawakens Kittie's love. She decides to stay with him. Later Duncan appears with a gang of desperadoes, and tries to kidnap Kittie, but she resists them until her husband and friends rescue her.

"A Tale from the Decameron." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., Dec. 26.)—This is a good program offering in spite of the story's thinness. The players, Nell Craig, Ernest Maupain, John Cossar, and Victor Benoit, are very well cast. The settings, photography and other production details are excellent. Mildred Tomes rejects the advances of Richard Ryder, a wealthy roue. Mildred's father, who is a bibliomaniac, steals a rare volume from Ryder's library. Mildred returns this book to Ryder, and the man attacks her. She kills him with a spindle. She is arrested for the murder, but her father confesses that he committed the crime. Then Mildred's fiance confesses that he was the murderer. The police discover the facts, and release all the suspects.

"Among Those Present." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., Jan. 9.)—This release can be recommended as an excellent number for nearly any class of audience. There is plenty of romance and humor, with an agreeable dash of mystery. Richard Travers, Gertrude Glover, and John Cossar play the leads admirably. The sets and photography are unusually good. Colonel Stanton refuses to let Bob Ricketts marry his daughter Grace because the young man is a gilded idler. The Colonel is chief of police, and is being roasted by the newspapers because he has not arrested a notorious "society burglar" who is terrorizing the city. Bob decides to catch the thief, and Grace secretly plans to do the same thing. In their efforts the pair constantly thwart each other. Bob finally effects the capture and is rewarded by the Colonel's consent to the marriage.

"Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 22." (Essanay. Split reel. Wed., Jan. 10.)—Some more good-natured fun is poked at the news reels by Carlton's animated cartoons. Bits of Alaska and Yukon scenic fill out the reel.

"The Wide Wrong Way." (Essanay. Three reels. Sat., Jan. 13.)—Not shown for review; the story follows. Chilvers has seen life and wants to settle down. Constance, his wife, is eager for untasted pleasures. Ardmore, Chilvers' best friend, craftily decides to give her what she wants. Ardmore has the young girl in a compromising situation, when Agnes, her sister, shoulders the blame. Then Agnes discovers that Ardmore is the man who ruined her life. Ardmore is conscience-stricken and marries Agnes, while Constance is happily reunited with her husband. In the cast are Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, Sydney Ainsworth, and Thomas Commerford.

"On Italy's Firing Line." (Selig. Three reels. Mon., Jan. 1.)—Italy hasn't received much attention in the flood of films depicting the European war. On this account these pictures of the Italian troops may go well even with audiences that are surfeited with war films. Especially interesting are the views showing the difficulties of the troops in crossing the Alps. The hazardous feats performed by the soldiers in making this journey put to shame the classic deeds of Hannibal's infantry. With the exception of some marching scenes that might have been shortened, the editing was skillfully done. The photography is good, when the difficulties of the cameraman are considered.

"Starring in Western Stuff." (Selig. Two reels. Mon., Jan. 8.)—In this release Tom Mix burlesques the every type of film that has made him famous, and doesn't spare even himself in the good-natured arraignment. There have been numerous comedies made at the expense of a third-rate moving picture company "on location," so all of the business worked into this film is not original, but there is enough that is new to get the picture by nicely. In Tom Mix's support are Victoria Forde, Pete Bender, Sid Jordan, Pat Chrisman, and Mrs. Pat Chrisman. Tom Sage, a cowpuncher, is in love with Vivian Larkin, a moving picture actress, that is, he has fallen in love with her on the screen. The company of which she is a member goes to Tom's ranch for taking some Western stuff. The temperament of the leading lady, the effeminacy of the leading man, and the irascibility of the director are all held up to ridicule. Tom sees a girl being kidnapped by bandits, and rescues her. He finds that the scene was only staged for the camera, but he wins Vivian's love, nevertheless.

"Powers Educational." Wonders of the Orient, as seen by Dr. Dorsey. (Split reel. Sun., Jan. 14.)—Synopsis—Peking, with its numerous outdoor restaurants, primitive building methods and Chinese labor; women burden bearers; pottery and willow shops, a friendly enjoyable game of dominoes are depicted, and in the distance is seen a Christian Mission Church.

"Mr. Fuller Pep Celebrates His Wedding Anniversary." (Powers Comic Cartoon. Split reel. Sun., Jan. 14.)—He celebrates by imbibing too freely of strawberry concoctions at various soda fountains, with the result that he is the victim of frightful nightmares, and on awakening he resolves to forever abjure strawberry cocktails.

"The Right Hand Path." (Selig. Sat., Dec. 30.)—Synopsis: Allen Kent leaves his home to seek his fortune, and becomes a pugilist. After five years he has lost his money, friends, and boxing skill. He decides to lead a better life and in doing so finds wealth, prosperity and love. The leads are taken by Robyn Adair and Virginia Kirtley.

Mutual Program

Reel Life, No. 37. (Gaumont.)—"Making Kid Gloves" is one of the most interesting industries shown on this reel. Every phase of the business, from a view of kids browsing in green pastures to milady neatly gloved in their skins, is demonstrated. "Producing Pickles" is both informing and appetizing. This favorite relish is seen in the picking, sorting, bottling by hand, and the final sealing, ready for delivery. "Good Teeth and Good Health" shows the importance of care of the teeth. There are several scenes which give a description of the work done in this direction by the public schools.

"Jerry's Winning Way." (Horsley-Mutual.)—In this funny reel George Ovey, as Jerry, gets mixed up with a hose and several policemen. He gets out of this mischievous tangle a great deal better than he deserves. A girl, presumably his girl, asks him in a letter to aid her in an escape from a boarding house in which her father has placed her. She explains that her room number is 13. Meantime her father has the number removed from the door and 14 put on. This causes Jerry a good deal of trouble. His love of mischief diverts him from his real errand. In room 13 he does not find the girl, but he finds a woman's clothes. He puts them on and cuts a most ridiculous figure. By mistake, he stumbles into the room of the girl's father. The old man mistakes Jerry's confusion for coyness and starts a flirtation. These scenes are very silly, but they will doubtless appeal to fun-loving audiences who don't want to watch the unraveling of a deep plot. Jerry does not rescue the girl; instead he is arrested and to judge from the last glimpse of the young man, the girl's father intends to keep him out of mischief for some time.

Metro

"Her Perfect Husband." (Drew Comedy. Mon., Dec. 25.)—This theme is not new and will please only as you do or do not care for continued marital bliss of the Sidney Drews. However, a twist is put into the ending that should be mentioned, as helping get it over with the audience. It is the same story of husband too good to be human, and wife wishing he were real develish for once, and the wish coming true. Then wifie wakes up and finds hubby patiently waiting to give her a diamond ring, hugs, kisses and she is quite satisfied with "her perfect husband."

"Cave Man Buff." (Drew Comedy. Mon., Jan. 8. Metro.)—Mr. Marsh is advised to try the Cave Man tactics if he is too bashful to propose. Marsh remembers this advice later on when his boss asks him how it is done. He suggests the Cave Man idea and learns later when he invites the boss to dinner that he has been admiring Mrs. Marsh without knowing who she is. Mrs. Marsh invites an ancient spinster to meet the boss, thinking that he would like to meet some one his own age. There is no fillip to this comedy, but it is good all through.

Pathe Exchange

"Drama's Dreadful Dent." (Rolin.)—Skinny Lampton, the fat boy of the Rolin studio, has the lead in this comedy. Luke is absent. It is a very good affair of its kind that might be benefited were a closeup of a filthy pair of feet omitted. The various methods employed by Skinny to dress sans exertion are hugely entertaining, while the whole has enough original business to put it across with much to spare.

"North and South." (Florence Rose Fashions. Number Sixteen.)—This, the last of the fashion pictures, besides showing off the usual number of elegant gowns finds Betty, the chief model of the series, engaged to be married to a very cute young fellow who gave her a ring secreted in a bunch of flowers. "Butterflies and Bees," a nature study in color, shares the reel.

"The Stolen Inheritance." (Re-issue.)—This was made by the old Pathe western stock company and has in its cast Douglas Gerrard and George Gebhardt. It is old fashion melodrama from the start; the woman and child turned from the cruel man's door and a "take back your wife and child and I'll tear up the papers" line being among the tricks present.

Paramount Program

"Fine Art With Hammer and Anvil." (Paramount. One reel.)—Synopsis—The great ductability of copper was responsible for its being really the first metal to be worked into the wonderful ornament and vessels in the olden days, as it is today; Paramount pictures deal with this end of smithing and quotes Prof. Edward Thatcher of Columbia University as an authority.

"How Niagara Falls Is Harnessed." (Paramount. One reel.)—Synopsis—This film deals with the great waste of water, which for centuries has expended itself over the falls, has now, through the medium of electricity been brought to bear materially upon the mercantile industries of today. "Beauty and Utility Meet" the sub-title, which in itself is surely self explanative—for the Falls, whose geographic beauties have been heralded everywhere within the ken of men, have gradually been encroached upon for manufacturing purposes until there really is danger of the grasping hand of Commerce marring the beauties of the landscape and the fallscape.

"How Useful Citizens Are Re-Made." (Paramount. One reel.)—Synopsis—A pictorial subject dealing with "Children's Village" at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., where there is established a colony where children are taught the advantages of vocational training and upon them is impressed the idea of self-reliance. These embryo citizens are taught to make their own clothes, print their own literature, cultivate their own land and thus eliminate the high cost of living. They are trained to become expert telegraphers, plumbers, printers, painters, and almost every other trade in which there is today a demand.

Weeklies

Universal Animated Weekly, No. 51. (Wed., Dec. 20.)—Dam dynamited to prevent back flow of water from menacing country, Whitney, N. C.; eight-mile walk indulged in by men and women, New York city; girls dance in Greek garb, St. Louis, Mo.; hoisting engine on board U. S. Cuyama, Mare Island Navy Yard, Cal.; Christmas trees arrive, Chicago, Ill.; rounding up cattle, Silverbell, Ariz.; U. S. transport goes ashore, near Barnegat, N. J.; elephants work on German frontier, in Roumania; newest skating fashions; cartoons by Hy Mayer.

Selig-Tribune, No. 100. (Thurs., Dec. 14.)—James W. Gerrard, Ambassador to Germany, sails to Berlin with his wife after vacation, New York city; funeral of John D. Archbold, Tarrytown, N. Y.; President Wilson leaves capitol after delivering message to Congress, Washington, D. C.; society woman of Philadelphia plays billiards as recreation; views of the recent big fire in Brooklyn, N. Y.; annual cat show, New York city; stock show in Chicago, Ill.; feminine footwear; Shriners' convention, New Orleans, La.

Crane Wilbur of the Horsley Studios

Selig-Tribune, No. 101. (Mon., Dec. 18.)—Governor Johnson drives first stake in $10,000,000 canal, Sacramento, Cal.; building of the Falketind, largest wooden ship on west coast, Oakland, Cal.; Congressman Adamson of Georgia, prominently connected with Adamson law, Washington, D. C.; riders prepare for coming six-day bicycle race, Newark, N. J.; "Open Window" and "Walk to Work" week comes to successful conclusion, New York city; English soldiers training, Manchester, Eng.; latest fashions in furs and evening gowns; old sewing machines and castings transformed into munitions, Lebanon, Pa.; Southern Commercial Congress opens with parade, Norfolk, Va.

Pathe News, No. 4. (Wed., Jan. 10.)—Winter sports, Truckee, Cal.; Grecian dances, Galveston, Texas; automobile magnates gather to witness try-out of new safety fender, New York City; rehabilitating the Serbian army, Monastir, Serbia; ice harvesting, Waltham, Mass.; exhibition of the "sea robin," rare species of fish, Washington, D. C.; boy scouts have experiences in snow and ice, Seattle, Wash.; army engineers construct pontoon bridges, Fort Brown, Texas; munition workers, Le Creusot, France; Jack Barry (new manager of Boston Red Sox), for Boston only.

Selig-Tribune, No. 102. (Thurs., Dec. 21.)—Herbert Munter starts on aeroplane flight to Portland from Seattle, Wash.; Clara Ruth Mozer, first woman to be appointed Assistant States Attorney General, Denver, Colo.; high school pupils make wooden toys for poor, Denver, Colo.; fire destroys residential block, New Orleans, La.; U. S. Transport, Sumner, goes ashore, Barnegat, N. J.; polo game, San Mateo, Cal.; torpedo boat destroyer Shaw christened, Mare Island, Cal.; British marines play water polo, Richmond, Eng.; Fifth Avenue, New York City, thronged with Christmas shoppers; U. S. Collier, Caesar, loaded with foodstuffs for starving Syrians and Armenians, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Selig-Tribune, No. 103. (Mon., Dec. 25.)—Supplies for Christmas trees shipped, Turkey Creek Canyon, Colo.; caterpillar tractors inspected, Marfa, Texas; furnaces, long out of date, used again for smelting, Cornwall, Pa.; General Smut finds advance difficult owing to primitive transportation methods, Kufro, German East Africa; Newfoundland regiment gets colors, Aldershot, Eng.; girl takes icy plunge in Chicago River; society skates on "crystal ice," a new substitute, Boston, Mass.; Frank Lowden, governor-elect of Illinois, Oregon, Ill.; and other events.

Selig-Tribune, No. 104. (Thurs., Dec. 28.)—Lord Mayor's Show, London, England; preparing specimens of butterflies for decorative purposes, Jamaica Plain, Mass.; horse racing at Juarez, Mexico; sailors from U. S. S. Nevada visit Washington, D. C.; wild fowl turned loose in cage, New Orleans, La.; Universities of Pennsylvania and Princeton play annual soccer game in snow, Philadelphia, Pa.; society women to be active in Allied Bazaar, Chicago, Ill.; airmen of Allied forces, Western Headquarters of the French Army on the Somme, France.

Selig-Tribune, No. 1. (Mon., Jan. 1.)—Wreck of U. S. submarine H-3, Eureka, Cal.; installation of double track bridge structure in record time, Omaha, Neb.; business men exercise to retain good health, Philadelphia, Pa.; hunting meet, Bakersfield, Cal.; physical training at girls' school, New Orleans, La.; new oil-burning freighter christened, Quincy, Mass.; women turn to farm work on King George's estates, Sandringham, England; automobile costing $9,000 added to equipment of Colorado National Guard, Denver Colo.; and other events.

Pathe News, No. 1. (Sat., Dec. 30.)—Singers celebrate Christmas with carols, Washington, D. C.; municipal coal mine opened, Terre Haute, Ind.; Russian war ships on the Baltic Sea; dugouts of the Allied generals on the Somme front, Chaulnes, France; animated cartoon by F. M. Follett; prominent suffragists honor memory of Inez Milholland Boissevain, Washington, D. C.; Dixie Highway christened in snow storm, Danville, Ill.; building toboggan slides, Dorchester, Mass.; caterpillar tractor train tested by government, Marfa, Texas.

Universal Animated Weekly, No. 53. (Wed., Jan. 3.)—Ice skating, Chicago, Ill.; clearing away fire ruins, Los Angeles, Cal.; thousands sing Christmas carols, Washington, D. C.; horses have holiday, Boston, Mass.; volunteers attend church, Southend-on-Sea, England; retreating Bulgars loot Macedonia, Greece; Mummers parade in Philadelphia, Pa.; suffragists honor Inez Milholland Boissevain, Washington, D. C.; Governor Whitman inaugurated for second term, Albany, N. Y.; cartoons by Hy Mayer.

Mutual Weekly, No. 105. (Gaumont.)—U. S. submarine wrecked, Eureka, Cal.; oil-burning steamer launched, Quincy, Mass.; 22nd Engineers back from border, New York City; chorus sings Christmas carols, Washington, D. C.; park employees get Christmas gifts, New York City; Cardinal Gibbons sends 110,000 telegrams to raise money for charity, Baltimore, Md.; children have Christmas party on battleship, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Suffragists pay tribute to Inez Milholland Boissevain, Washington, D. C.; Christmas tree for horses, Boston, Mass.; marathon, Venice, Cal.; squadron A back from border, New York City; and other events.

"Selig-Tribune, No. 4." (Thurs., Jan. 11.)—Oldest dated bell rings in New Year, Oakland, Cal.; ice yachting at Red Bank, N. J.; tobogganing, Boston, Mass.; ranchmen participate in three-day rabbit drive, Amarillo, Tex.; twenty-five German prisoners from Australia arrive en route to Denmark for exchange, San Francisco, Cal.; largest steamer ever built south of Newport News is launched, Sidell, La.; last of San Diego exposition, California; U. S. submarine N-1 launched, Seattle, Wash.; dancing in Grecian costumes, Galveston, Tex.; skating, Washington, D. C.; "Mummers" parade, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Selig-Tribune, No. 5." (Mon., Jan. 15.)—James Cox inaugurated Ohio's Governor, Columbus; Prince Arthur of Connaught distributes decorations to French officers and soldiers, Paris, France; judges attend service at Westminster, London, England; two hundred members of Olympic Club hike through Golden Gate Park and plunge into Pacific, San Francisco, Cal.; annual rose tournament, Pasadena, Cal.; Frank O. Lowden inaugurated Illinois' Governor, Springfield; beaches used as settings for artists to rehearse musical productions, Los Angeles, Cal.; Eighth U. S. cavalry holds annual parade and entertainment, El Paso, Tex.; the late Col. William Cody, known as "Buffalo Bill," as he appeared when visiting the Selig studios in Chicago, Ill.; chimpanzees disport themselves in Lincoln Park, Chicago, Ill.

Rothacker

"The Cody Road to Yellowstone Park." (Rothacker. Three reels.)—Synopsis. Under the caption, "Seeing Western America—Tour No. 1," this picture depicts the beauties of the scenery along the Cody road to Yellowstone Park, then on to Shoshone Dam. The beautiful Sylvan Pass and Sylvan Dam are also pictured, as are also the famous geysers and the Grand Canyon of Yellowstone. Each one of the three reels is introduced by an animated album effect, the third showing on a map of the United States, the exact location of the scenes pictured.

"The Rocky Mountains and National Park, Colorado," and "The Kiddies' Paradise." (Rothacker. Three reels.)—Synopsis. The Colorado fish hatcheries and numerous short, spectacular views of the scenery of surrounding country are shown in this series. The Fall River road and the famous high drive are among other scenic wonders portrayed. A picture somewhat out of the ordinary shows the gathering and breaking of a mountain storm with the lightning registered clearly in the sky. All the scenes are handled in colors, both tints and tones, giving duo tone and triple tone effects.

Edwin Carewe

Scenarios Wanted

One reel comedy scenarios
for Kate Price and Billy Ruge, as Plump and Runt; and Burns and Stull as Pokes and Jabs.

One reel scenarios for dramas featuring a female lead

AMBER STAR FILMS CORPORATION
Jacksonville :: :: :: Florida

ANNOUNCEMENT

Our plant, recently destroyed by fire, has been rebuilt and thoroughly equipped with all new machinery of most improved type.

Developing Printing Color Work

YOUR BUSINESS SOLICITED

PACIFIC FILM LABORATORIES

5813-27 Santa Monica Boulevard Los Angeles, Calif.

EXECUTIVE

Thoroughly Experienced

Producing and Exchange end also export

Highest Record and References

Seeks new connections

Address, Executive, care of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y.

SUCCESS

in running a motion picture theatre depends on selecting films which suit your audiences. Accurate, authentic, timely film reviews will help you to a proper selection.

The Dramatic Mirror offers the exhibitor a film review service second to none. Mirror reviews are impartial, authoritative and intelligent. Most high grade exhibitors follow them closely.

Ask us how to get Mirror reviews at a nominal cost.

THE NEW YORK
DRAMATIC MIRROR
1493-1505 Broadway, New York

Motion Picture News carried more cash advertising during the past two months than any two other trade journals in this field

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

The Blackmailers

an original drama in four parts. It is a gripping, well produced picture of modern social piracy. It is absolutely free from sex sensationalism but it carries an unusual interest because of the authentic pictures of persons and places daily mentioned on the front pages of the big newspapers.

The Blackmailers

will be released February 5th by the AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION through its affiliated exchanges throughout the United States.

PRODUCED BY

THE LAMREE FILM CORP.

Times Building, New York City

FEATURES—CURRENT AND COMING

Art Dramas, Inc.

Dec.—21. Lash of Destiny (Gertrude McCoy) 5
Dec.—28. Whoso Taketh a Wife (Jean Sothern) 5
Jan.— 4. The Rainbow (Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill) 5

Artcraft Pictures

Nov.— 6. Less Than the Dust (Mary Pickford) 5
Jan.— 8. The Pride of the Clan (Mary Pickford.)

Bluebird Photoplays

Dec.—25. The Right to be Happy (Rupert Julian) 5
Jan.— 1. Black Orchids (Cleo Madison) 5
Jan.— 8. The Piper's Price (Dorothy Phillips) 5
Jan.—15. Her Soul's Inspiration (Ella Hall) 5
Jan.—29. The Devil's Pay Day (Franklin Farnum) 5
Feb.— 5. The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford and Mary MacLaren) 5
Feb.—12. The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Nowell and Betty Shade) 5
Feb.—19. The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum and Agnes Vernon) 5
Feb.—26. The Saintly Sinner (Ruth Stonehouse) 5

Fox Film Corporation

Jan.— 1. The Island of Desire (George Walsh) 5
Jan.— 8. The Price of Silence (William Farnum) 5
Jan.— 8. A Modern Cinderella (June Caprice) 5
Jan.—15. Bitter Truth (Virginia Pearson) 5
Jan.—22. The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara) 5
Jan.—22. The Primitive Call (Gladys Coburn) 5
Jan.—29. One Touch of Sin (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb.— 5. The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt) 5
Feb.—12. North of 53 (Dustin Farnum) 5

International Film Service

Through Pathe Exchange, Inc., after January 10th.

Ivan Feature Productions

Dec. 1. The Sex Lure (The Girl Who Did Not Care—Title in Greater New York) 6
Jan. —Enlighten Thy Daughter (Frank Sheridan, Katherine Kaelred, James Morrison and Marie Shotwell) 5

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Dec. 25. The Truant Soul (Henry Walthall), Essanay 7
Jan. 1. The Last Sentence (Marc McDermott and Miriam Nesbitt), Edison 5
Jan. 8. The Master Passion (Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness) Edison. 5
Jan. 15. Little Shoes (Henry B. Walthall and Mary Charleson), Essanay 5
Jan. 22. Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed), Selig 5
Feb. 5. Skinner's Dress Suit 5
Feb. 12. The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton, George Fawcett and Frank Campesu), Selig 5
Feb. 19. The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore), Edison 5

McClure Pictures*

Jan. 29. Seven Deadly Sins, "Envy" (Ann Murdock, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 5. Seven Deadly Sins, "Pride" (Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 12. Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guerre) 5
Feb. 19. Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
*Released through Triangle Exchanges.

Metro Pictures Corporation

Dec. 25. Pidgin Island (Harold Lockwood and May Allison) 5
Jan. 1. Vanity (Emmy Whelan), Popular Plays and Players 5
Jan. 8. A Wife by Proxy (Mabel Taliaferro), Columbia Pictures Corp. 5
Jan. 15. The White Raven (Ethel Barrymore), Rolfe 5
Jan. 22. The Promise (Harold Lockwood and May Allison), Yorke Film Corp. 5
Jan. 29. The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore), Columbia Pictures Corp. 5
Feb. 5. Bridges Burned (Madame Petrova), Popular Plays and Players 5
Feb. 12. One of Many (Frances Nelson), Arthur James 5
Feb. 19. Threads of Fate (Viola Dana), Columbia 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Dec. 25. The Innocence of Lizette (Mary Miles Minter) Minter 5
Jan. 1. A Gilded Youth (Richard Bennett), American 5
Jan. 8. The Butterfly Girl (Margarita Fischer), Fischer 5
Jan. 15. Beloved Rogues (Kob and Dill), American 5
Jan. 22. The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter), American 5

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Dec. 23. Snow-White (Marguerite Clark), Famous Players 6
Dec. 28. The Redeeming Love (Kathlyn Williams and Thomas Holding), Morosco 5
Jan. 1. The Slave Market (Pauline Frederick), Famous Players 5
Jan. 4. The Evil Eye (Blanche Sweet), Lasky 5
Jan. 8. Great Expectations (Louise Huff and Jack Pickford), Famous Players 5
Jan. 11. The Happiness of Three Women (Myrtle Stedman and House Peters), Morosco 5
Jan. 15. Betty to the Rescue (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5
Jan. 18. A Girl Like That (Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore), Famous Players 5
Jan. 22. Lost and Won (Marie Doro), Lasky 5
Jan. 25. The Golden Fetter (Anita King and Wallace Reid), Lasky 5
Jan. 29. His Sweetheart (George Beban), Morosco 5
Feb. 1. The Wax Model (Vivian Martin), Pallas 5
Feb. 5. Each To His Kind (Sessue Hayakawa), Lasky 5
Feb. 8. Her Own People (Lenore Ulrich), Pallas 5
Feb. 12. The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen), Lasky 5
Feb. 15. The American Consul (Theodore Roberts), Lasky 5
Feb. 19. The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark), Famous Players 5
Feb. 22. On Record (Mae Murray), Lasky 5
Feb. 26. Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS

Dec. 24. The Romantic Journey (William Courtenay, Alice Dovey and Macey Harlan), Astra 5
Dec. 31. Joy and the Dragon (Baby Marie Osborne and Henry King), Balboa 5
Jan. 7. Her New York (Gladys Hulette, William Parke, Jr., and Robert Vaughn), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 14. Kick In (William Courtney, Mollie King, Robert Clugston and Suzanne Willa), Astra 5
Jan. 21. The Image Maker (Valkyrien), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 28. Twin Kiddies (Baby Marie Osborne, Henry King, Daniel Gilfether, R. Henry Gray and Loretta Beecker), Balboa 5
Feb. 4. A Modern Monte Cristo (Vincent Serrano, Thomas A. Curran, Helen Badgley and Boyd Marshall), Thanhouser 5
Feb. 11. Sold at Auction (Wm. Conklin, Lois Meredith, Marguerite Nicholas and Frank Mayo), Balboa 5
Coming—When My Ship Comes In (Jane Grey), International 5

Red Feather Productions

Dec. 25. A Child of Mystery (Hobert Henley and Gertrude Selby 5
Jan. 1. Polly Put the Kettle On 5
Jan. 8. Fighting for Love (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5
Jan. 15. The Double Room Mystery (Hayward Mack and Ed. Hearn) 5
Jan. 22. Heart Strings (Allen Holubar and Maude George) 5
Jan. 29. Love Aflame (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5

Selznick Pictures

Oct. 15. The Common Law (Clara Kimball Young) 6
Dec. 1. War Brides (Mme. Nazimova), Herbert Brenon, Prod. 8
Dec. 18. The Foolish Virgin (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. —. The Argyle Case (Robert Warwick) 5
Jan. —. The Eternal Sin (Florence Reed and William E. Shay), Herbert Brenon Prod. 5
Jan. —. Panthea (Norma Talmadge) 5

Triangle Film Corporation

Dec. 24. The Heiress at Coffee Dan's (Bessie Love), Fine Arts 5
Dec. 24. Three of Many (Clara Williams), Kay Bee 5
Dec. 31. The House Built Upon Sand (L. Gish), Fine Arts 5
Dec. 31. The Female of the Species (Dalton-Markey-Hickman), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 7. Truthful Tulliver (W. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 7. The Weaker Sex (Dalton-Chas. Ray-Glaum), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 14. The Little Yank (G. Gish), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 14. The Bride of Hate (Keenan-Margery Wilson), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 21. Nina, the Flower Girl (Love), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 21. The Iced Bullet (Wm. Desmond), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 28. The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 28. Chicken Casey (Dalton), Kay Bee. 5
Feb. 4. Jim Bludso (Lucas), Fine Arts 5
Feb. 4. The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 11. The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge), Fine Arts. 5
Feb. 11. The Gun Fighter (Wm. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5

Unity Sales Corporation

Dec. 1. Land Just Over Yonder 6
Dec. 15. Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
Jan. 15. Glory 7

Vitagraph—V-L-S-E

Dec. 25. My Official Wife (Clara Kimball Young and Earle Williams), Reissue 5
Dec. 25. Whom the Gods Destroy (Alice Joyce, Marc McDermott and Harry Morey) 5
Dec. 25. The Christian (Earle Williams and Edith Storey), Re-issue 5
Jan. 1. The Ninety and Nine (Lucille Lee Stewart) 5
Jan. 8. Indescretion (Lillian Walker) 5
Jan. 15. The Man of Mystery (E. H. Sothern) 5
Jan. 22. Her Hight to Live (Peggy Hyland and Antonio Moreno) 5
Jan. 29. Blind Justice (Ben Christie) 5
Feb. 5. The Glory of Yolanda (Anita Stewart) 5
Feb. 12 Money Magic (Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno) 5
Feb. 19. The Courage of Silence (Alice Joyce and Harry Morey) 5
Feb. 26. Kitty McKay (Lillian Walker) 5

World Pictures

Dec. 25. The World Against Him (E. K. Lincoln and June Elvidge) 5
Jan. 1. A Woman Alone (Alice Brady) 5
Jan. 8. On Dangerous Ground (Gail Kane and Carlyle Blackwell) 5
Jan. 15. The Man Who Forgot (Robert Warwick, Gerda Holmes and Doris Kenyon) 5
Jan. 22. The Bondage of Fear (Ethel Clayton) 5
Jan. 29. Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler and Johnny Hines) 5
Feb. 5. A Hungry Heart (Alice Brady) 5
Feb. 12. The Red Woman (Gail Kane) 5
Feb. 19. A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Henry Hull and Muriel Ostriche) 5

SHORT SUBJECTS CURRENT AND COMING

Foxfilm Comedies

1— 1. Social Pirates (Charles Arling).. 2 reels
1— 8. Chased Into Love (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips)..... 2 reels
1—15. Noah's Ark (Hank Mann)..... 2 reels
1—22. Her Father's Station (Anna Luther) ..... 2 reels
1—29. There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips)... 2 reels

General Film Company

Monday, January 22, 1917
SELIG—On Italy's Firing Line, 3 parts, 21655-56-57
VITAGRAPH—The Vagabond (Frederick Hiller and Caroline Vaughn), 1 D... 21658
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 7, 1 Top.... 21659
Tuesday, January 23, 1917
ESSANAY—What Would You Do? (8th of Black Cat Series), 2 C-D..... 21660-61
KALEM—The Blundering Blacksmith (Ham Comedy), 1 C..... 21662
Wednesday, January 24, 1917
ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 23, and Alaska, Sc., Split reel.... 21663
KALEM—The Wolf of Los Alamos (24th episode of the Girl from 'Frisco), 2 D. 21664-65
Thursday, January 25, 1917
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 8, 1 Top.... 21666
VIM—Title not announced, 1 C..... 21667
Friday, January 26, 1917
KALEM—The Violet Ray (15th of Grant, Police Reporter, Series), I D..... 21668
VITAGRAPH—His Little Spirit Girl (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C..... 21669
VIM—Title not announced, 1 C..... 21670
Saturday, January 27, 1917
ESSANAY—The Magic Mirror (7th of Is Marriage Sacred Series), 2 D.....21671-72
VITAGRAPH—The Valley of Lost Hope (Romaine Fielding), 3 D.....21673-74-75
KALEM—The Railroad Claim Intrigue (Hazards of Helen Series), 1 D..... 21676
SELIG—The Luck that Jealousy Brought (Tom Mix), 1 D..... 21677

Metro Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 1, 1917.
ROLMA—The Matinee Idol (Ralph Herz) 1 C.
TRAVELOGUE—No. 27. Subject not announced.
Monday, January 8, 1917
DREW—Cave Man's Buff (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 1, The Secret Seven), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, January 15, 1917
DREW—His Perfect Day (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 2, The Casket of Tainted Treasure), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, January 22, 1917
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 3, The Hidden Hand), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
ROLMA—Married But Single (Ralph Herz), 1 C.
Monday, January 29, 1917.
DREW—The Pest (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 4, From Sunshine to Shadows), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 5, 1917
DREW—Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
Monday, February 12, 1917
ROLMA—Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz), 1 C.

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, January 22, 1917
MONOGRAM—Shorty in the Tiger's Den (Adventure of Shorty Hamilton No. 2) 2 D 05289-90
Tuesday, January 23, 1917
GAUMONT—Tours Around the World, No. 1 (Bordeaux to Pauillac, France. Monastery of St. Thessalonica, Greece. Gorges of Nive, French Pyrenees.) 1 Top..... 05291
Wednesday, January 24, 1917.
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 108, 1 Top 05292
GAUMONT—See America First (Historic Virginia), Sc., Kartoon Komics, Split Reel 05293
Thursday, January 25, 1917.
CUB—Jerry and the Outlaws (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05294
Friday, January 26, 1917.
MUTUAL—Afloat and Ashore (Uncle Sam Defenders, No. 4), 1 Top..... 05295
Saturday, January 27, 1917.
AMERICAN—A Double Revenge (J. Warren Kerrigan)..... 05296
Sunday, January 28, 1917.
VOGUE—A Circus Cyclone (Ben Turpin and Paddy McQuire), 2 C..... 05297-98
GAUMONT—Reel Life, X-Ray in War Time, Decorative Butterflies, Salt: the Cheapest Necessity, The Real Hula Hula, 1 Mag..... 05299
Monday, January 29, 1917
MONOGRAM—Shorty Goes to College (Adventures of Shorty Hamilton, No. 5), 2 D.....05300-01
Tuesday, January 30, 1917
GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World (Teheran, the Capital of Persia; coast resorts of Normandy, France; winter in the Vosges Mountains, France), 1 Trav..... 05302
Wednesday, January 31, 1917
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 109, 1 Top. 05303
GAUMONT—See America First (San Diego, Cal.), Sc., and Kartoon Komics, split reel..... 05304
Thursday, February 1, 1917
CUB—Jerry and His Pal (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05305
Friday, February 2, 1917
MUTUAL—Scouts of the Sea and Sky (Uncle Sam Defenders, No. 5), 1 Top. 05306
Saturday, February 3, 1917
AMERICAN—Title not announced (J. Warren Kerrigan), 1 D..... 05307
Sunday, February 4, 1917
VOGUE—Sticky Fingers (Paddy McQuire), 2 C.....05308-9
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Making Lace by Machinery; Toddles: New York's latest dance; Raising Fresh Water Fish; Design Your Own Gown, 1 Mag. 05310

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 15, 1917
BURTON HOLMES—Montreal, Old and New, 1 Trav.
KLEVER KOMEDY—Did It Ever Happen to You? 1 C.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, January 22, 1917.
BURTON HOLMES—Ottawa and Toronto. 1 Trav.
BLACK DIAMOND—He Did It Himself, 1 C.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, January 29, 1917.
BURTON HOLMES—Georgian Bay to Winnipeg, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, February 5, 1917
BURTON-HOLMES — Regina to the Rockies, 1 Trav..... T-1096
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 53, 1 Mag.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, January 21, 1917.
Patria, No. 2 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 8 (International Diplomacy), Astra, 2 D.
The Stolen Birthright, Pathe, 3 D.
Luke's Busy Days, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 15 (Rose), Fash: Small Birds of War Climates (Pathe), Colored Ed. Split reel.
Wednesday, January 24, 1917.
Pathe News, No. 8, 1 Top.
Saturday, January 27, 1917.
Pathe News, No. 9, 1 Top.
Sunday, January 28, 1917.
Patria, No. 3 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International. 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 9 (The Monroe Doctrine), Astra 2 D.
The Stolen Inheritance, Pathe, 1 D.
Drama's Dreadful Deal, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 16 (Rose), Fash.; Butterflies and Bees (Pathe), Colored Ed., Split Reel.
Wednesday, January 31, 1917.
Pathe News, No. 10, 1 Top.
Saturday, February 3, 1917.
Pathe News, No. 11, 1 Top.
Sunday, February 4, 1917
Patria, No. 4 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 9, Astra, 2 D.
Rods of Rath, Pathe. 3 D.
Luke's Trolley Trouble, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashion, No. 17 (Rose), Fash.: An Algerian Harem (Pathe), Colored Educ., Split Reel.
Wednesday, February 7, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 12, 1 Top.
Saturday, February 10, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 13, 1 Top.

Triangle Komedies

Sunday, January 14, 1917
Love Under Cover. 1 C.
The Pipe of Discontent, 1 C.
Sunday, January 21, 1917
A Noble Fraud, 1 C.
Honest Thieves, 1 C.
Sunday, January 28, 1917
Heart Strategy, 1 C.
A Grab Bag Bride, 1 C.
Sunday, February 4, 1917
The Male Governess, 1 C.
The Road Agent, 1 C.

Unicorn Film Service*

Sunday, December 10, 1916.
RANCHO—His Battling Blood, 2 W..... 963A
Monday, December 11, 1916.
SUPREME—Love's Wilderness, 3 D.....1113A
BUFFALO—The Slave of Passion, 1 D...1113B
Tuesday, December 12, 1916.
JUDY—You Never Can Tell, 1 C.....1114A
HIAWATHA—The Woman He Wed, 2 D.1114B
Wednesday, December 13, 1916.
SUNSET—The Trail of Fate, 2 D.....1115A
HIPPO—High Cost of Living, 1 C.....1115B
Thursday, December 14, 1916.
RANCHO—Desert Gold, 1 D.....1116A
GAIETY—Kisses and Fists, 1 C.....1116B
UTAH—A Belle of the Sage Brush, 1 W..1116C
Friday, December 15, 1916.
JUDY—Mary Lost Her Lamb, 1 C.....1117A
BUFFALO—Fires of Fate, 2 D.....1117B
Saturday, December 16, 1916.
SUPREME—The Challenge of Chivalry, 2 D 1118A
Sunday, December 17, 1916.
JOCKEY—A Devil in His Own Home Town, 1 C.....1119A
SUNSET—The Mystery of the Mesa, 1 D.1119B
* Releases issued every two weeks.

Universal Film Company

Monday, January 22, 1917.
NESTOR—A Macaroni Slueth (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts) 1 C 02107
Tuesday, January 23, 1917.
GOLD SEAL—Souls United (Voilet Mersereau) 3 D..... 02108
VICTOR—The Honeymoon Surprise (Fred Church and Eileen Sedgwick), 1 C... 02109
Wednesday, January 24, 1917.
L-KO—The Battle of "Let's Go" (Dan Russell) 2 C..... 02110
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 56. 02111
BIG U—The Red Goddess (Mona Darkfeather), Re-issue, 1 D..... 02112
Thursday, January 25, 1917.
BIG U—A Wife's Folly (Ben Wilson and Edna Hunter), 2 D..... 02113
IMP—Black Evidence (Kingsley Benedict and Lois Wilson), 1 D..... 02114
VICTOR—The Black Mine (Billy Mason), Re-issue, 1 C..... 02115
Friday, January 26, 1917.
IMP—The Fugitive (Louise Lovely), 2 D 02116
VICTOR—Hell by the Enemy (Pat Rooney), 1 C..... 02117
Saturday, January 27, 1917.
BISON—The Daring Chance (Wm. V. Mong and Nellie Allen) 2 D..... 02118
JOKER—Love Me, Love My Biscuits (Gale Henry and Wm. Franey), 1 C. 02119
LAEMMLE—The Blood-stained Hand (Matt Moore and Jane Gail), 1 D..... 02120
Sunday, January 28, 1917.
REX—The Old Toymaker (Allen Holubar and Leah Baird), 1 D..... 02121
POWERS—Boomer Bill's Awakening (C. Cart.), and Dorsey Ed., Split Reel... 02122
BIG U—A Jungle Tragedy (Marie Walcamp), 2 D..... 02123
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—Ablaze in Mid Air (5th Episode of the Purple Mask), (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford), 2 D 02124
Monday, January 29, 1917
NESTOR—Why, Uncle (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean), 1 C..... 02126
Tuesday, January 30, 1917
GOLD SEAL—June Madness (Roy Stewart and Wadsworth Harris), 3 D.... 02127
VICTOR—Some Baby (Nov.) and Nellie the Fireman's Daughter (Com), Split Reel (Re-issue) 02128

(Continued on page 605)

STATE RIGHTS—CURRENT AND COMING

Anti-Vice Film Company
Is Any Girl Safe?.....5 reels

Argosy Films, Inc.
The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Dec.—Absinthe (King Baggot), Universal Re-issue .....5 reels

California Motion Picture Corp.
December—The Passion Flower. (Beatrix Michelena) ....

Christie Film Company
Oct.— 2. The Sad Sea Waves.....1 reel
Nov.—27. Tramp, Tramp, Tramp.....1 reel
Dec.— 4. Sea Nymphs.....1 reel
Dec.—11. Miss Billie Buttons.....1 reel
Dec.—18. Hist! At Six O'clock.....1 reel
Dec.—25. Cupid's Uppercut .....1 reel
Jan.— 1. His Model Wife.....1 reel
Jan.— 8. Out for the Coin.....2 reels
Jan.—15. Black Hands and Soapsuds.....1 reel
Jan.—29. A Gay Deceiver.....1 reel

Claridge Films, Inc.
The Birth of Character.....5 reels
The Heart of New York.....5 reels

Cosmofotofilm Company
Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross.....4 reels
O 18.....4 reels
His Vindication.....5 reels

Dixie Films
Dec.—Tempest and Sunshine (Evlyn Greely) .....5 reels
Dec.—Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.
Oct.— 1. The Land of Silence.....1 reel
Oct.—15. To the Rainbow.....1 reel
Oct.— 8. The Hermit of Hood.....1 reel
Oct.—22. Hans and Henri and the Neophyte .....1 reel
Oct.—29. Mazamas and the Three Sisters..2 reels
Nov.— 5. Deschutes Driftwood.....1 reel
Nov.—12. Oddities in Film Form, No. 1...1 reel
Nov.—19. The Snows of Many Years.....1 reel
Nov.—26. Hiyu Skookum Pow-wow La Push .....1 reel

E. & R. Jungle Film Company
Jungle Brats.
Fowl Play.
Discovered.
When the Clock Went Cuckoo.
When Jones Went Wrong.
Napoleon's Night Out.
Circus Brides.

Eskay Harris Feature Film
Alice in Wonderland.....6 parts

European Film Company
Fighting for Verdun.....5 reels

Exclusive Features, Inc.
Where is My Father?.....7 reels

Jos. W. Farnham
Race Suicide.....6 parts
The Awakening of Bess Morton.....5 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.
Oct.—10. The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Connes) 5

Harper Film Corporation
November 16. Civilization.

Herald Film Corporation
Around the World in 80 Days.....6 parts

Hippodrome Film Co.
At the Front with the Allies.....

Juvenile Film Corporation
Apr.—.1. World War in Kidland.....1 reel
Apr.— 8. A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Apr.—15. Chip's Elopement.....1 reel
Apr.—22. Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.2 reels
Apr.—29. Chip's Rivals.....1 reel
May—13. For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
May—27. Chip's Carmen.....2 reels

Kemble Film Corporation
The Zeppelin Raids on London and the Siege of Verdun.....5 reels

Kulee Features
Germany on the Firing Line.....6 parts
France on the Firing Line.....6 parts
The Unborn (Bessie Bondhill).....5 parts

Lincoln Motion Picture Company
The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

C. Post Mason Enterprises
The Wonder City of the World (Greater N. Y. by Day and by Night).....4 reels

Monarch Photoplay Co., Inc.
Common Sense Brackett.....6 parts

Moral Uplift Society of America
It May Be Your Daughter.....

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation
The Power of Evil (Margaret Nichols)....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels

Patriot Film Corp.
How Britain Prepared.....8 reels

Pioneer Feature Film Corp.
The Soul of a Child.....5 reels

Private Feature Film
—.—Ignorance (Earl Metcalfe) .....6 reels

Radio Film Company
Satan the Destroyer of Humanity.....7 parts

Ray Comedies
July—12. Casey's Servants.....
July—19. Casey the White-Wing.....

Sherman Elliot, Inc.
Dec.— 1. The Crisis (Selig)..... 7
Coming. The Garden of Allah (Selig)..... 10

Signet Film Corporation
Nov.— . The Masque of Life.....7 reels

Standard Newsfilm, Inc.
Demons of the Air.....2 reels

Sunbeam Motion Picture Corp.
Ty Cobb in Somewhere in Georgia.....6 parts

Superior Films Company
The Faucet.....5 reels
The Cowpuncher.....6 parts

Triumph Film Corporation
Dec.— 5. The Libertine.....6 reels

Unity Sales Corporation
June—19. The Bishop's Secret.....4 parts
June—26. The Lottery Man.....5 reels
July— 3. The Marriage Bond.....5 reels

Universal Film Mfg. Company
Idle Wives 70 Sp. Oct.....
Where Are My Children?.....5 reels
Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea .....10 reels
People vs. John Doe (Harry De More, Leah Baird).....5 reels
Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer) ....4 reels

Variety Films Corporation
My Country First.....6 reels
The Pursuing Vengeance.....5 parts

Warner Brothers
Dec.—Robinson Crusoe (Savage) .....5 reels
Jan.—Are Passions Inherited (Dorothy Farley and Wm. Conklin).....7 reels

SHORT SUBJECTS

(Continued from page 604)

Wednesday, January 31, 1917

L-KO—Faking Fakirs (Phil Dunham), 2 C 02129
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 57, 1 Top 02130
BIG U—The Gold Lust (Re-issue), 1 D... 02131

Thursday, February 1, 1917

VICTOR—It's Cheaper to be Married (Babe Sedgwick), 1 C..... 02132
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The War Waif (Allen Holubar and Zoe Rae), 2 D.. 02133
IMP—The Diamond Thieves (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer), Re-issue, 2 D..... 02134

Friday, February 2, 1917

IMP—The Forbidden Game (Edward Hearn), 2 D..... 02135
UNIVERSAL—Screen Magazine, No. 6, 1 Mag. 02136
VICTOR—The Hero of Binko Hill, 1 C.. 02137

Saturday, February 3, 1917

BISON—The Boonton Affair (King Baggot), 2 D..... 02138
JOKER—His Coming Out Party (Gale Henry and Wm. Franey), 1 C..... 02139

Sunday, February 4, 1917

IMP—Diamonds of Destiny (Louise Lovely), 1 D..... 02140
POWERS—Mr. Fuller Pep—His Wife Goes for a Rest (Com. Cart.), and "In North China," as seen by Dr. Dorsey (Ed.), Split Reel..... 02141
IMP—When New York Sleeps (Re-issue), 2 D. 02142
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Silent Feud (6th episode of The Purple Mask), (Francis Ford and Grace Cunard), 2 D. 02143

Vitagraph-V-L-S-E.

Monday, January 1, 1917.

Shanks and Chivalry (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Getaway (Frank Daniels)...1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Second Episode, Royalty at Red Wing).....2 D

Monday, January 8, 1917.

Speed and Spunk (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Love Insurance (Frank Daniels) .....1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Third Episode, The Sealed Packet) .....2 D.

Monday, January 15, 1917.

Bullies and Bullets (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks, The Cobbler (Frank Daniels.)1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Fourth Episode, The Honorable Mr. Oxenham).....2 D

Monday, January 22, 1917.

Jolts and Jewelry (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks, The Widow (Frank Daniels) 1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Fifth Episode, Carriage Call No. 101).....2 D

Monday, January 29, 1917.

Big Bluffs and Bowling Ball (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest).....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Baby (Frank Daniels).....1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Sixth Episode, Human Flotsam) .....2 D

Monday, February 5, 1917.

Somewhere in Any Place (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest).....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels)...1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Seventh Episode, The Ghost Ship).....2 D

LATE NEWS

Enid Bennett to Be Presented by Ince

Debut of Australian Beauty Will Be Made in "Princess of the Dark"—To Be Followed by Other Subjects Now in Preparation

THAT he soon will lift the curtain and reveal for the first time on the screen his new star, Enid Bennett, was the announcement made, this week, by Thomas H. Ince from his studios in California. The announcement came, as part of a general outline, given by Ince to MOTION PICTURE NEWS, of his plans for the current year.

Miss Bennett will make her initlal appearance in a play by Lanier Bartlet, entitled "Princess of the Dark," and her work, according to Ince, will meet with instant approval. Her role is that of a blind girl, and she has invested it, Ince declares, with a rare charm that will place her at once among the most fascinating of screen stars.

"Princess of the Dark" is an enchanting tale of the Virginia hills, chronicling the joys and sorrows of a little, blind waif. It is rich in romance, with here and there an intense dramatic situation, and a profusion of magnificent settings to lend beauty to the production. It was selected to be Miss Bennett's introductory vehicle, because of its adaptability to her peculiar talents.

Miss Bennet was engaged by Ince, during the producer's visit to New York last summer. She was not "discovered"; she already had "arrived," when Ince first laid eyes on her. But she had not attained stardom. Ince, however, studied her work on the legitimate stage, and, after careful reflection, concluded that a remarkably successful career awaited her in the field of the motion picture. So, he persuaded her to abandon the footlights; and a week later, the radiant little star-to-be left for the Ince studios, where she immediately went to work before the camera, under the direction of Charles Miller. She is, at present, in New York, on a brief vacation, but shortly will return to the coast to resume her appearances.

"I truly think," declared Ince, in discussing his new star, "that Miss Bennett will win intimate favor with the American public. She is an actress of rare merit, and in addition to this asset she possesses beauty, grace and personality. Her performances of the role of the blind girl in "Princess of the Dark" was a revelation to me. Of course, I calculated that she would do well in the difficult part, but her portrayal far exceeded my expectations."

The release of the Bennett vehicle will be the first of a series of big productions that have been in the making for the past few months. These, of course, include subjects which will offer Ince's other stars, each at the head of a strong cast.

"We have been working harder and spending more money recently," continued Ince, "than at any other time during the past year and a half. Our stars—William S. Hart, Dorothy Dalton, Charles Ray, Bessie Barriscale, William Desmond, Louise Glaum and Clara Williams, in addition to Miss Bennett—all are under contract to appear exclusively under my supervision, and we have been bending every effort to make our 1917 output of plays more appealing than ever. The scenario bureau has prepared manuscripts that fit, each of them, a particular player and the ranks of the stock players have been augmented to give each star splendid support.

Enid Bennett, Ince's New Star

"We are ready to supply Hart with some virile stories, bigger in thought, I think, than any of his past successes. The first of these will be 'The Gun-Fighter,' and it will be followed by other strong subjects. For our two other male stars, William Desmond and Charles Ray, we are also planning great things. It is my intention to continue Desmond in stories of a romantic interest, for those are what he is best liked in; while Ray will be offered in the type of play, in which he has scored most of his triumphs, with an occasional comedy-drama to relieve the monotony of sameness. For Miss Bennett, Miss Dalton, Miss Barriscale, Miss Williams and Miss Glaum we are clearing our stages for action, and each is looking forward to a busy year."

That Ince means to eclipse, if possible, his achievements of 1916, with his 1917 productions, is apparent from the signs of unusual activity at both the Inceville and Culver City studios. The forces of the production department, under the direction of Art Director Robert Brunton, have been extensively increased, in order to cope with the task of completing each subject on schedule time; while the authorial staff is combing the country for available material to be employed when the present stock of plays shall have become exhausted.

"Purity" Excites Ire of Cleveland Mayor

"Purity" the Audrey Munson picture which was shown for two weeks at the Strand, Cleveland, created quite a sensation, and incidentally had some free advertising. Following the announcement that Miss Munson appeared in the picture clothed only in the proverbial smile and hairpin, Chief-of-Police Rowe sent Police Sergeant Carey to view the film.

"There was nothing objectionable in the picture, and it wasn't interfered with," Rowe said. "My understanding is that police are not to stop the showing of pictures carrying the license of the state board of censors."

Nevertheless, after hearing the chief's report, Mayor Davis has ruled that this production will be the last motion picture exhibited in Cleveland in which nude women are shown, at least as long as he is mayor.

Carey's written report recited that the picture violated no laws or ordinances, but his verbal report to the mayor caused the decision to bar pictures of a similar nature in future.

As long as "Purity" has been passed by the Ohio censor board, and Manager Adler booked it in good faith, the mayor said he would not interfere with this run of the production, but that the ban is on in the future.

Brandon Called to Mutual Home Office

B. J. Brandon of the Mutual office, in Boston, has been recalled to the home offices in Chicago, where he will assume a responsible position. Mr. Brandon was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the members of the Screen Club at the Iroquois Hotel, on Tuesday, January 9, at which time he was presented a handsome amethyst ring. G. K. Christoffers, manager of the Buffalo Mutual offices, made the presentation speech. Mr. Brandon has been a member of the board of governors of the Buffalo Screen Club ever since its organization and his leaving town is regretted by not only the club, but all exhibitors in Western New York.

Second Buffalo Ball Set for 29th

The Buffalo Screen Club holds its second annual ball Monday evening, January 29, with Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Muriel Ostriche and other screen stars as the guests of honor. The event will be held at Elmwood Music Hall. The Buffalo Park band and an orchestra of forty musicians under the direction of Joseph A. Ball, director of the Shea's theatre orchestra, will furnish the music. The hall decorations will be most elaborate and will be carried out in an Oriental scheme.

A supper will be served at midnight and on Sunday the Screen Club will entertain the visiting stars with a trip to Niagara Falls and a supper at the Iroquois hotel in the evening.

Visiting delegations of "fans" will attend from Rochester, the Tonawandas, the Falls, and other Western New York towns. All the boxes have been sold, and it is expected that one will be occupied by Mayor Fuhrmann, and Commissioners Kreinheder, Hill, Heald and Malone.

Gaumonts for Jan. 28

The Gaumont laboratories will issue for the week of January 28, "Reel Life" No. 39, the Mutual Film Magazine. It contains pictures of a mobile X-Ray apparatus transferred from point to point by the French on the western battle front where hospitals are hastily set up. Butterflies used for decorative purposes by artistic designers are shown in the various stages of preparation. A third section shows the method of extracting salt from sea water. The reel concludes with a pictorial exposition of the hula-hula as danced by a native to the accompaniment of native ukulele players on the beach at Weikiki.

The second reel of the week is "Tours Around the World," No. 13. It takes spectators to Teheran, Persia, the Coast Resorts of Normandy—Etretat, Honflour and Trouville, and winter scenes and sports in the Vosges Mountains. It is released January 30.

"See America First," No. 73, released January 31, shows San Diego, Cal. The city is remarkably interesting from a pictorial point of view because here was established the first of the California Missions, here is the Theosophical Institution, the leading resort hotel of southern California, and an exposition which kept open for two years. On the same reel is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic, "Never Again."

The fourth single-reel of the week is The Mutual Weekly, made by Gaumont.

"Mask" Draws Well in Capital City

The initial episode of "The Purple Mask" serial made its appearance at the Maryland, Washington, D. C., playing to capacity during the entire day. The Maryland is a down-town house of short subjects. Manager Johnson has been able to maintain its patronage while many of his competitors have entered the feature field. "The Purple Mask" promises to be a big drawing card during its run at the Maryland, which makes daily changes of program.

Stability of Market Is Spanuth's Aim

Plans of New Commonwealth Corporation Are Discussed by Originator of Mutual Idea

"A STABLE, guaranteed market for the producer, an equitable arrangement for exhibitors, and mutual interests for both—that is the Commonwealth aim," said H. A. Spanuth, originator of that corporation in an interview outlining his plans to a representative of Motion Picture News last week.

"We are not seeking a monopoly through supplying all the productions booked by exhibitors interested in our proposition," he continued. "It is a stable market for the productions which we do make, and for the pictures of outside manufacturers that we will handle which is our desire. Because of this guaranteed market our exhibitor will be able to book the productions without paying the excessive overhead of faulty and uncertain distribution methods. In addition he is sharing in the profits. But even under those conditions it is not our aim to force the exhibitors mutually interested in the organization to take each of our releases. It is our aim to make each production so good that our share-holding exhibitors, who have absolute territorial guarantees, will want to book each picture."

Friends of H. A. Spanuth, the originator of the Commonwealth idea, as applied to the picture field, point to his record in the film industry since the days of the Patents Company as evidence of his ability to put over a project of this sort. He was actively connected with the early moves of the independents, when in 1912 he produced the first American-made five reel drama, "Oliver Twist," with Nat Goodwin in the leading role. It was with this picture that Spanuth is said to have originated the State rights' selling plan.

Of recent years Mr. Spanuth has been active in Chicago, with Alfred Hamburger and the Jones, Linick and Schaefer interests. When asked by a representative of Motion Picture News as to the reception accorded his Commonwealth Corporation, he declared:

"While we are not ready to make a complete announcement yet, I can assure you some surprises when the names of prominent exhibitors in all sections who have signified their willingness to join us, are announced. Our coming ads will contain full information, but for the present we are proceeding slowly and carefully, every film move we make prompted by years of film experience, every business move we make approved by the financial authorities who are interested with us."

W. K. Vanderbilt Heads War Films Company

Prominent Men Incorporate to Handle Official British War Films Which Will Be Released Through General Film—Profits for Relief Funds

A new motion picture company has just been organized, to be known as Official War Films, Inc., with Wm. K. Vanderbilt as president, Walter Scott, vice-president; H. P. Davison, treasurer, and Wm. De-Forest Manice, secretary. Other directors are Wm. Sloane, James Logie, Charles Urban, Henry D. Sleeper, and G. McLeod Baynes, chairman of the board.

The object of the company is to raise funds for the American Ambulance Corps and general war relief. Its entire gross profits will be devoted to this work.

The corporation has taken over the rights of the Patriot Film Company for the exhibition in the United States of the Official War Films of the British government, photographed as a part of the permanent records of the War Office. Those films include pictures of the great battle of the Somme, as well as pictures of the manufacture of munitions, the training of Britain's army of 5,000,000 men, the Grand Fleet in the North Sea, etc. The films also include the pictures of American boys at the front, shown at the Strand Theatre.

In addition to the official British war pictures, the new corporation expects to secure control of all the French government war pictures for the United States, and is now negotiating with French officials with that end in view.

Arrangements have been made for the widest possible exhibition of all the pictures now or hereafter controlled by Official War Films, Inc. General Film Company has entered into a contract to distribute the pictures in serial form. Eventually it is proposed to exhibit the films in every motion picture theatre in the country, and the resulting profits will, it is believed, constitute the greatest war relief contribution yet raised in the United States.

The corporation itself is formed on a non-profit basis, ample funds having been raised for its organization and maintenance. Its gross profits will be divided as follows: Fifty per cent to the American Ambulance Field Service in France and fifty per cent to general war relief—preference being given to needy funds rather than to those already in possession of ample resources.

Hammons Off on Trip

E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager of Educationl Film Corporation of America, will soon leave on a ten-day trip. He will visit several exchanges handling educational and scenic subjects. Mr. Hammons has purchased the Ditmars Animal Pictures, which have been playing for the last sixteen weeks at the Strand Theatre, New York City. Mr. Harold Edel of the Strand, will continue to run these pictures, until the whole series has been shown.

On this trip Mr. Hammons will visit some of the largest theatres that have been writing for the Ditmars pictures. The exchanges that Mr. Hammons will visit will be the Feature Film Company, Minneapolis, Metro Picture Service, Chicago and Pittsburgh, Regal Film of Toronto, and the Broadway Film Company of Detroit.

CLASSIFIED

Films Free. Educational films of industry and travel furnished free of charge. National Bureau of Visual Instruction, Washington, D. C.

GOOD PROJECTION IMPOSSIBLE WITHOUT "AMBERLUX" LENS FILTERS. WRITE FOR PARTICULARS. PRICE WITH SLIDE, $3.50. W. D. WARNER, WYANDOTTE BLDG., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Equip your Stage for Vaudeville. Write for Special Offer on Complete Outfit of Scenery and Rigging. BOON SCENIC COMPANY, Hicksville, Ohio.

SCENARIOS WANTED
High class dramatic comedies one-reel scenarios, especially adapted to Atlantic City and seashore locations. No slap stick wanted. Acme Moving Picture Producing Company, 429 Guarantee Trust Building, Atlantic City, N. J.

FOR SALE—Pathe's Life of Christ in colors (4 reels), Pathe's Alababa in colors (1 reel), The Fall of Troy (2 reels), The Last Days of Pompeii (1 reel), and many other Pathe Films in colors, with a number of Pathe Dramas and Stories All in good condition. Also steel Film Safe, capacity 100 reels. Address Private Exhibitor, care Motion Picture News, 729 Seventh Ave., New York City.

For Sale—Hollywood (Cal.) Motion Picture Producing Plant. Now being conducted as commercial laboratory and studio paying 20 per cent per annum on investment. Has newly equipped laboratories, 50 x 60 indoor stage, 102 x 126 exterior stage, dressing rooms, scene darks, property rooms, carpenter and paint shop, etc. Everything for making pictures is in the plant. All, including real estate, must be sold at once to close an estate. Address Motion Picture News, 429 So. Figueroa street, Los Angeles, Cal.

NEW SYSTEM
Automatic Mechanical Developing of Motion Picture Film. Will Revolutionize the Motion Picture Industry. Company now offers A Limited Amount of Stock at Par.
Address Box 18
c/o MOTION PICTURE NEWS
729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City

STUDIO LIGHT
Cooper Hewitt Electric Company
EIGHTH & GRAND STREETS, HOBOKEN, N. J.

Star Carbons
JONES & CAMMACK
Sole Distributors for the U. S.
12 Bridge Street New York

PICTURE THEATRE BUYERS!
If you are looking for a theatre in So. California, large or small, City, Country or Beaches, Correspond with
LEO RYAN, 730 S. Olive St.
Los Angeles, California

CAILLE
Ticket Office Equipments
Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.
Caille Bros. Co., 1003 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

TABLE OF CONTENTS

THE STARS AND THE DAILY CHANGE (W. A. JOHNSTON) 537
GRIFFITH HEADS CENSOR FIGHT, BY N. A. M. P. I. 539
SUNDAY CLOSING AND STATE TAX TO BECOME ONE ISSUE 541
NEW YORK'S FOUR NEW THEATRES WILL SEAT 40,000 543

Famous Appoints Foreign Representative 540
"Daughter of the Gods" Opens in Boston 540
Horsley to Release Wilbur Series Through Mutual 541
Arbuckle to Act and Direct for Paramount 541
Salisbury Is Back with More Nature Studies 542
"Star" to Show "Snow White" to 200,000 543
Problems of State Rights Booking 544
Triangle Situation More Befogged Than Ever 545
"Heart Strings" Is Red Feather for 22nd 555
Paramount Offers Three Stars Week of 22nd 557
Will See Three Attractive Bluebird Stars 558
"A Place in the Sun" Expresses World's Heart-Throbs 559
Latest Pickford in 100 First-Run Houses 560
Pantages Books "Kingdom" for First Run 561
Mary Fuller to Appear with Lou-Tellegen 562
Allan Dwan Is Signed to Direct Goldwyn Pictures 562
Fox Celebrates Completion of First Year on West Coast 563
Life of "Buffalo Bill" in an Essanay 564
Large Newspaper Advertising for "Patria" 571
Marie Cahill is a Mutual Star 572
Increased Demand for World-Brady Pictures 573
Kalem Plans Concentration on West Coast 574
Broadway Cast for Pickford Subject 574
Flag Making by Uncle Sam in "U" Magazine 575
Sennett Announces Keystone Titles for February 575
"Twenty Thousand Leagues" is Sold in 21 States 576
Schwartz Films, Inc., to Handle Wilcox Films in Mid-West 577
Exchanges Opened to Supply South and West 578
Gookin Publishes Snappy "V" House Organ 581
Milwaukee Turns to "News" for News 583
Banner Xmas Business in Nebraska and Iowa 584
Picture Theatres at Atlantic City Thrive 585
Alaska Film Well Received in Los Angeles 586
Film Men Join Kansas Ad Club 586
Myers Forms Encore Pictures Corporation 587
How a Star Was Plucked from the Sky 597
Ince to Present Enid Bennett 607
W. K. Vanderbilt Heads War Films Company 607
Stability is Spanuth's Aim 607

DEPARTMENTS

With the Exhibitor (Exhibitor's Personals) 547
Live Wire Exhibitors 549
The Eastern Studios 550
In and Out of West Coast Studios 551
Advance Offerings of the Program 556
In the State Rights Field 576
Newsy Reports from All Sections 583
How Pictures Are Booking 560
Among the Exchanges 578
Live News from the Producers 562
Just for Fun (In and Out of Town) 582

ACCESSORY NEWS SECTION

Editorial 611
Projection 612
The Camera 619
Music and the Picture 623
Building and Furnishing 626
Directory of New Theatres 628

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Barrier, The" (Rex Beach Pictures Company) 588
"Betty to the Rescue" (Lasky) 594
"Bitter Truth" (Fox) 595
"Butterfly Girl, The" (Fisher-Mutual) 592
"Crab, The" (Tiangle-Ince) 593
"Ghost of Fear The" (American-Mutual) 591
"Gilded Youth, The" (American-Mutual) 595
"Girl Who Can Cook, The" (Star-Mutual) 595
"God's Crucible" (Bluebird) 596
"God of Little Children" (Apollo-Art Drama) 594
"Gold Rush, The" (Signal-Mutual) 591
"Happiness of Three Women, The" (Morosco) 588
"Her Right to Live" (Vitagraph-Blue Ribbon) 592
"Heart Strings" (Red Feather-Universal) 593
"Homesteaders' Feud" (Kalem) 593
"Imaga Makers" (Thanhouser-Pathe) 592
"Infidelity" (Erbograph-Art Dramas) 595
"Panthea" (Selznick-Schenck) 591
"Princess of Patches, The" (Selig-K-E-S-E) 596
"White Raven, The" (Metro) 596

THEATRE AND EXCHANGE MAILING LIST SERVICE
We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. N96

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.
80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK
Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO
Phone, 2003 Randolph
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

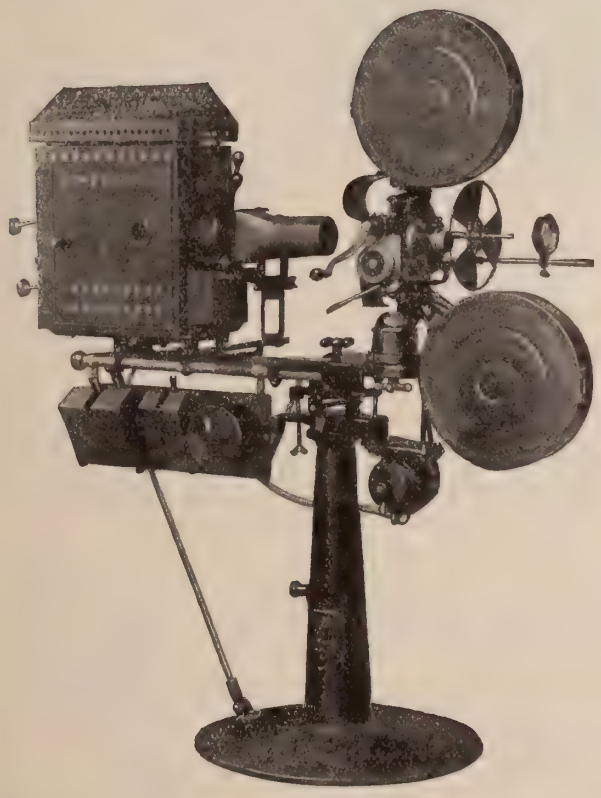
"A first-class Film Service free from oil and grime cannot be secured from an Exchange without the use of the REX FILM RENOVATOR. Columbus, Ohio."

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
432 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

BIG BARGAINS
ALL MAKES OF PROJECTION MACHINES
Don't miss this opportunity. Send today for catalogue.
CROWN MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES
217 West 42nd Street New York City

Expert Cameramen Furnished
CINEMA CAMERA CLUB
1006 Times Bldg. Phone 6558 Bryant

DUPLEX Rewinder
1000-Foot Flange
Complete Laboratory Equipment
DUPLEX MACHINE CO. (Incorporated)
316-318 75th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.



Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS DEVOTED TO THE CONSTRUCTION, EQUIPMENT AND OPERATION OF THEATRE, EXCHANGE AND STUDIO

MOTIOGRAPH PURCHASERS

ARE INSURED

IN $ FOR $ VALUE

The Improved Model Motiograph

IN PERFORMANCE

It can boast of clear, steady pictures on long or short throw,—definition is unexcelled.

IN SIMPLICITY

With the improved condenser mount arranged with screw adjustment for focusing and either condenser being removable by slight turn of handle; with gear cover on hinges so operator can oil gears while in operation and other improvements, the MOTIOGRAPH is noted for its simplicity.

LOW MAINTENANCE COST

With the high grade material used in every part of the machine the cost of up-keep is reduced to a minimum.

SERVICE

With the One Year Guarantee, Simplicity of operation and Low Cost of Up-keep (WHICH INSURES YOU A MACHINE READY TO OPERATE AT ALL TIMES) there should be no doubt in your mind but what the MOTIOGRAPH will give you greater value per dollar than any other projector.

Write for literature

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.

568 W. Randolph St. CHICAGO, ILL.

Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

INCE STUDIOS

CULVER CITY, CAL.

(Continued from page 4244)

aid" outfits for the ready alleviation of possible injuries to employes.

Then follows the receiving depot. This is a structure measuring 48 by 50 feet and is designed for the invoicing of all goods delivered for any of the departments. Several times every day automobile trucks drive up to this depot and there deposit consignments of merchandise, which, after being [illegible] tematically chec[illegible] to the custody of their res[illegible] partments.

A short dist[illegible] from the receiving depot is the carpenter shop. This measures 50 by 190 feet and, when in operation, it provides one of the most awe-inspiring sights of the place. Humming with activity from sunrise to sundown, its giant machine saws and long work-benches, presided over by master-carpenters, constantly are turning out the finished settings daily required on the stages. In a loft at one end of the building are employed a staff of wood-carvers, whose rare skill is responsible for the pretentious decorative effects in many of the Ince settings.

The last in the line of buildings fringing the eastern boundary of the plant is the garage. This measures 50 by 90 feet and houses the trucks and "location" automobiles used daily by the company. This is fitted with all devices necessary for a machine shop, where almost every "ailment" of an automobile or truck may be remedied. On the outside of the building is a 500-gallon underground tank for gasoline equipped with Bowser automatic measuring pump, similar to those used at all gasoline stations. The number of cars needed by the company require of expert mechanics for their proper care. [illegible] automo[illegible] are included in the equip-and creating a pool twelve inches deep on top.

Business Manager A. H. Allen

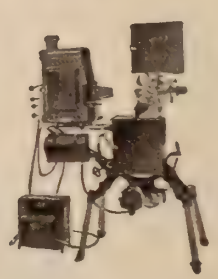
Just beyond the film vault is the varied arts building. This is two stories in height and measures 31 by 90 feet. On the ground floor are located two projecting rooms and a department wherein the tinting of the sample positive is done. In this are installed three 6A and one 6B Power's Cameragraphs, supplied to Mr. Ince by the Pacific Amusement Company, who have been handling these machines for a considerable time. The upper floor is devoted to the cutting and assembling rooms, sub-title art work rooms and "still" department, and on the roof is a thoroughly-equipped portrait gallery for publicity purposes.

Even greater pains have been taken to secure absolute fire protection for this building. There are five rooms for film cutting. Each is fitted with fire shutters furnished by the Variety Manufacturing Company, of Chicago. In case of fire, a shutter drops on both sides of the door, and over the windows. At the same time a ventilating flue is opened. Such equipment assures that in case fire in one cutting room starts, no other portion of the building will be injured in the least. The Varied Arts building is also fitted with water pipes extending on all sides which gives the same protection as for the film vault.

Next, in alignment with the Varied Arts building, is the commissary. This measures 100 by 60 feet and is capable of accommodating four hundred persons at a sitting. The food is prepared by culinary experts and served at cost to the employes. In a corner of this structure is a barber-shop and manicure-parlor for the convenience of the players. It has an elegant soda-fountain and well-equipped cigar-stand.



Horizontal to the dres[illegible] building and bi[illegible]k. This meas[illegible]ures [illegible]

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET

NEW YORK, N. Y.

Construction, Equipment and Operation

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Everything for Theatre, Exchange and Studio

THE SUPPLY MAN TALKS

WE are pleased to be able to report progress. We have heard favorably from several of the leading supply houses in reply to our editorial which appeared on this page last week. We might even go further and say that we have not had a single comeback which was not in favor of the plan. From the tone of the letters received, and they are from some of the biggest men in the trade, it is evident that the new fields which are being opened by the Motion Picture are about to be sought after by the live wire supply men of the country.

* * *

IN order that all may benefit by the expressions of some of those already heard from, I am quoting from three letters from various parts of the country:

"Answering yours of the 6th. We are always interested in new devices placed on the market and would be glad to have the manufacturers take the matter up with us. We have a nice supply business which is constantly growing.

"In connection with your service department, we are wondering if you could obtain from the ——— instructions for using one of their cameras."

* * *

ANOTHER letter says:

"Your letter of the 6th instant received and contents noted. In reply would say that the people who are selling motion picture cameras at the present time seem to be photograph supply dealers. We presume that the reason why the people interested in Motion Picture cameras go to them is because they sell stationary cameras.

* * *

"YOU readily understand that there is quite a difference in service required in connection with Motion Picture cameras than the ordinary Kodak. We know one photograph supply dealer here in the city, who says that he has had so much trouble in this respect with Motion Picture cameras that he does not care about handling them.

"Of course, the trade would have to be worked up by a Motion Picture supply dealer on account of his not being in touch with the amateurs who desire to purchase Motion Picture cameras. We believe, however, that this trade, as well as stereopticon, rightly belongs to the Motion Picture supply dealer.

* * *

WE know there is little chance of working into this line unless the dealer is protected by the manufacturers. That is the paramount issue today of the supply dealer. He will spend all his time and do missionary work in working up sales for a certain article or device and after he has got it started, the manufacturer quotes several other concerns in the city the same discount as he is getting.

The result is that the other fellow, if he can get the same discount, and has no service to offer, in connection with the article or device, will get the price under what the dealer can sell for, as he knows that he must take care of the customer after he is sold."

* * *

ANOTHER man writes:

"Yours of the 6th instant, together with the copy for the article which appeared in your last issue, has been read and carefully noted.

"You are right. Many users of cameras spoil their negatives by having the films light struck before they have been exposed. Furthermore, in many instances the camera boxes or the magazines leak light and the reel requires the attention of an experienced person to guard against troubles of this kind.

* * *

"ONE can hardly imagine a greater annoyance and disappointment to a person using a camera, than to spend a considerable amount of money for film, then to take several scenes of certain subjects or happenings, which can perhaps never be reproduced, and then to take such exposed film to the developer and printer and find that all of the work has been done for nothing, due perhaps to old stock being used, light leakage or similar preventable cause.

* * *

"I DO not know whether or not the average supply house is in a position to handle this business, but no doubt, if the demand would be large enough, such an addition to any supply and equipment house, would be of mutual benefit and profit. I think your article is very timely and the only difficulty seems to be, at the present moment at least, that those selling cameras are so anxious to make a sale, that they neglect to impress upon the user of the camera, if he is not an experienced one, the difficulties which he will meet in loading, developing and having his films printed.

"Your article ought to open up an interesting discussion and line of thought along this line."

* * *

THERE are several points which are worth attention. First —The supply houses are anxious to be put in touch with the goods for the amateur as well as for the theatre.

Second—The photographic dealer is no man to handle Motion Picture goods. They are not to be compared with still cameras in any way, and must be handled separately and by men who know the Motion Picture business.

Third—There is a fine opportunity for building up this business. When this is admitted by men of the standing of those quoted above, there is absolutely no room left for doubt.

* * *

FOURTH—The dealer should be given some kind of protection. This is assured if only the dealer will get out and show the manufacturer that he is capable of taking care of the business.

Fifth—The need that there is for proper care to be taken of the film in loading the camera, as well as in developing and printing, which last should be done in a permanent laboratory and not in a makeshift tank. Therefore the dealer in this respect will act as the agent for the developing plant.

* * *

SIXTH—The need of being honest with the public in selling the goods. They must be told of the difficulties so they will not become discouraged over poor results at first. In other words they must be carefully coached from the start.

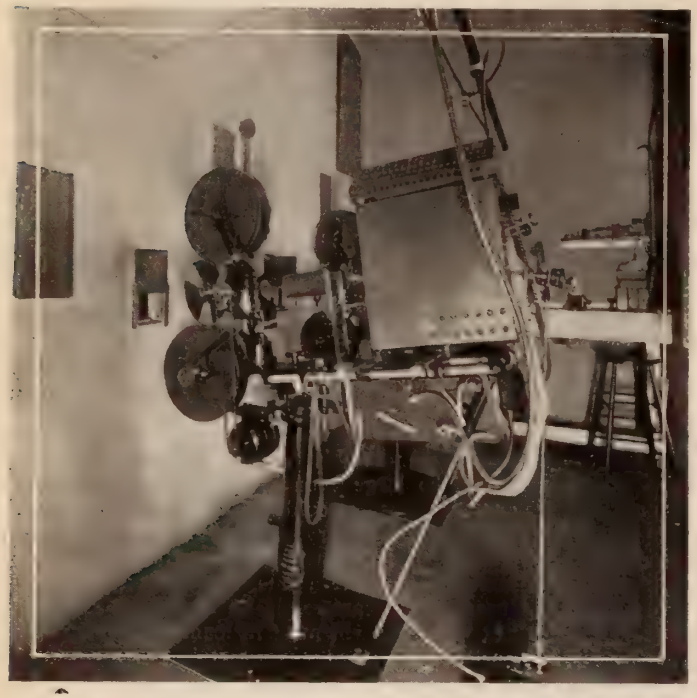
* * *

LOOK up the January 20th issue of the NEWS, read the page corresponding to this, then write us just what your opinion is in the matter. Pick out the difficulties as you see them. Hammer the idea if you want, but give it thought.

E. K. GILLETT.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

EQUIPMENT OPERATING



PROJECTION

By I. G. SHERMAN

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Another Fine Operating Room

THE accompanying illustration is of the operating room of the Strand theatre, Main street, Akron, Ohio. The manager, M. C. Winter, sent in the photograph but forgot to mention the name of the operator or operators. And surely an operator who keeps his operating room in such a condition of cleanliness as shown by the photograph is worthy of some mention.

Projection Booth of the Strand, Akron, Ohio. Motiograph Machine in Use

The theatre, which is 110 by 55 feet, has a seating capacity of 1,200, 850 of which are on the main floor while the balcony takes care of the remaining 350. The equipment consists of two 1916 model Motiographs, motor driven, and the arcs are controlled by Speedco arc controllers. The screen, a Minusa Gold Fibre, is giving great satisfaction, as is the entire equipment. The throw is announced as being 118 feet, which seems to be contradictory to the dimensions of the theatre unless, as I suspect, the operating room is built outside of the theatre proper.

I would call the attention of operators in general to the neatness of this room and the evidence that the operator is one who takes pride in his work and the equipment under his care. Others would do well to emulate his example, and thus prove to their employers that they are "craftsmen" and not "crank pushers."

Bishop Installs New Machines

MANAGER HENRY BISHOP, who conducts the theatre bearing his name, opposite the City Hall, Hoboken, N. J., has just installed in his operating room two of the latest type Powers 6-B projectors with motor drive and special Gundlach lenses. The equipment was supplied by the Picture Theatre Equipment Company, New York City.

Mr. Bishop was one of the first exhibitors in Hudson County to take the business of exhibiting motion pictures seriously, and since opening his theatre to the lovers of the silent drama nearly four years ago, he has by constant attention to every little deail won a clientele of steady patrons to his theatre which is proof that the public appreciate his efforts in their behalf. Manager Bishop claims that he has lost only one patron since his theatre opened, he died—the patron.

The operators Louis Ulffers and Frank Mauris, both members of L. U. 384, I. A. T. S. E. are putting over a really good picture which might be improved to some extent by the installation of arc controllers, which is found in nearly every up-to-date theatre at present. A progressive manager such as Mr. Bishop cannot afford to let his competitor beat him to it in the installation of the latest improvements, which not only lessen the burden of the and enable him to give more attention to projection, but insures the patrons of always seeing a high class show at Bishop's.

Bell & Howell Transformer for Two Machines

Harry J. Spingarn, Washington, N. C.: Is it possible to connect a Bell and Howell transformer so that I may use it on both machines? If it can be done I would appreciate your kindness very much if you would tell me how. I am using 110 volt, 60 cycle, alternating current. Have a rheostat on one machine and the transformer on the other, but the transformer gives the best results.

Answer: Naturally, you would have better results with the transformer than with a rheostat, as well as effecting a great saving in current. This fact alone should be enough to recommend your employer to purchase another transformer so that each projecting machine would have its own. This would allow you to dissolve your pictures one into the other with good results. This can be done, I admit, with one transformer by "stealing" the arc, but the results are not as good as where two are used.

The method of connecting is to bring the two line wires leading into the operating room to the line side of the transformer, the wires leading to the lamp side may be connected to the center poles of a double pole single throw switch, and the machine leads connected one on each end of this switch, or the switch may be connected in multiple for the purpose of stealing the arc. You must remember, though, that you cannot burn both arcs at the same time when this connection is used, for when you bring the carbons together on the idle lamp this immediately puts out the light of the arc that is working.

A little practice will enable you to steal the light in such a manner as to be hardly noticeable on the screen, but, I repeat, it is the better policy to have a transformer for each machine.

The Fort Wayne Compensarc

J. R. B., Angola, Ind.: Can you give me a brief diagram of the construction of the Ft. Wayne Compensarc, A. C. to A. C.? Is it a transformer or a reactance?

Answer: A description seems unnecessary, as a transformer is generally made up of two coils insulated from each other, one of these coils being called the primary, the other the secondary. The transformer, such as used in the operating room and to which class belong the Economizer, Inductor and Compensarc, are slightly different in construction, as the windings are not insulated from each other; the secondary winding becoming a part of the primary winding, thus the transforming action is more efficient than that obtained with a straight transformer.

The Type A Alternating Current Compensarc is a transformer and not a reactance.

In the case of a choke-coil, which is a reactance coil the choking effect of the transformer is obtained, but there is no difference in the amperage. The amperage taken from the secondary side will be the same as on the primary side, while the voltage will vary. In the compensarc, which might be termed a step-down transformer, you are enabled to decrease the voltage and increase the amperage.

In this way it is possible to use double the amperage at the arc which you are taking from the line, while with a reactance coil the same amount of current used at the arc would have to be taken from the line.

I am writing the General Electric Company, Ft. Wayne, Ind., to send you complete diagram of this device which will give you details of construction and method of wiring.

Commutator Brushes Spark

A. J. K., Akron, Ohio: Have been annoyed lately by the sparking of the brushes on my motor-generator set. Can you tell me the cause of this, and also what to do to stop it?

Answer: Sparking at the brushes may be due to several causes. The brushes or commutator may have become dirty. The brushes may not be making proper contact with the commutator, caused by not enough tension on the springs holding them in place.

The brushes may be stuck in the brush holder, or the commutator may have become worn too thin; this latter seems to be improbable, though, so I will try and give you the remedy to be applied to the faults first outlined. If the brushes and commutator have become dirty, which might have some effect upon the generator picking up its load at starting, and which will give an unsteady arc, the brushes should be taken from their holders and cleaned with fine sandpaper, then put back in the holder, and with a strip of sandpaper on the commutator, and with the sand side against the brush, pull it back and forth a few times until a new surface has been ground which will fit the curve of the commutator.

After you have done this, remove the brushes again and proceed to clean the commutator itself. This can be done by using a small brush stiff enough to remove any particles of carbon or graphite which may stick to the surface of the commutator. Do not use a brush that is stiff enough to injure the surface of the commutator. After you have removed this surface dirt, hold a piece of fine sandpaper on the commutator while it is revolving; then when you have the surface perfectly clean put a few drops of light oil or vaseline on a cloth and hold this cloth against the commutator while running. Be very careful not to get too much oil on the commutator.

Now, put back the brushes, being sure to notice whether the tension is as it should be. The tension should only be sufficient to insure its making perfect contact with the commutator. If the springs are too strong the brushes will cause unnecessary wear to the commutator and themselves. The possibility of the brushes sticking in the holders has been eliminated if you carried out the the method of cleaning outlined. Remember that DIRT causes more than fifty per cent. of the operator's troubles. Avoid it.

Film Jumps

A. W. M., Missouri: What is the reason of the film jumping? I never had this trouble until lately, and it sure is getting my goat. My machines are in first-class condition, so I know it cannot be them. Am anxiously awaiting your answer.

Answer: Here it is—the answer. While you did not state the direction in which the film "jumps," I take it that it has an up and down motion on the screen; this may be due to several causes, among them the following: The sprocket holes may have become shrunken; this sometimes happens when a film becomes old and dry; sprocket holes may have become worn or stretched through too much tension at the aperture; or it may be due to the method of perforating (which is doubtful), or else the camera may have had some lost motion. The above named reasons should contain the answer to your question if—and there's the rub, that if means this: If your machines are in first-class condition.

It is quite possible that your machines have badly worn intermittent sprocket teeth, or the intermittent movement may have become loose, which would cause more or less of a jump. If the jump occurs on both machines, you may be right in making the claim you do, and your trouble lies in the reasons first given; but if it only happens on one machine, then the trouble is there, and you should examine the teeth of the sprocket with a small magnifying glass to see that they have not become undercut; if they have, put in a new one at once; also be sure that there is no great amount of play in the intermittent sprocket shaft.

Condensers for Motiograph

H. J. M., Rochester, N. Y.: Would like to have you inform me through the department the correct condenser combination to use with a Motiograph machine, where the throw is 60 feet. How far should they be spaced, and will Mensicus Bi-Convex be better for me to use than the regular plano condenser?

Answer: Again let me call attention to the necessity of inquirers sending all the data possible when asking for information. You omitted to inform me the size of the picture being projected; or, in other words, the equivalent focus of the projection lens. But, presuming that you are using a lens of four-inch E.F., it seems that two 6½-inch condensers would do you very nicely.

They should be placed in the mount in such a manner as to have the concave sides almost touching, never more than three-sixteenths of an inch apart. The distance from condensers to aperture can only be determined by experimenting with the film gate open and your arc with a perfect crater, so that you can observe the light on the screen, having the spot just large enough to cover the aperture. A few experiments will enable you to determine the relative positions of the aperture and the arc with regard to the condensers.

There is no doubt but what the mensicus bi-convex would be a great improvement, but you must remember when ordering to specify that the focus of the combination should be equal to two 6½-inch plano convex spaced in their mount as per above instructions.

Wants to Become an Expert

W. E. G., Manning, S. C.: I have had about four years' experience as a motion picture operator and am desirous of becoming an expert. That is my reason for writing you: to find out the best plan for me to pursue. Would it be to my advantage to join the operators' union? My experience has been chiefly with the Edison and Powers machines; my knowledge of electrical appliances (rectifiers, motor generators, etc.) is very limited.

Do you think I could pass the union's examination with this knowledge? I am a hard worker and put all my energy in the business, and if you can tell me any way to further my knowledge so as to become a union man (if the union is beneficial) I would appreciate it very much.

Answer: Yours is a rather peculiar letter to answer, and I am going to try and answer it so as not to hurt your feelings. The "four years of experience" which you have had should be of great help to you if in those four years you have delved into the subject of "what makes the wheels go round"; that is, have you made a study of your work; have you tried to experiment in any way that would further your knowledge? The fact that you are a hard worker is greatly in your favor, but that will not help you as far as the union is concerned.

They insist that a man must have sufficient knowledge to pass their examination, and in a majority of the locals that examination means something, for it is the only safeguard the union has, and when a man is sent on the job from the union headquarters it is a guarantee to the exhibitor that he is getting a high-class man, one who can meet any emergency and who is able to handle any equipment.

The union undoubtedly would be beneficial to you or any other operator, for whether you are a member or not you are reaping the benefits of what the organization has done for operators. Were it not for the unions the laboring man would have a hard row to hoe in trying to make both ends meet. My suggestion to you would be to get a set of Hawkin's Electrical Guides, and study up on electrical action and its application to the motion picture projector. In the mean time join the local nearest you if you can, and by an exchange of opinions and general discussion you will get the benefit of the experience of others and thus add to your own knowledge. The key to success in this game, perhaps more than any other, is study, study, STUDY.

Generator Starts Poorly

H. B. J., New York State: Have been having trouble with my motor generator lately and am writing to ask you if you can help me.. The generator refuses to start at times, and I have put more tension on the brushes which has helped some, but would be glad if you could suggest anything.

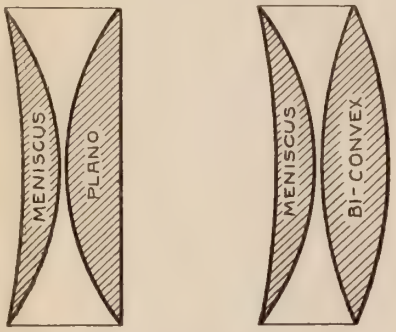
Answer: The refusal of your generator to generate may be due to a number of causes, possibly the loosening or dirtying of one or more of the electric connections; the partial demagnetisation of the field as a result of a sudden heavy overload; or too much resistance across the shunt field when starting up.

The best way would be to start at the beginning and give the commutator a good polishing with fine sandpaper held down on a wooden block shaped to the curvature of the commutator's circumference. When the segments are thoroughly smoothed and polished go over the faces of the brushes lightly and rub off the surface which has become polished in order to dislodge any grit or grease which may have found its way there by accident.

CARBONS
SPEER BRAND

FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY



½x12 Solid	$3.75 per	100
5/8x12 Cored	5.00 "	100
¾x12 Cored	7.00 "	100

Write for prices on case lots
TERMS—CASH WITH ORDER
No Carbons sent C. O. D.

We handle everything for the theatre—Write for catalog

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO.
35 GRAND RIVER AVE., EAST DETROIT, MICH. OR 608 OLIVE ST. ST. LOUIS, MO.

SCIENTIFICALLY PERFECT CONDENSERS HAVE NEVER BEEN PRODUCED

Projection optics still present many problems that may in time be solved, but in the meantime no better or clearer condensers can be found than FULCO IMPORTED

PLANO — MENISCUS — BI-CONVEX

E. E. FULTON CO.
156 W. Lake St.. Chicago

FULCO

The ATMOSPHERIC Screen

THE SCREEN OF A THOUSAND CHARMS
Pictures That Live
ATMOSPHERIC SCREEN CO., Inc.
220 West 42nd St. New York

MOTION PICTURE MACHINES
Power—Simplex—Baird
HALLBERG'S 20th Century Motor Generators
MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens
SANIZONE Deodorants, the perfect perfume for Motion Picture and all Theatres
WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS
Ask for Catalogs
Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Examine all connections, after which let down the brushes, start up, at the same time regulating the speed so that it is slightly above normal, and cut out the shunt resistance. The generator will now almost certainly excite, after which you may advance the shunt resistance and reduce the speed to normal. It would be a good plan to let the generator run on a rather light load for an hour or so, so as to give the field a chance to settle down again in case it should be suffering from a recent accidental overload.

The Best Thing

H. L. L., Sorel, P. Q., Canada: Please tell me what is the best thing to be used to obtain a good light on 120 volts, 30 cycle current? Eighty feet throw; just now using resistance, but results are bad.

Answer: To recommend any one thing as being best would bring a storm of protest from the different manufacturers, but I take it that you are desirous of installing some inexpensive device to take the place of rheostatic resistance. There are a number of these listed in the advertising pages of the NEWS, any one of which will give better results than you are now obtaining, and the cost is very reasonable.

The transformer manufactured by the Bell and Howell Company, Chicago, Ill., is a most practical device, and will require practically no attention after once being installed. In mentioning the throw you failed to give the size of picture, which is equally important.

The Mercury Arc Rectifier is another device that, while more expensive than the general run of transformers, is nevertheless much more inexpensive than the motor generator sets, and with careful handling should perform for an indefinite time, giving very satisfactory results. Would suggest that you write to the people herein mentioned and get further information from them, which lack of space prevents me from giving.

Rothacker Ball Is a Success

THE recent ball, held in the new motion picture studio of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago, has gone down in history as one of the most notable events in Chicago. The studio was beautifully decorated with southern smilax, yellow and red poppies, oak leaves, palms and roses. Music was furnished by Benson's orchestra of fifteen pieces, which was supplemented later in the evening by the famous Chicago Brass Band. At eleven o'clock supper was served by Gaper.

An idea of the size of the studio can be obtained from the fact that there were 468 guests seated at tables around the wall, and yet there was room enough in the center of the floor for dancing. During the evening Josephine Harriman, hostess at the Congress Hotel dances, gave an exhibition in solo dancing. Josephine and Cross, feature players of "Go To It" at the Chicago Princess theatre, were present and danced for the entertainment of the guests.

The guest list included many names of prominence in Chicago society, and well-known film people throughout the country. The following members of the Chicago Grand Opera Company were there: Dalmores, Ruffo, Dua, and Scionti. By the aid of the wonderful lighting system of the studio, many novel and artistic lighting effects were produced during the dances.

(Continued on page 616)

Rothaker Film Company Studio Ball

PRECISION

Means ACCURACY: It is a Strong Factor in SUCCESS.

PRECISION PROJECTION is a SUCCESS Because It is ACCURATE in ALL DETAILS.

PRECISION

Means Money
To YOU

MR. EXHIBITOR

We Justify Our Name Through the Precise Quality of our Work

Simplex

The Peer of All Motion Picture Projectors

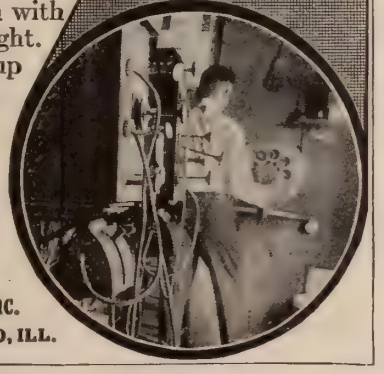
Send for Catalog "N"

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

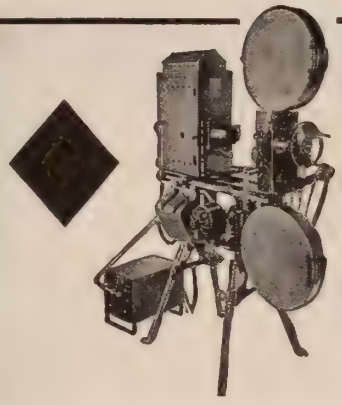
FREE

Your Operator



Don't make him a slave to the feed rod. There's more profitable work for him in the booth. Turn the job of regulating the feed over to the

AUTO-ARC



Never goes wrong. Never freezes the carbons, or lets them burn apart. Set it once is all. It keeps a perfect arc and floods the screen with a continuous white light. Makes pictures show up clear, bright and snappy.

Sent on 30 days' trial. Guaranteed to satisfy you or your money back. Price $67.50, f.o.b. Owensboro, Ky. Price after Feb. 1, $75.00. Write for detailed information.

American Auto-Arc Co., Inc.

37 W. Van Buren St. CHICAGO, ILL.

The Invaluable
Diamond of Projectors
The MASTER
1917
MODEL

Put an up-to-date projector—The American Standard new 1917 Master Model—in your booth and forget about ALL projection troubles.

This splendid 1917 Master Model will instantly win the admiration of those exhibitors and operators who see it. They certainly will appreciate the many improvements, from the superior intermittent movement to the added facilities for adjustment of lamp mechanism, and down to the minor meritorious features such as the lamp house floor built above the door level for instant cleaning, etc. Unexcelled performance on the screen results, the operator is left free to focus his attention upon artistic presentation of the film and the exhibitor is relieved from the payment of heavy repair bills.

SPECIAL REQUEST: Write for full particulars at once as well as descriptive matter on the new American Standard mechanical speed control that enables a 1000-ft. reel to be run off as slow as twenty-two minutes or as fast as eight minutes. No electricity, no friction. Successful and positive in action.

American Standard Motion Picture Mach. Co.

110-112 West 40th Street, - - - New York

Do Not Let Your Competitors attract any of your patrons by better illuminated pictures, when a projection lens will enable you to secure the best possible results in illumination.

Marlux

With a Marlux your operator can do justice to the most expensive films, bringing out their full value to the delight of your patrons.

In addition to its optical perfection, the Marlux lens focuses without any possibility of a displacement of the image on the screen, because it is constructed on mechanically correct principles and does not rotate.

See your Dealer or write direct to

CROWN OPTICAL COMPANY

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

"After the Ball"—Rothaker Film Company Studio

(Continued from page 614)

The first of the two photographs, showing the guests at dinner, will give an idea of the enormous set which it is possible to place in the studio. It also shows the number and size of the light tanks which Mr. Rothacker has installed. This is one of the largest of its kind in the country and is one of the prize exhibits of the Cooper-Hewitt Company, manufacturers of the light.

The second photograph shows one end of the studio, before the dinner was laid. It gives a very good idea of the width and depth of the studio and the possibility which it has for enormous interiors.

Mr. Rothacker had one of his cameramen busy taking pictures of the ball, which he says he is going to show each year at this annual affair, which gives promise to be one of the leading annual social functions of the city.

Rabell Resigns from Hallberg

WILLIAM H. RABELL, for four years connected with J. H. Hallberg as sales manager, salesman and projection engineer, has resigned. Mr. Rabell is at the present time devoting his entire attention to personal interests. However, he does not anticipate being outside of the field for very long.

Latest Simplex Installations

B. F. PORTER, supply man and projection engineer of 1482 Broadway, New York City, has furnished the projectors for many of the largest spectacular productions in the film world. Among these are: "The Birth of a Nation," "Civilization," "The Fall of a Nation" and "Intolerance."

Mr. Porter reports that business is improving each day and that the slacking down, which generally occurs during the holiday season, has not affected him the least.

The most recent big installations were in the Strand theatre, Covington, Virginia, where two Type S Simplex machines, with motor drive, were installed; Proctor's Palace, Newark, New Jersey—also two Type S motor drive; the Griswold theatre, Troy, New York—same equipment; and Proctor's Schenectady theatre, and Max Spiegel's Palace theatre, also Schenectady, have each installed two Type S motor driven Simplexes.

The Williamson Brothers of submarine picture fame, operating at the Bahama Islands, have purchased a Simplex projector which they use to entertain the mermaids.

The New York Polyclinic Hospital has installed one Simplex hand-driven for use in their laboratories.

Herman F. Jans of the New Jersey Metro Film Company is using one type B, motor driven machine, in his projection room at Twenty-third street, New York City.

Last but not least the great feature film in which Geraldine Farrar is starred, "Joan the Woman," is being projected by the latest type Simplex projector.

RADIO MAT-SLIDE

PATENT APPLIED FOR

RADIO MAT-SLIDE CO. MAKERS

RADIO MAT-SLIDE
THE PERFECT TYPEWRITER
MAT-SLIDE

Enables the exhibitor to lash clear, crisp typewritten announcements in a minute at a cost of a few cents. Does away with the "sloppy" handwritten slide. "60 words in 60 seconds."

SIMPLE, EFFECTIVE, IMMEDIATE

NEW YORK

For Sale by all Leading Dealers

RadiO Mat-Slides

Box of 50—$1.75

A letter to all at the cost of a letter to one. Typewritten in less than one minute—a cost of a few cents for each RadiO Mat-Slide.

Use your own screen—and RadiO Mat-Slides.
Let your patrons know more of your plans, pictures and your theatre. You should let them know every interesting fact—flash items of news and bits of humor, etc.

For Sale By All Dealers

Accept no substitute—samples free.

RADIO MAT-SLIDE COMPANY, INC.
121 West 42nd Street New York

WHY THROW CARBONS AWAY

When you can save them by using the D & L Carbon Savers. Price each . . . . $1.00 Extra Heavy Weight

Exhibitors Supply Company, 4th Floor, Mallers Bldg. CHICAGO ILL.

Send for special price list of supplies.

A Mushroom and A Toadstool Look Just Alike—

—but what a difference when you eat them.

That's just the way with the Minusa Screens. They look almost like any other screen to anyone but an expert—but, the difference is there in a thousand ways.

Quality of material used—scientific knowledge, plus experience—10 years of it—and the oldest and largest screen building firm in the world stand back of each Minusa Gold Fibre Screen.

Just because someone comes along and offers you a screen that looks "just as good" at a cut price, should be no reason for buying—if you want the best.

Insist upon a "show down"—make them prove what they say.

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"-Perfected.

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY.

2669-99 Morgan Street, St. Louis

SCREENS BUILT BY BRUNS

SPEER "HOLD-ARK"

Negative

CARBONS

THE MOST MODERN ACHIEVEMENT OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY

CONSTRUCTED WITH A HARD CORE AND METAL COATED, HOLD-ARK (LOWER) CARBONS

Permit the use of a smaller carbon in the lower holder—assure a permanent arc—assist in producing a bright, flickerless light—give longer life to the carbons—produce a perfect crater and assist in many ways in eliminating projection troubles.

PROPER COMBINATIONS FOR DIRECT CURRENT.

40- 50 Amperes	5/8 x 12″	Speer Cored Carbon (upper)
	7/16 x 6″	Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
50- 60 Amperes	3/4 x 12″	Speer Cored Carbon (upper)
	7/16 x 6″	Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
60- 80 Amperes	7/8 x 12″	Speer Cored Carbon (upper)
	1/2 x 6″	Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
80-100 Amperes	1 x 12″	Speer Cored Carbon (upper)
	9/16 x 6″	Speer Hold-Ark (lower)

FOR SALE BY THE FOLLOWING DISTRIBUTORS

J. H. Hallberg, 727 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Co., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.
Southern Theatre Equipment Co., 74 Marietta St., Atlanta, Ga.; 1815 Main St., Dallas, Texas.
E. E. Fulton Co., 154 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Kansas City Machine & Supply Co., 1813 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.
G. A. Metcalfe, 117 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.; 1210 Fourth Ave., Seattle, Wash.
The Perkins Electric Co., 322 Craig St., W., Montreal, Canada (Sole Canadian Distributors).
Interocean Film Corporation, 220 W. 42nd St., New York, N. Y. (Sole Export Representatives).

SPEER CARBON COMPANY, St. Marys, Pa.

THE CAMERA

An Improved Formula for Reducing Negatives

IN giving over the Camera Department to laboratory considerations this week, we select as our principal topic an improved formula for use in reducing the density of the image deposits on films (both negative or positive) which, on account of overexposure or overdevelopment, are unsuitable for exhibition or other use.

Considering the matter from a purely cinematographic aspect, we may assume that nothing but negatives are to be subjected to the reducing process, because a reduced film positive is, generally, an abomination and from the standpoint of laboratory efficiency, it will be found cheaper in the long run to reprint any positive strips which are found, upon projection, to appear overexposed.

Before proceeding to examine the competency and chemical constituency of the various mixtures used in negative reduction, we must emphasize one or two elementary points of sensitometry, which, although of vital importance in film processing are unknown to most laboratory experts (so-called) and superintendents, according to our observations.

The first consideration relates to the mistaken idea, so prevalent among those who are entrusted with the development of negatives, that errors of over and underexposure are easily corrected in development. It is our intention to set forth, in a future issue, a description of the principles and practice of sensitometry, but, it is necessary that we anticipate our future article to the extent of suggesting that it was shown long ago, by Hurter and Driffield, that if an overexposed negative is underdeveloped (in an effort to secure satisfactory printing density) the gradations of the negative image are altered, and also, that prolonged development of an underexposed negative results in nothing but an added accumulation of "fog density," and no gradations or details which were not secured at the time of exposure can be conferred upon an underexposed negative by forcing the development.

As mistaken ideas regarding development are commonly entertained, so likewise are erroneous beliefs indulged in concerning the action of reducing baths, and since the makers of negative film stock are constantly striving to improve the quality of negative emulsions as regards tone rendering, we submit the reasonable proposition that the film laboratory should realize, in the finished product, the utmost in results which the film stock is capable of yielding. Under present practice this is not achieved in the case of overdense negatives which are rendered printable by the action of a reducing bath.

It is not our intention to consider all types of reducers in this article, but merely one or two, of representative type, which are commonly used in cinematographic film laboratories. The usual standby of most laboratory superintendents is the Ferricyanide and Hypo or Farmer's reducer, which, being easy to prepare and energetic in action, enjoys great popularity. This bath is open, however, to the serious objection that it acts more rapidly on the shadows (parts having least density) of the negative than on the highlights, and by the time the highlights are sufficiently reduced the gradations of the image are severely altered and the shadow detail is so extensively effaced as to yield, in most cases, a very contrasty image. The only instances in which the Farmer reducer may be competently employed, therefore, are in the case of flat negatives (which are improved by increasing the contrast) or when it is desired to remove a slight veil of fog from the negative by a very brief immersion in the Ferricyanide bath.

Another bath, which, although primarily a bleaching bath, is frequently used as a reducer in the laboratories, is that composed of Potassium Ferricyanide and Potassium Bromide. Although not as yet confirmed by authorities, we are of the opinion that this solution tans the gelatine of the film to some extent in those portions which have been acted upon by light. Our reason for presuming this is of such interesting nature as to warrant relating here: Under our observation rejected cine films were being bleached in a Ferricyanide and Bromide bath, chased in Hypo, and then immersed in a composite dye bath with the idea of converting them into opaque black leader stock. Positive films thus bleached were readily penetrated by the dye solution, but, in numerous instances, negative films so treated were not susceptible to coloration by the dye bath. An examination of several dozen frames of negative film (bearing exposed images of course) revealed an interesting condition. The negative images (produced by the action of light and the developer) were in the transparent condition produced by the bleach bath, while the shadow portions of the images had taken up the dye to some extent, and were, therefore, transformed into dye positives in a manner resembling results produced by the Kodachrome process of color photography. Returning to practical considerations it appears that a reducer compounded with Potassium Ferricyanide and Potassium Bromide exerts the strongest reducing action on the shadow detail (as does the Farmer reducer) and does not well lend itself to the improvement of negatives thus processed.

We have now to consider another class of reducer—that which attacks the highlights (denser portions) of a negative with most vigor, and has only a slight action on the shadows. The representative reducer of this class is the Ammonium Persulphate bath, and since most photographers (and cinematographers) are nowadays striving for soft results, it follows that should reduction be necessary the Ammonium Persulphate bath would produce a more acceptable result than the Farmer reducer, since the action of the Persulphate reducer in attacking the highlights first must necessarily produce a flat instead of a contrasty negative. Briefly stated the procedure when using this bath is as follows: The negative is reduced in a bath of Ammonium Persulphate and water until it has been cut to nearly the desired density, and is then chased in a bath of Sodium Sulphite in order to stop the reducing action which would otherwise continue, to some extent, during the washing of the negative which is the concluding step in the process.

Another reducer sometimes employed in the film laboratories and producing tolerable results, when used with wet film, is the Permanganate reducer, composed of Potassium Permanganate (10 per cent. solution), Sulphuric Acid (10 per cent. solution), and water. After reduction in a Permanganate bath, negatives are quite heavily stained or tinted, and this coloration is removed by immersion in a 10 per cent. Sodium Sulphite bath to which a very slight quantity (about 2 per cent.) of oxalic acid has been added. Considerable trouble is frequently experienced by the average laboratory worker in judging the degree of reduction by the Permanganate solution, on account of the deep color which it imparts to the negative. This renders its use rather hazardous with valuable negatives in the hands of inexperienced workers, such as are frequently employed in film laboratories.

The ideal bath for use in the reduction of overdense negatives would obviously be one which would reduce both the highlights and the shadows at the same rate, which would result, of course, in preserving the integrity of the gradations in the negative. A reducer which can accomplish this is known as a Proportional Reducer, on account of its proportionate action in reducing with the same degree of activity (or nearly so) both highlight and shadow portions of a negative.

During the year 1916 a formula for a reducer said to be proportionate in action was proposed by a Mr. Norman Deck and by reason of the undoubted value of such a reducing bath the subject was investigated by Messrs. Huse and Nietz of the Eastman Research Laboratory. The result of their investigations was published in the form of a communication in the "British Journal of Photography" of October 27, 1916, Page 580-82, and we recommend the perusal of this report by all interested in the subject of correct procedure in reducing cinematographic negatives.

The formula by which Mr. Deck claimed to produce proportional reduction was a combination of Potassium Permanganate and Ammonium Persulphate, the respective actions of which as reducers we have previously considered. When the action of Mr. Deck's proposed reducer was tested, in approved scientific manner, by Messrs. Huse and Nietze, they found that it was indeed capa-

Your Best Laboratory Insurance—use

A. J. Corcoran
TANKS
With the Patented Joint

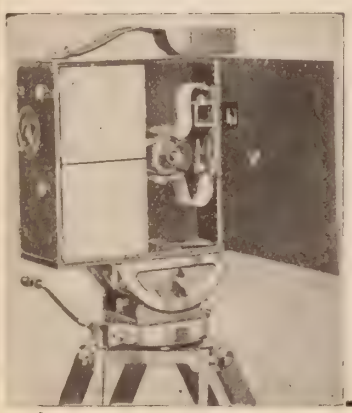
Protect yourself against Loss of Expensive Chemicals

A. J. Corcoran Inc., 9½ John St., N. Y. C.

Search no Farther

EVANS' DEVELOPING and PRINTING SERVICE offers that personal interest factor that you seek.

This, supported by experience and known reputation, can be relied on to secure the results you demand.



EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th St. New York City
Telephone 6881-2 Audubon

GOERZ
Dissolving and Vignetting Devices

CAMERAMEN are being continually called upon to produce new effects. To supply this urgent demand we have recently improved our well known GOERZ MOTION PICTURE DEVICES to meet all up-to-date requirements. We are well equipped to make special devices to order. Send for our latest descriptive matter and ask us for technical or other information. We are at your service.

C. P. Goerz American Optical Co.
317J East 34th Street, New York City

A MESSAGE TO CAMERA MEN

Here is a camera that solves your biggest problem. It is the one camera of which it can be truthfully said, "You Get the Picture and Get Away before the Other Fellow Gets Set Up."

Supreme sturdiness and absolute precision characterize the Universal Camera. Send for catalogue before purchasing a camera. There is no other machine approaching the Universal in quality at double its price. The Universal Tripod, like the camera, is a product of supreme excellence.

Universal Automatic Dissolve Now Ready, price only $35.00.

BURKE & JAMES, INC.
Sole Wholesale Distributors,
Chicago, New York

ble of a more even reducing action on shadows and highlights than was characteristic of any of the formulae generally used in negative reduction.

The characteristic action of Deck's reducer, being mathematically plotted out from the measured densities of the test negatives was found, however, to be not strictly proportional, but as a result of their experiments Messrs Huse and Nietze have evolved a reducing formula which exerts an almost equal action on highlights, half-tones and shadows and so may be claimed a truly Proportional Reducer.

We need not dwell here upon the details of Messrs. Huse and Nietze's improvements on the Deck formula, but we are pleased to present for the attention of all laboratory workers the formula for proportional reduction which Huse and Nietze have set forth in the communication previously referred to:

PROPORTIONAL REDUCER

SOLUTION A

Potassium Permanganate	0.25	gram.
Sulphuric Acid 10 per cent. solution	15	c.c.s.
Water	1,000	c.c.s.

SOLUTION B

Ammonium Persulphate	25	grams.
Water	1,000	c.c.s.

For use take 1 part of A to 3 of B. Both solutions will keep well separately but it is not advisable to mix them until shortly before using. Reduction completed, the negative should be immersed for five minutes in a 1 per cent. solution of Potassium Metabisulphite, followed by a short wash. It has further been determined that the action of this reducer is most even and satisfactory when the film is submitted to the bath in a dry condition, instead of having been previously soaked.

For the sake of authenticity we have published this improved reducing formula just as it appeared in the published communication from the Eastman Research Laboratory, but should any reader desire to experiment on a larger scale, and have any trouble in converting the original formula into larger amounts, we will be pleased to provide the necessary data.

Denny, Signal Company, Invents Laboratory Aid

A VERY useful attachment which will eliminate work in film laboratories, has been perfected by Orrin Denny, superintendent of the Signal Film Corporation laboratory, Los Angeles, and application for patent has been made.

The device consists of a brass spring placed on the top of the end piece of the film racks when the rack is placed in the tank. Claws on this spring hold the rack and film in the developer. Heretofore all laboratories have used a wooden wedge, which was driven down between the rack and the end of the tank to hold the rack in position. This scheme ultimately caused the loosening of the end of the tank, and its final destruction, together with loss of developing fluids.

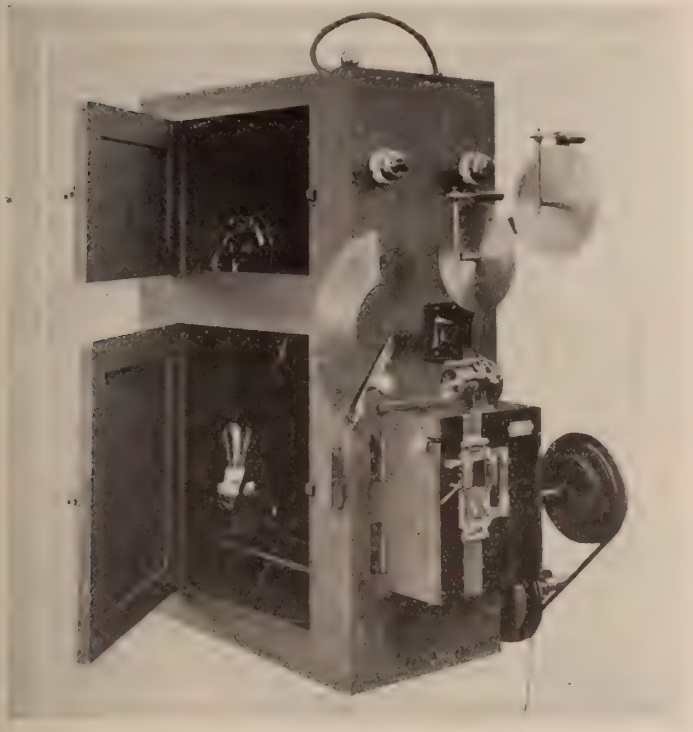
Booklet Illustrates Corcoran Tanks

A. J. CORCORAN, INC., 9½ John street, New York City, has just issued an attractive catalog describing and illustrating Corcoran tanks. In the introduction to this catalog it is stated that when the business was started in 1865 the basic principles adopted were to build the most efficient tanks possible and sell them at fair prices.

A number of tanks of all types are shown together with illustrations of hoops or bands, devices for indicating depth of water in the tank, details of construction, and table giving measurements and capacities. A number of installations are also presented.

In addition, Corcoran improved windmills are shown by means of illustrations. A view of a single town in which one hundred windmills are in evidence is shown. The closing pages of the catalog are devoted to a list of owners of Corcoran tanks.

Bradley Studios Receive Furniture Shipment

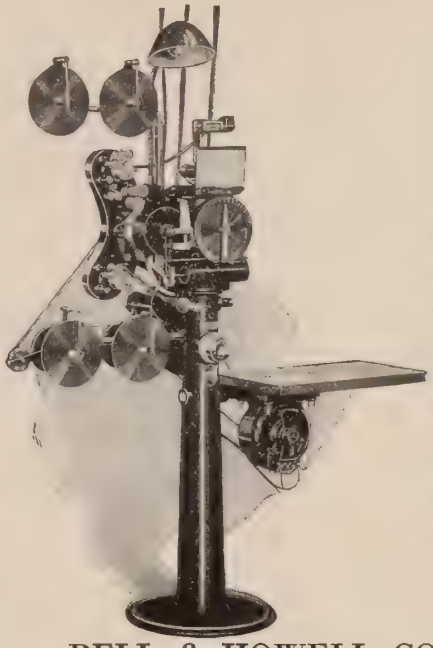


WILLIAM BRADLEY STUDIOS, 318 West Forty-third street, New York City, specializing in making settings for motion picture plays and stage productions, have just received a large shipment of furniture that will interest studio managers. This includes furniture of all styles and periods, also properties of all descriptions. This company also specializes as builders, dealers and furnishers of every studio essential.

William Bradley, general manager, has had many years' experience in this line, and was formerly connected for a long time with David Belasco and several other well known producers. A visit to the Bradley studios by studio managers will result in their finding many things which can be utilized to great advantage.

Fried of Los Angeles Introduces New Film Printer

ALTHOUGH modern conception in the designing of motion picture positive printers seems to favor the pedestal type of machine, there are many who still prefer the "wall type" printer, and the wall type machine, if accurately constructed, can compete with any of its more ornate looking brothers when it comes to the question of ease of manipulation and accuracy in the finished film positives.



We are pleased to present Camera Department readers with an illustration and description of the latest in wall type printers—the Fried printer—manufactured and supplied by Mr. A. Fried of 2415 San Pedro street, Los Angeles, California.

As the illustration shows, the Fried printing machine greatly resembles the well known Williamson printer (of English manufacture) but Mr. Fried has produced a machine having numerous improvements over former apparatus of similar design. A good idea of the Fried printer may be gained from the illustration, but among the salient features which are not apparent in the cut may be mentioned the following: The machine is started or stopped instantaneously by means of a clutch, and has an aperture plate and framing device of finest tool steel. Perfect tension is secured at the exposure aperture by means of a clamp which is released during the downward travel of the films during exposure, thus eliminating undue wear on the negative as well as danger from scratches.

All gearing in this machine is of steel with spiral cut teeth and the light-shift has a range of 20 different intensities. While we have not personally examined or used the Fried printer, it is expected that some of these machines will shortly be in use in the East, where they will undoubtedly create the favorable impression which we know they have made in the Golden State.

OUR CONTINUOUS FEED PRINTER

Produces prints of the finest "Screen Quality" at the minimum of cost. In Design—in Durability of Construction—in Quantity of Output—in General Efficiency, it has no equal.

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY

Manufacturers Standard Cinemachinery — Perforators— Cameras—Printers,

1807 Larchmont Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

New York Office and Display Rooms,
614-15 Candler Building, 220 West 42nd Street.

PHOTO CINES NO. 4 CAMERA and TRIPOD

fitted with Zeiss Tessar Lens F3.5—
Automatic diaphragm dissolve, single turn and reverse action, filmpunch, adjustable frame line.

Price $250.00 Complete

SEND FOR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

TOPICAL-PATHE-DEBRIE CAMERAS AND ACCESSORIES

G. GENNERT

24-26 E. 13 St. New York
320 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
455 S. Olive St. Los Angeles
693 Mission St. San Francisco

Motion Picture Supplies

DEVELOPING—PRINTING

Films received before Nine A. M. shipped the same night. Tank and Drum Systems—Tinting, Toning and Titles

We own and operate the only Ground Floor Motion Picture, Skylight Studio with stages and scenery, equipped with mercury lights, two Projecting Rooms, etc., west of Philadelphia. Camera Men sent anywhere. Day or night.

SHOW PRINTING

We own and operate one of the best equipped Show Printing Plants in the country:—Zincographers, Stereotypers and Photo Engravers. Block, Litho, Type Posters, Heralds, Pennants, Cloth Banners, Tack Cards, Dodgers, Stage Money, Flyers, Tonighters, Dates, Throw Away Cards, and etc.

LANTERN SLIDES

We own and operate two complete slide factories, dry and wet plate process, reproducing any article, trade mark, label, carton, or direct from negative film, beautifully hand colored.

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY

We own and operate a strictly Theatrical Photograph Gallery, complete stage settings for Lobby Displays, Aerial Acts, Road Shows, Vaudeville and Burlesque Acts. Enlargements from your negatives, Photo Reproductions, Embossed Poster Photos, and everything in the line of Photography.

MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES
CINCINNATI MOTION PICTURE CO.

Open Day and Night. Union Label.
Western Union Private Wire. Phone C 2415

216-218-220 W. Liberty St. Cincinnati, Ohio

Dealers in Motion Picture Cameras, Tripods, Flares, Raw Eastman Stock, Developing Outfits
PANCHROMA LAMPS. PROJECTORS. LENSES.
COOPER HEWITT—STUDIO LIGHTING—BOOTHS
UNIVERSAL PANNILL SCREENS

A scenario department

considers only type-written manuscripts—others are too hard to follow.

Your audiences are interested in clear pictures only—for the same reason.

The clearest pictures are on Eastman Film—identifiable by the stencil mark

"EASTMAN"

in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

At Your Service

with a well equipped laboratory with the better class of Help—in the most convenient spot in New York City.

Developing—One Cent per foot.

Printing—Four Cents per foot.

Tinting and Toning—no charge.

Special prices on quantities

THE BROOK FEATURE FILM CORP.
AND LABORATORIES

709-10-11 Godfrey Bldg. 729 7th Ave., N. Y. C.

Mr. Exhibitor—Have you joined our library? If not—better call and get acquainted.

INFORMATION

I am interested in Motion Picture Photography and would like Without Obligation on my part to obtain information on the equipment as checked

CAMERAS
CAMERA ATTACHMENTS
TRIPODS LENSES
FILM STOCK
STUDIO LIGHTS
LABORATORY APPARATUS
DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

(Tear out this advertisement and mail to MOTION PICTURE NEWS, 729 7th Avenue, New York.)

Name .....

Theatre .....

Address .....

.....

MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

Killing a Good Picture

A GREAT many of our first class exhibitors throughout the country are paying special attention to their musical programs as accompaniments for pictures, and it is an established fact, that these theatres are the most successful ones to-day.

It is also a fact that exhibitors who have considered their orchestras as important factors of their shows, although they have lost money in the beginning have in time increased their orchestras in proportion to their business. But we still have exhibitors who are decreasing their orchestras as soon as they notice any diminishing box office receipts, and these managers keep on reducing until they're reduced all together.

To prove my above statement, I will as an example mention an exhibitor who, because living up to the principle that good music means better business has made a success out of a theatre, which has never done any business.

Edward A. Zorn, manager of the Temple theatre in Toledo, Ohio, took charge of the Alhambra theatre in the same city, and in a recent conversation with Mr. Zorn at the Biltmore Hotel in New York City, Mr. Zorn told me the following story, which should serve as a lesson and warning to all those who think that music is nothing else but a non result bringing and unnecessary expense. Mr. Zorn said:

"I got the Alhambra theatre, and business was bad all around. This theatre had no orchestra for some time because it didn't pay them to engage one and although they showed the best pictures, they couldn't do any business at all. The first thing I did was to engage an orchestra consisting of twelve men, purchased a music library of about 3,000 numbers and the result you know—business is fine since—and last week I added two more men to my orchestra, as I'm convinced of the fact that a better orchestra means a better show and better business.

"Mr. Zorn also engaged a musical director in New York, who is reviewing for him every picture in advance, in order to make up musical programs in time for rehearsals and performances.

Recently Mr. Zorn booked "The Truant Soul," an Essanay picture of exceptional value. I personally have arranged the musical program for this picture to be used in the Alhambra theatre.

I will now analyze the picture—versus the music—I happened to hear in one of the New York theatres and the music Mr. Zorn played in his Alhambra theatre.

The plot of this picture maintains from the very start a tremendous tension. Just as the spectator believes that the dramatic pressure is lessening, a new thrill, bit of suspense, or surprise gives him a jolt. Henry B. Walthall plays the part of Dr. Lancaster, a great surgeon. This man, of normally noble instincts, possesses a despicable second nature. He is a drug addict, and when doped appears cruel, vindictive and unscrupulous. When in his normal condition he is able to perform great feats of surgery, and in other ways to do good. He is the absolute slave of Myers, his secretary.

During all these scenes the orchestra and the organist played such numbers as "Moana," a Hawaiian hesitation waltz; "Merry Whirl," one step, and another selection of some popular songs. And then for about twenty minutes the entire music force seemed to be dead.

This gave me a chance to overhear the following remarks, "Thank Goodness, now we can at least look at the picture." "Gee! this is a shame, why doesn't he charge ten cents and give us some real music," and so it kept on for about ten minutes? Then silence; everybody seemed to enjoy the picture, until like a flash from heaven the organ commences "Yaaka Hula," accompanied by several kids in the rear row and this gave some people the finish. "Now I'm going, that's enough! I know the end of the picture, anyway," they exclaimed.

Of course, when the manager sees all these people walking out, he believes that they have seen the finish of the picture in the last showing, and last but not least this "Yaaka Hula" music was performed during the following part of the picture.

Joan, a nurse, after helping Doctor Lancaster fight his craving for drugs and when she is sure of his recovery, lets him go to a neighboring city to perform an operation. Two hours later he returns raving drunk, escorted by Myers. Joan is prostrated, but resolves to fight for him again. He attacks her, but she is rescued by—Dr. Lancaster.

Then the secret is out; the cruel, cynical Lancaster is the surgeon's half-brother and double. This man had debauched his brother, robbed him, and posed as him before the world, only letting the real Dr. Lancaster come out of his coma when delicate operations are to be performed.

Baffled, Myers sets fire to the house that night, but is caught in the flames himself. An insane woman whom the evil Lancaster has wronged shoots him and avenger and victim are burned. Dr. Lancaster rescues Joan.

By playing such popular numbers as "Yaaka Hula" for such scenes as described above, the picture is bound to be killed. First of all the audience commences to sing and whistle after the organist. The result is—that before anybody knows how it happened and encouraged by few too loud kids and half grown ups, the picture is forgotten by just enough to annoy those who care to see it.

It is true, every minute an ignoramus is born and sometimes they are twins, but I hardly believe that so many of them get born just in a certain neighborhood to keep such a theatre going, as I firmly believe that the better class of picture goers will not patronize such places.

The following is the musical setting as played in the Alhambra theatre for "The Truant Soul:"

"Dawn of Hope" by Casella is the Theme.

1—Solitude by Eilenberg until—T: "And doctor John Lancaster, etc."

2—Continue to action until—T: "Lancaster hospital."

3—Reconciliation (from suite of four) by Bendix until—T: "Everything is ready doctor."

4—La Reve by Golterman until—T: "What is your name."

5—Lost Happiness by Eilenberg until—T: "The Superintendent wants to see you."

6—Melody in G flat by Cadman until—T: "The despair of fulfilling her life's mission."

7—Organ to action until—T: "Doctor Lancaster near automobile."

8—Organ improvise "We Won't Go Home Till Morning Song" until—T: "You go straight up to his home."

9—For Thee, Kate Vannah until—T: "Joan decides to see Doctor Lancaster."

10—Theme until—T: "You heard of the Lancaster Institute, etc."

11—Farewell Sweet Flower Song by Barney to action until—T: "With the night comes, etc."

Invented and constructed for use in picture houses—

THE BARTOLA ORCHESTRA

is naturally the best instrument in this specialized field.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 708-710 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory
Oshkosh, Wisconsin

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

12—Any short mysterioso until—T: "The beginning of a journey."

13—In Cupid's Net by Armand until—S: "Interior of Doctor Lancaster's room."

14—Continue ff until—T: "Doctor Jenkins resident physician, etc."

15—Serenade by Chaminade until—T: "There is nobody here, nobody except, etc."

16—Organ to action until—T: "In the heavy shadows of the night."

17—Organ to ff until—T: "Joan's first meeting in the hills."

18—Theme until—T: "If you fire that woman, etc."

19—Aragonaiso from Le Cid by Massenet until—T: "The Vigil of hours beside the sick man."

20—Chanson sans Paroles by Techaikowsky until—T:

21—Short Agitato to action until—T: "Please Miss Wentworth."

22—Organ to action until—T: "And Myers, you get me a few more, etc."

23—Agitato pp or ff until—T: "Remember if the storeroom, etc."

24—Continue pp until—T: "The truce in the evening shadows."

25—Theme until—S: "Joan lays down to sleep."

26—Melody by Kretschmer until—S: "Old woman with knife."

27—Agitato until—T: "You are responsible for this."

28—Reverie by Vieuxtemps until—T: "The passing days bring relief."

29—Souvenir by Drdla until—T: "Joan I cannot loose you, etc."

30—Theme until—T: "I have a telegram for Doctor Lancaster."

31—Organ to action until—T: "The fear of the unknown menace, etc."

32—Serenade by Widor until—T: "Joan open the door."

33—Agitato to action until—T: "All right dearie we wont quarrel."

34—Love's Sunshine by Wolf until Note Play only until Animato movement T: "Don't be a fool, etc."

35—Continue "Love's Sunshine. Note begin with Animato until—T: "You asked me to stay, etc."

36—Agitato until—T: "Who is this man?"

37—Largo from "The new world symphony" by Dvorak until—T: "The fight."

38—Agitato to action until—T: "After the fight."

39—Organ to action until—S: "Old woman walks out of her room."

40—Silence until—T: "The shot is fired." Note—watch this shot very carefully."

41—Shot (effect) then silence until—T: "Fire Scene."

42—Long Agitato beginning pp gradually increasing, etc. to action pp of ff until—T: "And as the burning embers, etc.

43—Theme until— * * * * * * END.

Pacini Uses Bartolas

CHARLES PACINI of Kenosha, Wis., has certainly shown by his purchases what he thinks of the Bartola musical instrument.

After a great deal of argument about two years ago, Mr. Pacini bought a Style A Special Bartola for his Majestic theatre in Harvard, Ill. It satisfied him that the music was most suitable for a picture theatre and one year ago he purchased a Bartola Grand for his Majestic theatre in Kenosha and disposed of his five-piece orchestra. He attributes his increase in business to this installation and states that it has saved him a great deal in salaries. On December 28 he purchased his third Bartola for his beautiful new Butterfly theatre that he is building in Kenosha.

Mr. Pacini states that he would never use anything else in his theatres but a Bartola, because it has brought him the results desired and is superior to any music he has ever used.

Ernest Luz Is Not Conducting "News" Music Department

SOME of our readers seem to be under the impression that Ernest Luz is still conducting this department. On or about December 1 Mr. Luz entirely severed his connection with the NEWS owing to the necessity of curtailing his work to meet the demands placed upon him by those who have prior claims on his services.

If any of our readers wish to correspond with Mr. Luz, they may do so either through MOTION PICTURE NEWS, or direct at 1493 Broadway, New York City.

"FIGHTING FOR LOVE"

(Reviewed on page 271)

(Red Feather Photoplay)

"Heloise" (2/4 Andantino) Intermezzo by Langey is the Theme

1—"Albumleaf" (4/4 Andante) by Kretscher until—T: "Just across the border."
2—"Oriental Veil Dance" by Aronson until—T: "In another land."
3—"Western Allegro" by Winkler until—T: "In Saxonburg the land of youth."
4—"La Rose" (intermezzo) by Ascher until—T: "That was King Ferdinand."
5—"Melody" (Andante) by Trinkaus until—T: "There is going to be a Queen."
6—"Dramatic Tension" by Reissifier until—T: "A king's proposal."
7—"Dramatic Maestoso" by Ascher until—T: "What more natural, etc."
8—"Intermezzo" (2/4 Presto) by Arensky until—T: "An ultimatum."
9—"Maestoso" by Ascher until—T: "Ain't you got no bringing up."
10—"Serenade" (6/8 Andantino) by Czerwonky until—T: "What are you doing here?"
11—"Theme" until—T: "There was no getting away."
12—"Sparklets" (Intermezzo) by Langey until—T: "War Scene."
13—Hurry—by Bendix until—T: "Change of Scene."
14—"Last Spring" (4/4 Andante) by Crieg until—T: "Mostly for you."
15—"Nocturnal Piece" by Schumann until—T: "Going to lick the enemy over."
16—"Maestoso" by Loraine until—T: "From over the sea came a message."
17—"Western Moderato" by Bach until—T: "Waiting to hear from the bunch."
18—"Esperanza" (2/4 Moderato) by Johnstone until—"End of the third reel."
19—"Courtesy" (Intermezzo) by Wiegand until—T: "In the old Empire."
20—"Maestoso" by Loraine until—T: "You forget that I'm the king."
21—"Dramatic Tension" by Funck until—T: "Order the advance."
22—"Lakesonian March" by Lake until—T: "Take them weapons."
23—"Rustle of Spring" (2/4 Agitato) by Sinding until—T: "Battle Scene."
24—"The Tempest" by Lake (an eight minute hurry) until—T: "An American wallop, etc."
25—"Finale from 'Ariele'" by Bach until—T: "A formal proposal."
26—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

"THE PRICE OF SILENCE"

(Reviewed on page 437)

(A Fox Super De Luxe Production)

"Love Theme" Berceuse (4/4 Lento) by Karganoff

"Congressional Theme" "Dramatic Meestoso" by Ascher

1—"Congressional Theme" until—T: "The McCarthy Mill."
2—"Petite Bijouterie" (Valse Intermezzo) by Bohn until—T: "The accident in the mill."
3—Continue ff until—T: "The owner of McCarthy's mill."
4—"Serenade" (2/4 Allegretto) by Drdla until—T: "Joe Dugan father of Jimmy Dugan."
5—"Agitato" to action pp or ff until—T: "Don't forget we expect you at our reception."
6—"To Spring" (6/4 Allegro appasionato) by Grieg until—T: "My greatest ambition, etc."
7—Continue to action until—T: "The night of the reception."
8—"Vision" (6/8 Andante) a characteristic by Blon until—S: "Dancing."
9—Any good one step pp during scenes not dancing until—S: "In Garden."
10—"Love Theme" until—T: "Jimmy's father in bed."
11—"Mysterioso Agitato" No. 33 by Becker to action until—T: "I'm scared to go home, Mister."
12—"Serenade Mignonne" (4/8 Allegretto) by Gruenfeld until—T: "Once aroused by Jimmy's story, etc."
13—Organ to action until—T: "What about it."
14—"Prelude Du Deluge" (4/4 Adagio) by Saint Saens until—T: "The result of the investigation."
15—"Noveletta" (4/4 Moderato) by Ambrosio to action pp or ff until—T: "Unknown to Grace, etc."
16—"Love Theme" until—S: "Old man is taken sick."
17—"Forsaken" (Paraphrase) by Kretschmer until—S: "Crippled boy in chair."
18—Organ to action until—T: "Frank tries in vain, etc."
19—"Au Matin" (9/8 Andantino) by Goddard until—T: "The child labor bill comes before, etc."
20—"Congressional Theme" until—S: "Interior of room—boy with dog, etc."
21—"Cavatine" (4/4 Larghetto) by Raff until—T: "The following day the Senate, etc."
22—"Congressional Theme" until—T: "And I corrupted, etc."
23—"Agitato" to action pp or ff until—T: "But there are two hearts, etc."
24—"Love Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

"PIDGIN ISLAND"

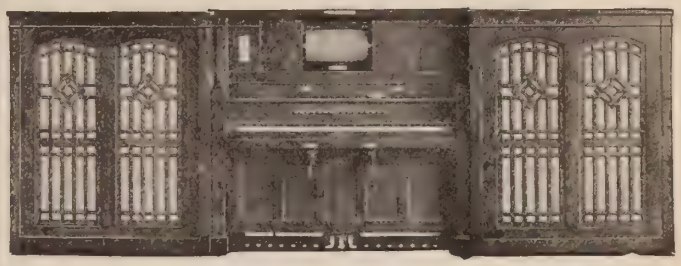
(Reviewed on page 272)

(Metro Production)

"Longing for Home" (Andante) by Jungman is the Theme

1—"Characteristic for Waterfalls, etc." by Lovenberg until—T: "Harold Lockwood of the Costume House."
2—"Springtime Overture" by Ziegler until—T: "May Allison as Diana Wynne."
3—"Trinity Intermezzo" (4/4 Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "Her return brought her to a great house."
4—"Second Valse" by Godard until—T: "His words revealed her situation."
5—"Theme" until—T: "The bitter memories fled in the open sunlight."
6—"Basking in the Sunshine" (4/4 Caprice) by Cameron until—T: "Contrasts."
7—"Chinese Wedding Procession" by Hosmer until—T: "The inner ring of crains, etc."
8—Continue pp until—T: "Hop Sing, his faithful assistant."
9—Continue ff until—T: "Philip Gaston, the ringleader."
10—Organ to action (short scene) until—T: "At last a promising clue."
11—"Chinese Serenade" by Puerner until—T: "The hell hole of Chinatown."
12—"Piano Improvise Rags" until—T: "Cranford butts in, etc."
13—"Mysterioso" until—T: "Trying to find a way out."
14—"Piano Improvise Rags" to action until—T: "Sending Hop Sing on a fast errand."
15—Piano ff until—T: "Deep in the heart of the underworld."
16—"Mysterioso" until—T: "The response to Bradford's message."
17—"Long Hurry" until—T: "After the fight."
18—"Return to me soon" (3/4 Allegro Vivace) until—T: "Cranford's big coup gained him a holiday."
19—"Gretchen" (Intermezzo) by Martin until—T: "His first morning in the great outdoors."
20—"Whispering Flowers" (Characteristic) by Blon until—T: "Mason the Canadian accomplice."
21—Organ to action until—T: "Exterior ocean scene."
22—"Passacalle Intermezzo" (3/4 Allegro Moderato) by Gregh until—T: "Look at me, I'm just as wet."
23—Continue pp until—T: "Diana, toy of destiny, etc."
24—"Theme" until—T: "Fate delights in cringing, etc."
25—"Harmony of Love" (4/4 Andante) Romance by Brooks until—T: "After days of patient waiting."
26—Organ to action until—T: "Delay the message twenty-four hours."
27—"Melody" (4/4 Moderato) by Friml until—T: "The storm commences."
28—"The Tempest" (4/4 Agitato) by Lake to action until—T: "After the sweep of the mighty northern."
29—"In Lovers' Lane" (6/8 Allegro Moderato) by Pryor until—T: "The smuggled pearls."
30—Organ to action (short scene) until—T: "You deserve full credit."
31—"Dramatic Tension" No. 2 by Reissiger until—T: "And in the meantime on the island."
32—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

"THE PIPER'S PRICE"



(Reviewed on page 275)

(Bluebird Photo Plays)

"Serenade" (4/4 Moderato) by Widor is the Theme

1—"Martinique" (Intermezzo by Loraine until—T: "Feminine influence."
2—Continue to action until—T: "It seems possible."
3—"Solitude" (3/4 Largo) by Czibulka until—T: "The presence of others."
4—"Dramatic Maestoso" by Ascher until—T: "Are you sure, Mr. Hadley?"
5—"Serenade" (3/4 Allegretto Grazioso) by Chaminade until—S: "Grounds—exterior house."
6—"Fata Morgana" (4/4 Allegretto) by Tobani until—T: "Scandal's scorching breath."
7—"Sieste" (4/4 Lento) by Laurens until—T: "I'll bring the papers to your office."
8—Continue pp until—T: "For the first time since."
9—"Theme" until—T: "Here are your papers."
10—Continue pp until—T: "Midnight—a fitting time."
11—"Quietude" (4/4 Moderato) by Gregh until—S: "Jessica on couch."
12—"Reverie" (Andante) by Barton until—T: "The following morning."
13—"Heart to Heart" (Serenade) by Trinkaus until—T: "The withered rose."
14—"Idilio" (4/4 Allegretto Grazioso) by Lack until—S: "Door opens and Amy enters."
15—"Theme" until—T: "I'll take you to the car."
16—"Love Song" (6/8 Andantino Amoroso) by Puerner until—S: "Talking over phone."
17—Continue pp until—S: "Jessica playing piano."
18—"Improvise Piano Solo" to action until—S: "Jessica stops playing."
19—"Serenade" (6/8 Andantino) by Czerwonky until—T: "Hadley realized that."
20—"Pastel Menuet" (3/4 Allegro Giocoso) by Paradis until—S: "View in ballroom."
21—"Dreams of Delight" (Waltz) by Milok until—T: "And Jess, those kisses."
22—"Garden of Love" (4/4 Caprice) by Ascher until—T: "The world of responsibilities."
23—"Dramatic Tension" by Reissiger until—T: "How sweet of you to call."
24—"Theme" until—T: "Jessica's great hour."
25—"Dramatic Andante" by Ascher until—S: "Talking over phone."
26—"Melody" (4/4 Moderato) by Kretschmer until—T: "It was midsummer madness."
27—"Dramatic Tension" by Winkler until—T: "Mr. Kilmartin has every right."
28—"Dawn of Hope (4/4 Andante Expressivo) by Casella until—T: "The Piper's Price."
29—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

CREMONA

SOLO STYLE M 2

The Solo Instrument

Not only produces Better Music, but its operating expense is lower.

A request will bring you full particulars

THE MARQUETTE PIANO CO.

1608-1622 So. Canal Street
CHICAGO

MOTION PICTURE STUDIO DIRECTORY

NEXT ISSUE

PUBLISHED

LAST OF FEBRUARY

BUILDING AND FURNISHING

The Sumner Is the Temple of Motion Pictures of Brooklyn

THE Sumner since its opening in the Spring of 1915 has been the leading motion picture house of Brooklyn and is still heading the list.

This theatre is controlled by the Ansonia Amusement Company and is owned by Sol Brill. Harry Thoms is the manager of the Sumner. He was manager of William Fox's Academy of Music and Audubon.

The Sumner, which is entirely fireproof, is constructed of steel, concrete and brick. The theatre has a frontage of 110 feet on Sumner avenue and a depth of 125 feet. The exterior is very simple in construction and its attractiveness is greatly added to by the numerous display frames and a large electric sign. There are also several electric lamps, which used in conjunction with the electric sign, make the exterior as bright as day.

Above the doors leading into the lobby are mahogany stained display frames in which the daily program for the coming week is posted. On either side of the entrance to the lobby are two larger display frames in which stills of current and coming features are displayed.

The lobby is most artistically decorated in steel gray marble, the trimmings being of gold. On the side walls of the lobby are display frames containing pictures of different stars who appear on the screen. On a ledge above the doors leading to the street and those leading into the theatre are oil paintings of stars and principals of the different film companies, these pictures being in neat gold frames.

The box-office, which is constructed of marble and plate glass, is located in the center of the lobby. Flower boxes have been placed on top of this and a small box-wood tree on either side. An automatic ticket seller is used, this having been installed by the Automatic Ticket Seller Company. There is also a small electric fan in the box-office for use in warm weather. The direct lighting system is used in the lobby, two heavy gold electroliers containing thirty lights each and four lights on top, at each corner of the box-office make the lobby very bright and pleasant. The doors leading into the theatre are finished in mahogany and have plate glass mirrors set into them. All trimmings in the lobby are of brass.

The interior of the theatre gives a pleasing and home-like impression. The general interior decorations are green and pink with gold trimmings. The walls are divided into panels. The ceiling, which is arched, is of an ivory tint and is also divided into immense oval panels. There are no columns in the theatre to obstruct the view.

The stage setting was installed by the General Flower and Decorating Company. A gray blue curtain of floral design hides the screen from view when not in use and also shields it from much dirt and dust. A lattice work on each side of the screen has been very cleverly draped with artificial flowers and two huge pots of artificial flowers complete the stage setting.

For lighting the interior both direct and semi-indirect lighting is used. There are nine amber glass bowls suspended by chains from the ceiling, each containing a 250-watt nitrogen bulb used in conjunction with the side lights, which have been concealed in flower boxes above the doors, make the auditorium very light.

Steam heating is used throughout the theatre and in the lobby an automatic system regulates the temperature of the theatre and keeps it evenly heated at all times. The ventilating system consists of two exhaust fans, one forcing fresh air into the house while the other draws the impure air out.

The theatre has a seating capacity of 1,100. The chairs are mahogany finish, leather upholstered and were furnished by the American Seating Company. The projection room contains two of the latest type Simplex projectors equipped with the Feaster Film Feed Machine, which eliminates the rewinding of each reel after it has been shown. A double dissolving stereopticon is also used. Harry Rogers, who has had fifteen years experience at motion picture operating, is in charge and deserves credit for his efforts and the results he obtains. The length of throw is ninety feet and a new screen has just been installed. The results that this new screen is giving has not as yet been equaled.

Front of Sumner Theatre, Brooklyn

The music for the picture is furnished by a seven-piece orchestra, which is directed by Paul Gomez, who has won a place for himself in the hearts of the patrons of the Sumner for his wonderful interpretation of classical music.

For the weekly program, Paramount, Metro, Fox, Selznick, Pathe and General Film service are used eight and ten reels being shown at each performance.

Carlyle Blackwell, Anita Stewart, Marguerite Clark, Theda Bara, William Farnum, Charles Chaplin and Viola Dana are the biggest drawing cards at this theatre and many of the screen stars have appeared at the theatre in person.

Mr. Thoms, who is one of the most progressive men in the business, has discovered the worth of advertising and advertises extensively in the daily newspapers, on billboards and by handbills.

Samuels Succeeds Goode

TRESCOTT GOODE, advertising manager for the Individual Drinking Cup Company, 220-228 West Nineteenth street, New York City, will be on January 15, located with the Elliott Fisher Company, Harrisburg, Pa.

Mr. Goode has had many years' experience in the advertising and promotion business. While with the Individual Drinking Cup Company he developed many new ideas for its system for theatres and motion picture houses. He also succeeded in getting its system installed in some of the most prominent theatres in the country, including the Rialto, the Strand and the New York Hippodrome.

Mr. Goode's successor of the Individual Drinking Cup Co. will be R. G. Samuels, who is a man of experience and is thoroughly familiar with the exhibiting business.

James J. Frawley Traveling with Lobby Displays

JAMES J. FRAWLEY, representing Menger & Ring, of New York City, left a few days ago on an extensive tour of the Middle West, with what is described as a collection of the very latest creations in lobby displays. Mr. Frawley reported great business in the New England states, where he has many friends in theatrical circles.

Ralph H. Fulton Exhibit, Chicago Business Show, Showing Wicker Furniture and Fountain Suitable for Picture Theatre Use

Fulton Shows Fountains at Business Show

THE Rotary Club, an organization of Chicago business executives, recently conducted an important business exposition at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago. One of the most striking and popular of the many exhibits displayed was the one of the E. E. Fulton Company, Chicago dealers in motion picture supplies.

The exhibit was largely composed of a new line of electric fountains and wicker furniture. The Fulton firm is the exclusive distributor of those lines in the moving picture trade. These fountains are especially suitable for lobby displays in picture theatres, for the foyer, and for stage settings.

The fountains consist of a number of water jets which play upon a lighted art-glass globe in the center of the basin. The jets are operated by an electric motor, and use the same water continuously.

Newman Plant Is Enlarged

THE Newman Manufacturing Company, located at 719 Sycamore street, Cincinnati, O., and 68 W. Washington street, Chicago, Ill., has added another floor, forty feet by one hundred and seventy-five feet to the Cincinnati plant, which now comprises six stories.

This firm, which manufactures brass poster frames, easels, railings, grills and choppers, for theatres, are expanding with remarkable strides.

S. J. Newman states that his representatives are reporting excellent prospects for the year and that the last year was a very prosperous one.

He expects shortly to issue a new catalog.

National Theatre, Jersey City Heights, N. J., a New House

THE National theatre of Jersey City Heights opened its doors to the public on November 1, 1916. The theatre is located at 443 Central avenue and is under the management of Mr. L. F. Blumenthal.

This theatre is something new in design and construction and has been the source of much comment. The plans for the theatre were drawn up by the well known firm of E. C. Horn & Sons of New York. The contract for the construction of the building was awarded the Wells Construction Company, also of New York.

The exterior of the theatre is of a light brown tapestry brick. A projecting roof of red slate and ornamental vases on the roof add greatly to the general appearance of the exterior. Above the doors leading into the lobby is a beautiful stained glass window which nearly reaches to the top of the building. This is an unusual feature in construction and is far more attractive than an entire brick front. A large electric sign, 25 feet in height, containing 500 40-watt lamps, adorns the front of the theatre. This sign was constructed and erected by Strauss and Company and is one of the best means of keeping a theatre in the eye of the public at all times.

The lobby which measures 25 feet by 25 feet is most attractively decorated. The walls are of tan tapestry brick, into which are imbedded gold display frames, in which posters of current and coming attractions are displayed. The oval ceiling is of whitestone and reflects the light from a bronze electric lamp suspended from the ceiling above the box-office and makes the lobby as bright as day.

The doors leading into the foyer are of sheet metal and are finished to match the other surroundings. The foyer measures about 50 feet by 25 feet; the walls are of concrete and finished in cream-color with a stenciled design of a darker shade upon it. The floor is also of concrete and is of a tan color.

Passing through the doors of the foyer the interior of the theatre is reached, this having a distinguished atmosphere. Upon the left and right on entering are cast iron stairways which lead to the semi-circular balcony. These stairs are covered with a heavy red carpet, this blending well with the general interior decoration, the same color and design as the one used in the foyer being used throughout the theatre. The balcony is supported by huge marble columns.

The theatre has a seating capacity of 1,500, 1,100 on the main floor and 400 on the balcony. The seats were manufactured by the American Seating Company and are leather upholstered.

Steam heat is used, radiators serving decorative purposes as well as being useful are numerous and have been well placed. The pull air outlet system located under the seats is the medium of ventilation and works out to perfection.

The projection room constructed of reenforced concrete is on the balcony. The projection room is quite large measuring seven and a half feet by fifteen feet by nine feet three inches in height.

Foyer Auditorium and Lobby of the Strand Theatre, Livingston, Montana

LEE LASH STUDIOS

MOTION PICTURE STAGE SETTINGS
MOTION PICTURE SCREENS
STAGE LIGHTING EQUIPMENT
DRAPERIES — ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS

BROADWAY OFFICES, LONGACRE BUILDING
BROADWAY & 42nd ST., NEW YORK

OPERA CHAIRS
Steel—Cast Iron

Exceptional in Quality—Comfortable

You are invited to make use of our Service Department. Send blue print or sketch for Free Seating Plan.

If you are desirous of reseating, we can help you dispose of old chairs.

Write for Catalog N.

We manufacture Special Out-of-Door Seating.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
1475 Buchanan Ave., S. W.
Grand Rapids, Mich.

IL TIRSO AL CINEMA-TOGRAFO

the most important weekly publication of the Italian cinema industry.

12-16 pages

in two colours; large size.
Subscription abroad:
15 frcs. yearly

EXCELSIOR

International Cinema Review. The only publication in 4 languages: French, Italian, English and Spanish.
Published monthly in elegant illustrated edition.
Subscription abroad:
10 frcs. yearly.

CINEMA YEARLY DIRECTORY

Complete guide to the cinema industry and commerce both in Italy and abroad—World wide circulation—20,000 addresses—500 illustrations—Contains all legal and business informations about the cinema trade. Big volume of 1000 pages, handsomely bound in cloth. Price: 10 frcs.

Publishers:
THE INTERNATIONAL CINEMATOGRAPH OFFICE
—Via del Tritone, 183—ROMA (Italy)

FAC-SIMILE PAINTINGS

in a beautiful gilt 3 inch width frame size over all 25 x 22 inches. Pictures are painted in oils and water colors of every popular player, all made from poses to appropriately fit this style of frame. Complete with brass name plate, $5.00 each.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES.
Size 22 x 28 75c Each Size 11 x 14 20c Each

SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS $3.00 per thousand. Made by a process that has the appearance of a real photograph. PHOTOGRAPHS, size 8 x 10, all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each. GRAVURE FOLDERS, containing pictures of all the prominent players, including feature stars, $10.00 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of all the players, 600 names, 40c. each.

TRANSPARENCIES, ALL SIZES, from 50c. to $2.50. FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS from $2.50 to $35.00, according to size and frames.

KRAUS MFG. CO., 220 W. 42nd Street, N. Y.
12th floor, CANDLER BUILDING.
Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

The Strand, Akron, Ohio (Courtesy Enterprise Optical Co.)

Two Simplex projectors, spot light, dimmers, Hill Roder Converter and a motor film rewinder complete the equipment. This motor rewinder rewinds 1,000 feet of film in 30 seconds. An atmospheric screen 14 feet by 16 feet is used and this explains the usual clear pictures. This screen was installed by the Atmospheric Screen Company of 220 W. 42nd street, New York City.

Singers' galleries are located on either side of the screen and are artistically decorated, the stage settings having been installed by the Physioc Studios of New York.

The National has installed at a cost of over $15,000 an organ which is played by the competent organist Mr. Charles Grant. An orchestra is also maintained and the performance is greatly added to by the numerous musical numbers consisting of both popular and classic music.

Metro, Triangle, Greater Vitagraph, Artcraft, Clara Kimball Young and other productions of the leading producing companies are shown. Mr. Blumenthal uses program, poster and slide advertising extensively and his efforts are duly rewarded by the returns which are evident at the daily performances.

Admission prices range from ten to twenty-five cents according to the locating of the seats.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

ARKANSAS

Scott McGehee opened the Gem theatre at Eighth and Railroad streets, McGehee, on the 8th inst., to a crowded house. The enterprise will be under the management of Joseph Bartlett.

CALIFORNIA

An imposing structure is in course of erection in the lower Broadway shopping district of Los Angeles, J. A. Quinn being the prime mover in the venture. F. P. Fay, owner of the property, will erect the building for which Mr. Quinn will pay $500,000 for fifteen years' rental. The building is to be ready for occupancy by April 15.

ILLINOIS

C. S. Austin has taken over a Paramount theatre at Effingham and opened it on January 9 with the Lasky-Paramount production of Geraldine Farrar in "Carmen."

Frank Schlotterbeck, of the new Gem theatre at Altamont, has signed a contract for the Paramount service beginning the first of February. His first production will be the Famous Players-Paramount picture of Marguerite Clark in "Seven Sisters."

LOUISIANA

The Alhambra Amusement Company of Birmingham, Ala., contemplates the erection of a photoplay theatre in New Orleans, La., and has already purchased a site near the business section of the city.

MISSOURI

The Willis Wood theatre, one of Kansas City's oldest playhouses, was destroyed by fire on Monday, Jan. 8, with an estimated loss of $60,000. The theatre was empty at the time of the outbreak. It was the object of the management to close the theatre this week for the purpose of remodeling.

OHIO

A number of Indianapolis capitalists are combining with Dayton, Ohio, men, to support a new theatre project for Dayton, with a proposed capitalization of $250,000. Mark Gates, Meyer Elroymson and Isadore Feibleman, of Indianapolis; Charles W. Doyle, Fred Rike, Harry Schenck and Sidney G. Kusworm of Dayton are the interested parties.

IOWA

The new Strand theatre at Grinnell opened recently to a large and enthusiastic audience. The unanimous verdict of all who passed through the portals of Grinnell's newest amusement house, was that Mart & Son, Paramount exhibitors, had provided a theatre that would be a credit to Grinnell for years to come. In its modern equipment, and in devices for securing the comfort of its audiences, the Strand is thoroughly up-to-date, having a seating capacity of 600, modern ventilation, and an effective system of indirect lighting. The walls are frescoed in Tiffany finish, very artistically done.

KANSAS

J. W. Adams, manager of the Royal theatre at Tonganoxie, is razing his present theatre, preparatory to the erection of a new theatre which will be equipped with all modern improvements and in which he will run Paramount Pictures.

MASSACHUSETTS

An undertaking is one foot by a group of men organized as the Lancaster Trust to erect a motion picture house at 31-37 Lancaster street, Boston, in the heart of the tenement district. A pretentious structure for that locality is projected, plans having been drawn by Blackall, Clapp & Whittemore and the contract was awarded to the Haynes Construction Company. The building of steel, brick and concrete will be two stories high, have a frontage of 118 feet and a clear depth of 65 feet and will cost approximately $60,000. It will be equipped with sprinkler service and hand extinguishers, will have iron stairways enclosed in terra cotta and have a seating capacity of 1,200. Work is to be rushed to have the puilding available for use by the end of February, if possible.

MINNESOTA

The Arcade theatre, of St. Paul, Minn., managed by Mr. Stone, was opened December 31, running Paramount pictures exclusively. The opening picture was "The Cheat," featuring Fannie Ward.

PENNSYLVANIA

As the site for a $1,000,000 playhouse to take the place of the Forrest theatre, Philadelphia, which it is reported will be torn down to make way for a twenty-story office building, the northeast corner of Sixteenth and Walnut streets is being considered by Samuel F. Nixon.

According to J. C. Neff, vice-president of the Fidelity Trust Company, which took title to the Forrest theatre and the properties bounded by Broad, Walnut and Sansom streets, and by the Witherspoon Building in the rear, it has not been definitely decided to raze the Forrest. "However," he added, "it would not be feasible to erect the contemplated sky-scraper over the playhouse."

Plans for a new theatre to be erected at 1712-14-16-18 Center avenue (corner Roberts street) Pittsburgh, by the Enterprise Amusement Company are completed and work on the structure, which will occupy a plot 60½ x 100 feet, will be commenced immediately. Louis O. Brosie is the architect and bids are now being asked. The building is to be of brick and will be fireproof; will be one story high and have space for two offices and storerooms and will represent an investment of nearly $70,000. M. Browarsky will manage the new theatre which will be completed by August 15 next.

NEW YORK

William Fox has purchased from the Level Realty Corporation seventeen and one-half lots at the northwest corner Grand Concourse and Fordham road, New York City. Mr. Fox will immediately erect thereon a theatre seating 3,500 persons, to be devoted to vaudeville and moving pictures, and to be similar in construction and policy to the other theatres conducted by Mr. Fox throughout Greater New York.

This theatre will be designed by Thomas W. Lamb, in the Adam style of architecture. Walls will be covered with imported tapestry and finished in French gray and gold. The Level Realty Corporation was represented by Mr. Sternberg, of Sternberg, Jacobson & Pollack, as attorneys, while Mr. Fox was represented by Messrs. Rogers & Rogers, his attorneys.

The Palace theatre in Huntington, Long Island, now under construction, will open, according to present plans, on February 12, next. The Palace is a new venture, instigated by business men of the town of Huntington, construction having been commenced last Summer. The house is modern in every detail, spacious and with seats, exits, etc., well arranged. It is owned by a corporation and will be managed by I. Whitestone, who heretofore has been engaged in another business in the town. The Palace will show three Paramount Features a week, opening with Pauline Frederick in "Ashes of Embers." In addition to the three big Paramount Features, Black Diamond and Klever Komedies will be shown, as will also the Burton Holmes Travelogues, Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen, and Bray Cartoons.

Several weeks ago it was reported in this paper that a new theatre would probably be built on the lower East Side in New York by Messrs. Steiner, Weisner & Schwartz. A week ago that trio leased for a term of forty-two years the property at 139 to 143 Houston street, whereon they will erect that theatre.

The house will be built to seat 1,600 and will be devoted to motion pictures. The estimated cost is $225,000. Instead of stairways, patrons will reach the balcony by an incline. Special effort will be directed toward making patrons comfortable. Particular attention will be given to the matter of ventilation and lighting. The chairs will be modeled after those in use at the Metropolitan Opera house.

The architectural scheme will be French renaissance, with an exterior of stucco and polished granite. Ground will be broken February 1, and the house will be ready in June.

RHODE ISLAND

The Nickel theatre at Providence, R. I., is being torn down and a vaudeville house is being built. The Keith house there is using the Nickel bookings.

CANADA

Trenton, N. S., is soon to have a new and up-to-date picture and vaudeville theatre. A company consisting of Messrs. N. W. Mason, H. B. McCulloch, A. F. McCulloch of New Glasgow, John Wood, and William Wood of Trenton, recently purchased the Thompson & Sutherland property, opposite William Wood's store on Main street, Trenton. The lot is 68 x 130 feet. Operations will commence immediately and a modern theatre will be erected. The new theatre will be a wooden structure and will be built in the most modern style at a cost of about $10,000. The men behind the project are the same who put up the $80,000 house in New Glasgow which opened January 15. They expected to get opened on New Year's Day but owing to various delays were set back two weeks.

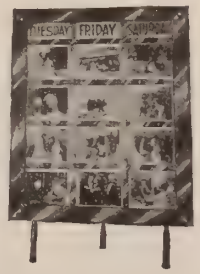
At Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was recently opened a new theatre called the Princess. This new house seats over 900 people and cost $60,000 to erect. Mr. Gibson, a well known film man is at the head of the new enterprise. Gerald Ruck, special representative of the Universal Company in Ontario, states that Bluebirds, Red Feather features and very likely "The Purple Mask" serial will be shown there.

You're only making a wise investment in providing the best projection for your patrons.

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

Have for years been the choice of exhibitors who were striving for perfect screen result. A large majority of the special photoplays De Luxe have been shown on RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS during their metropolitan runs. "THE BIRTH OF A NATION" on the road, is conceded to owe a share of its success to the splendid projection made possible by the RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS carried.

Write Us Today For Price and Further Details



RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, Inc.

Leon Schlessinger, Gen. Mgr.
220 W. 42d Street
New York City

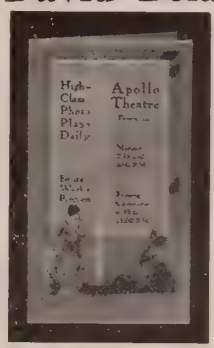
Canadian Distributors—
J. T. Malone Films, Inc., Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal;
All features, Ltd., 56 King St., W. Toronto

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

The character of your show is reflected by the elegance of your display.

No. 111 Photo Frame

Our modern, compact Brass Poster Frames lend a polish of refinement to your lobby. An investment that will greatly increase your receipts by adding select patrons who otherwise would keep distant.



You ought to have our latest catalogue. Write us today.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

Established 1882

Frames, Easels. Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

David Belasco Knows the Game!

That's why he has a great name as an artistic producer of the spoken drama. He's a lover of elegance and a master of detail. If he were running a good picture house he would use our because a well-appointed picture house like a well-produced drama (spoken or filmed) must have no jarring artistic note. Our De Luxe program comes in a series of twelve artistic designs and is printed in three colors. It is beautiful to look upon. No patron of your theatre will ever throw it away. On its two inside pages may be printed your full week's program and the

4-Page Program De Luxe

Back Page will Pay for It

The good business houses in your neighborhood will be anxious to insert their advertisements. We give you an exclusive territorial privilege. Be the first to get this. Write right away for samples.

Cahill-Igoe Company "Direct Advertising Specialists" 117 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

THE ONE BIG EVENT of the SEASON

First Annual

MOVIE BALL

NEW JERSEY STATE BRANCH of the MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS LEAGUE of AMERICA

at KRUEGER AUDITORIUM, Newark, New Jersey

Thursday Evening, February First

MUSIC BY THE FIRST INFANTRY BAND AND ORCHESTRA OF NEW JERSEY

Novelty Stunts by the Different Manufacturers
Contest of Young Ladies to Join the Movies
Reception of All the Leading Movie Stars
Vaudeville and Cabaret by the Best Artists
And an Enjoyable Social Evening for All

TICKETS ON SALE AT ALL THE PRINCIPAL THEATRES IN NEW JERSEY AND AT LEAGUE HEADQUARTERS, 800 BROAD ST., NEWARK

Make Your House Popular

By a perfectly projected picture. You cannot do this with an old junky machine. Write us to-day. We will sell you a new machine of any make on our EASY PAYMENT PLAN. You would be surprised at the number of Theatres throughout the country that are purchasing from us in that way. Why don't you investigate to-day?

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Powers, Edison, and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers, and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres. Third Floor, Mallers Bldg., Cor. Madison Street and Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS

1544 BWAY. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

For Artistic Lobby Display and Stage Decorations

Install our line of Artificial FLOWERS, TREES, VINES, LEAVES, GARLANDS, WREATHS AND PALMS.

Estimates made and theatres decorated under contract by our expert.

Our 32-page catalogue No. 3, illustrating in colors the latest artificial flowers for Theatre decoration, FREE.

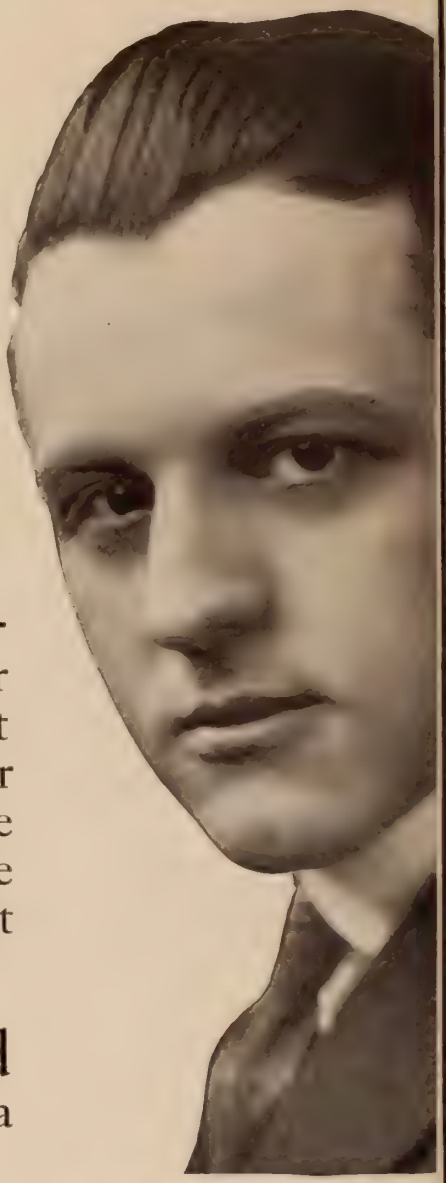
FRANK NETSCHERT COMPANY, INC.
61 Barclay Street New York City

VINCENT SERRANO
IN
"A MODERN MONTE CRISTO"
RELEASED FEB. 4

THANHOUSER-MADE

A PATHÉ GOLD ROOSTER PLAY

ALIVE WITH STRIKING SITUATIONS—A STIRRING DRAMA OF VENGEANCE WITH JUSTICE



COMING
FLORENCE LA BADIE
IN
"THE GIRL WHO WANTED TO LIVE"

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. Edwin Thanhouser, Pres. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.
EUROPEAN OFFICE, THANHOUSER FILMS, LTD., 167 WARDOUR ST., W., LONDON

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

I Happen to Know

More than a round dozen of square film men who paid dearly to find out that it's the height of unwisdom and extravagance to take a chance on quality and delivery for the sake of "saving" a fraction of a cent per foot.

These men are now emphatic and life members of the "Never Again" Club, and realize that perfect developing and printing, and proper tinting and toning, cost less in the long run, and are worth more all the time, than ordinary uncertain work at any price.

If your negative is any good at all it deserves to be handled by a reliable institution such as the

Rothacker

FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO, U.S.A.

There are reasons—
Come and see them.

FEBRUARY 3, 1917

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Paramount Pictures

To advertise that you show Paramount Pictures in your theatre is to assure your patrons of a good entertainment. The Paramount "Trade-mark" outside of a theatre means a guarantee of unsurpassed photoplays.

Executive Offices: 485 Fifth Avenue, New York City

VOL. XV-NO. 5

PRICE 10 CENTS

RED FEATHER
PHOTO-PLAYS
present
"ME AND M' PAL"
A Soul-Stirring Screen Characterization of Sweetness and tenderness, interwoven with smiles and tears. Like "My Old Dutch", it goes straight to the Heart.
WITH EDNA FLUGRATH
GERALD JAMES AND HUBERT WILLIS written by Richard Ganthony produced by Harold Shaw
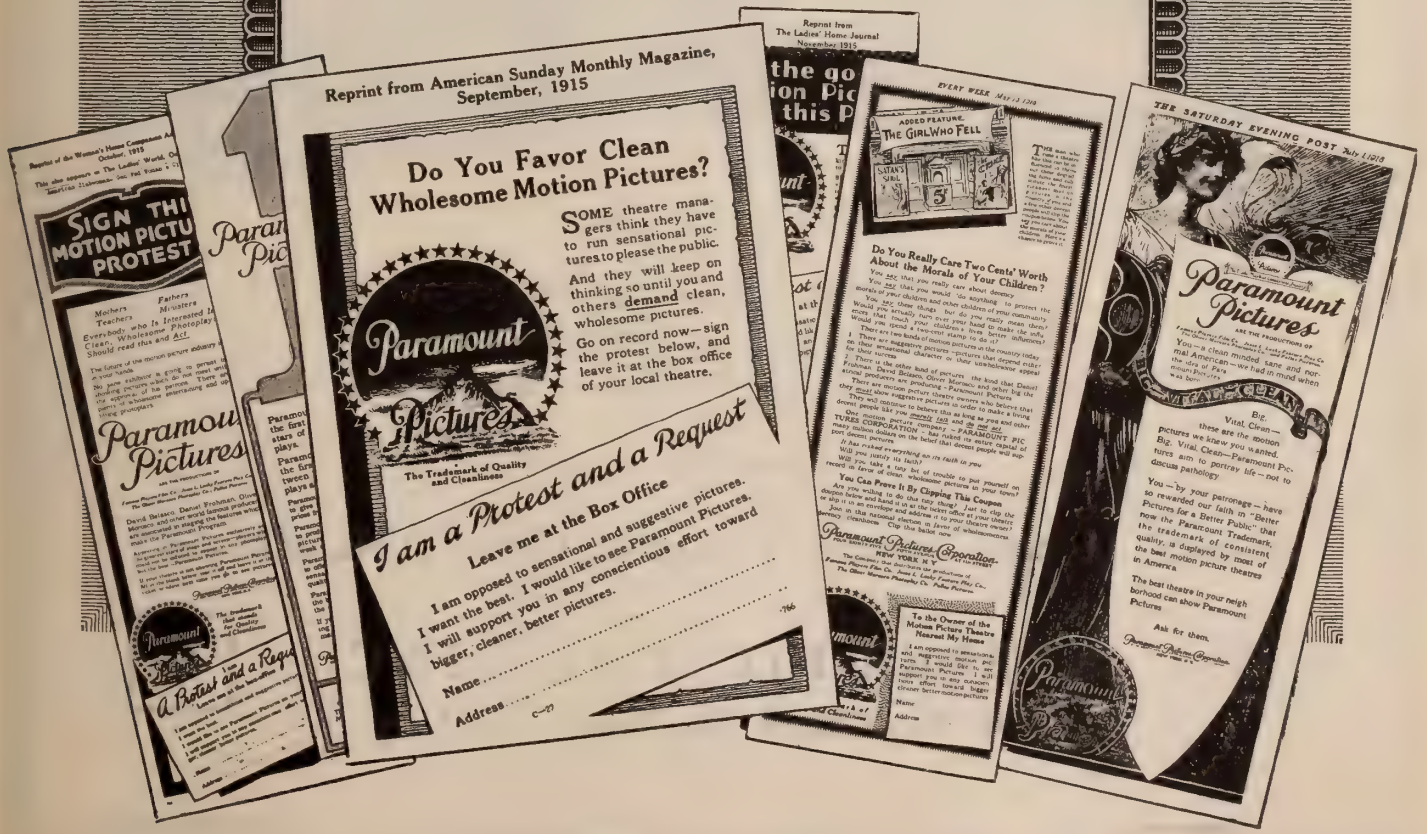
Book through any Universal Exchange
RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS
KARL LINK

Paramount Pictures

"Always in the lead"



Over a year ago the producers of Paramount Pictures saw "the handwriting on the wall" and had inserted in the large magazines of the country, reaching 55,000,000 people, the information that they were making pictures that were always in good taste.

There is nothing new about fighting censorship; by removing the cause, Paramount producers did this from the beginning as a matter of course. This foresight helps keep Paramount Pictures always in the lead.

The concrete proof of this is on the back cover, namely, the two pictures of the week.

Watch for the new Paramount national advertising campaign which starts in the Saturday Evening Post in February.

Exuve Offices, 485 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Paramount announces Victor Moore in the fifth of the one reel "Klever Komedies"

"The Honeyless Honeymoon"

Have you ever been on a honeymoon? Here's a laugh getting comedy—a honeymoon, that starts off like a dog fight.

Released Jan. 29th

Shown at the Strand Theatre, New York, Jan. 29

KLEVER PICTURES, INC.
220 West 42nd St., New York City

Paramount-BRAY-Pictographs

BRAY STUDIOS INC

TIMELY TOPICS
EDUCATIONAL SUBJECTS
ITEMS OF ABSORBING NATIONAL INTEREST
QUAINT SCENES
ANIMAL STUDIES
COMIC CARTOONS

A FULL REEL WEEKLY RELEASE

Combining the Paramount Pictograph and Bray Animated Cartoons in one reel.

Singly, both features have been famous "drawing cards." United, their power for compelling interest makes them for any programme—anywhere. The exhibitor who is keenly alert, who lets no paying proposition escape him, should immediately investigate the splendid opportunity for adding to his offerings this

A HIGHLY PROFITABLE FEATURE

DOUBLY STRONG ATTRACTION ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAMME

BRAY STUDIOS INC.

23 EAST TWENTY-SIXTH STREET, NEW YORK

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

D. W. Griffith says:—

Form 1204

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Day Message
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a day message. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON PRESIDENT GEORGE W E ATKINS FIRST VICE PRESIDENT

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Day Message
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check number of words this is a day message. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

RECEIVED AT GRAND CENTRAL TERMINAL, MAIN CONCOURSE, NEW YORK

A735NY M 57 BLUE RELAY

SI NY JAN 13-17

MISS GERALDINE FARRAR 815

HO BILTMORE

HAVE JUST SEEN YOUR SPLENDID PERFORMANCE OF JOAN THE WOMAN
I HOPE YOU WILL NOT CONSIDER IT A BOLDNESS TO OFFER YOU MY MOST SINCERE CONGRATULATIONS ON THIS BEAUTIFUL CONTRIBUTION TO OUR LITTLE NEW AND BUDDING ART SINCEREST AND BEST WISHES THAT YOU WILL CONTRIBUTE MORE PICTURES LIKE THIS FOR THE GRATIFICATION AND APPRECIATION OF US ALL

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH 951 PM

FROM EAST TO WEST THE PRAISES RING!

JESSE L. LASKY

NOW PRESENTING TO CAPACITY AUDIENCES TWICE DAILY AT THE

44TH STREET THEATRE, NEW YORK, N. Y.

AND THE

MAJESTIC THEATRE
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

GERALDINE FARRAR

AS THE IMMORTAL JOAN OF ARC

IN

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S

MAGNIFICENT ELEVEN PART
PHOTOPLAY

"JOAN THE WOMAN"

BY JEANIE MACPHERSON

CARDINAL FILM CORPORATION

485 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK, N Y

The Age Old Problem

Is solved after trials and suffering in the wonderfully effective photo-play in which

WILLLIAM FOX Presents

GLADYS BROCKWELL

in

ONE TOUCH OF SIN

Written by L. Genez Directed by Richard Stanton

FOXFILM COMEDY SERVICE

Release for week of January 29th

"HIS TICKLISH JOB," two reels of hilarity

with

HANK MANN

"The Boy with the Bashful Eyes"

A two-reel Foxfilm Comedy is released weekly

Available for all exhibitors Independent of regular Fox Program

---

FOX FILM CORPORATION

VITAGRAPH
V·L·S·E INC.

The Most-Talked-of, Best Advertised Film of the Day

"The Girl Philippa" Art Calendar
More than a million and a quarter copies of this six-color calendar are being distributed by leading newspapers throughout the country.

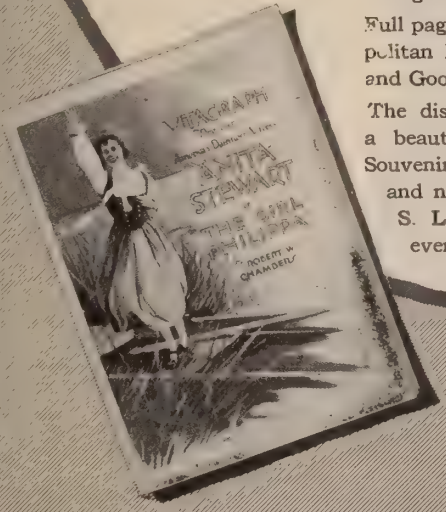
Anita Stewart

In Robert W. Chambers' Greatest Story

"THE GIRL PHILIPPA"

An Eight Part Special Blue Ribbon Feature

Directed by S. Rankin Drew



To Be Released January 21st

Except in the territory covered by the Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Seattle and Salt Lake City Branch Offices of Vitagraph-V-L-S-E, in which the release date will be

January 28th

"The Girl Philippa" Souvenir Book

A handsome eight-page souvenir book, with three-color cover, has been prepared for distribution by exhibitors. It pictures the big moments of the film, the leading characters and many charming photographs of Miss Stewart.

The Tremendous Advertising Campaign for "The Girl Philippa"

All the Hearst newspapers throughout the country will carry full-page and quarter-page spreads for a period of eight weeks.

Full pages will be taken for three issues each in Cosmopolitan Magazine, Harper's Bazaar, Hearst's Magazine and Good Housekeeping Magazine.

The distribution of "The Girl Philippa" calendar, and a beautiful line of advertising helps including the Souvenir Book, seven styles of posters, heralds, slides and newspaper cuts, and the musical score by S. L. Rothapfel, of The Rialto, assure every exhibitor top prices and crowded houses.

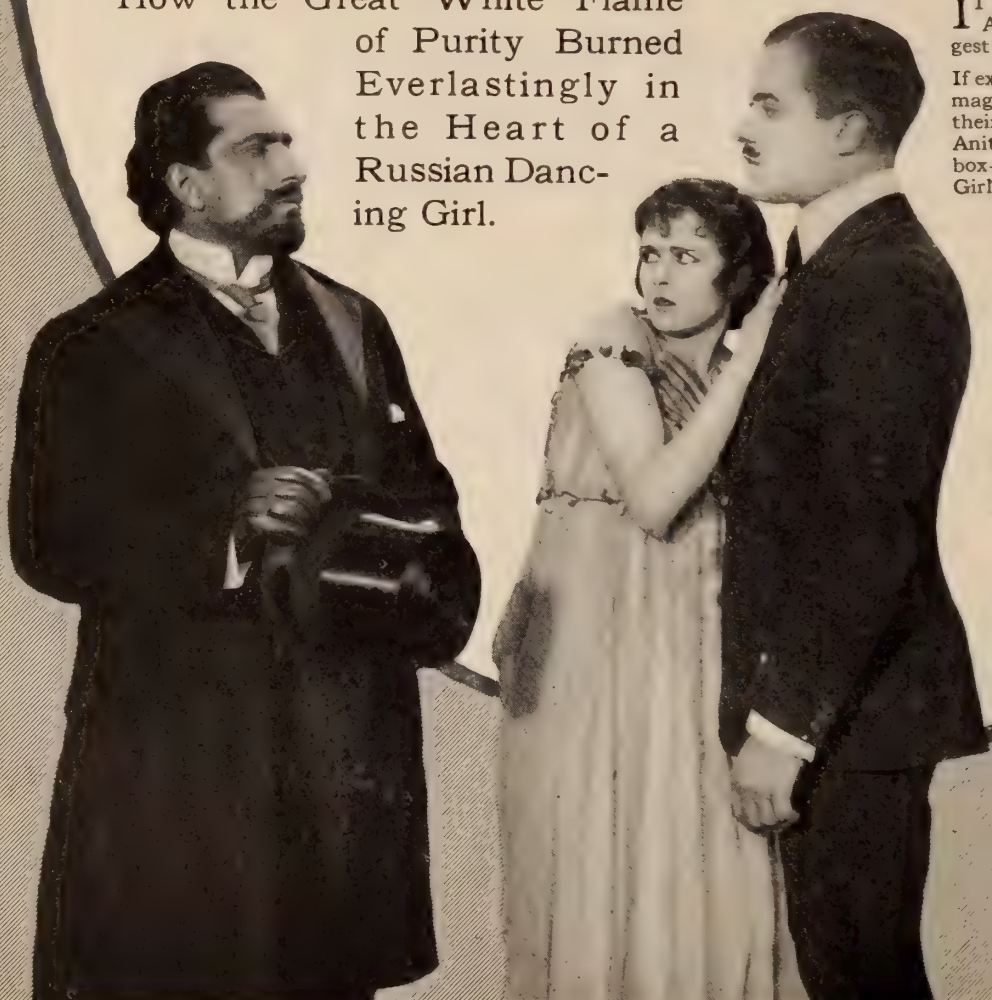
"THE GIRL PHILIPPA" Broke the World's Box-Office Record at The Rialto, New York

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

VITAGRAPH
V·L·S·E INC.

A Five Part Blue Ribbon Feature

America's Daintiest Actress



ANITA STEWART

In

"THE GLORY OF YOLANDA"

By Maibelle Heikes Justice

How the Great White Flame of Purity Burned Everlastingly in the Heart of a Russian Dancing Girl.

IT has been demonstrated again that Anita Stewart is the screen's biggest box-office attraction.

If exhibitors needed any evidence of her magnetic drawing power to supplement their own splendid experiences with Anita Stewart releases, the wonderful box-office record-breaking run of "The Girl Philippa" at The Rialto, New York, was proof positive.

More than 80,000 people—most of them paying 50 cents—crowded The Rialto during the week, drawn by Miss Stewart's irresistible charm. Managing Director Rothapfel stated that the run could have gone on indefinitely to excellent business.

Her newest release, "The Glory of Yolanda," should prove another record-breaker.

In Seven Tremendous Parts

VITAGRAPH
V·L·S·E INC.

An Ever Increasing Wave of Enthusiasm is Carrying

Thomas Dixon's

Mighty Message of Warning

"THE FALL OF A NATION"

To New Box Office Records Everywhere

Special Musical Score by Victor Herbert

Reports from the Firing Line—

Alhambra Theatre
Wilkes Barre, Pa.

"'The Fall of a Nation' proved an unusual success for my house, breaking all records since it was built, and clearing pretty nearly $500.00 in one day. I intend to play a two day return date."

C. R. Black

Criterion Theatre
Atlanta, Ga.

"Booked 'The Fall of a Nation' four days but our business was so big that we extended the engagement making the full week at almost capacity business. We take pleasure in recommending it to any exhibitor who wants a sure fire box-office winner."

W. C. Patterson

The Murray Theatre
Slayton, Minn.

"I played your wonderful picture, 'The Fall of a Nation,' to the biggest crowd that I ever played any picture to, and the second day was bigger than the first."

O. L. Viste

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

VITAGRAPH
V·L·S·E INC.

Live, Wholesome One Reelers To Spice Your Program

You Get a Big Laugh Both Ways!

Do you want the sort of a laugh that begins with a chuckle, becomes a grin, spreads into a smile that stays put, and ends in a button-popping spasm of merriment?

For this result try

FRANK DANIELS

——The Man with a Million Laughs——

in "Captain Jinks" Comedies

Or if you want the sort that starts off with a yell of joy, smashes along until you can't see any more for the tears of laughter that have been turned loose——the sort that makes you look around to see if the whole house is watching you,

Try

A BIG "V" COMEDY

Written by Lawrence Semon and Graham Baker
Directed by Lawrence Semon with Hughie Mack, James Aubrey and a host of Vitagraph fun-makers

YOUTH

BILLIE RHODES

NEAL BURNS

BETTY COMPSON

EDDIE BARRY

ETHEL LYNN

YOUTH

CHRISTIE COMEDIES ARE COMEDIES OF YOUTH!

The good looks, the cleverness and the youthfulness of the Christie Stars are in a large measure responsible for the popularity of Christie Comedies. Movie-goers demand bright, scintillating youth in pictures—they get it in CHRISTIE COMEDIES—and the exhibitor who supplies this demand by exhibiting Christie Comedies profits.

Week of Jan. 29th

Open Market Release

"A GAY DECEIVER"

Featuring

BILLIE RHODES, ETHEL LYNN AND HARRY HAM

CHRISTIE FILM CO

AL.E.CHRISTIE · DIRECTOR GENERAL

SUNSET BLVD AT GOWER ST

LOS ANGELES · CALIFORNIA

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

GOLDWYN PICTURES

What the Great Critics Think of Goldwyn Stars and Plans

ANNOUNCEMENT of Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl and Mae Marsh as Goldwyn stars resulted in an amount of newspaper praise unique in motion picture history.

THESE voluntary comments by the greatest critics on powerful newspapers should convince all exhibitors in advance of the tremendous drawing power our stars and productions will have:

CHICAGO JOURNAL: "In Maxine Elliott Goldwyn has discovered a Goldmine."

NEW YORK TIMES: "Mae Marsh is the Maude Adams of the screen."

NEW YORK TRIBUNE: "There is only one Mae Marsh."

CHICAGO AMERICAN: "Jane Cowl is our greatest dramatic actress."

NEW YORK TELEGRAPH: "We welcome Goldwyn to filmland. Samuel Goldfish, Edgar Selwyn and Arthur Hopkins will greatly advance motion pictures."

INDIANAPOLIS STAR: "Goldwyn Pictures Corporation . . . the film Company with brains."

PHILADELPHIA LEDGER: "Goldwyn combines an exceptional group of stars and managers."

THE PITTSBURG DISPATCH: "Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl and Mae Marsh. . . . Evidently Goldwyn has 'gone out for bear.'"

THE SEATTLE TIMES: "Goldwyn's announcements seem to forecast the greatest stars ever assembled under one management."

The force of this announcement lies in the fact that many great authorities say about our organization and its stars the things that, otherwise, we might have to say about ourselves.

ADVISORY BOARD:
SAMUEL GOLDFISH, Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
ROBERT W. CHAMBERS
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

Telephone, Vanderbilt 11

16 East 42d Street, New York

STATE RIGHTS

IS THE BASIS UPON WHICH
IVAN ABRAMSON'S
SEVEN ACT DRAMATIC SENSATION

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

WILL BE DISPOSED OF

ADDRESS

ENLIGHTMENT PHOTO PLAY CORPORATION

220 WEST 42 ND STREET N.Y.C. SUITE 1005
PHONE BRYANT 7812
HENRY J. BROCK PRESIDENT

I want to convey to State Right Buyers and to Theatre Managers the idea that this theme is dressed in a manner that will command attention, and worth any amount of genuine endorsement on its good acting, good direction and absorbing plot. It shows genius of high quality.

GEO. N. SHOREY,
Motion Picture News.

ENLIGHTMENT PHOTOPLAY
OFFERS THE SUPREME DRAMATIC SPECTACLE

This is one of the most vivid and appealing lessons ever shown.

Mark this picture as a feature of worth for any house.

Exhibitors Trade Review

ENLIGHTEN

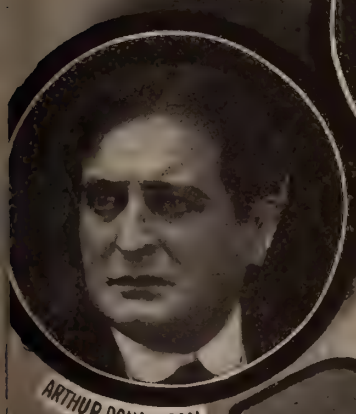
It is uncommonly well acted, not a single member of the company being miscast. There are several plots, and counterplots of a delicate family nature, all of them handled with tact, and a nicety that should not offend any but an uncompromisingly prudish individual. It is in proper style for sensational exploitation.

JOLO in Variety.

In "Enlighten Thy Daught Ivan Abramson again dem strates his keen sense of dram values.

"Enlighten Thy Daughter" solves itself into a powerful ob lesson on the object indicated the title.

The story of "Enlighten Daughter" moves forward wi sweep that is irresistible.



Of the work of the cast it pleasure to write.

EDWARD WEITZEL,
Moving Picture W

CORPORATION OF THE AGE

THY DAUGHTER

WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY IVAN ABRAMSON

For two hours 2,700 people sat spellbound, women grew hysterical in their sympathy, strong men sniffed and wiped away their tears, hardened critics sobbed, 'twas the most remarkable demonstration of the effect of drama ever witnessed on Broadway.

Broadway Theatre
Dec. 21.

The most appealing dramatic climax ever screened.

N. Y. American.

It aroused a packed house to a fever heat pitch.

N. Y. American.

Mothers Just send your daughters to see "Enlighten Thy Daughter."

N. Y. Tribune.

FOLLOWING THE TRADE SHOWING OF "ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER" AT THE BROADWAY THEATRE DEC. 21ST. ELEVEN EXHIBITORS OFFERED $14,000 FOR 11 WEEKS BOOKINGS IN NEW YORK CITY.
THE LARGEST THEATRICAL CONCERN IN AMERICA OFFERED A SUBSTANTIAL ADVANCE AND HIGH CLASS BOOKINGS IN $2.00 THEATRES THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.
THE RIGHTS FOR THE ENTIRE CIVILIZED WORLD WAS DISPOSED OF FOUR HOURS AFTER THE FIRST AND ONLY PUBLIC SHOWING AND ARE NOW BEING SOLD ON STATE RIGHT BASIS.

CAST

FRANK SHERIDAN
ZENA KEEFE
KATHARINE KAELRED
MARIE SHOTWELL
JAMES MORRISON
VIOLET HORNER
MATILDA BRUNDAGE
RUBY DEREMER
ETC.

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

¶ IS THE OUTSTANDING DRAMATIC SENSATION OF THE SEASON.

¶ NO FEATURE, NO MATTER WHAT THE PRODUCTION COST, EQUALS THIS PICTURE.

¶ ABSOLUTELY THE MOST POWERFUL STORY, STARTLING SITUATIONS, GRIPPING CLIMAXES AND ALL AROUND IMPORTANT CAST EVER ASSEMBLED.

OPENING PARK THEATRE N.Y.C. JAN. 28TH
(INDEFINITE)

7 TREMENDOUS ACTS 1800 IMPOSING SCENES 100 SUPERB SITUATIONS

ADDRESS

ENLIGHTMENT PHOTO PLAY CORPORATION
220 WEST 42ND STREET N.Y.C. SUITE 1005
PHONE BRYANT 7812
HENRY J. BROCK PRESIDENT

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

WEEKLY NEWS OF THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION AND ITS 68 EXCHANGES

FEBRUARY 3, 1917

CHARLOTTE WALKER IN "PARDNERS," BIG REX BEACH DRAMA

AS ITS feature release for the week of January 29, the Mutual Film Corporation will present Charlotte Walker, talented wife of Eugene Walker, the famous playwright, in a tremendously powerful Rex Beach drama of the North West, entitled "Pardners." Charlotte Walker has firmly established herself with the playgoing public as a star of the first magnitude. She brings both beauty and brains into her work and a finished character portrayal results, no matter what the role she assumes.

Story of North West.

"Pardners" is one of Rex Beach's most vivid and colorful stories. Its scenes are laid in the far North West. In adapting the story to films the utmost care has been taken to preserve the proper "atmosphere" and locale. Props, scenery and stage settings are all in keeping with the region they represent. The costuming is exact and accurate. Special pains were taken in the selection of proper "types" for even the most minor roles. Miss Walker has been surrounded by a cast of real note.

Tremendous Box-Office Possibilities.

Exhibitors will quickly realize the tremendous box-office possibilities in "Pardners." They will instantly recall such Rex Beach film successes as "The Spoilers," "The Ne'er Do Well," "The Barrier" and others. All were adapted from Rex Beach novels. There is something about this writer's work that particularly fits it for the screen. His following among the American public is tremendous. A Rex Beach story will bring to the theatre hundreds who never otherwise attend. Any exhibitor can capitalize this interest in Rex Beach and his works by booking "Pardners." It can conscientiously be announced as a banner attraction. Bookings can be made at any Mutual Film Exchange.

Beautiful Scenery In "Lumberlands"

No chapterplay that has ever been released has evoked one-half the comment that is resulting from the beautiful scenery that forms the background for the latest Mutual photo-novel, "A Lass of the Lumberlands." Almost daily the Mutual office receives letters from exhibitors voicing their delight over this feature of the production. The current release of this chapterplay is particularly notable for its wonderful mountain views.

FORTHCOMING MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS ILLUSTRATE "BIG STARS ONLY" POLICY

Marjorie Rambeau, Nance O'Neil, Gail Kane, Edna Goodrich, Marie Cahill, Mary Miles Minter, Margarita Fischer, Charlie Chaplin and William Russell Are Among Those Featured

THE list of forthcoming Mutual Photoplays clearly illustrates the Mutual Film Corporation's 1917 policy of "Big Stars Only." In this list the exhibitor will find such noted players as Marjorie Rambeau, Nance O'Neil, Gail Kane, Edna Goodrich, Marie Cahill, Mary Miles Minter, Margarita Fischer, Charlie Chaplin and William Russell. All of these headliners are established favorites. The public has already shown its interest in them.

The plays are the works of America's foremost authors. Marjorie Rambeau, for instance, will first appear in "The Greater Woman," an adaptation of Algernon Boyesen's successful play. Her second vehicle is "Motherhood," by the well-known author, Frederick Arnold Kummer, who wrote "The Brute," "The Ivory Snuff Box," "A Lost Paradise," "Mr. Buttles," "A Daughter of Eve," "The Painted Woman" and others. Nance O'Neil's first Mutual Photoplay is "Mrs. Balfame," prepared from Gertrude Atherton's famous novel of the same title. The Atherton novels are read by millions, and each new work is looked forward to with eagerness. Gail Kane and Edna Goodrich are each being equipped with vehicles worthy of their talent. No expense is being spared in securing the most notable works of the world's masters of literature. Marie Cahill, who is to appear in a series of two-reel Cahill-Mutual Comedies, offers as her first effort "Flirting With Romance," a story from the pen of a celebrated humorist. The other stories of the series will be provided by equally notable authors. Mary Miles Minter-Mutual Photoplays are specially prepared with a view to exploiting Miss Minter's unusual traits, and future offerings will be even more notable than those already released. Her next appearance will be in "The Gentle Intruder." "The Devil's Assistant," the next Margarite Fischer photoplay, is a powerfully impressive bit of screen literature that points a moral. It presents Miss Fischer at her very best. Nell Shipman, author of books, plays and scenarios by the score, wrote "My Fighting Gentleman," which is the title of the next William Russell-Mutual Photoplay, now in course of production at the American studios in Santa Barbara, California.

Such an array of stars and authors is unusual to say the least. However Mutual is resolved to offer its patrons nothing but the best. It aims during 1917 to offer only the world's greatest stars in the world's greatest plays. The coming months will see the realization in the fullest sense of its announced policy of "Big Stars Only." Bookings on the Mutual Photoplays can be made now at any of the Mutual Exchanges.

Mutual Star Productions For January

Week Beginning January 1st.

Title. Lead.

The Gilded Youth.....Richard Bennett

Week Beginning January 8th.

The Butterfly Girl.....Margarita Fischer

Week Beginning January 15th.

Beloved Rogues.....Kolb & Dill

Week Beginning January 29.

Pardners.....Charlotte Walker

"Damaged Goods" Is Booking Heavily

Mutual Exchange managers are reporting an exceptional demand for bookings on the new edition of "Damaged Goods." Nearly all exchanges are calling for extra prints in order to be in a position to supply the demand. Full particulars regarding the booking of "Damaged Goods" can be obtained at Mutual Exchanges.

"Shorty" Hamilton Serial Is Popular

The latest series of Mutual Featurettes —"The Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" —is meeting with decided favor on the part of both exhibitors and public. All Mutual Exchanges are prepared to accept bookings on this series.

MUTUAL

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

PRESENTS

CHARLOTTE WALKER

IN

"PARDNERS"

BY REX BEACH

Author of "THE SPOILERS," "THE NE'ER DO WELL," "THE BARRIER" and other popular successes.

A tremendously powerful story of the far North-West. Pictured with wonderful fidelity to location. Interpreted by a cast of note. Released the week of January Twenty-ninth.

Every exhibitor knows what emphatic successes all Rex Beach stories have proven in film form. This WALKER-MUTUAL Photoplay by Rex Beach offers unlimited possibilities for box-office receipts.

BOOKING NOW AT ALL MUTUAL EXCHANGES.

MUTUAL

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Presents
"SHORTY IN THE TIGER'S DEN"
Second of
"THE ADVENTURES OF SHORTY HAMILTON"
FIFTEEN FEATURETTES-EACH COMPLETE

"Shorty" to the rescue of pretty Anita Keller of the U.S. Secret Service. A hair-raising adventure in the Mexican fortress of El Tigre. Jealousy and American wit against Mexican cunning and craft. ~ ~

RELEASED JANUARY 22nd

Produced by MONOGRAM FILMS
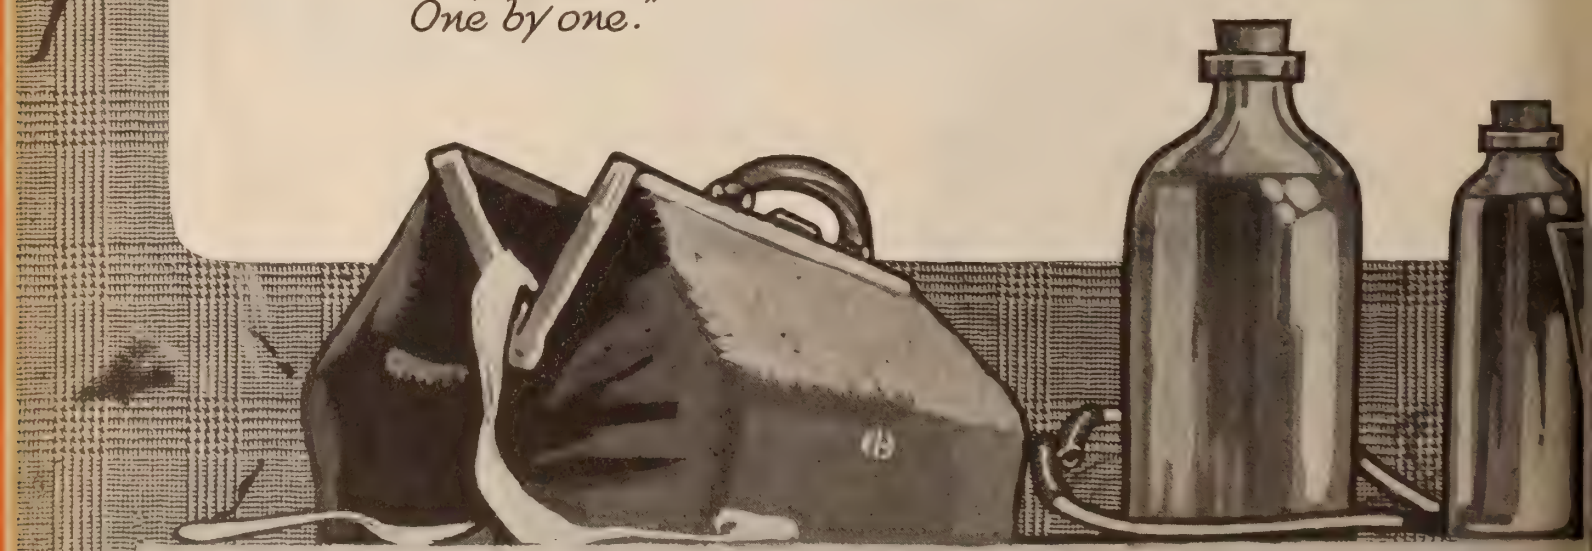
DISTRIBUTED THRU
MUTUAL EXCHANGES.

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

MUTUAL

MUTUAL FILM

A NEW



DAMA

Sta

RICHARD

Revised, re-edited, with a new prologue and a new conclusion. Better than the first edition which was withdrawn several months ago after playing to record houses at 25¢ and 50¢ admissions. All prints are new. An entirely new line of paper and advertising helps.

"The sins we do,
By two and two,
We pay for—
One by one."

MUTUAL

CORPORATION Announces

EDITION of GED GOODS" ring

BENNETT

Released February 12th to exhibitors in large cities for long runs. Pre-release by special arrangement. Special attention to long engagements, in big theatres at advanced admission prices. See your nearest Mutual Exchange at once for full details.

PRODUCED BY AMERICAN FILM CO. INC.

Bookings NOW
-at Mutual Exchanges.

MUTUAL VOGUE COMEDIES

VOGUE FILMS, Inc., Presents—

"A CIRCUS CYCLONE"

TWO REELS RELEASED JANUARY 28th

FEATURING BEN TURPIN

DECIDEDLY "different" is this Vogue Comedy. The sideshows and tented concessions of a country fair are the background. "Living Pictures" and "Jazbo, the dogfaced boy" are but two of the attractions visited. Ben Turpin, Arthur Moon, Gypsy Abbott and Paddy McQuire are among the funmakers. The "behind the scenes" glimpses will furnish comedy in themselves. But in addition to all this there is a side-splitting plot centering about Ben's attempts to win the love of Gypsy. Directed by Robin Williamson. Available through any of the Mutual Exchanges.

Slapstick with a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

VOGUE FILMS, Incorporated

General Offices, 6225 Broadway, Chicago, Illinois

MUTUAL

Are You Getting Your Share Of These Box-Office Receipts?

IS your house packed to capacity every night? Are you satisfied when you finish the "count up" at the close of the day? Do you realize that a host of exhibitors are daily "cashing in" on the popularity and pulling power of a brand new series of newspaper stories—film stories wholly new to the screen and consequently much sought after by those who are looking for "something different"? Theatres all over the United States are boosting attendance and profits by playing

Mutual's Big New Serial Success

THE PERILS OF OUR GIRL REPORTERS

FIFTEEN STARTLING MOTION PICTURE STORIES—EACH COMPLETE

You are entitled to your share of the profits earned by "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters." This tremendously fascinating Mutual serial-success was primarily designed to aid the exhibitor—to enable him to offer his patrons something out of the ordinary—to increase his daily receipts—to make him more money than he can make by booking any other serial. Take advantage of this opportunity! Get YOUR share of these big box-office receipts! The Academy of Buffalo, N. Y., played to more than 7,000 paid admissions in one day recently with "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters." Produced by Niagara Film Studios. Featuring Earl Metcalfe, Helen Greene and Zena Keefe. Directed by Geo. Terwilliger.

Call, wire or write your nearest Mutual Exchange TODAY!

Booking NOW At All Mutual Film Exchanges

The Stories in

"The Perils of Our Girl Reporters"

1 The Jade Necklace
2 The Black Door
3 Ace High
4 The White Trail
5 Many a Slip
6 A Long Lane
7 The Smite of Conscience
8 Birds of Prey
9 Misjudged
10 Taking Chances
11 The Meeting
12 Outwitted
13 The Schemers
14 The Counterfeiters
15 Kidnapped

MUTUAL
THE VAMPIRES
(THE ARCH CRIMINALS OF PARIS)
NINE THRILLING DETECTIVE MYSTERIES
RELEASED WEEKLY
HENOCH
BOOK AT 68 MUTUAL BRANCHES NOW!
Gaumont Co.
FLUSHING, N.Y.

THE COMEDY QUESTION

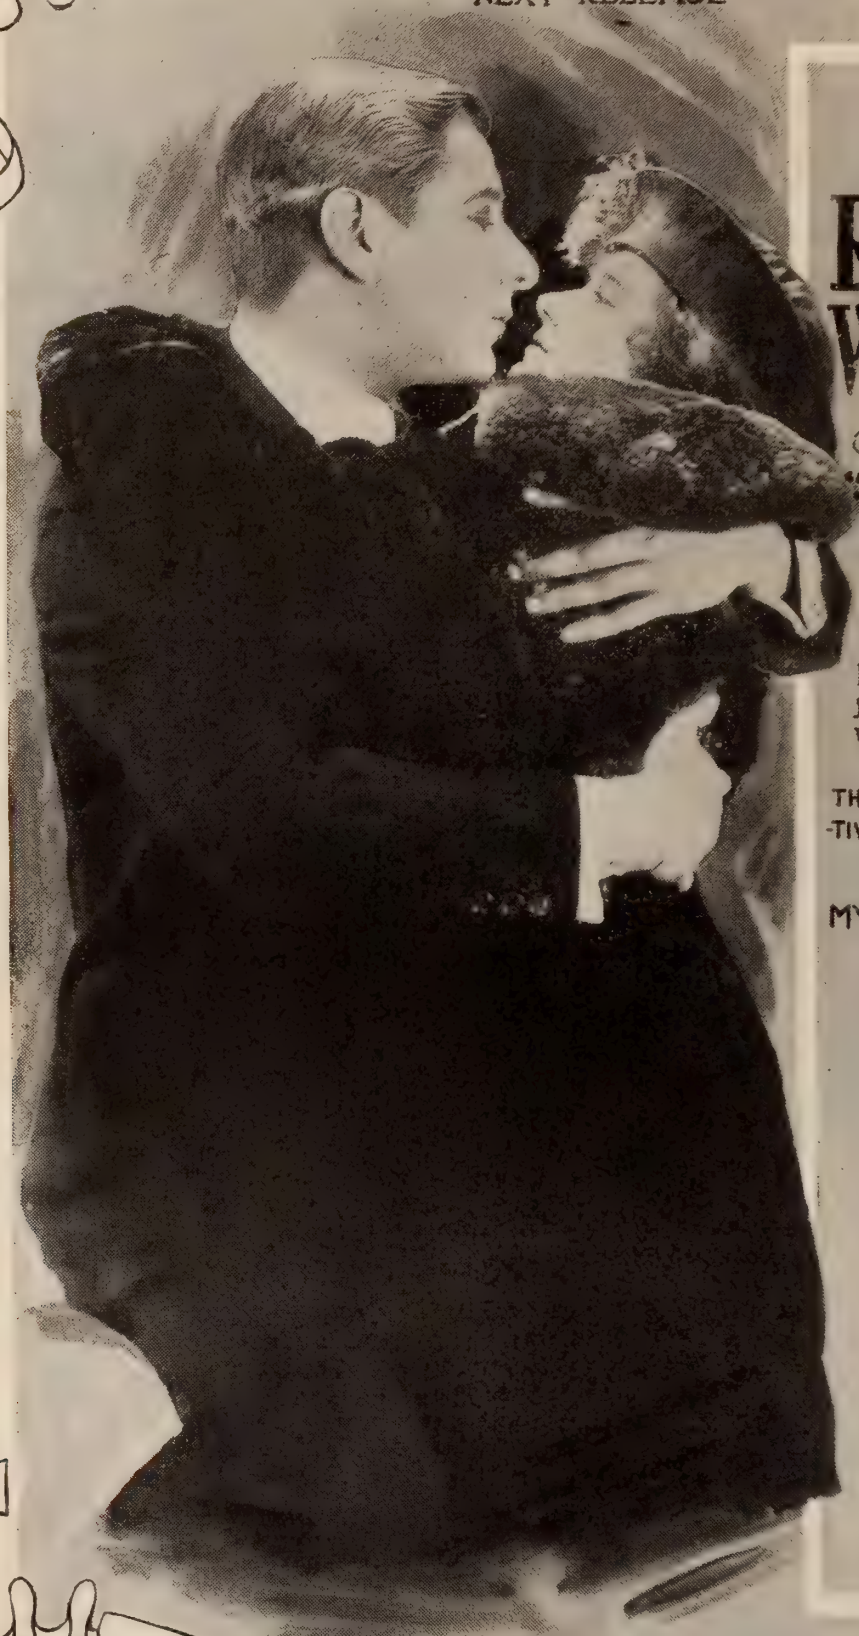
When you are laying out your programs and the question "What brand of comedies shall I book?" arises in your mind, consider

Cub Comedies

featuring

George Ovey

Cub Comedies are original conceptions in one reel comedy features. They present a popular comedian of proven box-office power and have splendid entertainment value through careful attention to every phase of production.



Current subjects are: "Jerry and his Pal," released Feb. 1; "Jerry's Big Raid," released Feb. 8.

Book through any exchange of the Mutual Film Corp.

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

SELZNICK PICTURES

NEXT RELEASE

HARRY RAPF
Presents

ROBERT WARWICK

In

(By Arrangement with Klaw & Erlanger.)

"THE ARGYLE CASE"

By
Harvey J. O'Higgins,
Harriet Ford, and
William J. Burns.

THE MOST ABSORBING DETECTIVE PLAY EVER WRITTEN.

MYSTERY!
SUSPENSE!
ACTION!
THRILLS!

AND A CHARMING LOVE INTEREST.

Directed By RALPH
W.
INCE

BRANCHES EVERYWHERE

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS
LEWIS J. SELZNICK EXCHANGES

SELZNICK PICTURES

THE NEXT

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

PRODUCTION IS ALMOST READY FOR RELEASE.....

"THE PRICE SHE PAID"

By David Graham Phillips

Directed by

CHARLES GIBLYN

ALBERT CAPELLANI - Director Gen'l

A BRILLIANT SOCIETY STORY WITH A FIFTH AVENUE AND PALM BEACH ATMOSPHERE

WILL MAKE THE GIRLS SAY "ISN'T SHE THE LOVELIEST THING YOU EVER SAW"

Joseph M. Schenck Presents

NORMA TALMADGE

In

"PANTHEA"

By Monckton Hoffe

Directed by ALLAN DWAN

THE RIALTO
TIMES SQUARE
NEW YORK

January 12, 1917

My Dear Mr. Selznick:

It may be gratifying for you to know that "Panthea" with Norma Talmadge is doing tremendous business at this theatre and is creating a great deal of satisfaction. In my opinion it is one of the most powerful dramatic stories I have seen in the last two or three years, and if you keep on making pictures like this you will set a standard that will be hard to surpass.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) S. L. ROTHAPFEL

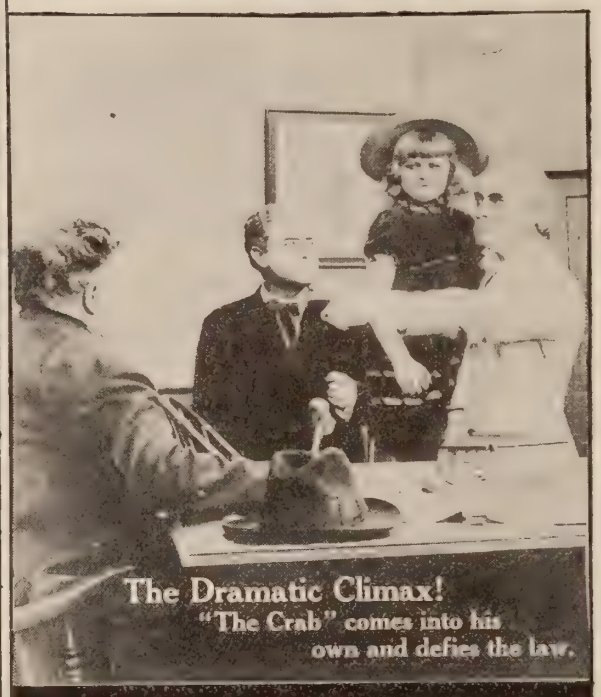
Managing Director

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS

BRANCHES LEWIS J. SELZNICK EXCHANGES EVERYWHERE

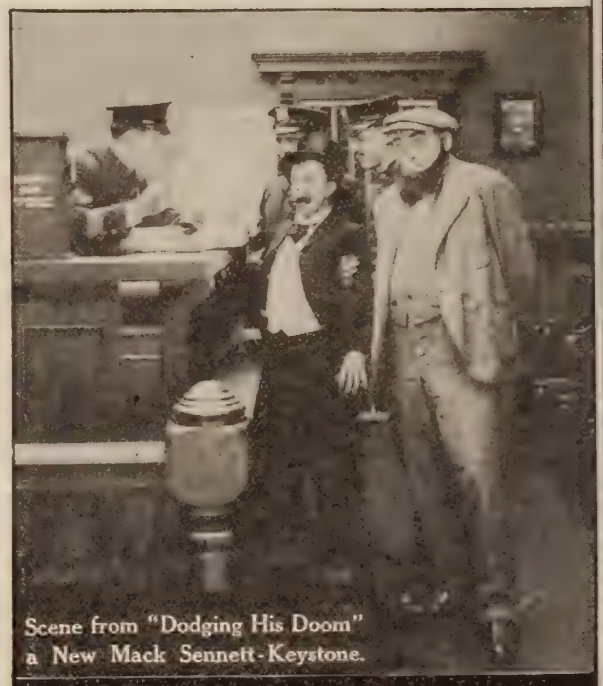
A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

TRIANGLE



SUNDAY, FEB. 4th

Wilfred Lucas in "Jim Bludso" | Fine Arts



and

A Triangle Komedy

"THE MALE GOVERNESS"

The Dramatic Climax!
"The Crab" comes into his own and defies the law.

Scene from "Dodging His Doom" a New Mack Sennett-Keystone.

THURSDAY, FEB. 8th

Thelma Salter with Frank Keenan in "The Crab" | Ince-Kay Bee

and

A Triangle Komedy

"THE ROAD AGENT"

Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies

The New Comedies are the funniest plays that have ever left this studio. They are quicker and brighter and have more laughs than any plays that have borne the Keystone trade mark.

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

PICTURES

To Exhibitors—

Beginning February 11th, the famous Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies will be available for your booking on the independent release basis, as outlined in this space three weeks ago.

Beginning with the date mentioned one two-reel Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedy will be available each week. Our selling plan is now in the hands of our Branch Office managers and will be communicated to you on application.

This plan has been designed in your interest as well as ours, and makes favoritism or personal influence impossible by any individual. You contract for a specific thing and get it definitely on the date and at the price agreed upon.

Our advice to you is to lose no time in getting in touch with our exchanges on this new Keystone plan. We have spent much time and thought in putting it together, and it gives all exhibitors an equal opportunity to obtain these distinctive comedies.

Triangle Distributing Corporation,
1457 Broadway, New York.

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

THE GREATEST COMBINATION of STARS EVER OFFERED in ONE MOTION PICTURE PRODUCTION

BOOK THROUGH TRIANGLE

McClure Series Dep't., TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING

Book SEVEN DEADLY SINS with seven big stars

A McClure series of seven five-reel features, each play exemplifying one of the Seven Deadly Sins. Not an allegory, not a morality series, but seven modern plays full of thrills, laughter and heart-throbs. A series backed by McCLURE PUBLICITY.

BOOK THE ENTIRE SERIES

THE NEAREST EXCHANGE

McCLURE PICTURES

CORPORATION 1459 B'way NEW YORK CITY

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

Your Greatest Need

in business, is dependability in the product you sell.

You need goods produced by capable, honest, reliable people, who put something of themselves into everything they make and sell.

Think of the World Pictures Brady-Made released during the last six months—just one success after another. Think of the steady and ever increasing income they have brought to exhibitors.

Your conclusion will be that for consistent seat-selling power and absolute dependability, the high-water mark of quality has been reached by

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

WILLIAM A. BRADY
in association with WORLD PICTURES
presents

MARIE DRESSLER

in "Tillie wakes up"

Cast including JOHNNY HINES

Story by MARK SWAN Directed by HARRY DAVENPORT

STATE RIGHT BUYERS

"HER CONDONED SIN"

IN SIX REELS

PRODUCED BY

D. W. GRIFFITH

(Founded on Judith of Bethulia)

The most magnificent and artistic spectacle staged by this celebrated producer

Included in the Cast are

HENRY WALTHALL	MAE MARSH
BLANCHE SWEET	ROBERT HARRON
LILLIAN GISH	DOROTHY GISH

For allotments of territory and terms address

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
796 East 176th Street
New York City

The one picture that everyone likes to see is the news film.
First in the field the slogan of the Pathé News has always been "Quality First." Now with the vast Hearst publicity behind it and with the world's greatest news gathering facilities at its disposal

The Hearst-Pathé News

is the world's greatest film newspaper and therefore the exhibitor's best money-maker.

Ask the nearest Pathé Exchange for it.

Pathé

Society
Unselfish Patriotism
Romance
Thrill after Thrill
The Best Known Woman in America
The Idol of New York's 400
A Story that holds you from Start to Finish
All these you will find in

PATRIA

The Serial Supreme
with

Mrs. Vernon Castle

Ask the nearest Pathé Exchange to screen several episodes for you we are confident as to what your verdict will be

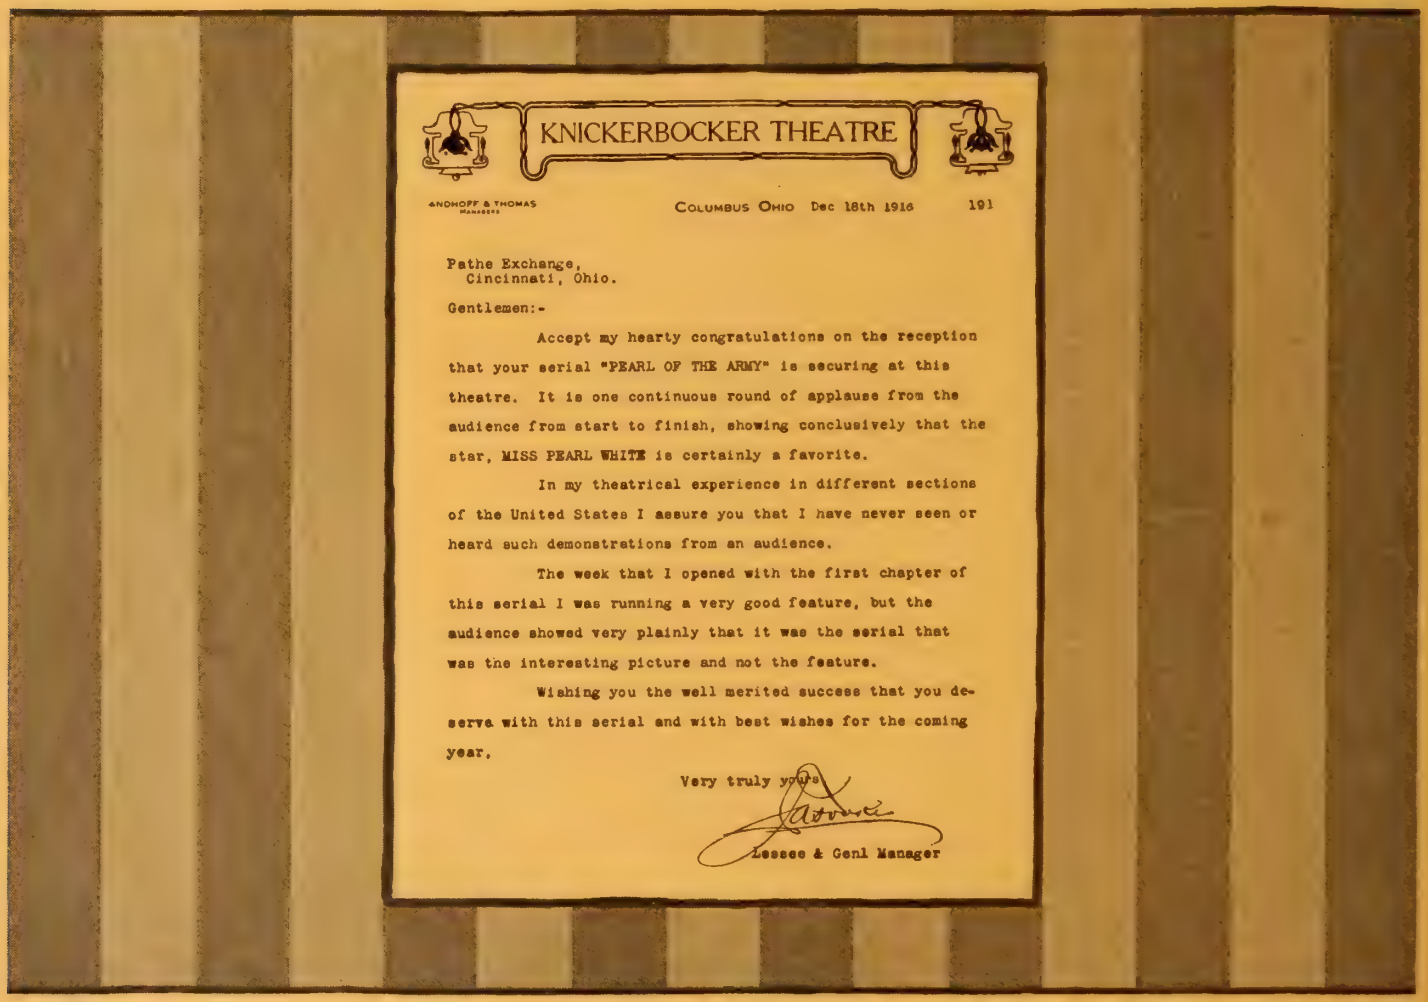
Booked for a week's run by the greatest vaudeville theatre in the world, Keiths Palace — The first time they have shown a motion picture serial. Booked also by all the other Keith Houses in Greater New York.

Released Jan. 14



Pathé

Mrs. Vernon Castle
in the International Serial Supreme
PATRIA
Written by Louis Joseph Vance Produced by Wharton Inc.

Pathé

"One continuous round of applause from start to finish on Pearl of the Army"

KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE

ANDHOFF & THOMAS
Managers

COLUMBUS OHIO Dec 18th 1916 191

Pathe Exchange,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Gentlemen:-

Accept my hearty congratulations on the reception that your serial "PEARL OF THE ARMY" is securing at this theatre. It is one continuous round of applause from the audience from start to finish, showing conclusively that the star, MISS PEARL WHITE is certainly a favorite.

In my theatrical experience in different sections of the United States I assure you that I have never seen or heard such demonstrations from an audience.

The week that I opened with the first chapter of this serial I was running a very good feature, but the audience showed very plainly that it was the serial that was the interesting picture and not the feature.

Wishing you the well merited success that you deserve with this serial and with best wishes for the coming year,

Very truly yours

Lessee & Genl Manager

Pearl White will draw more people into your theatre than any other star, man or woman. Thousands of exhibitors say so. When the public see her name in front of the theatre they flock in.

Produced by Astra. Directed by Edward Jos

Pearl White
heroine of six Pathé Serials-
all successful, star of "Pearl of the Army"

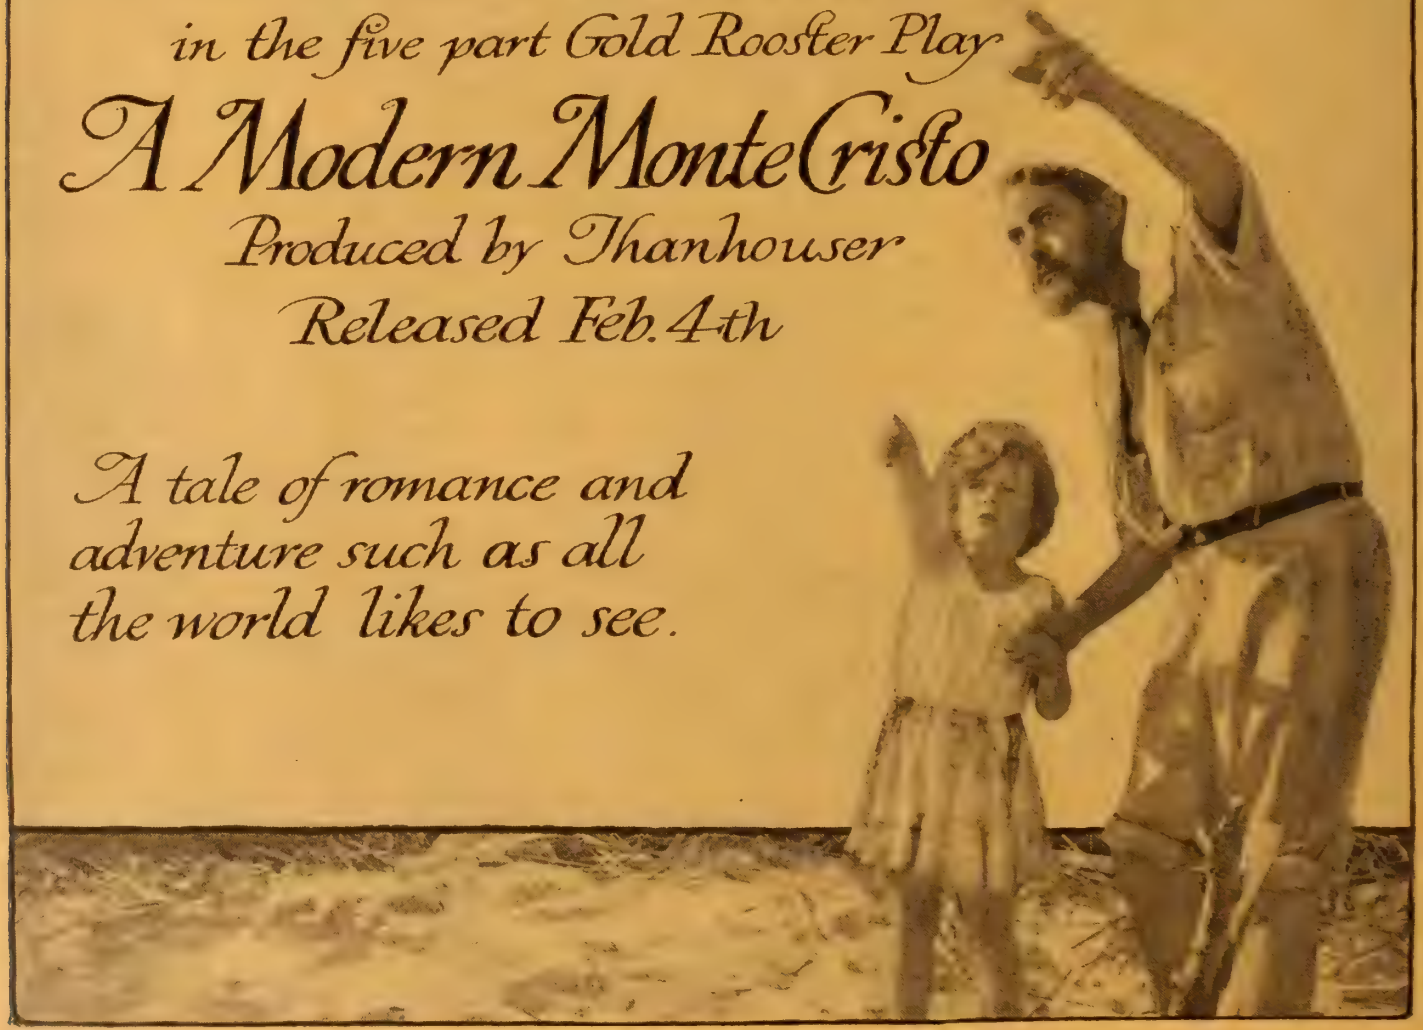
Pathé presents

Vincent Serrano



in the five part Gold Rooster Play

A Modern Monte Cristo

Produced by Thanhouser

Released Feb. 4th

A tale of romance and adventure such as all the world likes to see.

ART DRAMAS

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL - PRESIDENT

Wise exhibitors—men like Marcus Loew, William Fox, B. S. Moss, Alfred Hamburger—show Art Dramas at their theatres.

Are you showing an Art Drama to-day?

BOOKING AT THESE EXCHANGES

NEW YORK—MODERN FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc., 729 Seventh Avenue.
BOSTON—BOSTON PHOTOPLAY COMPANY, 205 Pleasant Avenue.
PHILADELPHIA—ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO., 1321 Vine Street.
PITTSBURGH—LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO., 938 Penn Avenue.
DETROIT—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, 120 Broadway.
CLEVELAND—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Sincere Building.
CINCINNATI—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Strand Theatre Building.
CHICAGO—ART DRAMAS SERVICE, 207 South Wabash Avenue.
SAN FRANCISCO—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Humboldt Bank Building.
LOS ANGELES—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Los Angeles Investment Building.
DALLAS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, 1911 Commerce Street.
NEW ORLEANS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, Film Building.
SALT LAKE CITY—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, 137 East 2nd Street South.
DENVER—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, Welton Street.
KANSAS CITY—STANDARD FILM CORP., 319 Gloyd Building.
ST. LOUIS—STANDARD FILM CORP.
DES MOINES—STANDARD FILM CORP.

116 WEST 39TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

ART DRAMAS

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL - PRESIDENT

Harry R. Raver

presents that magnetic star

ALMA HANLON

in a powerful drama

"GOD OF LITTLE CHILDREN"

Produced by Apollo Pictures, Inc.

Released January 18th

BOOKING AT THESE EXCHANGES

NEW YORK—MODERN FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc., 729 Seventh Avenue.
BOSTON—BOSTON PHOTOPLAY COMPANY, 205 Pleasant Avenue.
PHILADELPHIA—ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO., 1321 Vine Street.
PITTSBURGH—LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO., 938 Penn Avenue.
DETROIT—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, 120 Broadway.
CLEVELAND—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Sincere Building.
CINCINNATI—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Strand Theatre Building.
CHICAGO—ART DRAMAS SERVICE, 207 South Wabash Avenue.
SAN FRANCISCO—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Humboldt Bank Building.
LOS ANGELES—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Los Angeles Investment Building.
DALLAS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, 1911 Commerce Street.
NEW ORLEANS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, Film Building.
SALT LAKE CITY—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, 137 East 2nd Street South.
DENVER—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, Welton Street.
KANSAS CITY—STANDARD FILM CORP., 319 Gloyd Building.
ST. LOUIS—STANDARD FILM CORP.
DES MOINES—STANDARD FILM CORP.

116 WEST 39TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

ART DRAMAS

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL - PRESIDENT

George H. Wiley

presents the winsome artiste

JEAN SOTHERN

in a photodrama of sunshine and heart-throbs

"HER GOOD NAME"

Produced by Van Dyke Film Corp.

Released January 25th

BOOKING AT THESE EXCHANGES

NEW YORK—MODERN FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc., 729 Seventh Avenue.
BOSTON—BOSTON PHOTOPLAY COMPANY, 205 Pleasant Avenue.
PHILADELPHIA—ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO., 1321 Vine Street.
PITTSBURGH—LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO., 938 Penn Avenue.
DETROIT—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, 120 Broadway.
CLEVELAND—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Sincere Building.
CINCINNATI—TRI STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Strand Theatre Building.
CHICAGO—ART DRAMAS SERVICE, 207 South Wabash Avenue.
SAN FRANCISCO—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Humboldt Bank Building.
LOS ANGELES—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Los Angeles Investment Building.
DALLAS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, 1911 Commerce Street.
NEW ORLEANS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, Film Building.
SALT LAKE CITY—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, 137 East 2nd Street South.
DENVER—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, Welton Street.
KANSAS CITY—STANDARD FILM CORP., 319 Gloyd Building.
ST. LOUIS—STANDARD FILM CORP.
DES MOINES—STANDARD FILM CORP.

116 WEST 39TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

士 Sr. Gran Vía Jones

Feiner Wilhelm Jones

振 Gaskiga Jones

ΜΟΥΡΟΥΖΗΣ ΤΖΩΝΣ

威 M. Montmartre Jones

בראָדווי דזשאָונס 律

Sig. Buontempone Jones

布 Бульварный Джоунсъ

Broadway Jones

How the world will read the title of
GEORGE M. COHAN'S initial photoplay
Released by
Artcraft Pictures Corporation
729 Seventh Ave., N.Y. City

Artcraft put Mullen, Neb. on the Map!

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

TELEPHONE BELL GRAND 2812

22ND AND GRAND AVE. TWO BLOCKS EAST OF UNION STATION KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI

2ND FLOOR MORIARTY BUILDING

Artcraft Pictures Corporation,
New York, N.Y.

Gentlemen:

Subject: SMALL TOWN ACCOUNTS.

I claim the record for the United States. I have just closed a contract today with John J. Motl of Mullen, Nebraska. The town of Mullen is so small that it does not even appear in the Postal guide which I have been using as a basis of figuring populations. I finally found the town listed on Rand-McNally's map as having a population of 105 people. To make it still more singular Mr. Motl will use each picture two days.

How is that for a record? I would like to know to satisfy my own curiosity.

Yours truly,

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION

R. A. Wreath Manager.

ARTCRAFT is not confined to any city or village, however large or small, but is appropriate to the larger city, the smaller village and everything in between, for ARTCRAFT represents photoplay advancement—and advancement is not limited to size or population.

Artcraft Pictures Corporation

729 Seventh Ave, New York.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

MACK SENNETT PRESENTS

THE LITTLE GIRL

YOU WILL NEVER FORGET

MISS MABEL NORMAND

and

HER OWN COMPANY

in

"MICKEY"

METHOD AND DATE OF RELEASE
WILL BE ANNOUNCED
LATER

Kessel and Baumann, Executives
Longacre Bldg., New York City

MACK SENNETT—KEYSTONES

ONLY ONE KIND

THE UTMOST IN COMEDY

NOW READY FOR RELEASE

INDEPENDENT OF ANY PROGRAM

ONE TWO REELER EVERY WEEK

"STARS AND 'BARS'"
"MAGGIE'S FIRST FALSE STEP"
"HER CIRCUS KNIGHT"
"DODGING HIS DOOM"
"VILLA OF THE MOVIES"
"HER FAME AND SHAME"
"A MAIDEN'S TRUST"
"HER NATURE DANCE"
"A ROYAL ROGUE"

Triangle Film Corp., Distributors

Kessel and Baumann, Executives
Longacre Bldg., New York City

THE SUN IS RISING
ON A NEW ERA
OF Clean, Wholesome, Stirring Photoplays

THE M.L.B. FILM CO.
Presents

GLORY

A Delightful Romance of Love and Adventure
IN SEVEN REELS
Featuring
JUANITA HANSEN
and
KOLB AND DILL

A PICTURE FOR ALL AGES

ANY UNITY EXCHANGE
WILL TAKE CARE OF YOUR WANTS
Distributed Exclusively By

UNITY
729 7th AVE. NEW YORK

DITMARS

Animal Pictures

Produced by

RAYMOND L. DITMARS, Curator of New York Zoological Society

"THE LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

This is a series of one-part pictures in which Mr. Ditmars has caught the peculiar habits and lives of the strangest animals on earth, involving startling situations and plenty of humor throughout.

Nothing of this kind has ever been offered—they are vigorous, interesting, startling revelations of the strange doings of animals. The Strand Theatre, New York City, ran these pictures during the past seventeen weeks and will continue.

Can you afford to miss this chance to book these pictures that are having a record breaking run?

Released February 5th through the following exchanges:—

Quality Film Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.
WEST PA. & WEST VA.

Metro Film Service, Philadelphia, Pa.
EASTERN PA. & SO. N. J.

Eastern Feature Film Co., Boston, Mass.
NEW ENGLAND STATES

Photo Play Exchange, Salt Lake City
UTAH, COLORADO, WYOMING, EASTERN IDAHO, EASTERN MONTANA, NEW MEXICO

Lambson Film Exchange, Seattle, Wash.
OREGON, WASHINGTON, IDAHO, MONTANA

Monarch Feature Film Co., Kansas City, Mo.
MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, NEBRASKA

Broadway Feature Film Co., Detroit, Mich.
MICHIGAN

Celebrated Players Co., Chicago. Ill.
INDIANA, ILLINOIS

* * *

BALANCE OF TERRITORY TO BEANNOUNCED LATER.

* * *

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

You Don't Have to "Choose" Edison Pictures

You can book any or all of the productions of the Edison studios, knowing they are the kind that will please your patrons and add prestige to your theatre.

"THE ROYAL PAUPER"

(For Release Feb. 19th)

A five-reel masterpiece based on one of the finest of the stories of Henry Albert Phillips. It features young and beautiful

FRANCINE LARRIMORE

The Idol of Broadway

"The Royal Pauper" is a story of two children who start life in a poor-house. One of them is a little girl who creates for herself an imaginary Fairyland in the midst of her sordid surroundings and who sees, in the pitiable characters around her, a retinue that might have stepped forth from her tattered, but treasured, book of fairy tales. The other child is a boy who revolts against the treatment he receives and who escapes into the world to seek his fortune.

Separated, they pass through many very strange but very realistic adventures, only to be brought together in the after years under conditions very different from those in which they parted. And, like all good stories of Fairyland, as well as real life, it all ends with them "living happily ever afterward."

A TENDER AND BEAUTIFUL STORY, SUPERBLY PRODUCED AND PLAYED, FILLED WITH HUMAN INTEREST AND STRONG IN ITS APPEAL TO THE SYMPATHIES

Exhibitors in All Parts of the Country are "Packing Them In" with

"THE MASTER PASSION"

a powerful and thought-compelling drama presenting MARC MACDERMOTT and MIRIAM NESBITT

OTHER EDISON FIVE-REEL MASTERPICTURES NOW AVAILABLE ARE

"The Cossack Whip," with VIOLA DANA

"A Message to Garcia," with MABEL TRUNNELLE and ROBERT CONNESS

"The Last Sentence," with MARC MACDERMOTT and MIRIAM NESBITT

"The Heart of the Hills," with MABEL TRUNNELLE and CONWAY TEARLE

KLEINE - EDISON - SELIG - ESSANAY SERVICE

80 Fifth Avenue, New York, and other principal cities

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

"THE PRINCESS OF PATCHES"

Mark Swan's Melodrama of Southern Life, Adapted as a Selig Red Seal Play by Gilson Willets, Featuring Vivian Reed and a Capable Company. A Thrilling Drama of Plot and Counter Plot with Bonafide Scenes of the South as a Beautiful Setting. Five Gripping Reels. Released January 22.

"THE HEART OF TEXAS RYAN"

Gilson Willets' Love Story of the Lone Star State Introducing One of the Most Distinguished Casts Ever Seen in a Five Reel Picture, Including George Fawcett, Bessie Eyton, Frank Campeau and others. A Forest Fire, a Ride for Life, an Auto Smash-up Are But a Few of a Succession of Exciting Situations. Five Thrilling Reels. Released February 12.

BOOK "THE ROSARY" DURING LENTEN SEASON

You Can Cash in with "The Rosary" During Lent. Seven Soul-stirring Reels Carrying a Passionate Love Story and a Strong Moral Lesson. Kathlyn Williams Supported by a Cast That Includes Wheeler Oakman, Charles Clary and Eugenie Besserer. Book now at the nearest K. E. S. E. Exchange.

Selig Red Seal Plays Get the Money!

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

Chicago, Illinois

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

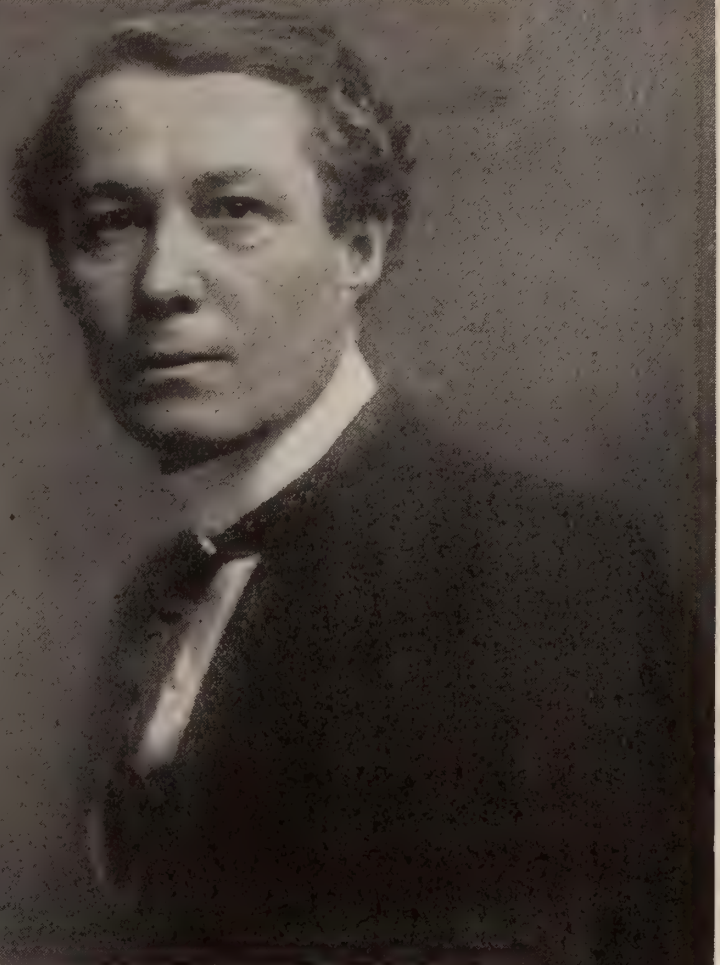
BRYANT WASHBURN

IS PRESENTED IN

Skinner's Dress Suit

TAKEN from the famous story by Henry Irving Dodge in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. 5,000,000 readers of the Post were thrilled by the story. Every one will want to see the play. You have a ready made audience waiting. Don't miss this opportunity for a self advertised photoplay—a drama full of heart interest; it strikes a note that reaches every home.

screen time 1 hour, 15 minutes. Harry Beaumont, Director



K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

K LEINE E DISON S ELIG E SSANAY

HENRY B. WALTHALL, America's greatest actor, plays the melody of child love on the heart strings in "LITTLE SHOES." A tense drama, clean, sweet, beautiful — just the thing for the entire family.

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Essanay

GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

General Film Service

BLACK CAT

Features

FILL ALL THEATRES

Book them every Tuesday--
They are sure drawing cards

Here are the latest:

"THE HOODOOED STORY"

presenting

Richard C. Travers
and Gertrude Glover

Screen time 28 minutes Released Feb. 6th

"THREE WAYS OUT"

presenting

Harry Dunkinson
and Gertrude Glover

Screen time 27 minutes Released Jan. 30th

Other Essanays:

"MR. WRIGHT IN WRONG"

featuring

Billy Mason and Ruth Hennessy with Alaskan scenic

Screen time 15 minutes Released Jan. 31

IS MARRIAGE SACRED ?

presenting the

ESSANAY STOCK COMPANY

Five screen stars of international reputation.

Marguerite Clayton
Edward Arnold
Lillian Drew
Sydney Ainsworth
Thomas Commerford

appear every Saturday in a series of 12 thrilling dramas on

MARRIAGE and DIVORCE

Each play has a separate and distinct plot. Here they are:

"The Burning Band"--Dec. 16th
"Dancing With Folly"--Dec. 23d
"Wife in Sunshine"--Dec. 30th
"When the Man Speaks"--Jan. 6th
"The Wide Wrong Way"--Jan. 13th
"The Sinful Marriage"--Jan. 20th
"The Magic Mirror"--Jan. 27th
"Shifting Shadows"--Feb. 3d
"Desertion and Nonsupport"--Feb. 10th
"Ashes on the Hearthstone"--Feb. 17th
"The Extravagant Bride"--Feb. 24
"Social Obligations"--March 3rd

Solves all seat selling problems

BOOKING NOW

By Charles Mortimer Peck
Directed by E. H. Calvert

ESSANAY
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

General Film Service

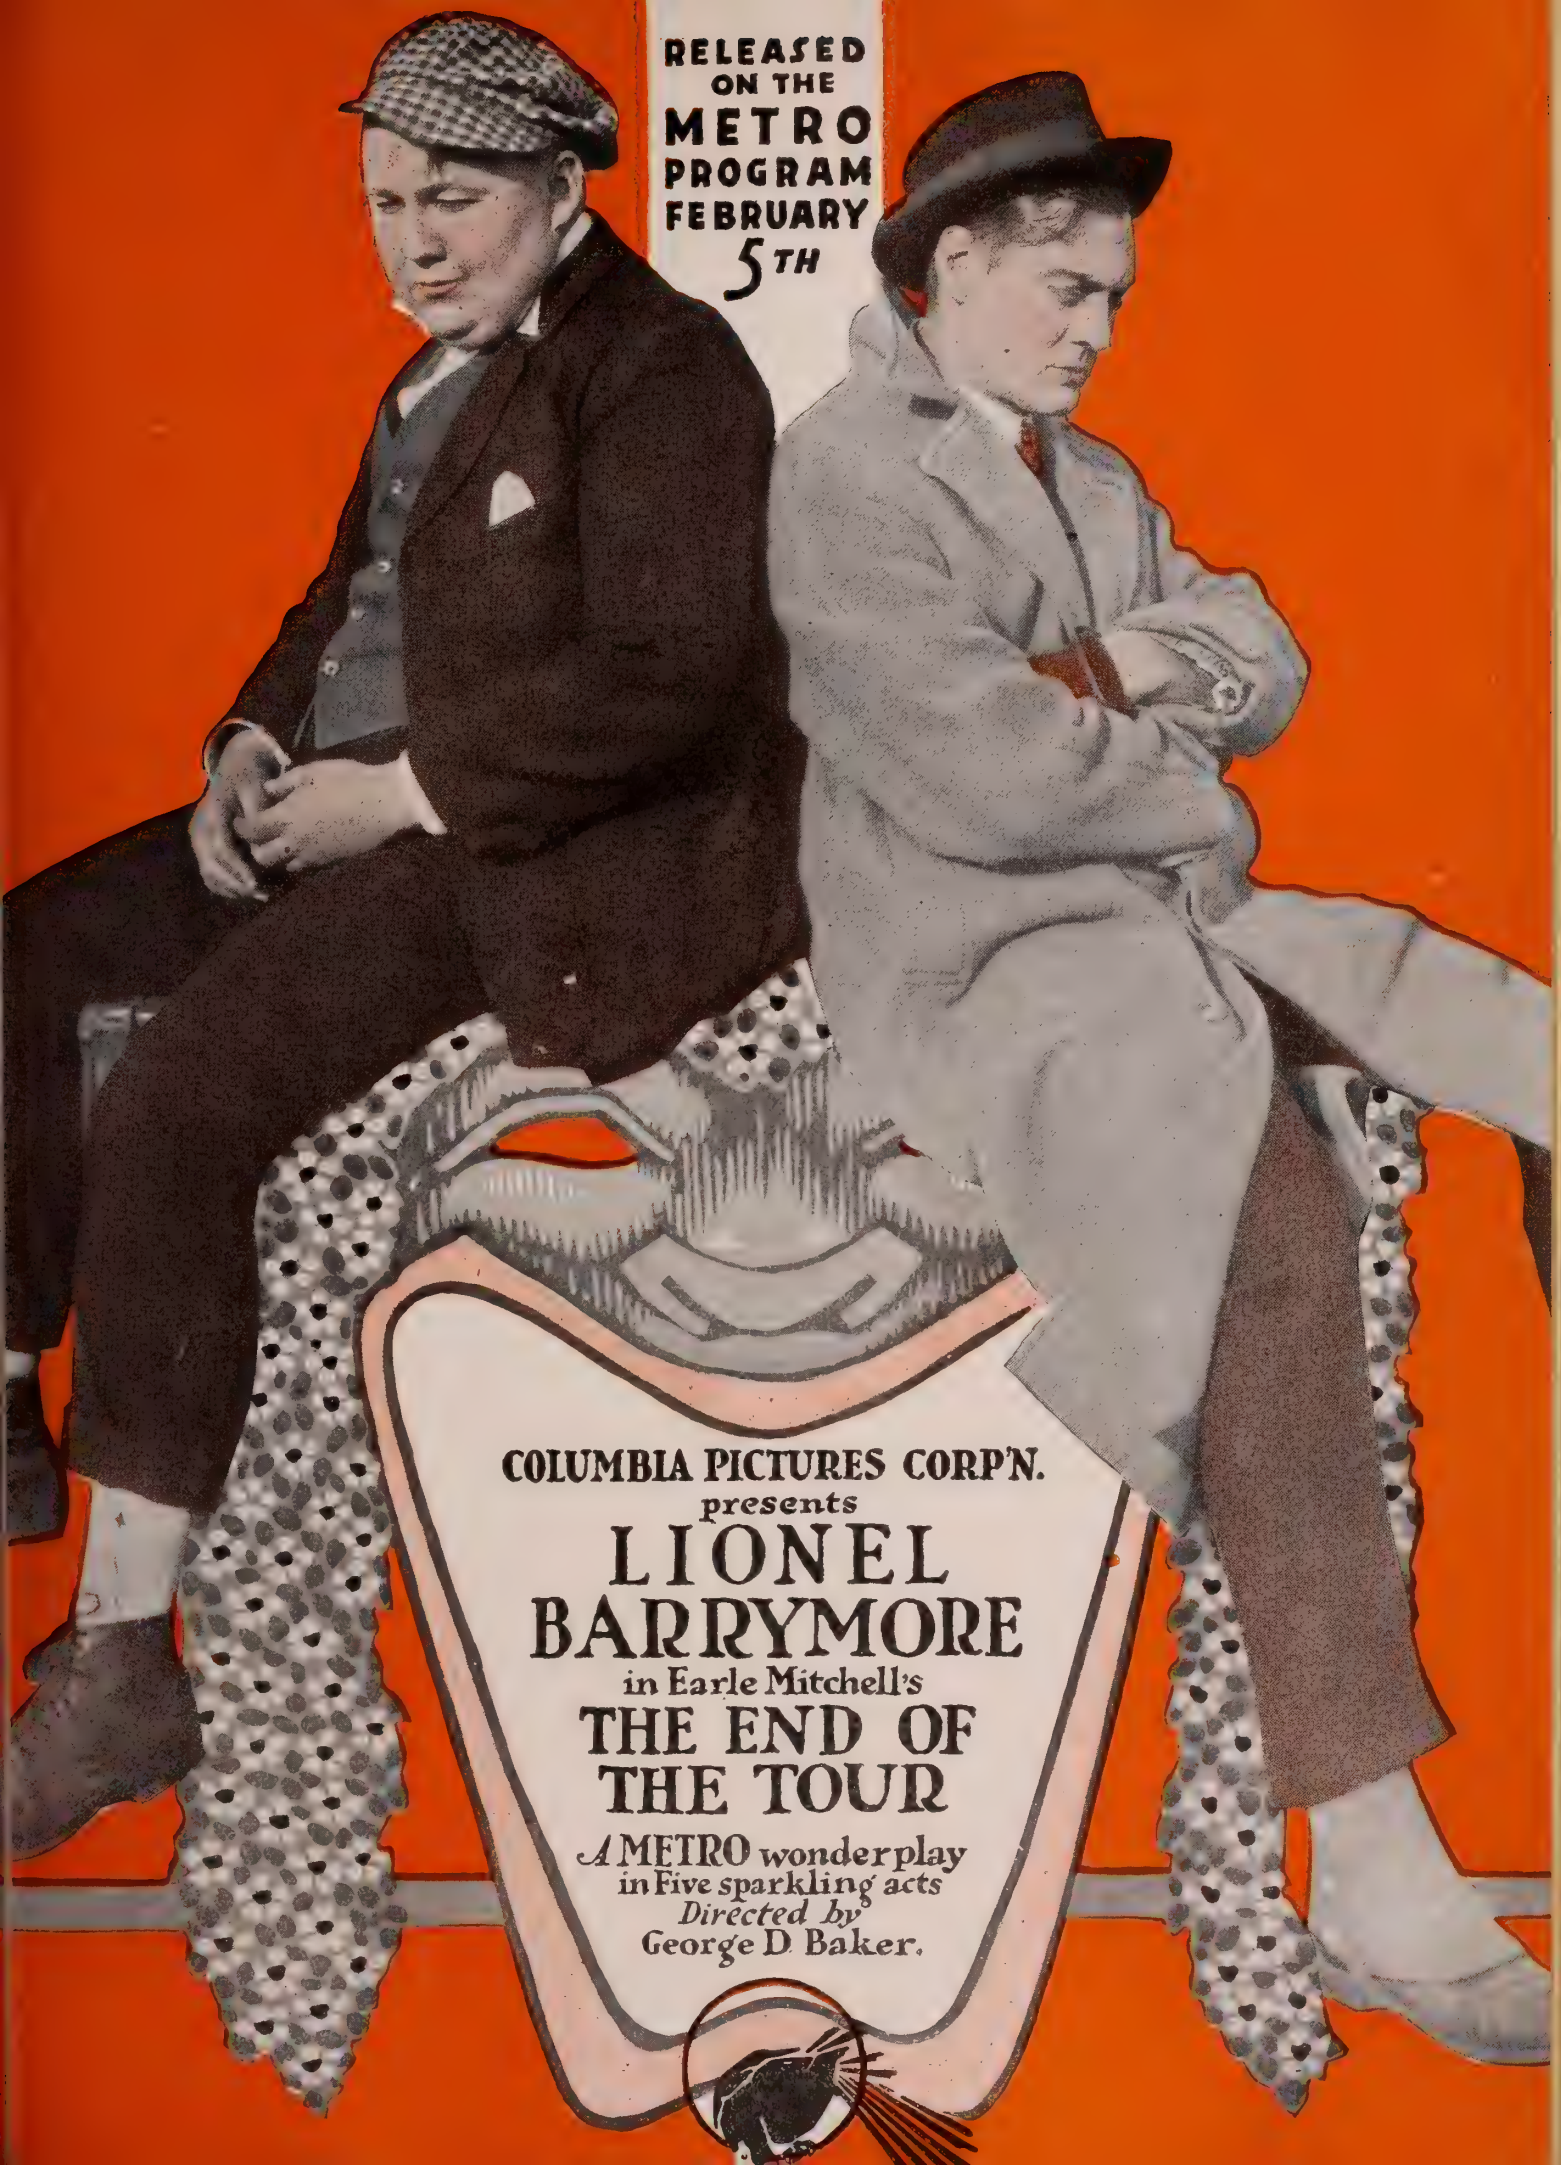
A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

Criticisms of Ethel Barrymore in "The White Raven"

"Ethel Barrymore takes her place among the big stars of the pictures – an offering of the first magnitude"—
Motion Picture News

"A distinct addition to the world of motion pictures"—
N.Y. Herald

"Most artistic production"—
Eve. Telegram



"Unusually interesting"—
N.Y. World

"Artistic success —
N.Y. Sun

"A capital picture —coherent dramatic story —
N.Y. Times

"The White Raven" is a standard METRO production.

RELEASED ON THE METRO PROGRAM FEBRUARY 5TH
COLUMBIA PICTURES CORP'N.
presents
LIONEL BARRYMORE
in Earle Mitchell's
THE END OF THE TOUR
A METRO wonderplay
in Five sparkling acts
Directed by George D. Baker.

A NATIONAL INSTITUTION

STRAND THEATRE OF NEW YORK

OFFICE of HAROLD EDEL MANAGING DIRECTOR

MITCHEL H. MARK PRES. and GEN. MGR.

Mr. Edel, of New York's Great Strand Theatre, Stands Solid on His Tremendous Letter!!!

January 15, 1917.

Germanic War Films, Inc.,
729 Seventh Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—

Relative to what success we have had with your film "GERMANY AND ITS ARMIES OF TO-DAY," I beg to advise that last week's business broke all records in the history of the Strand Theatre, with the exception of one week last year, the attraction that week being the Lasky production of Geraldine Farrar in "Carmen."

The picture of "GERMANY AND ITS ARMIES OF TO-DAY" will unquestionably arouse tremendous interest throughout the country, and considering the success which it has met with here at the Strand Theatre, it ought to prove to be a bonanza for all exhibitors. We are now in the third week with the installment of "GENERAL VON MACKENSEN AND HIS ARMIES IN ROUMANIA."

Yours very truly,

G. B. Edel.
Managing Director.

YOU Certainly Can Bank On It!

THREE REASONS WHY:

Because it is NOT a war picture.
It's a picture ABOUT war.
Because it has no "near battle" scenes.
It has the big human appeal scenes.
Because it is not terrifying.
It's intense, touching, convincing.

The Picture is

"Germany and Its Armies Today"

State Rights--Smashing Display--Everything!

GERMANIC OFFICIAL WAR FILMS, Inc.

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

THE DEEMSTER
BY HALL CAINE

State Rights Now Selling

Starring
Derwent Hall Caine
(SON OF THE AUTHOR) in the Dramatic Sensation of the Day.

ARROW FILM CORPORATION
TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

"It Plays on the Heart Strings"

THE GIRL WHO DIDN'T THINK

Six Tremendous Parts

Pulsing with Human Interest

Replete with Gorgeous Settings

The Kind of Picture the Public Wants

Presenting in one of Her Strongest Roles

JANE GAIL

The International Screen Favorite

Supported by a Notable Cast, Including

STANLEY WALPOLE

PREMIER PHOTOPLAY STAR

The Famous Russian Tragedienne

MAY SIMON

and Helen Milholland

Ready for Immediate Distribution on the STATES RIGHTS PLAN

Complete with Everything the Exhibitor Needs to Get the Money— Heralds, Lobby Photos, Newspaper Cuts, and 1, 3, 6, and 24-sheet Pictorial Posters

Wire or Write at Once!

Creative Film Corporation
Strand Theatre Bldg. New York City

Wm. N. Selig
PRESENTS

Helen Ware

IN ROBERT HICHENS' LOVE ROMANCE OF THE GREAT SAHARA DESERT

"The Garden of Allah"

State Rights Buyers Communicate
Now with Selig Polyscope Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

WATCH FOR THESE 2 EXTRAORDINARY SPECIAL COMEDY FEATURES—PRESENTING ALICE HOWELL IN "BALLOONATICS" AND "AUTOMANIACS"

DIRECTED BY
J.G. BLYSTONE
DIRECTOR GENERAL

"A NATIONAL INSTITUTION"
STRAND THEATRE OF NEW YORK
MITCHEL H. MARK PRES. AND GEN. MGR.
OFFICE OF HAROLD EDEL MANAGING DIRECTOR

January 19th, 1917

Mr. Julius Stern, Pres.,
L-Ko Motion Picture Corp.,
Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Sir:-

Your comedy film "Balloonatics" featuring Alice Howell which we exhibited during the past week at The Strand, proved immensely popular with our audiences, and unquestionably was one of the best comedies that we have shown in some time.

It was indeed most gratifying to note the reception which was accorded this picture.

Your second production "Auto Maniacs" we will accept under the same terms and conditions and I personally think it on a par with "Balloonatics".

Anticipating more comedies of this quality from you, I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
G. Edel
MANAGING DIRECTOR.

READ, what one of the shrewdest Moving Picture Theatre Managers in the United States says of "BALOONATICS" and "AUTOMANIACS." The only thing that counts in ANY Comedy with Mr. Edel is ITS BOX OFFICE POWER. BOTH these Comedies played capacity at the Strand, America's Finest Picture Theatre. Book them both. They are world beaters. A series of convulsions from start to finish. They will pack your house. Book and exhibit them for at least two or three nights.

L-KO MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION
JULIUS STERN PRES.
HOLLYWOOD, CAL. EASTERN OFFICES 1600 B'WAY N.Y.C.

The Masque of Life
Signetfilms—220 W. 42, N. Y.

Sold to

Marcus Loew, N. Y. State.

Westcott Film Corp. (E. A. Westcott, Gen. Mgr.), Minneapolis, Minn., Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin.

Jones, Linick & Schaefer (Aaron Jones, Gen. Mgr.), Chicago, Ill., Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan.

K. & R. Film Co. Inc. (R. R. Roberts, Gen. Mgr.), Baltimore, Md., Delaware, Dist. of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia.

Supreme Photoplay Productions (Harry F. Grelle, Gen. Mgr.), Pittsburgh, Pa., New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio.

The Best People in America

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

K LEINE E DISON S ELIG E SSANAY

MAX LINDER

Most comical comedian in the world and his

BEVY OF BLONDE BEAUTIES

Coming soon in his first release

DON'T FAIL TO BOOK THE ENTIRE SERIES—THE 12 FUNNIEST COMEDIES SCREENED.

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

Volume XV Number 5 February 3 1917

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Wm. A. Johnston, Pres. and Editor; Henry F. Sewall, Vice-Pres.; E. Kendall Gillett, Sec.; H. A. Wyckoff, Treas.

Chicago Offices, Mgr. T. S. Mead, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 427 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, 462 Broadway, F-2188.

Subscriptions $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N.B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

News of the Week

Ochs Protests Against Year-Old Universal Weekly Editorial 705

New York Exhibitors Hold State Convention..... 706

Makers of "Filth Films" to be Prosecuted 706

Tax-Investigating Committee Makes Little Progress..... 707

Tax Will Cripple Industry, Says Hampton..... 707

Advance Deposit System—by George Kleine..... 708

Move to Abolish Daily Change Gains Nationally..... 709

Local Picture Censors Made Powerless in Seattle..... 711

Tacoma to Censor Exhibitors' Advertising 711

Exhibitor Charges Blacklisting —Reply to F. I. L. M. Letter 713

Berst Takes News' Views on Sunday Pictures..... 714

Take a Little Advice from an Older People—Special Bray Cartoon 715

(Complete Table of Contents will be found on page 772)

Sign 'Em Up!

A PROMINENT director, lately returned to New York after a considerable absence, has had an eye-opening experience.

Two manufacturers immediately bid for his services—and in practically the same way.

"Now, see here," said each. "How much do you want?"

"Well," said the director, "I—I don't——"

"How about $——?" interrupted each manufacturer, mentioning a year's salary which approximates a millionaire's yearly income.

"Thanks," said the director. "But just a moment. You expect me to produce good pictures—of course.

"Well, then, there are other considerations more important than my salary. What material have you got? What is your organization?"

"Oh! That's all right," said the manufacturer. "We'll talk about that afterwards. Just sign your name here."

We cite this remarkable incident, not to indicate to legislative investigating committees that the manufacturer is rolling over in wealth—nor to the exhibitor that the manufacturer has money to throw away.

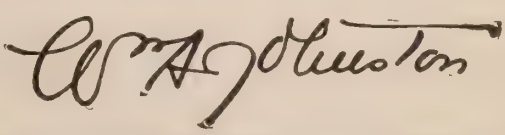
As a matter of fact we know for a certainty that the manufacturer is having the devil's own time to make or keep any money.

The point is that good pictures are not made by directors' salaries—nor stars' salaries, nor by anyone's salary.

The talent and money thrown helter-skelter and opulently into pictures today give ample proof of the producers' generous desire to make good pictures.

Production extravagance, in fact, savors of the early sluicing era of a great gold field.

And our distribution leaks are just like the gaping cracks of the first crudely made sluice boxes.



Gold is slipping through and away at an alarming rate. The waste-pile is getting it.

Salaries don't make good pictures.

Only one thing does—and that's organization.

It certainly is a portent of good pictures and good business to come to have a director wave aside an overwhelming salary and ask for the tools to work with.

It is a sign, we believe, of the sanity now entering the industry and of the solidity we all know it is bound to have.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

Speaking Editorially:

Write a Letter to Albany

ONE excellent letter from a small town exhibitor to his State Senator anent the proposed State tax has reached us.

If every other small town exhibitor in the State feels as wealthy as this exhibitor, if each can present a letter showing so plainly that another tax would be the straw to break the back of about every smaller picture house in the State, we doubt very much if the State Legislature will ponder very long over a tax on theatres.

Write a letter to your representatives at Albany. Just tell them the facts.

Tax the Stars

IT is quite evident that the matter uppermost in the minds of the Albany Investigating Committee is that of stars' salaries.

The committee figures offhand—and quite naturally—that any industry whose coffers permit of half-a-million a year salaries is just about the finest target imaginable for a State tax gun.

If the committee succeeds in exposing the silliness and danger of this amazing salary situation it will have done the industry one good turn, whatever else it may do.

How will the small theatres throughout the State, those whose managers are lying awake nights studying how to make both ends meet, regard the idea of paying a new tax to the State because its legislators believe the industry has millions to waste?

Words of Wisdom

GEORGE KLEINE speaks "the language of business" in his analysis of the advance deposit question appearing elsewhere in this issue. In the midst of a discussion that has waxed long and wordy it is refreshing to hear a cool and analytical summing up of the case.

May we suggest to the exhibitors who meet in convention in Albany to-day that in Mr. Kleine's summary there is a prompting to decisive action? The taking of a definite stand by the Albany Convention would offer to the exhibitors and manufacturers of the country a common meeting ground.

It would hasten to its end an issue that should never have reached its present magnitude.

Vaudeville—Pictures—Vaudeville

VAUDEVILLE arose and flourished because the legitimate stage was burdened with heavy melodrama, morbid, sex, vice and problem plays.

Vaudeville presented the variety bill of light, spirited entertainment which the amusement-loving public craves.

Motion pictures came along and presented a novelty at a lower price than vaudeville—but also a novelty of variety and clean, happy amusement.

Now the motion picture—strange to say—is going back to the heaviness and morbidity that drove people away from the legitimate stage.

And now the public is going back to vaudeville.

Facts! Cold hard facts! They are interestingly set forth in a letter in this issue from F. R. Newman of Greenville, Texas.

Mr. Newman is a showman.

In Behalf of Exhibitor Organization

IN an envelope of "Exhibitor's Trade Review" and upon the letterhead of the M. P. E. L. of America we are asked by Lee A. Ochs, President of "Exhibitor's Trade Review" and President of the M. P. E. L. of America, to publish an attack against the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

The matter is treated elsewhere in this issue. The facts speak plainly for themselves. No comment from us is necessary to indicate to the mind of any honest man the true import of the situation.

We have this to say to Ochs: We regard him only as President of "Exhibitor's Trade Review;" we have long ceased to recognize him as President of the National League of Exhibitors.

And in behalf of exhibitor organization, an institution for which the publications of this trade have worked since its inception, steadfastly, conscientiously, even blindly and certainly non-commercially we urge the resignation of Ochs from the remnants of the M. P. E. L. of America.

Honest Papers and Honest Theatres

E. B. HULSEY of—we'll have to say Texas—an exhibitor who needs no introduction here, makes an observation in a recent letter to us.

Which observation is worthy of solemn consideration by exhibitors, exchangemen, roadmen, producers, advertising men, and trade publications.

"I also hope that you will continue to operate your paper on strictly an independent basis, as I believe that right will triumph in the long run, even in an amusement business, both from the standpoint of self-satisfaction and money-making.

"During the ten years in which I have been in this business I have never intentionally misrepresented an attraction to the public and in that time I have built up a gross business to approximately a million a year where many of my unscrupulous competitors have failed.

"It is rather discouraging at times, but after all is said and done I believe that 'Honesty is the best policy' regardless of what you are trying to accomplish."

Entertainment Not Education

ANOTHER misnomer we could well disperse with—along with the "reel" and "feature"—is the word "educational" as applied to pictures. We are strong in the belief that the public likes what are termed "educational" films. But people don't like to be told that the films are educational.

The amusement-loving public—and that means all of us—want to be entertained, not educated. People don't like to be warned that they are going to be educated. If we become informed while we are being entertained, so much the better, but it is best to call the picture entertaining, not educational.

The word is really a serious handicap to pictures which, in our observation, delight every audience everywhere.

Our Hat's Off, Mr. Lewis

THE characterization of "Poleon Doret" in "The Barrier" by Mitchell Lewis offers as fine acting as we have ever witnessed on the screen or the legitimate stage.

Ochs Protests at Year-Old Universal Weekly Editorial

Editorial on "Smutty Pictures" Causes Ochs to See Danger in Appointment of Universal Representative on Griffith Committee—Serious Countercharge in Universal Reply Places Exhibitor-Publisher on Defensive

LEE OCHS, president of the Exhibitor's Trade Review, on Thursday of last week issued a fuming tirade against the Universal Company, protesting at the appointment of representatives of that organization to the Griffith Anti-Censorship Committee.

The statement is in the form of an "open letter" from Mr. Ochs, and lays no claim to having been written with the cognizance of the Executive Committee of the National League.

The letter opens with a protest against the "proposed" appointment, which had, however, been made a week previous. It goes on to say:

"Here is my reason: The Universal Film Manufacturing Company has done more than any other single factor or influence, within or without the industry, to brand the calling of motion picture exhibitors as semi-criminal and to fasten the yoke of a thousand censorships on the shoulders of the motion picture industry. I confess it with shame that there has not been up to this moment enough courage and independence in motion picture journalism to speak the plain truth in this matter. On the contrary, every publication has concealed the facts in the craven fear of losing a page of advertising.

"Do you exhibitors of the country know that the Universal Film Company in their house organ known as the 'Universal Weekly' claims that the moving picture exhibitors of the country demand smutty pictures?" The letter then goes on to quote in full a "Straight-from-the-shoulder talk" by Carl Laemmle published over a year ago. Discussing the question of off-color pictures, the Universal head declared that he was surprised to learn in response to his request for opinions from exhibitors that "at least half and maybe sixty per cent" admitted that the risque subject got them most money and was wanted.

Claiming that this was a libel on exhibitors and that it has in addition been a weapon for the advocates of exhibitors, Mr. Ochs completes his protest.

Following the issuance of the "open letter," R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of the Universal Company, speedily issued a vigorous reply, reviewing Universal's dealings with the exhibitor and publisher leading up to and culminating in the protest. The letter contains charges placing Mr. Ochs on the defensive, and a statement is promised by Ochs' publication "next week."

In addition to the review of his personal dealings with Mr. Ochs, contained in Mr. Cochrane's statement, there has also come to light a letter written by the exhibitor to Mr. P. A. Powers, Universal's representative on the Griffith Committee a few weeks ago. The letter requested Universal to join hands with other manufacturers in the National Association in a move by which the group could share in the profits of his trade publication and secure advertising discounts by guaranteeing the insertion of their advertising in the publication in question. The "co-operative house organ" plan was not accepted.

The statement regarding the case issued by Vice-President Cochrane.

On Wednesday, Jan. 17th, Mr. Lee Ochs called at my office and solicited advertising from the Universal Flm Mfg. Co. for the Exhibitors' Trade Review.

After listening to all that Mr. Ochs had to say, I called his attention to the fact that he had not given me any reason why the Universal Company should advertise in his publication. I likewise called his attention to the fact that unless he wanted the Universal Company to pay his publication some money for either charity or blackmail, there was nothing for our company to gain by advertising. He denied that he wanted either charity or blackmail.

He then asked me if I did not believe in reciprocity to the extent of giving advertising to the Exhibitors' Trade Review (Mr. Ochs' paper) because exhibitors pay money to the Universal Company for film rental. I replied that every exhibitor who paid money to us got full value for it; and that whenever he did not get full value, he transferred his business to some of our competitors; that I would not buy advertising space on any but business grounds; and that if we could not hold the business on merit we surely would not try by advertising in Mr. Ochs' publication.

This was on Wednesday January 17th.

On Thursday, January 18th, Mr. Ochs wrote a scurrilous letter to various trade papers, making a bitter attack on the Universal Company as a whole and on the officers in particular.

From various sources the Universal Company has heard that if it did not support the Exhibitors' Trade Review, scores or even hundreds of exhibitors would cancel their orders with Universal exchanges. I have forgotten how many thousands of dollars per week was to be taken from us. This has been threatened ever since the Exhibitors' Trade Review (Mr. Ochs' paper) first entered the field of trade papers.

The Universal Company does not believe that the Exhibitors' Trade Review is owned by exhibitors. Neither does it believe that the exhibitors of this country would approve of the methods used by Mr. Ochs to compel advertising.

Mr. Ochs, however, endeavors in every way to make it appear that the exhibitors of the country either own his paper or are backing it. For example, the letter in which he attacks the Universal was written on stationery bearing the imprint of the Exhibitors' League of America but was mailed in an envelope bearing the imprint of the Exhibitors' Trade Review.

In his letter he rakes up an editorial which was published in the Universal's own weekly publication a year or more ago. It was an article on smutty pictures and was a part of a series of articles, the intention of which was to bring forth from exhibitors a storm of protest against such pictures. It accomplished its end, but ever since then it has been used by pro-censors as an argument for censorship. To do this they resorted to the old trick of quoting only extracts from the series, instead of the whole. Before the articles were published in our house organ, we showed them in proof form to Mr. Stephen Bush, then employed on the Moving Picture World and now working for the Exhibitors' Trade Review and explained the campaign to him. Mr. Bush instantly saw what the plan was and pronounced it a good thing. I feel confident that Mr. Bush will bear me out in this statement, regardless of the fact that he is interested in the Exhibitors' Trade Review.

Kindly remember Mr. Ochs' remarkable letter was written the day after the Universal refused to advertise in his paper.

The Universal's editorial, to which he takes such violent exceptions, was published something over a year ago. At that time, so far as I can recall, Mr. Ochs did not fly into a public fury over it and ask to have the Universal put out of business. Since then he has been elected president of the National League and has been enjoying that office for several months. But not until the day after the Universal finally refused to give him some advertising did he decide that we had insulted the exhibitors of America. On the day that he solicited advertising the Universal was all right in every respect, but overnight we had become a menace.

With these facts to judge by, the Universal is more than willing to let the exhibitors and the trade in general judge the case and pass their verdict against Mr. Ochs and his methods or against the Universal, as they see fit.

GOOD NEWS!

A. C. Holah, who resigned as manager of a large Chicago exchange six months ago to conduct the film department of the Chicago Herald, has had phenomenal success in establishing co-operation between his newspaper and the exhibitors.

Next week in these columns will be published the first of a series of four smashing articles by Mr. Holah.

THEY MEAN DOLLARS FOR YOU.

Makers of "Filth Films" to Be Prosecuted

Censorship Committee of National Association, Headed by Griffith, Will Prevent Exhibition of Indecent Pictures—Prominent Manufacturers Approve

ANOTHER important blow in the campaign for cleaner pictures, which MOTION PICTURE NEWS is sponsoring, was dealt last Thursday when the Censorship Committee of the National Association pledged itself to aid in the prosecution; under the criminal laws, of every producer of indecent or obscene pictures in the United States.

A resolution assuming the duty of pleasing the industry was adopted unanimously by the most representative producers in America. Men whose pictures are never cited in any censorship agitation but who realize that the censorship agitation aroused by irresponsible companies is threatening them as well as the public.

There were over twenty-five of the greatest producers in the industry present or represented in the rooms of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. In addition to arranging the details of the work of defending the films against censorship bills in about twenty states and in the National Congress, adopted the resolution for the National Association to take upon itself the duty of policing the industry by means of the criminal laws. The resolution read as follows:

Resolved, That the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry actively lend its aid in the prosecution of any person or corporation which produces and causes to be exhibited any indecent or obscene motion picture or any motion pictures which tend to debase or corrupt morals.

Yesterday's meeting was presided over by David W. Griffith, Chairman of the Censorship Committee. Acting with him were the other members of that committee, William A. Brady, President of the National Association, and Director General of the World Film Corporation, Walter W. Irwin, Chairman of the Executive Committee, and General Manager of the Vitagraph V-L-S-E.; P. A. Powers, Treasurer of the Universal Film Mfg. Co., Adolph Zukor, President of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and Mitchel H. Mark of the Strand theatre. Many other prominent men were present.

The following telegram was received from Wm. A. Johnston, Editor of Motion Picture News:

New York, Jan. 17.

Frank J. Rembusch,
Shelbyville, Ind.

Your article in last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS, calling for clean and wholesome pictures, has unified sentiment among manufacturers and figures largely in the recent Griffith conference in New York, the outgrowth of which is the important movement for censorship from within. MOTION PICTURE NEWS congratulates you and the members of the Indiana State League of Organization which we regard very highly and to which we look for sane businesslike treatment of your own and the industry's problems.

(Signed) WM. A. JOHNSTON.

Indiana League Meeting is Lively Affair

Governor Goodrich Speaks—Rembusch Re-elected President—Advance Deposits to Be Fought—Co-operation of "News" Is Highly Approved

THE convention of Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors at Severin Hotel, Indianapolis, Thursday, January 18, will go down into history as the most successful convention or gathering of exhibitors ever held in the state. It began with an informal gathering the evening before at state headquarters, third floor, Lyric Building, which meeting lasted from 7:00 o'clock until 1:00 o'clock, and the success of the convention Thursday was largely due to the fact that this meeting planned how to get the most good out of the convention.

There were no exhibits; no entertainment; no refreshments; nothing but strictly business from the meeting on Wednesday night to the finish of the Director's meeting on Thursday night at 1:00 o'clock.

The many abuses in the industry were discussed, together with the evils that confront the exhibitor from within and without, and definite plans were perfected that will bring the conditions in the state to a much more satisfactory and more businesslike system in a general and particular way.

At 1:00 o'clock the convention went into secret session. The first hour was devoted to a plan of organization and there were seventeen directors elected from the large cities of the state who will comprise a permanent and strong affiliation. The Indiana organization is affiliated with the Stanley Company of Philadelphia and the booking plan similar to the Stanley Company will be instituted.

Governor Goodrich addressed the convention. He called particular attention to the possibilities of the motion picture; its great opportunity to uplift, and recommended that where pictures were shown on the Sabbath these pictures should be particularly suitable for Sabbath showing.

The balance of the hour until 3:00 o'clock was devoted to the discussion of Sunday opening and suitable pictures for Sunday.

President Rembusch read letters from manufacturers which showed that they were willing to eliminate the advance deposit. Telegrams were read from Wm. A. Brady, President of the National Association; Walter W. Irwin, of the Greater Vitagraph Company; Adolph Zukor, of the Famous Players Film Company; all recommending the closest co-operation.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS wired its felicitations and gave an outline of the new movement headed by D. W. Griffith for censorship within the industry.

At 5:00 o'clock the convention elected officers as follows: President, Frank J. Rembusch, Shelbyville, Indiana; Vice-President, (1st) V. U. Young, Gary, Indiana; Second Vice-President, A. C. Zaring, Indianapolis; Secretary, Ray Andrews, Muncie; Treasurer, Ben. D. Crose, Indianapolis.

The following directors were also elected: H. Kornblum, Evansville; J. T. Keating, Terre Haute; C. S. Allardt, South Bend; Dr. J. M. Rhodes, Indianapolis; W. C. Quimby, Ft. Wayne; R. H. Harris, Bloomington; O. G. Murray, Richmond; H. H. Johnson, Lafayette; B. V. Barton, Indianapolis; L. H. O'Donnell, Washington; M. J. Wohl, Gary; and F. J. Mack, Indianapolis.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from Walter W. Irwin, Adolph Zukor, William A. Brady and William A. Johnston.

Brooklyn Ball Preparations

Arrangements have been completed assuring the success of the Motion Pictures Carnival and Ball to be given under the auspices of the Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn and Long Island, on February 21, at Stauch's Palace, Coney Island.

The B. R. T. has agreed to run special trains to Coney Island on the evening of the carnival in order to facilitate the transport of the crowds expected to attend. All preparations for the pending voting contest have been made by the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, the contest to commence on February 1st, and to close on February 17th.

Toomey Appointed Assistant to Mutual President

William C. Toomey has been appointed assistant to the president of the Mutual Film Corporation. The announcement is made by John R. Freuler, Mutual president.

This fills the vacancy left by the resignation of John Cecil Graham, who has gone abroad for another film concern. Mr. Toomey took up his work with the Mutual Film Corporation last week, establishing his offices at 71 West 23rd street, New York Mutual headquarters.

Mr. Toomey thus becomes Mutual's new "ambassador to Broadway," with the special mission of concerning himself with the Mutual's interest in productions and stars. Mr. Toomey has for something more than a year past held the post of vice-president of Mirror Films. He is particularly well-known in film and dramatic circles in New York.

Employees Tender Surprise Birthday Dinner to Laemmle

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, was fifty years old on Tuesday, January 16, and in his honor the employees of the Universal tendered their executive a surprise birthday dinner at the Cinderella, Lexington Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street.

Mr. Laemmle was greeted by his friends as he entered the banquet hall by a demonstration which lasted for many minutes and which showed him the affection in which he is held by the members of his organization. He was kept busy all evening receiving congratulations.

Tax Investigating Committee Makes Little Progress

Albany Delegation Questions Lee Ochs, William L. Sherrill and P. A. Powers and Learns Industry's Fundamental Principles—Stars May Be Called in to Testify

THE committee of eight legislators who came down to New York from Albany last Wednesday to find out, if possible, which branch of the industry is diverting the giant's share of the fabled film fortunes, and to decide what tax levy the multi-millionaires can withstand, has so far progressed little beyond the educational stage.

All members of the committee admitted frankly at the outset that they did not know the difference between a reel and a program. Three days have been spent so far in acquainting the legislators with the precise meaning of alien words and technical phrases.

Now the committeemen glibly discuss in terms of "open market," "state rightsing," "duping," and they are finding out, to their surprise, that fabled film fortunes are the product of enterprising Sunday newspaper offices.

The National Association of Motion Picture Industry has provided the investigators with representative witnesses, who have willingly supplied facts and figures to show that, while the industry is enjoying a fairly healthy development, it is not rioting in lush prosperity by any means.

Lee A. Ochs, an exhibitor, was first called to the stand. Through the assistance of J. Rubins and William A. Seabury, who represented the exhibitors and the association, the fundamental principles of the industry's workings were explained. Mr. Ochs told why the exhibitor of today is not making money. He spoke of the increasing length of programs, the growing cost of rentals, and the unproportionate advance in admission prices, which could not compensate for the higher costs.

Ochs said that the number of film theatres in New York City alone had decreased from 1,089 to 530 in the past three years. He estimated that the operating expenses of the average house are from $496.16 to $588.16 weekly, and that the income, exclusive of summer, is from $550 to $650 a week, so that the profits amount to from $53.84 to $61.84 weekly.

He pointed out that the exhibitor is struggling along against enough difficulties now without the additional discouragement of further taxation.

Friday morning and afternoon, the committee devoted to an examination of William L. Sherrill and P. A. Powers. Mr. Sherrill gave the figures pertaining to costs and profits in the state rights field.

Chairman Wheeler, at Mr. Sherrill's request, asked the reporters present to treat these figures in confidence. Mr. Sherrill said that the profits in his field were greatly exaggerated, and that while it is true that open market pictures are leased to the highest bidder, it is impossible to obtain exorbitant prices because the laws of business made it impossible.

Mr. Sherrill added: "If the film industry is a fit subject for taxation, it ought to be taxed, the same as any industry."

He urged the committee to investigate the extravagance of stars' salaries. Any money that is being made in taxable quantities is made by the stars, he then declared.

P. A. Powers testified that he represented the largest motion picture concern in the world, namely, the Universal, and that the cost of film has increased since 1909 from fifty cents a foot to more than $2.50. He did not know of any department of the industry which could be taxed justly, and he pointed out the tax burden which the industry is bearing now.

At the next meeting of the committee, it is probable that some of the high salaried stars, such as Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Anita Stewart will be called upon to testify.

The committee is composed of Heber F. Wheeler, chairman, of Ontario County; Senators William A. Carson, Yates County; James F. Yelverton, Schenectady; James J. Walker, New York; and Assemblymen H. E. J. Brereton, Warren County; Robert McMarch, New York; August C. Flamman, Brooklyn; and Henry S. Schimmel, of New York.

Tax Will Cripple Industry, Says Hampton

General Film Company's President Points Out Difficulties Are Thrust Into Film's Progress—Stars Should Be Taxed

BENJAMIN B. HAMPTON believes that either special taxation, censorship or Sunday Closing will seriously cripple the motion picture industry. An attack on films by the three combined are enough, he says, to wreck it completely.

Honest men who advocate taxation do not understand the facts, he says; other men are actuated by various selfish desires. It is necessary for the real facts of the industry to be placed before the investigators.

In a statement issued from his office, Mr. Hampton says:

"One great obstacle concerning the picture men is that their business has been "Press-Agented." The average citizen, high or low, believes that fortunes flow promptly from any contract with the movies. He hears prodigious stories of the vast salaries paid actors and actresses, and of the wealth piled up by producers, distributors and exhibitors.

"If you will make inquiry in Wall street you will be surprised to find how many bankers have lost money, or have had unsatisfactory experiences with motion picture ventures. The popular opinion seems to be that Wall street has not invested extensively in picture securities.

"While this is probably true, the facts are that many Wall street bankers and banking houses have in one way or another put money into various forms of picture propositions. Nearly all resulted unsatisfactorily.

"While the flotation of picture shares has in the past been accomplished quietly it has been none the less extensive, and many thousands of investors are now holding picture stocks that are paying them either nothing or that are paying them very unsatisfactory returns.

"As a result of this, it is difficult to secure capital for picture enterprises. Thoughtful men agree that the picture business is fundamentally as solid as a rock, and that it will continue to grow stronger and better, but this optimistic point of view will never be realized if State Legislatures continue to attack the industry by censorship, Sunday Closing and special taxation.

"The theatres that would suffer would be the little ones, the ones that provide good shows for 5 and 10 cents to millions of people who cannot afford to pay more. Consequently, these attacks on the motion picture industry would affect most seriously the small man in the industry and his customers, the people of small means.

"Let no one deceive himself about the condition of motion picture producers. It is all very well to read in the newspapers of this star receiving $100,000 a year, and this other star receiving a half a million a year, and to assume that the producers back of these stars are making money in proportion to the risk and investment they are making. Frankly, I do not believe that the facts will bear out this rosy point of view.

"I have some knowledge of the conditions that surround about perhaps 20 or 25 of the leading producers of the country, and I must say frankly that these men are not making profits justified by their investment of money, time, energy and responsibility.

"On the distributing side some of the houses are making fair profits, and others are not. So that any way you look into the industry, exhibitor, distributor and producer, you will find that the day of swollen profits is a thing of the past.

"The only swollen profits of the picture business today are the profits received by some of the stars. If the State Legislatures want to pass a special tax on the picture industry, this is where it should be levied.

"The trouble is that our legislatures legislate without any understanding of the facts. If the business people will try to tell the lawmakers the facts relative to their business, and if the lawmakers will try to get at these facts, we will be relieved of legislation as dangerous as this special taxation."

Baltimore Exhibitors Organize

Exhibitors interested in forming a Maryland branch of the Exhibitors League recently organized with Louis Schlichter as temporary chairman, at a meeting held at the New Theatre. Sunday, January 21, was to see the perfection of the organization and election of officers and adoption of constitution and by-laws.

Advance Deposits to Guarantee Film Contracts

Exhibitors Should Not Be Asked to Take Risks of Manufacture and Distribution—A Consideration of Three Substitutes for Present System—The Acceptance, Bonded Group, and Trustees

By George Kleine

THE exhibitor raises three principal objections to the current system of a cash deposit to guarantee the fulfillment of a film rental contract.

1. He resists placing a sum of money in the lands of a rental exchange without a guarantee as to its safety, and sees the danger of some of them being unable to refund his cash in case they are unable to deliver the films guaranteed under the contract, because of accident, fire, failure in business, etc.

2. He objects to the deposit of his cash without receiving interest therefor.

3. He suspects that his deposit is being used before it is earned by the distributor in the conduct of his business, or by the manufacturer in paying his operating expenses, salaries of stars, etc.

I agree entirely with the exhibitor who holds these views.

On the other hand some exhibitors hold their signatures to contracts in slight regard, violating sometimes on impulse, sometimes with reason, without consideration of the damage to the distributing agency or manufacturer. Sometimes he signs a contract for service to prevent his competitor from getting the films, with the deliberate intention not to meet his obligation to the exchange, and canceling without regard to the rights of the distributor when his purpose is accomplished.

There is no doubt that the mass of exhibitors of the present day are more solid financially and more responsible business men than those of five or eight years ago. At the same time there is a class of exhibitors that has but little regard for its agreements and justifies mistreatment of an exchange that conducts its business honorably, because he, himself, has suffered from the evil practices of another exchange.

Agreeing on the one hand with the exhibitor who raises the objections enumerated above, while on the other finding it necessary to safeguard our business by giving stability to the contracts made by our distributing branches with their customers, I have worked out the following system for the K-E-S-E Service.

Our releases are grouped arbitrarily in lots of ten features. Exhibitors contracting to use a group are asked to pay in advance twenty (20) per cent. of the contract price, to cover the rental price of the last two subjects. The ten may be picked from our entire stock of regular releases or the group of any one quarter.

This serves to tie up comparatively little money, as the advance covers only two features, instead of four to eight; and the obligation, not more than one release weekly for ten weeks instead of fifty-two or one hundred and four releases covering one year.

In order to assure the exhibitor of the safety of his deposit, my personal guarantee stands back of it; and all funds so collected are placed in a special account in my name, as trustee, either in the Harriman National Bank of New York City, or the Continental & Commercial National Bank of Chicago. This account is kept entirely apart from all other moneys, either my personal accounts or those of my business. The contract which we sign binds us to the fulfilment of these conditions. We draw upon the account after the exhibitor has played the dates that his deposit covers.

Having in this manner assured the safety of these funds, the question of reimbursement to the exhibitor for the sequestration of his cash received serious consideration. Realizing that ordinary interest, such as a bank rate of four (4) per cent. or five (5) per cent. per annum would not be adequate compensation, I decided it to be only fair to allow what would be considered a trade discount in ordinary merchandising; for instance, in certain lines of business, such as jewelry, when the dealer makes a purchase, his bill is usually subject to a cash discount of 5 per cent. for 10 days cash, net 90 days. As our advance collections run on a maximum of 90 days, I decided to refund to the exhibitor a flat trade discount of six (6) per cent. on the amount he deposited, amounting in effect to 24 per cent. per annum.

We remit this sum to him by check on receipt of payment for the first feature rented to him under the contract.

Many exhibitors have expressed their appreciation of this manner of handling the problem and in a number of cases have tendered payment in full, in advance, to cover the entire contract. I did not in the beginning contemplate this possibility, as the expense to us is high, but in order to show appreciation of the confidence thus placed in us, instructions have been given to all of our branch offices to allow the full discount of six (6) per cent. flat on the total sum so advanced, be it 20 per cent. of the contract or the entire amount.

Wishing further to assure our customers that their funds are safeguarded and not withdrawn until they are earned, I am making arrangements to have a well-known firm of certified accountants check up all of our contracts, determine the total amount of deposits involved, check up the bank balances covering these trust funds and notify each customer that his advance payment is held in bank. It might be preferable to scatter these funds among banks located in the various cities where twenty-three branch offices operate. This would reduce the risk of loss from bank failure to one twenty-third.

The handling of these funds, as outlined above, is not only of no advantage to us, but an expense, justified only because it stabilizes our business. Such security is essential to the distributor; the operation of a chain of branch offices is expensive; the procuring of rental contracts involves employment of many office and traveling salesmen, and if the orders obtained by them are lightly to be cancelled, there is a premium placed upon the careless signing of contracts and the good faith of the salesman whose contracts are cancelled by the exhibitor is subject to attack by his firm.

I have considered various substitutes for the advance deposit system and suggest the following for consideration without having yet reached a conclusion that they are satisfactory to either or both parties:

The use of "Acceptances": an "Acceptance" is an acknowledgment of an obligation to pay a certain amount of money at some future date and is in common use on the Continent of Europe. I am most familiar with this practice, as it obtains in Italy, where it is generally employed as follows:

A manufacturer or wholesaler having received an order for certain merchandise, makes a shipment; when he mails his bill he attaches an "Acceptance," usually in printed form, which shows the amount of the bill and states that the shipper has a claim against the customer for the stated sum, which is to be paid upon a certain date, which may be thirty, sixty, or ninety days, more or less. The customer signs the "Acceptance" and returns it to the seller.

This is not a note but is a written acknowledgement of the debt and the buyer expects to pay the obligation when it is due. This method of handling business accounts is being exploited in some of our periodicals and is recommended by the National Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Ga. If we apply the system of "Acceptances" to the film business, substituting it in place of advance payments, the distributor upon receiving a contract for the future delivery of certain films will offer at the same time a number of "Acceptances" covering all of the films that are to be shipped under the contract, stating the amount due upon each shipment, and the date when it is to

(Continued on page 710)

LIVE WIRES

One exhibitor recently made an entire city work for him.

He was a Live Wire!

Next week we are going to tell you what his plan was and how you can use it in your locality.

"Live Wire Exhibitors" Department—Next Week.

Move to Abolish Daily Program Change Gains Nationally

Exhibitors Throughout Country Praise Motion Picture News' Campaign for Longer Runs —Daily Change Abolished and Longer Runs Tried with Success in Many Places

THE campaign which has been started and will be continued vigorously by MOTION PICTURE NEWS against the wasteful and unprofitable daily program change is gaining in force in all parts of the country.

Letters and telegrams have been received from scores of exhibitors, testifying to the good results of longer runs, as witnessed by their own experiments. Other exhibitors, by telegrams and letters, are urging the NEWS to force the issue through, to keep hammering until the campaign is wholly successful.

As purely typical of the many telegrams we have received, the following, from Chattanooga, Tenn., is highly interesting:

Please accept my hearty congratulations on editorial "The Deadly Movie Fan," in current issue Motion Picture News. Particularly does this article strike at the conditions now existing in the southern territory. Your argument is decidedly consistent and I sincerely hope you will continue to fight for fewer pictures, better pictures and longer runs.

F. H. DOWLER, Jr.,
General Manager Signal Amusement Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The reports from exhibitors who have been fearless enough to give the longer run a chance, and who have been notably successful, would fill a good sized volume.

Manager Thomas of the Strand, Omaha, Nebraska, told our Omaha representative: "I find that long runs pay. The attendance is always good right off the bat, and generally it keeps getting better and better, until the last two days are almost always the best. The advertising helps, especially when the picture is worth while. And I take considerable pains to see that the picture is worth while."

Speaking of the policy of changing programs daily, Harry Lewy of the firm of Bohannon, Lewy and Fuld, Baltimore, Md., said: "The daily change of program is certainly not the thing for the center of the city theatre. By changing so frequently it does not give the pubic an opportunity to see your bill. We change twice a week and on some occasions run a show an entire week. This, to my mind, is as frequent a change of program as good business judgment will permit."

"The center of the city house should not change its bill more than twice a week; certainly not more than three times a week," said Mr. Louis DeHuff, manager of the New theatre. "It has been our policy to change twice a week. We would not consider changing more frequently than this, and on occasions when shows will permit, we would rather give them a full week's run."

William A. Brady, of the World Film Corporation, has received the following letter from one of his middle-west exhibitors:

"I put on a certain World-Brady made for three days, and advertised it in advance as I would have advertised a coming stage show. The experiment was entirely successful. The first day's business was a little better than normal for that day of the week; the second jumped up to $85, and the third was capacity."

W. C. Gookins, recently appointed manager of the Kansas City Vitagraph Exchange, is urging exhibitors to run pictures for more than one day. He declares that the success of this plan has been demonstrated so many times to his utter satisfaction that he has no doubts whatever of its eventual success.

A. W. Goff, Assistant General Manager of the Greater Vitagraph Company, said last week that the film industry is now suffering from what he termed "a shrinking market." The condition is due most largely to over-production, the result, in great measure, of the daily change.

Corbin Shield, Manager of the Leader theatre, Washington, D. C., who runs Paramount pictures, wrote the following letter, which we are reprinting from Paramount Progress:

We have played two days on each picture. Whenever we come to a Pauline Frederick, Marguerite Clark or a Mary Pickford picture we extend the run. The results with these extended runs of the better stars have been very gratifying and have made it possible to continue the house with profit.

For example, we played "Ashes of Embers" for four days and followed it by three days on another production. The business with "Ashes of Embers" was remarkably good, and the most remarkable part of it all was that the impetus gained in playing "Ashes of Embers" carried the business over into the days that we played the other picture, which was not considered a very strong production.

With "Miss George Washington" we played the picture for a seven-day run, and the receipts on the seventh day were $38 more than any other day during the week.

GIVE IT A TRIAL

Other exhibitors have experimented with long runs with gratifying results.

Almost invariably, the business increased on succeeding days.

Why not give the longer run a trial?

It means better pictures, lower rentals, greater profits.

And let us know what results you have.

New York Exhibitors Hold State Convention

Delegates from all Parts of the State Meet Tuesday at Hotel Ten Eyck to Secure Concerted Action on Tax and Sunday Questions

A STATE convention of the motion picture exhibitors of the State of New York has been called by the State President for Tuesday, January 23rd; Wednesday, January 24th and Thursday, January 25th, to be held at the Hotel Ten Eyck in the City of Albany.

The original arrangements for the convention had been made with a view of having it held in Rochester, but in view of the important legislation which is contemplated in Albany in regard to motion pictures, it was thought wise to make the State Capital the scene of this convention.

Notices have been sent to every exhibitor in the state, whether affiliated with the State Organization or not and numerous acceptances have been received.

There is a strong sentiment throughout the state among exhibitors that this is the right time to give an impressive display of the strength and unity of the industry, and such strongly organized cities as New York, Yonkers, Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Utica, Rochester, Buffalo and Binghamton will be strongly represented at the convention.

The convention will be called to order at 3:30 P. M. on Tuesday, January 23d, at the Hotel Ten Eyck, when committees on the following subjects will be appointed: Legislation, By-laws, Transportation, Deposit System, Membership, Finace, Grievance. An important conference will then be held between the various local organizations on the personnel and standing of Assemblymen and Senators on all matters touching the motion picture industry.

On Wednesday, at 11 A. M., the various committees will render their reports. Immediately upon adjournment the delegates will proceed in a body to the Capitol and will pay a visit to the Assembly and Senate Chambers.

On the last day, Thursday, January 25th, at 11 A. M., the delegates will meet in committee of the whole. The subject of discussion will be means of propaganda for Sunday opening and against censorship, slides, petitions, etc. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the convention will elect state officers and delegates to the National Convention to be held in July, in Chicago.

A banquet at the Ten Eyck to which prominent speakers have been invited within and without the industry will be the last event of the convention.

"Honor System" at Lyric Theatre February 6

William Fox's Latest Spectacle, Produced by Raoul Walsh, Is First of Series of Annual Features—Picture Has Been Months in Making

"THE Honor System" will be given its New York première by William Fox at the Lyric Theatre on the evening of February 6.

In making this announcement, Mr. Fox states that it is his intention to produce one large dramatic screen spectacle each year.

"The idea was suggested to me," said Mr. Fox, "by the success of the Drury Lane productions, which are yearly occurrences in London, and have always been popular. My 1917 picture is 'The Honor System.'"

Mr. Fox has coined a new name in connection with dramatic screen features—"cinemelodrama." "The Honor System" is a cinemelodrama.

The scenario for the picture was prepared by Henry C. Warnack. Among the principals in the cast are, Gladys Brockwell, Miriam Cooper, Milton Sills, James Marcus, Arthur Mackley, Charles Clary, P. J. Cannon, Mrs. Cora Drew and George Walsh.

Several thousand people participated in the ensemble scenes, including recruits from the Mexican army and bands of cowboys. A special musical score has been arranged.

Among some of the more stirring scenes of the play have been tabulated the following:

A Villista raid on an American border town, the mining engineer's tragic death in the raid, the children's lucky escape from the Mexican bandits, the fight in the Arizona dance hall, the court room scene of Joe's trial for murder, the scene in the great eating hall at Yuma, his burial at night in Yuma cemetery, the snake den or black hole into which he was thrown, the historic session of the Arizona Legislature when conditions were reformed, the scenes in the new state institution, Joe Stanton's successful establishment of the first wireless service to Japan, the fight in a Los Angeles underworld resort when two bands of criminals meet, and a battle on the roof of a moving freight train. Many prominent society people will be present at the premiere.

Selig to Market "Allah" on State Rights

Hichens' Oriental Story, Long in Production, Now Ready for Free Lance Buyers

"THE Garden of Allah," the famous story by Robert Hichens, filmed by the Selig Polyscope Company, is being marketed on the state rights plan by William N. Selig. It features Helen Ware, who is supported by Thomas Santschi, Eugenie Besserer, James Bradbury, Al W. Filson, Will Machin and others.

Colin Campbell, who directed "The Spoilers," "The Ne-er-Do-Well," and "The Crisis," claims that the subject is his best effort.

The story opens in England and then is carried into the Desert of Sahara where many of the situations occur. William N. Selig is said to have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on the production.

Exact replicas of Oriental cities were constructed, thousands of men, women and children aid in developing the drama, and caravans of camels, droves of horses and troops of Arabs were essential.

The sand storm in the desert is said to be realistic in the extreme and unlike anything ever before attempted on the screen. The sky darkens, the wind arises and the sand is blown in a dense shower. In the desert a caravan has pitched its tents. The tents are blown away while animals and human beings endeavor to seek shelter from the rain of stinging sand in any way possible.

There is also a sensational charge of Bedouins in which thousands of these desperate tribesmen dash upon the defenseless members of a caravan, overpower them, and make prisoners of many, who are placed in irons and marched away into slavery.

State rights buyers may secure information by communication with William N. Selig, President of the Selig Polyscope Company, 58 East Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

Printing Trades Council Is Opposed to Film Tax

The following letter has been received from the Allied Printing Trades Council, of New York State, regarding the threatened tax on the film industry:

The New York State Federation of Labor and the State Allied Printing Trades Council is opposed to any taxation on the moving picture industry, and we wish to give our position as much publicity as possible.

Everything we can do in having our Trade Unions and the Central Labor bodies throughout the State in calling our position to the attention of the Assemblymen and Senators will be attended to in the most vigorous manner.

I would be glad to receive any suggestions you can offer, whereby we can be of greater and better assistance.

Yours very truly,

PETER J. BRADY.

Lillian Walker Severs Ties with Vitagraph

Lillian Walker, long a star in Vitagraph productions, has left that company and will shortly announce new connections. Miss Walker, the "Dimples" of many a famous one and two-reel subject, has lately been featured in five-reel Blue Ribbon productions. Two of these remain to be released, "Kitty Mackay" on February 19 and "The Star Gazer" on April 2. Dorothy Kelly takes Miss Walker's place on the advance list.

Advance Deposits

(Continued from page 708)

be paid; or all of the films coud be grouped in one "Acceptance," which would specify the various dates and amounts to be paid.

If the use of such "Acceptances" becomes common in this country and if the practices of Europe are followed, there is a danger involved for the exhibitor, which should be pointed out. An "Acceptance" being an acknowledgement of an obligation, the holder is in a position to take it to his bank for discount; if the credit of the signer is good, banks would lend money upon an "Acceptance" up to very nearly its face amount. If a film exchange holding such "Acceptances" were to fail in its own obligations, and if they had been negotiated at a bank, or elsewhere, the signer might find himself obligated to pay for the use of films that he did not receive. They should therefore be marked "non-negotiable."

The advantage of the "Acceptance" would consist in removing the necessity of depositing cash.

Another method of meeting the difficulty would be the getting together of groups of exhibitors, the group party to collectively guarantee the payment of the obligations of its component members. Such an arrangement would offer the combined credit and good faith of the entire group to guarantee the payment of the obligations thus incurred. The details of such an arrangement would be complicated, however, and would meet the customary difficulty that is found in inducing large numbers of men who are busy, and sometimes antagonistic to each other, to take community action.

The following also occurs to me:—

A board of trustees could be selected consisting of three representatives of manufacturers and distributors and three exhibitors of high standing, as for instance, Marcus Loew of New York City, Aaron Jones, of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Chicago and Mr. Roth, of the Portola theater, San Francisco. All moneys collected as advance deposits to be placed in the hands of these trustees who might be bonded at the expense of the fund, serve without pay, and deposit these funds in various banks selected with a view to their responsility. Distributors could render weekly bills for service given when part of the fund has been earned.

The handling of other people's money carries with it obligations that most film concerns would probably avoid, if it were practicable; for instance if in panic times a depository bank were to fail and part of the deposit lost, the legal liability would probably rest upon the holding concern. If the money is used by the manufacturer or exchange before it is earned, the risk is very much greater to both parties. The sums involved are necessarily large, and the manufacturer may be tempted into speculative contracts with high salaried stars; huge sums may go into advertising, authors' royalties, etc., risks which would not be taken if these men were forced to produce their own capital.

I do not know if any manufacturing concern is so using exhibitors' deposit funds, but there is a general belief among exhibitors that it is the fact. If it is, then some day there will come a crash.

Local Picture Censors Made Powerless in Seattle

"War's Women," Passed by Censors, Is Confiscated by Mayor Gill—Justice Strikes Out Evidence of Defense—Says No Censoring Body Has Legal Powers

ONE of the most remarkable illustrations which prove the complexity arising from the present censorship muddle has come to light in Seattle, Washington, where the mayor of the city has locked up in his safe a print of "War's Women."

"War's Women" was bought for that territory by A. T. Lambson, managing the Lambson Film Exchange.

The local censoring board of Seattle is made up of nine members, five of which constitute a quorum having the power to decide whether a picture is to be or not to be exhibited.

Six members of the board met last July to decide whether or not "War's Women" was fit to be shown to the women and children of Seattle. They saw the picture, and they stamped it with their unqualified approval.

Ten days later, "War's Women" went on the screen at the Strand theatre. That afternoon or evening, Mayor Hiram Gill came into the Strand, saw part of the picture and departed at the end of the second reel, evidently highly excited. A few minutes later, police entered the Strand, confiscated the film and arrested the manager, W. A. Smythe.

The case went into a magistrate's court and was subsequently removed to a superior court, for purpose of trial by jury.

According to Mr. Lambson, when the case came up for trial before the jury, the justice declared that he had been reading the statutes applicable to censorship cases, and he had drawn conclusions that the action of neither the National Board of Review or any local censoring body could be held as legal grounds for suit.

"We were automatically rendered powerless," declared Mr. Lambson to a NEWS representative. "Our defense was based on the act of the Seattle censors in passing the picture, and not only passing it but going on record of approving it and commending it highly."

Mr. Lambson said that the case, while decided against Smythe had resulted in no fine. Meanwhile the print of "War's Women," is reposing in a safe in Mayor Gill's office. The case has been carried to the Supreme Court of Washington, where it is scheduled for a hearing sometime in May.

The censors in Washington are now stripped of power, and it is said that unpleasant and entirely unfounded accusations have been made against them.

Films are barred from Seattle on three grounds. They are condemned by the censor board if they possess one of the following features: (1) indecent, (2) licentious or immoral, (3) if they depict a crime in a gruesome manner.

Seattle exhibitors are aroused over what they believe to be an unexplainable and unwarranted action on the part of their mayor. Inasmuch as Seattle motion picture men went to considerable trouble in preparing a film of Mayor Gill's activities which was employed in the recent campaign for his election, they are at a loss to understand the motive behind his attitude in the "War's Women" case. They believed him to be friendly towards their interests.

The situation in Seattle emphasizes the need for censorship from within the industry. With such a standard as D. W. Griffith is fostering with the aid of the manufacturers, the "War's Women" case would have been an impossibility. Such a situation can readily occur in any part of the country.

It is to be sincerely regretted that Mr. Lambson has been caused to suffer financially because of a situation which exists either in a modified or exaggerated degree in all parts of the country.

TESTIMONY

Let me congratulate you on the fine appearance of the Motion Picture News and the newspaperish manner in which the features of the moment are up in front where they belong.

Leander Richardson, World Film Corporation.

Spokane Exhibitors Win Victory

Spokane photoplay house proprietors have won a substantial victory through the passage by the city council of a new ordinance regulating the license fees for amusement places.

Heretofore the license charge has been based upon the scale of admission prices. Now a range of fees controlled by both seating capacity and admission price has been worked out and put in force.

Under the old arrangement both small houses and large felt they were discriminated against, with the little outlying theatres bearing the heaviest proportion of the burden.

The new schedule of fees for picture houses is as follows: Five-cent houses, $50 to $100, according to capacity; 10-cent houses, $50 to $200; 15-cent houses, $100 to $200. Additional license fees are to be required where the price of admission is raised above that of the class in which the theatre is licensed, but in no case shall the maximum payment for licenses exceed the maximum for the 5, 10 and 15-cent houses.

Tacoma to Censor Exhibitors' Advertising

Censorship Fanaticism Reaches Height in Tacoma, Where Exhibitors Must Submit All Advertising to Authorities Before It Is Used

IN line with numerous other "freak" ordinances enacted by the Commissioner of Public Safety, an ordinance has just been enforced in Tacoma designed to stop sensational and suggestive advertising by motion picture theatres.

The ordinance requires that a permit be obtained for all public advertising by motion picture theatres, together with the submission of a sample copy of all advertising matter to be displayed, and providing a penalty of $100 and a jail sentence for violations.

The ordinance makes it unlawful "to display or advertise any matter of an immoral nature, or that carries an immoral suggestion, or of an indecent character, or that will tend to exert a harmful influence upon the public morals, or which portrays brutality, or which tends to disturb the public peace."

The proposed measure also includes a censor board of seven, empowered to view all photoplays suspected of containing suggestions of immorality, before their public exhibition in Tacoma, for the purpose of expurgating the objectionable features. The censor board may also pass on the quality of advertisements used by the film theatres.

When permits are taken out license fee will be charged in addition to the regular exhibitors' license.

"The ordinance is being put in force in an effort to put a stop to the sensational advertisements indulged in by some of the local motion picture theatre managers" said Commissioner Pettit. "The majority of the theatre managers in Tacoma are very careful and decent about the selection of their advertising matter, but sometimes one or two become indiscreet and overstep the boundary of morality."

"Too Much Fun" Kills Censor Bill in Peoria

The Fraternal Forum, of Peoria, Ill., decided, a few days ago, that motion picture censorship was needed for the local theatres. After taking into consideration that Peoria has twelve theatres, the Forum came to the conclusion that a censor board would have too much fun; that work should come before pleasure; so Peoria is managing to struggle along now without censorship.

Exchange Man Defends Deposit System

N. H. Spitzer, a Prominent Exchange Manager, Presents the Other Side of the Advance Deposit System

N. H. SPITZER, one of the best known exchange managers in New York, in an interview for MOTION PICTURE NEWS states the exchange man's side of the advance deposit system. He thinks the question has not been given sufficient ventilation; that the exchange man's side of the issue has been overlooked.

"In all of the articles that have been published," said Mr. Spitzer, "there has been but one point of view taken, the unfairness to the producer was apparent in all of them. There was an axe to grind in almost every one of these articles which stuck out conspicuously.

"None of these articles could have been written by anyone who has had the least exchange experience. They show absolutely no contact with the exhibitor in an exchange or selling capacity, and, without this experience, they cannot intelligently discuss deposits.

"Three weeks' contact with exhibitors would compel anyone to admit that the exhibitor is directly responsible for the deposit system. It may surprise Mr. Bush to know that twenty per cent. of your picture showmen of today have as little respect for their signatures on a booking contract (where a deposit is not required) as if it was written on ice.

"There are today many unscrupulous exhibitors who will book features from a roadman, having absolutely no intentions of playing them, simply desiring to keep them out of his competitor's house. I have even heard one boast of how successful he had been in keeping features out of his town, when not playing them himself. Incidentally, I might mention that this same man feels himself very much abused since deposits have been demanded of him and is one of the leading agitators in his section against it.

"In one of the Southern states they have an Exhibitors' Association; their by-laws include a very rigid ruling against the giving of deposits. To protect the exchangemen, however, they are assured that the association will compel any exhibitor who signs a contract to live up to it.

"Within the last thirty days I know of one picture that was booked through this particular territory at a cost of about $10 per day, the picture was playing on percentage which entailed an added cost of about $7 per day for the man with the print. Almost 30 per cent. of the contracts signed were cancelled, some of them delaying until within three or four days of playing time.

"On investigation it was found that an exhibitor became angry because his competitor was successful in booking it, and spread the story that the picture would invite censorship. That this was absolutely unfounded, as the exhibitors who cancelled found out subsequently; but the harm had been done and the dates lost.

"Those who cancelled made absolutely no effort to find out the truth of the criticism, but cancelled, which they would have hesitated doing if they had had a deposit up. The owners of the picture not alone lost the dates, but almost $200 worth of paper already posted. The matter was taken up with the association who replied that they could not force an exhibitor to run a picture he felt would hurt his house.

"As long as we have this kind of exhibitors, just so long will producers demand deposits.

"It is unfortunate, that the reputable exhibitor must suffer for the unscrupulous, but it seems to be a problem the exhibitors must solve among themselves. This Southern state of which I spoke seems to have the logical solution, but they did not enforce it.

"If every exhibitor, as every other merchant, is compelled to respect his signature on a contract, he will be a bit more careful how and where he places it. A booking date is an order for merchandise, but film, unlike any other merchandise, if not taken on the day ordered for, is a total loss.

"If you were an exchange manager, and a few exhibitors repudiated their contracts, too late for you to book somewhere else, don't you think you would want some evidence of good faith in your future business dealings with them?

"Why not form an organization in which only exhibitors of unquestionable reputation are eligible? An organization of this sort would undoubtedly be recognized by exchangemen and any member who contracted for service would only have to show his card of good standing which would practically underwrite his contract."

Censorship Bill Introduced in Michigan

A bill calling for state censorship in Michigan was introduced into the legislature, January 16, by Fred L. Eaton representative from the district of Saginaw.

The bill copies the Ohio measure almost word for word, except that it calls for a charge of $1 for the first thousand film inspected and $2 where the film runs over 1,000 feet.

The bill provides for a censor board of three to have headquarters in Detroit; it calls for an appropriation of $1,500 to help defray the expenses of this board; it provides that all film cannot be shown publicly unless first passed by the board; it provides for a penalty, and for a label at the end of each film "Passed by the Michigan State Board of Censors."

The bill is sure to have strong opposition on the part of exhibitors, exchanges and producers. A joint meeting of all interests will likely be called for the near future.

Oklahoma Threatened with Censorship

Oklahoma is again threatened with censorship, also with Sunday closing of theatres.

R. H. Wilson, state school superintendent, has recommended to the Oklahoma Legislature, now in session—a strict censorship over motion pictures. The executive board of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Oklahoma, met at Oklahoma City, January 5, and made arrangements for the state meeting to be held in February, at which time, action will be taken by the State League on the censorship question.

"Fall of a Nation" Seized in Maryland

Dixon Film Is Rented to Theatres Not Within Territorial Boundaries—Several Theatres Deprived of Prints

SUIT was instituted Tuesday in the District Court of the United States at Baltimore by the National Drama Corporation of New York against Mellinger Bros., managers of the Maryland Theatre, Cumberland, Maryland, and one R. R. Roberts. The suit grows out of a controversy between the National Drama Corporation and R. R. Roberts in connection with the photoplay entitled "The Fall of a Nation."

The complainants alleged in their bill that Roberts had infringed their copyright in permitting the picture to be reproduced outside of the territory leased by the National Drama Corporation to Roberts.

Late Tuesday night Judge Rose, after due inspection of the certificate of copyright of "The Fall of a Nation," issued an order directed to Fuller Barnard, Deputy Marshal of the United States for the State of Maryland, directing him to seize, attach and hold in his possession any film or films located at the Maryland Theatre, Cumberland, connected in any way with the photoplay "The Fall of a Nation."

Wednesday morning, Fuller Barnard, Deputy United States Marshal, armed with a writ of seizure, took charge of "The Fall of a Nation" just as it was about to be shown at the matinee performance at the Maryland Theatre, thereby causing considerable disappointment to the crowd waiting to witness the afternoon performance.

The National Drama Corporation was compelled to institute this proceeding inasmuch as it had certain contracts outstanding for the production of "The Fall of a Nation" in Maryland. Any production in Cumberland at this time, according to its bill of complaint, was without its sanction and consent and in violation of previously assigned territorial rights.

The defendant Roberts had heretofore produced "The Fall of a Nation" at Lynchburg and Roanoke, Virginia, and several other cities outside of his territory. Suits will be instituted by the National Drama Corporation against all theatres which have reproduced "The Fall of a Nation" in violation of the copyright act.

"Christian" Through Vitagraph

Through announcement just made by the Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. Incorporated, it has been decided to distribute the film version of Hall Caine's "The Christian," through that organization.

Exhibitor Charges Blacklisting—Reply to F.I.L.M. Man

A Red Hot Reply to the Letter We Published from "a Middle West Exchange Man" in the January 20 Issue— Declares F.I.L.M. Club Unjust

THAT the letter which was published in our issue of January 20 from "a middle western exchange man" is without grounds and is totally unfair is charged by L. H. O'Donnell, president of the O'Donnell-Eskridge Amusement Company, of Washington, Ind.

We take pleasure in publishing a reputable exhibitor's comments on this important question. It is a question which should be thrashed out, thoroughly, entirely. The letter is reprinted below in full:

I have just read with interest the article on page 381 of your issue of January 20, which you state was written by a Middle West exchange manager, who desires his name to be withheld.

He states: "We are endeavoring to correct a great many of the abuses that prevail in this business. These abuses in some cases have been so nauseous that in other lines of business a customer would "be considered nothing more nor less than a crook if he tried to put over such stuff as we film men have tolerated."

He then goes on and cites illustrations of his side only. We want to give the other side. During the past year two Chicago exchanges of our large film producing corporations, through rank neglect in their office, put us as an exhibitor, amongst those, whom we presume, he terms as crooks.

At the beginning of the express drivers' strike in Chicago last spring we failed to receive a shipment, compelling our house to be in darkness for the night.

We wrote to two exchanges in Chicago from whom we were getting films, stating to them that we realized the handicap under which they were operating, but did not want to be compelled to close our house on account of it, and said to them if they had any doubt as to their being able to get delivery to us, we would prefer they hold up our contract until the strike was over, and we would procure temporary service out of Cincinnati or St. Louis.

We received two telegrams the next day. One of them, from the Metro Film Co., read: Will be in position to deliver your service. The other read: Do not depend upon us. Procure service elsewhere.

In accordance with their instructions we depended upon Metro for our service, which they failed to deliver to us, again compelling our house to remain closed.

This condition existed during the time of the strike, they charging us for the films that never reached us, and they appropriated our deposit to pay for them, sending our next films C. O. D.

We took the matter up with them by corespondence, they promised to get it straightened out. This they never did, and although we kept after them four months, we were unable to get any consideration from them.

On account of their having appropriated our deposit money, they sent us a new contract to sign, asking for another deposit, stating that films that were shipped that day would be the last we would receive until they received our renewal contract.

Our money was gone; they were in Chicago, and we in southern Indiana.

THIS IS AN OPEN HOUSE

The accompanying letter, from a reputable Indiana exhibitor, illuminates the other side of an important question.

We want your opinions, as an intelligent, alert exhibitor, on these big, timely questions.

Whether you're the owner of a 200 or a 2,000 seat house—or the president of a $2,000,000 film corporation—YOU'RE WELCOME! THIS IS AN OPEN HOUSE.

We could not, for the amount involved, afford to go to Chicago or New York and enter into a law suit with the Metro Film Co., therefore we did the only thing left to us.

We held the last films they sent us, notifying them they could have them whenever they paid us the amount due us.

The writer was called by long distance 'phone, the party calling stating he was Mr. Harry Weiss of the Chicago Film Club. He stated that he represented an association formed for the purpose of adjusting differences between exhibitors and exchanges, and he further said that he knew we were in the wrong in holding up the films, practically saying that our case had been passed upon by him, without us having a semblance of a hearing.

We told the party talking that they could have the films whenever they paid us the amount they owed us. He then said this club would blacklist us in Chicago and every city in the United States and prevent us getting any service from any exchange.

His threat failed in its purpose, and we compelled the Metro Co. to pay us back our money before they could get their films.

In fairness to Mr. Weiss I wish to state that the writer afterwards called upon him personally, and he stated that he had not called me, that it was some one impersonating him who had done the talking and he knew nothing at all about it.

During the last month we received a communication from the Hoy Reporting Service, Chicago, in which they state:

The F. I. L. M. Club, of which we are the central bureau, will not tolerate the acts which you have committed in defiance of the rules of business conduct and fair dealing, until you adjust your differences with the Metro Film Service. The restraint being placed upon you will not only be enforced, but will be drawn tighter until you see fit to do what is right under the circumstances.

We, only, during the last few days, have felt the effects of their blacklisting us, through the cancellation of one of our contracts. This club has painted us as robbers, thieves, and no telling what else, and sent, we presume, broadcast over the country statements to the effect that we are dead-beats.

We contend that the exhibitor is entitled to be heard, before any set of men in Chicago condemn him, and brand the exhibitor thief and crook.

We court the fullest investigation and if any fair-minded man or men decide we are in the wrong, we will give four times the amount involved to any charitable organization they might name.

We feel that we are responsible and if the F.I.L.M. Club does not think so, we will give a bond signed by any one, or all four of our city banks, guaranteeing them that if they will prosecute the case, that any judgment the courts may give them will be paid immediately.

Unlike the supposed-to-be-exhibitor's Chicago friend, we do not ask our name to be withheld.

Very truly yours,
L. H. O'DONNELL.

"Civilization" for World's Stage

With the departure this week to Japan, China and other parts of the Far East of representatives of the Harper Film Corporation carrying the film, "Civilization," for exploitation and exhibition, the Ince spectacle now may be said to girdle the globe. Arrangements have thus been made whereby every country outside the European war zone can see the picture. Before the war is entirely finished, it may also find its way into Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Roumania, etc.

This is claimed to be the first time in history of the motion picture business that a great cinema spectacle has been given a world-wide show. The credit for this result is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. J. Parker Read, Jr., general manager of the Harper Film Corporation.

Berst Takes "News" View on "Sunday Pictures"

Pathe General Manager Shares Opinion of Frank Rembusch, Whose Letter Appeared in the News on January 20

THE letter by Frank Rembusch, published in a recent issue of the NEWS, has caused widespread comment in motion picture circles. Mr. Rembusch, in his letter to the NEWS, made a plea for "Sunday pictures" and condemned the sort of picture that cannot be discussed in the home.

"The exhibitors of the United States and not the producers, decide what kind of pictures shall be made," declared J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange.

"The exhibitors reflect the views of the motion picture public and there is no doubt but that the public wants clean, wholesome pictures that will entertain every day of the week, including Sunday, and that will appeal to young as well as to old. We do not think Mr. Rembusch means that he wants pictures as an attraction for Sundays only, otherwise he would be doomed to disappointment. Such pictures would be ruinous for the manufacturer because of the limited demand.

"The tendency in the industry today is towards better and cleaner pictures. There has been and likely there is still a demand for the so-called 'sex picture.' This demand exists not only in motion pictures, but on the stage and in literature. Pathe has, however, refrained from taking advantage of that demand.

"There is no excuse for the kind of picture that offends public decency and I am glad to state that this sort of picture is rapidly decreasing in popular favor. When the demand ceases, so will this type of picture, because the unscrupulous producers who are catering to the low taste of the community will not continue to produce pictures that will not earn money for them, and so will end the production.

"All of the producers are now discovering that clean pictures are profitable. Some of the most popular features Pathe has released during the past year have been based on delightful, charming little stories that appeal to children and grownups with equal strength. Take for instance, the series of features with Baby Marie Osborne. The stories are all fresh, bright and snappy tales written especially around this wonderful little child. We have had letters from hundreds of exhibitors complimenting us on this new type of picture. The Gladys Hulette series, including 'Prudence, the Pirate,' 'The Shine Girl,' and 'Her New York,' are also immensely popular because the stories are so fresh and clean.

"Mr. Rembusch makes one suggestion that does not seem to me to be practical. He wants the producing companies to state at the bottom of their advertisements: 'Suitable for Sunday showing.' We would prefer to state in our advertisements that Pathe Pictures are suitable for showing every day to every class of audience.

"I am very glad that the one advertisement pointing out the profit in clean pictures that Mr. Rembusch found in the trade papers, was a Pathe advertisement. It shows our attitude on the subject."

South American Distribution for F.P.-Lasky

Three-Year Negotiation Ends and Program Is to Be Handled in Argentine, Paraguay and Uruguay

CONTRACTS have just been closed between the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and the Sociedad General Cinematografica of Buenos Aires, by the terms of which Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas Pictures are to be handled exclusively by the Sociedad General in Argentine, Paraguay and Uruguay.

The completion of these arrangements marks the culmination of a series of investigations and negotiations lasting three years. When the Famous Players and Lasky companies completed a mutual agreement for the joint distribution of their products outside of the United States —where they are released on the Paramount Program—the producers turned at once to South America as being geographically next in line to Canada itself as the logical place for the exploiting of American photoplays.

Investigations conducted at that time, however, led to the belief that the time was not then ripe for the establishing of a mutually beneficial arrangement.

When in 1915 a Famous Player-Lasky representative went to South America he took with him several photoplays produced by the companies which he represented. These he exhibited in all the principal cities which he visited.

Now that circumstances have so shaped themselves in South America as to warrant the introduction of a high-class feature program, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has signed a contract with the big distributing concern to handle its products in the three countries already mentioned.

The signing of this contract, following closely upon the engagement of J. C. Graham as general foreign representative of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and the engagement of Alac Lorimore and Ingvald C. Oes as foreign representatives, is only the first step along the line of expanding the world-wide activities of the company, which have previously embraced South Africa, Australia and the Continent.

Wharton Company Loses J. W. Buck

J. Whitworth Buck, for the past two years general manager, secretary and treasurer of Wharton, Inc., and associated with the Wharton motion picture interests of this city since the firm began operations here several years ago has disposed of his stock in the concern to Leo D. and Theodore W. Wharton. Mr. Buck plans to engage in business in New York.

Zukor Tells Why Frohman Alliance Was Dropped

The reasons for the discontinuance of the Famous Players-Charles Frohman Company has been stated by Mr. Zukor as follows:

"From the inception of the Famous Players Film Co., we were anxious to effect an affiliation with Charles Frohman because, among other things, of his distinguished position among theatrical producers of artistic stage offerings.

"Mr. Frohman's alliance with the motion picture was considered by the entire amusement world, as well as the public, as a great stimulus to the art of the motion picture. Mr. Frohman's interest in the screen was not limited to his desire to have reproduced before the camera the great plays which he had presented on the stage, but consisted of a real purpose to select and produce a series of plays that would later be adaptable to screen translations.

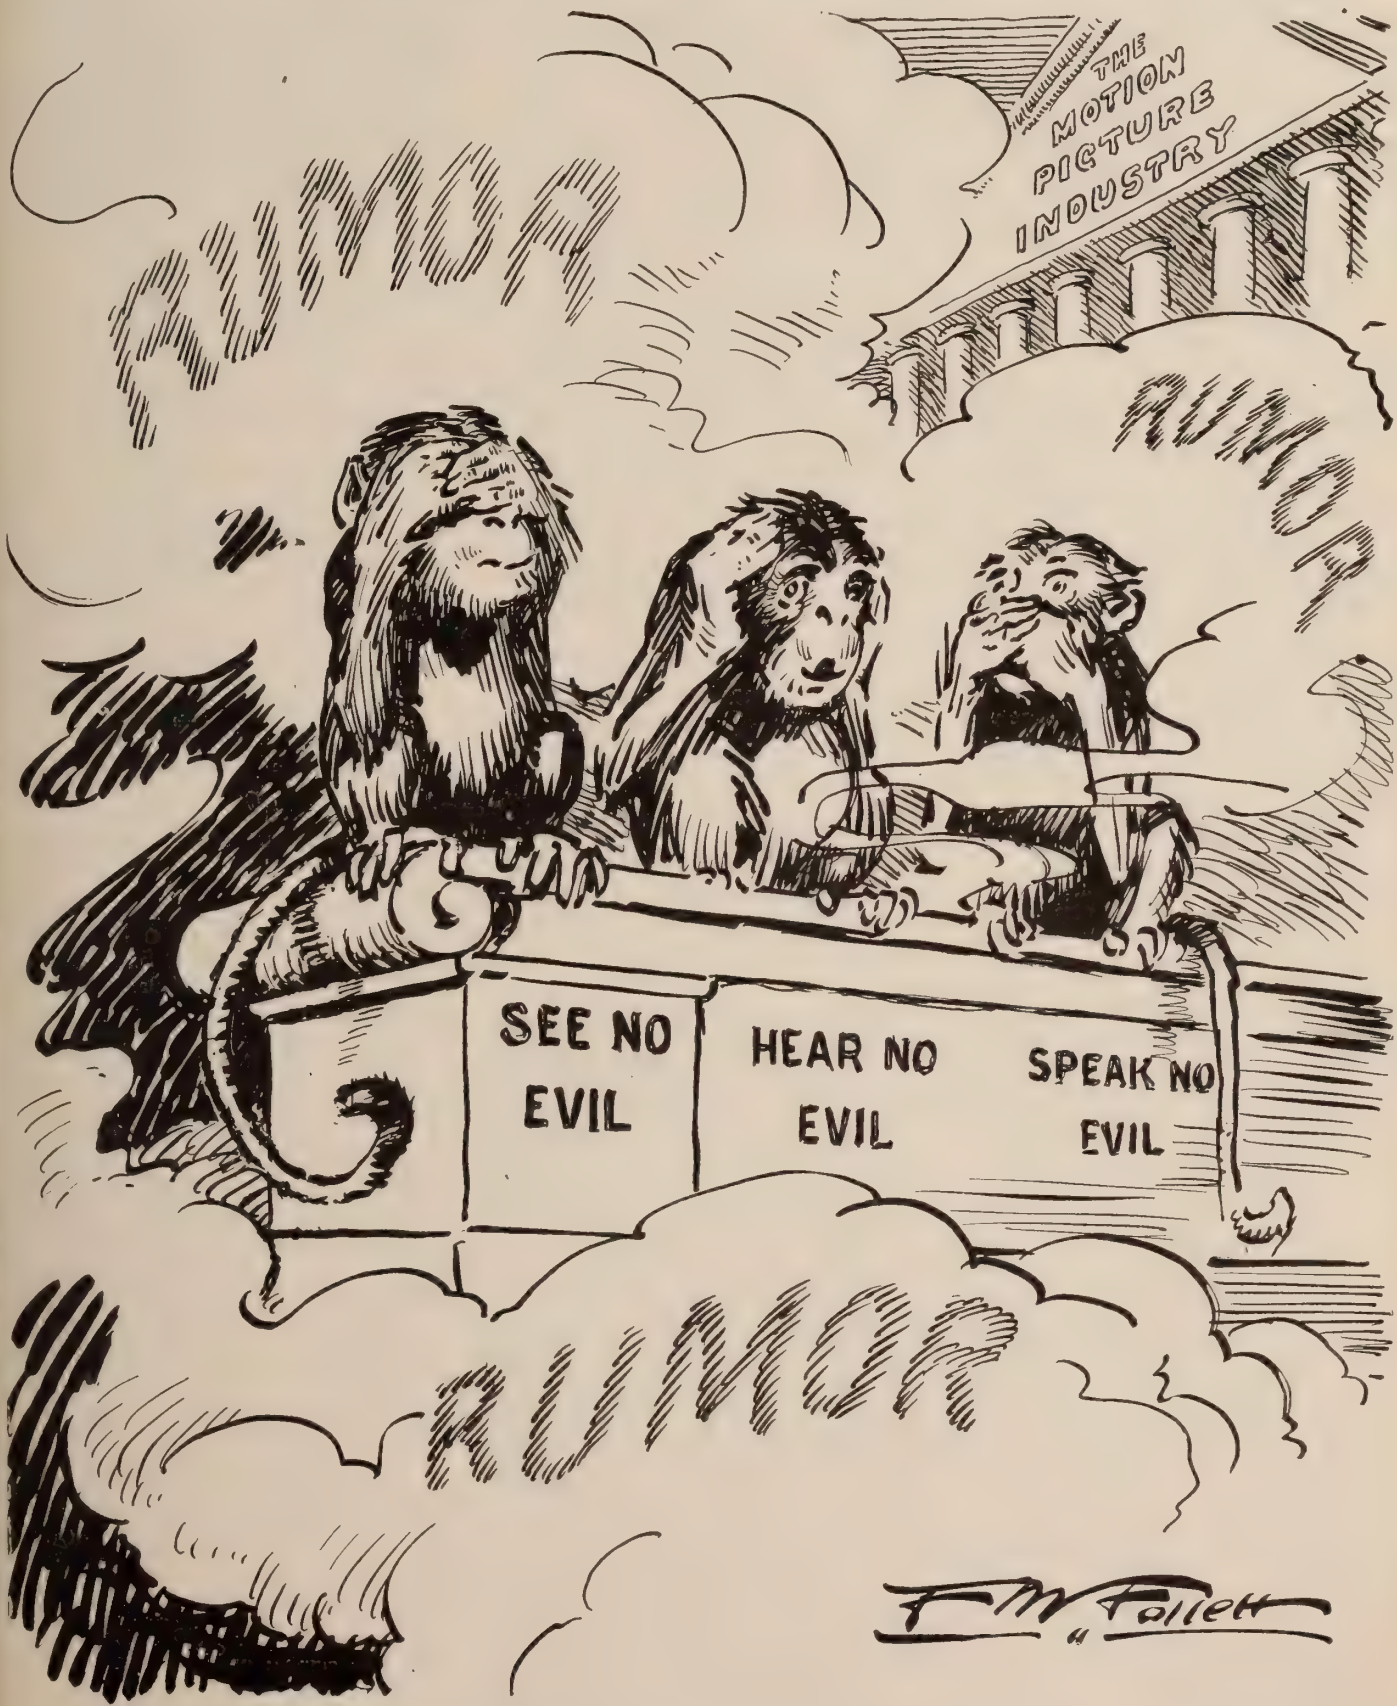
"After we had produced all the plays controlled by Charles Frohman which in our judgment were suitable to our stars and producing requirements, we depended upon these new plays for the future activites of the Famous Players-Charles Frohman Company. The furtherance of this plan was abruptly terminated by the producer's tragic death on the Lusitania.

"There is therefore no longer any business necessity for continuing this subsidiary corporation."

This statement does not imply that the relations between Famous Players and Daniel Frohman are altered in any way.

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation in New Offices

All departments of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation transferred on January 15 from temporary headquatrers at 1451 Broadway to new offices on the seventh floor of the Rogers Peet building, 16 East Forty-second street.



The work of outfitting and equipping the headquarters for the Goldwyn corporation was accomplished in the record time of three weeks. Provision is made in the new offices for the president, general counsel, business and managerial offices, editorial department, editorial and news service departments and the scenario department. Private offices are provided for Edgar Selwyn, Margaret Mayo and Edith Ellis and their staffs and assistants.

Universal Film Shows Evils of Sunday Closing

The respite granted to the motion picture industry by the postponement of the Sunday Closing, has made possible the completion of a picture which will show the typical American family as it now lives, finding its Sunday recreation in the motion picture theatre, the only neighborhood amusement; then it will show conditions as they would be if Sunday Closing is made permanent. He will see children playing in the streets, the tired mother at home without diversion and the father back in the corner saloon. Prepared by the Universal Animated Weekly department the picture will be distributed to all Universal exchanges in New York State.

TAKE A LITTLE ADVICE FROM AN OLDER PEOPLE

(This is the Second of a Series of Cartoons Made Especially for Motion Picture News by THE BRAY STUDIOS, INC.)

WITH THE EXHIBITOR

He Disagrees with Views of "Efficiency Man"

No Millenium for Exhibitors, with Cheap Pictures Featuring Good Natured Stars Willing to Work for Nothing

MOTION PICTURE NEWS has received the following letter from a correspondent who takes up the cudgels with "Efficiency Man," whose letter appeared in the NEWS, January 13, page 2230. It is as follows:

MOTION PICTURE NEWS,
New York.

Gentlemen:

In your issue of January 13 you publish a letter from a man you designate an "efficiency man," and you rightly say "If he is right a good many people are wrong." You ask somebody to take issue with him, and here goes.

In the first place, he says "It will not be denied that the raise to ten cents was fully justified and the logical move, but when it is raised to fifteen cents the danger point is reached." He gives some very good reasons, which I know to be right, from bitter experience. But his main reason seems to be that the fifteen-cent price is an awkward split between the convenient dime and the customary quarter. There is no doubt that with plenty of capacity, the house charging ten cents appeals to more than half as many again as the house charging fifteen cents.

The fifteen-cent price is justified, however, where capacity counts, namely where capacity can be done at that price and to charge less would overcrowd the theatre and to charge the full twenty-five cents would drive too many away, I am willing to grant this efficiency expert has sound argument and knows what he is talking about as to price. But what does he mean when he says the feature companies ought to make their price so low as to corral all the business?

Does he even begin to know what he is talking about? What a millenium for the poor exhibitor he suggests! But is there to be only one exhibitor in town, or are they all to run the same show? If every store was a five and ten cent store, would we have to use five and ten cent store goods only? And stop advertising! Stop overhead! Quit the newspapers cold! That is what the ten-cent store does, but it lives off of the by product of what other stores make it possible to produce.

Do we want pictures like that? Cheap pictures, with nice, good natured stars who are willing to work cheap because the work is easy? I think Mr. Expert's statement that "ten cents" is king is a good one. Let us hope someone will come to the rescue of the other suggestions he makes, which seem to me not only impracticable, but impossible. Let us have economical distribution and stoppage of waste, by all means, but what is most needed is intelligent co-operation between the present existing exchanges and the smallest exhibitor.

AT YOUR SERVICE!

An expert exhibitor on our editorial staff wants to swap money-making ideas for the problems that are worrying you!

He is in constant touch with exhibitors who have made good in a big way.

Take advantage of his knowledge: give him a chance to untangle some of your hard knots.

This dollars-and-cents service costs you only the two cents you spend for a postage stamp.

Write to-day!

The above letter refers to statements by William E. Heal; statements decidedly broad and hard to justify as general rules. Mr. Heal suggested "efficiency" in reorganization of distribution, lower selling price, using more prints of less subjects, and elimination of advertising cost, especially newspaper advertising.

But it seems to me Mr. Heal overlooked the personal element in the present condition of things. Those in the game today got in with wide-open eyes, expecting to make the other fellow get out. They failed to realize that the other fellow might feel the same way about them. And until the "survival of the fittest," which means the death of the weakest, such an economic system as Mr. Heal suggests cannot work out.

Mr. Heal may be right, in theory, under idealized conditions, but we see a good deal of room for argument on the lines suggested by these two letters. Here is a new tack for us exhibitors; let us start the ball rolling again and keep it rolling. Evidently these discussions are stirring up interest amongst men who are giving the matter deep thought and who may eventually get through the outer shells of some of the "magnates" referred to by Mr. Heal as needing to learn a few things or make room for better heads. There seems to be a unanimous opinion that something is wrong with the distribution of films, and that those at the head can remedy it.

Children's Features in Omaha

THE Woman's Club board of censorship of Omaha, Neb., chose programs for the first special Saturday morning children's matinees held in the city under their supervision—and the programs were a huge success! If your hearing is acute, and you were in Omaha today, you could still hear the echoes of the several hundred children voicing approval.

One program was given at the Muse, Twenty-fourth and Farnam; the other at the Strand, Eighteenth and Douglas. Managers Shirley and Thomas are enthusiastic supporters of the women in their "battle for better pictures for children," as they call it.

A committee from the Woman's Club, together with people from other uplift organizations, picked out the pictures to go on the programs. The exhibitors agreed to show them at five cents admission. The special matinees will be continued for ten Saturdays, the committee picking the program each week.

The programs for the first of the special matinees, given Saturday, January 13, were:

Muse—Marguerite Clark in "The Prince and the Pauper"; Burton Holmes travelogues, "Going Some in San Francisco"; a Bray cartoon, and "Colonel Heeza Liar Captures Villa."

Strand—Baby Marie Osborne in "Shadows and Sunshine"; a travelogue, "Unchanging Holland," and a cartoon, "The Baby Bear."

Manager Jensen of the Lothrop theatre, Twenty-fourth and Lothrop, who was making a success of children's matinees "before the Muse was built," and Exhibitor Marcus of the Majestic, in Council Bluffs, one of the most successful children's matinee exhibitors in the two cities, are watching the new wave with great interest. Women all over the state are watching the Omaha experiment with interst. If it is a success it will be tried in nearly every one of the larger cities and towns throughout Nebraska.

Anti-Censorship Meeting in San Francisco January 25

H. L. Beach, acting chairman of the Motion Picture Exhibitors of the State of California, has called a meeting for January twenty-fifth, at eleven o'clock (A. M.) in Fotoplayer Hall, 109 Golden Gate avenue, to combat proposed censorship legislation. The importance of this meeting cannot be overestimated, it is said by those behind the movement.

Jos. G. Gerard, Arma, Kansas

The accompanying photograph shows what one man can accomplish in a town of two thousand population. Jos. G. Girard, proprietor of the Pearl theatre and opera house, at Arma, Kansas, has a theatre seating four hundred and fifty, with stage twenty by thirty, accommodating road shows, and direct current equipment for pictures. From very small capital he has made sufficient profits, with program pictures, to accumulate in round figures ten thousand dollars' worth of property. Many exhibitors owning more pretentious theatres in bigger towns would like to swap places with Joe, just now. We almost forgot to say this enterprising exhibitor advises us he is even equipped to use the roof of his building as an airdome.

Machine Gun Secured from Local Guard a Startling Lobby Display

Pathe's Los Angeles office created a novel idea for putting over "Pearl of the Army," its big military-mystery serial, by taking advantage of the opportunity provided by a ground-floor window, to set up a most attractive lobby display in this window. They dug a trench around one window and obtained a machine gun with full equipment from the local National Guard which had just returned from the Mexican border. The gun and equipment was set up behind the trench with a cut-out of Pearl White standing behind the gun, and a background of stone work on which was painted "Pearl of the Army."

The first day this was set up, a number of contracts were signed with exhibitors, who simply saw the window and saw how they could get money with similar displays. A crowd around the window continually blocked the sidewalk. The local newspapers carried notices and people from all over were attracted by this odd and really educational display.

The only condition on which the machine gun could be obtained was that it be taken out of the window each night and locked in the vault, for while only worth about $500, none of them can be obtained at this time and the National Guard officials were afraid that some one might smash the window and carry out the gun during the night, as many attempts had been made to procure them.

The Pathe office had photographs taken so that the salesmen may carry them and show the exhibitor just how to make up a similar lobby display.

A Live Oracle from Texas Speaks

"Less Heavy Stuff, Less Crime," Says This Exhibitor in Summing Up Picture Situation

THE following carefully thought out views on the present condition of affairs in the picture field is worth reading very carefully. The writer is the owner of several theatres in Texas.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS:

GENTLEMEN: As one of the eighty per cent plus that you have been, and are still, encouraging to tell what is wrong with the business, I am going to add my small voice to those who have already said so many good things, and advanced so many good opinions.

Once upon a time, lo, these many years ago, the theatres of our land were nearly all doing a prosperous business. Owners and managers wore expansive smiles, as well as various and sundry diamond headlights. Suddenly, and almost out of a clear sky, there descended on them a plague in the shape of the vaudeville bill which waxed strong and put these same theatrical owners and managers up against it good and hard.

Now, why, why, why, did vaudeville put the legitimate houses to the bad?

To my mind, there is but one answer, and it is this:—people go to the theatre to be amused; not simply to be interested, but amused.

The heavy melodrama, the sex drama, the morality play, the play that has as its excuse for existence the weaknesses that flesh is heir to, all these are not long on amusement for the tired mind and body.

Life itself is sufficiently full of evidences of these same weaknesses and the punishments that they deserve and receive, without going to a place of amusement and having an exaggerated form of the same sort of thing forced on one's attention for an entire evening, and having to pay for it into the bargain.

All this the vaudeville bill remedied by the use of short, interesting, and amusing sketches and novelties that furnished real enjoyment and took one away for a short time from the vexing problems of real life.

Vaudeville continued to hold the boards with increasing popularity and profit until the advent of the motion picture.

Again the stage suffered a slump, and this time not only the dramatic stage but the vaudeville, as well.

Again why this second catastrophe for the stage? Again the answer is to my mind, plainly to be seen.

The moving pictures furnish novelty, short entertaining subjects, and last, and most important, at a price with which even the vaudeville house could not compete.

All this brings us to the days that are with us now, the days of small or no profits, in many cases actual loss and bankruptcy.

We see our former patrons going back to the vaudeville and possibly to the legitimate house, and the great cry is going up—why, why, is this condition and what is the remedy?

The answer as I see it, is this:—less heavy stuff, less crime, less social tragedy and sob stuff, and more comedy; not slapstick—far from it—but good, clean, snappy comedy drama light but not frothy, that could be best expressed by the word entertaining.

When there is on the market sufficient of this character of subjects in plays of varying length and of really good character, so that the exhibitor may be able to have at least fifty per cent. of his program comedy drama, then, and to my mind, only then will the business come into its own again, and it will come to stay.

Brother from Texas, you know what you are talking about, but we are going to disagree with you on some points. First, as to comedies. The slap-stick comedy appeals to the majority of people, just as the vaudeville you condemn, because it requires no mental effort whatever to laugh at its foolishness,—provided you are not utterly disgusted. The refined comedy drama, of five reel length, does not draw. The sex stuff, and sob stuff, draws the "deadly movie fan," but even this hectic seeker of the sensational has been overfed with this kind of picture. What the industry needs is a partial return to the really worth while short reel dramas and comedies with variety which you and I remember not so many years back.

If the producers will furnish five reel subjects with real stories, really holding you to the end, like good literature, the picture will again be accepted and displace the novelty and vacuousness of most vaudeville. Not one subject in three, that is being marketed today, is beyond question worth the footage given it. You may like one, I may like another, and there is a market for it all, but the average theatregoer enjoys today only about one in three of the picture plays he sees. Not more than that proportion stand out and beckon him to return again for more.

It is not a question of kind of pictures now, nor of length. Long, or short, the subjects must be interesting and entertaining. The predominance of "sob stuff" is wrong, of course. But except for the comedies, if you think your audiences want a return to the sweet pictures, the simple romances, you will find plenty of such subjects among pictures now being produced, both for the "programs" and by producers willing to sell separate pictures. The daily change of program, enabling poor pictures to be marketed at all, is the root of the evil. If you have read the last two editorials in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, entitled "The Deadly Movie Fan," and "The Deadly Daily Change," you have had pointed out to you the fundamental weakness of our structure. We cannot build up and out until we can break down the false walls which now confine the industry to its narrowest limits.

[Exhibitors' Personals—those intimate notes of what you and your neighbors are doing—will be found in the department, "Newsy Reports from All Sections."]

Fifteen Thousand Children Respond to Free Matinees

AS a test of what can be accomplished by organization and proper direction, in the children's matinee movement, the local Federation of Women's Clubs brought to twelve theatres in two consecutive matinees of two shows on each day more than 15,000 children, young people and parents. This was the first of the experimental matinee performances being conducted by this organization in the Capital City for better pictures for the young folks. These were directed by Mrs. J. J. Locher, chairman of the Motion Picture Committee of the Federation, and her assistants together with Mrs. Giles Rafter, president of the Mothers' Congress of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Cort F. Wood, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs. These initial matinees were free as will also be the succeeding two matinees, but on January 19 a nominal charge will be asked for the matinee performances on Friday and Saturday, to be continued as a weekly amusement for young people conducted by the Federation.

That more than 15,000 people should have attended these performances shows that just so many people were interested, and whether seriously or not it marked an excellent and encouraging beginning in so worthy a cause. These theatres were located in different sections of the city, chaperoned by members from the Federation. At a few of the houses the crowd was so great that all could not gain admission, and so eager were the youngsters that long lines were waiting orderly for entrance. The theatres offered free of charge to the Federation were Avenue Grand, Empire, Home, Lyric, Olympic, Victoria, Masonic Temple, Circle, Dunbarton, Truxton, Howard and Blue Mouse.

Speaking of Mrs. Locher on the subject she said, "We feel much encouraged, but, of course, we cannot say that success is ours as yet. The real test will come with the pay performances. But we can say that against many odds and some discouragements we have succeeded in getting the movement for better pictures for the young people favorably started. More than this, we have made the people think about the kind of pictures they ought to or like to see, and better still, the kind of pictures parents should let their children see. It was because we realized that only by direction from the home could children's matinees be a success, that we have worked from that end, and it has been through the hearty co-operation of the parents that we have gained this excellent beginning of what we look to be a substantial success.

"I cannot give too great thanks to the co-operation and assistance of the film exchanges for loaning the films for these free matinees, to the exhibitors for the free use of their houses, to the operators and pianists for their services gratis and to the press for the abundance of publicity of our plans. All this has contributed towards our progress in this movement.

"All the hard work preceding the first performance has been forgotten in the splendid attendance from every section of the city. Much more work is to be done, more organization, more attention to details; but with the hearty co-operation and enthusiasm we have already aroused, we are assured of success in the better pictures movement for the young folks. I personally visited every theatre and every performance and those large audiences and the enjoyment observed assured me more than anything else that our efforts were not being wasted or misdirected."

To further assist the Federation the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts and the Colored High School cadets assisted as ushers at the various theatres. The local police gave aid and the civil authorities were also in co-operation. The public schools showed their approval of the movement by encouraging the pupils to attend the performances and in some cases by dismissing the schools in ample time to witness the matinees. The Federation of Women's Clubs believes that the public is the best censor of the motion pictures, and this is one of the means by which it can be put into execution.

WILLARD HOWE.

Borrows Statuary and Vases for Screen Setting

An example of the way a department store and motion picture theatre may work together to mutual advantage was shown the first week of the year by L. C. Calvert of the New Garrick, Minneapolis. Mr. Calvert obtained the use of several pieces of statuary from one of the stores, and these with large vases made a handsome screen setting for one of his films.

There was no gaudy advertising in the theatre, yet through the press notices the public learned where the statuary came from and both concerns profited. There is no limit to the variety of such settings. Where there is a very special need Mr. Calvert often has two small side settings painted for the occasion. There is just a suggestion of the film subject as the reflected light falls on the settings.

In adopting this idea be sure you do not advertise the store too strongly for then the stunt has a boomerang effect.

An Unpleasant Fight with Knives

"ANYBODY would think you fellows were selling groceries at so much a pound, the way you advertise 'reels' against each other!" declared an Omaha, Neb., exchange manager to the struggling proprietor of one of the lower downtown theatres. The exhibitor was pleading for more reels.

"Every time I put out a sign saying 'Six reels—10 cents' he comes back with a bigger sign 'Seven reels—10 cents' and gets my business. Can't you give me as many reels as his exchange gives him?" the exhibitor had asked.

The exhibitor was interviewed, and asked that his name be kept out of the paper because he didn't want the man across the street to know he was 'squealing.'

"Our patronage is not steady, but is made up largely of transients," he said, referring to his theatre and the one across the street. "That is the reason the fronts of our houses are lurid blotches on the downtown landscape. We get the most sensational posters we can and put them out where the passersby cannot get by without them staring him in the face. The more suggestive the picture, the more we play it up.

"It is a cut-throat battle for our lives. Other exhibitors have asked us to stop such advertising, and said it would cultivate a demand for censorship. When they had an organization the organization waited upon us and asked us to stop it. We both promised, but we didn't. Hidden behind my posters, I watched patrons entering my competitor's house. Every time one looked at my posters, then looked at his and then entered his theatre, I would add on something to make them more attractive.

"Often patrons would come to the window. 'How many reels are you showing?' they would ask.

"'Six,'" my cashier would say.

"'Aw, c'mon,' they would say to each other, 'let's go across the street. They've got seven reels over there.'

"They didn't care anything about the quality of the picture. If the posters were good, neither did we. We would run stuff months old, worn until it looked like a constant rain on the screen, just so the posters were good. And we had to get the cheapest stuff possible in order to hold to our cut-throat tactics.

"Our shows were the bottom rung of the motion picture industry. I know it now, and I knew it then. I'm getting more disgusted every day. Conditions have improved some, but that old fight of 'how many reels' continues. I wish they didn't designate a picture's length by the number of reels. Sometimes I am tempted to try to invent a smaller reel and squelch the man across the street by advertising a twelve-reel show.

"Lately we have started showing vaudeville. You can call it that, or you can call it by less respectable names and still be within the bounds of truth. As a part of our lobby display we showed photographs of the girls with as few clothes on as possible, or pictures of them dressed in tights. On one side of us is a saloon, on the other side a pool hall, and similar places, with cheap cafes and rooming houses all about. Few women come into my place, or the place across the street. Often inside the theatre, there is a drunken disturbance and the police are called.

"As I said, I am disgusted. Some day I intend to quit, but I have put money and time in this show and I don't want to lose all that.

"This is my explanation for my fight by advertising so many reels, and for my showing such pictures as I do."

The man across the street had seen the interviewer talking to this exhibitor. He refused to be interviewed.

The Passing of the Herald

The herald—that staunch stand-by of the exhibitor of yesteryear would seem to have passed away. In place of its gaudy colors, blotchy cuts and long-winded "Synopsis of the Film" we have the up-to-date house organ, program, circular letter and post card appeal to patrons.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

Seattle Pulls Off a New Year Celebration De Luxe

"Coliseum Midnight Follies" Turns Theatre Into Hawaiian Garden with Most Novel Entertainment—Including "Movies of Fifteen Years Ago"

SEATTLE, always up-to-the-minute in all things, possesses one citizen who has made an enviable name for himself and his associates, as will well be understood when you read the description of how a dry holiday was made a festive one long to be remembered by all who were lucky enough to be in on the entertainment. Don't you wish you were there? Picture the piece de resistance, the movies of fifteen years ago, with all their crudeness—for this theatre manager did not forget that, after all, this entertainment was in a house devoted to pictures, and his people expected some sort of a picture show entertainment besides the added novelty features. They surely got it all. Here is the scenario:

PLACE:—

Seattle, U. S. A.

TIME:—

New Year's Eve., 1916-1917.

REMARKS:—

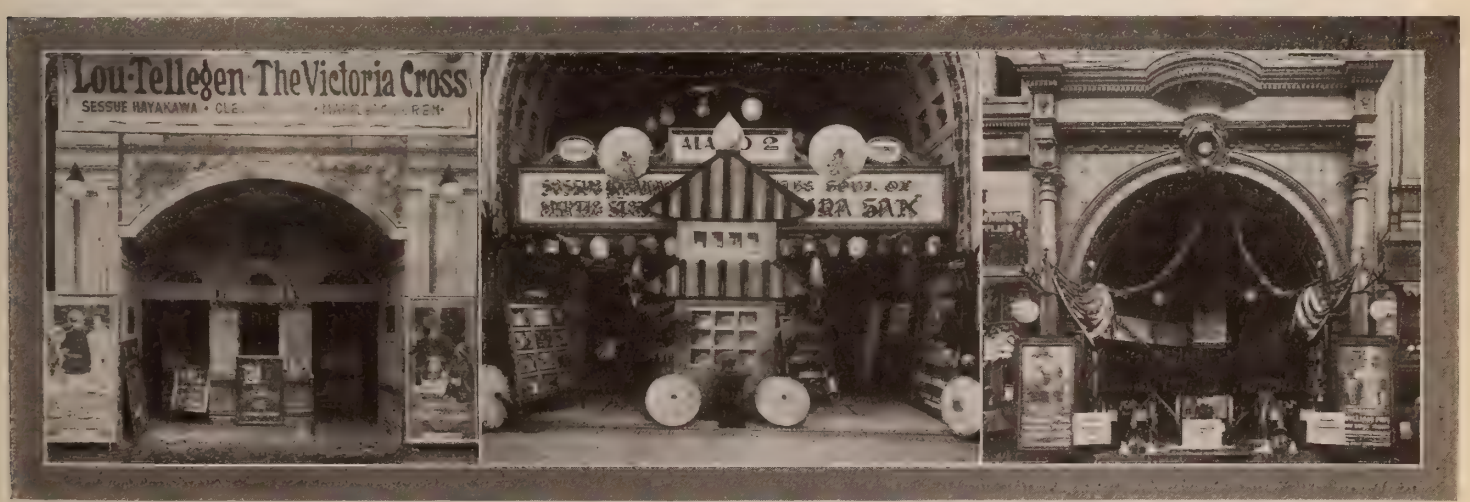
Famed for her New Year's Eve festivities with "wet goods" as joy dispenser, Seattle faced her first New Year's Eve as a "dry city."

IDEA:—

Why not a combination "Midnight Follies" and cabaret show with a carnival mixed in? This, in brief, was the idea presented by (100%) Fullerton of the Liberty Theatre, to Jensen & Von Herberg who promptly accepted it.

The Coliseum Theatre, Seattle's newest and largest photoplay house (owned by Jensen & Von Herberg), was selected because of its size and adaptability to spectacular house lighting effects and "The Coliseum Midnight Follies" was under way. Mr. Fullerton was given carte blanche by Messrs. Jensen & Von Herberg in decorations, plan of entertainment, lighting effects, etc.

The general decorative scheme was Hawaiian, and as the house was in use as a photoplay theatre until 11:00 New Year's Eve, and was to open a brief half-hour later transformed, a special decorating contract was made. Long streamers 4½ feet deep of paper strips extended from the balcony to the top of the proscenium arch, shutting off the balcony, each strip placed a scant yard apart, and constantly waving by means of high power fans and lighted up with colored floods, was one of the effects. Another was the stage where on either side were placed fountains, illuminated. Around these were banked a profusion of flowers, suggesting the tropical atmosphere.



Outside dense mobs had formed. As the crowds surged into the house through five double door entrances, each party was handed two large rolls of serpentine, a wooden mallet and block (labeled Coliseum Midnight Follies, New Year's Eve, 1916-1917), and metal "crickets" to start the fun going. Spot lights illumined the crowds flashing back and forth, the house lights were turned on full. Altogether it was some sight to watch the people now seated, with streams of serpentine over all—hammers keeping time with the lively music furnished by the Coliseum Greater Orchestra.

A few seconds of twelve the house lights dimmed from the back until at twelve it was pitch dark when the orchestra took up "Auld Lang Syne." As this finished a sweet tolling of bells was heard (house still dark) and a spot light picked up "Father Time," as he hobbled over the stage to the tune of "Darling I am Growing Old," and just as he disappeared "1917," a cute little rascal, about knee high to a grasshopper, came dancing onto the stage (music "Pretty Baby"). As the baby reached the center, Peace, Prosperity and Liberty formed a background while above them on the curtain, a slide announced it was now 1917—and wished every one a prosperous and happy New Year.

The show was on and the house still dark. Hawaiians sang to the music of their sweet sounding string instruments, while over the run-way, which ran directly through and over the heads of the audience, came a vision in flowers and seagrass illuminated by red spot lights—of course she had to dance the "Hula Hula." This was followed by a comedy act that started in the audience, girls that sang and played, more music, more mirth, more maids and songs of long-ago that everybody knew and everybody sang. A picture show of 15 years ago was a novelty that brought laughs, the old styles of clothes, the near acting (?), the photography and classical (?) music improvised for the occasion kept the audience in a constant uproar.

Lest we forget, punch was served with dainty individual cakes. Manager C. S. Jensen just whispered to Hazen J. Titus, "the great Big Baked Potato man of the N. P.," that the Coliseum was going to serve punch and cakes at the New Year's Eve party and Titus said: "Leave it to me."

The seats were sold at a dollar apiece on the lower floor, and $1.50 each for loge seats on the lower and mezzanine floors. The entire house was sold out 12 hours before the show opened, and it is estimated that over five hundred were turned away. Approximately 1500 seats were sold. But of more benefit than the evident profit of the occasion itself is the strong link forged between the Coliseum and the Seattle memory.

Live Wire Lobbies That Got the Money—"Victoria Cross" at Alcazar, Chattanooga Tenn.; "Soul of Kura San" at Alamo No. 2, Atlanta, Ga.; "The Love Thief" at Fox Theatre, Springfield, Mass.

Bluebird Offers Prizes for Best Lobbies

Separate Prizes Also for Best Advertising Campaigns— Branch Exchanges Will Co-operate in This Big Idea

WE never hesitate to boost a real idea, which is obviously for the good of exhibitors. And we hope none of the readers of "Live Wire" news will overlook the advertising contest among Bluebird exhibitors, announced from the Bluebird offices this week, awarding liberal prizes to winner of first honors.

There will be two contests, and entries are specifically limited to present Bluebird exhibitors. If you are showing Bluebird pictures during the present week you are eligible to enter both contests, which will cover (a), advertising and lobby displays to be shown by you during the month of February including all advertising in general; and (b), lobby displays considered alone on their separate merits.

Ideas furnished by the Bluebird offices, or your own ideas, will be equally judged on merit. The result, from the box-office angle, of advertising and lobby displays is what the Bluebird company wants to develop through this prize offer.

There will be no division of the prizes. In case of "tie," the full prize will be awarded to each winner, additional money being appropriated to cover this.

Exhibitors must of course furnish their own evidence, by photographs, clippings or otherwise, to the general offices, 1600 Broadway, New York, where all judging will be done. The judges will be the General Manager of Bluebird, the full Board of Directors, and General Assistant Advertising Managers.

The contests will close at midnight, February twenty-eighth and awards will be made March fifteenth.

Here are the prizes:

General Grand Prize, covering advertising display in newspapers, and the use of billboards, novelty floats, heralds, tack cards, window and lobby displays, and every kind of special advertising, all to be considered by the judges as a collective campaign of publicity on Bluebird pictures, covering the entire month of February, sixty dollars ($60).

Lobby Display Grand Prize, for best lobby displays alone, forty dollars ($40.).

Territorial General Prizes, for best advertising in each territorial division of the different Bluebird branch offices, each best general display ten dollars ($10).

Territorial Lobby Prizes, for best lobby display in each territory, five dollars ($5).

No exhibitor winning any of the general awards is entitled to win also the special prize for lobby display in the same class. Only one award can be made to the same exhibitor.

Lobby Display Grand Prize, for best lobby display, forty dollars ($40).

In addition to the above prizes the branch manager of the territory in which the best displays are found, is authorized to add a territorial prize of ten and five dollars, respectively, so that the above awards are for seventy and forty-five dollars, in the aggregate.

The good ideas which this contest is expected to uncover will be told in detail to Bluebird exhibitors through personal circularizing and as a feature of the Bluebird advertising in March.

Results of direct and lasting benefit not only to Bluebird exhibitors, but to all exhibitors, cannot help coming of this novel plan to encourage the exhibitor to put out his fullest efforts toward the better exploitation of his pictures, and use of his lobby as a selling force.

"Pop" Has "Pep"

Manager "Pop" Phillips of the Grand theatre, Kitchener, Ontario, has been putting over a novel advertising and popularity contest stunt which has been productive of very fine results. Phillips made arrangement for the taking of a one-reel photoplay in which the leading role is to be played by the most popular young lady of Kitchener.

Paramount Offers Aid on House Organs

Paramount Progress, the newsy weekly issued by Paramount Pictures Corporation, is always ready to give the exhibitor a few helpful hints. Not the least of these is four pages containing hints for the house program. Many exhibitors have utilized this form in the past, particularly those catering to a neighborhood clientele. It is gotten up in attractive form, the pages containing synopses, casts and cuts on the various Paramount pictures.

All the necessary material can be procured from any exchange handling the Paramount product. A recent idea was developed in connection with the Famous Players picture "Seventeen." A suggested advertisement is printed containing a page from the book by Booth Tarkington that stops at a most interesting place. "Seventeen" is only given as an instance. The same idea can be employed with all pictures that are adaptations from books, or if the advertiser be progressive enough he can make synopses of any film.

Local Personality Linked with Theatre Successfully

MANAGER LIBSON of the Strand, Cincinnati, prevailed upon Howard Saxby, widely known humorist, art critic and literateur of that city to lend his personal name and prestige to the Strand's generosity as host to more than a thousand orphans, boys and girls, from the various institutions of that city in connection with the showing of Paramount's "Snow White." As the result of this premier showing of the picture, on a dull morning to this multitude of appreciative children, the story was given wide publicity and during the week that the picture was showing in his theatre not one hour passed when all the seats were not filled and frequently long lines of eager children and adults stood in front of the lobby waiting to get in. The picture shows Mr. Saxby in the midst of a crowd of children, passing out tickets to the show in the lobby of the Strand. Superintendent M. V. Crouse of the Children's Home is standing with him.

The plan was successful, Mr. Libson declares, because he was able to use the influence of a well-known and popular personality. Had the theatre alone offered to entertain the children there would have been little publicity given the plan and perhaps the success would not have been marked. But the stunt was arranged so that Mr. Saxby was giving a party. Here is a point that will be well for other exhibitors to keep in mind when embracing similar opportunities for special publicity of this sort.

Howard Saxby, Cincinnati Humorist and Goodfellow, Host to Orphan Children at Premier Showing of "Snow White" at Strand Theatre, New Year's Morning

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

NAOMI CHILDERS, known for her work in many Vitagraph pictures, and who recently resigned from that company to take a deserved and needed rest, is the recipient of a letter from the European trenches written by one Lieutenant Stuart McLennan of the 73rd Canadian Battalion of which she is justly proud. It came in acknowledgement of a photograph of Miss Childers which the lieutenant had previously asked for.

The lieutenant seems to agree to the letter with the decision of a group of prominent artists that Miss Childers' is "a face divine." This same picture, by the way, was recently employed as a basis by an artist who was commissioned to paint a portrait of the Saviour as a child and the results were so beautiful as to bring the artist great praise.

The following is the first paragraph from Lieutenant McLennan's letter:

DEAR MISS CHILDERS:

Here's another glowing epistle from "Sunny France."

Tonight when the mail came in there was a mysterious large envelope addressed to J. M. Morphy and G. S. McLennan. Well! I opened it and found your two photographs; honestly, I can't tell you how pleased I was. Our writing to you was really horrible nerve, and it was more than sweet of you to send the photographs. They're absolutely wonderful. I think I'd better thank you for Jack Morphy; you see he managed to get a bayonet in the leg and went to the hospital about three weeks ago; I haven't heard from him since, and I don't know where he is, so I'm hanging on to the photograph for him; he really should be back soon as it was only a scratch.

PAULINE FREDERICK, Thomas Meighan, Frank Losee, John Sanpolis, Pedro De Dordobra and the other members of Miss Frederick's company have gone to Savannah, Ga., where they will take the exterior scenes for Miss Frederick's next Famous Players picture, under the direction of Hugh Ford. It was Mr. Ford who directed Miss Frederick's latest success on the Paramount program, "The Slave Market."

PERRY M. VEKROFF, formerly director of Madame Petrova in her biggest picture productions, has joined the Greater Vitagraph directing forces, and is now at work on "The More Excellent Way," in which Anita Stewart will be starred. Mr. Vekroff started work at the Vitagraph plant last week. Arthur Quinn is his cameraman.

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY offices have been bombarded lately with queries from newspaper men and exhibitors as to the proper spelling of the name of Mabel Trunnelle, popular Kleine-Edison star. Miss Trunnelle herself is the authority for the statement that her surname should be spelled with two "n's" and two "l's," and that her given name is "Mabel," not "Mabelle" or "Mabella"; inspired compositors and tired proof readers to the contrary notwithstanding.

Naomi Childers

OCCASIONALLY an animal can show even a "star" a few pointers in the way of "temperament." In case of doubt Robert G. Vignola, who is directing Marguerite Clark in "The Fortunes of Fifi" will be perfectly willing to bear witness. And it really isn't "Toto's" fault. The girls won't simply let the dog alone to do his work.

FRED R. STANTON, who plays The Great Master in the serial "The Great Secret," for Metro is an accomplished athlete and well-known sportsman. Aside from his studio work, Mr. Stanton finds time to officiate at big Eastern football games. In the spring he limbers up with "big leaguers" in the Southern training camps, and between times boxes and wrestles to keep in condition.

FRANK LOSEE simply can't reform. When he played the part of the benevolent father in Marguerite Clark's "Miss George Washington" everyone thought the popular Famous Player had deserted the path of wickedness. But the reform was only temporary, for in "Great Expectations" he threatens to kill Jack Pickford if not brought "B-r-read and a file," and he is now plotting and scheming to victimize Pauline Frederick—"filmatically," of course.

UNSEASONABLE weather in Southern climes has delayed greatly the return of the June Caprice company from Dixie land. It was planned originally that ten days be spent in the South. A month has already elapsed since Frank Morgan packed away his Palm Beach suit "the day before."

Members of the Caprice company, and a Fox organization under direction of William Nigh were guests of honor recently at a ball given for them by Mayor Littleton of Chattanooga.

TAKE it from Mae Marsh, the Goldwyn Pictures star, all the "remedies" for a cold that the Atlantic Coast yankees suggest to persons accustomed to California sunshine are no good—no good at all.

Miss Marsh fell a quick victim to the Eastern climate after her arrival from the coast to enter Goldwyn Pictures and every new friend and many of her older ones have been trying to get her "cured."

None of the cures has been helpful, so Mae Marsh has taken matters into her own hands and left for Palm Beach, Florida.

DERWENT HALL CAINE, the Arrow Film Company star, who is featured in his father's super-production, "The Deemster," is on his way to Lake Worth, Florida, where he will take instructions in the art of aerial navigation. Mr. Caine has laid his plans and placed his order for a Burgess-Wright hydro-aeroplane, and is now preparing for a course of instruction in the same.

IRENE HOWLEY, who is co-starring with Lionel Barrymore in the Metro-Rolfe play which is now being made under the direction of George D. Baker, will attend the first annual ball of the New Jersey State Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, which is to be held at the Kreuger Auditorium, Newark, on February 1.

WHILE Lionel Barrymore was working in a big scene in a new feature, with Irene Howley in the Metro-Rolfe studios the other day, one of the most interested spectators was Fred Titus, known to all the sport-loving world as the most famous oarsman of his day. Mr. Titus is now connected with one of the big insurance companies, and is a lifelong friend of Mr. Barrymore.

RALPH CAMERON, a newcomer in the Vitagraph ranks, has been cast opposite Anita Stewart in "The More Excellent Way." Mr. Cameron is a recruit from the legitimate ranks, recently scoring a success in "Rich Man, Poor Man."

JOHN LEACH, cast as a Chinaman in Metro's serial, "The Great Secret," claims the distinction of being the first man to make a stage character of the wily Oriental in this country. During fifty-five years in the legitimate, vaudeville, and lately in motion pictures, he has portrayed a score of Chinese roles. As high Mandarin or low-caste coolie, Mr. Leach feels equally at home.

Motion Picture Studio Directory is used by all the newspaper editors in writing up your publicity.

Motion Picture Studio Directory is used by all the casting directors in making up their companies.

Two good reasons why your personal advertising should be in the next Studio Directory—published the last of February

IN AND OUT OF WEST COAST STUDIOS

By J. C. JESSEN

LOIS WEBER has commenced the filming of a new subject, title of which is withheld, and has Ben Wilson and Mignon Anderson as co-stars, with Priscilla Dean and Millard K. Wilson as the principal supports. When Miss Weber recently returned from Chicago following a conference with President Carl Laemmle, rumors flew thick and fast.

The most persistent one was to the effect that Miss Weber would have a separate studio and produce only state rights subjects. Since her return to Los Angeles she has refused to make any statement as to her future work. Her contract with the Universal, it is understood, continues until April.

Director Charles Swickard has begun the filming of an adaptation from the novel, "The Plow Woman." This is to be made in five reels, and will have Mary MacLaren as the featured lead. L. G. Schumway will play the part of Mufti. Some new lighting effects are being worked out by Director Swickard for this subject.

"THE Lieutenant-Governor," a five reel production, is commanding the attention of William V. Mong, who wrote the story, prepared the scenario, and is directing and playing the featured part opposite Dorothy Davenport. Harry Holden and Charles Pearle are the principal supports. This is a story dealing with capital punishment.

Directress - Authoress - Actress Ruth Stonehouse has laid aside her series make-up, and is now filming a two reel character photoplay which has been titled "Tacky Sue." She has just completed "Young Love."

"The Flash-Light Girl" is the name given a five reel subject in production in charge of Joseph de Grasse. The scenario was prepared by Ida May Parks; and he has as his principals in this subject, Dorothy Phillips in the featured role, William H. Stowell playing opposite, and Lon Chaney.

HENRY McRAE, in the making of the final scenes for "The Return of Whispering Smith," had with him the author of this story, Frank H. Spearman, and together they worked out a number of very good situations which will add materially to the story from the standpoint of one for the screen.

The Jokerites, under the direction of W. W. Beaudine, are busy in the filming of "Who's Baby," written by Jack Cunningham. This is the seventh consecutive comedy Cunningham has written for this organization, and is considered a record inasmuch as Universal writers are shifted from one producing unit to another. Gail Henry, Milburn Moranti, and Lillian Peacock of this company, have all been placed under a year's contract with the Universal.

A WESTERN comedy drama of five reels titled "Red Saunders Plays Cupid," is the Harry Carey subject now in the filming by Director Fred Kelsey. The cast is made up of the cowboys of the Universal.

Jack Conway has Ella Hall as star in a five reel society drama entitled "Pawned."

The Nestorites are filming "When the Cat's Away," with Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts in the principal roles, and the direction is in charge of Louis W. Chaudet.

Lynn Reynolds has taken a company to Truckee, California, said to be the coldest point in the state, to secure snow stuff for the Alaskan drama of five reels, "The Code of the Klondike." Myrtle Gonzalez is the star of this, and George Hernandez takes one of the leading supporting parts. The company, numbering about twenty people, was accompanied to the frigid zone territory by General Manager H. O. Davis, who will remain but a few days. It is anticipated the company will be in the north more than a week.

Hollywood Hookum

Feb. 3, 1917 NEWS MORE NEWS

IN THE NAME OF PEACE—VOTE

Confusion has been caused of late with respect to the correct usage of short sub-titles—"That night," "The next morning," and most popular of all "Later." The old question threatens to cause a small European conflict among our literary citizens, who broke into the film industry by the jotting-on-an-envelope route. By some alleged authorities all the above mentioned are in good form, but as no Hoyle has stepped forth and in addition to proclaiming, has proven himself a Moses, the dark ages continue.

An attempt was made by Hookum to learn the consensus of opinion. Frank E. Woods suggested the elimination of all from the screen, in the name of peace, and waved an olive branch. Mary H. O'Connor, F. A. editoress, is a firm believer in brevity, but would not commit herself.

Joe Roach contended—shortly after his arrival from Chicago—that all subtitles should be breezy. Hampton Del Ruth recommended snappy wording that would tend toward the two-reel Keystone length, and Gene Lewis at U City, started to tell that when he was an o-o-o-old copy reader it was—when the 'phone rang. Harvey Thew of Lasky Lane suggested "it all depends," and George Proctor was so astounded by the magnitude of the subject he could not speak.

C. Gardner Sullivan, without tipping off any secrets of the art, confided "we do it this way." Will M. Ritchey refused to be quoted. Bill Everett Wing, when interrogated, nervously moistened his lips, blinked for several seconds, and made a plea for time to think and deliberate with himself.

All urged that this matter, as with all others of more or less importance, be put up to the voters of California, who constitute the Ivory soap percentage of screen writers, that they might have opportunity to answer on their ballots in May.

Will M. Ritchey is home from a scenario writing jaunt to New York.

Paul Hurst, Signal apostle, stewedbakered to Dinuba, California (wherever that is), this week for a hilarious vacation.

LIVE NEWS

It rained again this week.

Henry King has a new one on before and after—he has little Mary Sunshine and Daniel Gilfether as co-stars in the same feature.

Harry Caulfield is suffering from a sore face caused from laughing too heartily at "Easy Street," Charley Spencer Chaplin's latest Mutual mirthmaker.

A pair of shoes with tops of skin from the cobra was one of the beautiful Christmas presents Bessie Love received. The cobbler is said to have died of the d. t's.

Julius Caesar is to come back to earth and stop the bloody European war, according to the reincarnation theories of Corrine Grant. That's what she told us in an interview, but we saw her reading a submitted scenario.

Our weekly mistaken identity story: Bill Keefe vouches for the fact that Spottiswoode Aitken, while playing the part of a jagged judge, was arrested by a Hollywood policeman. Our town has able police protection.

Al Christie, because of the high price of hats which he has a habit of breaking up by jumping upon them when scenes are not made just so, now carries a pocket full of pretzels that he may vent his anger upon the crisp nicknacks. Quite some economy.

Eileen "Babe" Sedgwick, U comedienne, has learned the hula hula dance. Since the word got out, Keokuk and other Iowa tourists have been swarming to the ticket gate, but they've all been disappointed, for she did the famous dance in but one scene for an Al Curtis comedy.

The overworked L-Ko press agent penned the Hookum this week that Fatty Frank Voss, built for comfort rather than speed, twenty-nine years ago weighed but eight pounds, stripped. His school athletics consisted of hammer throwing, so the Hookum devil has decided to continue with the bull.

Dick Willis tried to get Hookum into a damage suit by sending us a lot of untruthful interviews. He labeled them such. We'll risk three:

J. Warren Kerrigan: "I consider Francis X. Bushman a far better actor than myself."

MORE LIVE NEWS

Mrs. Minter: "I do not think my daughter clever. Mary Miles Minter has disappointed me."

Myrtle Stedman: "I wish I could play opposite Charlie Chaplin."

Scientists who for centuries have been searching for the garden of Eden are now out of a job. This famous place can be seen any day now at the Selig Zoo, where the Corona Cinema Company is filming "The Curse of Eve." Eve herself is presiding, and is no other than Vivian Rich.

Isadore Bernstein has applied our Chamber of Commerce slogan, "Where Nature Helps Industry Most," in the building of a studio. Rubberneck ballahoo men in passing this place will in the future point out the trail of the lonesome pine, Niagara Falls, the sunken Japanese gardens, and the California gardens of the gods.

The Ruth Roland Feature Film Company is the latest rumor.

More rain expected.

Conny Talmadge has been wearing a beautiful diamond ring since Christmas—we know what you think, but Norma gave it to her.

Literature has been dragged into the dust. "Big" Ed. Sedgwick, with due apologies to Rudyard Kipling, has writ a poem he calls "Ginger Dean."

Anna Luther told us that some of the actresses who were accredited with making all their own clothes, looked like it. Of all the cruel words—.

Dusty played a joke on Bill—he gave him a miniature M. P. camera for Christmas. Since, Billy Foster, Fox head-cameraman, has not had peace day or night.

There is even jealousy among the dogs owned by film stars. Miriam Cooper pays more attention to Mike because he's the least, and Mike is in bad with all the others of her kennel.

Brook Keller was introduced to a Fox comedy director last week, and has since found it convenient to lease a flat over a drug store. The first ninety-nine falls didn't hurt him. But the last one——!

It took Craig Hutchinson fifteen days to make a six-day bicycle race picture. He lays the blame on Dan Russell, who did the pedaling.

Some of Inceville's Finest. Left to Right: Clara Wiliams in a Clubby Mood and Thomas H. Ince and William S. Hart Each Ready to Start for a Spin Via His Favorite Vehicle

CHARLES B. HOADLEY, more familiarly known as "Pop," has been added to the Universal scenario department by Editor Eugene B. Lewis, and is at present engaged in writing comedies. Mr. Hoadley has been affiliated with many of the best companies, and until recently was with the American, at Santa Barbara.

Three new productions, each of five reels, were begun at the Fine Arts studios last week. Wilfred Lucas is the featured player in the production of "Orpheus," an adaptation of the well-known story of the same name, by Samuel Hopkins Adams, supported by Carmel Myers in the leading feminine role, F. A. Turner, James O'Shea, Elmer Clifton, Jack Brammall, C. Woodruff, Alice Wilson and Alexander McClure. Tod Browning is in charge of the direction. This subject will serve as Carmel Myers' first leading woman vehicle.

MANAGER of Production Frank E. Woods has written "Betsy's Burglar," which was put in production last week, and will serve as the first starring vehicle for Kenneth Harlan, new leading man at the Fine Arts studio, who will share honors with Constance Talmadge. Director Paul Powell, who has just filmed "The Girl of the Timberclaims," will have charge of this production, and his players are Kate Bruce, Josephine Crowell, Clyde Hopkins and Elmo Lincoln.

To Lloyd Ingraham has been assigned the duty of filming a Fine Arts subject laid in various parts of the United States. The making of the interiors for this has been begun at the studio, and upon the completion of these, Ingraham and the entire company will start across the country. En route stops will be made at El Paso, Texas; New Orleans; Atlanta, Georgia; Washington, D. C., and the subject will be finished at the Yonkers studio of the company.

Robert Harron has the featured part in this yet unnamed picture, and Colleen Moore makes her debut in the subject as a leading woman. The supporting cast includes Alma Reuben, who played opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "The Americano," and in this appears in a vampire part. Wilbur Higby, Sam DeGrasse, Tom Wilson, Alberta Lee, Ray Myers and Tom Jefferson form the entire cast. Director Ingraham and players will leave by the Southern Pacific within the next two weeks.

EARLY productions from the Fine Arts studio will introduce three new leading women. Mildred Harris has just finished her work in "The Village Prodigal," her first featured part, and Carmel Myers, daughter of Rabbi Myers, and Colleen Moore are now working in their debut vehicles. All three of the actresses are young, neither being over seventeen years of age, and Miss Harris but fifteen.

Final titles were Saturday given to Fine Arts subjects that have been completed. The one known during productions as "The Failures," will be released as "Stage Struck." This features Dorothy Gish with Frank Bennet playing the male lead.

THE Robert Harron subject, made by Chester Withey, known to this time as "The Bad Boy," has the final title of "The Village Prodigal," and the third subject to be given its releasing name is, "The Doll Shop," made by Director Edward Dillon, and featuring Bessie Love with Roy Stewart playing the opposite lead. This will be known as "The Spitfire."

Milton E. Hoffman, studio general manager at the Lasky plant, was last week asked for his contract for two years by C. B. deMille, who upon receiving it tore it to bits, to the astonishment of Hoffman. A moment later, however, he was handed a new one which specified five years' employment and many other desirable features. Mr. Hoffman has been in charge at the plant less than a year, and the new contract came to him because of his very excellent work. He has increased the quality and quantity of productions in the face of increased prices in all commodities, and under his regime, production cost has been decreased.

NEW productions were started at the Lasky plant last week by Director Frank Reibher, who will next take up a picture starring Fannie Ward with Jack Dean playing the opposite role. Robert Leonard is beginning a new production with Mae Murray as star, and during the coming week George H. Melford will commence the filming of a co-starring vehicle with Theodore Roberts and Kathlyn Williams. Roberts has recently completed work in "The American Counsel," which is based upon politcal life.

Within two weeks the new administration building of the Lasky plant will be so far completed that it will be possible for the offices to be moved into it. The new wardrobe building will be in use within a few days, and when finished in all details will be one of the most practical and systematic on the coast. It was built by the Milwaukee Building Company from plans suggested by Alpharetta Hoffman, studio costume designer, and so arranged that all costumes may be systematically stored so they may be secured at a moment's notice.

JACK PICKFORD is shortly to arrive at the Lasky plant to work in "Freckles," and Margaret Illington will arrive some time the latter part of January. At this plant it is learned that the most popular photoplayer is shortly to come for one picture. Definite information will shortly be given out, it is anticipated.

The George Beban subject, just completed, has been titled "The Amen Corner," and the star and his director, Donald Crisp, are now preparing a new story which is shortly to be taken up.

DIRECTOR HOWARD ESTEBROOK has completed the Morosco Vivian Martin subject, and reports from the studio are that the production department is especially pleased with this new director's first work.

Miss Myrtle Stedman is now working at the Lasky studio in a co-starring vehicle with Wallace Reid, which is being made by Morosco director, E. Mason Hopper.

Four Thomas H. Ince productions now in the making are war stories, and Inceville is the scene of most of the carnage. The studio by the sea has more life than since the days of the making of the big Ince spectacle, "Civilization," as in all four companies have been working there.

One of the war stories is laid in the Revolutionary days, and has Scottish atmosphere. Raymond B. West is in charge of the filming, and the settings used with a large number of specially engaged players, represent Selkirk Hall on the Isle of St. Mary. All the players for these scenes wear beautiful costumes, and Mr. West was successfud in training more than one hundred to dance the minuet.

Reginald Barker is making the canyons echo and re-echo with his warfare for the subject which will offer Louise Glaum as a dashing French adventuress.

THRILLING artillery charges are being made for the Dorothy Dalton subject by Director Charles Miller. Fifteen thousand rounds of ammunition will be used by the warriors, who number more than a thousand.

The newspaper war correspondent story being made by Walter Edwards, from the Hawks story, has a locale of the Balkans, where William Desmond, as the correspondent, has many encounters with the soldiery. Three perfectly good costumes were ruined on the muddy fields by the star.

William S. Hart last week entertained a man who came more than half way across the continent just to meet and see him make pictures. The visitor is J. C. Blackwell, who owns and operates the Blackwell Theater, at Blackwell, Oklahoma. He made the trip, he says, to meet the western player, for Hart had brought prosperity to his house, as a Hart picture never failed to bring a big attendance. Mr. Blackwell spent the day with Hart at Inceville, and after filming all day took keen pleasure in showing the visitor about the plant.

C. Gardner Sullivan last week turned out his first original story in six weeks, the longest period in which he has failed to do so since he took up scenario writing as a profession more than three years ago. Most of the six weeks Mr. Sullivan was absent from the Thomas H. Ince studio on a trip east. The photoplay just finished is a light comedy prepared especially for Enid Benet, the new Ince star, who will shortly return from a vacation now being spent in the East.

A BALBOA Company this week began the production of a new serial to be known as "Twisted Threads." Kathrine Clifford has been engaged to play the important part in this fifteen episode number, and an entirely new company, including Clifford Gray, Myrtle Bauer, and other players, have been engaged. Frank Crane will be in charge of directing the filming of this subject.

The last episode of "The Neglected Wife," adapted from the Helen Mable Urner story, which features Ruth Roland and Roland Bottomly, are now being made.

Henry King is playing and directing in a "Little Mary Sunshine" subject, and Jackie Saunders is being featured in a series of five-reel releases.

From the American studio comes the information that the William Russell photoplay, just completed by Director Edward Sloman, "My Fighting Gentleman," has proven to be the most expensive ever made at this plant. There are a number of southern Civil War day scenes of unusual proportion and finished in lavish style.

"THE WOLF OF LOS ALAMOS" episode twenty-four of "The Girl from 'Frisco," Kalem series, is now in the filming, being directed by James Horne. Marin Sais, the girl, when she becomes a deputy sheriff, captures a bandman by the use of a lariat and lone-handed takes him to justice. A handsome trained horse, owned by Miss Sais, plays a very important part in this subject.

Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno in a Forthcoming Vitagraph, "Mr. Aladdin from Broadway"

Practically all scenes of the first two-reel release of the new "Stingaree" series being made by the Kalem are laid in England or on board ship. It will be recalled the last episode of the "Stingaree" series ended with the hero being in the British Isles.

The new series opens at Stingaree's English home, when his old partner, Howie, brings to him the information that the Australian authorities have learned of his whereabouts and are on the way to arrest him. Stingaree flees for the Southern island. Director Howard Mitchell, True Boardman and a big cast are now busy filming the first episode.

CROOKS starting freight cars down a grade in the current "Hazards of Helen" series, serve to give a big punch to the one titled "The Prima Donna's Special." The heroine, driving along the railroad tracks, sees the danger of a collison which will cause the death of a noted singer, and climbs on top of the auto's hood and makes a successful leap to the side of the car.

The automobile in which she was riding dashes off a bridge a few seconds after the heroine leaped to the train. The driver, the heroine's protector, is found unconscious, and it later develops that the prima donna is his long lost child. Walter Morton is the director, and Helen Gibson, G. A. Williams, Lillian Lorraine and Lloyd T. Whitlock are the principals. Mr. Whitlock has just come to the west coast from New York where he was associated with the Kalem forces.

The "Hazards" Company will next make "The Registered Pouch," and for this have secured the use of a mail car which will be used at night and artificially lighted. The lighting equipment will be carried on an attached flat car making it possible to photograph while the car is in motion.

TOD BROWNING, Wilfred Lucas, Olga Gray, Sam deGrasse, Winifred Westover, Charles Lee, James O'Shea and other Fine Arts players are congratulating themselves on the completion of "Jim Bludso." The filming of this Fine Arts production has been followed by bad luck from the start, and the production work required almost twice as long as anticipated. It is an adaptation from the "Pike County Ballads" by John Hay, and makes a very thrilling melodrama, with an atmosphere of just before the civil war days in the South.

A TANK town six-day bicycle race is being staged for an L-Ko comedy by Craig Hutchinson, with Dan Russell, the comedian, as the leading speeder. The settings made especially for this picture are of a very unusual type and constitute a comedy in themselves.

Director J. A. Howe has completed a two-reel L-Ko comedy with Phil Dunham and Lucile Hutton as principals.

The artificial light studio of the L-Ko plant is being enlarged by an addition costing approximately $500. The additional structure is being built under the supervision of J. G. Blystone, director general of the L-Ko Comedy studio.

THE fourteenth episode of the serial just completed contains scenes made along the Merced River when Jean Perkins dived from a rocky bluff forty feet into the river and then swam what is called the big rapids. Perkins is the first one to swim these rapids, and in performing the feat received many bruises and a badly wrenched arm when he was dashed against the large boulders.

A city railway company found market for one of their cars this week which was purchased by the Signal Company for the final thrill in the last episode of the serial. A sensational wreck has been planned in which the street car will be an important factor.

In preparing for the next production, Director-General J. P. McGowan has caused the erection of a large sets with buildings on both sides of the railroad which passes the Signal studio. The fronts represent a business house on one side, and the office buildings of a trancontinental railway on the other.

ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

Mutuals Include a Rex Beach Picture

"Pardners," Featuring Charlotte Walker, Is the Headliner for Week of January 29

THE headliner on the schedule of the Mutual Film Corporation for the week of January 29 will be "Pardners," a five-reel adaptation of Rex Beach's story, in which Charlotte Walker is featured. It is a drama of Alaska.

On this first day of the week also will come out the third of "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," the Mutual "Featurettes" under the title of "Shorty Goes to College."

In the regular weekly travel film "Mutual Tours Aroung the World," scheduled for Jan. 30, a trip is made to Teheran, the capital of Persia, showing the life of this interesting city, and then the travelers are taken to France and visits made to the various coast resorts of Normandy and on to the Vosges Mountains wrapped in the beauties of the winter season.

On Jan. 31 will be released Mutual Weekly, No. 109, with its many happenings of the day and collection of interesting incidents, and also "See America First." This week scenes are shown of San Diego, the historical garden spot of Southern California, and the reel is completed by Harry Palmer's Kartoon Komic.

The Cub one-reel comedy in which George Ovey makes his regular weekly appearance on Feb. 1, shows the adventures of "Jerry and His Pal."

Feb. 2 brings the fifth of the "Uncle Sam's Defenders" series showing the "Scouts of the Sea and Sky."

Views of the guiding and propelling mechanism of the twenty-two inch torpedoes are shown. Among the scenes in this chapter are those of the aviation corps at Pensacola, Fla. showing the latest type of bi-planes and a trip over Pensacola in a Curtiss "Flying Fish." At this time when the submarines from Germany have proven their unlimited prowess, scenes of U. S. submarines in manoeuvres and submerging are interesting ones.

The American Film Corporation contributes a one-reel drama "Nature's Calling," featuring J. Warren Kerrigan supported by Pauline Bush and Louise Lester. This will be ready for the public on Feb. 3. In this drama Mr. Kerrigan enacts the role of a typical big man of the big West who marries a girl of the East and tries to make her love this "God's country" as he does.

Paddy McQuire and Billy Mason have the principal roles in the Mutual-Vogue two-reel comedy of Feb. 4, entitled "Sticky Fingers." Lillian Hamilton, Larry Bowes, Harry Huckins, George Monberg and Glenn Gano, also appear in the supporting cast.

The Mutual-Gaumont release of the same day, "Reel Life" is made up of four interesting subjects: "Making Lace by Machinery," "Toddles, New York's Latest Dance," "Raising Fresh Water Fish," and "Design Your Own Gown."

The week's program is rounded out by the fifteenth and last chapter of the Mutual-Signal photo-novel in which Helen Holmes provides the thrills, "A Lass of the Lumberlands," and the sixth story of the series of newspaper stories "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters" featuring Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe, entitled "A Long Lane."

Pathe's Max Linder Comedies to Be Reissued

In view of the presence in this country of Max Linder, the French comedian, the announcement by Pathe of the forthcoming release of several Max Linder comedies is of peculiar interest. Mr. Linder became famous while he was a Pathe actor and for years the "Max" comedies with the Pathe trademark enjoyed a tremendous vogue.

With several excellent "Max" comedies that have never been released together with reissues of some of the best and most recent of his pictures Pathe plans a series of Max Linder comedies, the release date of which will be announced later.

Among the first to be released will be "Max and the Fair M.D.," "Max the Lady Killer" and "Max's Feet Are Pinched," all one-reel pictures with the exception of the last mentioned, which is a split-reel.

K-E-S-E Offers Three Subjects for February Release

Three features heralded as possessing unusual merit comprise the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay program for February. On the fifth Essanay's "Skinner's Dress Suit," a novel production based on the story by Henry Irving Dodge and featuring Bryant Washburn, is released. Selig's "The Heart of Texas Ryan," with Bessie Eyton, is the offering for February 12, and Edison's "The Royal Pauper" is scheduled for first showings February 19. The latter subject is enacted by a cast of which Francine Larrimore is the featured member. Each of the three stories is described as distinctly "different," offering the exhibitor a trio of out-of-the-ordinary productions for the second month of 1917.

Snapshots from Santa Barbara Showing American-Mutual Talent. Left to Right: May Cloy, Director Edward Sloman and Francelia Billington; C. William Kolb

Humor (Chiefly Heavy) from Current Universal Comedies. Left to Right: "The Hero of Bunko Hill," "June Madness" and "It's Cheaper to Be Married"

Star's Mantle for Dorothy Kelly

With the departure of Lillian Walker from the ranks of Vitagraph stars, as told in another story in this issue, Dorothy Kelly, remembered for her work in "The Secret Kingdom," and other Greater Vitagraph releases, will be featured in productions released as Blue Ribbon pictures.

This necessitates a slight change in Vitagraph V-L-S-E releases as scheduled under the rotary plan, by virtue of which exhibitors are assured of the return of each star or group of stars every six weeks. Miss Walker's next release will be on February 19, in "Kitty Mackay." On April 2, with the release of "The Star Gazer," the last of the Lillian Walker features will be released through Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Miss Kelly and Evart Overton are co-starred in "The Money Mill," which will be released as a Blue Ribbon feature on May 14, date on which Miss Walker's next feature would have been ready.

Thereafter, every sixth week, there will be a Vitagraph feature in which Miss Kelly and Mr. Overton will be co-starred as one of the six groups in the Vitagraph rotary system.

Barrymore Feature for Feb. 5

Lionel Barrymore's latest picture "The End of the Tour," a story of theatrical life, will be released by Metro on February 5. George D. Baker adapted and directed Earle Mitchell's story, which was produced by Columbia Pictures Corporation.

Ethel Dayton, Walter Hiers, J. Herbert Frank and Frank Currier are prominent in the supporting cast, which also includes Maud Hill, Mary Taylor, Richard Thornton, Hugh Jeffrey and Kate Blancke.

Interesting Topics Portrayed by Universal

The current issue of the Universal Screen Magazine includes views showing expert bakers preparing pastry in a fashion which even mother might envy.

Men who earn their livelihood in dangerous occupations will be depicted following their chosen calling, and their methods of safeguarding themselves will be outlined. Among divers other topics the magazine will pictorially explain the manufacture of simple ornaments found in the ordinary home.

Universal Offers Long Variety Program

Releases for January 29, Totaling 31 Reels, Include Multiple Reel Specialties and Short Comedies

THIRTY-ONE reels of entertainment, varied in plot and subject, and ranging from five-reel features to one-reel comedies, make up the Universal program of releases for the week of January 29.

Heading the list of releases is the five-act human interest drama "Love Aflame," which will appear under the Red Feather brand on Monday, January 29. The story was written and produced by Raymond Wells. A strong cast of screen players, headed by Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall, makes this an unusual production. In the support of the principals are Jean Hersholt, Nita White, Raymond Whitaker, Fronzie Gunn and Noble Johnson.

The Nestor comedy, "Why, Uncle!" written by Bess Meredyth and produced by Louis Chaudet, with Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean in the leading roles, is the other offering for this date.

The feature for Tuesday, January 30, is the Gold Seal three-act drama, "June Madness," a story of love and intrigue, with the scenes in the far West. The story was written by Willis Woods and production made under the direction of Hobart Henley. In the cast especially engaged for this picture are Roy Stewart, Wadsworth Harris, Frank Brownlee, Gypsy Hart and Lloyd Whitlock. The Victor split reel "Some Baby," a film novelty, and "Nellie, the Fireman's Daughter," a comedy, will also appear on Tuesday.

The regular issue of the Universal Animated Weekly will appear on Wednesday, January 31. On the same day will be released an L-Ko two-part comedy, "Faking Fakers," with Phil Dunham, Lucille Hutton and other noted funmakers, and the Big U drama, "The Gold Lust."

Four reels are scheduled for release on Thursday, February 1. The foremost offering of the day is the Universal special two-act war drama, "The War Waif," from the story by Grace Helen Bailey. Zoe Rae and Allan Holubar have the principal roles. The scenario is by Maie Harvey, and directed by Allan Holubar.

"It's Cheaper to Be Married," a Victor comedy, featuring Babe Sedgwick, and the Imp detective drama, "The Diamond Thieves," with Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer, will also appear on this date.

The Imp two-act drama of the underworld, "The Forbidden Game," from the pen of Ben Cohn and directed by Harry Millarde, featuring Edward Hearn, is the leading offering of Friday, February 2. Other releases for Friday are the Victor comedy, "The Hero of Bunko Hill," and the Universal Screen Magazine, No. 6.

Saturday, February 3, the Bison two-part drama of the Kentucky mountains, "The Boonton Affair," written and directed by King Baggot, will be released. In the cast are King Baggot, Irene Hunt, Frank Smith and Jack Newton. The Joker comedy, "His Coming Out Party," with Gale Henry and William Franey in the chief roles, will also appear on the same date.

Two Imp dramas, "Diamonds of Destiny," with Louise Lovely, and "Life's Pendulum," a two-part crook drama, will be released Sunday, February 4. The Powers split reel—Mr. Fuller Pep—His Wife Goes for a Rest; a comedy cartoon and Dr. Dorsey's educational lecture, "In North China," completes the week's program.

During the week the sixth episode of the popular Grace Cunard and Francis Ford serial, "The Purple Mask," entitled "The Silent Feud," will make its appearance.

Western Plays by Triangle

Triangle feature releases on February 11 brings William S. Hart to the screen again in "The Gun-Fighter," a play of the old West, and Constance Talmadge, who will star in "The Girl of the Timber Claims."

The latter production is a story of the forests of the Pacific slope, and despicts the struggle between rightful settlers, and "dummy" representatives of the timber trust. In the Ince-Kay-Bee film, Mr. Hart again takes the part of a "two-gun" man, eventually, however, laying down his life in a girl's behalf.

ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

Mutuals Include a Rex Beach Picture

"Pardners," Featuring Charlotte Walker, Is the Headliner for Week of January 29

THE headliner on the schedule of the Mutual Film Corporation for the week of January 29 will be "Pardners," a five-reel adaptation of Rex Beach's story, in which Charlotte Walker is featured. It is a drama of Alaska.

On this first day of the week also will come out the third of "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," the Mutual "Featurettes" under the title of "Shorty Goes to College."

In the regular weekly travel film "Mutual Tours Aroung the World," scheduled for Jan. 30, a trip is made to Teheran, the capital of Persia, showing the life of this interesting city, and then the travelers are taken to France and visits made to the various coast resorts of Normandy and on to the Vosges Mountains wrapped in the beauties of the winter season.

On Jan. 31 will be released Mutual Weekly, No. 109, with its many happenings of the day and collection of interesting incidents, and also "See America First." This week scenes are shown of San Diego, the historical garden spot of Southern California, and the reel is completed by Harry Palmer's Kartoon Komic.

The Cub one-reel comedy in which George Ovey makes his regular weekly appearance on Feb. 1, shows the adventures of "Jerry and His Pal."

Feb. 2 brings the fifth of the "Uncle Sam's Defenders" series showing the "Scouts of the Sea and Sky."

Views of the guiding and propelling mechanism of the twenty-two inch torpedoes are shown. Among the scenes in this chapter are those of the aviation corps at Pensacola, Fla. showing the latest type of bi-planes and a trip over Pensacola in a Curtiss "Flying Fish." At this time when the submarines from Germany have proven their unlimited prowess, scenes of U. S. submarines in manoeuvres and submerging are interesting ones.

The American Film Corporation contributes a one-reel drama "Nature's Calling," featuring J. Warren Kerrigan supported by Pauline Bush and Louise Lester. This will be ready for the public on Feb. 3. In this drama Mr. Kerrigan enacts the role of a typical big man of the big West who marries a girl of the East and tries to make her love this "God's country" as he does.

Paddy McQuire and Billy Mason have the principal roles in the Mutual-Vogue two-reel comedy of Feb. 4, entitled "Sticky Fingers." Lillian Hamilton, Larry Bowes, Harry Huckins, George Monberg and Glenn Gano, also appear in the supporting cast.

The Mutual-Gaumont release of the same day, "Reel Life" is made up of four interesting subjects: "Making Lace by Machinery," "Toddles, New York's Latest Dance," "Raising Fresh Water Fish," and "Design Your Own Gown."

The week's program is rounded out by the fifteenth and last chapter of the Mutual-Signal photo-novel in which Helen Holmes provides the thrills, "A Lass of the Lumberlands," and the sixth story of the series of newspaper stories "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters" featuring Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe, entitled "A Long Lane."

Pathe's Max Linder Comedies to Be Reissued

In view of the presence in this country of Max Linder, the French comedian, the announcement by Pathe of the forthcoming release of several Max Linder comedies is of peculiar interest. Mr. Linder became famous while he was a Pathe actor and for years the "Max" comedies with the Pathe trademark enjoyed a tremendous vogue.

With several excellent "Max" comedies that have never been released together with reissues of some of the best and most recent of his pictures Pathe plans a series of Max Linder comedies, the release date of which will be announced later.

Among the first to be released will be "Max and the Fair M.D.," "Max the Lady Killer" and "Max's Feet Are Pinched," all one-reel pictures with the exception of the last mentioned, which is a split-reel.

K-E-S-E Offers Three Subjects for February Release

Three features heralded as possessing unusual merit comprise the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay program for February. On the fifth Essanay's "Skinner's Dress Suit," a novel production based on the story by Henry Irving Dodge and featuring Bryant Washburn, is released. Selig's "The Heart of Texas Ryan," with Bessie Eyton, is the offering for February 12, and Edison's "The Royal Pauper" is scheduled for first showings February 19. The latter subject is enacted by a cast of which Francine Larrimore is the featured member. Each of the three stories is described as distinctly "different," offering the exhibitor a trio of out-of-the-ordinary productions for the second month of 1917.

Snapshots from Santa Barbara Showing American-Mutual Talent. Left to Right: May Cloy, Director Edward Sloman and Francelia Billington; C. William Kolb

Humor (Chiefly Heavy) from Current Universal Comedies. Left to Right: "The Hero of Bunko Hill," "June Madness" and "It's Cheaper to Be Married"

Star's Mantle for Dorothy Kelly

With the departure of Lillian Walker from the ranks of Vitagraph stars, as told in another story in this issue, Dorothy Kelly, remembered for her work in "The Secret Kingdom," and other Greater Vitagraph releases, will be featured in productions released as Blue Ribbon pictures.

This necessitates a slight change in Vitagraph V-L-S-E releases as scheduled under the rotary plan, by virtue of which exhibitors are assured of the return of each star or group of stars every six weeks. Miss Walker's next release will be on February 19, in "Kitty Mackay." On April 2, with the release of "The Star Gazer," the last of the Lillian Walker features will be released through Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Miss Kelly and Evart Overton are co-starred in "The Money Mill," which will be released as a Blue Ribbon feature on May 14, date on which Miss Walker's next feature would have been ready.

Thereafter, every sixth week, there will be a Vitagraph feature in which Miss Kelly and Mr. Overton will be co-starred as one of the six groups in the Vitagraph rotary system.

Barrymore Feature for Feb. 5

Lionel Barrymore's latest picture "The End of the Tour," a story of theatrical life, will be released by Metro on February 5. George D. Baker adapted and directed Earle Mitchell's story, which was produced by Columbia Pictures Corporation.

Ethel Dayton, Walter Hiers, J. Herbert Frank and Frank Currier are prominent in the supporting cast, which also includes Maud Hill, Mary Taylor, Richard Thornton, Hugh Jeffrey and Kate Blancke.

Interesting Topics Portrayed by Universal

The current issue of the Universal Screen Magazine includes views showing expert bakers preparing pastry in a fashion which even mother might envy.

Men who earn their livelihood in dangerous occupations will be depicted following their chosen calling, and their methods of safeguarding themselves will be outlined. Among divers other topics the magazine will pictorially explain the manufacture of simple ornaments found in the ordinary home.

Universal Offers Long Variety Program

Releases for January 29, Totaling 31 Reels, Include Multiple Reel Specialties and Short Comedies

THIRTY-ONE reels of entertainment, varied in plot and subject, and ranging from five-reel features to one-reel comedies, make up the Universal program of releases for the week of January 29.

Heading the list of releases is the five-act human interest drama "Love Aflame," which will appear under the Red Feather brand on Monday, January 29. The story was written and produced by Raymond Wells. A strong cast of screen players, headed by Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall, makes this an unusual production. In the support of the principals are Jean Hersholt, Nita White, Raymond Whitaker, Fronzie Gunn and Noble Johnson.

The Nestor comedy, "Why, Uncle!" written by Bess Meredyth and produced by Louis Chaudet, with Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean in the leading roles, is the other offering for this date.

The feature for Tuesday, January 30, is the Gold Seal three-act drama, "June Madness," a story of love and intrigue, with the scenes in the far West. The story was written by Willis Woods and production made under the direction of Hobart Henley. In the cast especially engaged for this picture are Roy Stewart, Wadsworth Harris, Frank Brownlee, Gypsy Hart and Lloyd Whitlock. The Victor split reel "Some Baby," a film novelty, and "Nellie, the Fireman's Daughter," a comedy, will also appear on Tuesday.

The regular issue of the Universal Animated Weekly will appear on Wednesday, January 31. On the same day will be released an L-Ko two-part comedy, "Faking Fakers," with Phil Dunham, Lucille Hutton and other noted funmakers, and the Big U drama, "The Gold Lust."

Four reels are scheduled for release on Thursday, February 1. The foremost offering of the day is the Universal special two-act war drama, "The War Waif," from the story by Grace Helen Bailey. Zoe Rae and Allan Holubar have the principal roles. The scenario is by Maie Harvey, and directed by Allan Holubar.

"It's Cheaper to Be Married," a Victor comedy, featuring Babe Sedgwick, and the Imp detective drama, "The Diamond Thieves," with Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer, will also appear on this date.

The Imp two-act drama of the underworld, "The Forbidden Game," from the pen of Ben Cohn and directed by Harry Millarde, featuring Edward Hearn, is the leading offering of Friday, February 2. Other releases for Friday are the Victor comedy, "The Hero of Bunko Hill," and the Universal Screen Magazine, No. 6.

Saturday, February 3, the Bison two-part drama of the Kentucky mountains, "The Boonton Affair," written and directed by King Baggot, will be released. In the cast are King Baggot, Irene Hunt, Frank Smith and Jack Newton. The Joker comedy, "His Coming Out Party," with Gale Henry and William Franey in the chief roles, will also appear on the same date.

Two Imp dramas, "Diamonds of Destiny," with Louise Lovely, and "Life's Pendulum," a two-part crook drama, will be released Sunday, February 4. The Powers split reel—Mr. Fuller Pep—His Wife Goes for a Rest; a comedy cartoon and Dr. Dorsey's educational lecture, "In North China," completes the week's program.

During the week the sixth episode of the popular Grace Cunard and Francis Ford serial, "The Purple Mask," entitled "The Silent Feud," will make its appearance.

Western Plays by Triangle

Triangle feature releases on February 11 brings William S. Hart to the screen again in "The Gun-Fighter," a play of the old West, and Constance Talmadge, who will star in "The Girl of the Timber Claims."

The latter production is a story of the forests of the Pacific slope, and despicts the struggle between rightful settlers, and "dummy" representatives of the timber trust. In the Ince-Kay-Bee film, Mr. Hart again takes the part of a "two-gun" man, eventually, however, laying down his life in a girl's behalf.

Art Dramas Announces Releases for Two Months

Completion of Majority of Subjects Assures Weekly Feature Release by New Organization

ART DRAMAS INCORPORATED announces its releases for the next two months, beginning with the middle of January, and extending into March. Most of these productions have already been completed, insuring the exhibitor of a feature every week on the release date. This, officials of the company point out is a record that no other new releasing organization has ever been able to make.

The releases are: January 11, "Infidelity?", with Anna Q. Nilsson and Eugene Strong; January 18, "God of Little Children," with Alma Hanlon; January 25, "Her Good Name," with Jean Sothern; February 1, "Rosie O'Grady," with Viola Dana; February 8, "The Accomplice," with Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill; February 15, "The Adventurer," featuring Marion Swayne; February 21, "The Moral Code," featuring Anna Q. Nilsson and Walter Hitchcock; February 28, "Pride and the Devil," with Alma Hanlon.

"Infidelity?" is an Erbograph production, concerning the lives of two generations—a man and his wife and their daughter and her fiance. The picture gets its peculiar interrogatory title from the fact that it does not tell definitely of any particular unfaithfulness, but concerns the subject only generally. Ashley Miller both wrote and directed the production.

"God of Little Children," produced by Apollo Pictures, Inc., is a dramatic subject directed by Richard Ridgely.

Jean Sothern is the first of the Art Drama stars to make her second appearance on that program. Following the success of her first subject considerable care was exercised in the choice of a vehicle for her second Art Drama. "Her Good Name," aptly described as a "Photoplay of Sunshine and Heart-throbs." George Terwilliger, who directed "The Lash of Destiny," the first Art Drama, is also producing "Her Good Name," at the Van Dyke Studio.

"Rosie O'Grady," the next Art Drama, marks Viola Dana's first appearance on the program. She is presented in an Apollo picture, of the appealing type that she is best known in.

"The Accomplice," a William L. Sherrill Feature, co-stars Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill. This production will mark Mr. Sherrill's starring effort. The story tells of the night life of New York's smart set, and the indiscretion of a little society girl whose life was all but ruined by a foolish friendship with a professional dancer. Jean Stuart whose work as Betty in the last Sherrill production "The Rainbow" attracted so much favorable comment, is also seen in this production, which affords great scope for her abilities.

The second United States Amusement Corporation release on the program will be a picturization of Upton Sinclair's famous novel "The Adventurer." Marion Swayne will be the star of this production, which will be directed by Frank Hall Crane.

"Pride and the Devil," starring Alma Hanlon, will be released next under the Apollo Pictures brand. Richard Ridgely, who directed Miss Hanlon's first picture, "God of Little Children," will also produce "Pride and the Devil."

Louise Glaum as French Vampire

Louise Glaum, again in a "vampire" role, but on this occasion as a Parisian, will shortly be presented in a Triangle release by Thomas H. Ince. The role, said to be the strongest in which Miss Glaum has been seen, eventually places her as a Red Cross nurse at a "base" hospital. Here she plays a heroic part, and finally learns the meaning of love.

First World Comedy in Long Time

The current World-Brady release, "Tillie Wakes Up," with Marie Dressler in the principal role and Johnny Hines playing the leading opposite character, is the first comedy to be produced by this organization in a long time.

Warde Presented in Modern Play

Having completed his characterization of the "Vicar of Wakefield," which will be released in the spring, Frederick Warde, Thanhouser leading man, is now being filmed in Lloyd Lonergan's modern drama, "The Rogue and His Double." As previously, he will be directed by his son Ernest Warde. In this production, Mr. Warde "doubles," playing the part of a tender hearted old clerk and of a "get-rich-quick" promoter.

In the supporting cast are Kathryn Adams, Eldeen Stewart, Wayne Arey, Charles Mussett, Justice D. Barnes, Arthur Bauer, John Lehnberg and Frank Gereghty.

Chaplin No. 9 Delayed

Owing to the unusual character of the latest Charlie Chaplin productions, "Easy Street," involving as it does many big scenes which, while they appear to be "interiors," are really "exteriors," necessitating sunlight for their success, Mr. Chaplin has been compelled to announce the postponement of release on No. 9 of the Chaplin series from January 22 to February 5, preferring to delay completion of the comedy until conditions for its successful filming are perfect.

Dainty Stars Featured in Paramounts

Vivian Martin in Pallas Subject, and Marie Doro, Lasky, in Latest Films

THE week's programs bring Vivian Martin in a Pallas production, and Marie Doro in a Lasky feature, to the screen again, in plays specially written for them.

Marie Doro, following her success in the Lasky adaptation of "Oliver Twist" will be in "Lost and Won," a story in which the well-known dramatists Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf collaborated. It was released on the Paramount program on January 22.

Scene from "The Girl Who Doesn't Know"—B. S. Moss

One of the most interesting points of the story is the fact that it introduces Miss Doro in the rags and tatters of a little newsie. The play has he distinct advantage of being a story dealing in part with newspaper life which has actually been written by newspaper men.

"Lost and Won," however, is not merely a newspaper story, as the scene of the action soon shifts and one finds Miss Doro, raised from the gutters where she brawls with tough little newsboys, to a fashionable boarding school. This sudden change in status is due to the fact that a clubman is struck by her beauty, despite her rags, and makes a wager that he can make such a belle of her that any of his friends would be glad to marry her.

Comes education at a fashionable boarding school, after which Cinders enters a newspaper office as a reporter. Her work finally vindicates her benefactor, accused of a crime, and a happy finale ensues.

The Pallas subject "The Wax Model" is adapted from a magazine story by G. Vere Tyler. Vivian Martin is put through a varied number of modes of life before the final scenes place her in the safe keeping of an Englishman whose love for her, nearly cost proved the little French girl's death.

Among those who are prominent in the cast are Thomas Holding, Helen Jerome Eddy, George Fisher, Senor Buzzi and Kathryn Vaughn.

This is "Hell Morgan's Girl"

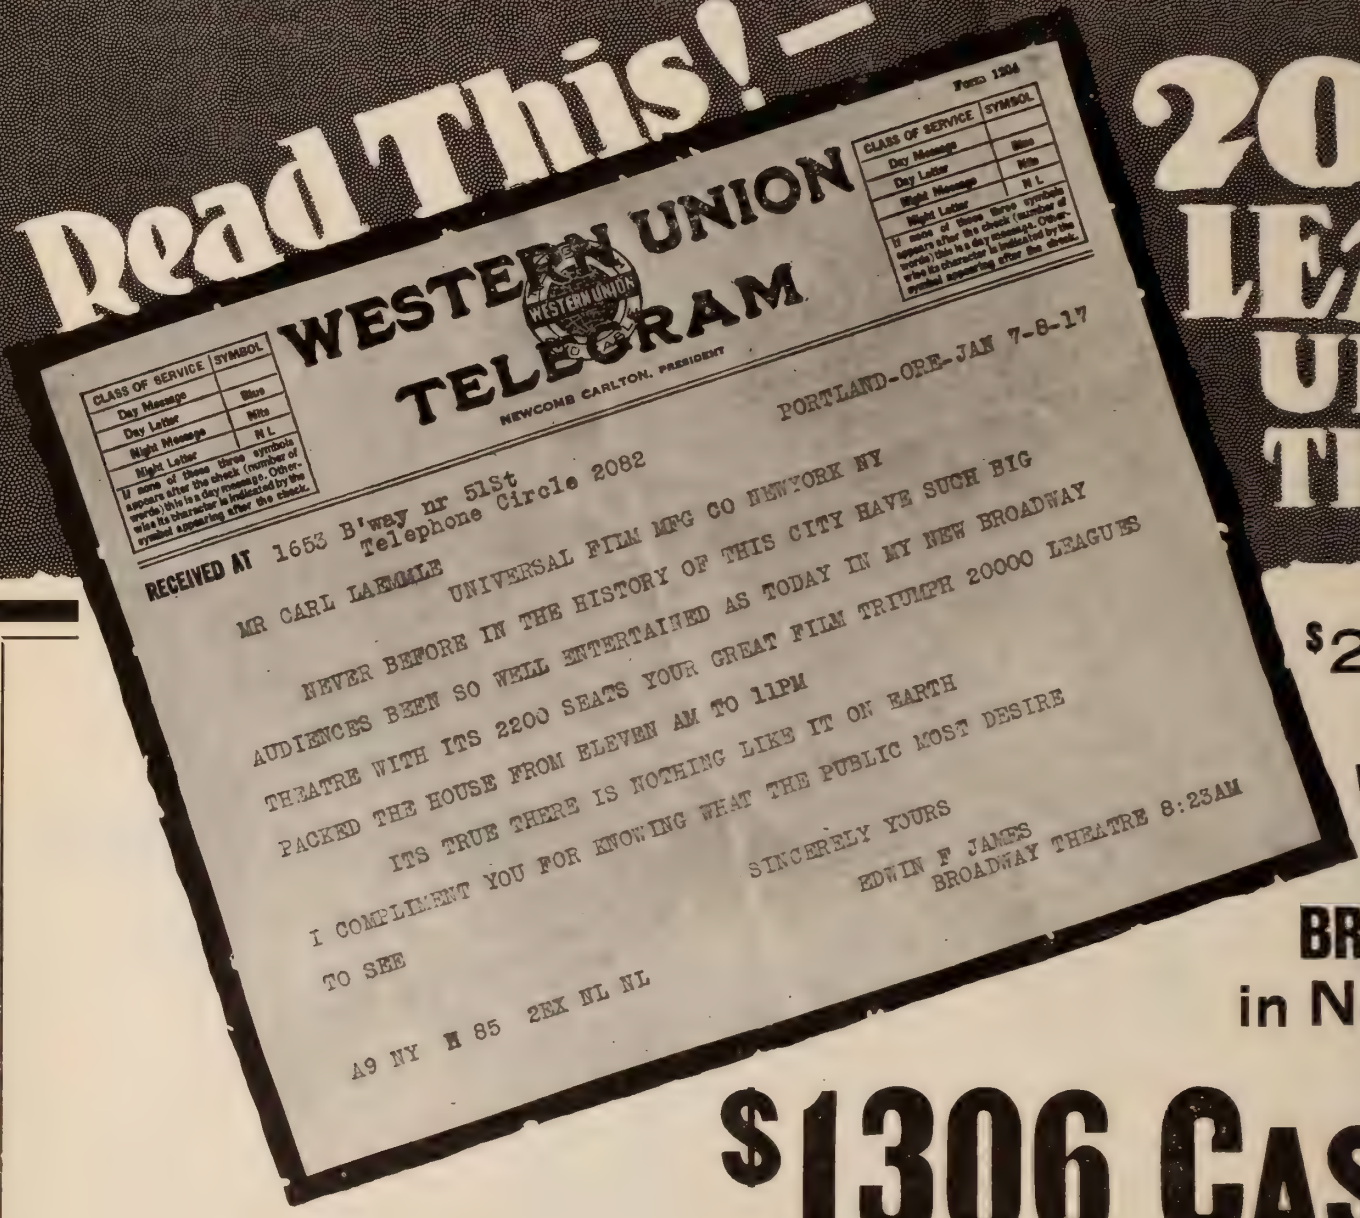
You Doubt Her
You Accuse Her
You Pity Her
You Condemn Her
You Hate Her
You Love Her
SHE'S WONDERFUL

"Hell Morgan's Girl"

The Production with "The Punch"—
The Production That will Pack 'em In—

IS NOW BEING SOLD ON

STATE RIGHTS



"HELL MORGAN'S GIRL" is a whale of a picture. It's a tremendous dramatic production telling the gripping story of "Heaven on Earth" and "Hell on Earth." Special paper and ad. props. It's a Money Getter for State Rights Men and all Exhibitors. Write or Wire for full particulars to the STATE RIGHTS DEPT. OF THE

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

CARL LAEMMLE, Pres. 1600 Broadway, N. Y.

Here are 2 Telegrams that than a thousand pages of adv

Read This!—

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Day Message
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	Nite
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a day message. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

Form 1204

RECEIVED AT 1653 B'way nr 51St Telephone Circle 2082

PORTLAND-ORE-JAN 7-8-17

MR CARL LAEMMLE

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG CO NEWYORK NY

NEVER BEFORE IN THE HISTORY OF THIS CITY HAVE SUCH BIG AUDIENCES BEEN SO WELL ENTERTAINED AS TODAY IN MY NEW BROADWAY THEATRE WITH ITS 2200 SEATS YOUR GREAT FILM TRIUMPH 20000 LEAGUES PACKED THE HOUSE FROM ELEVEN AM TO 11PM

ITS TRUE THERE IS NOTHING LIKE IT ON EARTH

I COMPLIMENT YOU FOR KNOWING WHAT THE PUBLIC MOST DESIRE TO SEE

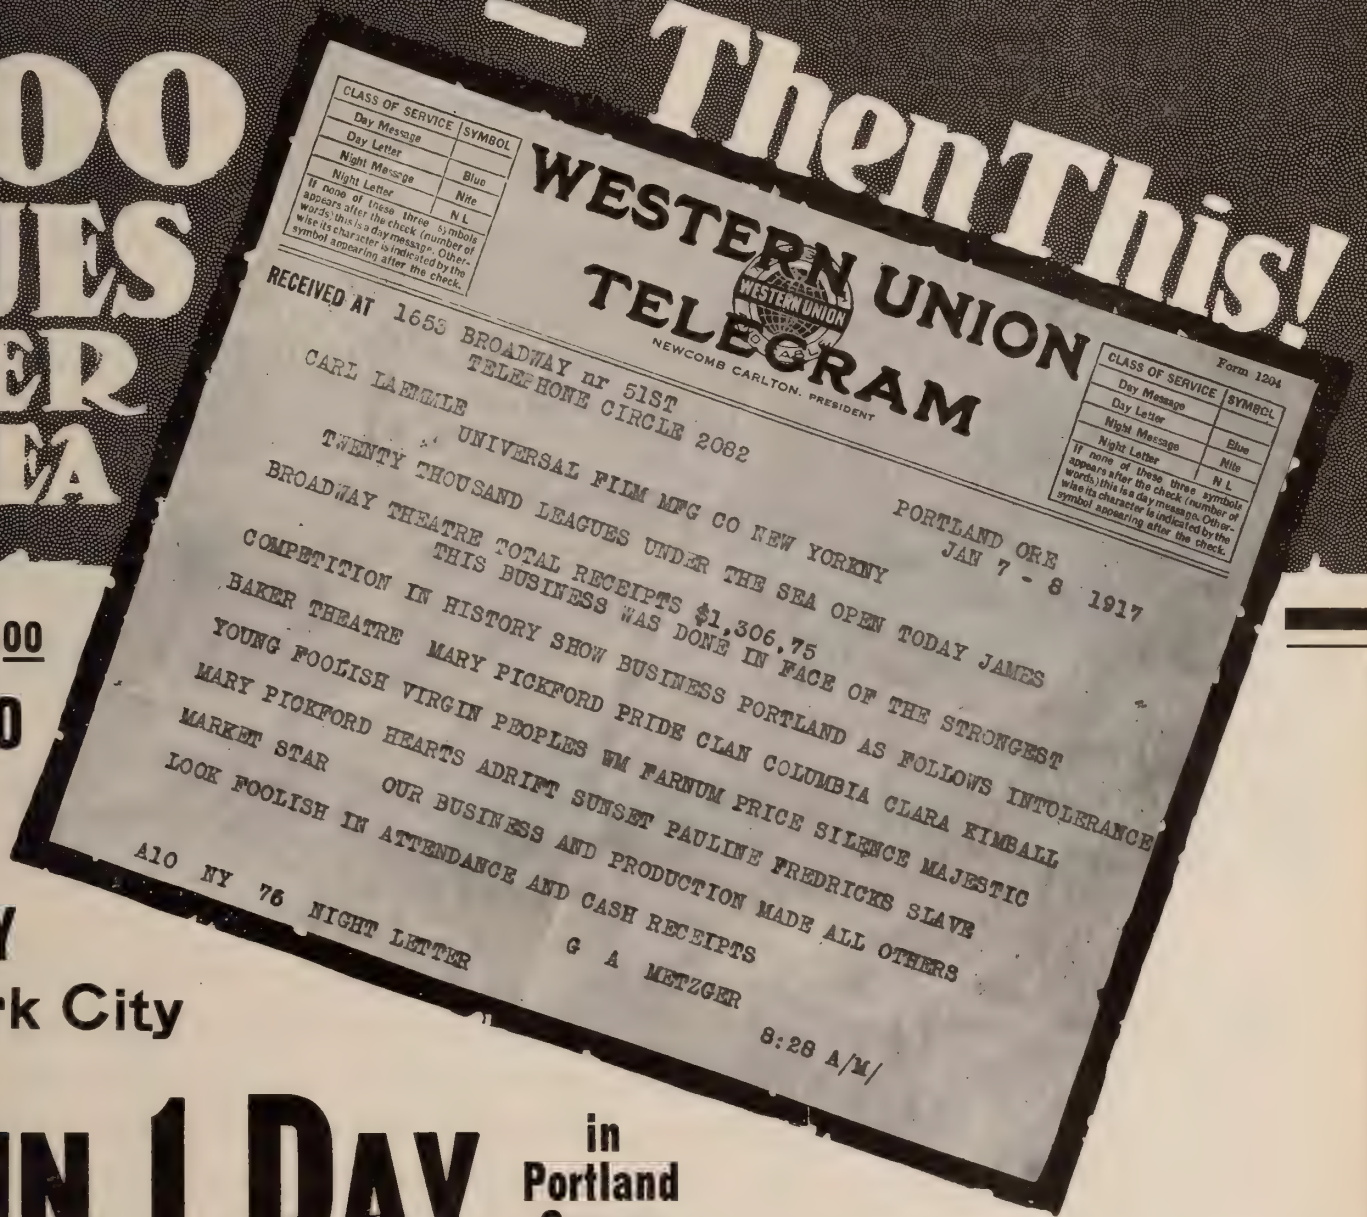
SINCERELY YOURS

EDWIN F JAMES
BROADWAY THEATRE 8:23AM

A9 NY N 85 2EX NL NL

$220 in Weeks the BROAD in New

$1306 CASH



Mr. State Right Buyer:—

We haven't anything to tell you in this advertisement except that "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" has smashed every record at the BROADWAY THEATRE in New York City for cash receipts in a given time. Over $22,000.00 in two weeks. Broke all records of the STUDEBAKER THEATRE, Chicago, in cash receipts. Took in over $1300 in one day in the city of Portland, Ore., with five big features in competition, proving that "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" has no competition. We believe that the money taken in constitutes the ONLY argument recognized by Showmen. All other arguments are BUNK. Extremely valuable territory still available. Wire the STATE RIGHTS DEP'T for information and ask for the FREE AD Campaign books that tells everything to both State Right men and Exhibitors.

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO.,

tell you more in a minute ertising could tell you in a month
n — Then This!

OO TWO at WAY York City

CLASS OF SERVICE | SYMBOL
Day Message |
Day Letter |
Night Message | Blue
Night Letter | Nite
If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a day message. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check. | N L

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM
NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT

Form 1204

CLASS OF SERVICE | SYMBOL
Day Message |
Day Letter |
Night Message | Blue
Night Letter | Nite
If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a day message. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check. | N L

RECEIVED AT 1655 BROADWAY nr 51ST
TELEPHONE CIRCLE 2082

PORTLAND ORE
JAN 7 - 8 1917

CARL LAEMMLE

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG CO NEW YORKNY

TWENTY THOUSAND LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA OPEN TODAY JAMES BROADWAY THEATRE TOTAL RECEIPTS $1,306.75 IN FACE OF THE STRONGEST COMPETITION IN HISTORY SHOW BUSINESS PORTLAND AS FOLLOWS INTOLERANCE
THIS BUSINESS WAS DONE
BAKER THEATRE MARY PICKFORD PRIDE CLAN COLUMBIA CLARA KIMBALL
YOUNG FOOLISH VIRGIN PEOPLES WM FARNUM PRICE SILENCE MAJESTIC
MARY PICKFORD HEARTS ADRIFT SUNSET PAULINE FREDRICKS SLAVE
MARKET STAR OUR BUSINESS AND PRODUCTION MADE ALL OTHERS
LOOK FOOLISH IN ATTENDANCE AND CASH RECEIPTS

A10 NY 76 NIGHT LETTER G A METZGER

8:28 A/M/

IN 1 DAY in Portland Oregon

Mr. Exhibitor:—If you read the paragraph addressed to State Rights Buyers, we haven't anything more to add, to tell you about "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA," except that if you are out for the money, get in touch with the State Right Buyer of "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" in your territory as quickly as you can. Lose no time. If a theatre in a city of the size of Portland, Oregon, can take in over $1300.00 in ONE DAY with 5 big feature productions in competition, you can draw your own conclusions what "20,000 LEAGUES CAN DO IN YOUR TOWN. Ask your State Right man for the elaborate advertising campaign books that tells you how to put "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" over in huge style. Count yourself lucky indeed if you get first chance to book in your House.

1600 Broadway, New York City

Which Do

Special Releases on the Universal program for the week of February 12th, 1917

RED FEATHER—"ME AND M'PAL." With Edna Flugarth. Five-Reel Drama.

NESTOR—"A HASTY HAZING" One-Reel Comedy). Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts.

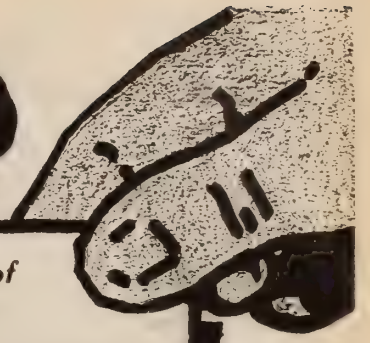
L-KO—"THE END OF A PERFECT DAY" (One-Reel Comedy). With Hank Mann and Gertrude Selby.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE NO. 7.

JOKER—"MULE MATES" (One-Reel Comedy). With Gale Henry and Wm. Franey.

POWERS—"MR. FULLER PEP—HE DOES SOME QUICK MOVING" (Comic Cartoon), and "Drama of the Orient as seen by Dr. Dorsey" (Educational) (Split Reel).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—"ROBINSON CRUSOE" (Three-Reel Drama). With Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer.



The Releases Given on These Two Pages constitute the Complete UNIVERSAL Program of 29 Reels a Week

Better Take The Complete

The Special Releases listed on this page in the panel above are genuine attractions—short subjects that you can book separately, and improve your program no matter what kind of a show you are giving. Comedies, Dramas, Educationals, Cartoons, the wonderful Screen Magazine, the greatest one-reel novelty ever filmed—here is an opportunity to get the class of pictures and the variety of subjects that make a snappy popular entertainment. Write your nearest Universal Exchange for full particulars regarding the Universal Program.

UNIVERSAL

You Choose

Regular releases on the Universal program for the week of February 12th, 1917

GOLD SEAL—"THE INDIAN'S LAMENT" (Three-Reel Indian Drama). Marie Walcamp and Lee Hill.

VICTOR—"THE GIRL OF THE HOUR" (One-Reel Drama). Herbert Brenon and Vivian Prescott.

IMP—"THE GIRL REPORTER'S SCOOP" (Two-Reel Detective Drama). Irene Hunt and Roy Stewart.

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 59.

VICTOR—"THE LOSING WINNER" (Two-Reel Comedy-Drama). Carter DeHaven-Flora Parker DeHaven.

BIG U—"THE HALF-BREED'S CONFESSION" (One-Reel Western Drama). Val Paul and Phyllis Gordon.

LAEMMLE—"THE FOURTH WITNESS" (Two-Reel Drama). Louise Lovely and Lee Hill.

L-KO—"BRAVE LITTLE WALDO" (One-Reel Comedy). Fatty Voss.

BISON—"JOHN OSBORN'S TRIUMPH" (Two-Reel Drama). Murdock MacQuarrie.

LAEMMLE—"BROKEN HEARTED" (One Reel Drama). William Shay.

Both—Book UNIVERSAL Program

On this page are given the regular releases on the Universal Program. The releases on both pages combined constitute the Complete Universal Program—the greatest on earth. The purpose of splitting the program in this way is to enable the man who wants to book the specials to get them without having to take the entire 29 reels a week. But he must expect to pay a slight advance over the pro rata price of the entire program for the privilege of individual bookings. In either the specials, the regulars or the complete Universal Program you get the world's greatest pictures. Book now through any Universal Exchange, or from the Home Office.

FILM MFG. CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, Pres.

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway, N.Y.

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

"The People against John Doe"

To State Right Buyers

This impressive LOIS WEBER production played to capacity at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and received from the newspaper and film critics an endorsement rarely given to any cinema production.

Powerful Advertising Matter Free

At great expense an elaborate advertising Folder has been prepared that not only gives State Rights Buyers full and complete particulars, but also tells in detail how to handle this remarkable production; how to get publicity; how to advertise; with a full line of ready prepared ads that will get the business for any Exhibitor. Write today.

The significant fact that it was

Produced by LOIS WEBER

Producer of such huge successes as "Where Are My Children?" . . . "Hypocrites" . . . "Scandal" . . . "Jewel" . . . "Shoes" . . . and others, is a sufficient guarantee of the class and character of this box office attraction.

STATE RIGHTS

Now offered in certain territory. "The People versus John Doe" is the type of picture that is self-advertising; the strong type of play that makes a deep impression on pulpit, press and public. Full particulars by communicating with STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT.

UNIVERSAL

FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - NEW YORK

PRODUCED BY LOIS WEBER

HOW PICTURES ARE BOOKING

Sothern Pictures Go Well in Philadelphia

The Philadelphia exchange of Vitagraph, of which Joseph M. Hebrew is manager, finds it impossible to fill all requests for bookings in its territory on the three Sothern Vitagraph pictures, "The Chattel," "An Enemy to the King" and "The Man of Mystery." Although six prints are being constantly worked, the demand still exceeds the supply.

The Vitagraph is the only company that holds a yearly contract with the newly erected theatre in Philadelphia, the Strand.

Bookings are fast piling up on "The Secret Kingdom" of Vitagraph, statistics of which will be available later.

Shore Takes Blue Ribbon Plays

J. S. Hebrew, manager of the Philadelphia branch of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, has closed contracts with six out of the eleven Atlantic City theatres which are open, whereby Greater Vitagraph features will now be shown in those houses.

At the present time the Cort, Colonial, Virginian, Bijou, Criterion, Royal Cozy, Central, Liberty, Park and City Square are the only Atlantic City theatres running pictures. Vitagraph Blue Ribbon features are now the chief attraction in six of these, the Criterion, Cort, City Square, Royal, Central and Liberty.

"Daughter of Gods" in Detroit

"A Daughter of the Gods," the Fox marine spectacle, played to $4,900 in the first three performances in Detroit. The figure is regarded as a record, as the three showings were matinees.

"Patria" Is Booked Solid Over Proctor Circuit

Keith Houses Play Pathe-International Serial Which Headlined at the Palace

ALL of the Proctor Theatres in New York and vicinity have been added to the list of important first-run theatres throughout the country that are showing "Patria," the International serial romance of society and preparedness, featuring Mrs. Vernon Castle.

The success of "Patria," released January 14, was proclaimed by enthusiastic audiences in all parts of the country, according to reports received by Pathe. The Palace Theatre in New York, all of the other Keith houses throughout the country, and leading theatres in other cities that contracted for the first run of Louis Joseph Vance's serial, have reported capacity business. A number of theatres have arranged to repeat the first episode next week to accommodate those who are unable to see it at the first showing.

"Patria" was booked in the Proctor houses on the advice of Paul A. Keith, and E. F. Albee, who exercises a general supervision over the bookings for that circuit.

"I am glad to be among the first to show the great picture play, teaching patriotism and preparedness to the public," said F. F. Proctor. "The subject itself is vitally interesting at this time, and when presented, as it is in 'Patria,' in connection with a gripping love story and with scenes full of dash and daring, it is sure to be a great attraction and will hold the public interest undiminished until the final episode."

The first episode of "Patria" was shown during the week of January 14, at the Proctor Theatres in Yonkers, North Vernon, Newark, Plainfield, Elizabeth, Portchester, Albany, Troy, Schenectady, and New York City.

In the Palace Theatre in New York, probably the greatest vaudeville house in the world, "Patria" was billed as the headline attraction of the week. The lobby was decorated with portraits of Mrs. Castle and scenes from the serial. All of the other Keith and Proctor houses also reported capacity business.

From Chicago, Boston, Cleveland, St. Louis, Dallas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Buffalo, Albany, Syracuse, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, and many other cities have come enthusiastic reports.

"Patria" has been heralded to the nation by a great advertising campaign which started six months ago and has continued without interruption. Daily for the past several weeks, the International has been adding important newspapers to the advertising list.

"Whoso Taketh a Wife" in Michigan

The Tri-State Film Exchange, in Detroit, reports first-run bookings with the Duplex and Drury Lane theatres. The first Art Dramas production to be shown in Michigan is "Whoso Taketh a Wife," with Jean Sothern, which played at the Duplex during the week of January 7. Mrs. Harry Smith, manager, reported a fine business during the engagement, and the outlook is good for coming releases of the Art Drama.

Stuart Holmes and Supporting Players in Scenes from William Fox's Picturization of "The Scarlet Letter"

Mabel Taliaferro in "A Wife by Proxy"

Francis X. Bushman, Episode 5, "The Great Secret"

Mme. Petrova in "Bridges Burned"

A Group of Metro Offerings

"The Libertine" Brings Biggest Sunday

L. H. Webbe, Manager of Goodwin Theatre, Newark, Says His Biggest Sunday on Record Was Done with Mammoth Film Production

SO impressed was the management of the Goodwin Theatre of Newark, N. J., over the showing of "The Libertine" featuring John Mason and Alma Hanlon, that they have written the following letter to the Mammoth Film Co., 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, who are handling the "Libertine" in New York, New Jersey, and the New England States.

This letter is particularly significant in coming from the Goodwin Theatre, because of the fact that this theatre shows nothing but first-class pictures. It requires a picture of exceptional worth to so impress the management. The following letter was received:

THE GOODWIN THEATRE
High Grade Motion Pictures and Photo Plays
William Y. Webbe Company, Lessees & Proprietors.
863-865 Broad Street
Newark, N. J., Jan 4, 1917.

Mammoth Film Corp.,
729 Seventh Ave., New York City.

Gentlemen:

We take pleasure in saying that our week's run of your picture, "The Libertine," was most satisfactory, our Sunday's showing was the largest we have ever had for that day of the week. We could not begin to accommodate the crowds and were forced to give an extra performance at night.

We consider "The Libertine" one of the best pictures we have shown at our theatre.

Signed L. H. WEBBE, MGR.

From the manager of the Goodwin Theatre, 863 Broad St., Newark, N. J.

"Pride of the Clan" Placed in Utah Houses

Artcrafts last week broke into the Salt Lake territory, the management of the Paramount-Empress signing up for "The Pride of the Clan." Following this announcement T. Y. Henry came over from Denver and got busy with the result in one day he closed with H. S. Skinner, Alhambra, Ogden; Koford & Ryan, Brigham City; T. G. Thatcher, Lyric, Logan, and J. Epperson, Princess, Provo, Utah, to follow the Salt Lake engagement.

Ince Spectacle Is Money Maker

Shown at regular prices, "Civilization," the Thomas H. Ince spectacle, was recently reported by A. J. Gillingham, owner of the Garden theatre, Grand Rapids, Mich., to have played to over $1,000 a day.

Gaumont Film Proves Drawing Card

An unusual tribute in the form of an immediate re-booking, has been paid to the box office power of "The Vampires," the photo-novel produced by Gaumont, by the Mehesy theatre, Salt Lake City, Utah. Immediately on conclusion of the series, it is to be entirely run over again.

The Mehesy theatre has also played "Fantomas," another Gaumont photo-novel. Many theatres which had not shown "Fantomas" are now booking it to follow "The Vampires."

New Keith Theatre Features Pathe Bill

The Pathe serial, "Pearl of the Army," featuring Pearl White, was one of the features chosen for the opening of the Strand theatre, Louisville, Kentucky, under the new managment, B. F. Keith-Mary Anderson. William Farnum, in "The Price of Love" was the second attraction offered on the initial bill. Considerable space in a full page advertisement was given in exploiting the attraction of the new Pathe serial.

Good Business on Serials

J. C. Fishman, manager of the Standard Film exchange in Detroit, reports big business on the Ella Wheeler Wilcox series; also on "The Yellow Menace" serial, and the "Mutt and Jeff" comedies. He says he is getting more bookings now than he did when the serial was first announced.

"The Great Secret" Books Well on Coast

The Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne serial, "The Great Secret." has been booked for first Los Angeles run at the Symphony theatre, and it will open there January 21. This is the first serial to be booked into this house. Another important booking secured for this fifteen episode picture is with the Broadway theater at San Diego, where it will be shown four days each week. The first of this release will open there January 15.

"Easy Street" in Stanley Houses

Although the release date of the Mutual Chaplin "Easy Street" has been set back until February 5, all the Stanley Company's Philadelphia theatres have already booked it for first runs, some of them for a whole week.

The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly, "Tours Around the World," "Reel Life," "See America First" are all getting solid week runs regularly in the Stanley theatres.

In the Mutual Star Productions those featuring Mary Miles Minter, Richard Bennett and Margarita Fischer are having the largest vogue right now. In the past ten days contracts by the score on these features have come to Manager B. R. Tolmas in the Philadelphia exchange.

"Great Secret" and "Patria" in Detroit

The Orpheum theatre, Detroit, has booked the "Patria" serial for all episodes, and will show each episode an entire week in conjunction with its regular vaudeville show. The Liberty theatre, Detroit, has booked "The Great Secret" serial for the full production and will also show each episode an entire week.

"Shoes" Rebooked in Toronto

An unusual feat has just been performed by the Bluebird five-reel picture, "Shoes," which was returned for second booking into the Rialto theatre and the Red Mill, Toronto. It is also showing in the Beaver theatre, one of the largest suburban houses in that city—all within thirty days of its initial release in Toronto.

"Truant Soul" Going Well

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay, who are releasing "The Truant Soul," Essanay's feature with Henry Walthall, report unusual interest in it, Already, in New York Branch, Manager Baynor reports placing "The Truant Soul" with Marcus Loew, for his chain of theatres; Meyer & Schneider Amusement Co., for their circuit of eight show houses; L. Blumenthal in Jersey City; the Strand Theatre at Syracuse and in many other noted theatres.

A representative gathering of exhibitors saw "The Truant Soul" screened in New York at a private showing recently, and of the thirty-five representatives present, twenty-three booked the picture.

First Bluebird Booking at Rialto

Sam Kramer, manager of Bluebird's New York exchange, arranged for the first display of a Bluebird in the Rialto, New York, the week of January 22—"The Mysterious Mrs. M.," featuring Mary MacLaren and Harrison Ford in a Lois Weber production. The same picture is also showing at Lowe's New York, just across Longacre Square, Wednesday evening, the regular "Bluebird day."

"God's Crucible" would have been seen last week at the Rialto if Bluebird could have arranged its release date satisfactory to both Mr. Loew and Mr. Rothapfel, but the Lynn Reynolds feature was shown only at the New York.

"The Mysterious Mrs. M." lent itself very handily to a "mystery" campaign of advertising the Rialto used to promote the attraction.

"Glory" Over Poli Circuit

Herman Rifkin of the Eastern Feature Film company of Boston, which handles all Unity releases for the New England states, has booked "Glory," the latest Unity film, over the entire Poli circuit of theatres.

Ariel L. Varges, Cameraman of the Hearst-Pathe News, in a Trench in the Salonika District of the War Zone

"Great Secret" Booked in 2,642 Theatres

At the Beginning 275 Houses in New York State Alone Signed for Bookings, Says Metro Treasurer

LATEST reports from Metro show that 2,642 theatres throughout the United States have booked Metro's serial, "The Great Secret," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are co-stars. It was not released until January 8, so that these bookings establish a record for the company.

"At the beginning 275 houses in New York State alone signed up for the bookings. In New England the demand is particularly heavy. Similar conditions prevail along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the Western and Middle West States," said Joseph W. Engel, treasurer of the corporation, after looking over the latest reports.

"It is my prediction that the bookings for 'The Great Secret' will smash all serial records in the matter of gross business done. Unusually strong interest is being shown in it by motion picture patrons, who are demanding of their exhibitors that it be shown in their favorite theatres."

"In the Pittsburgh and New England territories the picture has become a society fad. Exhibitors in Pittsburgh report that 'Great Secret' parties are being held there. At these parties the host or hostess invites a number of friends to dinner. Afterward they attend in a body the showing of the film. On the following week another member of the same party acts as host or hostess, and thus the screen novel is being followed as part of a social function.

"A part of these unusual motion picture entertainments being given by Pittsburgh society folk is to have guessing contests as to the nature of the great secret hidden in the serial.

"Similar guessing contests also are being conducted by exhibitors and newspapers. The manager of the Greenpoint Theatre, a Keith house, in Brooklyn, is conducting a contest of this kind, and he reports that it has aroused intense interest among the patrons."

Metro has put out for newspaper use a novelization of "The Great Secret," by J. M. Loughborough, a trained newspaper man and fiction writer, who novelized for the Hearst newspapers, Clyde Fitch's play, "Her Sister," in which Ethel Barrymore starred. The novelization of "The Great Secret" is presented in a form never before offered to newspapers. Each chapter consists of not more than two columns of matter, including a two-column illustration, and is supplied to editors either in plate or matrix form. Some of the larger papers, such as the Boston Traveler, which are running the novelization, are supplied with special pictures.

The smaller newspapers are enthusiastic in their praise of the novelization, which is in terse newspaper style, each chapter covering the incidents shown on the screen.

Heavy Bookings Made on "The Girl Philippa"

Picturized Version of R. W. Chambers' Novel Starts Run on N. Y. Exchange of Vitagraph

BOOKINGS on "The Girl Philippa," the eight-reel special Vitagraph production based on Robert W. Chambers' literary masterpiece and starring Anita Stewart, are destined to create new totals for any one picture, if contracts already closed by George Balsdon, manager of the New York exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, may be judged as a basis.

As an evidence of advance bookings Mr. Balsdon turned over to Mr. Irwin a list of theatres that had so bid against one another that there was—in fact, could be—but one outcome. Additional prints were supplied by Albert E. Smith, president of Greater Vitagraph, under whose personal supervision "The Girl Phillipa" was produced.

January 21 was the date of general release set by Mr. Irwin for "The Girl Philippa" in the Vitagraph V-L-S-E offices East of the Mississippi River. Prints of this Anita Stewart feature have been shipped to all the branches, together with paper, heralds, etc.

The advance demands for "The Girl Philippa" have been found in all Vitagraph V-L-S-E exchanges to be so heavy as to cause slight postponement of the release of the picture so as to equalize the ability to answer this demand.

Another effect of this demand, which has passed all expectations, is that the different Vitagraph V-L-S-E branches are setting their own release dates in accordance with the arrangements best suited to supplying their exhibitor demand.

The New York exchange has closed the following bookings: Goodwin theatre, Newark, 7 days; Cumberland theatre, Brooklyn, 3 days; Manor theatre, Richmond Hill, 3 days; Auditorium theatre, Brooklyn, 3 days; Sunset theatre, Brooklyn, 3 days; Rialto theatre, Brooklyn, 3 days; Apollo theatre, West 125th street, New York, 3 days; Burland theatre, Brooklyn, 5 days; Adelphi theatre, 89th street and Broadway, New York, 3 days; 77th street theatre, Broadway, New York, 2 days; Monticello theatre, Jersey City, 3 days; Picture Playhouse, 42nd street and 8th avenue, New York, 3 days; National theatre, Jersey City, 3 days; U. S. Gardens, Elizabeth, N. J., 3 days, and Colonial theatre, Orange, N. J., 3 days.

"Fall of a Nation" Bookings

G. F. Lenehan, manager of the Washington exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, reports an unusual activity in the bookings of "The Fall of a Nation," the Thomas E. Dixon picture being released through Vitagraph exchanges.

CHICAGO NEWS AND COMMENT

Pioneer Exchangemen's Club in Chicago

In the January 20 issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS (page 381), a member of Chicago's F.I.L.M. Club wrote of the many specific results already obtained by this exchangemen's organization. In these days when everybody is bemoaning the utter disorganization of the industry, it is refreshing to find a body of film men who have quietly proceeded to organize efficiently and get actual results. F.I.L.M. stands for "Film Industry Local Managers," as well as the word the letters spell.

In May, 1916, several prominent Chicago exchangemen decided that a number of trade abuses had become so flagrant that concerted action was necessary. They accordingly organized. The managers of about forty independent and branch exchanges were enrolled, and conferences were held at once.

Regular meetings have been held once a week at the Morrison Hotel, with special sessions when immediate action was necessary. All matters submitted to the club for hearing are first referred to the proper committee for investigation and consideration. When the committee reports its findings, the club as a whole disposes of the matter. This method of procedure has saved an enormous amount of time that would otherwise have been wasted in futile general discussion.

The names of the committees give a good idea of their functions. They are: Exhibitors' Grievance, Club Grievance, Finance, Publicity, Legislative, Pick-Up Service, Transportation, Membership and Entertainment.

The club is presided over by Chairman J. L. Friedman, I. Van Ronkle is the vice-chairman; R. Drucker the secretary; and J. W. Bowman the chairman of the Publicity Committee.

Although less than a year old, the Chicago F.I.L.M. Club is the forerunnner and model of the similar organizations now existing in Boston, Albany, Pittsburgh, Detroit, and New York City. Other F.I.L.M. clubs are now being organized in Kansas City, Salt Lake City, Milwaukee, St. Louis, and other important film centers. At present the work being done by these clubs is necessarily local, but when all the larger cities are organized, greater results will be obtained by co-operation among the clubs.

When the F.I.L.M. Club was first organized some exhibitors looked upon it as a "trust" in restraint of the exhibitor's best interests. The spirit and actions of the club soon convinced everybody that the welfare of exhibitors was of prime importance to the exchangemen. The responsible, bona fide exhibitor has been greatly benefited by the regulations of the club. Only the dishonest, fly-by-night showman has suffered at the hands of the F.I.L.M. Club, and this fact has pleased no one better than the honest exhibitor.

J. L. Friedman, President Celebrated Players' Film Club

Live Items from All Around the Town

At the monthly stockholders' meeting of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, the following Board of Directors was elected for the ensuing year: W. R. Rothacker, chairman; H. J. Aldous, N. J. Baumer, A. A. Rothacker and David Baton, Jr. A seven per cent dividend on the preferred stock was declared and paid in cash.

On Monday, January 15, the clergy and press were given a private pre-view of "Protect Thy Daughers." The showing was under the auspices of the National Motion Picture Service and was held in the projection rooms of the E. E. Fulton Company, 154 West Lake street.

Greater Vitagraph opened a new Milwaukee branch office on Monday, January 15. Frank W. Redfield, who has been assistant manager of the Chicago exchange, is in charge. Sydney E. Abel, Chicago manager, will supervise the operating of the Milwaukee office. W. E. Banford, who has been traveling auditor for the Vitagraph, will succeed Mr. Redfield in the Chicago office.

Art Dramas, Inc., has completed booking arrangements with Alfred Hamburger for showing "The Witching Hour" in the entire Hamburger chain. The Pathe film, "Kick In," has also been secured for the entire circuit.

E. H. Philippi, of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, delivered an illustrated lecture on Moving Picture Advertising on Tuesday, January 16, at Fort Wayne, Ind. His audience was composed of officials of the General Electric Company.

The Exhibitors' Supply Company is now installed in its greatly enlarged and improved quatrers on the fourth floor of the Mallers Building. This supply company now maintains comprehensive displays of all equipment pertaining to moving picture houses, including the numerous products which are being distributed exclusively by the Exhibitors' Supply Company in this territory.

"Patria" Premier Preceded by Pretentious Party

Pathe and International combined on Monday, January 15, in giving a most elaborate banquet to representatives of the newspapers and trade press. The occasion was the premier of "Patria" at the Majestic, Chicago's leading vaudeville house.

The dinner was served in the English room of the Congress Hotel. C. W. Bunn, branch manager of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., was the host, assisted by J. W. Bowman, branch manager of International.

The table was decorated with floral emblems spelling the word "Patria." Electric devices on the walls also blazoned the name of the preparedness serial. The caviar was monogrammed "P" and the cakes and ices were similarly initialed. The combined efforts of the chef, florist and house electrician created a most impressive effect.

After dinner the guests taxied to the Majestic, where they viewed the variety bill from boxes. The last feature on the bill was the opening installment of "Patria." The closing film in a vaudeville house is usually the cue for a general exodus. But in this case Mrs. Castle "held them." Less than a score of spectators left the theatre before "to be continued next week" was flashed on the screen. It is certainly a far cry from the time when pictures were used as "chasers" in vaudeville to a time when a film will hold a "big-time" audience and produce as much real applause as the performance of the living actors.

Luncheon for a Founder of the Photoplay League

On Friday, January 12, at one o'clock, an informal luncheon was given at the Tip Top Inn for Helen Varick Boswell and members of the Chicago press. Miss Boswell is one of the founders and most active workers of the Photoplay League. The purpose of the league, as outlined by Miss Boswell, is to encourage good pictures and to make it possible for exhibitors to run them profitably.

The headquarters of the league, with offices at 225 Fifth avenue, New York, will issue a periodical bulletin of films approved by the league. Each local branch of the league will ask an exhibitor to run one of these pictures on a stated night, guaranteeing in return the attendance of league members.

Local organizations of the league are being formed everywhere. Prominent Chicagoans on the National Advisory Committee are Mrs. Ogden Armour and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

Among those present at the luncheon were Betty Shannon, Mae Tinee, Louella Parsons, W. F. McQuigg, W. K. Hollander, Genevieve Harris, C. W. Brown, Martha McKilvie, Miss Andrews, Helen Boswell and B. Barrat.

LIVE NEWS FROM THE PRODUCERS

Arrests Follow Riots at Vitagraph Production

Producers of "Whom Gods Destroy" Deny Embodying Anti-Irish Sentiment in the Film

INCIPIENT riots and numerous protests upon presentation of the five reel Vitagraph subject, "Whom the Gods Destroy," is charged by the producing company to the uncalled for activities of an organization known as "The Sons of Irish Freedom." Stump speeches during the showing of the picture, in which it is alleged the production is financed by the British government and is part of the English propaganda to discredit Irish rebels, has been the favorite method of attack according to theatre managers and police who have been called in.

Aside from trouble in several New York theatres, a Boston organization called the "Friends of Irish Freedom," undertook to have the municipal authorities of the New England city stop a local presentation of the film. Mayor Curley, accompanied by Censor Casey, both ardent Celts, viewed the picture, and evidently found no objectionable matter presented for the film was allowed to run with no noticeable deletions.

It is claimed emphatically by Vitagraph officials that there is not the slightest anti-Irish sentiment depicted in the feature. It is pointed out that Alice Joyce, Marc McDermott and Harry Morey, co-starred in the production, are all of Irish birth or Irish parentage, and that they found nothing objectionable to their sentiments in the picture.

Arrests were made by the police following trouble at the Orient Theatre, 111 West 125th street, and the uptown playhouses, the Annex and Odeon theatres. Among those taken into custody were Mrs. Agnes Bohan, 504 West 141st street; John Killeen, 147 West 10th street, and Thomas Stokes, 228 West 16th street. Mrs. Bohan, according to information which reached Vitagraph, is an associate of Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington, who is touring the country in a crusade against the British Government.

Appealed to prevent exhibition of "Whom the Gods Destroy" Police Commissioner Arthur Woods and License Commissioner George H. Bell declined on the ground that the picture is "Perfectly proper and in no wise unneutral."

After a fashion, the picture is a portrayal of the lamented Sir Roger Casement episode. Sir Denis Esmond, alleged counterpart of Sir Roger, is not hanged in the story, however, but is pardoned by King George.

Vitagraph officials refused at first to dignify attacks on the film by a statement. Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, however, finally declared:

"Our London office has just informed us that 'Whom the Gods Destroy' cannot be released in England, where it is considered too pro-Irish to be shown to English audiences. So much for the foolish charge that the British government subsidized or caused its production.

"I defy anyone with sober judgment to find anything in this picture in any way offensive to the Irish nation. The production reflects two points of view. It is neither Irish nor English. 'Whom the Gods Destroy' reflects the viewpoint of the Irishman who considers himself downtrodden and his country under the yoke of England. On the other hand it also depicts the viewpoint of England in its present struggle, and the view, reasonable or unreasonable, that all of its subjects should and must fight for England."

The protests that have arisen have been the source of the utmost surprise to the officers of this company and to the authors of the story.

"It was furthest from the minds of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton and the Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady, who wrote 'Whom the Gods Destroy,' to offend the Irish nation or stultify the magnificent qualities of the Irish people which make them beloved by all the world. Doctor Brady is himself an Irish descendant and an intense Irish sympathizer."

Doctor Brady declared:

"I want to point out that I am myself an Irish sympathizer. I bear an Irish name and have much affection for Ireland and her cause. I do not see one single item in 'Whom the Gods Destroy' to which a genuine Irish sympathizer can take exception."

Commodore Blackton said:

"Nothing was farther from my mind or Doctor Brady's than to write or produce an anti-Irish drama. Further than that, we did not write and did not produce an anti-Irish or a pro-British play in 'Whom the Gods Destroy.' If a parallel is found between Sir Roger Casement and the Sir Denis Esmond of our play, there is one point of difference that should at once prove the play far from anti-Irish."

Metro Stars to Be Guests at Ball

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, co-stars in the big Metro serial "The Great Secret" have accepted an invitation to be guests of honor at the annual ball of the Buffalo Screen Club to be given in that city on the evening of January 29.

Blackwell in New Brady Film

Bohemian life in New York is depicted in the World-Brady play "A Square Deal" the next vehicle of Carlyle Blackwell. Muriel Ostriche, June Elvidge and Henry Hull will appear in the supporting cast.

Release Date of K-E-S-E Play Advanced

George Kleine announces that the release date of the Kleine-Edison photoplay, "The Royal Pauper," has been advanced one week and that this feature will be forthcoming through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service February 12. The "Keys" release of February 12 will be the Selig Red Seal play, "The Heart of Texas Ryan."

Illustrating "Whom the Gods Destroy," a Vitagraph Starring Alice Joyce, which is the Center of Interest Just now Owing to Its War Theme

George M. Cohan in Artcraft's Forthcoming Production

Important Scenes from "Broadway Jones"

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" for Little Mary

SHORTLY following its release of Mary Pickford's latest offering, "The Pride of the Clan," the Artcraft Pictures Corporation announces the acquisition of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," as a forthcoming screen vehicle for "Little Mary." It will be produced upon completion of a "A Poor Little Rich Girl," the Eleanor Gates subject now being staged under the direction of Maurice Tourneur at the Fort Lee studios and will mark the fourth Mary Pickford release by Artcraft Pictures.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" was adapted for stage presentation by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson from two of the former's books, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and "The Chronicles of Rebecca." Originally produced by Klaw and Erlanger, under the direction of Joseph Brooks, at the Republic Theatre, New York City, on October 30, 1910, it scored an instantaneous hit with Edith Taliaferro in the title role.

The story has to do with Rebecca Rowena Randell, a poor New England lass, who is placed in the care of her wealthy aunt by her mother, inasmuch as the former is in better circumstances to give the girl an education. Rebecca at once starts to set things right around the neighborhood in her own sweet way. She sees that a wedding ring is placed on one woman's finger and makes here severe aunt almost human. Her aunt's treatment, however, causes her to run away to the kindly old stage driver who finally induces her to return. A charming romance is woven into the story presenting on the whole a subject of universal appeal and one that is well adapted to Mary Pickford's talents.

Program of Five, Six and Seven Reels Planned by Bernstein

A NEW program of five, six and seven-reel productions is to be put on the market on a state rights basis in the latter part of February by Isadore Bernstein, who has been organizing the producing companies, and making other primary arrangements. Three producing units will be maintained, each making eight productions in twelve months.

Production of the Cleo Madison Feature Film Company will be commenced on the fifteenth at the new plant built on Stevenson avenue, Los Angeles, when the making of "The Chastening," a six or seven-reel picture, will be started. This will star Miss Madison.

At about the same time it is planned two other units will begin work. One has been organized by Lloyd B. Carleton, for five years director for Lubin and for the past two years with Selig and Universal, and will be known as Carleton's Creations, Inc. Mr. Carleton has engaged Nada Tavar, a Russian actress, as star; Edward Peil, leading man, and Richard Morris, character impersonator. The first story will be a Russian drama adapted from a well-known book. A third organization will be announced shortly.

The productions of the three companies are to be sold by state rights. Mr. Bernstein, who is to be general manager, is very well-known in the producing field because of his associations with the Universal as manager of their West coast studios, and later in the East organized the Equitable Film Corporation and served as general manager for a term of months. He has been on the West coast for the past three months and first organized the Cleo Madison Feature Film Company. The studio and producing plant has been built under the supervision of Mr. Bernstein, who planned and built Universal City, and stages and all equipment will be ready for use by the fifteenth of the month when production will be commenced by the company.

J. C. JESSEN.

"Passion" as Film Character

Florence Short, who appeared as "Passion" in the stage production of "Experience" will enact the role in a new Apollo production, supporting Alma Hanlon. Before joining the Apollo forces, Miss Short appeared in Metro and Fox films.

Kerrigan on Eastern Swing of Countrywide Trip

With the first four weeks of his scheduled three months' tour of the United States completed, J. Warren Kerrigan is due to arrive in New Orleans for his first rest, next week, after which he will continue up the Atlantic coast until he reaches New York City.

The star has covered territory in Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, and according to the figures compiled by the various exhibitors at the theatres in which he has appeared, more than one hundred thousand fans have heard Kerrigan's voice.

In the meantime work is rapidly progressing on his new studio in Hollywood, California, and work on his first production, under his new contract, will begin early in April.

The schedule from New Orleans to New York, which has been mapped out for Kerrigan is as follows:

Mobile, Ala., January 23; Pensacola, Fla., January 24; Montgomery, Ala., January 25; Birmingham, Ala., January 26; Memphis, Tenn., January 27; Nashville, Tenn., January 29; Chattanooga, Tenn., January 30; Atlanta, Ga., January 31 and February 1; Spartanburg, S. C., February 2; Charlotte, S. C., 3; Norfolk, Va., February 6 and 7; Richmond, Va., February 8; Washington, D. C., February 9, 10 and 11; Baltimore, Md., February 12, 13 and 14; Wilmington, Del., February 15; Philadelphia, Pa., 16 to 23; Newark, N. J., February 24; New York City, February 25 to March 5.

After appearing in New York City, Kerrigan will start out on the last lap of his tour, and will visit the principal cities of the Middle West, working up through the Northwest and Canada and down the Pacific coast to Los Angeles.

Metro Stars in Two Productions

The popular Metro-Yorke team, Harold Lockwood and May Allison are working on two feature productions at the same time. Fred J. Balshofer is directing them in a screen version of James B. Hendryx's novel "The Promise." Under Oscar Apfel they are filming the opening scenes of "The Hidden Children," a picturization of Robert W. Chambers' book.

Film of Border Life is Selig Release

In "The Heart of Texas Ryan," the Selig Red Seal Play, to be released in K-E-S-E Service on Monday, February 12, Frank Campeau, Tom Mix and George Fawcett have leading parts.

The drama is from the pen of Gilson Willets, novelist and photoplaywright. The production is in five reels and is said to present beautiful scenery in Texas and in old Mexico, some sensational horsemanship, an automobile smashup and a hand-to-hand fight between Campeau and Mix.

George Fawcett as "Cattle King" Ryan, who lives for his only daughter, whom he has named "Texas" honoring his beloved state, has many opportunities, it is said, for convincing work. The part of "Texas Ryan" is taken by Bessie Eyton. There is a strong thread of love interest interwoven in the drama.

The "Rara Avis" Among Directors

A director who shuns publicity, has no photographs and has no professional history—such is Milton H. Fahrney, on the word of the Horsley studios. His activities are confined entirely to directing Cub comedies.

To date Mr. Fahrney has produced sixty-eight such comedies with success. He is now engaged in a new series of Cub productions featuring George Ovey and with a few wild animals wandering about in addition to the regular Cub stock company.

Metro Star in Character Role

Viola Dana has begun work on a new five-part Metro production "A Wife of Purchase" dealing with East Indian life. The play was adapted from the novel of Paul Trent.

John H. Collins is directing the filming and a cast with Robert Walker, Augustus Phillips and Frank Currier in the leading male parts will be seen in support of Miss Dana. Other well-known players in the cast include Henry Leone, George A. Wright, Harry Allen and Adele Clarke.

De Mille at Work on Lasky Studio Expansion

CECIL B. DE MILLE, Lasky director general, who came to New York City from the Lasky studios in Hollywood, Calif., to attend the launching of Geraldine Farrar's "Joan the Woman," which he personally directed, returned to the coast last week.

Despite the many conflicting rumors concerning Mr. De Mille's future activities following the presentation of "Joan the Woman," the Lasky directorial chief will devote himself entirely to the production of photoplays for the Paramount Program. For the next four or five months Mr. De Mille will make a comprehensive survey of the Lasky studios with a view to augmenting their activities in behalf of Paramount.

With the experience gained in his production of "Joan," Mr. De Mille is able to view the big Hollywood plant from the standpoint of larger production—of greater spectacles, of more striking light effects, of even greater artistic merit than that which has characterized his previous work. Fresh from the east, Mr. De Mille will tackle the productive problems of the Lasky studio with the viewpoint of an outsider looking into the big plant for the first time.

Even the buildings are going to be moved around, if in the opinion of the director general, their re-arrangement will add one iota to the effectiveness of Lasky productions. Thousands of dollars have been spent during the last year in the addition of new buildings, stages, dressing rooms and scene docks to the equipment of the studio, and Mr. De Mille will regard even the newest buildings with deep suspicion until they convince him that they are in the proper place to give the maximum service.

The original Lasky studio was laid out under the combined supervision of Mr. Lasky and of Mr. De Mille, but the tremendous growth which that company has undergone in the three brief years of its existence has made imperative the addition of many buildings and the altering of many methods of procedure at Hollywood.

It is probable that the addition of Mme. Olga Petrova and Margaret Illington to the Lasky forces will necessitate still greater increases in the productive facilities of the California studios than those which had been planned before the recent acquisition of these two stars.

Apollo Stars Viola Dana

New York's East Side furnishes the atmosphere for the newest Apollo production in which Viola Dana played. "Rosie O'Grady" is the title of the feature, which despite its size will be released to exhibitors through the distributing offices of Art Dramas, Inc. Harry R. Raver, president of Apollo Pictures believes the prestige gained for the program by release of such a feature, will more than than offset the outlay on production.

Two of a Kind in Cubs

George Ovey, the Cubfilm comedian, who is by no means of heroic stature, has found a leading woman in Claire Alexander, heighth, five feet; weight one hundred pounds. Needless to say, ability to act also goes into the diminutive comedienne's make-up. With an eye to effect, Director Milton H. Fahrney of the Cub Company decided none but a woman smaller than Ovey was a prime requisite in his comedies. The find of Miss Alexander resulted after long search.

Ella Hall in New "Bluebirds"

Director Jack Conway has finished one subject and is at work on another feature to be released among Blubirds, with Ella Hall as the star, during March and April. Mr. Conway lately had a release in which Miss Hall starred "Her Soul's Inspiration," and is to present her frequently as the year advances.

"Pollyooly," based on Edgar Jepson's novel, the scenario by E. J. Clawson, is finished and Mr. Conway is now doing "Pawned" at Universal City, with Miss Hall cast for the feature role.

Interesting Scenes Depicting the Routine of Army Life Shown in the Ten-Reel Feature "Germany and Its Armies of Today." The Kaiser is Seen in the Center

Big Year for Balboa, Says Horkheimer

NINETEEN-SEVENTEEN promises to be the banner year in the history of the Balboa Company. Expansion is the watchword at the Long Beach, Cal., studio. January 2 saw the Horkheimer Brothers begin work on a big new stage, and plans for still bigger enlargements were announced at the same time.

"When we have completed the new stage now building," said President Horkheimer, "we shall begin work on the largest glass studio in the industry. It will cost $50,000. Later on we may decide to put in our own lighting plant. We require these additional facilities to meet the demand for Balboa pictures. Pathe, General Film Company, and B. S. Moss take all we can turn out with our present equipment."

The latest addition to the Balboa studio forces is Kathleen Clifford. She will make her first screen appearance in a serial of fifteen episodes, of which Mr. Horkheimer is the author. Its name is "The Twisted Thread," and Pathe will release the production.

Frank Crane will be in charge of the filming. Miss Clifford's support includes Julian Dillon, Myrtle Bauer, Clifford Gray and Otto Hoffmann. Thomas Swem will assist Director Crane.

Balboa is finishing "The Neglected Wife," which features Ruth Roland and Roland Bottomley. It is another Pathe serial, based on the Helen Mabel Urner newspaper stories, and was scenarioized by Will M. Ritchey.

More "Little Mary Sunshine" pictures are in work at the Balboa studios, while Jackie Saunders is appearing in a series of five-reel features.

Future Paramount Pictographs Issued as Split-Reel

PARAMOUNT Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen, and the first single reel of its kind, celebrates its first anniversary the week of February 5th, when the 52nd edition of this single reel "little feature" produced and distributed by Paramount Pictures Corporation will be issued. During the first year of this feature over 225 subjects of universal interest were picturized.

With the beginning of the second year of this screen magazine, the production of the Pictographs will be taken over by the Bray Studios, Inc., and the feature will be issued in the form of a split reel, two-thirds of which will be of magazine material and one-third of Bray Cartoons.

The same staff that has been responsible for the success of the Pictographs in the past will be connected with the production of this reel under the new producing management.

At the time of its conception over one year ago, there was no single reel of this caliber on the market. The magazine-on-the-screen was new in every respect for it was not a visualization of news but the picturing of big, vital thoughts and ideas, contributed to by the country's greatest minds. The Pictographs visualized thought in the broadest sense of the word, and it was here, with a view toward making the photoplay an increasing source of good and an influential factor in every community.

One of the first big subjects that was treated in the magazine-on-the-screen, was that of "Preparedness," which subject when the Pictographs was brought into being was the one big subject being discussed throughout the country. In this series of preparedness pictures the thoughts of some of America's greatest men were visualized on the screen. Among some of the contributors were Theodore Roosevelt, former President of the United States; Frederick Palmer, the great war correspondent; Henry Reuterdahl, the naval expert; Major-General Leonard Wood, former Secretary of War Garrison, Major-General Scott, Brigadier-General McComb, director of the United States War College; Secretary of State Lansing, Secretary of Navy Daniels, John G. Hibbons, president of Princeton University; Robert E. Peary, John Hays Hammond, jr., and many others of national repute.

"Wrath" Fifth of McClure Series

Announcement that H. B. Warner in "Wrath" will be the fifth release in the series of five-reel features under title of the "Seven Deadly Sins" is made by McClure Pictures. The first of this group will be Ann Murdock in "Envy," which will be released January 29. Other subjects will follow at weekly intervals.

The story of "Wrath" is one of Russian intrigue, Russian heroes and Russian villains. The subject was directed by Theodore Marston and photographed by Charles Gilson. In the supporting cast are Shirley Mason, George Le Guere, Edith Hallar, Charles Wellesley, Thea Talbott, George Arvine and John Nicholson.

Kathleen Clifford, Balboa Star, in the "Twisted Thread," Coming Pathe Release

Suratt Subject Completed

Valeska Suratt completed another feature for William Fox last week, and Stuart Holmes will finish his big production within a few days.

Harry Hilliard plays opposite Miss Suratt. Others in the cast are John E. Mackin, Eric Mayne, Frank Goldsmith and W. W. Black. Kenean Buel was in charge of the direction. Miss Suratt has the only important feminine role in the picture.

The new screen play gives the Fox villain a role entirely different from any which he has ever essayed.

More than two months were devoted to the making of this subject, and Mr. Holmes's supporting cast includes Mary Martin, Edward N. Hoyt, Robert Vivian, Dan Mason, Florence Ashbrooke and Kittens Reichert.

Another production which will soon go into the cutting room is Virginia Pearson's new starring vehicle.

There is a real jurist on the bench in the criminal trial scene of the Pearson picture. He is ex-Judge William B. Green, of Brooklyn.

Progress is also being made on Dustin Farnum's premier production under the Fox standard. The cast includes Winifred Kingston, William Conklin, Edward Alexander, Ray Downs and Frank Lanning.

William Fox's next release is "One Touch of Sin," with Gladys Brockwell in the stellar role. Richard Stanton directed the film. Jack Standing will be seen in the role opposite Miss Brockwell. Others in the company are Willard Louis, Sedley Brown, Carrie Clark Ward, Frankie Lee, Jack MacDonald and Charles Edhler

"One Touch of Sin" will be released on January 29.

"Transgressor" Scenario Is to Be Protected

Edward Warren has recently purchased from Lawrence Marston a scenario now known as "The Transgressor." Mr. Warren with the bill of sale acquires sole rights and is fully protected by registration and copyrights. Because of the big price paid for the script, special precautions have been taken against infringement and one of the leading law firms in the city has been retained to defend Mr. Warren's property rights against film pirates.

His attorneys have served notice on all film manufacturers to beware of unscrupulous persons who may attempt to plagarize or make other unlawful use of this scenario. A reward of $500 is offered for confidential information that will lead to the arrest of a person or persons guilty of a violation of Mr. Warren's rights as owner of "The Trangressor" by Lawrence Marston.

Harron's 4,000-Mile Scenario

Episodes in the new Triangle-Fine Arts production being prepared for Robert Harron will necessitate a trans-continental journey by the star and his supporting company. The different scenes will be filmed in El Paso, San Antonio, New Orleans, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Washington, and other large cities.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS PRESENT
"THE MYSTERIOUS MRS. M."
FEATURING
MARY MACLAREN
with HARRISON FORD
PRODUCED BY LOIS WEBER

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (INC)

START A BLUEBIRD NIGHT

Successful idea now being used by BLUEBIRD Exhibitors with splendid results.

BLUEBIRD NIGHT is the latest idea conceived by one of the many successful BLUEBIRD Exhibitors. It's an idea that is simple of establishment and productive of exceptional results when used in connection with BLUEBIRD Plays.

At least one night each week is set aside for the exhibition of a BLUEBIRD Play. The exhibitor announces this particular night, advertises it on slides, in programs, and in the newspapers.

Once this fact is registered, BLUEBIRD nights will prove the big nights, because the public will know they are to see the finest pictures of the week. Thus, you practically guarantee yourself ONE SURE NIGHT of capacity every time that you show a BLUEBIRD.

We recommend this splendid plan to you. TRY IT beginning with your next release. Announce it, advertise it and keep hammering on it till EVERYBODY in your community knows which night is BLUEBIRD NIGHT in your Theatre.

If you are not showing BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS you can make a magnificent introduction to your House by booking either "THE MYSTERIOUS MRS. M." produced by LOIS WEBER, or "GOD'S CRUCIBLE." These are truly wonderful productions. The former with typical LOIS WEBER cast, stars and direction and the latter with the Grand Canyon as a background. Two that your public will pronounce the finest pictures ever screened.

It will mark your House as THE House for exceptional pictures. Watch for the two coming BLUEBIRDS—"The Saintly Sinners" and "The Boy Girl" featuring Violet Mersereau. Book thru your local BLUEBIRD EXCHANGE or thru—

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (Inc.)
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Gaumont Cameraman Takes Wild Ride for "Weekly" Scene

The daring risks taken by Gaumont cameramen in getting news pictures for the Mutual Weekly is illustrated by the wild ride of B. E. Moisant, Gaumont cameraman at San Francisco, to get pictures of the submarine H-3, wrecked on the California coast near Eureka. The town of Eureka is the largest in the United States without a railway. The muddy roads of winter made the trip particularly dangerous, but Mr. Moisant managed to get through.

"When news came that the submarine H-3 had gone ashore near Eureka," the cameraman wrote, in sending his film for Mutual Weekly No. 105, "I got a machine and left on a wild ride. After traveling all night and the next day, we reached Eureka at 3 A. M. the following morning. I hired a launch to take me to the wreck, as it was impossible to get there by automobile. After working there all that afternoon, I stayed at Eureka that night and started back to San Francisco the following morning.

"On the return trip we had nine blowouts, and went over a bank and almost into a river. However, after many hours' delay we arrived in San Francisco the following day. The roads we went over are the worst in the state, especially at this time of year. Only one other machine besides mine has made this trip during the Winter. Anyway, I got there and made some good film."

Conditions Analyzed by Gaumont Officials

Questioned as to the secret of the success attending the four weekly single reels the Gaumont Company has been putting out, an official of the company said, "Having on hand some five thousand American, English and French subjects suitable for single reelers, and a well developed staff of cameramen busy in all parts of the world augmenting its library, it is only natural that we cast about among our branch managers to learn really what was needed. Our branch managers are in daily touch with the exhibitors, the exhibitors have felt the public pulse; consequently the reports we received were alive with public sentiment.

"These reports were, therefore, sifted, analyzed and discussed by staff officials and changes of policy were made where occasion required.

Essanay Drama Series on Rialto Program

S. F. ROTHAPFEL last week contracted with the General Film for regular use of the Essanay two-reel series, "Is Marriage Sacred," for his Rialto Theatre. The move is regarded in film circles as further corroboration that short dramatic subjects are coming into vogue and receiving the consideration of high-class exhibitors. It is pointed out by the manufacturers that a strong two-reel dramatic serves admirably to break the monotony of a steady run of news, travel and educational subjects.

The Rialto program this week carried the first of the Essanay series, "The Wide Wrong Way." Others will follow at intervals.

Arbuckle Leaves Keystone for Paramount Banner

"FATTY" ARBUCKLE and Los Angeles—incidentally, Keystone—parted the other day. To a crowd numbering hundreds on the station platform the comedian's last words "Good-bye boys, I'm through" drifted back as the Limited pulled out. His declaration was not one of resignation from pictures, but of farewell to California, for in future the rotund funmaker will make two-reel comedies in the East, which will be released through Paramount Pictures Corporation.

Roscoe Arbuckle (Paramount)

"Fatty's" contract with his former distributors expired two weeks ago. It took him but a few days to have all his effects packed and shipped to his new home in New York City, and he left "dear old California" behind him on Saturday morning, January 20th.

Announcement of his coming East immediately was received by Joseph M. Schenck, president and general manager of the Comique Corporation, with whom Mr. Arbuckle is under contract for a period of ten years. Negotiations had been pending between the comedian and President Abrams and Mr. Schenck for some weeks prior to the termination of Mr. Aruckle's former contract for picture distribution.

In his telegram to Mr. Schenck, "Fatty" said, "Coming East immediately. Very happy over Paramount contract. Congratulations to Mr. Abrams, Mr. Zukor and yourself. Feeling fine. Ready to start work immediately."

Following the telegram was a special delivery letter from "Fatty" in which he says: "Nothing has ever pleased me so much as has the signing of the contract for the distribution of my future pictures by Paramount. I am bringing with me some wonderful comedy stories that were recently written especially for me by some of the best comedy writers in the business, and I can only assure you and Paramount that my future pictures will be of a far higher caliber and funnier than ever.

Arbuckle comedies will be released by Paramount to all exhibitors. In speaking of these new comedies to Mr. Schenck, President Abrams of Paramount said, "It is very pleasurable indeed that we have announced the securing of "Fatty" Arbuckle for his future pictures. We know that he is the funniest fat man in the world and realize that this addition to the other pictures that we release is a valuable one. Already our exchange managers all over the country have wired their congratulations on our having secured these pictures and there is no doubt in our minds that they will be great business getter for the exhibitors who book them."

Edison Program Approved by Welfare Societies

BEFORE Thomas A. Edison, Inc., embarked upon the project of producing their recently announced Conquest Pictures, the opinions of a large number of organizations interested in the improvement of motion pictures were solicited. The plan was described to them in detail and the nature of the proposed productions, which will consist of clean and vigorour stories of adventure, rollicking comedies of a strikingly individual sort, and split-reel scientific subjects, was fully explained. The views of various societies interested in welfare work among young people, as well as those of noted philanthropists and other individuals who are known to be active in the work of bettering the conditions of society, also were sought.

As a result, a number of stories already have been filmed and are ready for release in the immediate future. The dramatic features of the new program, which will consist of five reels each week, will be adventure productions. Many of them will deal with the exploits of renowned youthful characters in fiction—characters who are known and admired equally by young people and adults.

On each weekly program there will be a one or two-reel farce comedy. The remainder of the program will consist of split-reel educational, scientific and novelty subjects. These will show only the most interesting phases of natural phenomonae and will be of very general interest. The novelty subjects, of course, will be varied. Among other things that will be shown under this classification will be the latest developments in the art of picture production and continual experiments are being made at the Edison studios to provide this material.

Eleanor Washington with Fox

A new acquisition to the Fox forces is Eleanor Washington, who is descended directly from John Augustin Washington, a full brother of the "Father of His Country."

Chambers Will Write Scripts for Goldwyn Pictures

Past Works of Author Will Also Be Produced—
New Corporation Has Literary Advisory Board

ROBERT W. CHAMBERS has entered into a contract with the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation to produce annually a series of original scenarios for the new producing organization. In addition Goldwyn Pictures acquire exclusive right to screen any or all of Chambers' novels not hitherto filmed, with the sole exception of certain serial stories he is writing for one of the large American magazines.

Announcement of Mr. Chambers' engagement follows hard upon the appointment of an advisory board of authors, playwrights and picture and dramatic producers, at a recent directors' meeting of the Goldwyn Corporation, and in this regard is considered especially significant of the aims and future moves of the board.

Samuel Goldfish, chairman, Edgar Selwyn, Margaret Mayo, Irvin S. Cobb, Arthur Hopkins, Roi Cooper Megrue, Archibald Selwyn and Crosby Gaige comprise the personnel of the board. The formation of such a body by the Goldwyn Corporation is in line with their efforts to avoid errors in completed pictures by never permitting an error to be committed at the outset. It is felt that supervision from a literary, theatrical and technical sense as is now made possible will impart new and better qualities to Goldwyn pictures.

Upon seeing two of his most successful novels filmed, Mr. Chambers was won over to a viewpoint whereby he was induced to cultivate a closer relation with his admirers by writing original productions for the screen.

Analyzing his decision to write original works for film production Mr. Chambers said:

"It is known, of course, that those stories of mine which have received screen production were written and conceived wholly as stories. They have, however, made pleasing pictures and I have been fairly deluged with overtures to become a screen author. In the Goldwyn Corporation I see the association that appeals to me most. I am assured that my productions and their presentation will be in the hands of the greatest artists in the constantly enlarging boundaries of this wonderful new art."

"Easiest Way" Getting Over the Rough Places

Clara Kimball Young is making rapid headway with her fourth Selznick-Picture production, a film version of Eugene Walter's drama, "The Easiest Way." Albert Capellani, who directed Miss Young in "The Common Law" and "The Foolish Virgin" is also in charge of this picture. The cast includes Joseph Kilgour in the part of Brockton, the role he played in the original Belasco stage presentation of the drama.

Marie Dressler Contract Not Yet Final

An impression that Marie Dressler is now under contract to appear in productions for Mutual distribution appears to have been gained from a misinterpretation of a statement made by President John R. Freuler of the Mutual, when he recently admitted that contracts with the star had been drawn.

The project is still in the promotion stages, according to the Mutual Film Corporation, and at this time no information can be given of completed arrangements of final plans.

They Never Fail to Attract Attention

William Rose of the Lyric theatre, Omaha, Neb., through the suggestion of M. Monsky of the Omaha World branch, secured a number of petticoats when he showed "Miss Petticoats" at his theatre and had them hung promiscously about the lobby of his theatre. The advertisement attracted attention enough to fill the house.

Baseball with Pies; Chin Whiskers Tabooed by Lehrman

Henry "Pathe" Lehrman packed up the other day, left Los Angeles flat, and came to New York to "rest." His first comedy for the Foxfilm program has been completed, and two more are under way. He brought with him a few ideas regarding comedy producing and his aims in that direction.

"It's the most difficult thing in the world to produce comedy today if you adhere to the old-line methods," he contends. "Real comedy must bring laughs. All the laughs have been squeezed out of pie-throwing and the like, so something entirely new must be substituted. My aim in comedy-making is to produce laughs by unusual methods and unusual situations. In particular, I am strongly opposed to the use of character make-up by principals and other old fogy methods are doomed.

"It is my intention to have six comedy companies at work within a few weeks. Every picture they make I will supervise in person."

Mr. Lehrman as a director is like a fire chief who will not send his men where he himself dare not go. In the making of the first Lehrman comedy for the Foxfilm program, the script called for one of the principals to swing by one arm high above a Los Angeles street.

Lehrman first climbed out on the dizzy perch and dangled by one arm.

"You see," he explained, waving his feet in the rarified air, "it's just as easy to do this 500 feet above ground as five feet. No one would hesitate at hanging five feet in the air. The stunt is to forget you're several hundred feet up, and you won't have any trouble.

On Either End Are Glimpses of Amy Jerome and Charles Arling, of Foxfilm Comedies. Winifred Kingston Is Shown in the Center After a Busy Day with the Rifle

Viola Dana will Soon Appear in "Rosie O'Grady"—Apollo-Art Dramas

Gaumont's Releases for Early February

Various committees which have been investigating motion pictures other than film dramas have given great praise to the four Gaumont single reels released weekly through Mutual. This program—educational, entertaining and timely—has a worthy week in the releases for the first week in February. First comes "Reel Life," No. 40, released February 4. It shows "Making Lace by Machinery," the "Toddle," the dance that has swept New York by storm, "Raising Fresh Water Fish," showing how eighteen million trout fry are hatched and placed in streams; and "How to Design an Evening Gown."

February 6 brings "Tours Around the World" to the screen. This time spectators of the Gaumont foreign scenic reel are taken to "Picturesque Landscapes of Holland," "The Temples of Luxor, Egypt" and "The Rocky Coast of Dalmatia."

"See America First," No. 74, which divides the reel with the Gaumont Kartoon Komic, is released February 7. It shows the towns that fringe the Gulf of Mexico in the state of Mississippi. These are Gulfport, Biloxi, Pass Christian, where President Wilson took winter vacations, and Beauvoir, the place to which Jefferson Davis retired to write his history of the Confederacy. On the same reel is the animated cartoon by Harry Palmer, entitled "Old Roue Visualizes."

The fourth single-reel of the week is The Mutual Weekly. As this is not made up until the day it is issued, no announcement of its contents can be made in advance.

Hebrew Delegates Witness Bernard Pictures

Exhibition of two pictures in which Barney Bernard, the Jewish comedian starred, was a feature of the annual convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in Baltimore. Thousands of attending delegates witnessed "A Prince in a Pawnshop" and "Phantom Fortunes" which were shown by almost every Baltimore theatre for the occasion. One special showing was arranged for by G. F. Lenehan, manager of the Washington office of Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Western Circuits Book Art Dramas Subjects

President of Concern Reports Exhibitors in That Section Are Enjoying Prosperity

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL, president of Art Dramas Incorporated, returned last week from a short business trip to Chicago, and other points of the Middle West, in the interests of that company. During the trip, Mr. Sherrill investigated film conditions generally, and more particularly the businesss of the Art Dramas exchanges. He reports a gratifying volumn of bookings on Art Dramas throughout that territory, and states that the industry seemed to be in a very flourishing condition, from the exhibiting viewpoint.

Speaking of his trip, Mr. Sherrill said:

"The industry seems to be in a very healthy state, throughout the Middle West, at this time. As a general rule, exhibitors are making money, and the exchanges are, of course, doing the same. Our own branch in Chicago, the Art Dramas Service, is doing a surprisingly large amount of business. In fact, considering that we have only released five or six pictures, the bookings that Mr. Proctor, the general manager of that office, has secured is little less than remarkable.

Our productions are being shown in the larger circuits in the West, and throughout the country. In New York City, the William Fox, Marcus Loew, B. S. Moss, and B. F. Keith circuits are all showing Art Dramas. In Chicago, the Alfred Hamburger Theatre Enterprises, Lunlinder and Trintz, Amalgamated Theatre Corporation, Balaban and Katz, Hopkinson Amusement Company, and exhibiting organizations of like calibre are showing Art Dramas.

"One point that has helped us in our business, I believe, is the fact that our productions are in advance of our release obligations."

"Argyle Case," with Warwick, Is Now Ready

ROBERT WARWICK'S first Selznick-Picture, "The Argyle Case," is ready for release. Director Ralph W. Ince finished the work of cutting and assembling the film last week and a private showing was held for Lewis J. Selznick and his associates.

This play was the joint work of Harvey J. O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, the noted American dramatists, who, in order to reach the heights of realism, called in as third collaborator the celebrated detective, William J. Burns. Robert Hilliard was the star of the original production, which enjoyed a year's run on Broadway and toured all the principal cities of the country with immense success.

The story of "The Argyle Case" is said to lend itself well to screen presentation. Beginning with the mystery of the murder of old John Argyle, an eccentric millionaire, the plot develops rapidly with suspicion falling upon Argyle's adopted daughter Mary, who is the chief beneficiary under his will. Asche Kayton, a private detective is called in and from the moment he meets Mary he determines to prove her innocence. In following the clues that he alone discovers, the trail leads him into a series of most exciting adventures culminating in a tremendous scene in the den of a gang of counterfeiters.

The hero of "The Argyle Case" employs such scientific instruments as the dictagraph and finger-print photography, and trails his prey in the up-to-date manner of such real detectives as William J. Burns.

The cast includes Charles Hines, Frank McGlynn, Arthur Albertson, Gazelle Marche, Elaine Hammerstein, Frank Evans, John Fleming, H. Cooper Cliffe, Mary Alden and Robert Vivian. The picture was directed by Ralph W. Ince.

Maienthau to Advertise Apollo

H. Maienthau, general manager of the Apollo Feature Film Company, who has secured the New York rights for "A Mother's Problem," plans to launch an extensive advertising campaign for the picture. He expects to aid the exhibitors booking the subject with numerous publicity helps.

Slater Completes Releasing Plans with Mutual

GENERAL MANAGER CLYDE W. SLATER arrived in Los Angeles last week from a business trip to Chicago, where he completed negotiations for the release of the Monogram Film Company's pictures on the Mutual program. The company has been at work for several weeks using what is known as the old Majestic studio in Boyle Heights, where they have been making a series of fifteen two-reel comedies to be known as "The Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," written by William H. Clifford, formerly connected with Thomas H. Ince, and more recently with the Famous Players in the East.

Mr. Clifford wrote the scenario for the "Shorty" comedies, featuring the same comedian, which were made at Inceville about two years ago, and released on the Mutual program as a Bronco brand.

The first release of the new brand will be through all Mutual Exchanges on January 15, and will be titled "Shorty Breaks the Yellow Ring." The ring in this instance is a band of smugglers. The second release is "Shorty in the Tiger's Den," one week later, and the third is "Shorty Goes to College." The company has three other pictures completed, but titles have not been decided upon.

Besides Shorty Hamilton who, by the way, is a former cowboy and has been in pictures for more than five years, the principals of the first picture are Zerza Dayne, ingenue lead; and William Parsons, heavy. Robert H. Gray, formerly associated with the Lasky Company, is in charge of the direction, Harry Fowler is the cameraman, and William Dieterle is business manager.

J. C. JESSEN.

More Lynn Reynolds Bluebirds

BLUEBIRD'S "nature-study director," Lynn F. Reynolds has prepared two more stories to be pictured out-of-doors, following his several productions that have climaxed in "God's Crucible," the Bluebird set for release this week (January 22.) "The Secret of the Swamp," "The Girl of Lost Lake" and "The End of the Rainbow" have all been set with natural scenery and have created favorable comment from the reviewers, the exhibitor and general public.

Now comes the announcement of two more, for release in March and April—"The Cruise of the Alden Besse," a picture of the South seas, and "The Code of the Klondyke," another information title. Val Paul, Myrtle Gonzalez and Geo. Hernandez have played leads in all the Lynn Reynolds releases and will again appear in the forthcoming subjects.

Mr. Reynolds is a rara avis among directors, writing his own stories, scenarios and directing them—and he never has issued a "vampire" a sociological problem or a picture with anything but healthy, expansive and buoyant inspirations. And, invariably, he goes out-of-doors, into the woods and mountains (and now onto the sea) for his locations.

Acme Company of Atlantic City Is Reorganized

REORGANIZATION in the ranks of the Acme Moving Picture Company, Inc., of Atlantic City has occurred, and new local capital brought into the business. J. Vaughn Mathis, a contractor, has been elected president; Captain Francis S. Van Boskerck of the United States Coast Guard Service is vice-president, and William L. Moise, secretary-treasurer of the concern. Max Milligan is directing the present company and is on his third picture.

The policy of the company is to specialize in one and two-reel comedies with the seashore locations and scenery as a feature for its background.

Among the list of players with the Acme Company in Wally Helston, of the "Gingerbread Man" and "Zo Zo" Companies; John G. Schrode, of the Schrode Brothers; Charles Hyatt; Callen Austin; Margaret Kayne, of Mitch-Ellis Company; Margaret Moore; Ada Charles; Grace Caborn, of Essanay; and others.

Among the first releases the company announces "Captain Pepper's Waterloo," "The Spice of Variety" and "His Uncle from Turkey."

Moss Company Goes to Florida

Last Friday B. S. Moss dispatched a film company to St. Augustine, Fla., where it will enact the first scenes of a forthcoming Moss release, entitled "In the Hands of the Law," the theme of which is based on circumstantial evidence. The troupe was in charge of Ben Goetz.

Heading the company, which comprised twenty-seven players, is Lois Meredith, former star of Metro, Mutual and Pathe films. Eugene Strong will play the role opposite to Miss Meredith.

It has been announced that it will require about three or four weeks to complete the scenes for which the Moss company journeyed southward. The rest of the picture will be made in the Erbograph studio in New York.

Agnes Vernon, Who Will Appear in "The Man Who Took a Chance," a Bluebird of February 19

"Adventures of Buffalo Bill" Not Like Older Picture with Similar Name

There appears to have been some confusion regarding the identity of the forthcoming Essanay "Buffalo Bill" picture, to be released throuh Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay. It was first announced as "The Life of Buffalo Bill," but developments show that it should have been announced as "The Adventures of Buffalo Bill," a five-reel feature, entirely new and distinct from "The Life of Buffalo Bill."

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay, in a statement, call attention to this fact and state specifically that "The Adventures of Buffalo Bill" will present scenes in the life of the great plainsman that were not shown in "The Life of Buffalo Bill."

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service, in referring to "The Adventures of Buffalo Bill," have this to say:

"The services of Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, a score of other famous generals, five thousand United States troops and one thousand Indians were furnished the Essanay people by the Government for the purpose of faithfully reproducing these history-making Indian campaigns. The Indians were furnished from the Sioux reservations and the following chiefs are shown in action: Chief Sitting Bull, Chief Short Bull, Chief Tall Bull, Chief Yellow Hand, and others.

"The pictures were taken on the identical locations where the action took place: in the Bad Lands of Dakota, the Black Hills, Wyoming, Nebraska, etc.

"Fortunately records of Buffalo Bill's last hunting expedition with the Prince of Monaco were also recorded, as well as many scenes of Buffalo Bill at home, showing incidents of his daily life on his ranch at Cody, Wyoming.

Gladys Hulette in New Role

Following "Pots-and-Pans-Peggie," next of the Thanhouser "lovely girl" series featuring Gladys Hulette, and released in March through the Pathe exchanges, Miss Hulette will be starred in "The Candy Girl."

The story was written by Philip Lonergan, and will be directed by W. Eugene Moore. William Parke, Jr., will again play the male lead. Others in the cast include J. H. Gilmour, Thomas A. Curran; Ethyle Cooke, Carey Hastings, Arthur Bowers, Cecilia Clay and Helen Badgley, the Thanhouser kidlet

Pathe Serial Boosts Circulation

An unusual tribute in the form of a front page newspaper commendation has been paid the Pathe serial "Pearl of the Army." In a recent issue the Terre Haute Tribune said:

"No story that has been published by the Tribune has attracted so much interest as 'Pearl of the Army.' The demand for extra copies has exceeded all expectations."

Patrons of the Knickerbocker theatre, Columbus, Ohio, according to General Manager J. A. Fookes, look upon the Pathe serial as the feature of the bill.

Miss Young in "The Price She Paid"

In "The Price She Paid," by the late David Graham Phillips, and now in production at the Selznick studios, in New York, Clara Kimball Young will appear in the role of a society girl who marries for millions and repents at leisure.

The part affords Miss Young an opportunity to wear a wonderful assortment of gowns and other feminine trappings of the latest mode and the luxurious settings range from Fifth Avenue to Palm Beach.

The story of "The Price She Paid" revolves around the mental and spiritual development of Mildred Gower, who, through the impractical methods of her parents, is forced to face life armed with only one weapon, her sex.

The picture was completed last week and Director Giblyn and his assistants are rapidly finishing the work of cutting and assembling the film.

The cast surrounding Miss Young includes Alan Hale, Louise Beadeut, J. Fletcher, Mrs. Perry, W. J. Butler, Snitz Edwards and F. Powell.

"Glory" Goes Well in Chicago

Mr. T. Sambreno, of the Unity Photoplay Company, of Chicago, reports that the latest release of the Unity Sales Corporation, "Glory," will undoubtedly be a big success as the advance bookings are large.

Practically every exchange throughout the country handling Unity releases report excellent bookings.

Mr. A. J. Cobe, vice-president and general manager of the Unity Sales Corporation, states that there is no doubt whatever that the program is doomed, and the exhibitor will soon be able to book what features he desires in the open market.

Popularity Title to Bushman

The contest conducted by The Motion Picture Magazine, extending over six months, has resulted in Francis X. Bushman, the Metro star, again being voted the "most popular male star in the picture world." It is announced more than a million fans cast ballots. Bushman's grand total of votes was 411,800.

Eight Mutual Studios Scenes of Activity

Marjorie Rambeau and Nance O'Neil in the East and Chaplin and Other Favorites in the West

ALL work with very little time for play is the rule at the eight studios producing for the Mutual Film Corporation.

Marjorie Rambeau is at present doing double duty and dividing her time between the footlights and the screen. Miss Rambeau has already completed her first picture "The Greater Woman," under the direction of Frank Powell, head of the Powell Producing Corporation, and is now working on the second Mutual Star Production "Motherhood," a picturization of a play by Frederick Arnold Kummer. She is being supported by Aubrey Beattie and Paul Everton. Evenings she assumes her role in "Cheating Cheaters" at the Eltinge Theatre.

Nance O'Neil, also star of the Powell Producing Corporation, too, combines work before the camera with the stage. The first of the O'Neil series will be "Mrs. Balfame," a picturization of Gertrude Atherton's novel. In this photodrama will appear Alfred Hickman, Agnes Eyre, Robert Elliott, Frank Belcher, and Anna Raines.

Marie Cahill is also at work on the eastern coast. At the studios of the Mardan Photoplay Company on Long Island, she has commenced the production of her first Mutual picture, "Flirting with Romance."

Out on the western coast at the American studio at Santa Barbara, Mary Miles Minter and William Russell are putting the finishing touches to their next Mutual offerings.

Miss Minter is just completing "The Gentle Intruder," the sixth of her Mutual Star Productions. In "The Gentle Intruder" George Fisher is playing the leading role opposite the little star. William Russell is working on the finishing scenes of "My Fighting Gentleman," under the direction of Edward Sloman.

Preparations are also being made at the American studio for the first production of Gail Kane, the American's newest stellar acquisition when she arrives at the studios from New York City.

Down at San Diego the members of the Pollard Picture Plays Company, headed by Margarita Fischer, are completing the production of the fourth of the Margarita Fischer series of Mutual Star Productions, "The Devil's Assistant," by I. Edward Hungerford.

From the Signal studios come the reports that Helen Holmes is performing her last spectacular feats in the fifteenth and last chapter of the Mutual-Signal photo-novel, "A Lass of the Lumberlands."

Shorty Hamilton is at work at the Monogram studio at Los Angeles on his series of two-reel dramas to be released as Mutual "Featurettes" under the general title of "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton."

The companies of players at the Vogue studios at Los Angeles are alternating in the producing of one comedy a week. Ben Turpin, Paddy McQuire, Gypsy Abbott, Lillian Hamilton and Arthur Moon, Marie Templeton and Ed. Laurie are among the popular players at this busy place.

Gaumont is in constant touch with all parts of the world gathering material for its quota of regular weekly releases of news and travel, "Mutual Weekly," "Reel Life," "See America First."

Vitagraph Uses "Caribou Bill's" Dogs

Studio Manager A. Victor Smith, of Greater Vitagraph, has just returned from a trip to the Lake Champlain country in New York state, where he has been seeking locations for three forthcoming Vitagraph productions which demand a setting of snow and ice. Mr. Smith, who spent several days at "Caribou Bill's" lodge at Port Henry, reports the snow there to be more than ten feet deep with prospects for plenty more of it.

The "huskies," the big dogs that "Caribou Bill" has trained to do either real or reel work in the snows, knew Victor Smith as soon as he showed up at the lodge and bayed their throaty welcome, though they had not seen him for more than a year. Caribou Bill's lodging, a popular locale for producers sleighing pictures of the North.

"A Circus Cyclone," a Two-Reel Vogue-Mutual, Is Full of Varied Comedy

IN THE STATE RIGHTS FIELD

Brock Forms Enlightenment Corporation

Foreign Market Expert Will Exploit "Enlighten Thy Daughter" on State Rights Plan—Other Productions to Be Handled Similarly

HARRY J. BROCK, one of the most prominent motion picture men in the foreign market, has formed the Enlightenment Photoplay Corporation, for the purpose of exploiting "Enlighten Thy Daughter" on the state rights plan, with headquarters at 220 West Forty-second street.

The Enlightenment Photoplay Corporation has been established for the purpose of purchasing screen productions which, in turn, will be exploited in the United States on the state right basis, and throughout the world the same as the other productions the foreign rights of which have been controlled by the Brock organization during the past few years.

Through an error, an announcement was made recently that the Merit Company had purchased the New York and New England rights to "Enlighten Thy Daughter." This was erroneous. No territory has been disposed of as yet.

The first step in the exploitation of the feature will be its opening at the Park theatre, Columbus Circle, New York, on January 28. Arrangements were completed for a minimum showing of four weeks at the Park theatre.

The executive organization for the exclusive handling of the pictures procured by Mr. Brock's new company is being established now. Mr. Brock is the executive head; Gus Schlesinger is in a confidential, official capacity, and other prominent motion picture people in equally important fields of action.

Mr. Brock has not before gone in for the distribution of pictures in this country, and is emphatic in his ambitions to do so now on a most comprehensive scale.

"Properly encouraged and somewhat certain of a market for costly, worthy subjects, the numerous independent manufacturers can turn out any number of extraordinary pictures," says Mr. Brock.

"Our new organization is equipped to do business on a strictly cash basis. We can finance productions in advance of their completion, and will, if sufficiently impressed by a scenario or subject, finance a feature in advance of its being started.

"We can stimulate the independent producer to renewed effort by assuring him a ready market for powerful subjects.

"We can assure an adequate offer for any production we consider big enough for the Enlightenment concern to handle.

"We want only productions of more importance than the best program feature, and we are not particular about stars. It's the stories, properly produced, that will attract us.

"In 'Enlighten Thy Daughter' we have no stars, but the cast, including Frank Sheridan, Zena Keefe, Katharine Kaelred, Marie Shotwell, Rubye de Remer, Arthur Donaldson, James Morrison, Mathilda Brundage, and Violet Horner, is of far greater importance to the picture than any individual star one could name.

"Assure the independent manufacturer that we've established a mart for his ware, and that we want only the best and we firmly believe good results will ensue.

State Rights Sale for "Judith of Bethulia"

Griffith Three-Reel Picture Has Been Lengthened to Six Reels and Will Be Disposed of by Biograph in the Open Market

"JUDITH of Bethulia," the most famous picture ever produced by the Biograph Company, has been re-edited to six reels and will be released in the open market as "Her Condoned Sin."

D. W. Griffith directed "Judith of Bethulia," and the cast of players, most of whom were comparatively unknown then, are stars now, the majority of whom have the opportunity of seeing their names in electric lights on Broadway whenever a picture in which they appear is produced.

This all-star cast includes Blanche Sweet, Henry Walthall, Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Lillian Gish, Dorothy Gish, and other prominent Biograph players.

At the time when "Judith of Bethulia" was produced the demand for lengthy features had not yet made its appearance. As a consequence, thousands of feet of original negative were not used. It was a simple matter for the editors to insert the necessary additional reels without resorting to "padding."

"Her Condoned Sin" is ready now for state rights buyers.

Wilcox Pictures Booking Rapidly

Pre-bookings of the Ella Wheeler Wilcox pictures are coming in rapidly at the office of Schwartz Film, Inc., since the announcement last week in these columns that this firm controlled the distribution for Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin territory.

William M. Schwartz, the president of the new distributing concern, has announced that the first Ella Wheeler Wilcox picture to be released by them will be "A Married Coquette." The stars featured in "A Married Coquette" are, Arthur Ashley, Carlotta De Felice, Lucille Taft and Richard Garrick.

Bryson to Exploit Verne Picture in Five States

J. V. Bryson, who for ten years was manager of the Laemmle Film Service, has incorporated under the name of J. V. Bryson, Inc., for the purpose of exploiting the Universal feature, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," in the territory embraced by North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Montana. Offices will be opened in Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Butte to take care of the bookings on the attraction.

Mr. Bryson purchased the rights on these five states while in New York last week. In speaking of his proposition to the NEWS he said, "I am going to put five prints out and book the picture like a regular road attraction. The many advertising stunts which Universal has originated to boom business will be utilized for all their worth. I believe in playing a picture of this size up similar to the manner in which legitimate attractions are advertised.

"In accordance with this policy I have ordered five thousand copies of Jules Verne's novel on which the feature is based and I will distribute these to the prominent shops in the towns where the picture is playing. "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," is a picture that will receive much word-of-mouth advertising. The novelty of its undersea stuff assures that. I myself consider the picture the greatest novelty ever. It is an education besides an entertainment.

"The show will open in the big cities first, of course. Minneapolis, Milwaukee. St. Paul. Duluth, Butte and others of the larger centers will get it first. The prices to be charged will range from twenty-five cents to a dollar and a half top."

Courtney Gets Canadian Rights to "Intolerance"

It has been announced that Mr. Courtney, who controls the "Birth of a Nation" throughout Canada has secured the Canadian rights of D. W. Griffiths "Intolerance" and has made plans to have this latter feature presented in the Dominion of Canada late in January. In the meantime a special road company is being formed and consists of orchestra, choir, operators, and other assistants.

Backer, of Mammoth, Buys "Inferno" for New York

The Mammoth Film Corporation, F. E. Backer, president, encouraged by the continual demand for bookings of the Milano American "Dante's Inferno," in New Jersey, has just acquired the sole New York rights for this feature and will have new prints with which to supply exhibitors. The unusual demand for bookings for "The Libertine" has necessitated the purchase of six more prints.

H. L. Charnas of the Standard Feature Film Company Surrounded by the Activities of His Exchange. On the Left is Harry Hayman, Auditor, and on the Right Bert Deiner of the Booking Department

Charnas of Cleveland Urges Cleaner Pictures

Harry Charnas, who came to New York on a business mission last week, has delivered the latest blow in aid of the campaign of MOTION PICTURE NEWS for clean pictures.

Speaking of the condition in the Middle West, Mr. Charnas said: "All eyes are turned toward the East for good pictures, because the public is willing to flock to see them. The straight, clean picture goes a good deal farther in the booking records than the sensational production, which explodes like a flash in the pan."

Mr. Charnas conducts the largest exchange in his territory, which includes the states of Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky, and is known as the Standard exchange with offices in the Columbia Building, Cleveland. He is best known throughout his territory for the success accomplished there with Nat Goodwin's "Marriage Bond," "The Yellow Menace," "Mutt and Jeff" series, Moss's production, "The Girl Who Doesn't Know," and others.

His latest acquisition for the Standard exchanges is the Ella Wheeler Wilcox series of poems.

Lesser & Rosenberg Buy "The Garden of Allah"

Sol L. Lesser, of the All-Star Features Distributors, Inc., San Francisco, and M. R. Rosenberg of the De Luxe Feature Film Company, Seattle, Washington, through their purchasing agent. Leon D. Netter, have bought "The Garden of Allah" for California, Nevada, Arizona, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana. This is both Lesser's and Rosenberg's first purchase for the year 1917.

They are very well satisfied with their purchase, as they consider "The Garden of Allah" one of the best productions that has been released for some time. The deal was concluded by Netter and Rosenberg with W. N. Selig during Mr. Selig's recent trip to New York. Presentations in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Portland are now being arranged.

"Are Passions Inherited" Shown to Trade in Los Angeles

GILBERT P. HAMILTON, general manager of the Problem Plays Corporation, gave a showing of his recent production, "Are Passions Inherited," to exchangemen, exhibitors, and news and trade paper representatives at the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles, Wednesday morning of this week.

This seven reel subject was reviewed by MOTION PICTURE NEWS in an earlier issue under the title of "Inherited Passions."

The scenario was adapted from the story by Jack Wolff and is a preachment against the liquor traffic.

The plot gives the principals, Dorothy Farley and Wm. Conklin, a very wide range of opportunities, and they have taken advantage of these to the fullest extent, giving a very finished performance. The cast is well balanced.

Miss Farley has the dual role of mother and daughter. The latter may be referred to as a double impersonation, inasmuch as the drink habit brings upon the girl a complete change.

In a similar manner, William Conklin takes the part of the father, a role best described as one of the characters of Jeckyl and Hyde.

The photoplay covers a wide range of scenes including city, underworld and western life. The most spectacular perhaps are those taken on a Montana ranch where herds of thousands of head of cattle were photographed to advantage.

The photography throughout the photoplay is exceptionally good. The film is being marketed by Warner Brothers, who have already disposed of considerable territory.

"Garden of Allah" Goes Well in Indiana

Robert Lieber, has been "cleaning up" with Selig's "The Garden of Allah" in Indiana, according to reports from that state. The spectacle has been playing to "S. R. O." at the Circle theatre, Indianapolis. Indianapolis newspapers have contained complimentary reviews concerning the play.

Rogson Buys War Film for New York State

Edwin Bower Hesser announces that the state rights for New York to Capt. Donald C. Thompson's seven-reel film, "War As It Really Is," have been disposed of to the Rogson Film Company, of 218 West 42nd street, where it will be handled under the personal supervision of Louis T. Rogers.

It will be handled in all the up-state cities in co-operation with various newspapers, and an officer just back from the firing line will accompany the film with a lecture, in the most important theatres.

The bookings under Rogson Film Company will be the first in the United States since the pictures were shown serially for three weeks at the Rialto theatre, where a total of about 9,000 feet were shown. Since then the film has been condensed to feature length.

Moss Picture Routed as Legitimate Production

Encouraged by the success of the first presentation of "The Girl Who Doesn't Know," a recent release by B. S. Moss, Walter Greene, head of the Artcraft Company, who bought the territory adjacent to New York, is planning to route the picture as a traveling organization such as D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," and several other feature spectacles, that have traveled in competition with regular legitimate organizations.

This is the first time so far as recorded, that a feature intended for regular booking has warranted exploitation such as that expended on pictures of greater precredited interest, and the experiment is based on the appeal of the picture when first shown in the metropolitan district.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Vitagraph Division Managers on Tour

Visit All Exchanges Throughout Country to Report on Conditions

H. D. NAUGLE, western division manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E., and E. Auger, eastern division manager, left the home offices of that company last week for an extended tour of all Greater Vitagraph exchanges. Mr. Naugle had spent a week in New York to make a detailed report to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E., of conditions in the western territory. Mr. Auger reported on affairs in the East.

Mr. Naugle's trip will take him to the coast and back again to the Mississippi before the end of February. He has extended to all exhibitors in that far stretch of country an invitation to meet him at the Vitagraph V-L-S-E. branch nearest them. His route is as follows:

Kansas City, January 20, 21, and 22; Dallas, January 23, 24, and 25; New Orleans, January 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30; Los Angeles, February 2, 3, and 4; San Francisco, February 5, 6, and 7; Seattle, February 9, 10, 11, and 12; Salt Lake City, February 14, 15, and 16; Denver, February 17, 18, and 19; Omaha, February 20, 21, and 22; St. Louis, February 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27; Kansas City, February 28.

Mr. Auger's route is: Toronto, January 20, 21, and 22; Montreal, January 23 and 24; St. Johns, January 25, 26, and 27; and New York, January 28. Mr. Auger will spend a few days in New York and early in February will visit all the Vitagraph eastern offices.

Exhibitors desiring to see either Mr. Naugle or Mr. Auger are requested to note these dates and places, so that with the least trouble to themselves and also to facilitate matters they can get in personal touch with these division managers of the Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Los Angeles Exchanges Flourishing

BECAUSE of ill health, G. H. Atwood, who has served as branch manager of the International Film Service in Los Angeles since the opening of the exchange there, has tendered his resignation, and is leading a quiet life on a small California ranch. H. I. Krause has succeeded Mr. Atwood.

Upon telegraphic orders from the main offices, the exchanges of the Pathe and International Film Service in Los Angeles were merged on January 2, and are now located at 732 South Olive street, which for the past year has been occupied solely by the Pathe exchange. With the order for the merger came the information that the news weeklies of the two releasing organizations would in the future be merged into one known as Hearst-Pathe News. Pending advice from the New York office, the staffs of both exchanges are continuing actively. B. E. Loper is manager of Pathe, H. I. Krause of International, and the salesmen are L. E. Kennedy and W. W. Dunlap, respectively.

Field Carmichael, Los Angeles Fox exchange manager, is making a tour of the Arizona territory which will require more than a week. No salesman from this exchange has visited the territory for almost a year, due to the fact that the Fox business has been conducted by mail campaigns.

Murray Hawkins, late of the World Film Los Angeles exchange, has been appointed manager of the Universal, Phoenix, Arizona, branch, and has already taken up his work in that city.

The Peerless Film Service, with branches in Los Angeles and San Francisco, has secured the release of the Art Dramas program in the Los Angeles territory, and E. H. Emmick, owner and manager of the company, will spend most of his time in the future in Los Angeles looking after the rental of subjects on this program. In the past the Peerless has handled state rights subject and independently produced comedies, the latter list including those made by the Christie Film Company.

Ralph C. Clark, who has been identified with San Francisco exchanges since the birth of the film industry, has been selected as manager for the Art Dramas' San Francisco exchange. Mr. Clark was connected with the first San Francisco film renting firm, Turner and Dahnken, who later sold to the General Film Company. Since that time he has been with the Golden Gate and served three years for the World Film Corporation.

Tate to Manage Showing of "Eyes of the World"

W. H. Clune, president of the Clune Film Producing Company, has engaged E. D. Tate to manage the showing of this organization's latest production, "The Eyes of the World," in the Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho territory. A company of eighteen people, with full equipment and effects, will accompany the film. Included in the number are sixteen musicians. The first showing will be made at Seattle, and later there will be an opening at Portland and another at Spokane and possibly over Western cities.

Mr. Tate has had five years' experience in the Seattle territory connected with film exchanges. For three years he served as manager of the Golden Gate exchange at Seattle.

California Exchanges Plan Use of Parcel Post

Announcement in a recent issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS concerning the shipment of films by parcel post, was read with much interest by Los Angeles exchange men. This change will make possible the reaching of practically all California theatres of the Los Angeles territory by parcel post, and if regulations are not prohibitive, a number of exchanges plan to use this method of film shipment.

It will not serve in all cases, however, as the farthest point in that territory, which includes Arizona and part of New Mexico, together with the southern portion of Nevada, is approximately 1,000 miles from Los Angeles. This would place the shipment beyond the second zone where but twenty pounds may be sent, the shipments consisting of at least five reels.

Impetus to Serial Showing

Arrangements with the Salt Lake Tribune for a special advertising campaign in that territory as an aid to exhibitors who have booked "The Secret Kingdom" have been made by F. A. Wagner, manager of the Salt Lake City exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Mr. I. A. Rosenthal, general manager of the Western Civilization Corporation, of Seattle, who was stopping at the Hotel Astor the past two weeks, has left town again.

A. T. Lamson, Lamson Film Exchange, Inc., Seattle, Wash., is in New York, staying at the Knickerbocker.

Harry Landy, Quality Film Exchange, Pittsburgh, who was in New York for four days, has returned to Pittsburgh.

Abe Warner, Clara Kimball Young Distributing Company, Cleveland, recently in New York City, is back in Cleveland.

Messrs. Tandy and Lynch, Atlanta film men on a trip to New York lasting several days, have returned to Atlanta.

Harry Charnas, of the Standard Feature Company, Cleveland, passed through Grand Central Station last week.

Patrick J. Garvey of the printing company of Cahill-Igoe, Chicago, was in town last week.

James Young, Essanay director, was in New York during the last week.

W. S. Butterfield, of Grand Rapids, Mich., is still in New York.

H. Rifkin, of the Eastern Exchange, Boston, was in New York last week.

William N. Selig paid New York a several day visit last week.

Herman Garfield of the Private Feature Film Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, was in town several days last week.

JUST FOR FUN

By LONGACRE

PAUL GULICK, he of the southeast corner of the third floor of 1600 Broadway, wherefrom emits twice each and every month the Moving Picture Weekly of Universal fame, slipped most everyone a surprise last week by getting married. The lucky lady was Kathryn Bowman. Paul told us a bit about Kathryn, smiling every other word and feeling very proud of himself. It all happened on January 14, at the Marble Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Gulick are "at home" at the Cambria, 355 West 55th street, this city. Herewith we have a picture of Paul and Kathryn at ease in the well-known band of gold. Kathryn has her toes turned in, but this isn't right at all. We fear it just a prank of Hugo Meyer's in mapping out the cut. To coin a phrase we wish Mr. and Mrs. Gulick all happiness on the sea of matrimony.

In the Bonds of Wedlock

MAE MARSH, who is also shortly to make her Goldwynning debut, has decided that all pictures she makes for the company must be shown before poor children free of charge. A fine and charitable idea is that for the children. Now if someone would only donate their pictures to the exhibitor matters would be quite perfect.

HAMISH McLAURIN, the Rialto's press agent incorporated the following lines in his notice of this week's feature, "Shrouded in secrecy as to author, star, story and producing company, 'The Mysterious Mrs. M.' will be given the featured position on the Rialto pictorial program next week." Walt Hill playing secret agent again?

GEORGE LE GUERE has decided to reform and tread the straight and narrow path, after doing "The Seven Deadly Sins" for McClure during the last six months and getting a bit blasé. Which is the deadliest of the seven, George?

LITTLE MADGE EVANS, the World film prodigy, who has just finished appearing in the production of "The Web of Desire" will shortly leave for Florida, where a number of scenes under the direction of Jack O'Brien will be filmed for the forthcoming release, "Motherhood." Accompanying the little lady will be the much prized wardrobe trunk received by Madge recently as the winner of a popularity contest held by an Eastern newspaper.

GEORGE PERIOLAT, says Richard Willis, was talking to a friend regarding his old time stage associates. The name of May Irwin was mentioned. "Is she an ingenue?" asked the friend and then wondered why George collapsed.

KNOW all ye members of the trade that Theda Bara has had a perfume concocted that expresses her marvelous personality. It was blended by one Mrs. Haviland that it might match Theda's mysterious and dual personality. Mrs. Haviland has a super-sensitive nose which doesn't mean that she spends her time in tracking extras to hidden haunts, but in smelling out perfumes compounded to conform to the psychic personality of her customer.

"THEDA BARA is the most mysterious and fascinating woman that has ever come to me for a perfume to match her personality," says Mrs. Haviland through the medium of the Fox press department. "The very first impression you get of Miss Bara is one of eerieness. She seems to glide into the room like a vapor, giving the observer a thrill that manifests itself in little gasps and the drawing in of the breath. In departing she leaves that same weird feeling. In mixing together my combination of perfumes, I aspired to instill that feeling of involuntary gasping that Miss Bara affects those who come in contact with her."

PERSONALLY we are extremely anxious to procure one short sniff of this marvelous perfume. We would like to have "that feeling of involuntary gasping" instilled in us and see how long we could stand it. From all accounts it must be a similar sensation to that which greets one when he sticks his head under water and draws a deep breath, or when one opens his box of scented cigarettes, and finds that some person has stolen the last one.

"NEVER before, according to my experience, has the scenario writer been so well rewarded," says Alfred Hickman, leading man for Nance O'Neil in "Greed" one of McClure's far famed "Seven Deadly Sins." Mr. Hickman wrote a number of scenarios for Miss O'Neil once and then married her.

The Longacre Lampoon

All the News That Fits, We Print Longacre Square, N. Y., February 3, 1917

EDITORIAL

Ever since the fadeout-to-something - or - other - that-happened - in-the - first-part-of - the - picture came into vogue the devotee of the silent drama has been deprived the use of his imagination. The producers have acted on the supposition that a motion picture audience has no sense, it would seem. Sometimes a character has cause to think back to an incident which happened only a few scenes before.

To the average mind the thoughts of the character are perfectly plain and yet there comes the inevitable fadeout and back we go to the scene of his thoughts. We have watched audiences instead of the pictures when we anticipated such a thing. And the answer is to the average audience that the producer believes it to be possessed of a feeble mind. It is just another case of "going back" when instead the plot should move forward.

There are times when the practice is warranted, many times in fact, but the times that it is warranted are so few in comparison to the times that it is not that—well, hence these lines. All of which leads to the question: How much gray matter are the heads of the average audience supposed to contain?

LOCAL NEWS

—1 thousand plates and glasses were laid at the Universal dinner of recent date.

—Several plates and glasses were laid at a Universal dinner to Carl Laemmle of recent date, it being the occasion of C. Laemmle's 5thtieth birthday.

—At the present writing Walt Hill is overflowing a chair by ye ed's side. Shut the door when you go out, Walt, is our sentiment.

—Considerable excitement prevailed around these parts last wk. when the fire dep't deposited several 100 gallons of water in the basement of the Godfrey bldg., succeeding in putting the telephones out of order for a few hrs.

*Dickson Watts, the w. k. member of the M. Telegraph and Columbia Sch'l of Journalism grad., entertained a few of his friends at the Universal dinner last Sat. night by rendering a few of the more select songs and college cries.

It has been discovered that Fritz Tidden, Vampire of New York, Brooklyn, Weehawken and these parts, is The Silent Menace in the Pathe serial, "Pearl of the Army." P. A. Parsons please copy.

—Warning! Smoking, carrying lighted cigars, cigarettes or pipes in the Triangle projecting room is prohibited these days, as many from here know by this time.

—Bob Welsh operated the spotlight at the U. d. of recent date, casting its brilliant rays on the graceful form of Benjamin Grimm.

—Lynde Denig, the w. k. ed and dramatic critic, was used as a model for a d. c. in 1 of Tom Ince's recent shows, entitled "Chicken Casey."

—H. Reichenback has been keeping unusually quiet of late, save for an occasional poker game at beautiful Bayside, of which things Bill Barry tells us about occasionally.

—Ed's note: Items marked thus * and thus  have been contributed to this paper by an exclusive correspondent signing himself with a mere capital s.

NEWSY REPORTS FROM ALL SECTIONS

Hitch in Price Advance at Minneapolis

Exhibitors Waiting for "The Other Fellow" to Start the Ball Rolling, and Meanwhile Ten Cent Price Continues in Force

THERE was a hitch in the program of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest regarding the price advance to fifteen cents on January 1, and the rise is delayed at least until the end of the month, say the exhibitors. The corporation members agreed that an advance was necessary if the theatres were to maintain a high standard of exhibitions. The outlying theatres, however, relied on the downtown Minneapolis theatres to take the leap.

With the family purses depleted by Christmas shopping and the post holiday audiences somewhat small as a result some of the downtown managers said the advance would have to be postponed. Accordingly the New Year's week attractions were billed at ten cents. The situation has given cause for some criticism from the outlying houses. Criticism has also come from some of the country managers who had advertised the same releases at advanced prices.

It was generally understood that James Kehoe, of the Strand, was to raise the price on January 1 and open the year with "The Common Law." Learning, however, that L. C. Calvert of the New Garrick Theatre, next door, was not going to raise the price, Kehoe showed the film at the old price. He was not going to be blamed by the public for starting things, he said, and run a chance of small audiences.

The exhibitors, by the way, do not entirely agree with Mr. Heal, the efficiency expert, who calls fifteen cents a danger point in admission prices, and says that no popular commodity sells for fifteen cents.

By way of suggestion they mention that the standard magazines have sold for fifteen cents, and that the average price of a collar is fifteen cents. Some have even suggested that a two-for-a-quarter rate be made on the new commodity.

However, the advance in price is coming to Minneapolis. It must come. Mr. Calvert is sure it will come, but he says the exhibitors want to look ahead and see just what they can buy and sell on that basis.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Objects to "Purity"

Crawfordsville, Indiana, plans to censor motion picture plays against which objections on moral grounds are made. The Crawfordsville Council has passed the ordinance and a board of seven members will be appointed by Mayor Murphy. The creation of the board of censorship is an aftermath of the showing of the film "Purity." The campaign was led by three hundred club women. The film then was withdrawn. The club women said the film portrayed women in the nude and that such exhibitions have a bad effect upon the morals of the community.

Motion Picture Contest Scheduled for Atlanta

THE Southeastern Land Show Association has decided to put on a motion picture contest to ascertain what young woman in the Southeast makes the most artistic appearance on the screen.

The contest was discussed at a meeting held at the Atlanta Screen Club on December 30, and the following details were decided upon in regards to the contest:

"The candidate or candidates to be allowed to enter the contest from each city of the Southeast are to be selected by some one theatre through a popularity contest conducted for two weeks, beginning January 8 and closing January 20. Only the winning candidates in these contests will be eligible to enter the final contest in Atlanta on February 1, the opening day of the Land Show.

One or more candidates will be allowed from each city according to the population.

The winners in the popularity contest at the different theatres will be required to go to Atlanta on the opening day of the Land Show at the expense of the manager holding the contest and pose for a picture the opening night on the stage of the auditorium where the show is to be held. The stage will be fitted up as a studio and a director from the Scenic Film Company and cameramen will have charge of the making of the pictures.

There will be three grand prizes and four state prizes offered to the successful candidates, which are as follows: First, an automobile; second, a gold watch studded with diamonds; third, a diamond ring or a silver service; and four other prizes to be given by the state.

Film Company Will Reorganize

A petition in bankruptcy filed against the Barker-Swan Film Service, Peoria, Illinois, will result in a reorganization of the company. This company has a plant in Peoria valued at $50,000. The bankruptcy proceedings were started by Chicago creditors. The company produced a few film plays, but ran onto financial shoals. An effort will be made to sell the property to some film organization.

Director Milton Fahrney of Horsley's Comedies, a Pretty Fun-Maker and Scene from a Coming Release.

Mary Anderson, Vitagraph's Young Star, at Leisure and Working in One of "The Dangers of Doris" Episodes, "Billy Senolse," in which William Duncan is opposite

Denver News to Run "The Secret Kingdom" Serial

In answer to the request of exhibitors in that territory. Frank Harris, manager of the Denver office of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, has requested and secured a change of newspapers running the fiction story by Louis Joseph Vance of "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's new adventure serial, which Mr. Vance wrote in collaboration with Basil Dickey.

Originally it had been planned to use The Rocky Mountain News on Sundays. As it is now arranged, "The Secret Kingdom" stories will appear daily in The Denver News.

Manager Harris reports to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, that "The Secret Kingdom" is being accorded an unusual and unprecedented welcome in his territory.

Musical "Talkies" Shown in Baltimore

A public presentation of Webb's new musical talking pictures took place in Baltimore last week at the Parkway theatre, North avenue near Charles street. The Webb Talking Pictures Company, the concern controlling the patents for the talking and musical pictures, have arranged for the making of a number of operas, musical and monologue selections of twenty minutes' duration. Following this plan the pictures presented at the Parkway ran twenty minutes and the second act of "Carmen" was rendered.

Bossner Back in Utah

W. F. Bossner, former newspaperman who became associated with W. H. Hodkinson in Utah and Idaho, in the old days has returned to his home town Ogden after an absence of years. Mr. Bossner was "theatre doctor" for Paramount Pictures Corporation with headquarters in New York, and in that capacity started a number of theatres notably in Boston, New Orleans and Rochester.

To his old time friends in Salt Lake, he declares that he has gone home to stay.

Court Decides in Favor of Two Boston Houses

THE International serial, "Patria," featuring Mrs. Vernon Castle, and released through Pathe is being shown exclusively in Boston at the Keith houses. B. F. Keith's and the Boston, for its first run as a result of a decision by Judge Jenney in the Superior Court January 15, denying the petition for an injunction brought against the Pathe exchange by the Fenway, Beacon and Bowdoin Square theatres.

The mixup resulted from preliminary bookings made by International before its amalgamation with Pathe. International booked a portion of the serial to the Bowdoin Square, the Fenway and the Beacon for the first run, while Pathe booked the whole serial to B. F. Keith interests, and the Proctor cricuit. Judge Jenney decided that a greater harm would be done if the defendant were enjoined from allowing the production on the large contract, and so denied the plaintiff's request.

Among those at the hearing was Dorothy Green, who played the vampire role in "Patria." Many persons prominent in Boston motion activities were present, as the case has a bearing on other booking tangles, and the decision is expected to be used as a precedent in other cases of a similar nature.

Mayor Overrules Censor's Approval of "Purity"

From Cleveland comes the news that boasts of barring from that city objectionable pictures passed by the Ohio Board of Censorship are being made by representatives of that municipality on the strength of the barring of the picture play, "Purity," in which an artist's model, who poses in the nude, has a leading role.

A standing order has been issued by Mayor Davis, of Cleveland, that all films showing women in the nude, regardless of the moral they teach, will be barred in the future from the Forest City. At the same time he overruled the state censors' approval of the film "Purity."

Speaking of this situation, Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, one of the Ohio censors, has this to say:

"The Board of Censorship did pass this film, after many eliminations had been made. After the much-censored film had been released to the public, a representative of the producing company came to Columbus from New York, and asked that the members of the Ohio Board of Censorship leave in those poses of the model which had been reproduced in statuary for many of the buildings at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

"After careful consideration, the board decided that, inasmuch as these figures were done for the United States Government, and as they appeared on buildings under Federal sanction and were seen by millions of persons, there could be no harm in this revision of the board's decision. These poses therefore were ordered back in the film and again it was approved.

"If it is objectionable otherwise, it can only be from a possible showing with some of the board's orders on eliminations not followed out."

This so far has been the only criticism of the passing of this film.

Four-Hour Programs in Hub

Boston is pleased with "A Daughter of the Gods," at the Majestic theatre. Every newspaper gave it a half column or more review, the Globe, Transcript and Herald giving it a column each. The house was sold out the opening night, and on Tuesday night, January 16, turned several hundred away.

The Boston theatre is setting a pace with its new Fox program. During the week of January 15 it offered two five-reel Fox features, with June Caprice and Virginia Pearson; the two-reel Fox comedy, "Social Pirates," and the two-reel first installment of "Patria," fourteen reels of first run pictures together with vaudeville, a four hour and a half program without repeats at prices from fifteen to fifty cents.

Government Tax Pressure Stirs Ontario

Exhorbitant Censorship Fee and War Revenue Measure Brings Film Men Out for Conference

CONDITIONS threatening the moving picture industry in Ontario, proved to be of sufficient spur to precipitate prompt action among the members of the trade in that territory on Tuesday, January 9. A meeting called by the Ontario Motion Picture Protective Association, under suggestion of F. R. Lennon, assistant general manager of the Canadian Universal Film Company, and president of the Exchange Managers' Association, was held at 2:20 P. M. in the club rooms of the Exhibitors Association, Queen and Spadina Streets.

Mr. Bailey, president of the association, addressed the members, who numbered nearly one hundred, on the adverse legislation which seemed to be threatening the whole industry. He stated that it was practically agreed that an Exhibitor Exchange Association was unworkable. Therefore, his suggestion was that the present Managers' Association maintain its identity, while a third association be formed, which would form a point of contact or unity between these two bodies.

This third association to be called the Motion Picture Mens Association of Ontario, was the principal object of the meeting.

He then called upon Mr. Lennon to express his ideas, which he had placed before the association some days before.

Mr. Lennon pointed out the necessity of this third organization which would unite both the exhibitors and the exchangemen all over Ontario in one solid body.

Mr. Lennon had purposely made a trip through a portion of Ontario to feel out the exhibitors as to their feelings in the matter, and found that they were unanimous for the formation of the new association.

Mr. Burnside of Collingwood, Ontario, told of instances in his own district which showed that the exhibitors united would have a power in their grasp stronger even than the newspapers and that they could defeat political parties who would not support the industry.

Mr. Sexton, a well known exhibitor of Toronto, made a plea for the exhibitors to respond generously with funds, so that the organization could be brought to a head, and he stated that without funds this could not be possible.

At the close of Mr. Sexton's speech, Mr. Lennon was called upon again for his ideas of the formation and policy of the new body. To do this, Mr. Lennon traced legislation from the original licenses when the industry started, and the gradual rate and increase of the present period. He pointed out the imposition of the board of censors on the trade, and the increase of the censor fee from fifty cents to two dollars. In all these legislative measures, he pointed out to the members of the Association, that the industry has not been consulted in any way, and, in fact, no notice has been given to the industry as to what would take place. Mr. Lennon then referred to the success of the moving picture men in the Maritime Provinces. In a recent fight with the Government there, after which the proposal to propose another censor board and raise fees was started by the effort of the exchange men from Toronto and Montreal.

The war tax measure, recently introduced, was explained by Mr. Lennon and the reduction of the percentage rate to the exchange for the handling of the tickets from two to one per cent. was held up as an instance of the manner in which the present Government refused to work with the trade for the betterment of conditions.

The evil of recensoring or calling back a film once it passed the board, was illustrated by the speaker, and, as he remarked very forcibly, it seemed to be the attitude of the present Government to pay no attention whatever to the justice and rights of the moving picture men in Ontario.

Messrs. Liscombe, Alexander, Bailey. Mr. Rogers of the Fox Film Corporation, and Mr. Kaufman of the Famous Players, Mr. Barrett, Mr. Gilberty, Mr. Karn Lewis and Mr. Ouimet of the Specialty Import Company, were among the speakers who followed.

Finally it was decided to call for names for the offices of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer of the new Motion Picture Association of Ontario. This was done and the election held at the same time, the results being as follows:

F. R. Lennon, who was largely responsible for the inauguration of the new idea, president.

Mr. Bailey, the president of the Exhibitors' Association, was elected vice-president of the new body.

Mr. Alexander, a well known exhibitor, treasurer, and W. A. Bach of the Publicity Service Department of the Universal Film Company, was elected secretary.

The meeting then adjourned with the understanding that those appointed would meet promptly and lay a plan of campaign whereby the rights of the industry would be secured and protected in Ontario.

EXHIBITOR PERSONALS

INDIANA—Goshen:: Mrs. Mae Irwin-Baker and her husband, Francis E. Baker, recently transferred the Irwin theatre over to the Irwin Theatre Company, a corporation recently organized to take over the property.

Charles A. Freeland, formerly of Middlebury, has sold his interest in the Crystal theatre, a Sturgis motion picture house, to John E. Luttman.

IOWA—Spirit Lake: B. L. Frances of the Royal theatre, Spirit Lake, caused nervous prostration—almost—in the Bluebird exchange in Omaha, Neb., the other day when he returned a picture by parcel post. Frances is the first exhibitor in the Omaha territory to use the parcel post system since he has had the privilege. His experiment might have been a success had not the package arrived Saturday and the Bluebird people, not knowing what it was, allowed it to lie in the office until Monday.

Hampton: Joe Miller is now sole owner of the Idle Hour theatre at Hampton. He recently purchased the half interest of his partner, Mr. Ingles.

Afton: The Palace theatre at Afton was recently purchased by Miss Anna Hutzell. It was formerly owned by the Thomas Bros.

Riverside: The Subway theatre, Riverside, is now under new management. It was formerly owned by Yoro and Wingler, and Mr. Schnoebelen purchased the half interest of Mr. Yoro.

KANSAS—Hays: A smallpox epidemic at Hays, Kansas, and one at Galliton, Mo., has caused T. K. Fredorovicz, proprietor of the opera house at Hays, and R. A. Bush, proprietor of the Duchess theatre at Galliton, to close their respective theatres until the scare has blown over.

Quinter: The Electric theatre at Quinter is now under new management. A. W. Schenberger has sold the theatre to F. T. Martin. Mr. Martin recently sold his theatre at Russell, Kansas, to A. G. Jones, in order to purchase the Electric.

Wichita: Don Powell, a well-known exhibitor of Wichita, Kansas, recently sold the Colonial theatre to C. G. Bard.

MINNESOTA—Stillwater: The Misses Kaiser, who have been conducting the Hilltop motion picture house at Stillwater for the past few weeks, have disposed of the same to F. J. Austin of Minneapolis.

MISSOURI—Kansas City: W. L. Sherrill has opened the opera house at Sherrill.

Springfield: The Jefferson theatre, at Springfield, was recently leased by Jack Truitt of Sedalia, Mo. Mr. Truitt is also the owner of the New Sedalia theatre at Sedalia.

NEBRASKA — Columbus: Exhibitor "Bill" Swan of Columbus, and Mrs. Swan were in Omaha the other day. Mr. Swan now runs the Lyric, a house of 250 capacity. He is building a much larger and better house that will be opened about March 1. "Best after-the-first-of-the-year business I ever had," said Exhibitor Swan.

Omaha: W. O. Jensen, founder and for years successful proprietor of the Lothrop theatre, Twenty-fourth and Lothrop streets, Omaha, has proved that being an exhibitor will get a grip upon a man that he cannot disregard. Mr. Jensen recently cut loose from the Lothrop and went into the state rights field. Then he traveled about the country enjoying himself. But he felt the call of the game, and now, with a big smile on his face, he announces his decision to return to the Lothrop. On Friday, January 12, he opened with Frank Daniels in "Crookey Scruggs," and is planning big things to follow with Anita Stewart in "The Combat."

OHIO—Fremont: Manager Carl F. Miller, who has been managing the Strand for A. H. Jackson since its opening two years ago, recently closed a deal with Mr. Jackson whereby he leased the popular little theatre for a period of 10 years.

OKLAHOMA—Blackwell: F. M. Tanner recently closed a deal whereby he becomes owner of the interest in the Rex theatre in this city, formerly held by W. M. Wood. Mr. Wood has been resident manager of the show since he and his partner, George Shilkeet, bought the theatre from Mr. Ford. Mrs. Tanner is a musician of considerable ability, and will likely take care of the musical end of the business.

WASHINGTON—Tacoma: Clarence Summerville, manager of the Melbourne theatre, Tacoma, has secured the Triangle films which have hitherto been shown by the Regent, the latter theatre having been converted into a combination vaudeville-picture house.

WISCONSIN—Knellsville: Nic Johannes and William Roob have leased the Mouveau theatre for a term of years.

ALBERTA.—Calgary: F. McQueen, manager of the Bijou theatre, Wetaskiwin, has assumed the management of the Garland theatre, Edmonton, and will open with the Universal program and Bluebirds.

Toronto: There has been a change in the management of the Strand theatre, of this city, by which Mr. Marvin who has been in charge for some time resigns, and it is rumored that a very well known film exchange man in Toronto will take charge of the theatre, although no authorized statement has been made as yet.

NEW BRUNSWICK.—St. Stephens: Charles Staples has reopened his Bijou theatre, the same having been closed for two weeks on account of infantile paralysis.

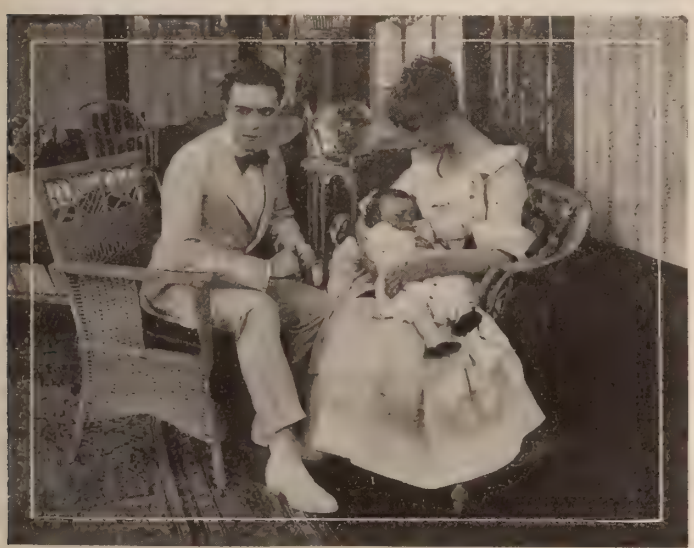
St. George: T. J. O'Neill has severed his connection with the Broadway theatre and Fred H. Trifts of St. John will assume the management in his stead, and introduce three acts of vaudeville in the program.

MANITOBA.—Brandon: W. J. Wilson of Winnipeg has purchased the Starland and the Bijou, two of the leading motion picture theatres of Brandon.

ONTARIO—Fort William: M. Mannist, of Fort William, Ont., passed the holiday of New Year's sadly, owing to the death of his father.

Toronto: The Perkins Electric Co., exclusive Canadian distributors of Powers and Simplex machines, Minusa screens and Speer carbons, has now three branches in Canada, located at Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS



"The Mysterious Mrs. M."

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THOMAS EDGELOW'S story in Lois Weber's hands, with Mary MacLaren and Harrison Ford as Raymond and Phyllis, is a delightful business builder among pictures. This is the kind of a picture which will cause talk and favorable comment wherever shown, and which will stimulate interest in pictures. The title does not give a fair impression of the real merit of the story as a straight dramatic production with a big moral and a novelty twist.

Mary MacLaren is an ideal girl of the right sort for whom any man would want to live longer, even though he had done nothing worth while and had figured suicide preferable to a useless existence before meeting his inspiration. Harrison Ford is a fit figure to represent the role of a bored clubman, whose friends have to arrange a strong "lesson" to make him take an interest in life and do his part. "The Mysterious Mrs. M." is a clairvoyant who tells Raymond he is going to die in three months, naming the exact day and hour, and, oh, how precious life becomes when he thinks it is going to be cut off just when he most wants to live.

Raymond Thinks of a Home That Might Be

Phyllis does not know why he tells her he "has no right" to kiss her, and he suffers additional agony from this cause, until the falseness of the prophecy is bared.

Story, production and acting are typical of Miss Weber, and as the whole subject matter is pleasing, we must say we like this play especially well. We believe audiences nowadays are requiring more and more the pleasant as well as the "strong" dramatic plays. This one is full of action and builds up to a climax. A play specially fitted for Sunday exhibition, of course.

"Envy"

(First of the "Seven Deadly Sins" Series—McClure-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"ENVY" is not a picture which those who strive for the artistic uplift of the motion picture may look upon with envious eyes. But it is a picture that should be very well received by the audience that desires and demands melodrama of the extreme helter-skelter type, which audience, we are told, typifies the average. The casual passer-by whose eye may be arrested by the hectic words "Seven Deadly Sins," and who confides to himself, "By golly, I'd like to see one of 'em," will by no means be disappointed in "Envy."

Like as not he will become a permanent patron of the theatre, eagerly seeking the other six of the series. For this first of the McClure "Sins" is well produced melodrama. The scenes can be termed typical, and the action is that, too, with its little country girl who envies the metropolitan actress with her whole heart.

Adam and Eve are the hero and heroine of "Envy." Incidentally they are to assume the same roles in the rest of the series. Adam, a gay young man, happens to know both Eve and Betty, the actress. Eve gets the Broadway fever. She dreams of taking Betty's curtain calls, but, naturally, she doesn't know that her idol has a weak heart and a brother who is a gangster and a suitor whom she doesn't care for at all. In time Eve and Betty meet. The actress is taken ill while traveling and takes refuge with her admirer.

Here comes Skinner, the admirer, and before long, being of villainous extraction, he fastens covetous eyes on little Eve. There is a climax of the smashing, fighting kind aboard a yacht, and after it's all cleared up Eve has learned of Betty's trials, and she is content to be a simple country lass and accept the love of Adam.

Richard Ridgely, who directed, has given an acceptable production. Mr. Ridgely seems to have a penchant for displaying feminine legs, or limbs rather, whenever occasion permits. To the detriment of some of his big scenes it is that the leading players have been allowed to overact considerably. Particularly does Ann Murdock, who has the role of Betty, rant about to an unnatural extent. Some audiences may excuse her lapses into exaggeration on the grounds that she plays the part of such a temperamental actress.

But Miss Murdock is otherwise extremely delightful. She presents a most pleasing appearance. She is cute, as you might say, and when she dons a peculiar style of bloomers and stretches out on a comfortable divan you don't blame either Adam or Skinner for their admiration. Rather do you envy the twain for being admitted to her presence. Shirley Mason is essaying the winsome, whippersnapperish role as Eve and succeeds well enough in it. George La Guere is of the type that compels sighs of "Isn't he sweet!" from the opposite sex and makes a good Adam. Lumsden Hare is Skinner and acts excellently. Others are Jessie Stevens, William Wadsworth and Robert Cain.

Betty Learns of Her Illness

Someone said "snappy stuff" after the trade show of "Envy," and while it may not be dignified to intrude a projecting room remark into a review, that handy little phrase just about sums up the five reels.

"Germany and Its Armies of Today"

(Germanic Official War Films, Inc.—Ten Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THESE pictures, several reels of which have already been shown at the Strand theatre, New York, as an extra feature, and the major part of which doubtless will be seen on Broadway, claim instant attention as "not war pictures, in the usual sense," again illustrating the turn of the public taste towards pictures which inspire as well as entertain without a hectic thrill.

The carnage of battle, and various scenes on the battle front, which if real are awful to look at and not in the strict sense entertaining, are more or less familiar to picture audiences, and there has been no great demand for such pictures. It may be predicted there will be a demand for the pictures we are now reviewing, if they are exploited as intimate studies of Germany and the German armies of today, for they present a subject in which all people are interested regardless of their sympathy for or against Germany. We will try to describe accurately what these pictures are, and let the exhibitor and state rights buyer judge for himself whether he can exploit them profitably. We think both of them can.

Emperor William Presents the Iron Cross

Close-ups of Emperor William, the Crown Prince of Bavaria, and German staff officers in their various military duties, reviewing of troops, presenting of honor medals, etc., form one division of this remarkable series.

Another group shows the city of Berlin as it is now, in the third year of the war, showing the Reichstag buildings, statues, parks, fountains, and even the improvements of public works being carried on as if no war existed, including close views of the colossal wooden statue of General Von Hindenberg into which patriotic citizens are seen hammering gold and silver nails, purchased to aid the war fund. Even a pro-ally audience will enjoy the beautiful sarcasm of the title, "Pitiful Victim of English Food Blockade," which accompanies a picture of a "cop" fatter than Broadway's finest in the old days of Tammany. There are scenes at the race track, where women, of course, predominate, yet a representative showing of men is made; scenes showing the people enjoying their park concerts, and views showing the Emperor's palace and the various activities of seemingly normal community life. Goose at ninety cents a pound is still obtainable in the markets, and the only contrast to these pictures are views of the women working on the railroad improvements, with pick and shovel, in the same class of work our hardiest day laborers do in America.

Another division of these pictures shows impressive ceremonies and military pageant attending the burial of Captain Boelke, famous aviator; the occupation of Lille, France, with its imposing state theatre, all that is left in the heart of the city, and the feeding of the citizen poor from the state commissary. Even the dogs have to be registered for their rations, according to German exactness. Hermanstadt, Austria, Red Tower Pass, and the first prisoners of the Roumanian engagements are next shown. Mohammedan prisoners, allowed to celebrate heir own peculiar religious festivals, with a mosque built for them by their enemy, and goats and sheep prepared for sacrifice, give a human touch quite unexpected.

What is happening behind the various lines, and on the battle fronts themselves, but not including any of the horrors of war, is vividly shown in another group of pictures. How the armies are provisioned, and wonderful shops only ten miles to the rear, where armament is repaired and restored to its original usefulness, form most interesting features of the series. And interspersed with all this human interest story are quiet scenes showing soldiers doing everything they ever did, including fishing in the most placid and beautiful pools, but always in military uniform.

In fact, the German insignia, the cap and the brass button or crest, is always to be noted, whether the German soldier is marching in goose-step parade or acting as commissary laborer or skilled mechanic. He never forgets he is first of all a member of the army, and this industrial army of military workers will be a lesson never to be forgotten by those who view these pictures.

Von Mackensen's drive through Drubusha, the fifteen-mile bridge, actual direction of troops on the battlefield, and other scenes on the war front itself complete these pictures of the German armies, which, however, as stated, are not "pictures of battles." No battle is shown in the entire series.

It should be stated these pictures are photographically perfect, and are all close, intimate views of subjects truly interesting, absorbingly educational to any one who enjoys being informed of the world's activities. It is evident the scenes were not posed in any instance. If a lesson is to be drawn, it is the selection of the subjects shown, and not the manner of showing, that gives any chance for a false conception of Germany at war. These pictures are stamped with "truth" all over them, and will not offend any fair-minded person, regardless of his sympathies. We believe American audiences everywhere will appreciate these pictures as enteratinment.

"A Modern Monte Cristo"

(Thanhouser-Pathe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

VINCENT SERRANO herewith makes his bow on the Pathe program in a picture written by Lloyd Lonergan and produced by Thanhouser. The plot is one of decided melodramatic qualities and makes a sure bid for popularity through the convincing performance of the star and a number of big sensational scenes. Mr. Serrano must find the life of a motion picture actor indeed strenuous. In "A Modern Monte Cristo" he is busy risking his good health from beginning to end. A dive off a high bridge, following his escape from the police, is not the least of his stunts. He runs to diving in the majority of his thrilling scenes. He takes another from a rickety old ship to rescue a little girl who has fallen overboard, and later descends into the water in a diving suit after pearls.

The Aeroplane Is Sighted

Mr. Lonergan's story has been in the main realistically produced by W. Eugene Moore. Perhaps the observer may be caught wondering when William Deane fails to recognize his old enemy when he appears on the scene under another name and bearing only whitened hair as a disguise, but such a lack of ability to recognize old associates is by no means an uncommon thing in a picture. The storm scenes are well enough done to suit the taste of the average picturegoer. Helen Badgley in the part of Virginia Deane at the age of six, creates a very sweet impression, due to her excellent performance and her surprising display of fearlessness.

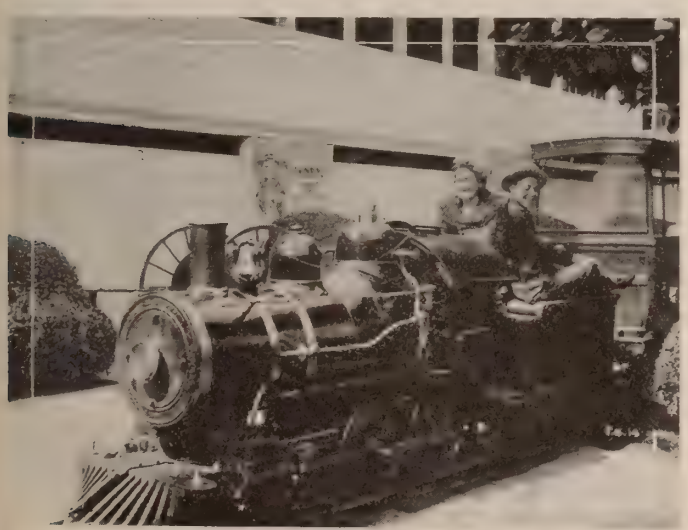
Doctor Emerson (Mr. Serrano) at a farewell bachelor dinner gives out the knowledge that he has been approached by a relative of a rich old lady on whom he operates on the morrow, to allow her to die. He doesn't intend to permit it, of course, but weakened by his night's debauch, he fails to do a good job, and the patient succumbs. His rival pulls the strings so that he is disgraced and arrested, but, desperate, the doctor escapes. Deane marries the girl, who dies afterwards, leaving him a baby daughter.

Many years later Dr. Emerson, bent on revenge, reappears to Deane and plans to strike him through his daughter, but, due to the sweet innocence of the girl, he limits his activities to Deane himself. He shanghaies him aboard one of his own rotten ships, and the last scene shows the two enemies far at sea, every minute in danger of going to the bottom.

Thomas Curran plays well in the heavy role of Deane, while others are Gladys Dore and Boyd Marshall.

"Tillie Wakes Up"



(Peerless-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

MARIE DRESSLER, down at Coney Island running the gamut of the Steeple Chase, is offered in "Tillie Wakes Up." Its best moments are very amusing. They come when Marie attempts the witching waves, to the great danger of her luncheon, when she eases her huge self down the polished incline into the deep bowl below and when she registers shocked surprise at the manner in which the air holes in the floor proceed to play havoc with her skirts. What would any show of Miss Dressler's be, minus her preposterous display of nether-nether-nether lands? The more that Tillie wakes up the more plentiful are these views of her understanding.

Through all these wild experiences she is accompanied by one Mr. Pipkins, a thoroughly comical character, taken by Johnny Hines, who gets sat on time and again by the none too lightweight Tillie, and who is still able to stand up at the end. Tillie and Mr. Pipkins are the henpecked breadwinners of their respective families, and one day while their better halves are out gadding they decide to gad about a bit themselves. And Coney Island is their destination. They reach it via a taxi, on their four feet and by means of an ice wagon. This last conveyance gives them a chill, and hot Scotch is the only thing that will take it away.

But though it takes the chill away the Scotch gives them something of a dizzy feeling and puts them in the hilarious humor always necessary to enjoy the concessions at Steeple Chase. They go to it with a vim and a disregard for their personal feelings that is no less marvelous than it is funny. The last three reels are in fact so slapstickedly good that one forgets the dragging of the first two. The subtitles are written for laughter's sake and they accomplish their end about every other time. Mark Swan is responsible for the idea and Frances Marion scenarioized it and Harry Davenport directed it. Frank Beamish, Ruby de Remer, Ruth Barrett and Jack Brown appear in the supporting cast.

Tillie and Mr. Pipkins Speed It Up

"The Glory of Yolanda"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

AS a vehicle for Anita Stewart, this play succeeds remarkably well. Yolanda appears as a peasant girl, dancing through the soft woods to the music of her beloved song-birds. In her care-free enthusiasm she appears charming in the extreme, and so thinks Duke Boris, who comes upon her as he is hunting with his fellow noblemen.

Duke Boris visits Yolanda and her mother in their humble cottage, and leaving a purse and directions, suggests that they come to Petrograd and he will see that Yolanda receives the proper training as a dancer in the royal ballet.

Innocently the mother and daughter come to the city, and are luxuriously clothed and quartered by the Duke. Not until Yo-landa's brother Serge arrives in Petrograd and accuses mother and sister of an improper relation to the Duke, does it occur to either that this luxury is not a legitimate part of a ballet girl's training.

Serge, Yolanda, and the Murdered Duke

With the arrival of Serge things begin to happen. The Duke's favors are still accepted, but Yolanda plans to repay the Duke when she shall have won fame. A young artist (Evart Overton) wins Yolanda's love, and at her grand debut the Duke is shocked to see his flowers scorned for the bouquet of the young artist. Matters now come to a head rapidly, with the meeting of the Duke and Serge, after the triumph of Yolanda' in Yolanda's rooms. The Duke makes advances and is killed by Serge. The artist, Alexander, has been sent to Siberia by the Duke, and the Duke's friend, Prince Drolinski (Denton Vane), consents to Yolanda's going into exile with him. The play ends with the Prince, who, too, is deeply in love with Yolanda, wishing he might take Alexander's place in exile with his heart's love.

This story is full of charm and pathos, and not over melodramatic where the theme would permit of much rougher handling. Miss Stewart will please in this immensely.

"A Girl Like That"

(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

IF your audiences like full five reels of action, with a direct plot which keeps on going without flashbacks and other doubtful aids to the story, they have it here. The only disappointment will be in the cutting off of a climax before the audience really gets the punch, and in a weak anti-climax "happily ever after" extra footage, which, however, does no serious damage.

The story of a girl brought up to crookedness, and daughter of a burglar and safeblower, who in ill health repents his ways and resolves to "go straight," but who is sick and in need of money is here told in a new way. The girl, with false letters to a small-town minister, enters the employ of the cashier of the local bank, in order that she may learn the combination to his safe and make "dead easy" a last little job which is to take care of her father.

When she discovers she has fallen in love with the innocent victim, and tries to escape from the dilemma, her "pals" come to urge her on and threaten to "blow" if she "double crosses" them. The audience is held in real suspense during these developments until her father, who refuses to be a party to holding his daughter to another crooked job, is murdered in cold blood because of this refusal. She learns of this murder through the newspapers, and instantly arranges a "frame-up" for vengeance and at the same time to protect her lover. She intends to leave town, so he will never know she is "a girl like that." But he loses no time in coming to the bank just in time to see the burglars caught red-handed, and to take Nell in his arms to a safer place. The chance for a big scene of dramatic pathos here is not used, but abruptly the story ends, and the scene shifts to a later proposal of marriage and some pretty wedding preparations.

The Budding Romance Discovered

As a whole this is a very good picture and will interest any audience. Owen Moore and Irene Fenwick in combination should draw. And the title is good.

"Threads of Fate"

(Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THERE is much that is trite in this offering, but as simple romantic drama with a better than average opportunity for the star, and a most unusual opportunity for a large supporting cast to register their feelings, it will be acceptable to all audiences.

It is the story of a deserted child, left on the doorstep, and fate decrees that at the crucial moment, the father and mother, and the man who caused the mother to leave the father, thus forcing his desertion of the child, shall meet and square accounts.

Through the greater part of two reels, the story rather drags, with the development of a little love plot between the girl (Viola Dana) and the young doctor (Richard Tucker). Dorothea's love for pets, and the doctor's setting of traps to catch animals for vivisection, furnish the means of these two meeting. Dorothea is caught in a trap, and later her pet puppy needs medical treatment, and there you are. Too easy, really.

The plot, however, begins to assume real interest with the third reel and the inability of Jim Gregory, The Wanderer (Robert Whittier), to forget the breaking up of his home, and his desertion of the child after its mother had left the happy home. Dorothea's foster parents are left a fortune, and the result is social ambitions, and incidentally the ownership and control of the Wentworth coal mine, with threatening labor troubles. This furnishes the means for the "threads of fate" to bring the various principals together for the final climax.

Posing as a Marquis, the villain seeks to influence labor troubles in the mine. Sarah Wentworth (Helen Strickland), the foster mother, seeks to compass a marriage between Dorothea and the Marquis. Dorothy refusing such an offer so enrages the foster mother that in a fit of rage she is told of her real origin, and Jim Gregory, her real father, by the same threads of fate has returned and overhears this accusation. He discovers Marcella, the girl's mother, to be the Marquis's mistress, and the result is the forcing of the giving up of plans to kidnap Dorothea, and all ends happily. As will be seen from the above outline the plot is consecutive, and fairly strong, but not of exceptional merit. Miss Dana's handling of her role, and in fact every role assumed in the play, is better than excellent. There was a lack of clearness in the telling of the story, but not to a serious extent.

"Lost and Won"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS is the story of "Cinders," a little news girl who finds the "Daddy Long Legs" she has been reading about—for Cinders is a great lover of books—in the wealthy Walter Crane, who has made a bet with a bank director, Kirkland Gaige, and four other club friends, that he can make over a little news girl he knows into a lady so attractive every one of this group of pronounced woman-haters will "fall for her on sight."

This clever story by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, in the hands of James Young as director and with Marie Doro, Elliott Dexter, and a cast of Lasky favorites, is worked out with directness of action and enough novel incidents, which do not detract from the dramatic attention to the story, to mark it considerably above average.

Stealing twenty thousand dollars from the bank and accusing Crane, who has in the meantime lost all his money and is now a teller; carrying on a flirtation with a typical vampire (Maym Kelso) and causing "Cinders" to leave the home of her "Daddy Long Legs" because he tells her "in confidence" Crane cannot afford the expense of her upkeep are a few of the things the "villain" does, to give interest to the story. "Cinders" comes to the rescue, with such novel tricks as picking up the pieces of a destroyed record with chewing gum on the end of her umbrella and using Crane's telephone as a "dictaphone" to trap him into a confession.

An Attractive Newsie

This play has thrills, punch, and heart interest, in large portions and will do much to strengthen the Lasky score. Miss Doro's expressive dark eyes get in some big touches at opportune moments. We know audiences will like this picture.

"Love Aflame"

(Red Feather-Universal—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS Raymond Wells's second comedy of recent date featuring Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall, and to our mind it is an excellent show, quite suitable for the best of houses. It is clean and wholesome and every scene is done in such a spontaneous, unaffected manner that the humor comes out unusually strong. Mr. Wells's story has some comical characters that persist in doing funny things, and he has besides introduced some fine production effects. The storm at sea is a crackerjack, and the erupting volcano is decidedly realistic.

The plot concerns a bet made by Jack that he will be able to work, steal or beg his way from Kansas to Constantinople by "the sixth" without the assistance of a woman. At the same time Betty sets out, clad as a boy, and bound nowhere in particular except to some point a great distance from Reginald who seeks her hand. Betty just happens in with Jack and the two of them stick together, safely evading Reginald until Constantinople is reached. There Jack discovers that Betty is a girl, and he loses his bet but wins a wife.

Ordered to Be Fed Up for Home Consumption

Naturally the humor doesn't lie in the plot, although the very idea itself offers numerous possibilities. Reginald's pursuit of the elusive Betty contains quite a bit of humor. Reginald of course was never made for rough work. He lands finally on a cannibal island and just as he lands Jack and Betty leave. Reginald is made king and rests content with a harem of a score or more. The adventures of the two runaways on the island afford much amusement. They are told they may roam about at will, and deciding to do so they encounter savages, wild elephants and tigers and are frightened to such an extent that they seek a haven in the cannibal jail.

A supporting cast in which Noble Johnson, Raymond Whitaker and Dana Ong appear does pleasing work. The photography of R. E. Irish's is as good as ever it has been.

"The Primitive Call"

(Fox Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. GOULD

FIVE reels of good photography, picturesque outdoor and perfectly arranged indoor scenes, and hard work by the principals in this picture offset the barrier of a conventional story, uninterestedly directed.

Based on the "white blood and red" theme in a modern setting with Fritz Leiber as Brain Elkhorn, educated son of an Indian chief, and Gladys Coburn as the butterfly daughter of a capitalist covenous of an Indian tribe's land, the story works itself out in stereotyped fashion.

With her hothouse raised brother, Percy, Betty, to prove to her father she is more than a butterfly, undertakes to captivate Elkhorn, who has protected his tribe from the grasping efforts of Malcolm to obtain land at a tithe of its worth. Eventually she wins the Indian, and presents a deed of sale to him for signature the moment he proposes. Then she repulses him, and on confessing his treachery to his people Elkhorn is cast out. Previous to this Percy left the scene for good upon "persuasion" of Elkhorn, who found him making advances to the wife of Bart Jennings, Malcolm's agent.

The Indians seek vengeance and take Jennings' blind child captive. After a conference with the whites, the child is returned for a worthless piece of paper which the Indians take for the sale deed of their land.

Elkhorn in the meantime abducts Betty and takes her to a forest retreat. The primitive failing to rub the worthless veneer of her previous useless years off, he finally tells her to return to her people. She starts, but a change of heart sends her back to Elkhorn's camp only to find a girl of his own race offering to devote her life to him. Betty sorrowfully leaves, apparently to return to her own life with a clearer vision but an empty heart.

Fritz Leiber fills his aborigine part ideally, and Miss Coburn gets the most from her opportunities. The remainder of the principals, John Webb Dillon, George Alan Larkin, Lewis Sealy, Velma Whitman and Kittens Reichert, who takes the difficult part of a blind girl, all do effective work. The picture was written and produced by Bertram Bracken.

"The Primitive Call" will never be a talked of production, though it will prove acceptable to many exhibitors.

"Chicken Casey"

(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A COMEDY-DRAMA is "Chicken Casey," which manages to get a number of laughs during its unwinding. That the central male character, an author, should be possessed of so little imagination is perhaps not quite within the bounds of probability, and the fact that he is so easily taken in by a masquerading actress doesn't do his perspicacity any credit, but aside from these defects the story, benefited by a good production, is adequate. A reel of anti-climax might have been clipped, but then there would be no "five reels" so essential, it seems, to all features.

The author in question doesn't believe that a certain actress starring in a costume drama will be able to portray the leading character, a girl of the slums, in his new piece. She thinks otherwise, and so does a dramatic critic and her manager, and so one evening the guileless author is led to a Bowery café and introduced to Chicken Casey, a tough maiden, the victim of circumstance, supposedly. You know that Chicken Casey is none other than the actress, but the author must have been near-sighted or something. Through all the evening and a greater part of the night the actress proves her ability to play the tough part and so impresses the author that he is on the point of signing her up when she reveals herself to him in her true colors—and clothes. She is a success in the part of course, and the last scene shows the twain in the usual embrace.

Playwright and Player at 4 o'Clock (A.M.) Tea

Dorothy Dalton is quite successful in displaying her versatility in the role of the actress. That she is always Dorothy Dalton seems to react in her favor this time. Charles Gunn as the author and Howard Hickman as the critic are the other principals. J. G. Hawks wrote the scenario.

"Pearl of the Army"

(Pathe—Ninth Episode)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

PEARL and Adams, held prisoners aboard a ship under control of the Silent Menace, manage to effect an escape after numerous hazardous attempts. Pearl learns that the Silent Menace is to confer with some munition manufacturers in the evening, and hides in a chest containing bombs, which is to be shipped to the meeting place. She gives Adams a note to her father, telling him of the plan and summoning aid.

When the box is opened Pearl stands up, holding one of the bombs in her hand. She threatens to blow them all to pieces if they move an inch. Colonel Dare is long in coming. For some reason Adams never delivered the note. He seems to have lapsed again into ways not at all after the fashion of the hero. The Silent Menace is desperate and, taking the only chance, fires at Pearl. The bullet grazes her arm and she drops the bomb, blowing up the whole building and killing every one but the Menace and herself.

The Rescue

"Glory"

(M. L. B.-Unity—Seven Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"GLORY" is a picture loaded down with Dutch humor and subtitles that make you laugh at their sheer ludicrousness much in the manner as you laugh at the jokes in the college magazines. You can't take it seriously either as a comedy or a drama, because you feel all the time that the producer is "kidding" you. It is not a bad feeling at that.

The tedium of the cut-and-dried picture is put to rout with "Glory," and for seven reels, which is only slightly too long, you can snicker and sneeze at such jokes as: "Would you like a room with a bath?" "Yes." "Well, we haven't got any." "Who are the trustees of this town?" "I'm the trustees," and so forth and so on. Much is even made of the old gag of the small townsfolk gathered to adopt a baby. Suggested names are scrawled on the blackboard. They are all of the masculine gender. Then some one makes a discovery and all the names are erased, and Mary, Rosie and Clementina are substituted. It is rather a broad trick but still useful.

The team of Kolb and Dill are featured. Their tricks suggest the old music hall stuff that appeals to the great majority of audiences. No one can help but smile when the two old duffers, after years of toil, suddenly become rich and establish themselves in offices that would put the private suite of the King of Siam to shame. Age is not in their lexicon. Peter Pan would never grow up, but Kolb and Dill, as Louie and Mike, never grow any older than fifty odd years or so. They have plenty of opportunities, too, as the story chooses to skip large numbers of years at various odd intervals. But when you settle down to be amused à la "Glory," you don't worry over little inconsistencies like age and the fact that the characters only recognize one another at the will of the author.

To tell the story in detail would be a task for a serial writer. The action includes everything from oil-well scenes to a bit in front of an Indian cliff village and there are many stops between. Louie and Mike are the main fellows in the town of Glory where oil has been discovered. The Consolidated Oil Company, which is by the way a title of great realism, acquires control of the wells through underhand methods.

One of their band betrays a girl of the town. The baby is adopted as Glory Glory, from the town of Glory, and reared by Louie and Mike, with the assistance of a few dozen others. In time she comes to love the son of the president of the oil company, and he asks his father to give Glory and the Glory people a square deal. He refuses, but, of course, he is brought around to a decent way of thinking later on. The last reel is inclined to lapse from the ludicrous to the utterly ridiculous, but a little cutting would put everything aright as far as that goes.

Glory is played by Juanita Hansen, and others are May Cloy, Wellington Playter, Alan Forest, William Lampe and Doris

The Final Reunion

Baker. If your audience wants the inevitable "something different" and is asking for obvious comedy, give them "Glory." It might not get anywhere beyond the balcony in a twenty-five-fifty house, but then there are other houses and many of them.

"Her Condoned Sin"

(Biograph—Six Parts)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"HER Condoned Sin" is none other than "Judith of Bethulia" invested in new prints, new subtitles and a new length. "Judith" was D. W. Griffith's first work of importance; many of his later-day productions contain its material, its situations. The fact that it holds its own with the best of today's releases and gloriously surpasses the vast majority of them is a tribute to its maker. The massing of the crowds, the intimate touches brought in as subsidiary to the main theme, the battle pictures and the clear piecing together of the story are little less than wonderful and might serve as patterns for the producers of the present time, as indeed they are still serving their own producer.

The story of "Her Condoned Sin," so embellished with all the art at the command of the director, stands as another reason for the picture's long life. The plight of Judith when she determines to save the thirst-starving inhabitants of Bethulia by giving herself up to the leader of the enemy, Holofernes, is one of great dramatic power. She goes to the camp of Holofernes and he, being human, is immediately struck by her beauty. For a time Judith wavers in her purpose, for Holofernes has won her love. Here the struggle between love and duty enters, and finally duty triumphs. She kills Holofernes and takes his head back to her people. The armies of the enemy are helpless without their leader, and so it is an easy matter for them to win the final battle.

The production from the staging to the photography is superb. The fight for water by the soldiers of Bethulia waged around the well outside the walls of the city against the invaders, is terrific in its realism. So are all the fights for that matter. Griffith was never more realistic. Holofernes was an old roue and so he had to be amused by dancing. A score of maidens do the amusing and the dancing, clad in beads and a few other things. The photography is wonderful. It seems to give the scenes a certain depth that makes them stand out with unusual clarity. In some of the full scenes a painter might find inspiration for a masterpiece.

The Attack

When you consider the advertising possibilities of "Her Condoned Sin," the cast deserves the attention immediately after the producer. There is Blanche Sweet as Judith, Henry Walthall as Holofernes, Mae Marsh as Naomi, Robert Harron as Nathan, Lillian and Dorothy Gish as incidental characters, and Gertrude Bambrick as the leader of the dancers. Six of them are stars today, the combined popularity of three of them can be figured only on an adding machine and not on a typewriter. Miss Sweet has the stellar honors and does some of the best acting of her career.

"The Girl of the Timberclaims"

(Triangle-Fine Arts—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

A PICTURE of average interest is "The Girl of the Timberclaims," which has for its setting the forest lands of the west. There are homesteaders and claim-jumpers sent out by a crooked corporation to steal the land held by the former and from this clash does the picture gain its story. Jess, one of the claim owners, fiercely resents the coming of the jumpers and leads the people of her township in a fight against them. A government inspector, disguised as one of the jumpers, settles on Jess's claim. She shoots him and then is obliged to care for him. When he gets well he brings justice to the township and he and Jess fall in each other's arms for the final scene.

The scenes of this are quite in keeping with the character of the story. There is nothing lavish and most of them are exteriors—very pretty forest scenes. The photography is good. The story itself seems to suffer somewhat from the lack of any decisive moments. It drifts slowly along to a happy conclusion but never succeeds in changing mere interest into dramatic thrills.

Constance Talmadge is seen as Jess and makes a pretty lead. In regard to acting she has quite a bit to learn. Her expressions are not many and her personality is not as fetching here as it was in "Intolerance." A. D. Sears is the government officer, and a large cast, including Clyde Hopkins, Beau Byrd, Wilbur Higby, Joseph Singleton, F. A. Turner and Mrs. Talmadge gives support. Mary H. O'Connor is the author and Paul Powell the director.

Scenarios Wanted

One reel comedy scenarios

for Kate Price and Billy Ruge, as Plump and Runt;
and Burns and Stull as Pokes and Jabs.

One reel scenarios for dramas featuring a female lead

AMBER STAR FILMS CORPORATION

Jacksonville :: :: :: Florida

TABLOID REVIEWS FOR BUSY EXHIBITORS

Mutual Program

"Shorty and the Yellow Ring." (Monogram. Two reels.)—Losing a job unearthing a smuggling plot whereby Chinese are brought into the country, and acting as escort and rescuer for a charming woman secret service operative, tend to keep Shorty Hamilton fairly busy and prominent in this light comedy. Fistic action causes him to leave ranch life behind, but a second physical demonstration wins him a position to keep his prospective self close to the woman investigator. Imprisonment of the girl in a Chinatown den at the instigation of ringleaders of the "Yellow Ring" coupled with the fact that he had previously seen the workings and recognized the leader of the gang, provides opportunity for Shorty to prove a hero. The result is a big melee in the Chinatown prison, rescue of the girl and imprisonment of the "Ring." One of a "Shorty" series, this picture is on the whole one of rapid-fire action and is interesting.

Reel Life, No. 38. (Gaumont.)—Several varied and interesting topics, notably scenes in California's orange groves, go to make up an entertaining reel. The picking, hauling and packing of the fruit for a world market is shown. Chemical experiments illustrating the composition of air, and the properties of liquid air, and picturization of a newly patented automatic apple grader compose the educational portion of the reel. The workings of the Hydro-ski, a device making it possible for a person to walk on water is also depicted.

"The Honeymooners." (Star.)—A one-reel comedy with the title explaining the action. A game of "follow the leader" results from three love-sick couples witnessing the joys of an engaged pair, and their marriage. Secretly, all follow suit, and of course the secret soon is disclosed all around. Much "mushing" fills the majority of scenes, and aside from one or two isolated instances the subject falls short of comedy standards.

"A Jack Tar in the Making." Third of "Uncle Sam's Defenders." (Mutual.)—Constructive training of our sailor boys is shown. Marching scenes at the training station and instruction in wireless operating and wig-wagging are among the training stunts shown. Drills of Annapolis middies close the reel, which is on a par with former releases of the series.

"Tailors' Trimmings." (Vogue. Two reels).—One of Rube Miller's rapid action comedies. Mishaps following the flirtatious doings of a tailor away from his wife's eyes, similar designs on fair customers of the shop by two seedy gentlemen, of whom Rube Miller is one, after they take possession of the establishment without a by-your-leave, and pranks by these two upon commandeering a trolley car, all makes for swift movement in the film. Running through the slap stick action as a plot skein is the continual stealing of a purse which eventually finds its way back to the original owner. The subject is one which will take with the ordinary audience, although the comedian has been seen in better.

"Tours Around the World," No. 11. (Mutual.)—From Gibraltar to Algeciras on a tourist boat seems like real traveling. The straits dividing Spain and Africa, with the African coast in the distance, is vividly shown. Life in Tunis, North Africa, is demonstrated. Old and young are employed picking olives. Natives are seen smoking kif, a stupifying drug. Veiled women are everywhere in evidence. The mosque of the poor is a dreary looking place where the very poor lie around waiting for chance pennies from passers-by. The most beautiful park in France, the Bois de Boulogne, with its pretty walks, drives, lakes, cascades, and its many fine entrances, including the well-known Arch of Triumph, is shown on this trip.

"Our Boys at the Border," No. 2. (Mutual.)—Troops are seen entraining for Mexico and their arrival at Columbus, Texas, the scene of the Villa massacre. There are good views of Fort Bliss and the soldiers entering the Sierra Mountains. A wireless telegraph station is erected on the field. A machine gun which fires 640 shots a minute is demonstrated. Six-inch howitzers are shown in operation. Range finding with the latest device for that purpose is seen. The use of the craters made by shell explosions are shown to be useful for shelter.

"Mutual Weekly, No. 106." (Gaumont.)—Tobogganing at Franklin, Mass., is seen, where the children can go up the hill as well as down on their sleds. Society opens the new ice-palace at the Waldorf. This is fitted up to look just like a lake in a park; there are trees and park benches which make it look very realistic. "The Mardi Gras of the North" was held on New Year's at Philadelphia, Pa., and the parade of mummers and other quaintly costumed figures seemed to make an ideal holiday entertainment for the spectators as well as the participants. High cost of coal drives the people of Terre Haute to buy its own coal mine. The mine is shown in operation. Fumigation causes a big fire in Texas. General Sarrail arrives at Athens, Greece. Fifteen aviators fly from Hempstead Plains to Philadelphia. New United States destroyer breaks the speed record at Rockland, Me. Mr. Lawson, of frenzied finance fame, goes to Washington. Army corps shown working in their shops at London, England. French soldiers are seen building their workshops near Marseilles, France. The ceremony of blessing an ambulance is shown at Paris, France. The world's greatest aero-motor is shown at Springfield, Mass. A two-horse power arrangement is seen in contrast. The oldest bell arrives at Oakland, Cal. An old New York church is seen burning. The largest traction motor is shown at Presidio, Tex.

Metro

"Married But Single." (Metro-Rolma. Jan. 29.)—Mildly amusing, this comedy rather thinly gets its action from the unreasonable behavior of a newly wed wife, who repudiates her husband before they have reached the first station on the honeymoon trip. All because he gets into a fight with a man across the aisle who is over inquisitively obnoxious. She goes to a hotel, refuses to register as "wife," seeks the protection of the hotel proprietor against various intrusions of her husband, and finally when the hotel men start to abuse the man at her instance, relents and turns on them. What fun there is is mostly the running from room to room and in and out over the fire escape of this queerly behaving couple.

Universal Program

"A Macaroni Sleuth." (Nestor. Mon., Jan. 22.)—Lee Moran as a mysterious Italian and Eddie Lyons as a country bumpkin of a detective supply all the fun necessary for a one-reel comedy in "A Macaroni Sleuth." It is right up to Nestor standard, a good number of gags and much action. Edith Roberts is the girl. Bess Meredyth did the scenario.

"Souls United." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Tues., Jan. 23.)—The romance of an English physician and a wild girl reared in Africa is dwelt on in these three reels. It makes a fair release and manages to awaken the interest through several very conventional situations. The locations are not very African in appearance. Violet Mersereau is the biggest asset of the picture. Harry Benham and Fred Hearn are in support.

"The Honeymoon Surprise." (Victor. Tues., Jan. 23.)—Two young people are obliged to marry for convenience and not wanting to see each other they marry through a screen. Later on at a party they meet and fall in love and that's the comedy of it. Captain Peacocke did this one and his turned out a fine lot of laughs. Eileen Sedgwick, Fred Church and Charles Perley are the leads.

"The Battle of Let's Go." (L.Ko. Two reels. Wed., Jan. 24.)—A most amusing picture is this burlesque of our border trouble with the Mexicans. The border patrolman furnishes a great bit of laughter. The first reel is corking, but the second, with its battle, is just a little too long. However, the whole thing is so amusing that the ultimate effect is one of complete enjoyment. Dan Russell and Vin Moore are the leads.

"The Fugitive." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., Jan. 26.)—A man hiding from the law recalls the incidents which led him to murder a man who persisted in forcing his attentions on his wife. Subsequently he makes his escape, due, in a considerable degree, to the assistance offered by a dog. His wife joins him and they go away. Only a fair offering, the brightest bits of which come while the dog holds the centre of the stage. Roy Stewart, Harry Carter and Louise Lovely are the leads.

"Hell by the Enemy." (Victor. Fri., Jan. 26.)—Pat Rooney dreams about going to Mexico and capturing Vanilla after a number of experiences. An alleged comedy, but containing not one whit of humor nor presenting any really laughable situation.

"The Daring Chance." (Bison, Sat., Jan. 27.)—William V. Mong, Mina Cunard and Harry Griffith do excellent work in this strong picture of Western life. The hero is a traveling barber, who in a gambling game wins from the girl's father, first some of the money which had come from a recent stage holdup, and then the girl herself. Accused of being the robber, it looks as if he was destined to swing, but the girl has seen the money chest, and really in love with the man who has won her as a "high stake," saves his life. The father is let off on the ground of the promise of his son-in-law to return the money to its rightful owners, and a happy ending results. Good entertaining plot, and fine Western picture, with good riding scenes for which Universal is famous.

"Love Me, Love My Biscuits." (Joker. Sat., Jan. 27.)—Conceived by Carl Coolidge, this is a laugh-getter from start to finish. Gale Henry has the eccentric maiden lady role and misses no opportunity to win a giggle. Marital entanglements which involve the most respectable members of the community, are so much more thoroughly entangled with the aid of a matrimonial agency to which the maiden lady applies in her search of a husband, as to carry the reel along to a riotous conclusion. There is lots of fun all along as well.

"The Purple Mask." (Universal Special. Fifth Episode. Two reels. Week of Jan. 22.)—Patsy continues to thwart the efforts of Kelly, the detective, to apprehend her in this episode of the serial entitled "The Demon of the Sky." With the opening scene Kelly is about losing his grip on a ledge and is in danger of falling into a pool full of crocodiles, but Patsy rescues him. Later the lady Raffles succeeds in stealing a ruby which Kelly was sent specially to guard. The usual fierce fighting and acrobatics so plentiful in all Ford-Cunard pictures are dispersed throughout this number.

"The Purple Mask." (Universal Special. Sixth Episode. Two reels. Week of Jan. 29.)—The mysteries of the mythical kingdom are invaded in this number called "The Silent Feud." Kelly is on the job guarding some precious jewels belonging to a wicked old king, while Patsy, fighting on the side of the people, works to steal the jewels, cash them in, and distribute the money thus received to the poor. She succeeds in her mission and Kelly again has the wool pulled over his eyes, but in the final scene she is trapped by the detective.

Pathe Exchange

"Luke's Trolley Trouble." (Rolin. Week of Feb. 4.)—Luke as conductor of a jerk-water trolley car and Snubs as motorman, with all other members of the Rolin organization as passengers, hand out a good bit of comedy in this reel. Each passenger that boards the car is subject to ill treatment at the hands of Luke. A son of Israel boards the affair with 'steen kids and tries to get by on a jitney and a general row is then started. One of the pastimes in which the motorman indulges is chasing an automobile. On the whole a very good one.

"A Tankless Job." (International Cartoon. Split reel. Week of Feb. 4.)—This is one of the "Jerry on the Job" series of cartoons that runs in the Hearst papers. Jerry is a telegraph operator at the front and in company with an officer has some funny experiences in a tank car which chasing a bear. The animation is quite good and some of the figures very funny. On the same reel with "Glacier National Park."

"Glacier National Park." (Split reel. Week of Feb. 4.)—This goes with "A Thankless Job" and displays some interesting scenes of trout fishing in the rapids of one of the big rivers of the park.

"An Algerian Harem." (Split reel. Week of Feb. 4.)—Showing some alleged beauties of a harem in this African country. The beauties don't measure well alongside of some of our own, but the views are interesting and in fairly good color. A "Florence Rose Fashion" release divides the reel.

FEATURES—CURRENT AND COMING

Art Dramas, Inc.

Dec.—21. Lash of Destiny (Gertrude McCoy) 5
Dec.—28. Whoso Taketh a Wife (Jean Sothern) 5
Jan.— 4. The Rainbow (Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill) 5

Artcraft Pictures

Nov.— 6. Less Than the Dust (Mary Pickford) 5
Jan.— 8. The Pride of the Clan (Mary Pickford.)

Bluebird Photoplays

Jan.— 1. Black Orchids (Cleo Madison) 5
Jan.— 8. The Piper's Price (Dorothy Phillips) 5
Jan.—15. Her Soul's Inspiration (Ella Hall) 5
Jan. 22. God's Crucible (George Hermandez, Myrtle Gonzales and Val Paul) 5
Jan.—29. The Devil's Pay Day (Franklin Farnum) 5
Feb.— 5. The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford and Mary MacLaren) 5
Feb.—12. The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Nowell and Betty Shade) 5
Feb.—19. The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum and Agnes Vernon) 5
Feb.—26. The Saintly Sinner (Ruth Stonehouse) 5
Mar. 5. The Boy Girl (Violet Mersereau) 5

Fox Film Corporation

Jan.— 1. The Island of Desire (George Walsh) 5
Jan.— 8. The Price of Silence (William Farnum) 5
Jan.— 8. A Modern Cinderella (June Caprice) 5
Jan.—15. Bitter Truth (Virginia Pearson) 5
Jan.—22. The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara) 5
Jan.—22. The Primitive Call (Gladys Coburn) 5
Jan.—29. One Touch of Sin (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb.— 5. The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt) 5
Feb.—12. North of 53 (Dustin Farnum) 5
Feb. 12. The Scarlet Letter (Stuart Holmes) 5
Feb. 19. Title not announced (June Caprice) 5
Feb. 19. The Tiger Woman (Theda Bara) 5
Feb. 26. Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson) 5

International Film Service

Through Pathe Exchange, Inc.,

Ivan Feature Productions

Dec. 1. The Sex Lure (The Girl Who Did Not Care—Title in Greater New York) 6
Jan. —Enlighten Thy Daughter (Frank Sheridan, Katherine Kaelred, James Morrison and Marie Shotwell) 5

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Jan. 1. The Last Sentence (Marc McDermott and Miriam Nesbitt), Edison 5
Jan. 8. The Master Passion (Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness) Edison. 5
Jan. 15. Little Shoes (Henry B. Walthall and Mary Charleson), Essanay 5
Jan. 22. Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed), Selig 5
Feb. 5. Skinner's Dress Suit 5
Feb. 12. The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton, George Fawcett and Frank Campesu), Selig 5
Feb. 19. The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore), Edison 5
Mar. 5. The Trufflers (Nell Craig), Essanay 5

McClure Pictures*

Jan. 29. Seven Deadly Sins, "Envy" (Ann Murdock, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 5. Seven Deadly Sins, "Pride" (Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 12. Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guerre) 5
Feb. 19. Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 26. Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
*Released through Triangle Exchanges.

Metro Pictures Corporation

Jan. 1. Pidgin Island (Harold Lockwood and May Allison), Yorke 5
Jan. 8. A Wife by Proxy (Mabel Taliaferro), Columbia 5
Jan. 15. The White Raven (Ethel Barrymore), Rolfe 5
Jan. 22. The Threads of Fate (Viola Dana), Columbia 5
Jan. 29. Bridges Burned (Madame Petrova), Popular Plays and Players 5
Feb. 5. The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore), Columbia 5
Feb. 12. One of Many (Frances Nelson), Arthur James 5
Feb. 19. The Promise (Harold Lockwood and May Allison), Yorke 5
Feb. 20. The Secret of Eve (Mme. Petrova), Columbia 5
Mar. 5. The Belle of the Season (Emmy Wehlen), Rolfe 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Jan. 1. A Gilded Youth (Richard Bennett), American 5
Jan. 8. The Butterfly Girl (Margarita Fischer), Fischer 5
Jan. 15. Beloved Rogues (Kolb and Dill), American 5
Jan. 22. The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter), American 5
Jan. 29. Pardners (Charlotte Walker) 5
Feb. 5. Where Love Is (Ann Murdock), Mutual 5

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Dec. 28. The Redeeming Love (Kathlyn Williams and Thomas Holding), Morosco 5
Jan. 1. The Slave Market (Pauline Frederick), Famous Players 5
Jan. 4. The Evil Eye (Blanche Sweet), Lasky 5
Jan. 8. Great Expectations (Louise Huff and Jack Pickford), Famous Players 5
Jan. 11. The Happiness of Three Women (Myrtle Stedman and House Peters), Morosco 5
Jan. 15. Betty to the Rescue (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5
Jan. 18. A Girl Like That (Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore), Famous Players 5
Jan. 22. Lost and Won (Marie Doro), Lasky 5
Jan. 25. The Golden Fetter (Anita King and Wallace Reid), Lasky 5
Jan. 29. His Sweetheart (George Beban), Morosco 5
Feb. 1. The Wax Model (Vivian Martin), Pallas 5
Feb. 5. Each To His Kind (Sessue Hayakawa), Lasky 5
Feb. 8. Her Own People (Lenore Ulrich), Pallas 5
Feb. 12. The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen), Lasky 5
Feb. 15. The American Consul (Theodore Roberts), Lasky 5
Feb. 19. The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark), Famous Players 5
Feb. 22. On Record (Mae Murray), Lasky 5
Feb. 26. Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS

Dec. 31. Joy and the Dragon (Baby Marie Osborne and Henry King), Balboa 5
Jan. 7. Her New York (Gladys Hulette, William Parke, Jr., and Robert Vaughn), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 14. Kick In (William Courtney, Mollie King, Robert Clugston and Suzanne Willa), Astra 5
Jan. 21. The Image Maker (Valkyrien), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 28. Twin Kiddies (Baby Marie Osborne, Henry King, Daniel Gilfether, R. Henry Gray and Loretta Beecker), Balboa 5
Feb. 4. A Modern Monte Cristo (Vincent Serrano, Thomas A. Curran, Helen Badgley and Boyd Marshall), Thanhouser 5
Feb. 11. Sold at Auction (Wm. Conklin, Lois Meredith, Marguerite Nicholas and Frank Mayo), Balboa 5
Coming—When My Ship Comes In (Jane Grey), International 5

Red Feather Productions

Dec. 25. A Child of Mystery (Hobert Henley and Gertrude Selby) 5
Jan. 1. Polly Put the Kettle On 5
Jan. 8. Fighting for Love (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5
Jan. 15. The Double Room Mystery (Hayward Mack and Ed. Hearn) 5
Jan. 22. Heart Strings (Allen Holubar and Maude George) 5
Jan. 29. Love Aflame (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5
Feb. 5. The Scarlet Crystal (Herbert Rawlinson, Betty Schade and Dorothy Davenport) 5

Selznick Pictures

Oct. 15. The Common Law (Clara Kimball Young) 6
Dec. 1. War Brides (Mme. Nazimova), Herbert Brenon, Prod. 8
Dec. 18. The Foolish Virgin (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. —. The Argyle Case (Robert Warwick) 5
Jan. —. The Eternal Sin (Florence Reed and William E. Shay), Herbert Brenon Prod. 5
Jan. —. Panthea (Norma Talmadge) 5

Triangle Film Corporation

Dec. 31. The House Built Upon Sand (L. Gish), Fine Arts 5
Dec. 31. The Female of the Species (Dalton-Markey-Hickman), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 7. Truthful Tulliver (W. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 7. The Weaker Sex (Dalton-Chas. Ray-Glaum), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 14. The Little Yank (G. Gish), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 14. The Bride of Hate (Keenan-Margery Wilson), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 21. Nina, the Flower Girl (Love), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 21. The Iced Bullet (Wm. Desmond), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 28. The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 28. Chicken Casey (Dalton), Kay Bee. 5
Feb. 4. Jim Bludso (Lucas), Fine Arts 5
Feb. 4. The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 11. The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge), Fine Arts. 5
Feb. 11. The Gun Fighter (Wm. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 18. The Village Prodigal (Robert Harron), Fine Arts 5
Feb. 18. A Princess of the Dark (Enid Bennett), Ince-Kay Bee 5

Unity Sales Corporation

Dec. 1. Land Just Over Yonder 6
Dec. 15. Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
Jan. 15. Glory 7

Vitagraph—V-L-S-E

Jan. 1. Indiscretion (Lillian Walker) 5
Jan. 8. The Man of Mystery (E. H. Sothern) 5
Jan. 15. Blind Justice (Benj. Christie) 7
Jan. 22. Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland). 5
Jan. 29. The Glory of Yolanda (Anita Stewart) 5
Feb. 5. Money Magic (Edith Storey, Wm. Duncan and Antonio Moreno) 5
Feb. 12. The Courage of Silence (Alice Joyce and Harry Morey) 5
Feb. 19. Kitty Mackay (Lilian Walker) 5
Feb. 26. Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams) 5
Mar. 5. Intrigue (Peggy Hyland, Marc McDermott and Bobby Connelly) 5

World Pictures

Dec. 25. The World Against Him (E. K. Lincoln and June Elvidge) 5
Jan. 1. A Woman Alone (Alice Brady) 5
Jan. 8. On Dangerous Ground (Gail Kane and Carlyle Blackwell) 5
Jan. 15. The Man Who Forgot (Robert Warwick, Gerda Holmes and Doris Kenyon) 5
Jan. 22. The Bondage of Fear (Ethel Clayton) 5
Jan. 29. Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler and Johnny Hines) 5
Feb. 5. A Hungry Heart (Alice Brady) 5
Feb. 12. The Red Woman (Gail Kane) 5
Feb. 19. A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Henry Hull and Muriel Ostriche) 5
Feb. 26. A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick and Doris Kenyon) 5

SHORT SUBJECTS CURRENT AND COMING

Foxfilm Comedies

1— 1. Social Pirates (Charles Arling).. 2 reels
1— 8. Chased Into Love (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips)..... 2 reels
1—15. Noah's Ark (Hark Mann)..... 2 reels
1—22. Her Father's Station (Anna Luther) ..... 2 reels
1—29. There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips)... 2 reels

General Film Company

Monday, January 29, 1917
SELIG—Lost and Found (George Fawcett and Vivian Reed), 2 D.....21678-79
VITAGRAPH—The Battle Hymn of the Republic (Ralph Ince, Mary Maurice and Julia Swayne Gordon), 1 D..... 21680
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 9, 1 Top..... 21681
Tuesday, January 30, 1917
ESSANAY—Three Ways Out (9th of Black Cat Series), 2 C-D.....21682-83
KALEM—The Safety Pin Smugglers (Ham Comedy), 1 C..... 21684
Wednesday, January 31, 1917
ESSANAY—Mr. Wright in Wrong, 1 C.. 21685
KALEM—The Dominion of Fernandez (25th episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco"), 2 D.....21686-87
Thursday, February 1, 1917
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 10, 1 Top.... 21688
VIM—The Other Girl (Babe Hardy and Ethel Burton), 1 C..... 21689
Friday, February 2, 1917
KNICKERBOCKER STAR — Crossed Trail (Marguerite Landis and R. Henry Grey, 3 D.....21690-91-92
KALEM—The Net of Intrigue (16th of "Grant, Police Reporter" Series), 1 D 21693
VIM—A Job for Life, 1 C..... 21694
VITAGRAPH—A Lady in the Library (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.... 21695
Saturday, February 3, 1917
ESSANAY—Shifting Shadows (8th of "Is Marriage Sacred?" Series), 2 C-D 21696-97
VITAGRAPH—Mystery of the North Case (Brinsley Shaw and Charles Kent), 2 D.....21698-99
KALEM—The Death Siding ("Hazards of Helen" Series), 1 D..... 21700
SELIG—The Saddle Girth (Tom Mix), 1 D 21701

Metro Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 15, 1917
DREW—His Perfect Day (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 2, The Casket of Tainted Treasure), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, January 22, 1917
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 3, The Hidden Hand), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
ROLMA—Married But Single (Ralph Herz), 1 C.
Monday, January 29, 1917.
DREW—The Pest (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 4, From Sunshine to Shadows), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 5, 1917
DREW—Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 5, The Trap), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 12, 1917
ROLMA—Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 6), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 19, 1917
DREW—Her Obsession (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 7), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 26, 1917
DREW—Reliable Henry (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 8), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, January 29, 1917
MONOGRAM—Shorty Goes to College (Adventures of Shorty Hamilton, No. 3 D.....05300-01
Tuesday, January 30, 1917
GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World (Teheran, the Capital of Persia; coast resorts of Normandy, France; winter in the Vosges Mountains, France), 1 Trav..... 05302
Wednesday, January 31, 1917
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 109, 1 Top. 05303
GAUMONT—See America First (San Diego, Cal.), Sc., and Kartoon Komics, split reel..... 05304
Thursday, February 1, 1917
CUB—Jerry and His Pal (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05305
Friday, February 2, 1917
MUTUAL—Scouts of the Sea and Sky (Uncle Sam Defenders, No. 5), 1 Top. 05306
Saturday, February 3, 1917
AMERICAN—Title not announced (J. Warren Kerrigan), 1 D..... 05307
Sunday, February 4, 1917
VOGUE—Sticky Fingers (Paddy McQuire), 2 C.....05308-9
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Making Lace by Machinery; Toddles: New York's latest dance; Raising Fresh Water Fish; Design Your Own Gown, 1 Mag. 05310
Monday, February 5, 1917
MONOGRAM—Shorty Goes Insane ("Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," No. 4), 2 D.....05311-12
Tuesday, February 6, 1917
GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World (The Rocky Coast of Dalmatia, On the Adriatic Sea, Great Temple of Luxor (Egypt), Picturesque Landscapes of Holland), 1 Trav..... 05313
Wednesday, February 7, 1917
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 110, 1 Top. 05314
GAUMONT—See America First (The Mississippi Coast), Sc. and Kartoon Komics, Split reel..... 05315
Thursday, February 8, 1917
CUB—Jerry's Big Raid (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05316
Friday, February 9, 1917
MUTUAL—Bulldogs of the Deep ("Uncle Sam's Defenders," No. 6), 1 Top..... 05317
Saturday, February 10, 1917
AMERICAN—The Old Sheriff (J. Warren Kerrigan), 1 D..... 05318
Sunday, February 11, 1917
VOGUE—The Musical Marvels (Ben Turpin), 2 C.....05319-20
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Queer Fish with Shells, Diary of An Egg, Every-day Life Savers, Hypnotizing An Alligator, 1 Mag..... 05321

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 15, 1917
BURTON HOLMES—Montreal, Old and New, 1 Trav.
KLEVER KOMEDY—Did It Ever Happen to You? 1 C.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, January 22, 1917.
BURTON HOLMES—Ottawa and Toronto. 1 Trav.
BLACK DIAMOND—He Did It Himself, 1 C.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, January 29, 1917.
BURTON HOLMES—Georgian Bay to Winnipeg, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, February 5, 1917
BURTON-HOLMES — Regina to the Rockies, 1 Trav..... T-1096
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 53, 1 Mag.
Monday, February 12, 1917
BURTON HOLMES—Beautiful Banff, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 54, 1 Mag.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, February 4, 1917
Patria, No. 4 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 9, Astra, 2 D.
Rods of Rath, Pathe, 3 D.
Luke's Trolley Trouble, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashion, No. 17 (Rose), Fash.: An Algerian Harem (Pathe), Colored Educ., Split Reel.
Wednesday, February 7, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 12, 1 Top.
Saturday, February 10, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 13, 1 Top.
Monday, February 12, 1917
Patria, No. 5 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 10, Astra, 2 D.
Skinny's Love Tangle and Schemer Skinny's Scandal (Fatty Lampton), Split reel comedy, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 18 (Rose), Fash.; Childish Delights (Pathe), Colored Educ., Split reel.
Der Captain is Examined for Insurance, Cart., and In the Southern Highlands, Sc., International, Split reel.
Wednesday, February 14, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 14, 1 Top.
Saturday, February 17, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 15, 1 Top.

Triangle Komedies

Sunday, January 14, 1917
Love Under Cover, 1 C.
The Pipe of Discontent, 1 C.
Sunday, January 21, 1917
A Noble Fraud, 1 C.
Honest Thieves, 1 C.
Sunday, January 28, 1917
Heart Strategy, 1 C.
A Grab Bag Bride, 1 C.
Sunday, February 4, 1917
The Male Governess, 1 C.
The Road Agent, 1 C.
Sunday, February 11, 1917
Won by a Foot, 1 C.
His Deadly Undertaking, 1 C.
Sunday, February 18, 1917
The Telephone Belle, 1 C.
When Hearts Collide, 1 C.

Unicorn Film Service*

Monday, December 11, 1916.
SUPREME—Love's Wilderness, 3 D.....1113A
BUFFALO—The Slave of Passion, 1 D...1113B
Tuesday, December 12, 1916.
JUDY—You Never Can Tell, 1 C.....1114A
HIAWATHA—The Woman He Wed, 2 D.1114B
Wednesday, December 13, 1916.
SUNSET—The Trail of Fate, 2 D.....1115A
HIPPO—High Cost of Living, 1 C.....1115B
Thursday, December 14, 1916.
RANCHO—Desert Gold, 1 D.....1116A
GAIETY—Kisses and Fists, 1 C.....1116B
UTAH—A Belle of the Sage Brush, 1 W..1116C
Friday, December 15, 1916.
JUDY—Mary Lost Her Lamb, 1 C.....1117A
BUFFALO—Fires of Fate, 2 D.....1117B
Saturday, December 16, 1916.
SUPREME—The Challenge of Chivalry, 2 D 1118A
Sunday, December 17, 1916.
JOCKEY—A Devil in His Own Home Town, 1 C.....1119A
SUNSET—The Mystery of the Mesa, 1 D.1119B
* Releases issued every two weeks.

Universal Film Company

Monday, January 29, 1917
NESTOR—Why, Uncle (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Priscilla Dean), 1 C..... 02126
Tuesday, January 30, 1917
GOLD SEAL—June Madness (Roy Stewart and Wadsworth Harris), 3 D.... 02127
VICTOR—Some Baby (Nov.) and Nellie the Fireman's Daughter (Com), Split Reel (Re-issue) 02128
Wednesday, January 31, 1917
L-KO—Faking Fakirs (Phil Dunham), 2 C 02129
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 57, 1 Top 02130
BIG U—The Gold Lust (Re-issue), 1 D... 02131
Thursday, February 1, 1917
VICTOR—It's Cheaper to be Married (Babe Sedgwick), 1 C..... 02132
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The War Waif (Allen Holubar and Zoe Rae), 2 D.. 02133
IMP—The Diamond Thieves (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer), Reissue, 2 D..... 02134
Friday, February 2, 1917
IMP—The Forbidden Game (Edward Hearn), 2 D..... 02135
UNIVERSAL—Screen Magazine, No. 6, 1 Mag..... 02136
VICTOR—The Hero of Binko Hill, 1 C.. 02137
Saturday, February 3, 1917
BISON—The Boonton Affair (King Baggot), 2 D..... 02138
JOKER—His Coming Out Party (Gale Henry and Wm. Franey), 1 C..... 02139
Sunday, February 4, 1917
IMP—Diamonds of Destiny (Louise Lovely), 1 D..... 02140
POWERS—Mr. Fuller Pep—His Wife Goes for a Rest (Com. Cart.), and "In North China." as seen by Dr. Dorsey (Ed.), Split Reel..... 02141

(Continued on page 767)

STATE RIGHTS—CURRENT AND COMING

Anti-Vice Film Company
Is Any Girl Safe?.....5 reels

Argosy Films, Inc.
The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Dec.—Absinthe (King Baggot), Universal Re-issue .....5 reels

California Motion Picture Corp.
December—The Passion Flower. (Beatriz Michelena) ....

Christie Film Company
Oct.— 2. The Sad Sea Waves.....1 reel
Nov.—27. Tramp, Tramp, Tramp.....1 reel
Dec.— 4. Sea Nymphs.....1 reel
Dec.—11. Miss Billie Buttons.....1 reel
Dec.—18. Hist! At Six O'clock.....1 reel
Dec.—25. Cupid's Uppercut .....1 reel
Jan.— 1. His Model Wife.....1 reel
Jan.— 8. Out for the Coin.....2 reels
Jan.—15. Black Hands and Soapsuds.....1 reel
Jan.—29. A Gay Deceiver.....1 reel

Claridge Films, Inc.
The Birth of Character.....5 reels
The Heart of New York.....5 reels

Cosmofotofilm Company
Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross.....4 reels
O 18.....4 reels
His Vindication.....5 reels

Dixie Films
Dec.—Tempest and Sunshine (Evlyn Greely) .....5 reels
Dec.—Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.
Oct.— 1. The Land of Silence.....1 reel
Oct.—15. To the Rainbow.....1 reel
Oct.— 8. The Hermit of Hood.....1 reel
Oct.—22. Hans and Henri and the Neophyte .....1 reel
Oct.—29. Mazamas and the Three Sisters..2 reels
Nov.— 5. Deschutes Driftwood.....1 reel
Nov.—12. Oddities in Film Form, No. 1...1 reel
Nov.—19. The Snows of Many Years.....1 reel
Nov.—26. Hiyu Skookum Pow-wow La Push .....1 reel

E. & R. Jungle Film Company
Jungle Brats.
Fowl Play.
Discovered.
When the Clock Went Cuckoo.
When Jones Went Wrong.
Napoleon's Night Out.
Circus Brides.

Eskay Harris Feature Film
Alice in Wonderland.....6 parts

European Film Company
Fighting for Verdun.....5 reels

Exclusive Features, Inc.
Where is My Father?.....7 reels

Jos. W. Farnham
Race Suicide.....6 parts
The Awakening of Bess Morton.....5 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.
Oct.—10. The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Connes) 5

Harper Film Corporation
November 16. Civilization.

Herald Film Corporation
Around the World in 80 Days.....6 parts

Hippodrome Film Co.
At the Front with the Allies.....

Juvenile Film Corporation
Apr.—.1. World War in Kidland.....1 reel
Apr.— 8. A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Apr.—15. Chip's Elopement.....1 reel
Apr.—22. Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.2 reels
Apr.—29. Chip's Rivals.....1 reel
May—13. For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
May—27. Chip's Carmen.....2 reels

Kemble Film Corporation
The Zeppelin Raids on London and the Siege of Verdun.....5 reels

Kulee Features
Germany on the Firing Line.....6 parts
France on the Firing Line.....6 parts
The Unborn (Bessie Bondhill).....5 parts

Lincoln Motion Picture Company
The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

C. Post Mason Enterprises
The Wonder City of the World (Greater N. Y. by Day and by Night).....4 reels

Monarch Photoplay Co., Inc.
Common Sense Brackett.....6 parts

Moral Uplift Society of America
It May Be Your Daughter.....

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation
The Power of Evil (Margaret Nichols)....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels

Patriot Film Corp.
How Britain Prepared.....8 reels

Pioneer Feature Film Corp.
The Soul of a Child.....5 reels

Private Feature Film
—.—Ignorance (Earl Metcalfe) .....6 reels

Radio Film Company
Satan the Destroyer of Humanity.....7 parts

Ray Comedies
July—12. Casey's Servants.....
July—19. Casey the White-Wing.....

Sherman Elliot, Inc.
Dec.— 1. The Crisis (Selig)..... 7
Coming. The Garden of Allah (Selig)..... 10

Signet Film Corporation
Nov.— . The Masque of Life.....7 reels

Standard Newsfilm, Inc.
Demons of the Air.....2 reels

Sunbeam Motion Picture Corp.
Ty Cobb in Somewhere in Georgia.....6 parts

Superior Films Company
The Faucet.....5 reels
The Cowpuncher.....6 parts

Triumph Film Corporation
Dec.— 5. The Libertine.....6 reels

Unity Sales Corporation
June—19. The Bishop's Secret.....4 parts
June—26. The Lottery Man.....5 reels
July— 3. The Marriage Bond.....5 reels

Universal Film Mfg. Company
Idle Wives 70 Sp. Oct.....
Where Are My Children?.....5 reels
Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea .....10 reels
People vs. John Doe (Harry De More, Leah Baird).....5 reels
Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer) ....4 reels
Hell Morgan's Girl.....

Variety Films Corporation
My Country First.....6 reels
The Pursuing Vengeance.....5 parts

Warner Brothers
Dec.—Robinson Crusoe (Savage) .....5 reels
Jan.—Are Passions Inherited (Dorothy Farley and Wm. Conklin).....7 reels

SHORT SUBJECTS

(Continued from page 766)

IMP—Life's Pendulum (Bob Leonard, Betty Schade and H. Garter), 2D 02142
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Silent Feud (6th episode of The Purple Mask), (Francis Ford and Grace Cunard), 2 D. 02143

Monday, February 5, 1917

NESTOR—His Wife's Relatives (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edyth Roberts), 1 C..... 02145

Tuesday, February 6, 1917

GOLD SEAL—Won by Grit (Nela Hart and Lois Wilson), 3 D.....02146
VICTOR—The Valley of Beautiful Things (Juvenile Comedy), 1 C..... 02147

Wednesday, February 7, 1917

L-KO—The Dawgone Dogs (Sammie Burns), 1 C..... 02148
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 58, 1 Top..... 02149
BIG U—Red Vengeance (Re-issue), 1 D. 02150

Thursday, February 8, 1917

REX—The Melody of Death (Douglas Gerrard, Ruth Clifford and Maude George), 2 D..... 02151
POWERS—Giants of the American Forest, 1 Educ..... 02152

Friday, February 9, 1917

IMP—Avarice (Claire McDowell), 1 D... 02153
VICTOR—The High Cost of Starving Eilleen Sedgwick), 1 C..... 02154
BIG U—Title not decided, 2 D..... 02155

Saturday, February 10, 1917

BISON—The Outlaw and the Lady (Louise Lovely and Harry Carey), 2 D..... 02156
JOKER—Out for the Dough (Wm. Franey and Gale Henry), 1 C..... 02157
LAEMMLE—A Studio Cinderella (Jane Gail and Matt Moore), 1 C (Re-issue) 02158

Sunday, February 11, 1917

IMP—When Thieves Fall Out (Harry Benham), 2 D..... 02159
POWERS—Fearless Freddie in the Woolly West (Cart. Com.) and Joys and Tears of China (Dr. Dorsey Educ.), Split reel 02160
REX—In the Shadows of Night (Wm. Shay), 1 D Re-issue..... 02161
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Race for Freedom (7th episode of "The Purple Mask"), (Francis Ford and Grace Cunard), 2 D..... 02162

Vitagraph-V-L-S-E.

Monday, January 1, 1917.

Shanks and Chivalry (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Getaway (Frank Daniels)...1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Second Episode, Royalty at Red Wing).....2 D

Monday, January 8, 1917.

Speed and Spunk (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Love Insurance (Frank Daniels) .....1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Third Episode, The Sealed Packet) .....2 D.

Monday, January 15, 1917.

Bullies and Bullets (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks, The Cobbler (Frank Daniels.)1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Fourth Episode, The Honorable Mr. Oxenham).....2 D

Monday, January 22, 1917.

Jolts and Jewelry (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks, The Widow (Frank Daniels) 1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Fifth Episode, Carriage Call No. 101).....2 D

Monday, January 29, 1917.

Big Bluffs and Bowling Ball (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest).....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Baby (Frank Daniels).....1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Sixth Episode, Human Flotsam) .....2 D

Monday, February 5, 1917.

Somewhere in Any Place (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest).....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels)...1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Seventh Episode, The Ghost Ship).....2 D

MONTHLY INDEX OF RELEASES

All releases of the month are listed. In the index, C. stands for "Comedy"; Cart., for "Cartoon"; C.-D., "Comedy Drama"; D., "Drama"; Juv., "Juvenile"; Sc., "Scenic"; Top., "Topical." The figure before the abbreviation is the number of reels. The date is the date of release and the figure the page of Motion Picture News on which the picture was reviewed. The second page number refers to the music chart for the picture.

FEATURE RELEASES

Americano, The (Fine Arts-Triangle), 5D, Jan. 28 ... 271

Barrier, The (Rex Beach Picture Co.), 10D, (Release date not decided) 588
Beloved Rogues (Mutual), 5C, Jan. 15 ...
Betty to the Rescue (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 15 ... 594
Bitter Truth (Fox Film), 6D, Jan. 15 ... 595
Black Orchids (Bluebird), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 462
Blind Justice (V-L-S-E), 5D, Jan. 29 ...
Bondage of Fear, The (Peerless-World), 5D, Jan. 22 ... 591
Bride of Hate, The (Ince Triangle), 5D, Jan. 14 ... 115
Butterfly Girl, The (Fischer Mutual), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 592

Chicken Casey (Kay Bee-Triangle), 5C, Jan. 28 ...
Crab, The (Triangle-Ince), 5D, Feb. 4 ... 593

Darling of Paris, The (Fox Film), 5D, Jan. 22 ...
Devil's Pay Day, The (Bluebird), 5D, Jan. 29 ...
Double Room Mystery, The (Red Feather-Universal), 5D, Jan. 15 ... 438

End of the Tour, The (Columbia-Metro), 5D, Jan. 29 ...
Enlighten Thy Daughter (Ivan), 8D, Jan. 6 ... 112
Evil Eye, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 4 ... 435

Fighting for Love (Red Feather-Universal), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 271
Foolish Virgin, The (Clara Kimball Young-Selznick), 5D, Dec. 18 ... 4241

Gentle Intruder, The (Mutual), 5D, Jan. 22 ...
Gilded Youth, The (American-Mutual), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 595
Girl Like That, A (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 18 ... 759
Girl Philippa, The (Vitagraph Special), 8D, Jan. 13 ... 276
Glory (Unity Sales Corp.), 7D, Jan. 15 ...
God of Little Children (Apollo-Art Dramas), 5D, (Release date not decided) ... 594
God's Crucible (Bluebird), 5D, Jan. 22 ... 596
Golden Fetter, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 25 ...
Great Expectations (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 433

Happiness of Three Women, The (Morosco-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 11 ... 588
Heart Strings (Red Feather-Universal), 5D, Jan. 22 ... 593
Hearts Afire (Clara Kimball Young-World), 5D, Jan. 13 ... 273
"Her" New York (Thanhouser-Pathe), 5D, Jan. 7 ... 117
Her Right to Live (Vitagraph-Blue Ribbon), 5D,, Jan. 22 ... 592
Her Soul's Inspiration (Bluebird), 5D, Jan. 15 ... 434
His Sweetheart (Morosco-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 29 ...
House Built upon Sand, A (Fine Arts-Triangle), 5CD, Dec. 31 ... 113

Iced Bullet, The (Triangle-Ince), 5D, Jan. 21 ... 270
Image Maker, The (Thanhouser-Pathe), 5D, Jan. 21 ... 592
Indiscretion (Vitagraph), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 115
Infidelity (Edbograph-Art Dramas), 5 D, (Release date not decided) ... 595
Innocence of Luzette, The (American-Mutual), 5D, Jan. 25 ... 435
Island of Desire, The (Fox Film), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 275..462

Joan the Woman (Jesse L. Lasky), 10D, (Release date not decided) ... 111

Kick In (Astra-Pathe), 5D, Jan. 14 ... 270

Lash of Destiny, The (Art Dramas), 5D, Dec. 21 ... 114
Last Sentence, The (Edison-K-E-S-E), 5MD, Jan. 1 ... 273
Little Shoes (Essanay), 5D, Jan. 15 ...
Little Yank, The (Triangle-Fine Arts), 5D, Jan. 14 ... 275
Lost and Won (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 22 ...
Love Aflame (Red Feather), 5D, Jan. 29 ...

Man of Mystery, The (Vitagraph), 5D, Jan. 15 ... 274 461
Man Who Forgot, The (World), 5D, Jan. 15 ... 432
Master Passion, The (Edison), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 434
Modern Cinderella, A (Fox Film), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 439

Nina, the Flower Girl (Fine Arts-Triangle), 5MD, Jan. 21 ... 439
Ninety and Nine, The (V-L-S-E), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 4231

On Dangerous Ground (Peerless-World), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 272
One Touch of Sin (Fox Film), 5D, Jan. 29 ...

Panthea (Selznick-Schenck), 7D, Jan. 27 ... 591
Pidgin Island (Metro), 5D, Dec. 25 ... 272 625
Piper's Price, The (Bluebird), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 275 625
Polly Put the Kettle On (Universal-Red Feather), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 116 461
Price of Silence, The (Fox Film), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 437 624
Pride of the Clan, The (Artcraft), 7D, Jan. 8 ... 432
Primitive Call, The (Fox Film), 5D, Jan. 22 ...
Princess of Patches, The (Selig-K-E-S-E), 5MD, Jan. 22 ... 597
Promise, The (Yorke-Metro), 5D, Jan. 22 ...

Rainbow, The (Art Dramas), 6D, Jan. 4 ... 436
Redeeming Love (Morosco-Paramount), 5D, Dec. 28 ... 276

Seven Deadly Sins—Envy (Superpictures, Inc.), 5D, Jan. 29 ...
Slave Market, The (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 274
Snow White (Famous Players-Paramount), 6D, Dec. 25 ... 113

Tillie Wakes Up (World), 5C, Jan. 29 ... 759
Truthful Tulliver (Kay Bee-Triangle), 5D, Jan. 17 ... 4235
Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea (Universal Special), 8D Jan. 6 ... 112
Twin Kiddies (Pathe), 5D, Jan. 28 ... 433

Vanity (Metro), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 112, 461
Victim, The (Fox Film), 5D, Dec. 25 ... 114 300

Weaker Sex, The (Kay Bee-Triangle), 5D, Jan. 7 ... 4235
White Raven, The (Metro), 5D, Jan. 15 ... 596
Whoso Taketh a Wife (Art Dramas), 5D, Dec. 28 ... 271
Wife by Proxy, A (Columbia-Metro), 5D, Jan. 8 ... 437
Woman Alone, A (Peerless-World), 5D, Jan. 1 ... 112

SHORT SUBJECTS

Ablaze in Mid-Air (Universal Special), 5th Episode of "The Purple Mask," 2D, Jan. 28 ...
Ace High Loses (Signal-Mutual) (Chapter 11 of "A Lass of the Lumberlands" Serial), 2D ... 439
Afloat and Ashore (Mutual), No. 4 of "Uncle Sam's Defenders" Series, 1Ed, Jan. 26 ...
Almost a Friar (American), 1C, Jan. 20 ...
Alone in the World (Laemmle), 1D, Jan. 3 ...
Among Those Present (Essanay), 2CD, Jan. 9 ... 598
Animated Weekly No. 53 (Universal), 1Top, Jan. 3 ... 599
Animated Weekly No. 54 (Universal), 1Top, Jan. 10 ... 441
Animated Weekly No. 55 (Universal), 1Top, Jan. 17 ...
Animated Weekly No. 56 (Universal), 1Top, Jan. 24 ...
Animated Weekly No. 57 (Universal), 1Top, Jan. 31 ...

Bad Man of Cheyenne, The (Bison-Universal), 2D, Jan. 13 ... 441
Barred from the Bar (Joker-Universal), 1C, Jan. 20 ... 441
Battle of Let's Go, The (L-Ko), 2C, Jan. 24 ... 764
Big Bluffs and Bowling Ball (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 29 ...
Billy Smoke (Vitagraph), 3D, Jan. 6 ...
Black Circle, The (Kalem), Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter," Series, 1D, Jan. 19 ... 598
Black Evidence (Imp.), 1D, Jan. 25 ...
Black Mine, The (Victor), 1C, Jan. 25 ...
Blood Money (Bison), 2MD, Jan. 6 ... 279
Bloodhounds of the North (Big U), 2D, Jan. 18 ...
Blood-Stained Hand, The (Laemmle), 1D, Jan. 27 ...
Blundering Blacksmiths, The (Kalem), 1C, Feb. 3 ...
Bombs and Banknotes (Victor), 1C, Jan. 2 ... 279
Boomer Bill's Awakening (Powers), Split reel, C. Cart. and Dorsey Ed., Jan. 28 ...
Braving Blazes (Black Diamond-Paramount), Synopsis, 1C ... 440
Brute Force (Bison-Universal), 1WD Jan. 20 ... 441
Bubble of Life, The (Rex-Universal), 2D, Jan. 21 ... 441
Bullies and Bullets (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 8 ...

Call for Help, The (Big U), 2D, Jan. 14 ...
Canimated Nooz, Pictorial No. 21 (Essanay), Split reel, Cart. and Sc., Dec. 27 ... 440
Canimated Nooz, Pictorial No. 22 (Essanay), Split reel, Cart., Jan. 10 ... 598
Canimated Nooz, Pictorial No. 23, and Alaska (Essanay), Split reel, Top and Sc, Jan. 24 ...
Captain Jinks' Baby (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 29 ...
Captain Jinks' Love Insurance (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 1 ...
Captain Jinks, The Cobbler (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 8 ...
Captain Jinks' Widow (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 22 ...
Captain Jinks' Widow's Wife (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 22 ...
Capture, The (Universal Special), 3d Chapter of "The Purple Mask" Series, 2D, Jan. 14 ...
Carriage Call No. 101 (V-L-S-E), 5th Episode of "The Secret Kingdom" Series, 2D, Jan. 22 ...
Cave Man's Buff (Metro-Drew), 1C, Jan. 8 ... 598
Chased Into Love (Fox Film), 2C, Jan. 8 ... 4045
Circus Cyclone, A (Vogue), 2C, Jan. 28 ...
Cody Road to Yellowstone Park, The (Rothacker), Synopsis, 1Sc ... 599
Cupid's Caddies (Kalem), 1C, Jan. 16 ... 440
Cupid's Touchdown (Selig), 1C, Jan. 20 ...

Daring Chance, The (Bison), 2D, Jan. 27 ... 764
Delayed in Transit (Selig), 2C, Jan. 15 ...
Did It Ever Happen to You? (Klever Komedy-Paramount), 1C, Jan. 15 ...
Dollar Down, A (Essanay), Synopsis, C, Split reel, Jan. 3 ... 118
Double Revenge, A (American), 1C, Jan. 27 ...
Drama's Dreadful Dent (Rolin), 1C, Jan. 28 ... 598

Face Downstairs, The (Laemmle), 1D, Jan. 10 ...
Facing Death (Universal Special), 4th Episode of "The Purple Mask" Series, 2D, Jan. 21 ...
Faking Fakirs (L-Ko), 2C, Jan. 31 ...
False Prophet, The (Kalem), (22d Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco" Series), 2D, Jan. 10 ... 273
Fickle All Around (Vogue-Mutual), 2C, Jan. 14 ... 118
Final Chapter, The (Astra), (Last Episode of "The Shielding Shadow" Series), 2D, Jan. 6 ... 118
Fine Art with Hammer and Anvil (Paramount), Synopsis, 1Educ, Jan. 27 ... 599
Fireman's Nemesis, The (Kalem), (Episode of "Hazards of Helen" Series), 1D, Jan. 13 ... 279
From Civilian to Soldier (American), No. 1 of "Uncle Sam's Defenders" Series, 1Ed, Jan. 5 ...
From the Bay of Fundy to the St. Lawrence (Burton Holmes-Paramount), 1Trav, Jan. 1 ...
Fugitive, The (Imp.), 2D, Jan. 26 ... 764

Gentleman of Nerve, A (Victor), 1C, Jan. 9 ... 280
Georgian Bay to Winnipeg (Burton Holmes-Paramount), 1Trav, Jan. 29 ...
Girl from 'Frisco, The (Kalem):
  Resurrection of Gold Bar, The, 2D, Jan. 20 ... 436
  Homesteaders' Feud, 2D, Jan. 20 ... 593
  Wolf of Los Alamos, The, 2D ...
Girl God Made for Jones, The (Essanay), Synopsis, 1CD, Jan. 2 ... 118
Girl Who Can Cook, The (Star-Mutual), 2C, Jan. 27 ... 595

Gold Lust, The (Big U), 1D, Jan. 31 —
Gold Rush, The (Signal Mutual), 10th Episode of "A Girl of the Lumberlands" Series, 2D, Jan. 27 591
Golden Thought, The (Selig), 2D, Dec. 25 279
Grab Bag Bride, A (Triangle), 1C, Jan. 28 —
Great Secret, The (Quality-Metro), 5 Chapters, Jan. 1 435
Grouchy (Mutual), 1D 118

He Did It Himself (Black Diamond-Paramount), 1C, Jan. 22 —
He Meant Well (Klever Komedy-Paramount), 1C, Jan. 1 —
He Wouldn't Wear Glasses (Rolma), 1C, Dec. 23 280
Heart Strategy (Triangle), 1C, Jan. 28 —
Heartsick at Sea (L-Ko-Universal), 1C, Jan. 17 441
Hell by the Enemy (Victor), 1C, Jan. 26 764
Her Father's Station (Fox Film), 2C, Jan. 22 —
Her Perfect Husband (Metro-Drew), 1C, Dec. 25 598
High, Low and the Game (Educational), 1Sc, Jan. 6 116
His Little Room Mate (Victor), 2C, Jan. 19 441
His Little Spirit Girl (Vitagraph), 1C, Jan. 26 —
Homeless (Laemmle), 1D, Jan. 20 —
Homesteaders' Feud (Kalem), (Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco" Series), 2D, Jan. 17 593
Honest Thieves (Triangle), 1C, Jan. 21 —
Honeymoon Surprise, The (Victor), 1C, Jan. 23 764
Honeymooners, The (Mutual Star), 1C, Jan. 13 764
Honorable Mr. Oxenham, The (V-L-S-E), 4th Episode of "The Secret Kingdom" Series, 2D, Jan. 15 —
Honorably Discharged (Imp.), 1D, Jan. 12 280
House of Secrets, The (Kalem), (Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter" Series), 1D, Jan. 5 279
How Niagara Falls is Harnessed (Paramount), Synopsis, 1Educ 599
How to be Happy Though Married (Victor), 1C, Jan. 5 279
How Useful Citizens Are Re-made (Paramount), Synopsis, 1Educ, Jan. 27 599
Human Flotsam (V-L-S-E), 6th Episode of "The Secret Kingdom" Series, 2D, Jan. 29 —

In Payment of the Past (Selig), 1D, Jan. 6 —

Jack Tar in the Making, A (Mutual), No. 3 of "Uncle Sam's Defenders" Series, 1Ed, Jan. 19 764
Jade Necklace, The (Niagara-Mutual), 1st Episode of "Our Girl Reporter" Series, 2D 114
Jealous Jolts (Vogue), 1D, Jan. 14 440
Jealousy (Mutual), 2D 118
Jerry and the Outlaws (Cub), 1C, Jan. 25 —
Jerry's Big Doings (Cub), 1C, Jan. 18 —
Jerry's Double Header (Cub), 1C, Jan. 4 440
Jerry's Winning Way (Horsley-Mutual), 1C 598
John Bates' Secret (Imp.), 1D, Jan. 13 —
Jolts and Jewelry (V-L-S-E), 1C, Jan. 15 —
Jones Keeps House (Vitagraph), 1C, Jan. 8 —
June Madness (Gold Seat), 3D, Jan. 30 —
Jungle Tragedy, A (Big U), 2D, Jan. 28 —

Land of Nowhere, The (Vogue), 2C, Jan. 7 —
Lass of the Lumberlands, A (Signal-Mutual):
Ace High Loses, 2D 439
Gold Rush, The, 2D 591
Last Volunteer, The (Pathe), 3D, Jan. 7 118
Liberty (Universal Special), No. 20, 2D, Dec. 25 280
Limburger Cyclone, A (L-Ko), 2C, Jan. 10 280
Lion Cubs (Pathe), Split reel, Jan. 7 440
Little Missionary, The (Essanay), 7th Episode of "The Black Cat" Series, 2D, Jan. 16 440
Little Rebel's Sacrifice, The (Big U), 1D, Jan. 19 —
Love in Suspense (Joker), 1C, Jan. 6 279
Love Me, Love My Biscuits (Joker), 1C, Jan. 27 764
Love Under Cover (Triangle), 1C, Jan. 14 —
Luck that Jealousy Brought, The (Selig), 1 West D, Jan. 27 —
Luke's Busy Day (Rolin), 1C, Jan. 21 440
Luke's Lost Liberty (Rolin), 1C, Jan. 7 118

Macaroni Sleuth, A (Nestor-Universal), 1C, Jan. 22 764
Magic Mirror, The (Essanay), 7th Episode of "Is Mariage Sacred?" 2D, Jan. 27 —
Making of Bob Mason's Wife, The (Selig), 1D, Jan. 13 598
Married but Single (Rolma-Metro), 1C, Jan. 22 764
Masked Cupid, The (Victor), 1C, Jan. 16 —
Matinee Idol, The (Rolma-Metro), 1C, Jan. 1 —
Midnight (Imp-Universal), 1D, Jan. 14 441
Mines and Matrimony (Joker), 1C, Jan. 13 —
Mission of State, A (Kalem), (Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter" Series), 1D, Dec. 29 118
Mogul Mountain Mystery, The (Kalem), (Episode of "Hazards of Helen" Series), 1D, Jan. 6 118
Montreal, Old and New (Burton Holmes-Paramount), 1Trav, Jan. 15 —
Moral Right, The (Imp), 2D, Jan. 5 279
Mr. Fuller Pep Celebrates His Wedding Anniversary (Powers), Split reel, C. Cart, Jan. 14 598
Mr. Fuller Pep, He Goes to the Country, and In the Land of the Son of Heaven as Seen by Dr. Dorsey (Powers), C. Cart. and Sc, Split reel, Jan. 21 —
Mr. Shoestring in a Hole (L-Ko), 1C, Jan. 21 —
Mutual Tours Around the World, No. 9 (Gaumont), 1Trav, Jan. 2 —
Mutual Tours Around the World, No. 11 (Gaumont), 1Trav, Jan. 16 —
Mutual Weekly No. 103 (Gaumont), 1Top, Dec. 20 118
Mutual Weekly No. 104 (Gaumont), 1Top, Jan. 13 279
Mutual Weekly No. 105 (Gaumont), 1Top, Jan. 3 440
Mutual Weekly No. 106 (Gaumont), 1Top, Jan. 10 764
Mutual Weekly No. 107 (Mutual), 1Top, Jan. 17 —
Mutual Weekly No. 108 (Mutual), 1Top, Jan. 24 —
Mystery of Lake Lethe (Vitagraph), 1D, Jan. 15 —
Mystery of My Lady's Boudoir, The (Gold Seal), 1D, Jan. 9 280

National Park, Colorado, and The Rocky Mountains, and The Kiddies Paradise (Rothacker), Synopsis, 3 Sc and Educ 599
Noah's Ark (Fox Film), 2C, Jan. 15 —
Noble Fraud, A (Triangle), 1C, Jan. 21 —
North and South (Florence Rose No. 16), 1 Fash, Jan. 28 598

Old Soldier's Romance, An (Gold Seal), 3CD, Jan. 2 279
Old Toymaker, The (Rex), 1D, Jan. 28 —
On Italy's Firing Line (Selig), 3 War film, Jan. 1 598
On the Trail of the Lonesome Pill (L-Ko), 2C, Jan. 3 279
One Good Turn (Vitagraph), 4th Episode of "The Dangers of Doris," 1CD, Jan. 12 —
One on Him (Essanay), Synopsis, C and Sc, Split reel, Jan. 17 440
One Thousand Miles an Hour (Nestor), 1C, Jan. 8 280
Ottawa and Toronto (Burton Holmes-Paramount), 1Trav, Jan. 22 —
Our Boys at the Border (Mutual), No. 2 of "Uncle Sam's Defenders" Series, 1Ed, Jan. 12 764
Our Girl Reporter (Niagara-Mutual):
Jade Necklace, The, 2D, Jan. 6 114

Pangs of Jealousy (Mutual), 2D, Jan. 1 —
Part of a Debutante's Life (Florence Rose No. 13), 1Fash, Jan. 20 440
Pathe News No. 101 (Pathe), Synopsis, 1Top, Dec. 10 279
Pathe News No. 102 (Pathe), 1Top., Dec. 20 279
Pathe News No. 1 (Pathe), 1Top, Dec. 30 599
Pathe News No. 2 (Pathe), 1Top, Jan. 6 —
Pathe News No. 3 (Pathe), 1Top, Jan 6 441
Pathe News No. 4 (Pathe), 1Top, Jan. 10 599
Pathe News No. 6 (Pathe), 1Top, Jan. 17 —
Pathe News No. 7 (Pathe), 1Top, Jan. 20 —
Patria No. 1 (International-Pathe), 3D, Jan. 14 —
Patria No. 2 (International-Pathe), 3D, Jan. 21 —
Patria No. 3 (International-Pathe), 3D, Jan. 28 —
Pearl of the Army (Pathe), (6th Episode), 2D, Jan. 7 117
Pearl of the Army (Pathe), (7th Episode), 2D, Jan. 14 440
Pearl of the Army (Pathe), (8th Episode), 2D, Jan. 21 438
Pest, The (Drew-Metro), 1C, Jan. 22 —
Pipe of Discontent, The (Triangle), 1C, Jan. 14 —
Poison Man, The (Gaumont-Mutual), (8th Episode of "The Vampires" Series), 3D 115
Practice What You Preach (Nestor), 1C, Jan. 1 279
Preparing for the South (Florence Rose No. 15), 1Fash, Jan. 21 440
Prodigal Widow, The (Gold Seal-Universal), 3D, Jan. 16 441
Professional Patient, The (Vitagraph), 1C, Jan. 19 —
Property Man, The (Vim), 1C, Jan. 12 —
Putting One Over on Ignatz (Victor-Universal), 1C, Jan. 18 441

Quaint Quebec (Burton Holmes-Paramount), 1Trav, Jan. 8 —

Railroad Claim Intrigue, The (Kalem), (Episode of "Hazards of Helen" Series), 1D 598
Red Goddess, The (Big U), 1D, Jan. 24 —
Red Stain, The (Rex), 2MD, Jan. 4 279
Reel Life No. 34 (Gaumont), 1Ed, Jan. 6 118
Reel Life No. 35 (Gaumont), 1Top, Jan. 20 440
Reel Life No. 36 (Gaumont), 1Top, Jan. 20 440
Reel Life No. 37 (Gaumont-Mutual), 1Educ, Jan. 27 598
Resurrection of Gold Bar, The (Kalem) Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco" Series), 2D, Jan. 10 436
Right Hand Path, The (Selig)—Synopsis—1D, Dec. 30 598
Rival Romeos (Kalem), 1C, Jan. 9 118
Rocky Mountains, The and National Park, Colorado, and The Kiddies Paradise (Rothacker)—Synopsis—3Sc and Educ 599
Room of Mystery, The (Knickerbocker-Star), 3D, Jan. 19 —
Royalty at Red Wing (V-L-S-E), 2nd Episode "The Secret Kingdom" Serial, 2D, Jan. 1 —

Schemer Skinny's Schemes (Rolin-Pathe), 1C, Jan. 14 —
Screen Magazine No. 4 (Universal), 1Mag, Jan. 5 380
Screen Magazine No. 5 (Universal), 1Mag, Jan. 19 —
Sealed Packet, The (V-L-S-E), 3d Episode of "The Secret Kingdom" Series, 2D, Jan. 8 —
Secret Kingdom, The (Vitagraph V-L-S-E):
2d Episode, Royalty at Red Wing, 2D, Jan. 1 —
3d Episode, The Sealed Packet, 2D, Jan. 8 —
4th Episode, The Honorable Mr. Oxenham, 2D, Jan. 15 —
5th Episode, Carriage Call No. 101, 2D, Jan. 22 —
6th Episode, Human Flotsam, 2D, Jan. 29 —
See America First, No. 67 (Gaumont), 1Sc, Dec. 13 118
See America First, No. 69 (Gaumont), 1Sc, Dec. 27 440
See America First (Gaumont), 1Sc, Jan. 3 —
See America First, No. 70 (Gaumont) and The Gourmand Split Reel, Sc and Com, Jan. 10 —
See America First, No. 71, and Kartoon Komics (Gaumont), Split Reel, Sc and Cart, Jan. 17 —
See America First and Kartoon Komics (Gaumont), Split Reel, Sc and Cart, Jan. 24 —
Selig-Tribune No. 100 (Selig), 1Top, Dec. 14 599
Selig-Tribune No. 101 (Selig), 1Top, Dec. 18 599
Selig-Tribune No. 102 (Selig), 1Top, Dec. 21 599
Selig-Tribune No. 103 (Selig), 1Top, Dec. 25 599
Selig-Tribune No. 104 (Selig), 1Top, Dec. 28 599
Selig-Tribune No. 1 (Selig), 1Top, Jan. 1 599
Selig-Tribune No. 4 (Selig), 1Top, Jan. 11 599
Selig-Tribune No. 5 (Selig), 1Top, Jan. 15 599
Selig-Tribune No. 7 (Selig), 1Top, Jan. 22 —
Selig-Tribune No. 8 (Selig), 1Top, Jan. 25 —
Serene of Index (Educational), 1Sc, Jan. 6 116
Shadows of Shame (Pathe), 1D, Jan. 14 279
Shattered Ideals (Big U), 1D, Jan. 11 —
Shielding Shadow, The (Astra):
Final Chapter, The, 2D, Jan. 7 118
Shorty and the Yellow Ring (Monogram), 2D, Jan. 15 —
Shorty in the Tiger's Den (Monogram), 2D, Jan. 22 —
Sinful Marriage, The (Essanay), (Episode of "Is Marriage Sacred?")—Synopsis—2D, Jan. 13 440
Slave of Fear, A (Imp), 2D, Jan. 17 441
Social Pirates (Fox Film), 2C, Jan. 1 4045
Some Baby (Victor) and Nellie, The Fireman's Daughter, Split Reel, C, Jan. 30 —
Something New (Florence Rose, No. 14), 1 Fash, Jan. 14 279
Souls United (Gold Seal-Universal), 3D, Jan. 23 764
Speed and Spunk (V-LS-E), 1C, Jan. 1 —
Starring in Western Stuff (Selig), 2C, Jan. 8 598
Stolen Birthright, The (Pathe), 3D, Jan. 21 —
Stolen Inheritance, The (Pathe), 1D, Jan. 28 598
Suspected (Universal Special), 2D Episode of "The Purple Mask," 2D, Jan. 7 —

Tailors' Trimmings (Vogue), 2C, Jan. 21 764
Tankless Job, A and A Fishing Trip Through Uncle Sam's Wonderland, Split Reel, C Cart and Sc, Jan. 21 764
Tale from the Decameron, A (Essanay), 2D, Dec. 26 598
Temptation and the Girl (Knickerbocker-Star), 3D, Jan. 5 —
Terrible Wedding, The (Gaumont-Mutual), 9th Episode of "The Vampire's" Series, 3D 115
That Terrible Tenderfoot (Kalem), 1C, Jan. 2 118
Their Matinee's Idol (Rolma), 1C, Jan. 1 280
There's Many a Fool (Fox Film), 2C, Jan. 29 —
Thunder Man, The (Gaumont-Mutual), 7th Episode of "The Vampires" Series, 3D 115
Tours Around the World, No. 9 (Gaumont), 1Sc, Jan. 2 279
Tours Around the World, No. 11 (Gaumont), 1Trav, Jan. 23 764

For Sale or Trade

A Studio situated in the largest and most progressive city in Florida, a property that can be listed at $40,000 and which can be secured at unusually favorable terms if taken advantage of at once.

Address Box D. % Motion Picture News

Trail of Graft, The (Kalem), (Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter" Series), 1D, Jan. 19 593
Treat 'Em Rough (Nestor-Universal), 1C, Jan. 15 441
Trials of Willie Winks, The (Universal), C Cart and Educ, Split Reel, Jan. 7 280
Turn of the Wheel, The (Mutual), 2D 438
Twin Fedoras (Vitagraph), 3d Episode of "The Dangers of Doris," 1CD, Jan. 5 ..... —

Uprising, The (Big U), 1D, Jan. 4 ..... —

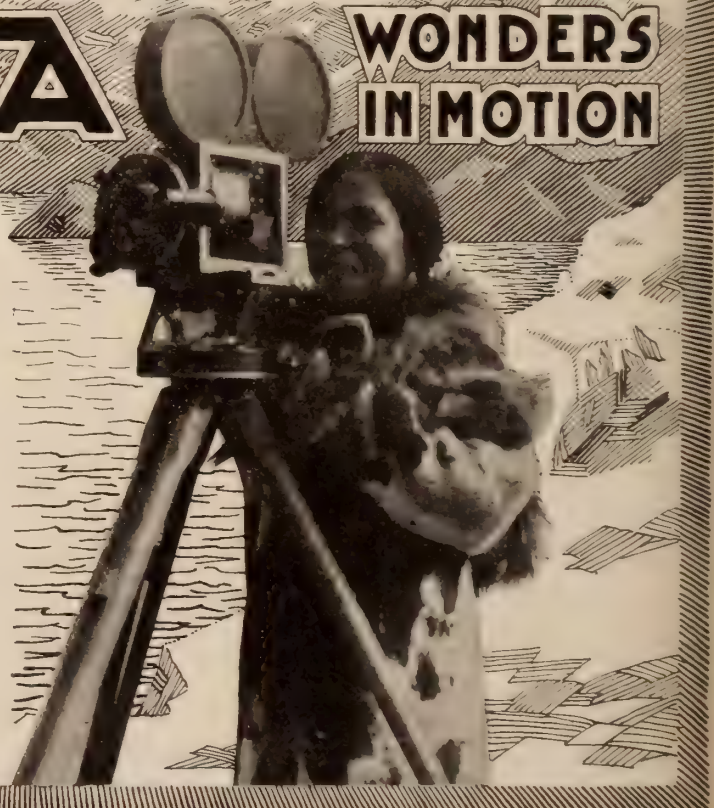
Vagabond, The (Vitagraph), 1D, Jan. 22 ..... —
Valley of Lost Hope, The (Vitagraph), 3D, Jan. 27 ..... —
Violet Ray, The (Kalem), 15th Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter," 1D, Jan. 25 ..... —
Visiting Montreal with Burton Holmes (Paramount)—Synopsis—1Trav, Jan. 15 440

Wall of Money, The (Rex), 1D, Jan. 6 ..... —
What Would You Do? (Essanay), 8th Episode of "The Black Cat" Series, 2CD, Jan. 23 ..... —
Whelp, The (Imp), 1D, Jan. 7 279
When Hands Are Idle (Mutual), 2D, Jan. 8 ..... —
When Damon Fell for Pythias (Joker), 2C, Jan. 2 280
When the Man Speaks (Essanay)—Synopsis—1D, Jan. 6 118
Whispered Name, The (Rex), 2D, Jan. 12 280
Wide Wrong Way, The (Essanay), (Episode of "Is Marriage Sacred?") 1D, Jan. 13 440
Why Uncle (Nestor), 1C, Jan. 29 ..... —
Wife in Sunshine (Essanay), (Episole of "Is Marriage Sacred?" 1D, Dec. 30 440
Wife's Folly, A (Big U), 2D, Jan. 25 ..... —
Within the Lines (Mutual), 1D 118
Wolf of Los Alamos, The (Kalem), 24th Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco' Series, 2D, Jan. 24 ..... —
Wonders of the Orient, as seen by Dr. Dorsey (Powers), Split Reel, Educ, Jan. 14 598
Wrecked Station, The (Kalem), (Episode of "Hazards of Helen" Series, 1D, Jan. 20 598
Wrong Mary Wright, The (Victor-Universal), 1C, Jan. 12 441

Yosemite Valley (Essanay), Split Reel, Sc, Jan. 3 ..... —

MAVERICK TERRELL

Film comedy builder, having severed connections with Mr. Charles Chaplin is



AT LIBERTY

As samples of work see: "SHANGHAIED" in films; "THE REAL Q" in vaudeville; "TEMPERAMENT" in "Smart Set" magazine

Address: 1607 Alice Place, Los Angeles, California
Telephone: Wilshire 1271

ALASKA

WONDERS IN MOTION

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

It means 5 great reels of—

ALASKA

It means a brand new feature right out of that wonderland—Gripping—Fascinating—Out-of-the-Ordinary.

FLORA TANGANOK

Our pretty Eskimo Film star in a true, sensational thrill of Northern Life.
Hunting the Great Kodiak Bear.
Two of the world's greatest icy marvels in action.
A water phenomenon—The Bore.
And hundreds of other wonders.

5 reel feature or 5 distinctive travelogues.

STATE RIGHTS now selling.
Direct Bookings Solicited.

Write or wire at once, this feature is selling fast.

SMITH FILMS, 303 South Hill Street Los Angeles, California

Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law

WARNING!!!

TO EXHIBITORS
MANAGERS-OF-THEATRES
EXCHANGEMEN
STATE-RIGHT-BUYERS

FILM DUPERS

AND-ALL-SCOURGES-OF-THE-FILM-INDUSTRY-WHO-MAKE-A-PRACTICE-OF-STEALING-THE-RESULTS-OF-BRAINS-AND-CAPITAL.

AN-INJUNCTION-HAS-BEEN-ISSUED-IN-THE-U.S.COURTS-FORBIDDING-THE-SELLING,-RENTING,-EXHIBITING,-OR-"DUPING"-

THE GARDEN
OF KNOWLEDGE

BY-UNAUTHORIZED-PARTIES

CLASSIC-FILM-CO.

SOLE-OWNERS-AND-DISTRIBUTORS-FOR-THE-WORLD

ADDRESS-FOR-STATE-RIGHTS-C/O-MOTION-PICTURE-NEWS

Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law—Law

CLASSIFIED

Equip your Stage for Vaudeville. Write for Special Offer on Complete Outfit of Scenery and Rigging. BOON SCENIC COMPANY, Hicksville, Ohio.

FOR SALE, Moving Picture and Vaudeville Theatre, Northern Minnesota city of 12,000 population. Only one other theatre and they are very friendly. This is a dandy proposition—First come, First served. Take $3,500 to handle. Don't answer unless you mean business. Address Box 59, care of Motion Picture News, 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City.

GOOD PROJECTION IMPOSSIBLE WITHOUT "AMBERLUX" LENS FILTERS. WRITE FOR PARTICULARS. PRICE WITH SLIDE, $3.50. W. D. WARNER, WYANDOTTE BLDG., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

SCENARIOS WANTED

High class dramatic comedies one-reel scenarios, especially adapted to Atlantic City and seashore locations. No slap stick wanted. Acme Moving Picture Producing Company, 429 Guarantee Trust Building, Atlantic City, N. J.

For Sale—Hollywood (Cal.) Motion Picture Producing Plant. Now being conducted as commercial laboratory and studio paying 20 per cent per annum on investment. Has newly equipped laboratories, 50 x 60 indoor stage, 102 x 126 exterior stage, dressing rooms, scene darks, property rooms, carpenter and paint shop, etc. Everything for making pictures is in the plant. All, including real estate, must be sold at once to close an estate. Address Motion Picture News, 429 So. Figueroa street, Los Angeles, Cal.

FOR SALE—New Prints of

D. W. GRIFFITH—BIOGRAPH RELEASES STARRING MARY PICKFORD, BLANCHE SWEET, HENRY WALTHALL and Other Big Money Makers—with Posters

EDWARD M. ROSKAM
1003 Candler Bldg., New York

Star Carbons

JONES & CAMMACK
Sole Distributors for the U. S.
12 Bridge Street New York

DUPLEX Rewinder

1000-Foot Flange
Complete Laboratory Equipment
DUPLEX MACHINE CO.
(Incorporated)
316-318 75th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

MR. CAMERA MAN

Don't buy a camera until you find out all about the Universal—the camera with which "you get the picture and get away before the other fellow gets set up."

BURKE & JAMES, Inc.
Sole Wholesale Distributors
Chicago New York

"All eyes on a line"

FOCO

Adjustable Opera Chair

Can be changed from adult's chair to child's chair by pressing catch and raising. Write for booklet.

Family Opera Chair Organization, St. Louis, Mo.

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

TABLE OF CONTENTS

SIGN 'EM UP—WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON 703
EDITORIALS 704
OCHS PROTESTS AGAINST YEAR-OLD UNIVERSAL WEEKLY EDITORIAL 705
TAX-INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE MAKES LITTLE PROGRESS 707
THE ADVANCE DEPOSIT SYSTEM, BY GEORGE KLEINE 708
MOVE TO ABOLISH DAILY CHANGE OF PROGRAM GAINS NATIONALLY 709
LOCAL PICTURE CENSORS MADE POWERLESS IN SEATTLE 711
EXHIBITOR CHARGES BLACKLISTING—REPLY TO F. I. L. M. 713
TAKE A LITTLE ADVICE FROM AN OLDER PEOPLE (BRAY CARTOONS) 715
New York Exhibitors Meet in Convention 706
Makers of "Filth Films" to Be Prosecuted 706
"Honor System" Opens at Lyric Feb. 6 710
"Garden of Allah" Offered by Selig on States Rights 710
Exchange Man Defends Deposit System 712
"Fall of a Nation" Seized in Maryland 712
Berst Takes "News" View on Sunday Pictures 714
South American Distribution for F. P.-Lasky 714
A Live Oracle from Texas Speaks 717
1,500 Children Respond to Free Matinees 718
An Unpleasant Fight with Knives 718
"Midnight Follies" for Seattle's New Year's Eve Celebration 719
Local Personality Linked with Theater Succesfully 720
Bluebird Offers Prizes for Best Lobbies 720
Mutuals Include a Rex Beach Picture 726
Art Dramas Announces Releases for Two Months 728
Dainty Stars Featured in Paramount 728
"Patria" Is Booked Solid Over Proctor Circuit 735
"The Libertine" Brings Biggest Sunday 736
"Great Secret" Booked in 2,642 Theatres 737
Arrests Follow Riots at Vitagraph Production 739
"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" for "Little Mary" 740
Program of 5, 6 and 7 Reels Planned for Bernstein 740
Edison Program Approved by Welfare Societies 745
Chambers Will Write Scripts for Goldwyn Pictures 746
"Argyle Case," with Warwick, Is Now Ready 747
Slater Contemplates Releasing Plans with Mutual 748
Brock Forms Enlightenment Corporation 750
State Rights Sale for "Judith of Bethulia" 750
Vitagraph Division Managers on Tour 752
Court Decides in Favor of Two Boston Houses 755
Government Tax Pressure Stirs Ontario 756

DEPARTMENTS

With the Exhibitor 716
Live Wire Exhibitors 719
The Eastern Studios 721
In and Out of Western Studios 723
Advance Offerings of the Programs 726
How Pictures Are Booking 735
Chicago News and Comment 738
Live News from the Producers 739
In the State Rights Field 750
Among the Exchanges 752
Just for Fun (In and Out of Town) 753
Newsy Reports from All Sections (Exhibitors' Personals) 754
Tabloid Reviews 764
Monthly Index of Releases 768

ACCESSORY NEWS SECTION

Editorials 775
Projection 776
Camera 782
Music 785
Building and Furnishing (Directory of New Theatres) 786

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Chicken Casey" (Triangle-Ince) 761
"Envy" (McClure-Triangle) 757
"Germany and Its Armies of To-day" (Germanic Official War Films, Inc.) 758
"Girl of the Timberclaims, The" (Triangle-Fine Arts) 763
"Girl Like That, A" (Famous Players-Paramount) 759
"Glory" (M. L. B. Unity) 762
"Glory of Yolanda, The" (Vitagraph) 759
"Her Condoned Sin" (Biograph) 762
"Lost and Won" (Lasky-Paramount) 760
"Love Aflame" (Red Feather-Universal) 760
"Modern Monte Cristo, A" (Thanhouser-Pathe) 758
"Mysterious Mrs. M., The" (Bluebird) 757
"Pearl of the Army" (Pathe) 762
"Primitive Call, The" (Fox Film) 761
"Threads of Fate" (Metro) 760
"Tillie Wakes Up" (Peerless-World) 759

Ever lose your arc?
No Sir-e-e!—using the

Speedco Arc Controller

feeds 'er to perfection and pays its way

Speed Controller Company, Inc.
257-259 William Street NEW YORK

A film Exchange without an up-to-date Renovating Plant, such as the Rex Film Renovating Plant, is not very progressive.
The Rex Film Renovator Co.
Columbus, Ohio.

Your Best Laboratory Insurance

Corcoran Tanks
with the Patented Joint
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
9½ JOHN ST. NEW YORK

FOR SALE

Opera and wood folding chairs, slightly used. Half price. In storage from New York to Chicago. We buy and sell everywhere. Empire Business Exchange, Corning, N. Y.

PICTURE THEATRE BUYERS!

If you are looking for a theatre in So. California, large or small, City, Country or Beaches, Correspond with
LEO RYAN, 730 S. Olive St.
Los Angeles, California

TransVerteR

Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
432 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

NEW SYSTEM

Automatic Mechanical Developing of Motion Picture Film. Will Revolutionize the Motion Picture Industry. Company now offers A Limited Amount of Stock at Par.
Address Box 18
c/o MOTION PICTURE NEWS
729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. City

BIG BARGAINS
ALL MAKES OF PROJECTION MACHINES
Don't miss this opportunity.
Send today for catalogue.
CROWN MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES
217 West 42nd Street New York City

CAILLE
Ticket Office Equipments
Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.
Caille Bros. Co., 1003 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS DEVOTED TO THE CONSTRUCTION, EQUIPMENT AND OPERATION OF THEATRE, EXCHANGE AND STUDIO

ITS ECONOMY

Now is almost a proverb — quietly the knowledge has spread into every nook and corner of the nation

THE MOTIOGRAPH

MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR

Even in Alaska, Australia and other foreign countries you will hear identically the same thing said as in the many theatres in the United States where the MOTIOGRAPH is used.

The Low Cost of Up-keep, the Perfect Projection and Simplicity of operation is unequalled.

F. H. Richardson, the Projection Expert, says :

"The Motiograph is now a machine which I can conscientiously recommend to the serious consideration of motion picture theatre managers who are contemplating the purchase of new projection apparatus.

Write for literature

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.
568 W. Randolph St. CHICAGO, ILL.
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

TYPHOONS COOL & VENTILATE

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 B'WAY NEW YORK CITY

Experience or Experiment-which?

Any owner of a Typhoon-Cooled theatre or anyone who has ever been in one in hot weather will tell you of his experience.

So as to determine the value of the Typhoon Cooling System compared with others, we have in the past concentrated our effort in replacing equipments already tried, such as exhaust fans, wall and ceiling fans, ice and water cooling equipments of all descriptions.

In the meantime, we have increased the efficiency of the production end of our business by utilizing every modern manufacturing economy so that we can now fill orders from stock.

If interested get in touch with us immediately, as the wonderful success with the Typhoons has created such a demand that there is no guarantee that we can continue filling orders promptly, even with our tremendously increased manufacturing facilities.

If interested mail coupon to TYPHOON FAN CO., 1544 Broadway, New York

Name of Theatre .....

Address .....

Owner .....

Length ..... Width ..... Height .....

Electric Current .....

Seating Capacity .....

Construction, Equipment and Operation

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Everything for Theatre, Exchange and Studio

AN HONEST STATEMENT

IT is evident that the endeavor which is being made on the part of the NEWS to help the supply men enlarge their business is being appreciated. Last week we published three letters. This week there are four more of great interest which we hope will arouse the equipment branch of the industry to a point when the slogan "The Supply Dealer is the Local Motion Picture Authority" will apply. It should be so. Here's what the dealer says —Think it over.

1

YOUR letter of the sixth with advance copy of editorial entitled "Motion Picture Supplies" interests us very much indeed, principally from the standpoint that we have in the NEWS, an organ that is awake to every corner of our industry, and is active in the promotion of improvements for all of us engaged therein.

The tenor of your writing echoes our own findings during the past several months and it might interest you to learn that we have already traveled quite a distance along the path you mention, that is of handling everything in connection with the motion picture business, not only for theatres, but for schools, churches, factories and institutions of every kind as well as for the general public.

Some of the things we have discovered at first hand by our experience may prove of interest to you and may enlighten you and so we will recite a few of the more noteworthy phases of the subject for any influence upon your writings that our experiences may hold.

Let us take the subject of small projection machines, for instance,—the so called "home" projector, the portable projector, etc. We realize probably even more so than you because of our closer contact with the public who pass our ground-floor modern display rooms that there is a certain undeveloped field for this class of projector —SEEMINGLY—until the subject is really investigated. We have had numerous calls for small machines, home machines, etc., and to satisfy the demand we were on the lookout for the best small machine available. Consequently we have ordered at various times one of practically every make of small machine that has been placed before the public. After demonstrating and displaying each of these projectors to scores of interested inquirers we always managed to dispose of the sample machine which we had purchased, but in each instance we learned that each machine had some particular advantages and also certain particular disadvantages, but one thing we learned was that all these small machines which we handled shared the common disadvantage, that they would not pass Underwriters Insurance specifications.

Now here is a thing to be considered—as it is the very heart of the entire situation—the Underwriters do not charge a heavy rate (or refuse insurance entirely) where small projectors are concerned, any more than they would if a large projector is concerned, but their rulings insist that any motion picture machine, must be enclosed in a regulation booth as long as the film handled by that machine is of the same standard size as inflammable film.

At first, it seemed to us as if such a regulation was an arbitrary ruling and an imposition, but after carefully weighing all the circumstances, based on our observations, we have decided that the Underwriters' attitude is correct because there is indeed a great fire hazard for the public at large to handle inflammable film except in a fire-proof booth. The general public do not appreciate the high combustibility of film and so they are very, very careless and it is no uncommon thing for owners of so-called small projection machines to smoke and scatter matches in close proximity to films in their own homes, stores, etc.

We firmly believe that if several thousand of these small projectors were sold to the general public and they would carelessly neglect the precautions demanded by the Fire Underwriters that it would only be a very short time until several great film disasters would awaken the public to the dangers of such neglect.

You might say, what has all this to do with the subject we are treating. Here is the connection.

Small projection machines are bought with a motive —sometimes two motives. They are bought first because they are cheap in price, and second because their portability is the feature aimed at, and as long as a machine is without a booth it is "portable" but as soon as it requires a booth the motive underlying the selection of that type of projector is destroyed and the purchaser might just as well buy a machine of the professional type.

We have only come to this decision ourselves within a recent period, but since having become convinced that this was the correct attitude we have made more headway in installing standard equipment in schools, wealthy homes, and institutions that for a long time prior to this wanted the small machine.

Now, we explain to prospective customers the vast advantages of motion picture equipment and at the same time advise them that the cost will be more than just a hundred or two hundred dollars. This weeds out merely the curious seeker after information, and leaves for us

(Continued on page 789)

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

EQUIPMENT OPERATING

PROJECTION

By I. G. SHERMAN

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Operating Room of Character

C. GLEICHMAN and D. R. Canady, Cleveland, Ohio, send in a most interesting letter enclosing photographs, which are herewith reproduced, showing the operating room equipment of the Stillman theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.

This theatre is known as "a picture-play house of character," and I think you will agree with me after studying the accompanying illustrations that the term might well be applied to the operating room also. Brother Gleichman, president of Local 160. I. A. T. S. E., and Brother Canady, also a member of that local, have been working practically night and day since the opening week making and installing the equipment for this up-to-the-minute operating room.

Generator for Speed Indicator Attached to Head of Machine

The room is 18 feet long, 13 feet high and 9 feet wide. The inside is painted a dark green which protect the eyes of the operator from any strain as would be the case if the walls were painted of some light hue that would act to reflect the promiscuous rays of light which are always present, into the eyes of the operator.

The projection equipment consists of three Super-Simplexes, two of which are in the main projection room, while the third is used in the screening room in the basement, where all pictures are run before their initial showing to the audience. Speedco arc controllers are used to feed the arc on each machine. Three spot lights are among the equipment, making it possible for the operators to obtain many striking effects.

Two rewind benches with rewinds and a work bench are also a part of the operating room equipment. This latter—the work bench—is used, not as a store room but for the purpose it is intended, a work bench, and it is here that these geniuses of the operating room spend much of their spare time. The switch board is equipped with two ammeters and a volt meter which should be in every operating room where results are to be obtained and where operators will try and get those results, which can only be done by being wide awake at all times.

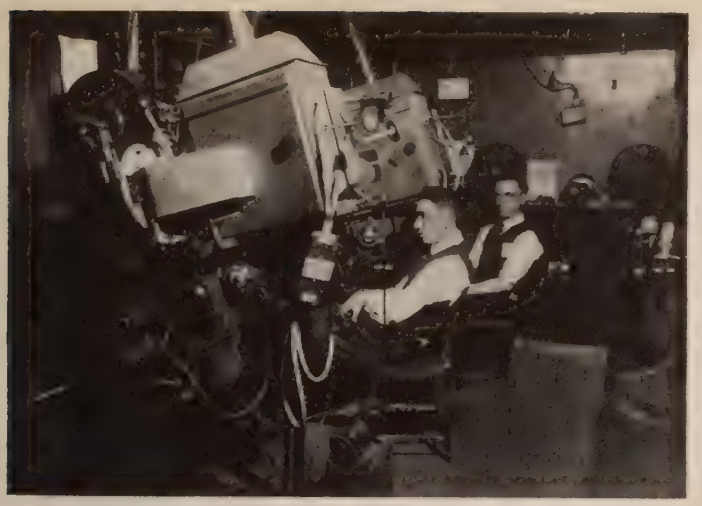
The pictures are projected a distance of 137 feet, upon a Satin screen. The amperage at the projection arcs is 125 amperes. Size of picture being 18 feet wide. Angle of projection 11½ degrees.

Minor accessories are: Film measuring machines, film polisher, film racks and tanks (these brothers make and color their own film titles), pure ice water, first aid cabinet, and other things too numerous to mention.

The equipment designed and installed by these two men are as follows: Motor switches on both sides of each machine; speed control handles, likewise; framing lamps and fire shutter lifter; an eelctric photometer for motion picture work consisting of a selenium cell on the screen which is connected to a Galvanometer in the projection room. As the selenium cell changes in resistance in proportion to the amount of light striking it the principle is easily seen. In this way the relative merits of condensers, carbons, etc., are easily determined.

Last but not least comes the speed indicating system, in which neither time nor money was spared to design and install, making this, so the brothers claim, the only speed indicating device not affected by temperature changes. The generators are driven from the shaft of the friction drive discs via spring belt, and make 150 revolutions per minute at maximum speed.

The castings for the generators were poured from the same crucible, and therefore have the same characteristics. For the windings a wire having a nil temperature coefficient was used. There are three of these meters in the installation, located, one in the operating room, one in the manager's office and one at the orchestra leader's desk.



Well, boys, you certainly have got some operating room. And the ventilating system is about the finest I have ever seen. I cannot find anything to criticize, although at first I did think that the "easy chairs" were not quite high enough, but that was before I had read your letter, wherein you say that the ports are 12 inches square. That explained the comfortable positions you both assume. The one thing that attracted my attention was the first-aid cabinet. This is also something that should be in every operating room, yet few operators or managers give any thought to the possibility of accident to the operator which might turn into something serious if it did not receive proper attention immediately.

You have evidently not been satisfied to use your hands only. but have used your brains as well, the results of which are better shown by the illustrations. I would be pleased to have a more detailed description of the slide projectors which are, I suppose. those additions to the door of the lamp house.

There are several points which managers would do well to observe; one of these is to furnish the operator with a good pair of opera glasses or binoculars, so that he can observe the detail of the picture thrown upon the screen, which is impossible with the naked eye where the throw is a long one. Another point is the inter-communicating system of telephones, which enables each department to get in touch with the other. A manager who considers the comfort of his operators is bound to, sooner or later, be repaid by better results upon the screen, for an operator is human and will respond when treated as something more than a necessary evil.

The Left and Center Views Illustrate a Device Invented by Canady and Gleichman of the Stillman Theatre, Cleveland, Which Indicates the Speed of the Picture to the Orchestra Leader. The Right Scene Shows the Operating Room Ventilation at the Same House

Gleichman and Canady in the Operating Room

The above paragraph does not apply to Gleichman or Canady, for they are men whose qualifications are such that they can demand and get the things they want. Canady is an associate member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, also associate member of the Institute of Radio Engineers, besides being one of the shining lights of Local 160.

The department will welcome any suggestions or items that will be of interest to its readers from these brothers at all times. So don't hesitate to write for fear that what you have to say might not be of interest. Let me be the judge of that.

Another Wiring Diagram for Rheostat and Compensarc

W. K. H., Baltimore, Md., sends in the accompanying drawing of wiring diagram for rheostat and transformer, and says:

"With reference to the diagram showing the method of wiring so as to use the rheostat or compensarc on either machine, which appeared in the Department, page 3880 issue of Dec. 16, would say that the diagram enclosed appears to me to be the better scheme. With this method I believe I can do anything that can be done with the other, and still something that can't be done with the other. A. and B. represent two two-pole double-throw switches. C. and D. the two machines, and E. and F. the rheostat and compensarc respectively. Look this over and give me your opinion of it."

"I looked it over and then wrote the brother inquiring just what he could do that could not be done with the other, and received the following reply:

"I was very much in hopes of escaping the very job you have laid out for me, viz.: explaining the advantages of the plan of wiring as set forth in my last letter. I was in hopes you would study the drawing, and if you wished to publish it, do your own explaining.

"However, I will do my best to make my meaning clear, but as I don't feel in the mood for writing, I fear my talk will be in chunks. In the first place we will assume that we are working with a Mercury Arc rectifier and a rheostat. We prefer to use the rectifier continually because it gives us the best light and is more economical. By your method, if we are running one machine on the rectifier we could light the other machine on the rheostat at the same time and start off the next reel, and probably, if we are careful, produce a pretty good dissolving effect, but we would have to continue the reel using the rheostat, for if we tried to throw the switch while running, the arc would go out.

"At least that has been my experience. I have been able to throw the switch and go from rectifier to rheostat without losing the arc, but not vice versa. By your method, each time we switch from one machine to the other, we must throw the switch. By mine, we don't throw the switch. We just steal the light (freeze the carbons on the one machine and the other arc goes out). The advantages of my method are that while running one machine on the rectifier, I can throw a switch, trim my lamp and burn a crater on the carbon and then throw the switch again and at the end of the reel simply steal the light and still be running on the rectifier.

"As I said in the beginning, for some reason or other I am not in the mood for writing to-night, and the foregoing seems to be as clear as mud. However, I trust you get my drift and will get my ideas. If not, write me again and I will try and do better."

From the above drawing there seems to be no doubt but what you can do the things you claim, but you lose sight of the fact that E. is a compensarc and not a rectifier. From the one you are getting A. C., while the other (the rectifier) is supplying D. C., that is why the arc goes out in trying to change from rheostat to rectifier. In your diagram, by the proper manipulation of switches it is possible to use either compensarc or rheostat on either machine, and if you will compare the two diagrams you will see that they are practically the same.

In the diagram I used to illustrate the article to which you refer the lamp opposite the one on which the switch is thrown is receiving current through the rheostat while the other lamp is running on the compensarc. This does not permit the stealing of light from one machine to the other, but was simply intended to be used where the operator wanted to be able to burn a crater on the idle lamp while running the other, and also have some means whereby he would be able in case of emergency to continue his show. Using a rheostat and compensarc, there appears to be no reason why at the change over the arc should go out, but with a rectifier, I dunno. Your method is the better after all, I guess, and we'll see what others think of it. If they will write and tell me what they have learned in their own experience we will soon have a discussion under way that will be of value to all of us. Come on, now boys, and let me hear from you.

To Carbon Inquirers

ATTENTION is hereby called to operators who have requested samples of the Speer Carbon Company's "Hold-Arc" carbons, that they are for use on direct current only. These carbons are constructed with a hard core and coated with metal, which enables the operator to use a smaller negative carbon. They can be used where the current is supplied to the machine through a motor generator set or mercury arc rectifier, but cannot be used in connection with inductors, economizers, or choke coils. Kindly bear this in mind when writing.

Polarity Indicator

H. J. Matthews, New York: Can you tell me some simple method of finding the polarity of a direct current supply system? Have heard that there are polarity indicators, but am afraid they would cost too much. Would thank you for an early reply.

Answer: Here is an inexpensive polarity indicator that will answer the purpose quite satisfactorily: Take a small piece of blue print paper, which can be purchased at any photograph supply shop, and after moistening it, it will turn white at the negative wire when testing for polarity When not in use keep the paper, which can be cut into small squares, in a small metal box which will not admit any light.

CARBONS
SPEER BRAND

FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY

½x12 Solid.....$3.75 per 100
⅝x12 Cored..... 5.00 " 100
¾x12 Cored..... 7.00 " 100

Write for prices on case lots
TERMS—CASH WITH ORDER
No Carbons sent C. O. D.

We handle everything for the theatre—Write for catalog

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO.
35 GRAND RIVER AVE., EAST DETROIT, MICH. OR 608 OLIVE ST. ST. LOUIS, MO.

Have Perfect Light

Even the most careful operator will sometimes "freeze" the carbons or let them burn apart. Maintain a perfectly regulated arc without a flicker by installing an

AUTO-ARC

Insures perfect, white light. No "freezing"—no burning apart. Soon saves more than enough current to pay its cost. 30 days' trial guaranteed to satisfy you or your money back. Price $67.50 f. o. b. Owensboro, Ky. Price after Feb. 1, $75.00.

AMERICAN AUTO-ARC CO., Inc.
37 W. Van Buren St. Chicago, Ill.

MOTION PICTURE MACHINES
Power—Simplex—Baird

HALLBERG'S 20th Century Motor Generators

MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens

SANOZONE Deodorants, the perfect perfume for Motion Picture and all Theatres

WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS
Ask for Catalogs

Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ARE YOU BOTHERED

With terminals burning off your lamps? The Foco lug easily overcomes the trouble, because it takes the firmest possible grip on the wire and offers no electrical resistance.

Price 25 cents
Send for Circular

E. E. FULTON CO.
156 W. Lake St.. Chicago

FULCO

Fourth Annual Ball of Local 306

George C. Edwards

ON Sunday evening, January 14, the Central Opera House on East Sixty-seventh street, New York City, was the scene of one of the season's most gala occasions, the Fourth Annual Reception and Ball of Local 306, I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. of Greater New York, being the attraction that called out in large numbers some of the most prominent people in the motion picture industry as well as a great galaxy of movie fans who never seem to forget that they are sure to enjoy themselves at any affair given under the auspices of this popular and progressive organization.

The attendance which was estimated at 1,500, while not as large as in former years, made the affair a much greater physical success in that the dancers were able to enjoy their terpsichorean efforts without unnecessary crowding.

F. N. Richardson introduced to the gathering the well-known stars Anita Stewart and Florence Turner. Miss Stewart, who was introduced as the "Goddess," responded very prettily and said: "I was glad to be here last year, am delighted to be here this year, and hope to be here next year."

Miss Turner, who bears the distinction of having appeared in more photoplays than any other motion picture actresses, and who has been absent from this country for over four years, found that the lovers of the silent drama were as glad to welcome her home again as she was to return. She had nothing but praise for the treatment accorded her in foreign countries, but said: "I am glad to be back home again and pleased to accept the hospitality of local 306."

The stars were the cynosure of all eyes and that their popularity was not on the wane was attested by the crowds that followed them wherever they went. Another distinguished guest was Senator James J. Walker, an honorary member of 306, and it had been planned to present the Senator with a handsome silver card case containing his membership, during the evening, but the Senator was forced to leave before the presentation could be made, nevertheless this will be done in the near future.

Shortly after midnight Will C. Smith called to the stage Brothers George C. Edwards and Harry Mackler, president and business agent, respectively, and in a few well chosen words presented to President Edwards on behalf of the local a beautiful silver loving cup, which, as Smith said, was not large enough to contain the good wishes of the local for their president. To say that Brother Edwards was surprised would be putting it mildly, not, as he said, "for the intrinsic value of the gift, but for the expressions of good will that went with it." It is just such men as George C. Edwards, that help to make a success of organizations.

Brother Harry Mackler, the wide awake business agent of the local was next called to the center of the stage, and presented with a handsome 14k. Sold Gold Waltham watch, with a fob of U. S. gold pieces, to the value of twenty-five dollars; a ten, two five and two two-and-a-half dollar gold coins. Smith said the boys were presenting it to their business agent so that he could get to the office on time in the morning, but Mackler said he was afraid he would be on the job all the time, for if he went to sleep some one might get away with it, and he was not going to take any chances. Mackler is one of those men who are doomed to die in harness, he has been the business agent for so long that business agenting has become second nature with him. May he continue the good work for some time to come.

The Grand March, which was one of the most elaborate from a scenic standpoint that we have ever seen, commenced at 1:15 A. M. and lasted a solid half hour. The lighting effects which were planned by Messrs. Smith, Richardson and Kaplan, and in charge of members of Local 35, were the most elaborate that have been seen at an affair of this kind.

Led by Florence Turner and Will C. Smith, followed by President Edwards and Mrs. Edwards, Harry Mackler and Mrs. Mackler, and the other members of the executive board and various committee with their wives and sweethearts, with the novel lighting effects such as waving flag, falling flag, falling flowers, flying butterflies and the multicolored lights playing upon the dancers it was a sight not soon to be forgotten.

Cup Presented to President Edwards by Local 306, I. A. T. S. E.

The first twenty couples received handsome bouquets of flowers, the gift of the local, and taken all in all the affair was one to be long remembered by the friends of Local 306.

The arrangement committee composed of George C. Edwards, chairman; M. Berkowitz, M. Feinberg, A. I. Mackler and A. Brenner, who worked tirelessly to make the affair the success that it was as deserving of great credit as are the other committees. The reception committee under the chairmanship of Robert Goldblatt, and the floor committee of which A. Polin was chairman handled their duties in a very creditable manner.

Among those present we noticed E. M. Porter, L. W. Atwater, S. Kaplan, Dave Narcey—all of the Precision Machine Company; Will C. Smith, Joe Abrams and others from the Nicholas Power Company; M. A. Carney, secretary-treasurer of the I. A.; L. Goldshlag, president of Local 366; Burt Leroy, of Local 453; Anthony Boscarelli, Local 384 and delegates from other locals.

Hard to Maintain an Arc

C. A. R., Long Island: At present I am using French 5/8 copper coated carbons, soft core, both top and bottom, but find it hard to maintain an arc. The current is 110 volt, 60 cycle, A.C. Am using a Simplex and Powers 6, with two Powers inductors. On the Simplex machine I have just installed a new Powers inductor and have it set at the 50 ampere notch. On the "Six" I am using an old style inductor set at 35 amperes, the highest notch. I will greatly appreciate anything you can suggest that will improve my projection.

Answer: There seems to be no reason for your not being able to maintain an arc, unless the fault lies in the carbons or in the manner in which they are set. These carbons should give you no trouble at all in the lamp using 50 amperes, but might when used on 35 amperes.

There is, of course, a greater resistance in these carbons than is present where the ordinary carbons are used, and I never could get good results from these carbons on a lower amperage than 50, and even then I only used them as uppers. The carbons should be set with the upper slightly behind the lower, as if you were using D.C.; this will prevent the arc from traveling to a great degree, and will be of considerable help in maintaining the arc as you would like to have it. I would suggest that you either get another inductor of higher capacity or else use carbons that are not coated with copper, at least on the machine using but 35 amperes.

Your request has been referred to the manufacturers, and you will no doubt hear from them in a few days.

Voigt Now with Radio Mat-Slide

RADIO MAT-SLIDE COMPANY, 121 West Forty-second street, New York City, manufacturer exclusively of typewriter slides, has just obtained the services of Raymond Voigt. He is a man of experience and will in his new position take care of the advertising, promotion and distribution of the Radio Mat-Slides.

Location may get Patrons—but clear pictures hold them

It isn't transients who are passing by and just drop in, who make your most desirable patronage—it is the steadies who will come back day after day, week after week, month after month, to enjoy the vivid, accurate, brilliant images projected by the

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

That sort of pictures and that sort of box-office receipts spell success for the progressive owner. These lenses are the regular equipment on both Edison and Nicholas Power machines.

Bausch & Lomb objectives and condensers are the choice of the best professional operators—and are procurable through any film exchange.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
569 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.
New York Washington Chicago San Francisco
Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), and Other High-Grade Optical Products.
921

CORRECT
COMBINATIONS
FOR
SPEER "HOLD-ARK"
HARD CORE — METAL COATED
LOWER CARBONS

DIRECT CURRENT

40- 50 Amperes	5/8 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 7/16 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
50- 60 Amperes	3/4 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 7/16 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
60- 80 Amperes	7/8 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 1/2 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
80-100 Amperes	1 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 9/16 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)

FOR SALE BY THE LEADING MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSES

THE CARBONS THAT ARE GUARANTEED

SPEER CARBON CO.
ST. MARYS, PA.

UNION ANNOUNCEMENTS

AT a largely attended meeting of Local 384 I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O., of Hudson County, N. J., held on Saturday, January 13, and presided over by Walter A. Bemis, Dr. H. Charles Hespe, president of the Hudson County Exhibitors League, was present and gave an interesting talk to the boys.

Mr. Hespe was one of the first exhibitors in Hudson County to realize the importance of organization for both exhibitors and operators to combat such legislation as might be detrimental to the motion picture industry in the State of New Jersey.

Plans are under way for the Annual Ball of the St. Louis Moving Picture Machine Operators Union, Local 143, I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. to be held at New Club Hall, 13th and Chouteau avenue, St. Louis, Mo., on the evening of Thursday, February 5.

Jno. Nick, A. L. Stone, R. Spencer, Fred Mosier and Wm. Robison, the committee, have made great progress.

Carbons Needle

C. S., Scandia, Iowa: I am a reader of the News and the Projection Department, and thought I would write and ask you a question or two. I have a hundred foot throw and a picture 8 x 11, using a lens of 8¾ E.F. Am getting a very poor light, using ⅝ inch . . . carbons. They needle and get red hot all over. Current is 110 volt, 60 cycle A.C., and I run my arc on 60 amperes.

What do you think is the matter? Also tell me what size condensers to use. And if you can, send me some of those Speer Hold-Arc carbons and tell me how to use them. I might say that I have one of those Powers Little Giant current savers. Well, I won't take up any more of your time, or you will think I want you to run my machine for me, too; so here's to you as a good friend.

Answer: The fact that your carbons needle is due, no doubt, to their not being the right diameter in thickness, and I would suggest that you use ¾-inch carbons. Also see that the lamp jaws are perfectly clean and that the lamp leads are in good condition; if they have become decomposed or dead, cut off a sufficient length to give a fresh surface and put on new lugs before attaching them to the lamp again; the lamp terminals also should be rubbed over with a small file so as to insure perfect electrical contact at all points.

Try this and let me know the result. For condensers, would suggest that you try two 7½, placing them as close as possible in the mount without their touching each other. The sample carbon you request will not do you any good, as they are for direct current only.

Carbon Deposit on Condensers

A. S., Independence, Kansas: I have a Hallberg motor generator and two Power's 6-A machines, using from 50 to 65 amperes at the arc. I am using the National Silvertip carbons, 11-32 and ¾ and am very well satisfied except that they deposit metal on the rear condenser. I am pleased to say I like the News' Projection Department since you have assumed control and hope you continue the good work.

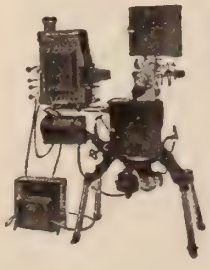
Answer: The deposit of metal on the rear condenser is something that I, too, experienced much trouble with some time ago, and I believe that the remedy for this is to draw the arc further back from the condenser.



When the arc is close to the rear condenser it makes no difference what carbons are used, the surface of the lens will become pitted and unless the condenser is cleaned every day (as they should be) the surface will become so badly roughened that it will affect your light to a greater or lesser degree.

In moving the arc further away from the condenser you must not lose sight of the fact that you will disturb the focus of the spot, and to get the spot in the same condition as it was before the change it will be necessary to experiment with various focal length condensers until the right ones are discovered.

Instead of moving the arc back and forth to obtain the spot focus, move the entire lamphouse, and in this way with the proper condensers it will be possible to bring the lamphouse closer to the machine head, at the same time permitting the arc to be a greater distance from the condenser and in this way prevent the trouble of which you complain.

The SERVICE and DURABILITY that distinguish POWER'S PRODUCT are again exemplified in the purchase by the FOX FILM CORPORATION of thirty-six POWER'S CAMERAGRAPHS, No. 6B, for use in the presentation of their masterful photoplay

A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
NINETY GOLD STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Stop -- Examine -- Investigate the Simplex

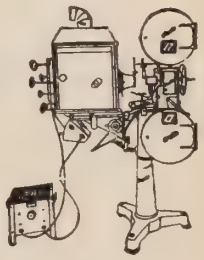
It is your DUTY before purchasing a Projector to consult mechanical and projection experts and obtain from them their unbiased opinion of the quality of materials used in its construction, the parts involved in its design, its durability and the quality of projection to be obtained therefrom.

We call your attention to a few salient features of the Simplex Projector:

Flickerless
Steadiness of Operation
Simplicity
Absolute Fireproofness
Strength
Accuracy
Durability of Construction
Low Cost of Upkeep

When you purchase a Simplex Projector, Mr. Exhibitor, you get Full Value for every dollar expended. It is the best machine that Money, Brains and Skill can produce and its parts are manufactured of the highest grade of materials on the most accurate machines obtainable.



These are a few of the reasons why it costs more to manufacture the Simplex Projector than any other moving picture machine on the market.

If you want Value Received—INVEST IN A SIMPLEX

Send for Catalog "N"

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO., Inc.
317 East 34th St., New York, N. Y.

BANG CRASH "JUST A MOMENT PLEASE"

Don't you know that you can't hold your audience by showing the "Just a Moment Please." They are paying to see a good performance.

There is no excuse for having old worn out rattle boxes. What you need is a new machine. Write us to-day for our easy payment proposition, which enables you to purchase any make M. P. machine at a little investment.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Powers, Edison, and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers, and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres. Third Floor, Mallers Bldg., Cor. Madison Street and Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

MINUSA

"SCREEN LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS"

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN" Perfected.

MINUSA CINE PRODUCTS COMPANY
SAINT LOUIS | CHICAGO | SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH | CALGARY, ALBERTA | NEW YORK
SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

Wagner WHITE LIGHT Converters

If you don't know what a White Light Converter can do for you, for your projection, for your patronage, ask us or your local lighting company.

Let us send you Bulletin 10922.

WagnerElectric
Manufacturing Company, St. Louis, Mo.

380

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

THE CAMERA

The Manufacture of Cinematograph Film Stock

ALTHOUGH the methods of photographing cinematographic negatives and preparing positives therefrom have been extensively described and are, more or less, common knowledge, very little has been put upon record, in collective form, about the interesting processes involved in the manufacture of virgin cinematograph film stock.

The processes and methods practiced in preparing sensitized photographic goods are generally considered to be profound "trade secrets" of incalculable value, but this is at most only true insofar as the chemical formulæ of the various manufacturers are concerned.

While the emulsion, substratum, and other pertinent formulæ of a photographic manufacturer are jealously guarded, the mechanical details of the film manufacturing process have long been matters of record, and it is our purpose to provide readers of the Camera Department with a concise and non-technical description of the manner in which sensitized cine film is prepared.

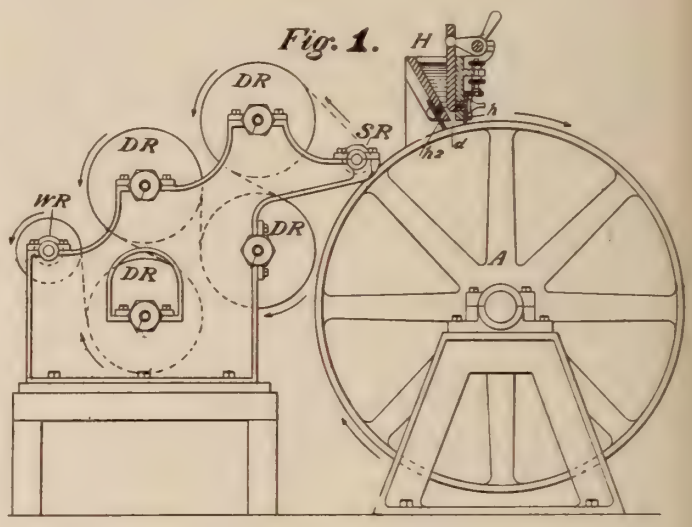
This description will be followed with interest, we believe, for it is doubtful, if any user of motion picture film strips has not wondered, at some time or another, how celluloid could be made, coated with emulsion, and dried without blemishes, in such considerable lengths as are commonly employed in cinematography.

Closely rivaling in interest the details of sensitized film manufacture is the history of the celluloid photographic film or "pellicle."

By reason of the extensive newspaper comment, at the time of the court victory of the owners of the Goodwin patent (the Ansco Company) over the Kodak Company, it is generally believed that Hannibal Goodwin, the deceased Newark clergyman, was the originator of the flexible, transparent celluloid base for photographic films.

Such, however, is not the case for transparent photographic negative films of good quality were prepared by the late John E. Carbutt of Philadelphia, as early as 1884*, which is three years prior to the filing of Goodwin's patent application (May 2, 1887) and, as a matter of fact, the first sensitized celluloid strips of sufficient length for consecutive view photography were supplied by Mr. Carbutt.

Through some odd freak of fortune Goodwin's patent was not granted until many years later (1898—U. S. Patent No. 610,861), while a patent for a process of manufacturing flexible celluloid films was granted to Henry M. Reichenbach (the Kodak Company's chemist) in 1889. The culmination of the suit between the Goodwin interests and the Kodak Company is history now, so we may pass to our description of the actual manufacture of the celluloid film base and its subsequent coating with light sensitive compounds.



Our first consideration must naturally be the flexible and transparent sheets which constitute the "base" or support for the photographic emulsion. Since this article is a description of the manufacturing process instead of a series of working instructions it would be idle to attempt to set forth any quantitative formula for the preparation of pyroxylin compounds such as enter into the formation of celluloid film base.

Briefly summed up the preparation of the "dope" (as it is called) which is transformed into flexible celluloid sheets is as follows:

Cellulose, in the form of bleached cotton or paper, is treated by the action of Nitric and Sulphuric acids, at regulated temperatures until the desired degree of nitration is reached, and the cellulose is then washed in water until all traces of the acids are removed. It is then dried and the resultant product is termed collodion cotton, which may be said to be equivalent to the explosive guncotton.

Collodion cotton is similar in appearance to the original raw cotton, but after treatment with acids, as above outlined, it is found to be readily soluble in certain alcohols and ethers known as solvents, and upon being mixed with such solvents, the collodion cotton rapidly loses its structure and becomes transformed into a colorless and somewhat viscous fluid.

For the preparation of the celluloid base a given quantity of collodion cotton is placed in a large revolving barrel or churn, and the necessary amount of solvent added, together with certain proportions of camphor and fusel oil, the last named ingredient facilitating the stripping of the celluloid sheet from the surface upon which it is subsequently formed. After the mixing barrel has been revolved for a sufficient length of time to entirely dissolve the cotton, churning is stopped and the "dope," as it is now termed, is run off into settling vats, where it is allowed to stand until all of the bubbles, caused by the churning operation, have passed off. When free from all vestige of air bubbles, the dope is conveyed through pipes to the hopper of the casting machine by which the flexible, transparent celluloid sheets are formed.

In the early days of the industry flexible celluloid sheets were produced by flowing dope, prepared substantially according to our foregoing description, upon glass-topped tables of considerable length, and stripping the resultant transparent film therefrom when dry. It will be obvious that flexible celluloid sheets prepared in this manner must necessarily be of limited dimensions, whereas, nowadays, cinematographic film stock is commonly supplied in continuous and unbroken strips of 400 feet in length.

The apparatus used in making flexible sheet celluloid in rolls of indefinite length is termed a "casting drum," and such a machine is shown diagrammatically in Fig. 1 (reproduced from the Celluloid Company's patent of 1896). In Fig. 1, A is a large metal drum having a nickel-plated or german-silver surface, machined to absolute accuracy and polished to a miscropically smooth surface. H, Fig. 1, is the hopper or reservoir into which the "dope," or liquid celluloid, is conducted by suitable piping, and from which the dope solution is caused to flow in a thin sheet onto the revolving drum A.

The thickness of the layer of solution deposited upon the drum A by the hopper H (Fig. 1) is regulated by the adjustable scraper h, while the celluloid solution is prevented from flowing down the other side of the drum by another scraper, h2, which is made of soft flexible material and bears upon the surface of the casting wheel as shown.

The casting drum is slowly revolved (in the direction shown by the arrows) in a current of warm, dry air which causes the solvents in the dope to evaporate so rapidly that before the drum

* Photo Miniature No. 37—"Film Photography"—by George E. Brown —April, 1902—page 9.

A has made a complete revolution the layer or film of celluloid, deposited thereon by the hopper H, has become self-supporting and hard enough on its surface to prevent its being marked by the stripping roller S R, Fig. 1, which pulls it away from the surface of the casting wheel A before a complete revolution has occurred.

From the stripping roller S R, the freshly cast celluloid sheet is passed around a series of drying rollers (indicated by the letters D R in Fig. 1) which are internally heated and serve to drive off any solvents which have remained in the film. Having traversed the drying rollers the transparent flexible celluloid sheet is received by the wind-up roller W R, Fig. 1, whereon it is reeled up in lengths suitable to the requirements of photographic manufacturing.

It will be readily apparent from a study of Fig. 1 that a casting drum, such as is there shown, may be operated continuously and unbroken rolls of flexible celluloid of any required length thus produced. While the length of the film roll is arbitrary the width of these flexible sheets, as supplied by the Celluloid Company for cinematographic purposes, is 21 inches, while the Kodak Company, who prepare their own film base (called Kodaloid) make the sheets 42 inches in the clear.

It might be of interest to state that with the exception of the Kodak Company and the Lumiere concern in France, most every maker of cinematographic film stock throughout the world uses film base made by the Celluloid Company at their works in New Jersey.

As the life of a cine film depends upon the wearing qualities of the celluloid base, this latter is now subjected to a series of rigid tests with regard to the following qualities:

Shrinkage in chemical processing.
Stretch and breaking strain.
Wear and tear.
Liability to become scratched.

Special instruments are utilized in making these tests and a high standard must be constantly maintained in the finished film base.

With our transparent flexible celluloid base now prepared it might appear that the next manipulation in order would be that of coating the base with the light-sensitive photographic emulsion, but upon consideration, it will be realized that the celluloid base must be treated, on one side, in some such way as to kill the glaze on the surface of the sheet—thus insuring the adherence of the photographic emulsion throughout all future chemical and mechanical operations to which the finished cine film stock is subjected.

In order to insure the emulsion from peeling or separating from the base, throughout the life of the film after coating, it is found necessary to apply a chemical treatment to one side of the celluloid, which, while leaving the surface of the film smooth and transparent, will create perfect and permanent adhesion between the emulsion and the celluloid. The mixture used in film manufacture to accomplish this is called the substratum and substrating, or the application of such a compound to the film base, is the next operation in order.

The substratum is applied to the celluloid base by the use of a machine similar or identical to that used in applying the photographic emulsion and substrating is generally done after the celluloid base has thoroughly dried, although we have been told that the Kodak Company applies the substratum compound to the celluloid at the time the sheets are formed, the substrating machine being located somewhere between the stripping roller of the casting wheel and the heated drums by which the film base is subsequently dried.

The exact chemical constituency of the substrating compounds used by the various makers of photographic films are jealously guarded secrets, being considered almost equal in importance to the formulæ for emulsion making. It would serve no useful purpose to give a substratum formula here, but the following points concerning the requisite properties of such a compound may be of interest.

A substrating mixture is usually a light solvent (of the celluloid base of course) of an acid nature and carrying a certain percentage of gelatine. The mixture must be specially adapted to the base as some base formulæ require quite a different substratum mixture than others, and what would make the emulsion adhere to one might be useless with another.

While all film base used at the present time is substantially celluloid, the celluloid differs in the make-up as produced by the various manufacturers, and thus the substratum has to be adapted

Are You a Member of the Brook Library?

If Not, Why Wait Longer?

Join To-Day,
Or At Least Investigate

BROOK LIBRARY
Rooms 709-710 Godfrey Building
729 Seventh Ave. New York City

ANNOUNCEMENT

Our plant, recently destroyed by fire, has been rebuilt and thoroughly equipped with all new machinery of most improved type.

Developing Printing Color Work

YOUR BUSINESS SOLICITED

PACIFIC FILM LABORATORIES
5813-27 Santa Monica Boulevard Los Angeles, Calif.

EVANS' perfection in DEVELOPING and PRINTING has aided many a film reputation.

Why not protect your name and work by employing this incomparable service for this important work?

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th St. New York City
Telephone 6881-2 Audubon

THEATRE AND EXCHANGE MAILING LIST SERVICE

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

N 97

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.
80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

A scenario department

considers only type-written manuscripts—others are too hard to follow.

Your audiences are interested in clear pictures only—for the same reason.

The clearest pictures are on Eastman Film—identifiable by the stencil mark

"EASTMAN"

in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

You Laboratory Men

Why try to develop with Caustic Soda when "Emergol" was produced to give Metol results.

Until "Agfa" Metol is again available "Emergol" represents our endeavor to keep the trade supplied with an efficient product at a low price.

5 lb. tin $50.00

Berlin Aniline Works

213 Water Street New York

to the celluloid used, this being one of the important points connected with the manufacture of cinematograph film stock.

Some of our technical readers have doubtless seen samples of positive stock which had been tinted evenly with some color when manufactured thus obviating the necessity of tinting the positive when being processed in the laboratory. While it has generally been assumed that such stock was coated upon colored celluloid base it might be of interest to state here that prematurely colored motion picture positive stock of this character is produced by adding the requisite coloring matter (in the form of suitable dyestuffs) to the substrating compound.

When color is applied to the film base with the substratum it penetrates the superficial structure of the celluloid to some extent, and is impervious to the action of the developing, fixing and washing baths used in film laboratories.

We shall follow our substrated base into the coating and drying rooms next week and investigate the succeeding steps of film manufacture, which, of course, are carried out in non-actinic light.

(To be continued next week.)

A Musical Suggestion

I HAVE been playing for pictures for the past ten years, and own a music library consisting of over 4,000 compositions.

When selecting my musical programs, I found that it is very difficult to find real dramatic or agitated music. More than once I have to search for hours to find such numbers.

I have just finished the classification of my library, and always willing to help, I'm mentioning some dramatic numbers:

"Crescendo," by Lassen; "Brooklet in the Woods," by Spindler; "Dreams," by Wagner; "Spinning Wheel," by Thome; "L'Adieu," by Favarger; "To Spring," by Grieg; "Spring's Awakening," by Bach; "At Eventide," by Gahm; "Prelude," by Rachmaninoff; "Love Song," by Flegier; "Rustle of Spring," by Sinding.

Hoping that the above will be of assistance to all my musical friends, I beg to remain, Very truly yours,

B. C. Smith,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Musical Review of the Latest Numbers Most Suitable for Picture Playing

1—When Shadows Fall—Reverie by Bendix. An exceptional fine number for love scenes.
(McKinley Music Company.)

2—Three new operatic selections have been published in the past month by G. Schirmer.
(a) "Around the Map," by H. Finck.
(b) "Girl from Brazil," by S. Romberg.
(c) "Passing Show of 1916," by Romberg and Motzam.

3—World's Progress—A new march creation by Victor Herbert.
(M. Witmark Edition.)

4—Two new Waltz Albums have been published in the past month by the Carl Fischer Music House.
(a) Strauss Waltz Album.
(b) Waldteupel Waltz Album.
These Albums contain 15 of the very best waltzes by these famous waltz kings.

5—Periscope—A wonderful march for military scenes, composed by Thos. S. Allen and published by Walter Jacobs.

TITLES
Clear, Clean and Brilliant
Eastman stock
Wording Perfectly Balanced With or Without Borders
ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO.
1339-51 Diversey Parkway Chicago, U. S. A.

WHY THROW CARBONS AWAY
When you can save them by using the D & L Carbon Savers. Price each . . . . $1.00 Extra Heavy Weight
Exhibitors Supply Company, 4th Floor, Mallers Bldg. CHICAGO ILL.
Send for special price list of supplies.

MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

Some Pictures Offer Great Musical Opportunities

THE motion picture theatre of today is a place of more criticism than any other house of musical entertainment and offers wonderful opportunities to the ambitious and energetic musician to show and prove that he is absolutely indispensable if the management strives to give the public a good show.

It is also a proven fact that "A successful musical interpretation is as necessary to a picture as good projection." The truth of this maxim, born of experience, cannot be denied. Music in the motion shows provides "atmosphere" and establishes mood. It infuses the mute action of the motion drama with the life of tone and harmony. Properly used, it may be made to take the place of the spoken word, and underline every detail of picture action and registration with appropriate tonal comment, explanation or emphasis.

But music should never be considered an accompaniment to the motion picture—it should be a part of it. In this fact, accepted in theory and carried out in practice, we have the gist of music success in the movies. Synchronization is its secret—the welding of picture movement and music movement, the matching of picture mood with music mood, the merging of picture and music in a unit of effect.

One of our greatest exhibitors in the country, S. L. Rothapfel, of the Rialto theatre in New York, says: "All pictures suggest music and all music suggests pictures, and it is a pity that exhibitors do not give this subject more careful attention."

Recently I reviewed a six-reel Metro production entitled "The White Raven," directed by George D. Baker, and it is by all means the most remarkable production I ever saw. From a musical standpoint this production is just as remarkable and wonderful as in its direction and its plot. It offers the most wonderful opportunities for a good musical interpretation, and the live musician has the greatest chance of his life to prove to his manager what good music really means for pictures.

The story of the picture is as follows: William Baldwin, ruined in business by his partner, John Blaisdell, implores Blaisdell's aid, and receives in answer a five-dollar bill, across the face of which is written, "Spend this for a gun and use it on yourself." Hopelessly, Baldwin and his daughter Nan go to the Yukon, where the father soon dies, and the daughter earns a living by singing in a rough dance-hall, where as "Nightingale Nan" she is the idol of the miners.

Nan keeps her purity and her dignity unsullied even among these sordid surroundings, earning the enmity of the other women singing there, who make life unbearable for her. When she discovers that the little claim on Bear Creek, the only thing her father has left her, is worthless, she at first collapses. Then, rallying her forces, she becomes defiant and tells the miners who have been forcing their attentions upon her that they may have her, the lucky man to be the winner in a card-game, she to take the money won in the game and go away to seek fame and fortune.

A bearded stranger wins the game with a pair of deuces, pays her $1,000 a card, and she leaves with him for her cabin. Once there, she repents her rash bargain, and implores him to release her, offering the money in return. He makes her sign an I. O. U. for herself, promising to pay the debt at any time in the future that he may see fit. "You will win success," the stranger tells her, "but in the hour of your greatest triumph I shall claim you. and when I do you must return." She leaves on this condition.

Nan's beautiful voice wins success for her all over the world. As Mlle. Nanon Boldini, five years later, she is reigning operatic queen at La Scala, Milan, and then comes to the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, to make her American debut in "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Her success is instantaneous, and when, after the "mad scene," she leans over to the orchestra and shares her flowers with the man who has played her flute obligato—the audience goes wild with enthusiasm. Two of the most important patrons of the opera house. John Blaisdell and James Van Brunt, business rivals who hate each other, are united in their admiration of Mlle. Boldini, and obtain an introduction, etc.

Nan is singing four times—twice in a dance-hall, once in the opera and once at a reception of her rich friends. All four times are kept long enough on the screen to enable the exhibitor to engage a soprano singer and to let the people in his theatre not only see but also hear what they see.

In the scene where she sings the great aria from "Lucia," as announced in a leader of the picture, the exhibitor has a real chance to give his patrons not only a moving picture, but real opera.

The fact is that the entire picture deserves the best musical treatment possible. It offers a great opportunity to the musician to prove to his management that he is important and indispensable. It means for the management better business and patronage, and for the people double value for their money. "A good show and good concert."

Use of Music Theme in Pictures

IN a recent communication received by this department from Peekskill, N. Y., the writer expresses himself in highly complimentary terms about how greatly he appreciates our music columns, and at the same time endeavors to maintain a very high standard as regards quality of the music he provides for his films. In reference to the music theme for pictures he comments as follows: "I will surely follow the present editor's ideas on the cue plotting—but I will always be at an issue with him over the subject of theme plots, as I don't think they are always workable."

The use of theme in motion pictures is neither more nor less than applying to the film drama a principle Wagner introduced in opera. Wagner in his scores associates a certain theme, motive or air with the appearance of his leading characters. When they take the stage the melody with which they are identified is heard. This effective musical device has great possibilities in the picture drama, and is valuable in giving unity to music and dramatic action.

The picture musician has wide freedom in the choice of his theme material. Most important to remember, however, is that the first requisite is a genuinely melodious theme, one which will bear repetition. A theme of pleasing outline, suave, graceful and pronouncedly melodic in type is sufficient to establish clearly the identity of the character whose appearance it accompanies.

A theme such as that described may be varied in tempo and played either ff or pp, as the varying of the stage action may demand—the effect will be the same. It will make the role with which it is identified "stand out." The use of the leading theme is naturally best adapted for larger and more elaborate picture

Although it is the finest musical instrument that can be bought, is sold at a price you can easily afford.

THE BARTOLA ORCHESTRA

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 708-710 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory
Oshkosh, Wisconsin

productions, in which the appearance and stage action of principals is broken up to some degree by minor incident. Yet the idea may, on occasion, if the picture conditions are favorable, be employed in smaller pictures as well. At all events the use of the theme is an idea on which the intelligent moving picture musician can ring his own variations. And in many cases he will find it of great value in "making the music fit the picture."

"THE PRIDE OF THE CLAN"

Reviewed on page 432

(Artcraft)

REVERIE (Lento), by Rissband, is the Theme

1—"Scotland Forever" (Song) by Klein until—T: "The Isle of Killean."
2—"Scotch Poem" (6/8 Allegro tempestoso) by MacDowell until—T: "To the Clan it's the hour of home coming."
3—Continue pp until—T: "The sentinel of the home coming."
4—Silence just produce effects of big Church Bell until—T: "A South Wester Mother."
5—"Furioso for Storm" (Watch Bell) Produce this effect (Church Bell) ff during playing for the Storm Scene until—T: "The Hammer stroke."
6—Silence just watch hammer strike the bell until—T: "Dinna yea hear the signal?"
7—Continue Bell effect ad lib. while playing a new Furioso to action pp or ff until—T: "Blessed are they that mourn."
8—Organ to action until—T: "Alone! Alone!"
9—"Dreams of Devotion (4/4 Lento) by Langey until—T: "Time heals all wounds."
10—"Blue Bells of Scotland," paraphrase arr by Langey until—T: "Ye'll look for kisses on your wedding day."
11—"Annie Laurie" (Violin Solo) by Stobbe until—S: "In Village-Bagpipe player."
12—"Scotch Highlands" (Caledonian) by Boettger until—S: "Letter."
13—Continue "Annie Laurie" Same as for No. 11 until—T: "Will you take me in your own boatie."
14—"Creepy Creeps" (Mysterioso) by Tyers until—T: "Supposing they were cannibals."
15—Continue Trio pp until Dance then to action until—T: "Maget will you mary me?"
16—"Scotch Lullaby" (6/8 Andantino) by Kunits until—T: "Sabbath Morn."
17—Organ to action (Watch Church Bell until—T: "Lord Dunstable's yacht in Scottsh waters."
18—"Silent Summer Night" (Poeme d'Amour) by Wirz until—T: "New love had come to you."
19—"Theme" until—T: "And so Jamie like many another, etc."
20—"Rye Waltzes" by McLaughlin until—T: "Are you Jamie Campbell?"
21—"Theme" until—T: "The lady is she told me, etc."
22—Organ to action (Short scene) until—T: "Betrothal feast were blite and gay."
23—"Caledonian Club Parade" (Tempo di Marcia) by Tracy until—S: "The girls gather near big stone table."
24—"Meeting" (Lento) by Bendix until—S: "The Dance begins."
25—"Bonnie Dundee" (Schottische Caprice by Margis Berger until—T: "A Mother's yearning."
26—"Theme" until—T: "The next day."
27—"Organ to action" until—T: "You will not be happy in the world."
28—"A Bride's Prayer" (4/4 Adagio) by Strobl (printed together with Elegy by Czibulka) until—T: "I'll kneel forever, etc."
29—"Continue ff" until—T: "Farewell."
30—"I love a Lassie" (Song) by Lauder until—T: "The wather-beaten craft, etc."
31—Repeat "Scotch Poem" by MacDowell same as played for No. 2 until—S: "On Island."
32—"Organ to action" until—S: "View Bill Bell on shore."
33—"Effect" followed by a Good Hurry (No Fight) T: "to action watching bell until—S: "Woman kneeling on shore."
34—"Organ to action" until—"Flashback to scene on the sea."
35—"Big Storm Hurry" or "Agitato" ff until—T: "After the hours of storm and stress, etc."
36—"Theme" until— * * * * * * * END.

"THE BITTER TRUTH"

Reviewed on page 595

(Fox Production)

"MELODIE" (4/4 Andante Cantabile), by Huerter, is the Theme

1—"Sweet Revery by Tschaikowsky until—"No! No! not that."
2—"Continue ff" with ad lib. Tympany Rumbles during fights and disputes until—T: "Not far away from the boulevard."
3—"Tale of Two Hearts" (4/4 Allegro Moderato) by Roberts until—T: "Through the eighteen long years."
4—"Nocturno in G Minor" (2/4 Moderato) by Krzyzanowski until—T: "Cut that, Nell."
5—"Continue ff" with ad lib. Tympany Rumbles until—T: "The last stitch."
6—"Continue to action" until—T: "With every heartbreak."
7—"Berceuse" (3/4 Andantino) from Jocelyn by Godard until—T: "Doolan's Saloon nearby we find, etc."
8—Piano improvise to action Rages, etc., until—T: "Say, that bum of a father, etc."
9—"Romance" (6/8 Allegretto) by Franz Rubens until—T: "Mary, him the owner of a dive like this."
10—Short Agitato to action until—T: "Don't waste the bottle."
11—Continue "Romance" until—T: "Judge Roberts, whose brain and courage, etc."
12—"Rose Blushes Berceuse" (4/4 Andante) by Brill until—S: "Burglar coming in through window."
13—"Long and good Mysterioso" until—T: "The Fight."
14—"Agitato" until—T: "There was a girl here with him."
15—"New Agitato" pp until—T: "Is this the girl?"
16—"Continue to action" until—T: "Before the bars of justice."
17—"Theme" until—T: "As the year goes on."
18—Organ to action until—T: "Two years more of climbing, etc."
19—"Fata Morgana" (Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "Meanwhile our friend and Pigeon."
20—"Fifth Nocturno" (6/8 Allegretto) by Leybach until—T: "We find Nell, now the confidential clerk."
21—"Nature's Adoration" (Andante) by Brooks until—T: "And so on the boat to Albany."
22—"Brunette" (Valse de Concert) by Severa until—S: "Nell jumping in the water."
23—"Continue ff" until—S: "Interior of Room."
24—"Continue or repeat to action" until—T: "Get in the sein, Martha."
25—"Flirtation" (Waltz Intermezzo) by Meyer Helmund until—T: "I took the liberty to tell the Captain."
26—"Theme" until—T: "The patient soul that's trying so hard, etc."
27—"Serenade" (Andante) by Drigo until—T: "While gray prison walls."
28—"Berceuse" (Moderato) by Grieg until—S: "Nell enters judge Roberts's home."
29—"Organ to action" until—T: "Well, what's the game here?"
30—"On Wings of Song" by Mendelssohn until—T: "Free! ready to start again."
31—"Continue or repeat" to action until—T: "Interior of Beer Saloon."
31—"Silence" until—T: "The fight."
33—"Heavy Agitato" to action until—T: "The first awakening voice, etc."
34—"Venetia" (Moderato). A Spring Song by Tobani until—T: "And now over Nell sweeps, etc."
35—"Continue to action" until—T: "Jim has lost no time, etc."
36—"Theme" until— * * * * * * * END.

"A WIFE BY PROXY"

Reviewed on page 437

(Metro Picture)

"KILLARNEY," Irish Song, is the Theme

1—"Theme" until—T: "I'm afraid to leave you here alone."
2—"Repeat Theme" (Killarney) as an organ solo to action until—T: "Norton Burbeck who lately inherited."
3—"Told at Twilight" (Andante) by Huerter until—T: "Jerry follows his father's instructions."
4—"Last Rose of Summer" (Irish Song) until—T: "The Spider and the Fly."
5—"Piano improvise to action" (Short scene) until S: "Norton stops playing."
6—"Spider and the Fly" (Intermezzo) by Armand until—T: "Some time later."
7—"Kathleen Mavourneen" (Song) until—T: "The wee sma' hours of the morning."
8—"Alice, Where Art Thou?" (Song) by Ascher until—T: "Finding work for willing hands."
9—"Organ to action" until—T: "The comfort guardian has brought sunshine."
10—"Quietude," (4/4 Moderato molto Espressivo) by Gregh until—T: "Jerry decides to keep his own counsel."
11—"Theme" until—S: "Woman begins to play Piano."
12—"Improvise few Cadenzas" to action until—S: "Norton enters."
13—"Rosemary" (Andante) Revery by Barton until—T: "When the witches revelry, etc."
14—"Any good Trot pp during scenes not dancing until—T: "There is something preying on my mind."
15—"Continue ppp"—ff during dancing scenes until—T: "Exterior Scene Norton in Automobile."
16—"Organ to action" until—T: "So you're the man that has stolen."
17—"Silence" until—T: "The fight."
18—"Agitato to action" until—T: "If you will only listen to reason."
19—"Clair de Lune (4/4 Andante) by Thome until—T: "The next day Burleck consults his Attorney."
20—"Bonheur Gavotte Serenade" (4/4 Allegro) by Hartog until—T: "Mr. Norton wishes to speak to you."
21—"The Booster" (Trombone Characteristic by Lake Play very slow—to create fun—by having the Trombone come out prominently and the Orch. pp until—T. "Is there another female in your house?"
22—"Theme" until—T: "Curtis receives an awful jolt."
23—"Serenade" (Andante) by Ern until—T: "I suppose it's within the law."
24—"Continue ff" until—T: "After a month."
25—"Sweet Summer Rose" (3/3 Andante) by Armand until—T: "The trapping of the Spider."
26—"Continue ff" until—T: "You wis little mich, etc."
27—"Love Song" (Moderato) by Puerner ff until—T: "I'm so sorry I knew all the time."
28—"Continue pp" until—T: "Some men are born blind."
29—"After Sunset" (4/4 Moderato) by Pryor until—T: "In the stillness of the early morning."
30—"Theme as an Organ" solo until—S: "Norton reaches the boat."
31—"Theme" with Orchestra ff until—* * * * END.

"HER SOUL'S INSPIRATION"

Reviewed on page 434

(Bluebird Photoplays)

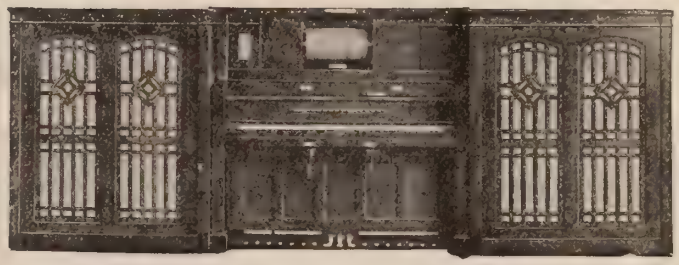
"CHANSON D'AMOUR" (Andante), by Saar, is the Theme

1—"Baladora" (6/8 Allegretto) by Tobani until—T: "Mary's Mother"
2—"Continue to action" until—T: "When I'm gone."
3—"Nocturne in F" (14 Andantino) by Krzyzanowsky until—T: "A Traveling show visits the town."
4—"Tarantelle Sicilienne" by Tobani until—S: "Exterior Theatre. People coming out."
5—"Malena" (Intermezzo) by Ellis until—T: "A surprise for Mary."
6—"Caprice" by Ascher until—T: "And through the country towns."
7—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Andante) until—T: "I haven't much to leave."

8—"Serenade" (3/4 Allegretto Grazioso) by Chaminade until—T: "John Weston of Longport."
9—"Felize," Canzonetta (2/4 Andantino) by Lazey until—T: "And in the baggage car."
10—"Pathetic Andante" by Margis Berger until—T: "The children's aid society."
11—Theme until—S: "Interior of kitchen."
12—"Nature's Adoration" (4/4 Andante) by Brooks until—T: "I'm going to drown that dog."
13—"Solitude" (3/4 Largo) by Czibulka until—T: "In the church yard."
14—"Largo" by Handel until—T: "Silent Bob the fisherman."
15—"In Lover's Lane" (6/8 Allegro Moderato) by Pryor until—T: "Daddy I'm tired."
16—"Dramatic Andante" by Ascher until—T: "When morning dawned."
17—"Sweet Ponderings" (2/4 Andante) by Ravina until—T: "Partners."
18—"Reverie" (4/4 Moderato) by Arnold until—T: "What's your name?"
19—"Serenade" (Andante) by Drigo until—T: "His love won't last."
20—"By the River Romance" (12/8 Andante Sostenuto) by Morese until—T: "Are you interested in that girl?"
21—"Theme" until—T: "In the musician's hands."
22—"Ninfa" (Characteristic Dance) by Von der Mehden until—T: "After a year of success."
23—"Largo" by Handel until—T: "Aren't you dead?"
24—"Simple Aveu" (Moderato until—T: "You look just like daddy."
25—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

"A MODERN CINDERELLA"

(Reviewed on page 439)



(Fox Production)

Important note: In one of the scenes a phonograph is necessary.

"Dawn of Love" (4/4 Allegretto Moderato) by Bendix is the Theme

1—"One Summer's Day" (6/8 Moderato) Idyl by Ringleben until—T: "Now the Prince Charming is just what, etc."
2—"Gavotte" (4/4 Allegretto Grazioso) by Gossec until—T: "And so sister's old duds."
3—Organ to action (short scene) until—T: "And right away Polly gives a party."
4—"Sympathy Waltz" by Mezzacopo until—T: "If you wouldn't treat me like a kid."
5—"Intermezzo" (4/4 Moderato Scherzando) by Bohm until—T: "You will recall that father said, etc."
6—"Rose's Honeymoon" (Reverie) by Bratton until—T: "While Prince Charming is as busy."
7—"Alita" (Tempo di Gavotte) by Losey until—T: "Don't you get jealous."
8—"Sweet Jasmine" (4/4 Allegretto Grazioso) by Bendix until—"Harry finds out what the rest of us know."
9—"Theme" until—T: "What happens from day to day."
10—"Little Puritan," Gavotte (4/4 Moderato) by Morse until—T: "The ball of the season arrives."
11—Organ to action until—S: "Dancing."
12—"Any good Fox Trot" pp during scenes not dancing until—T: "They're playing after the ball."
13—"After the Ball" (Waltz, the famous old song) until—T: "The witch appears."
14—"Silence" just Tympany rolls during Witch scenes until—S: "Witch disappears."
15—"Air Louis XIII" by Ghys (Court Dance, Watch Fanfare Calls) until—T: "Search until you find the owner, etc."
16—"Silence," just Fanfare Calls until—S: "Dancing."
17—"Any good Fox Trot" (short scene) until—S: "June Caprice starts phonograph."
18—"Phonograph some light Fox Trot or 2/4 Dance" until—T: "Right hand, I go to the ball, etc."
19—Any good Waltz until—S: "Caprice in her room being undressed by her mother."
20—Any good One Step until—T: "Tom acts up with more enthusiasm."
21—"Theme" until—T: "Begin the Romeo stuff."
22—"Romeo and Juliet" Waltz until—T: "Another day and then."
23—Organ to action until—T: "You've done everything, etc."
24—"Light Agitato" pp until—T: "More make believe, etc."
25—"Balladora" (6/8 Allegretto Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "You little Cinderella, I adore you."
26—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

CREMONA

SOLO STYLE M 2

The Solo Instrument

Not only produces Better Music, but its operating expense is lower.

A request will bring you full particulars

THE MARQUETTE PIANO CO.

1608-1622 So. Canal Street
CHICAGO

FOTOPLAYER BARGAIN

$10,000 Style 50, with Vox Mystica and all latest improvements finished in December 1916.

Also $4,500 Style 40, in excellent condition.

Both instruments can be seen in daily use, and can be bought at an appealing price.

Address:

H. F. CHARLES

1350 A South Figueroa St., Los Angeles, Cal.

You're Wasting Time, Energy and Money!

If you are attempting to project even the best motion pictures without the aid of a scientifically prepared projection surface

The day has passed when patrons of motion picture theatres were satisfied with "near results." Manufacturers are exercising great care in working out the details of production. There are no "near results" where the exhibitor uses a

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN

"Ask the Exhibitor who owns one!"

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, Inc., 220 W. 42d St., New York City

Leon Schlesinger, General Manager

Canadian Distributors—J. T. Malone Films, Inc., Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal; Allfeatures, Ltd., 56 King St., W., Toronto

BUILDING AND FURNISHING

Palace Theatre of Vinton, Iowa, a Modern House

THE Palace theatre of Vinton, Iowa, one of the many motion picture houses owned and operated by the Palace Theatre Company, is under the management of Mr. Arthur G. Stotle who is one of the "Live Wire Exhibitors" of Iowa.

The theatre was designed by W. F. Brown, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was completed and opened during the year of 1915, and is probably one of the most modern and best equipped theatres in that section of the country.

The theatre is constructed of brick, concrete and steel, measuring 66 feet in width and 150 feet in depth including stage.

The front of the building is constructed of a special decorative brick topped with white stone trimmings. A glass-covered canopy and a large electric sign used in conjunction with numerous electric lamps add greatly to the attractiveness of the front.

The lobby though not very large is furnished with numerous brass display and photo frames. The doors leading into the theatre are finished in mahogany and have stained glass windows in them and have curtains draped upon them. There are also small stained glass windows on either side of the box-office.

Palace Theatre, Vinton, Iowa

The box-office is centered between the two doors leading into the theatre and is constructed of concrete and glass. A National Cash Register ticket-selling machine of the latest type being used, a means of giving quicker and better service to the patrons, which is essential in a house having a reputation such as the Palace's. The flooring of the lobby is of dark red tile.

The interior of the Palace is attractively decorated, the walls being finished in dark brown, all wood-work being mahogany stained. Both direct and semi-indirect lighting is used. For heating a steam heating system used in conjunction with a Richmond Vapor system were furnished. The theatre is exceptionally well ventilated having two 30-inch Davidson Exhaust Fans to draw impure air out of the house and five ceiling vents through which fresh air comes in.

The Palace has a seating capacity of 650; seats were manufactured by the American Seating Company, of Chicago, and are just what is desired for the comfort of the patrons.

The proscenium opening of the stage is 21 feet wide and the stage is 17 feet deep. The stage settings are changed several times each year. For the Christmas season on one side of the stage was seen the interior of a room showing the fire-place with stockings hung up ready for Santa to fill them; on the other side was a huge Christmas tree which was illuminated with small electric lights.

The projection room is equipped with a Powers 6-A and a Motiograph 1916 model. These are used in conjunction with a Wotton Rexolux converter which was manufactured by the Electric Products Company, of Cleveland, Ohio. The projection room is in charge of Guy Alberts, a man worthy of the credit due for the excellent results he obtains. The length of throw is 115 feet onto a Gold Fibre Screen measuring 12 feet by 16 feet.

The orchestra consisting of a piano, violin and drummer renders music most suitable for the picture being shown. A Cable & Nelson piano is used.

Artcraft, Fox, Paramount, Bluebird, K. E. S. E., World-Brady and Mutual Masterpieces and other high-class productions are shown at this theatre, seven to nine reels being shown at each performance, there being three performances daily.

The Palace has shown the "Birth of a Nation," "The Spoilers," "Under Two Flags," "Rags," and "Three Godfathers," all of them proving a great success, a big box-office attraction.

Mr. Stotle advertises extensively in the daily newspapers and distributes handbills to the patrons as they are leaving the theatre. Substantiating the above, I will quote Mr. Stotle: "My idea is to make the patrons feel at home, they receive first consideration." Mr. Stotle reports business very good and the NEWS wishes him continued success.

Typhoon Fans Go Well in South

ERNST GLANTZBERG, President of the Typhoon Fan Company, has just returned from a trip in the south and reports a rousing good business in the Typhoon Ventilating and Cooling Systems.

The first stop on Mr. Glantzberg's trip was Jacksonville, Fla., where he closed a contract with the new Imperial Theatre.

In Miami, Fla., he secured a contract for the Paramount Picture theatre. Daytona was next on the list and here Mr. Glantzberg contracted for equipping the Arcade theatre and the Arcade Skating Rink, which is run in connection with the theatre.

From Daytona, Mr. Glantzberg went to Savannah, where he contracted for the colored theatre, The Star, as did also the Colonial, a new theatre just opened. He also contracted for several theatres in New Orleans and other cities in the south.

lonial, a new theatre just opened.

One Hundred Thousand Dollar Theatre for Halifax

HALIFAX, N. S., now has what is considered to be one of the finest moving picture theatres in the Maritime Provinces. Erected at a cost of over $100,000 it embodies practically every modern improvement in theatre construction. It is the largest in Nova Scotia, and is not excelled by any in New Brunswick. A. R. Cobb, Halifax's leading architect, designed and supervised the construction of the building, which is known as the new Casino. R. J. McAdam, one of the pioneers of the moving picture business in Canada is the proprietor and manager.

The building has a frontage of eighty feet on Gottingen street, the busiest thoroughfare in the North End district of the city. The building is thirty-six feet long, and contains in addition to the theatre, a splendidly equipped café, pool rooms and a confectionery and temperance drink booth. To be exact, the seating capacity is 1,160; five hundred and sixty of these seats are on the main floor, and the remaining six hundred in the balcony.

The stage measurements are twenty-five feet by fifty-six, with a height to the gridiron of forty-eight feet. The decorative scheme is green, gold and pearl, and makes a harmony of shades that is remarkably beautiful. The stage setting is a creation of rare beauty, built and painted by the Storey Scenic Studios of Boston.

Although the frontage is eighty feet, the main entrance is but twenty by forty. There are two foyers, measuring ten by eighty feet; one at the rear of the orchestra and balcony. There are large dressing and toilet rooms for men and for women adjoining the foyers. The operating booth, which is twelve by sixty feet, is at the rear of the balcony, and is equipped with two of the latest motor-driven Simplex machines and two Hallberg economizers.

One of the features of the Casino is the Thermo system of ventilation and heating. Fresh air is brought into the building by a five-foot intake fan. The air passes into the Thermo heating chamber in the basement. After being heated it is injected into the theatre. In warm weather the ventilation can be changed to a cooling system. With this equipment it is possible to completely freshen the air in the auditorium every three minutes.

Three complete changes of program, consisting of Metro, Fox, and V-L-S-E features and selected comedies will be given each week. The theatre will have its own war topical imported especially from London each week. An orchestra composed of ladies, and consisting of nine pieces, will furnish the music. Three of the musicians are concert artists of reputation, and the musical part of the entertainments at the Casino will be a feature of outstanding interest.

The theatre is controlled by R. J. McAdam, one of the first to develop the photoplay business on the Canadian side of the border. He has been actively engaged in running picture theatres for the past ten years, and his long experience insures the theatre of capable management.

An Honest Statement

(Continued from page 775)

to concentrate our efforts, the real prospect who really desires results. We can not only guarantee results in recommending a professional installation but can also guarantee safety, the good will and co-operation of the insurance officials as well as the co-operation of the labor unions and operators' organizations, as we always recommend the employment of a specialist as an operator the same as these same class of people employ chauffeurs to operate their automobiles.

We are so firmly imbued with the idea that the motion picture business to-day in the theatrical field is just in its infancy compared to the possibilities of the motion picture when universally used for visual education as well as visual entertainment, that we have not hesitated to place ourselves on record in this matter in the forepage of our complete catalog issued a few months past.

Here in the —— we may seem to be visionaries, but instead we think you will find us missionaries, as we are instituting within the next several months some new ideas and plans relative to the distribution of motion picture equipment among educational institutions that we are sure will be startling.

While on this subject we want to voice the opinion that this end of the business has never received proper attention in the past. It has been dealt with in a haphazard way while it is worthy of a great deal more study than any other branch of the business to-day. We have just begun our efforts and we find the field stupendous. We are glad to find the NEWS ready to co-operate as we may have ideas of interest to advance very shortly.

In your editorial, you have mentioned Cameras. Here again is a subject that we have given considerable attention. The difficulty lies in the fact that there are about a dozen different makes of cameras on the market and probably twice that many different models. On the other hand we venture to state that very few dealers in the United States can boast of selling more than a dozen to twenty cameras a year. The question arises, which camera to select to meet the greatest average demand and can proper justice be done to any one make?

Motion Picture Cameras are not sold so readily to the general public on account of the high cost of making pictures. In the past year out of several hundred inquiries about cameras aroused through passers-by viewing cameras in our show windows or through a lengthy mail order campaign we made very, very few materialize into sales. It is a fact that when any article of this kind is advertised to the general public, they are so curious relative to the motion picture business that the percentage of dead inquiries to live ones is very, very excessive.

But your editorial, on the other hand, coincided with one of our policies very neatly and that is not so much to find new lines to handle, as to find new fields for the lines we already handle. For instance take colored gelatine; this is found on the shelves of every supply dealer; let such a dealer cut a few sheets into tiny samples and send them to a selected list of window trimmers throughout his territory with a letter stating prices and advising how night displays can be made more attractive. He will get orders. Let him make up a circular with a few attractive cuts of lobby frames used for poster displays and send same to a selected list of mercantile houses for window display, or for framing announcements in department stores, etc. Let him advise photographic trade that he has condensers for sale for enlarging purposes; let him sell rectifiers or motor generator sets to garages; let him sell deodorizers for general utility purposes for lavatories of steamship or railroad companies, etc. In other words let him study his merchandise with a view to their sales possibilities and then let him go after these new fields systematically and persistently. Then he will realize your ideal of making more money.

We are in the market ourselves to handle anything and everything that brings profit. If you have manufacturers on your list seeking an outlet, we will be happy to have you refer them to us as we are wide awake and alive and can sell good goods. We only ask that the merchandise be of such quality that we can consistently back them up with our own guarantee as we have developed a reputation wherein our guarantee means an easy sale and the merchandise we handle must be worthy in quality for us to undertake its sale.

2

YOUR letter of the 6th inst. relative to editorial to be published in the January 20th issue has been noted. The idea you are presenting looks very good to us.

3

REPLYING to your favor of the 6th, we heartily commend your service department and believe it to be an exceptional fine idea and trust you will have success, and you can rest assured we will be glad to cooperate with you in every respect.

4

YOUR letter of the 6th inst. relative to the copy of the editorial which was enclosed is received and read with much interest, which we consider timely, to the point and well written.

This should instill new life and new interest in the Supply business which is greatly needed.

WHAT do you Supply Dealers think of these letters? Do they mean anything? Are they significant? Do they mean a more prosperous supply business? Will your business enlarged put more money into your pockets? It's up to you. MOTION PICTURE NEWS is going to do its part in actively helping you who want our help. E. K. GILLETT.

OPERA CHAIRS

Steel—Cast Iron

Exceptional in Quality—Comfortable

You are invited to make use of our Service Department. Send blue print or sketch for Free Seating Plan.

If you are desirous of reseating, we can help you dispose of old chairs.

Write for Catalog N.

We manufacture Special Out-of-Door Seating.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
1475 Buchanan Ave., S. W.
Grand Rapids, Mich.

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Read What Josiah Pearce & Sons Say About Our Goods

Gentlemen:

Now that you have completed equipment in our new theatres here in New Orleans, and Houston, Texas, we want to take this means of expressing to you our appreciation of the manner in which we have done business with you, also as to the character of your goods. You have, without exception, filled our orders just as promptly as we could ever expect and probably quicker than we had anticipated, and the fact of your having supplied us with brass frames and various other equipment in our fifteen theatres is evidence that we are pleased with your goods, for they are the most attractive, durable and practical that we have as yet found. We wish you good luck in the prosecution of your work.

Yours very truly,
JOSIAH, PEARCE & SONS, New Orleans, La.
J. E. PEARCE.

The Newman Mfg. Co.

Write for our Latest Catalogue

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars.

717-19 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.
Established 1882

The ATMOSPHERIC Screen

THE SCREEN OF A THOUSAND CHARMS

Pictures That Live

ATMOSPHERIC SCREEN CO., Inc.

220 West 42nd St. New York

FAC-SIMILE PAINTINGS

in a beautiful gilt 3 inch width frame size over al 25 x 22 inches. Pictures are painted in oils and water colors of every popular player, all made from poses to appropriately fit this style of frame. Complete with brass name plate, $5.00 each.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES.
Size 22 x 28 75c Each Size 11 x 14 20c Each

SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS $3.00 per thousand. Made by a process that has the appearance of a real photograph. PHOTOGRAPHS, size 8 x 10, all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each. GRAVURE FOLDERS, containing pictures of all the prominent players, including feature stars, $10.00 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of all the players, 600 names, 40c. each.

TRANSPARENCIES, ALL SIZES, from 50c. to $2.50. FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS from $2.50 to $35.00, according to size and frames.

KRAUS MFG. CO., 220 W. 42nd Street, N. Y.
12th floor, CANDLER BUILDING.
Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CALIFORNIA

NEGOTIATIONS for the purchase of two down town houses were completed whereby Mike and Arthur Gore became the owners of the Optic theatre at 529 South Main street, and the Regent at 446 South Main street, Los Angeles. The purchases were made through Leo Ryan, a local theatre broker. The Gore Brothers now have five theatres. The others previously purchased are the Liberty at Third and Main streets, Los Angeles, Casino at Vernon and Central, and the Globe at Jefferson and Central avenue. This gives them the largest circuit of theatres in the Southern California district. Messrs. Gore have been engaged in the motion picture theatre business for the past five years, and are very successful managers. Their circuit now consists of three down town houses, the only ones of any size on Main street, and the other two are suburban of 900 seats each.

IDAHO

The Gem Amusement company of Sandpoint, has just been organized with Jack Gardner, Otto Greenhood, and C. E. Anderson as stockholders. The organization followed the purchase of the Gem and Scenic theatres at Sandpoint. Jack Gardner will manage the two houses.

A new picture theatre, the Paramount, will be opened in Lewiston by A. H. Hilton, who is remodeling a business building upon which he has taken a lease for a term of years. The house will have a seating capacity of 500 and will have several rest rooms off the lobby. A large glass marquise is being erected over the entrance. The theatre will open soon after February 1.

A recent business deal at Twin Falls resulted in the transfer of the Isis theatre from E. B. Williams and Harry F. Allen to B. W. Magel. Mr. Magel is also manager of the Idaho theatre and will operate both houses in the future.

Plans have been completed and the contract let for the construction of a theatre at Orofino. The seating capacity of the house will be 300 and stage and dressing rooms will also be incorporated in the building. J. Herbert Miller, manager of the Rex theatre, has leased the new theatre and will take charge on completion.

KANSAS

Steps are being taken to rebuild the Kerr theatre at Pisgah, which was burned to the ground early in January.

Esterville is to have a fine new theatre in place of the Grand theatre which was completely destroyed by fire a short while ago. F. H. Graaf, proprietor of the Grand, will build an even more costly theatre than the one which was destroyed.

Lacygne now has a new theatre. The Knights of Pythias is its name and it will be managed by Messrs. Stewart and Wilburn.

KENTUCKY

The Theatorium, a new motion picture theatre, has been opened at Greenup. The theatre building is well arranged, and equipped to seat about 300. The chairs are so elevated that an unobstructed view of the screen may be had from any seat in the house.

LOUISIANA

Sobel and Shear of New Orleans, have added a third partner to their company and it is their intention to add constantly to the string of motion picture houses already under their control. The first one will be located at Carrollton avenue near Canal street, which is to be built at a cost of about $25,000, and will be ready for business early in March. It will have a seating capacity of 1,000 and will be modern in all respects.

MARYLAND

The Wizard theatre on West Lexington street, Baltimore, has completed a very attractive new front which gives the house a more massive appearance. Formerly the front was open, the entrance to the box office being through one wide archway. This archway has now been beautified by a series of art wood grills and decorative glass. It forms a lobby which is entered by three doorways, and in the center of the lobby is the ticket box. To the right of the ticket box is the entrance and to the left is the front exit.

H. W. Webb and Bernard Depkin will take over the management of the Strand theatre, on North Howard street, Baltimore, on January 29. This is an up-to-date house in the shopping district, and it is figured several live wire stunts will make it one of the leading theatres of Baltimore.

MASSACHUSETTS

Plans are being prepared for the erection of a $200,000 theatre and office building in Dorchester, a Boston suburb, for the Dorchester Trust Company. The building will contain a motion picture theatre as well as offices of the trust company and stores. Luke Mullen, president of the Charlestown Trust Company heads the company that is interested in the theatre, which will be built on the old Micah Dyer property at Upham's corner. There is 50,000 square feet of land in the property, valued with the old Dyer mansion at $38,000.

MICHIGAN

Detroit's newest theatre, the Dawn, at Gratiot and Iroquois streets, was opened Saturday last, January 20. John E. Niebes, the proprietor, announces the policy will be daily change. He will run three serials.

Thomas A. Cosgrove, proprietor of the Bijou motion picture theatre, Calumet, announces that he will organize a stock company to put up a first-class playhouse in L'Anse. The company will incorporate for $2,500, and this amount will be increased later if necessary. The stock will be sold at a reasonable figure to give all who desire a chance to subscribe. L'Anse furnishes a good field for a comfortable, up-to-date house.

MISSOURI

A. E. Elliott who has been intending to open a new theatre for some time, will probably build within the coming year. The building will cost about $70,000. There will be two balconies besides the main floor, seating in all, about one thousand people. All modern conveniences will be provided such as electric elevators, rest rooms and men's smoking parlors. A rather "different" plan of admission fees will be made, as the main floor will be twenty cents, the first balcony ten cents, and the second balcony five cents.

NEBRASKA

Mr. Garber of Sterling, has remodeled the Doer building, decorated it nicely and now has a first-class motion picture house. The new house is known as the Majestic theatre.

OHIO

Tentative plans were filed with the city building commissioner of Cleveland recently by Attorney Walter L. Flory, representing the Playhouse Company, providing for converting a church at the southwest corner of

MOTION PICTURE STUDIO DIRECTORY

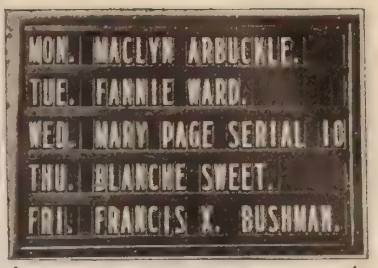
NEXT ISSUE PUBLISHED LAST OF FEBRUARY

Cedar avenue and East Seventy-third street into a theatre. No application for a permit was made.

The Corona theatre, Prospect avenue and East Eighth street, Cleveland, which burned out two weeks ago will be opened again as soon as it can be reconstructed, the management announced recently. The fire was caused by crossed wires.

UTAH

H. A. Sims, formerly manager and part owner of the American theatre, Salt Lake, who sold out to W. H. Swanson and then operated the Isis theatre on East Third South, has been restrained by the courts from operating a motion picture theatre in Salt Lake, this finding being the sequel to a suit brought by the Swanson interests to that end. Mr. Sims will probably enter an appeal.



W. H. Swanson, prior to leaving for Colorado last week, announced his intention of closing the Liberty theatre, Salt Lake, permanently and redecorating and renaming the Rex to the Strand. The Rex, which has been a consistent loser for the past three years, has a seating capacity of 2,000. It is to be opened at a scale of 25, 50 and 75 cents and will show the bigger features, opening on the sixteenth with "Common Law,' followed by "War Brides" and "The Daughter of the Gods" for two weeks.

CANADA

It was recently announced that a deal had been completed for the construction of a motion picture theatre at the southwest corner of Victoria and Richmond streets, Toronto, Ont. The term of lease on the property, which has a frontage of 100 feet on Richmond street by a depth of 184 feet on Victoria street, is for eighty-four years. The annual ground rent will be $21,600. The new theatre, which will have a seating capacity of 2,500, will cost $200,000.

The Arthur Drapeau Circuit of Quebec City, of which J. Bedard is the general manager, announces that the new Princess theatre in Riviere de Loup will soon be ready for a grand opening. They will be able to seat 700 people, as the theatre is 48 x 126 feet, and contains eight boxes and one balcony. There is a fully equipped stage so that they may present the latest musical comedies. He has two new 6-B Powers machines, and they are building the front of marble stained glass, and when finished the theatre will have one of the most attractive fronts in the province.

The Canadian Amusement Company, Ltd., has recently opened the new Strand theatre at Brandon, Manitoba, a theatre with a seating capacity of 600, and the first one in the city which is not a converted storeroom. George Semper, formerly in charge of the old Bijou theatre on Ninth street, is manager of the company, and actively in charge of the new theatre.

Your Biggest Problem is to bring your patrons back tomorrow, and the days to follow. You mail and distribute programs, show slides, and in other ways interest them in coming attractions.

But there is one thing they can't forget or throw away—the memory of a RAWSON & EVANS INTERIOR ELECTRIC SIGN. They visualize it, and step up to the box-office the following day. Hundreds of exhibitors are proving this to their satisfaction.

The sign pays for itself, too! Better write us for particulars.

RAWSON & EVANS CO.
710-712 W. Washington Blvd., CHICAGO

LOBBY DISPLAY FRAME SPECIALISTS
MENGER & RING, Inc.
NEW YORK 304 W. 42nd St. CHICAGO 2021 Federal St. ATLANTA, GA. Southern Theatre Equipment Co.

Make Your Theatre Attractive

SEE that the ceiling in your theatre receives the attention it deserves and it will add greatly to the decorative treatment.

"BERGER'S Classik" STEEL CEILINGS possess the characteristic graceful outlines of plastic relief with the structural advantages of steel—giving permanent beauty and safety, at reasonable cost, without involving any upkeep expense.

They are fire retardant, non-collapsible, and easily erected. Hundreds of artistic designs to choose from.

Send for Catalog D. M. N.

THE BERGER MFG. CO. Canton, O.
Branches: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, San Francisco.
Export Dept.: Berger Bldg., New York City, U. S. A.

DU PONT FABRIKOID
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

CRAFTSMAN QUALITY FOR THEATRE CHAIRS

The cushioned seat is not only more comfortable, but demonstrates to patrons the fact that their comfort is catered to as well as their entertainment.

Seats upholstered in CRAFTSMAN QUALITY FABRIKOID give the theatre a distinctive look.

These desirable features are permanent ones because CRAFTSMAN QUALITY FABRIKOID is durable, sanitary and especially adapted to theatre upholstering.

Many theatres have had FABRIKOID upholstery for long periods and no defects are noticeable.

Upholster your theatre in this superior, guaranteed, sanitary, enduring and distinctive leather substitute.

Ask for samples and get acquainted with CRAFTSMAN QUALITY FABRIKOID.

DU PONT FABRIKOID CO.
Wilmington, Del. Toronto, Ont.
FACTORIES:
Newburgh N. Y. Fairfield, Conn. Toronto, Ont.

STATE CONVENTION NEW YORK EXHIBITORS

TEN EYCK HOTEL

ALBANY, N. Y.

JANUARY 23rd, JANUARY 24th and JANUARY 25th

(TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY)

THE PROGRAM

TUESDAY, JANUARY 23rd

Convention called to order at 3:30 P.M.

Appointment of Committees as follows: Legislation, By-Laws, Transportation, Deposit System, Membership, Finance, Grievance.

Important Conference between locals on personnel and standing of Assemblymen and Senators.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24th

11 A.M. Report of Committees. Immediately upon adjournment, delegates will proceed in a body to the Capitol and visit Assembly and Senate Chambers.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 25th

11 A.M. Delegates meet in Committee of the Whole. Subject: Means of propaganda, slides, petitions, etc.

3 P.M. Election of State Officers and Delegates to the National Convention.

BANQUET

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE LIVEST PRODUCER IN MOTION PICTURES

MY DEAR SIR:

I take it you consider that the above address applies to yourself. Otherwise, in reading this letter, you will be wasting both your own time and mine. It is only the man or the company with the resources to act at once on a Big Proposition that can handle the project below. This is why I am paying for this unusual space in the leading organs of the motion picture industry.

I control Two Hundred Thousand Dollars' worth of the most remarkable motion picture scenarios ever offered to a producing company, written by the world's greatest authors, most of whose names are household words—one of them the man who wrote the best selling novel of the past thirty years. In every case this is absolutely new, original, and unpublished material, never offered for sale before.

Combined with these scenarios is the most widespread publicity campaign in the history of motion pictures—the simultaneous syndication of many of the stories of these films in fiction form—which campaign has already been arranged for, and what is more, without one dollar of additional cost or obligation to the producing company. Practically without exception these scenarios are features, ranging from five reels to eight reels in length.

My control of these scenarios and the attendant publicity campaign has imposed very intimate and very personal obligations on my part to the various authors. For instance, I do not feel at liberty to offer this material for indiscriminate sale through the usual trade channels. I should much prefer to make one smashing contract with the livest and most substantial producing company in the business, a company with the financial and commercial standing necessary not only to talk big figures but to meet big figures. I am not a professional agent, or salesman in any sense of the word. In fact, I am a thoroughly trained motion picture man, with seven years of experience in almost every department, and with probably one of the most general literary acquaintanceships in this country. And what is perhaps as important commercially I can furnish the most satisfactory bank references.

If you need scenarios—the kind that exhibitors fight for, the kind for which you can demand and get the top market prices, I have them for you—that is, if you are in a position to make a wholesale contract. And this means undoubtedly the largest single scenario contract in the history of the motion picture business.

It is up to you!

(SIGNED) SUPER FILMS,

Care Motion Picture News.

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Paramount Pictures

"Always in the lead"

There is Concrete Proof in the two Paramount Pictures every week

This week

Jesse L. Lasky

presents

Marie Doro

in

"Lost and Won"

A gripping story of a newsgirl's rise in life. Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, who wrote "Lost and Won" especially for Miss Doro, are two of the most successful playwrights and authors in the country.

Jesse L. Lasky

presents

Wallace Reid

and

Anita King

in

"The Golden Fetter"

A thrilling and novel western photodrama. The Lasky-Paramount picture "The Golden Fetter" presents a new stellar combination in the persons of Wallace Reid and Anita King, both of whom have attained fame and popularity in previous Lasky productions.

Executive Offices: 485 Fifth Avenue, New York City

FEBRUARY 10, 1917

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

It is not remarkable that nearly 5000 exhibitors book

Paramount Pictures

It is remarkable that the others do not book them now instead of later.

Executive Offices: 485 Fifth Avenue, New York City

VOL. XV-NO. 6

PRICE 10 CENTS

RED FEATHER
PHOTO-PLAYS
PRESENT

"The TERROR"

WITH JACK MULHALL

HOW CHUCK O'CONNOR CAME BACK

PRODUCED BY RAYMOND WELLS

BOOK THROUGH ANY

UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE

GOLDWYN PICTURES

What Goldwyn Means to the Box Office

THE STORY, the STAR and the PRODUCTION. Those are the requirements of pictures that will keep theatres filled to the doors. GOLDWYN'S name will guarantee these three essentials.

STORIES by Robert W. Chambers, Irvin S. Cobb, Margaret Mayo, Roi Cooper Megrue, Avery Hopwood, Edith Ellis; authors whose names are known to millions of people; whose genius has created the greatest plays and the biggest-selling magazines.

STARS of beauty and world-wide reputation known by the people of all lands where motion pictures are shown and the greatest publications are read—Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl, Mae Marsh, Madge Kennedy and others to be announced.

PRODUCTIONS planned, supervised and presented by skilled, brainy managers like Samuel Goldfish, Edgar Selwyn, Arthur Hopkins, and more than a score of the ablest factors who have been identified with picture-making.

THIS combination of talent has financial, paid admissions value at the box office of every motion picture theatre throughout the Americas.

ADVISORY BOARD:
SAMUEL GOLDFISH, Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
ROBERT W. CHAMBERS
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

Telephone, Vanderbilt 11 16 East 42d Street, New York City

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

Paramount Pictures

Paramount

Will Pay The Fines

As in the case of "The Cheat" Paramount is again called on to furnish police protection for "Miss George Washington." Paramount will pay all fines for overcrowding theatres on this and any other Paramount Picture.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH-CABLE COMPANY

NIGHT LETTERGRAM

THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH-CABLE COMPANY (INCORPORATED) TRANSMITS AND DELIVERS THIS NIGHT LETTERGRAM SUBJECT TO THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS PRINTED ON THE BACK OF THIS BLANK. CLARENCE H MACKAY PRESIDENT.

RECEIVED AT | DELIVERY No.

INDEPENDENT COMPETITIVE PROGRESSIVE

'5n kn 54 N L 1139-pm

Lincoln Neb Jan 19 17

004.8

A D Flinton, President Care

Kascity Feature Film Co
922 Oak St
KansasCity Mo

If you intend to furnish us any more pictures like Miss George Washington you will have to furnish us police protection after showing this picture Big competition for four days on the fifth day.The crowd was so big I was stopped by police from selling any more tickets, Expect a bigger crowd tomorrow.

NH Cinberg.

Paramount protection is a protected franchise—a guarantee of security and prosperity. There is no better protection than two Paramount Pictures every week. Why not now?

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP'N.

Adolph Zukor Pres Jesse L Lasky Vice Pres Cecil B DeMille Director General

New York City

Paramount Pictures

Paramount

Will Pay The Fines

on the two Paramount Pictures

This Week

OLIVER MOROSCO
presents

GEORGE BEBAN

in a quaint appealing photo-drama

"HIS SWEETHEART"

by George Beban and Lawrence McCloskey

"His Sweetheart" a strong story of politics and love, with a "typical Morosco cast."
In all the annals of stage or screen, there is no star who has won distinction in the portrayal of a racial type in quite the degree that George Beban has as an interpreter of the Italian. In such great plays and photoplays as "The Sign of the Rose," "Pasquale" and others, he has proven his undisputed supremacy as a character actor.

PALLAS PICTURES
presents
Pretty, Popular, Piquant

VIVIAN MARTIN

in

"THE WAX MODEL"

by G. Vere Tyler

The serio-comic tale of a French model in England who nearly starves for love.
This story made a sensation when it appeared in Smart Set Magazine. The actual wax models around which the story is built add a touch of novelty and afford an excellent opportunity for special lobby displays.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP'N.

Adolph Zukor Pres Jesse L Lasky Vice Pres Cecil B De Mille Director General

New York City

Study this Statement

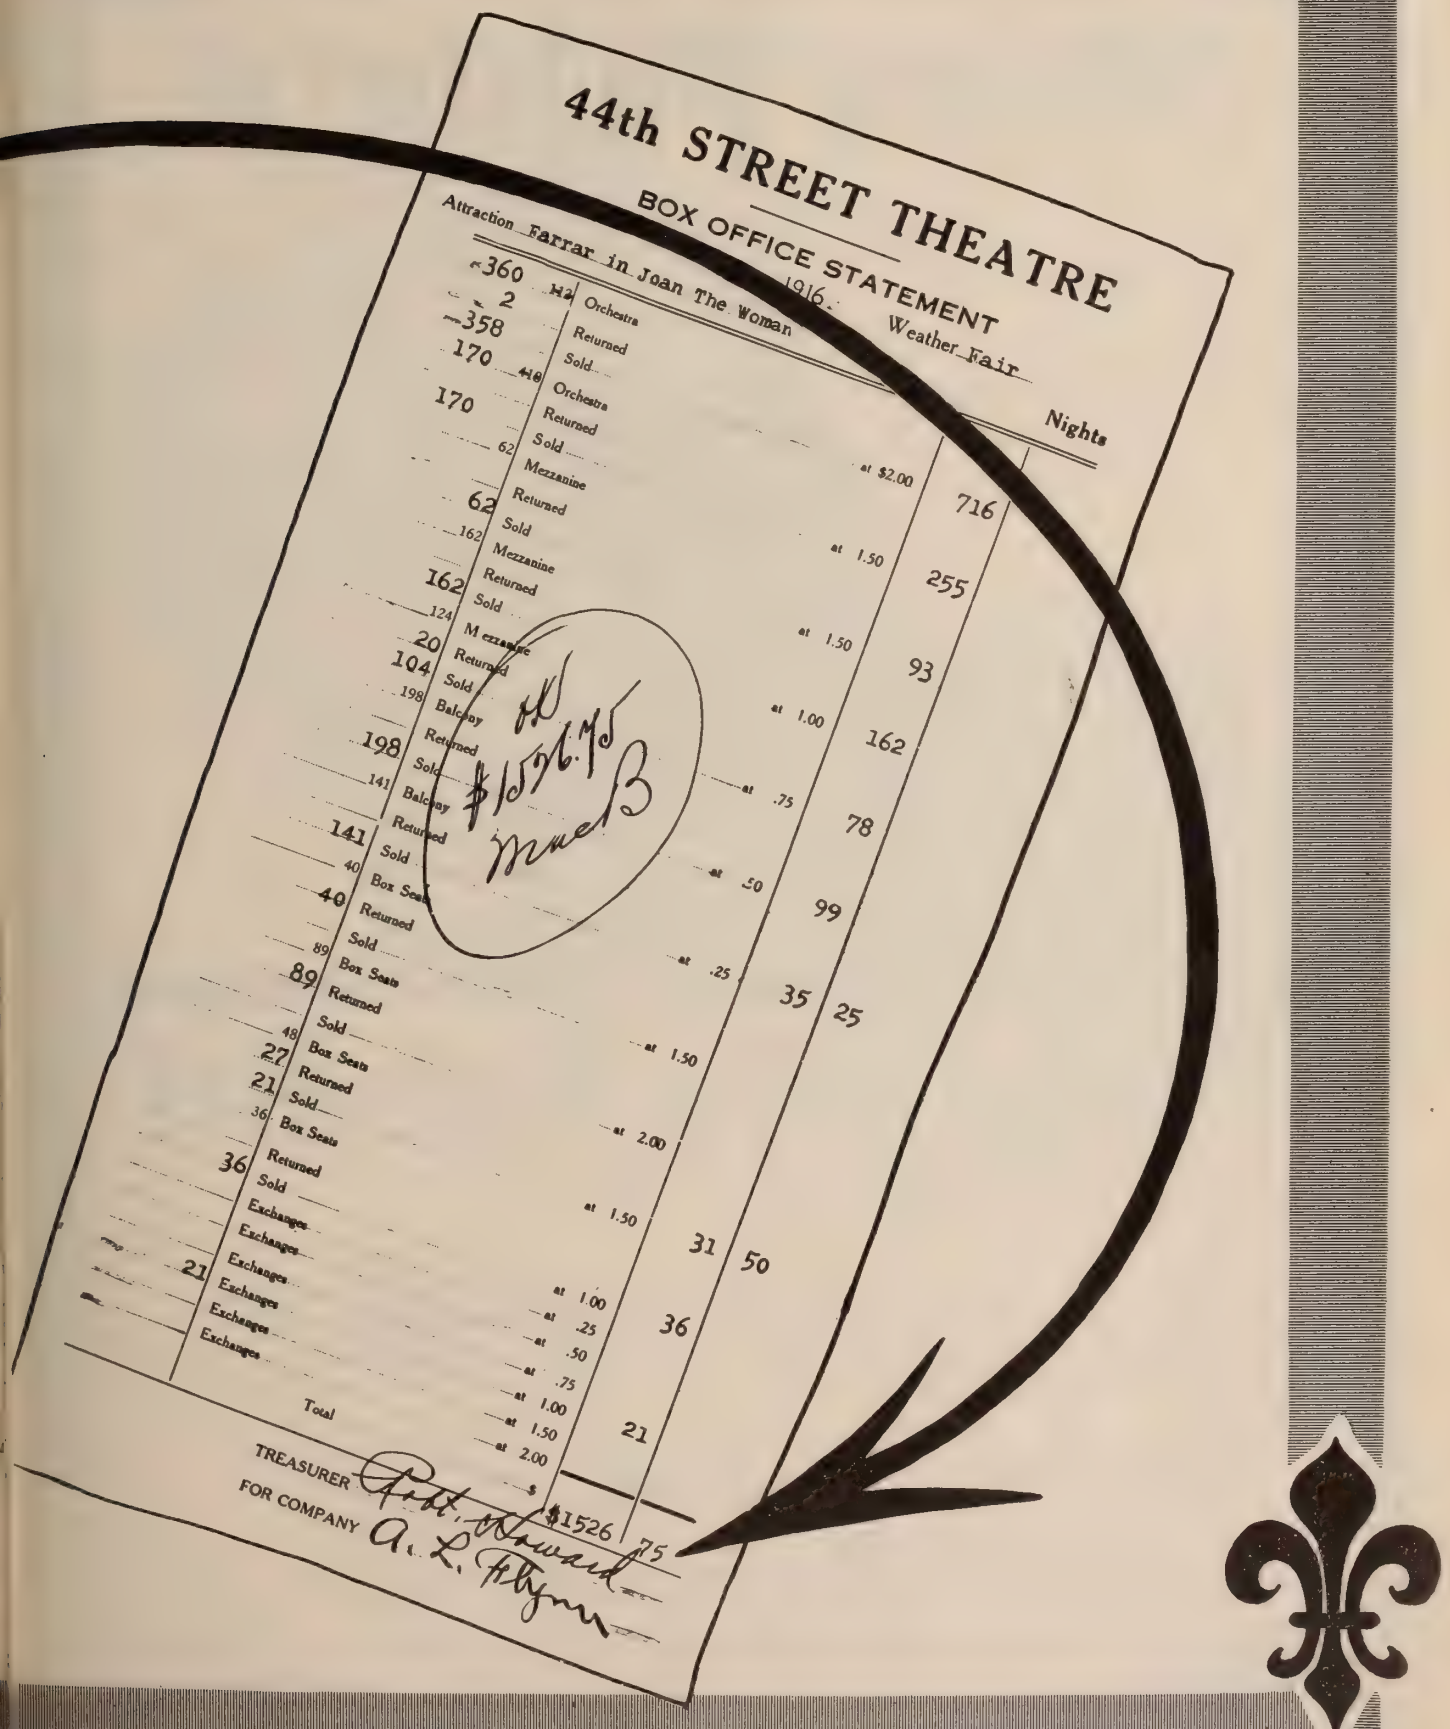
"JOAN THE WOMAN"

is a great motion picture. That is established by the unanimous praise it has evoked from scores of critics and thousands who have seen it.

GERALDINE FARRAR

—greatest of all screen stars;—CECIL B. DeMILLE—genius of shadows;—and JOAN OF ARC, the most remarkable woman of history—these are the contributing factors.

Study the adjoining box office statement.



It is the truthful and incontrovertible indication that the public is responsive to superlative merit.

"JOAN THE WOMAN"

is now being presented by JESSE L. LASKY twice daily to capacity audiences in two cities—at the 44th Street Theatre, New York, and the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles.

CARDINAL FILM CORPORATION

485 FIFTH AVENUE - - NEW YORK, N. Y.

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

Mary Pickford

"A Poor Little Rich Girl"

From the play by Eleanor Gates

She was rich—yet poor; she lived in a mansion—yet she was lonely; her playmates!—she had none at all; and then—across the sweet mind of youth came the vision of the happiness of the other kind of child. A story that no other than Mary Pickford can tell in pictures.

To be released March 5th by

Artcraft Pictures Corporation

729 Seventh Ave, New York.

BROADWAY

And The Man Who Made It Famous!

The Heart of the World

There is more real romance in 10 feet of Broadway than in a mountain range—more laughs in a block than in a picnic—more pathos than in a thousand tears.

It remained, however, for George M. Cohan to make Broadway famous—to tell its story—to recount its pitfalls and triumphs—to humanize it.

The Genius of the Drama

GEORGE M. COHAN

IN

"BROADWAY JONES"

To be released April 2. by

Artcraft Pictures Corporation

729 Seventh Ave. New York.

Our advertisers tell us when we give YOU the best magazine.

ART DRAMAS

Exhibitors who show Art Dramas please their patrons and make money.

Are you showing an Art Drama to-day?

HARRY R. RAVER

presents that charming star

VIOLA DANA

in a romantic love story of the East Side

"ROSIE O'GRADY"

An Apollo Picture.

Released February 1st

BOOKING AT THESE EXCHANGES

NEW YORK—MODERN FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc., 729 Seventh Avenue.
BOSTON—BOSTON PHOTOPLAY COMPANY, 205 Pleasant Avenue.
PHILADELPHIA—ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO., 1321 Vine Street.
PITTSBURGH—LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO., 938 Penn Avenue.
DETROIT—TRI-STATE FILM EXCHANGE, 120 Broadway.
CLEVELAND—TRI-STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Sincere Building.
CINCINNATI—TRI-STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Strand Theatre Building.
CHICAGO—ART DRAMAS SERVICE, 207 South Wabash Avenue.
SAN FRANCISCO—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Humboldt Bank Building.
LOS ANGELES—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Los Angeles Investment Building.
DALLAS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, 1911 Commerce Street.
SALT LAKE CITY—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, 137 East 2nd Street South.
DENVER—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, Welton Street.
KANSAS CITY—STANDARD FILM CORPORATION, 319 Gloyd Building.
ST. LOUIS—STANDARD FILM CORPORATION.
DES MOINES—STANDARD FILM CORPORATION.

116 WEST 39TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

"You need me—so I'll stay!"

Whose Was the Sacrifice?

She married him out of gratitude, and for the comforts his great fortune would give her. He was a hopeless invalid and she found herself little more than a nurse. Of life itself she had nothing.

Then into her life came youth and love in the form of a younger man, but like her, he was bound in honor to his betrothed, a frail, weak girl who was nearing the close of her brief day.

To the invalids came realization that those they loved were being drawn into a maelstrom that meant destruction. To the young wife and the young man came realization of the hopelessness of their love.

What sacrifice, whose self-denial, could set aright these tangled threads, this mockery that destiny had made of four lives?

An All Star
Vitagraph Production of Wonderful Dramatic Intensity

Edith Storey, Antonio Moreno and William Duncan

in

"MONEY MAGIC"

A Five Part Blue Ribbon Feature

From the Book by Hamlin Garland

Directed by William Wolbert

VITAGRAPH
V-L-S-E INC.

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

THREE EXTRAORDINARY VITAGRAPH PRODUCTIONS

The Photoplay that Broke the World's Box Office Record at The Rialto, New York

ANITA STEWART

in Robert W. Chambers' Greatest Story

"THE GIRL PHILIPPA"

An Eight Part Super Drama
Directed by S. Rankin Drew
Now Booking at all Vitagraph, V-L-S-E Branches

SPECIAL BLUE RIBBON FEATURES OF IMMENSE DRAWING POWER

J. Stuart Blackton's Stupendous Sequel to "The Battle Cry of Peace"

"WOMANHOOD"

or

"The Glory of the Nation"

Featuring

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey

and an All Star Cast
Including Peggy Hyland, Naomi Childers, James Morrison, Joseph Kilgour, Bobby Connelly, Walter McGrail, Edward Elkas, Templar Saxe and many other Vitagraph Favorites

THE SUPREME OFFERINGS OF VITAGRAPH'S TWENTY YEARS OF EXPERIENCE

The Most Famous Stage Success of the Decade

"WITHIN THE LAW"

Bayard Veiller's Great Play
In a Multi Reel Photo Drama

Featuring

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey

VITAGRAPH

V-L-S-E

Rebooked to Even Bigger Business!

Thomas Dixon's
Mighty Message of Warning

"THE FALL OF A NATION"

With Musical Score by Victor Herbert

This picture, in many instances, is running up even bigger business on its second showing than was scored by exhibitors on their first run.

Almost invariably, exhibitors at the conclusion of their first run of this superlative spectacle, rebook it on the strength of the crowds they have been obliged to turn away.

And many of the second runs now in progress are for a longer period and are playing to more money than on the initial showing.

Seven Tremendous Parts Seething with the Red Hate and Blood Lust of Frenzied Nations

SELZNICK PICTURES

READY FOR RELEASE

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

In

"THE PRICE SHE PAID"

By

David Graham Phillips

CHARLES GIBLYN
Director

ALBERT CAPELLANI
Director Gen'l

A SOCIETY STORY PRESENTING THIS TREMENDOUSY POPULAR STAR IN A ROLE THAT WILL DELIGHT HER ADMIRERS . .

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS

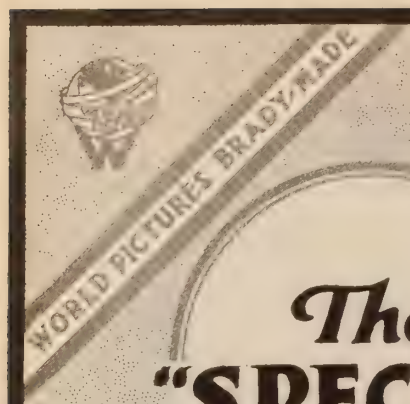
LEWIS J. SELZNICK EXCHANGES

BRANCHES EVERYWHERE

SELZNICK PICTURES

NEXT RELEASE
Harry Rapf
Presents
ROBERT WARWICK
In
(By Arrangement With Klaw & Erlanger)
"THE ARGYLE CASE"
By Harvey J O'Higgins, Harriet Ford
And William J. Burns

A PICTURE FOR EVERYBODY BUT THE BLIND.
MYSTERY ~ EXCITEMENT ROMANCE AND PUNCH.



Joseph M. Schenck's
Presentation of
NORMA TALMADGE
In
"PANTHEA"
By Monckton Hoffe
IS A TEN STRIKE

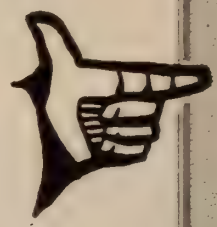
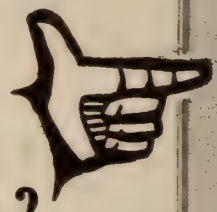
"The Biggest Success Any Screen Artist Has Scored This Season"
N Y American



BOOK IT TO-DAY

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS
LEWIS J. SELZNICK EXCHANGES
BRANCHES EVERYWHERE



The "SPECIAL" Quality on the Dependable program

WHY "SPECIAL?"

High Cost of Production
Highest Standard of Plot and Scenario
A Story of the First Magnitude
Perfect Photography Wonderful Sets
Ideal Location
Details Right

WHY ON A PROGRAM?

Because we are here to help every holder of a franchise for

WORLD PICTURES

WILLIAM A. BRADY
in association with WORLD PICTURES
presents

ALICE BRADY

in

"The Hungry Heart"

From the famous play "FROU-FROU"
Directed by EMILE CHAUTARD

The Great White Way

The swirling life of this famous Street of Fashion is shown in all its splendor, vanity, daring and novelty, in the —

William · Fox ·

PHOTOPLAY

The New York Peacock

WITH

Valeska · Suratt

THE EMPRESS OF FASHION

Gowns that will cause gasps of Admiration and Wonder.

Written by Mary Murillo – – Directed by Kenean Buel

Foxfilm Comedy Service

RELEASE FOR WEEK OF FEBRUARY 5TH

The Cloud Puncher.

TWO REELS

featuring Hank · Mann

THE PICTURE THAT MAKES THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD LOOK LIKE A HEAVY DEW. —

FOXFILM COMEDIES ARE RELEASED WEEKLY. AVAILABLE FOR ALL EXHIBITORS.— INDEPENDENT OF REGULAR FOX PROGRAM

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

WEEKLY NEWS OF THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION AND ITS 68 EXCHANGES

FEBRUARY 10, 1917

ANN MURDOCK, NOTED FROHMAN STAR IN MUTUAL PICTURES

ANN MURDOCK, famous emotional star of the speaking stage, has been secured for Mutual Photoplays. Miss Murdock will be presented in a number of special feature productions to be released through the Mutual Exchanges. This marks still another accomplishment in the new 1917 Mutual Policy——"Big Stars Only."

Is Popular Star.

On the speaking stage Miss Murdock is one of America's most popular stars. In numerous plays produced under the management of Charles Frohman she has scored tremendous hits. On the picture screen she has also proven her ability to register her unusual talents. For her Mutual appearances a number of famous stories from the pens of America's foremost authors have been selected. These will be put into immediate production. The titles and release dates of a number of these Murdock-Mutual Photoplays will be announced shortly. Reservations for the Murdock-Mutual Photoplays can be made by exhibitors at any of the Mutual Exchanges.

"Where Love Is."

The first Mutual Photoplay starring Ann Murdock will be released through the Mutual Exchanges the week of February 5th. It is in five acts. It's title is, "Where Love Is." It is an adaptation of the famous novel of the same title by William J. Locke. It tells the story of a society girl's dilemma when confronted with a choice between a marriage for love and one for wealth. A well-rounded cast assists the star in this Mutual Photoplay. The same careful attention will be paid to the supporting casts in the Murdock-Mutual Photoplays to be made under the new contract. Bookings on "Where Love Is" can be made at any Mutual Film Exchange now.

Like Minter Subjects

Exhibitors, exchange managers and motion picture fans are all warm in their loyalty to Mary Miles Minter and her American-Mutual Photoplays. The American Film Company is in receipt of a letter from Daniel Richardella of Windber, Pa., in which he says: "I have seen the best, cleanest, most wholesome and refined play ever produced. It is entitled 'Faith.' It features Mary Miles Minter, who through long years of labor, has attained her position among the thousands of players of filmdom. May we have more like it."

NEW $2,500,000 PRODUCING COMPANY TO PRESENT FROHMAN SUCCESSES

Empire All Star Corporation to Present Successes of Charles Frohman in Motion Pictures Through Mutual—Work Begins Immediately In New York, Chicago and California

A NEW two and one-half million dollar corporation has entered the producing field. It's name is the Empire All Star Corporation. It was formed by John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation and Alf. Hayman of Charles Frohman, Incorporated. It has for its aim the production of Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures. The Empire All Star Corporation will, of course, enjoy the use of the unlimited resources of the Frohman organization as well as the vast facilities of the Mutual Film Corporation with its nation-wide system of exchanges.

A great number of the original Frohman casts will be assembled for the production of the Frohman plays in picture form. The great hoard of stage settings, costumes and accurate properties owned by the Frohman organization will be at the disposal of the Empire All Star Corporation. Their use in the pictures will insure the utmost accuracy in every detail of production. Studios of the Empire All Star Corporation will be established in New York, Chicago and California. Offices of the organization will be opened in New York, Chicago and London.

The eminent dramatist, Augustus Thomas, who was in no small way himself responsible for many of the Frohman "hits," will personally surpervise the scenarios and assist by advice and suggestion. Augustus Thomas is conceded to be a giant in his chosen calling. His affiliation with the Empire All Star Corporation means more than words can express. In every way the Empire All Star Corporation will endeavor to give the name of Charles Frohman the same high value in the motion picture field that it has had so long in the theatre of the speaking stage.

Every effort will be bent toward making the Empire-Mutual Photoplays pre-eminent in the motion picture field. The announcement of the formation of the Empire All Star Corporation, together with other important Mutual announcements which have preceded it, are in line with Mutual's announced policy of "Big Stars Only." Mutual sincerely intends during the coming year to lead all other motion picture organizations. Bigger, better attractions than ever before is its aim.

Mutual Star Productions For February

Week Beginning February 5th.

Title. Lead.

Where Love Is.....Ann Murdock

Week Beginning February 12th.

The Devil's Assistant.....Margarita Fischer

Week Beginning February 19th.

The Gentle Intruder.....Mary Miles Minter

Week Beginning February 26th.

The Greater Woman.....Marjorie Rambeau

More Exhibitors Praise "Lass of Lumberlands"

Exhibitors in all portions of the country continue to voice their praise of the newest Helen Holmes chapterplay, "A Lass of the Lumberlands." D. H. Thompson, manager of the Muse Us Theatre of Dayton, O., writes: "The scenery in the picture is the best I ever saw. The cast is great, especially Helen Holmes and J. P. McGowan. The details in the picture are good. Helen Holmes is certainly a box office attraction for me. I hope to get more Helen Holmes pictures in the future." Maddox & Boyd, write the Cincinnati Mutual Exchange: "'A Lass of the Lumberlands' is going big—best serial ever booked in our house. Had them standing out last night." Claude N. York, manager of the Reel Theatre of Catlettsburg, Ky., writes: "I have played five chapters of 'A Lass of the Lumberlands' and my box office receipts on the nights I run it are equal to my Saturday nights. I can heartily recommend it to all exhibitors who want a film that will get the money."

A bit of real college atmosphere is to be found in the latest of the "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" Featurettes. Its title is "Shorty Goes to College." Much of its action is laid on the campus of a western university. Shorty Hamilton Featurettes can be booked at any Mutual Exchange.

MUTUAL

MUTUAL

Empire All-Star Corporation

Announces

The Acquisition of

ANN MURDOCK

AS the first achievement in its plan to present the successes of Charles Frohman in motion pictures the Empire All-Star Corporation announces the acquisition of the noted Frohman star—Ann Murdock.

Miss Murdock has established an exceptional reputation for emotional acting on the speaking stage. She has been starred in many notable Broadway successes. She has already won a host of admirers through her screen productions. And now we announce Miss Murdock as the star of Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures.

Work will begin at once on Charles Frohman productions in which Miss Murdock will be featured and which will be distributed through Mutual Exchanges everywhere. Detailed announcements of plays will be made soon.

For further details Exhibitors are requested to communicate with the nearest Mutual Exchange.

Empire All-Star Corporation

John R. Freuler, President

Empire Productions Distributed in America Exclusively Through Mutual Exchanges

MUTUAL

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

Presents

The Charming Star

ANN MURDOCK

in

"WHERE LOVE IS"

From the pen of the celebrated novelist
WILLIAM J. LOCKE

Miss Murdock's exceptional emotional talent is allowed full sway in this famous story of a young society girl compelled to choose between love and wealth in marriage. All star supporting cast. Five Acts. Released the week of February 5th through Mutual Exchanges.

Now Booking At All Mutual Exchanges

EMPIRE ALL-STAR CORPORATION

An Important Announcement!

This announces to the motion picture industry the launching of a new producing factor to be known as the Empire All-Star Corporation—a two and one-half million dollar organization formed by John R. Freuler, of the Mutual Film Corporation, and Alf. Hayman of Charles Frohman, Incorporated.

Charles Frohman Successes in Motion Pictures—Produced by Empire—Released through Mutual

It will be the purpose of the Empire All-Star Corporation to present the successes of Charles Frohman in motion pictures, using all the unlimited resources of the famous Frohman organization, including plays, players, properties, costumes and incidentals, to present to the motion picture public productions of the very highest quality. The vast facilities of the Mutual Film Corporation and its nation-wide group of exchanges will be utilized in the distribution of Empire Photoplays, thus assuring exhibitors the utmost in efficient, intelligent film service.

(See next page)

EMPIRE PHOTOPLAYS

EMPIRE ALL-STAR CORPORATION

A New Organization —dominant!

The organization of the Empire All-Star Corporation marks another great achievement in the advancement of the motion picture industry. Combining, as it does, the facilities of the most prominent factor in speaking-stage circles (Charles Frohman, Incorporated) with the resources of America's most progressive film distributing organization (the Mutual Film Corporation) the new Empire All-Star Corporation is born a vital, important factor—dominant!

Frohman Plays, Frohman Players and Frohman Standards Added to Mutual Facilities

In the presentation of Frohman Successes in motion pictures, the Empire All-Star Corporation will have at its command a collection of plays, players and properties unequalled anywhere. The noted Frohman dramatist, Augustus Thomas will serve as scenario chief and advisor. Studios will be operated in New York, Chicago and California. Production will commence at once. Exhibitors will be advised in detail regarding Empire Photoplays through all Mutual Exchanges.

Empire All-Star Corporation

John R. Freuler. President

EMPIRE PHOTOPLAYS

Going BIG!!

MUTUAL

A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS

Featuring The Fearless Film Star HELEN HOLMES

Record breaking crowds are cramming the theatres everywhere eager to see "A Lass of the Lumberlands". This sensational chapter-play of the North Woods, featuring daring Helen Holmes, has scored a tremendous success. "Helen Homes in 'A Lass of the Lumberlands' is GOING BIG" — such is the unanimous report of exhibitors everywhere. This thrilling chapterplay is in 15 chapters — a new chapter released each week. If you want to fill your theatre to capacity for fifteen weeks book "A Lass of Lumberlands" NOW.

NOW BOOKING AT ALL MUTUAL EXCHANGES

Produced by
SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

Gaumont

MUTUAL

THE VAMPIRES

(THE ARCH CRIMINALS OF PARIS)

HELP!!!

"Heavens! What has happened? Is the poor man dying of heart disease?"

"Not exactly. He's merely being buried under an avalanche of money."

"Rather unusual these days in the picture business, isn't it?"

"Well, rather—except in a case like this. When he shows the next chapter next week he'll know enough to hire an assistant with a shovel to throw the money into the back office."

"What's the big idea? Why this haste of the public to separate itself from its hard-earned kale?"

"The people you see out there are fighting their way in to see a chapter of Gaumont's thrilling 'The Vampires.' It's the sensation of all screen photo-novels."

"A big hit, eh?"

"A 'big' hit! Man alive, read any trade paper. Call on any exhibitor who has run it. Ask at any Mutual Branch. Did you hear about the Mehesy Theatre?"

"At Salt Lake City? No."

"Well, 'The Vampires' was such a hit that the management is running it right over again. Yes, sir. Last instalment ran on a Thursday, and they started it over the next Sunday."

"It's me for the Mutual Branch. I want to get in on this. When there's any easy money to be had, you bet I'm going to get mine. I'm going to book 'The Vampires' right away."

"That's the stuff. And don't forget 'Fantomas.' It's another great Gaumont knock-out."

Gaumont Co.

FLUSHING, N. Y.

FANTOMAS

THE SUCCESSFUL WAY

Cub Comedies are now being shown in more theatres than ever because exhibitors have learned that Cub Comedies are capable of two functions; namely, drawing patronage and pleasing that patronage.

To those of you who demand these two qualities in any picture you play, we suggest that you arrange for booking at any exchange of the Mutual Film Corp., through which Cub Comedies are distributed.

Released Feb. 8
Jerry's Big Raid
featuring
George Ovey

Released Feb. 15
Jerry's Big Mystery
featuring
George Ovey

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

A SERIES OF SEVEN FIVE-REEL PHOTOPLAYS

SEVEN BIG FEATURES

Each play complete in itself with its own great star and its own great story The series connected by a throbbing love story

McCLURE PICTURES

ENVY

"ENVY" starring ANN MURDOCK

PRIDE

"PRIDE" starring HOLBROOK BLINN

The Seventh Sin— What is it?

PASSION

"PASSION" starring SHIRLEY MASON

SEVEN DEADLY SINS

BIG MODERN DRAMAS — BIG STARS

SEVEN DEADLY SINS

GREED

"GREED" starring NANCE O'NEIL

The series that brings you seven periods of capacity business—big names—big themes—big McClure advertising

WRATH

"WRATH" starring H. B. WARNER

BOOK THROUGH TRIANGLE EXCHANGES

SLOTH

"SLOTH" starring CHARLOTTE WALKER

Address McClure series dept.
TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
New York City
1459 B'way
New York

BOOK ENTIRE SERIES

McClure Pictures has kept its Promise!

SEVEN DEADLY SINS

The greatest Money-Maker you ever booked

Read what the Critics say:

Edward Weitzel, The Moving Picture World

"Full of the liveliest sort of action * * * Deft touches of characters, brief sidelights that reveal intimate and unexpected bits of life, and progressive movement of plot are to be found in this picture-play."

Peter Milne, Motion Picture News

"The casual passer-by whose eye may be arrested by the hectic words 'Seven Deadly Sins, and who confides to himself, 'By Golly, I'd like to see one of em,' will by no means be disappointed in 'Envy' Like as not he will become a permanent patron of the theatre, eagerly seeking the other six of the series. * * * 'Snappy stuff' just about sums up the five reels."

A. G. S., Dramatic Mirror

"If 'Envy' with Ann Murdock is representative of the series, the release of this chain of plays should be eagerly watched for by the exhibitors."

Agnes Smith, The Morning Telegraph

"A quick moving modern drama with two charming actresses and a likable actor * * * The series gets a flying start * * * A heap of melodramatic thrills. * * * A human note is struck early in the picture * * * It would be hard to find a production better equipped in the way of players"

Exhibitor's Trade Review

'The exhibitor must not treat lightly the value of the publicity and advertising carried in the McClure publications. Much curiosity must have been aroused in the public mind concerning 'Seven Deadly Sins. * * * 'Envy must be pronounced interesting.

Variety. ("Envy")

"A wealth of melodrama with a punch * * * There is a whale of a battle between a hired gunman and the millionaire. * * * The fans will want to know what happened to the characters after the film ceases."

Variety. ("Pride")

"For action and melodramatic interest it far outdoes the first of the septet * * * The story is packed to the last inch of capacity with action * * * If the McClure people can keep up the pace they have set in No. 2 for the rest of the seven, they should find a ready market."

Harriette Underhill, New York Tribune

'If the 'Seven Deadly Sins continue to be made so attractive, it is going to be difficult to say 'Get thee behind me

Laurence Reid, Motion Picture Mail

"The story is happily not a preachment nor does it present, ostentatiously, a moral * * * The incidents are forged together with a fine regard for sequence and without losing sight of the fact that suspense and animation must be dominant throughout * * * A tale abounding in thrilling action * * * All in all, other manufacturers should Envy the McClure Company."

McClure Series Dept.,
Triangle Distributing Corporation,
1459 Broadway, New York City.

McCLURE PICTURES

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
GENERAL OFFICES 1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

OFFICE OF
THE PRESIDENT

Jan. 25th, 1917.

Mr. Frederick L. Collins,
President McClure Publications,
#251 Fourth Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Collins:

I had the pleasure last night, of witnessing three of the series of McClure Pictures, The Seven Deadly Sins, the subjects being "Envy", "Pride" and "Greed".

I believe that all of these will be acceptable to, and make money for the exhibitor showing them, particularly in view of the wide publicity they are receiving.

I was much impressed with the acting of Miss O'Neill and the dramatic situations in "Greed", having enjoyed it more than any picture I have seen in a long time.

Wishing you every success, I am,

Yours very truly,

Wm. W. Hodkinson

WWH B

Hodkinson Knows!!

McCLURE PICTURES

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY SERVICE

THE SERIAL SUPREME

Supreme in every respect is Gloria's Romance—the serial extraordinary. The star is supreme above all others. The story is unique. The direction is that of a master. The stage settings and costuming are elaborate. The success of the film has been extraordinary. Never before was there a picture attempted on which so much thought, care and money were expended.

Gloria's Romance is notable for

1st. Its star—radiantly beautiful Billie Burke—engaged at a salary of $4,000 per week to play "Gloria." A salary far in excess of that ever paid any other star of either the stage or screen.

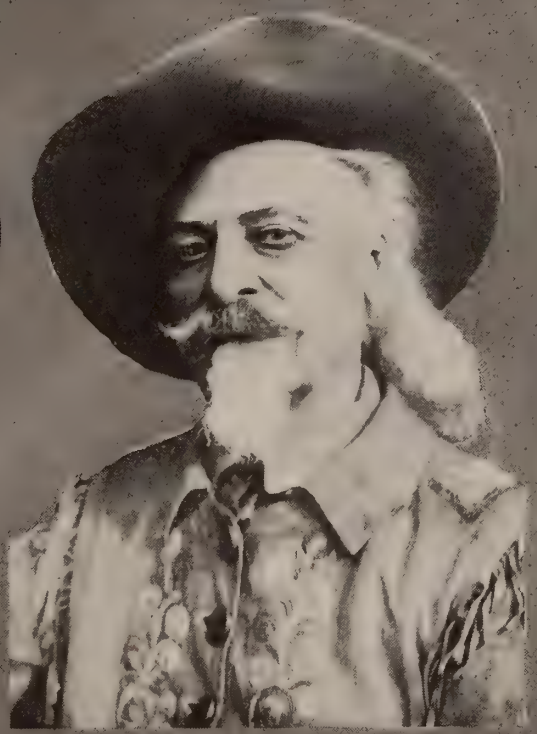
2nd. Its author—Rupert Hughes—internationally famous as a novelist—dramatist of note, and ranked as one of America's foremost literary celebrities.

3rd. Its producer—George Kleine—the man who gave the world such masterpieces as "Quo Vadis," "Last Days of Pompeii" and others too numerous to mention.

Wherever Gloria's Romance has played it has been successful. It has packed theatres! As a fashion exposition it is unrivalled. Scores of thousands of dollars' worth of Lucile, Henri Bendel and Balcom frocks are worn by Miss Burke. Palm Beach, Florida, and Riverside Drive, New York, are the location of most of the scenes. Gloria's Romance is conceded to be the serial supreme. Don't be satisfied with anything short of the best. Book Gloria's Romance NOW. Pack YOUR Theatre by presenting the serial supreme.

Call on, wire or write the nearest Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Exchange, or

GEORGE KLEINE



80 Fifth Avenue New York City

By Arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr.
GEORGE KLEINE Presents
Miss
Billie Burke
in
GLORIA'S ROMANCE
Supported by HENRY KOLKER
A Motion Picture Novel by Mr. & Mrs. RUPERT HUGHES

K LEINE E DISON S ELIG E SSANAY

Adventures of BUFFALO BILL

¶ His Indian battles, last hunting trip with the Prince of Monaco, owner of Monte Carlo, and incidents of his home life.

¶ 5,000 U. S. troops and Indians take part, including the famous generals and chiefs engaged in the Indian wars.

¶ Actual battles refought on Western Plains and the Bad Lands—Col. Cody's death fight with Chief Yellow Hand.

¶ BUFFALO BILL is the most romantic figure in American History—the idol of every man and boy.

¶ BOOK IT NOW WHILE HIS NAME IS ON EVERY TONGUE.

Screen Time, 1 hour, 15 minutes

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

BRYANT WASHBURN

IS PRESENTED IN

Skinner's Dress Suit

TAKEN from the famous story by Henry Irving Dodge in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. 5,000,000 readers of the Post were thrilled by the story. Every one will want to see the play. You have a ready made audience waiting. Don't miss this opportunity for a self advertised photoplay—a drama full of heart interest; it strikes a note that reaches every home.

Harry Beaumont, Director

screen time 1 hour, 15 minutes.

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

HENRY B. WALTHALL, America's greatest actor, plays the melody of child love on the heart strings in "LITTLE SHOES." A tense drama, clean, sweet, beautiful — just the thing for the entire family.

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Essanay
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

RICHARD C. TRAVERS

and

Gertrude Glover

are presented in

"The Phantom Buccaneer"

A thrilling drama of a South American revolution and how a man wins the love of a girl in the shadow of the gallows

BRYANT WASHBURN

and

NELL CRAIG

are presented in

"The Breaker"

Adapted from the famous story of Arthur Stringer in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. The daring adventures of a girl with a band of counterfeiters

OTHER GREAT ESSANAY FEATURES

"The Chaperon"
"The Prince of Graustark"
"The Return of Eve"
"The Sting of Victory"
"According to the Code"
"That Sort"
"Sherlock Holmes"
"The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row"
"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"
"The Havoc"
"The Discard"
"Vultures of Society"
"The Misleading Lady"
"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"
"A Daughter of the City"
"The Alster Case"
"The Raven"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Man Trail"
"The Blindness of Virtue"
"In the Palace of the King"
"The White Sister"
"The Slim Princess"
"Graustark"

BOOK THEM NOW

Essanay
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

From the New York World

SHORT FILMS FOR RIALTO.

Contracts for Essanay's "IS Marriage Sacred?" Series.

S. L. Rothapfel contracted with the General Film to use the Essanay two-reel series, "Is Marriage Sacred?" at his Rialto Theatre. The Rialto will first show one of these subjects, "The Wide Wrong Way," the week of January 22, and will follow with others of the series from time to time.

It has been the custom for many of the leading exhibitors running weekly programs to show one five-reel feature and supplement this with comedy, travel, educational and news subjects, but those subjects in many instances have not held the attention sufficiently, hence Mr. Rothapfel's intention of showing additional drama.

"Is Marriage Sacred" is a series of 12 powerful photo dramas dealing with the world's most vital problem.

One picture of this compelling series is released each week.

Intensely interesting because they're human.

Is Marriage Sacred?

Causes That Lead Up to Matrimonial Difficulties Presented in 12 Pictures

Marriage and divorce—the "eternal triangle"—all the trials and troubles of married life are handled in these pictures with a wholesome frankness that is as refreshing as it is absorbing.

I know that these dramas are the most intensely human motion pictures ever produced, because they deal with humanity's most vital problem.

Such famous screen stars as Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, Lillian Drew and Sydney Ainsworth, play the leads.

These gripping pictures (each one a complete story) make an irresistible appeal to all classes.

I am advertising them in local newspapers. The public's interest is aroused. Men and women—old and young—want to see them.

Book the entire series now. Cash in on the tremendous amount of advertising and publicity they are receiving.

Geo. K. Spoor

President Essanay Film Mfg. Co.

DISTRIBUTED BY GENERAL FILM CO., Inc.

General Film Service

SELIG

Presents

George Fawcett

The Distinguished American Actor in a Film Drama of Shorter Length in General Film Service

"LOST AND FOUND"

Here is a world-famous Star in a thrilling drama of heart appeal. George Fawcett's magic name coupled to a short length drama of excellence is sure to bring you patronage.

READ THIS!

Harry Miller, manager of the Boston Theatre, writes to Motography: "The Selig-Tribune is one of the very best released. It is from one to five days ahead of any other I have seen, and gets everything worth while."

TRADE S MARK

Selig Polyscope Co.

Chicago, Ill.

General Film Service

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

PRESENT
MR. & MRS. THE SCREEN'S MOST POPULAR COMEDY STARS
SIDNEY DREW
IN
"A LADY IN THE LIBRARY"
A HILARIOUS ONE PART COMEDY

CHARLES KENT & BRINSLEY SHAW
IN
"THE MYSTERY IN THE NORTH CASE"
A STIRRING TWO PART DRAMA

"SUNSHINE"
MARY ANDERSON
IN
"THE SUITOR FROM SIAM"
AND OTHER THRILLING ADVENTURE OF
"THE DANGERS OF DORIS"

SUPERLATIVE PICTURES

Better to read fifty advertisements than to miss the one YOU need.

General Film Service

CLEAN COMEDIES

VIM

BABE HARDY
ETHEL BURTON
IN A MIX-UP IN HEARTS

VIM

CHARLES DUDLEY
IN A JOB FOR LIFE

The first motion picture newspaper combined with the greatest news gathering organization —

The Hearst-Pathé News

The only one reel feature

See your nearest Pathé Exchange about it.

Spanish submarine in a Cape Cod Harbor. Hearst-Pathé News #6

PATHÉ

ANNOUNCES

PATRIA

WITH THE BEST KNOWN WOMAN IN AMERICA

MRS. VERNON CASTLE

•

EVERYONE HAS HEARD OF MRS. CASTLE
THE IDOL OF SOCIETY
AND THE FAVORITE OF FORTUNE

•

IN PATRIA
THE SERIAL SUPREME
SHE PROVES HERSELF TO BE EQUAL TO ANY STAR OF THE SCREEN
IN CHARM PLUCK AND REAL TALENT

•

AS A
BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION
SHE IS IN A CLASS BY HERSELF

•

•

15 EPISODES
BOOKING NOW THROUGH THE PATHÉ
EXCHANGES

•

BOOKED BY KEITH'S
PALACE
THE GREATEST VAUDEVILLE HOUSE
IN THE COUNTRY BEING THE

FIRST MOTION PICTURE SERIAL
THEY HAVE EVER PLAYED.

•

BOOKED ALSO
BY EVERY KEITH THEATRE IN GREAT-ER NEW YORK

•

THE KEITH PEOPLE ARE SHOWMEN
THEY KNOW HOW TO GET THE CROWDS!

•

PATRIA

THE SERIAL SUPREME

•

PRODUCED FOR INTERNATIONAL
BY WHARTON, INC.

•

WRITTEN BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

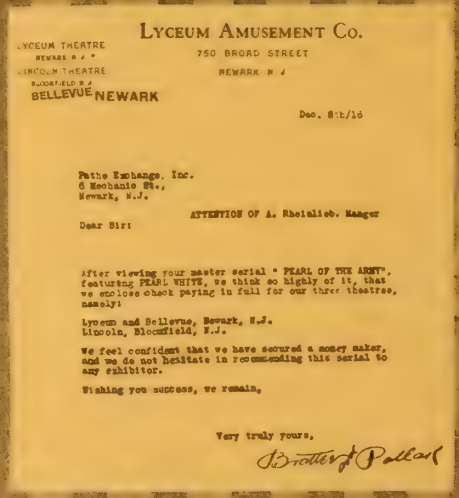
•



Pathé

HE SAVED 10% ON

PEARL OF THE ARMY

In saving 10% on Pathé's 8 serials a year, this exhibitor adds a thousand dollars a year to his income by accepting Pathé's offer of 10% discount for cash in advance on serials

LYCEUM AMUSEMENT CO.
750 BROAD STREET
NEWARK N J

LYCEUM THEATRE NEWARK N J
LINCOLN THEATRE BLOOMFIELD N J
BELLEVUE NEWARK

Dec. 8th/16

Pathe Exchange, Inc.
6 Mechanic St.,
Newark, N.J.

ATTENTION OF A. Rheinlieb. Manager

Dear Sirs

After viewing your master serial " PEARL OF THE ARMY", featuring PEARL WHITE, we think so highly of it, that we enclose check paying in full for our three theatres, namely:

Lyceum and Bellevue, Newark, N.J.
Lincoln, Bloomfield, N.J.

We feel confident that we have secured a money maker, and we do not hesitate in recommending this serial to any exhibitor.

Wishing you success, we remain,

Very truly yours,
Brotherton Pollard

PRODUCED BY ASTRA
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF EDWARD JOSÉ
FEATURING PEARL WHITE

Pathé

PATHÉ

ANNOUNCING

LOIS MEREDITH

IN THE FIVE PART GOLD ROOSTER PLAY

SOLD AT AUCTION

PRODUCED BY

BALBOA

RELEASED FEB. 11

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS PLEASE PATRONS AND EXHIBITORS!

"I wish to congratulate you upon the excellence of 'ARMS and the WOMAN'. I stood in the lobby between the two shows and never heard as much praise of a picture either here or at my Oceanic Theatre. Could I get as good pictures as this every day I would soon have the largest business in town. This is the second letter I have written in five years in praise of a picture but I feel it a pleasure to write this one."

Harry J. Rockafeller,
Manager Shubert Theatre,
Asbury Park, N.J.

THANHOUSER-MADE
Pathé Gold Rooster Plays

FLORENCE LA BADIE
IN
"Her Life and His"
RELEASED FEB. 18

A Drama of Prison Reform, Political Intrigue and Gripping Romance that Audiences Will Recommend to Friends

THANHOUSER FILM CORPORATION
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. Edwin Thanhouser, Pres. JACKSONVILLE, FLA.
EUROPEAN OFFICE, THANHOUSER FILMS, LTD., 167 WARDOUR ST., W., LONDON

TRIANGLE

A breath-taking incident in the "Gun Fighter's" career. Hart is the S. R. O. attraction.

SUNDAY, FEB. 11th
INCE-KAY BEE
WILLIAM S. HART
IN
"THE GUN FIGHTER"
AND A TRIANGLE KOMEDY
"WON BY A FOOT"

Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies

The FIRST of the NEW CROP, "The Nick of Time Baby," will be Released FEBRUARY 11th and then one a week.

THURSDAY FEB. 15th
A TRIANGLE KOMEDY
"HIS DEADLY UNDERTAKING"
AND CONSTANCE TALMADGE
IN
"A GIRL OF THE TIMBERCLAIMS" FINE ARTS

-AND WON!

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

PICTURES

The Truth About Triangle

TO EXHIBITORS:—

Our decks are now cleared for action. Our plans are complete to the last detail. Our producers are locked together with us positively and definitely. Our Branch Offices have the confidence of all the support that capital, experience and ability can give them.

Triangle is bigger, stronger, better equipped to furnish you with the finest photoplays than ever before. We have not explained our final and definite plans until we could be certain we could deliver to the last ounce what those plans contemplated. We were determined to make no promise that could not be kept to the final dot.

Today we can talk definitely, and we now tell you that the Triangle Program consisting of—

1 Five Reel Ince-Kay Bee Feature
1 Five Reel Fine Arts Feature
2 One Reel Triangle Komedies, will be supplied to you each week through Triangle Exchanges, as will also a special release of

1 Two Reel Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedy

and in no other way can these subjects be secured. We shall tell you more of our plans next week.

Triangle Distributing Corporation
Wm. W. Hodkinson, President,
1457 Broadway, New York City.

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

At the National Board of Review meeting held in New York on January 24

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

was selected as the most fitting subject with which to demonstrate how a powerful drama, absorbing plot, gigantic theme and subject of tremendous importance can be handled in a manner that,—while it treats the subject in hand in a definite, rugged manner,—is yet so constructed as to receive unanimous approval of every class. POWERFUL yet CLEAN — ABSORBING yet SUBTLE. It deals a terrific blow at our greatest human frailty—the allowing of our daughters to grow up in utter ignorance of the world's pitfalls yet it is the most entertaining film production Broadway has ever seen. During the two days has been at the PARK THEATRE, New York, an average of twelve thousand spectators have sat spellbound, thrilled with emotions.

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

"IT IS POSITIVELY THE MOST HEART GRIPPING, PULSE MOVING, DRAMATIC SPECTACLE THAT COULD BE CROWDED ON THE SCREEN IN THE TWO HOURS REQUIRED TO SHOW IT" says William R. Hearst's NEW YORK AMERICAN.

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

is the realization of the theatre owner's dream. It is PUNCH, PULLING POWER, SENSATION, and will open at your house unannounced and increase audiences nightly until the population of your city has seen it. It creates talk, arouses comment, builds patronage, & pleases, both as a mastodonic moral force and as a full evening's entertainment.

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS ADDRESS

ENLIGHTMENT PHOTO PLAY CORPORATION

220 WEST 42 ND STREET N.Y.C. SUITE 1005

PHONE BRYANT 7812

HENRY J. BROCK PRESIDENT

NOW SELLING

STATE RIGHTS

THE MOST REMARKABLE DRAMATIC SPECTACLE EVER SHOWN ON ANY SCREEN

THE 7 ACT CINEMA THUNDERBOLT

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

WRITTEN & DIRECTED BY
IVAN ABRAMSON

NO FEATURE, REGARDLESS OF COST, COMPARES WITH THIS PRODUCTION AS AN ATTRACTION. IT WILL STAND WEEK ENGAGEMENTS IN ANY THEATRE

SELECTED BY THE NATIONAL BOARD OF REVIEW TO BE SHOWN EXCLUSIVELY AT THEIR RECENT MEETING TO DEMONSTRATE HOW DELICATELY A POWERFUL SUBJECT OF GREAT DRAMATIC FORCE CAN BE HANDLED

11 EXHIBITORS OFFERED $14000 FOR ELEVEN WEEKS BOOKINGS IN GREATER NEW YORK, IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING THE TRADE SHOWING DECEMBER TWENTY-FIRST

WITHOUT ANY PRELIMINARY ADVERTISING OVER FORTY SOLID WEEKS BOOKING HAVE BEEN OFFERED

ENLIGHTMENT PHOTO PLAY CORPORATION

220 WEST 42 ND STREET N.Y.C. SUITE 1005
PHONE BRYANT 7812

HENRY J. BROCK PRESIDENT

MACK SENNETT
PRESENTS
MISS MABEL
NORMAND
AND HER OWN COMPANY IN
"MICKEY"
THE LITTLE GIRL YOU WILL NEVER FORGET

SOON TO BE RELEASED
MABEL NORMAND FEATURE FILM CO.
KESSEL AND BAUMANN EXECUTIVES
LONGACRE BLDG. NEW YORK CITY:

MACK SENNETT—KEYSTONES

ONLY ONE KIND

THE UTMOST IN COMEDY

NOW READY FOR RELEASE

INDEPENDENT OF ANY PROGRAM

ONE TWO-REELER EACH WEEK

"THE NICK OF TIME BABY"
"STARS AND 'BARS'"
"MAGGIE'S FIRST FALSE STEP"
"HER CIRCUS KNIGHT"
"DODGING HIS DOOM"
"VILLA OF THE MOVIES"
"HER FAME AND SHAME"
"A MAIDEN'S TRUST"
"HER NATURE DANCE"
"A ROYAL ROGUE"
"SKIDDING HEARTS"

IMPORTANT NOTICE!!!
THERE ARE NO ONE-REEL MACK SENNETT-KEYSTONES

Triangle Film Corp., Distributors

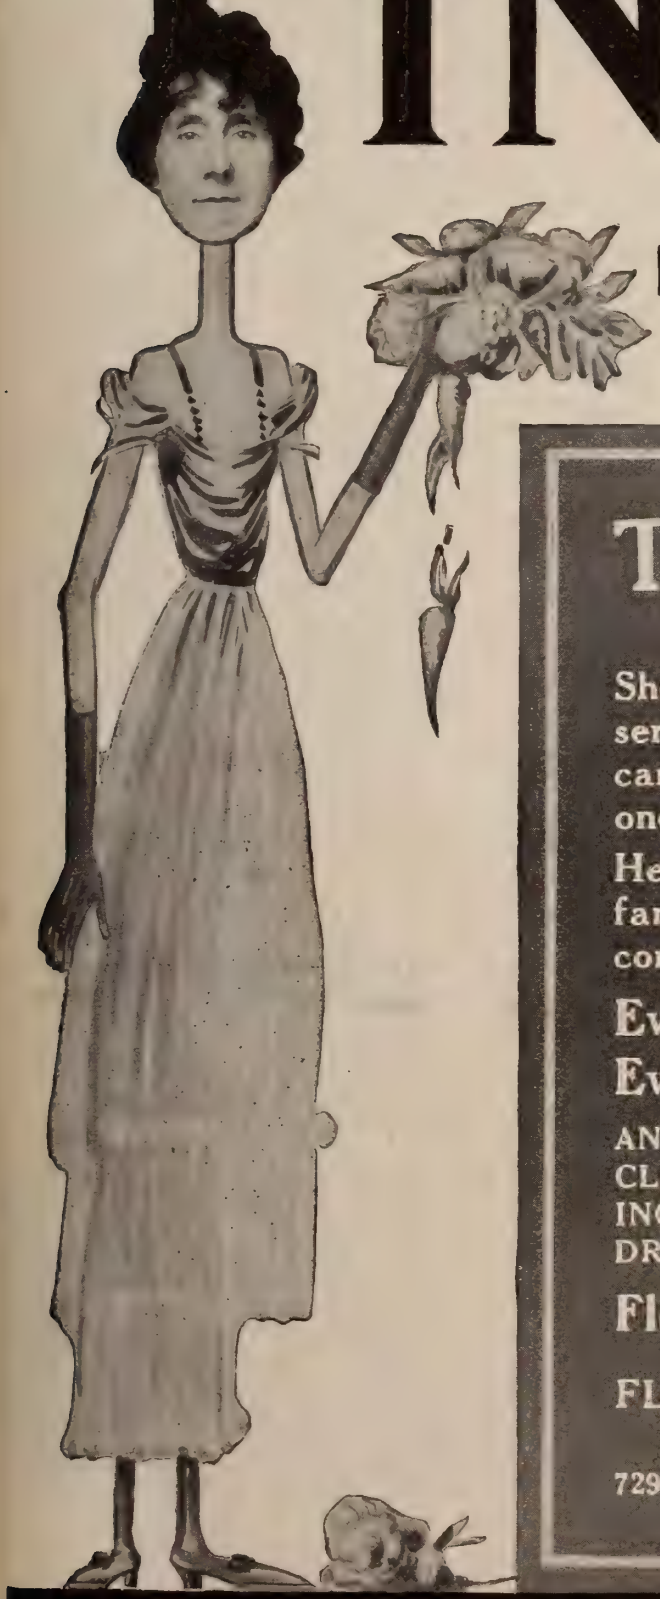
Kessel and Baumann, Executives
Longacre Bldg., New York City

WHAT BECOMES OF THE CHILDREN ?

A BIG VITAL QUESTION OF TODAY
A GRIPPING POWERFUL STORY
A VIVID AND APPEALING LESSON
A DRAMATIC SENSATION

WRITTEN BY AND FEATURING

CORRA BEACH



AND

WALTER SHUMWAY

DIRECTED BY WALTER RICHARD STAHL

FLORA FINCH!!

IN ALL HER SCRAWNY, SKINNY MAJESTY!

THE first funny-woman of the screen who to this day has no successor.

She will now appear in a comedy series that only a FLORA FINCH can make great—and there's only one FLORA FINCH!

Her tremendous following is her fame, and in State Rights it becomes your asset.

Everybody Knows Flora Finch!
Everybody Wants Her!

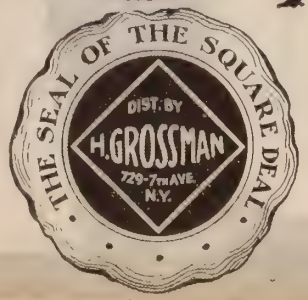
AND NOW, AS AN INDIVIDUAL EXCLUSIVE STAR, BACKED BY CORKING PRODUCTION, NEW IDEAS AND A DRIVING ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

Flora Finch is ready for you!

FLORA FINCH FILM CORPORATION
729 7th Avenue, New York

THE SEAL OF THE SQUARE DEAL
DIST. BY H. GROSSMAN 729-7TH AVE. N.Y.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers



We tell it to you here so plainly and without the usual gush of advertising because we sell films—not ads; and we respect your intelligence!

You cannot know a good drawing card by merely reading ads.—you must see it. Then see "WILL YOU MARRY ME?" You are not expected to believe all you read, but you are expected to recognize merit when you see it on the screen

"WILL YOU MARRY ME" is designed to make money for you because that's sure to mean us also. To satisfy you means profit to us.

Pardon us for talking so simply, but we deal only in truths—and truth is so simple!

P.S. It is very possible that delay may cost you an opportunity. Wire for our proposition—We can deal quickly.

MAJOR FILM CORPORATION
729 SEVENTH AVE.,
NEW YORK CITY

SMASHING ALL RECORDS

INTO SMITHEREENS! MAKING SO-CALLED "WAR STUFF" GIVE WAY TO ITS BRILLIANT, HUMAN, POWERFUL APPEAL——!!!

A History-Maker for State Rights Buyers That Is Sweeping the Country! Four Weeks at the N. Y. Strand Means "MERIT!"

Wire in for Your Territory Now on

"GERMANY and ITS ARMIES TODAY"

You will see a proposition, from heralds to lithographs, that will turn you money-ward in a jiffy!

Germanic Official War Films, Inc.

729 Seventh Avenue, Room 1003, NEW YORK CITY

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

York Times.

THE WEATHER
Probably rain or snow today; fair Friday; fresh, shifting winds.
For full weather report see Page 19.

JANUARY 25, 1917.—TWENTY PAGES. ONE CENT In Greater New York, Jersey City and Newark, } Elsewhere, TWO CENTS

CAINE AND LAW STATE ENGLAND'S VIEWS

CAINE LAUDS WILSON SPEECH

Says Englishmen Profoundly Admire the Grandeur of Its Conception.

BUT ONE PHRASE WOUNDS

"Peace Without Victory" Stirs Resentment, While "Freedom of the Seas" Seems Ill-Timed.

SEES WAR THREATENING US

British Opinion Holds That the President Was Influenced by Anxiety to Avoid Its Horrors.

By HALL CAINE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—President Wilson probably knows by this time that the first expression of French and British opinion on his speech to the Senate has been that of scarcely disguised disdain. He has no reason to [illegible] doubled on that acco[illegible] challenge [illegible]

HALL CAINE

World renowned man of letters is THE AUTHOR of THE DEEMSTER his greatest DRAMATIC STORY —

a story which has lived in the hearts of the American people and has been translated into twelve different languages.

The world-wide appeal of this GIGANTIC ATTRACTION means that it will make money for years — that its drawing power is limited only by TIME ITSELF.

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS

Communicate with

ARROW FILM CORPORATION Broadway TIMES BUILDING New York

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

Mr. State Rights Buyer:

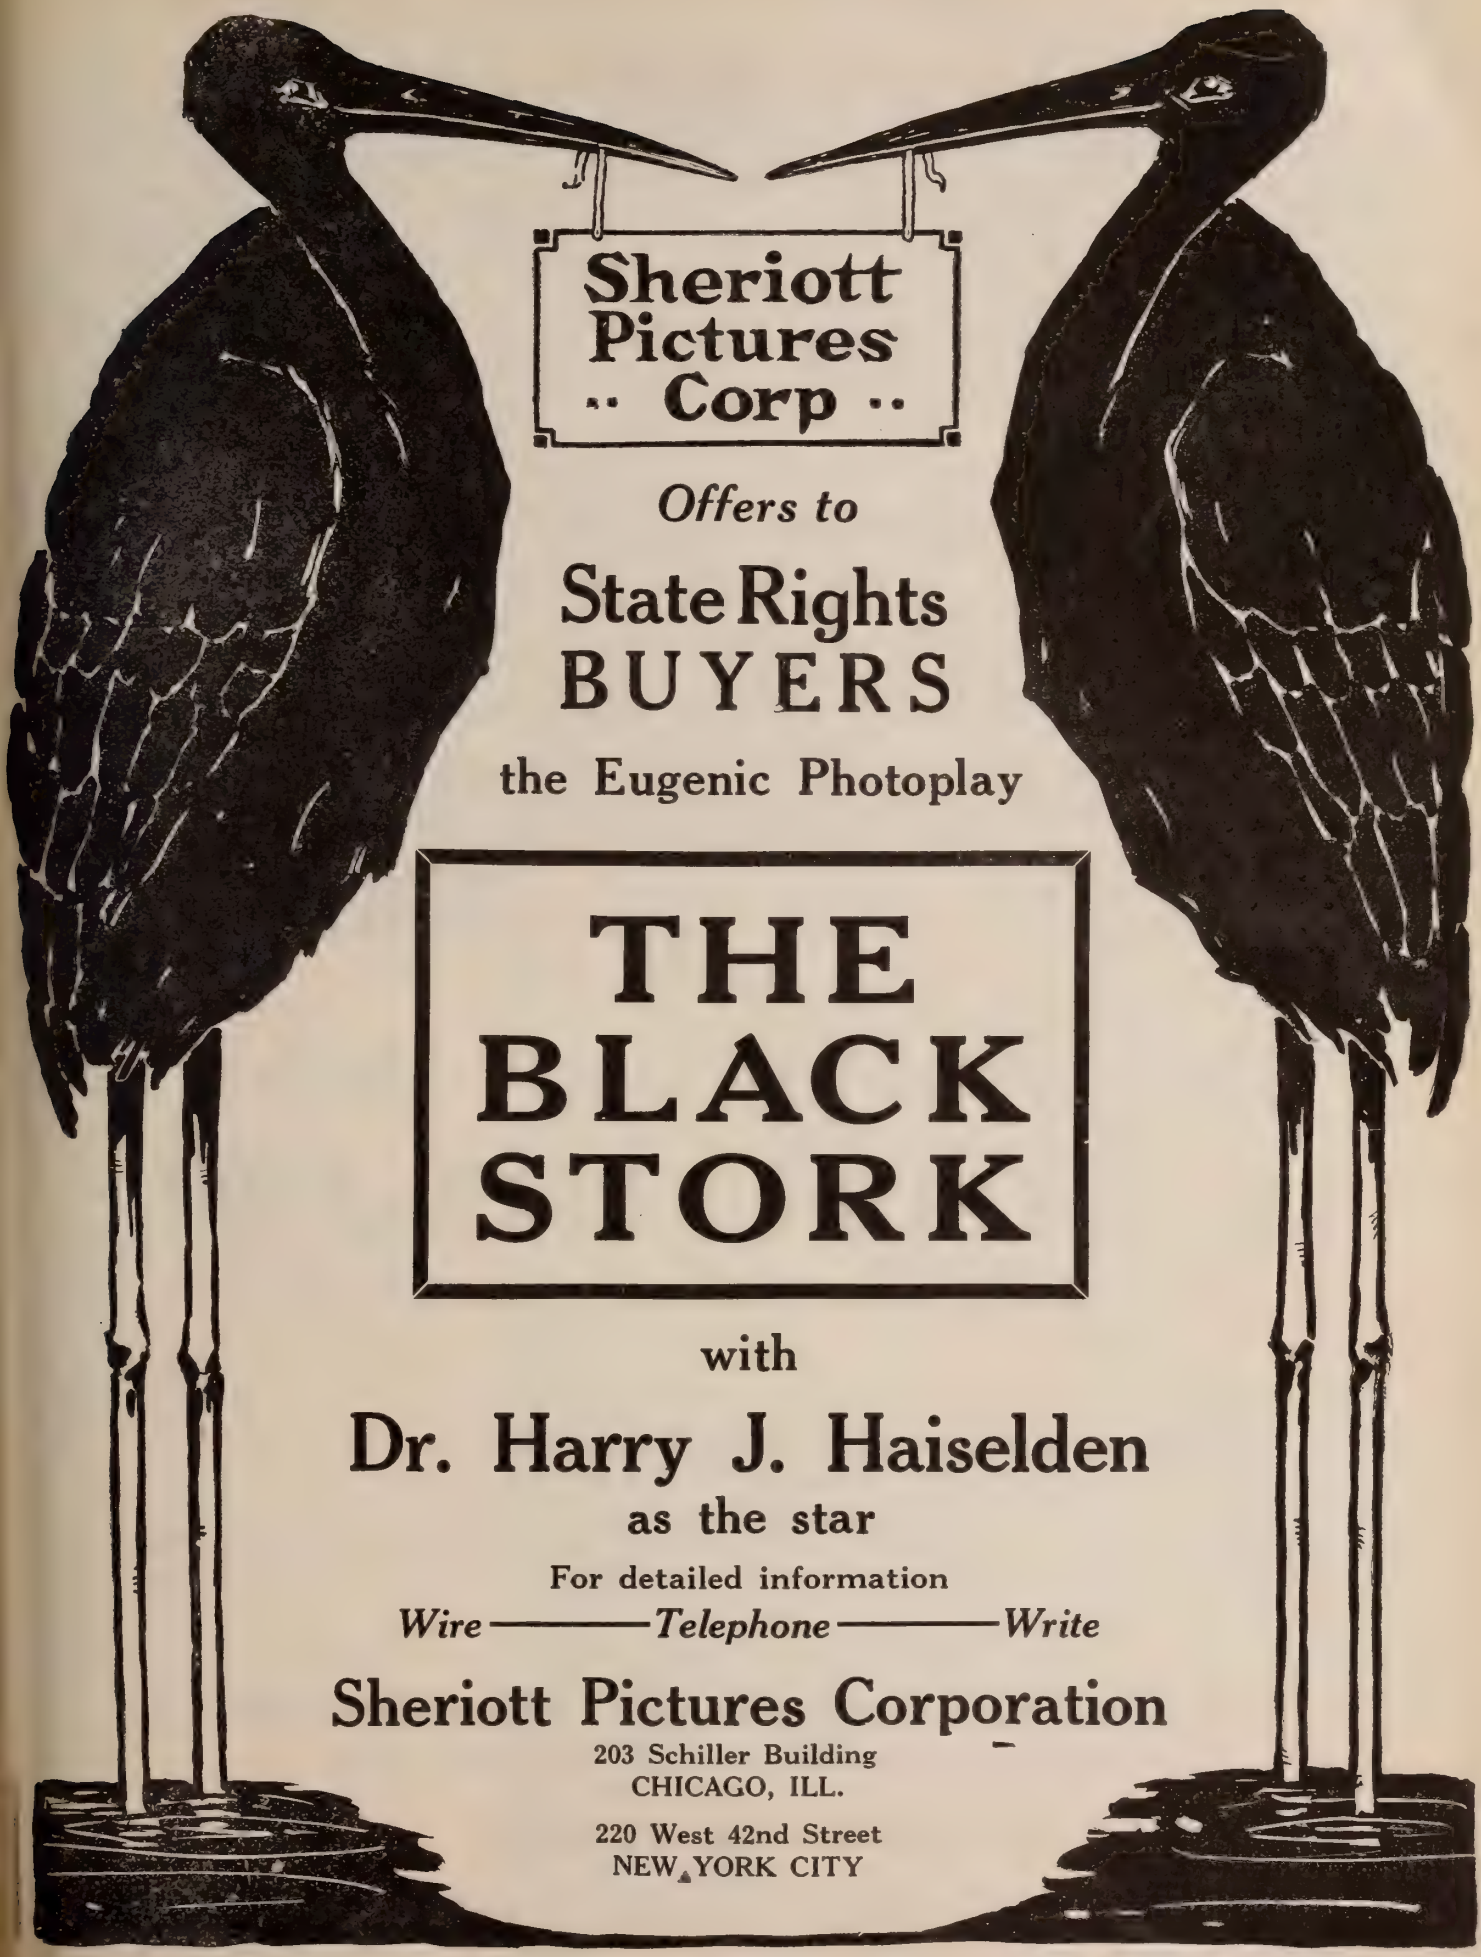
If you have studied your business you know your financial success depends upon the financial returns to your exhibitor-patrons.

To be absolutely sure of large box office returns you must have a first class photoplay with a widely known, well advertised star.

We have the very medium you need in "The Black Stork," with Dr. Harry J. Haiselden in the leading role.

Dr. Harry J. Haiselden is the eminent Chicago surgeon who refuses to operate to save or prolong the lives of unhealthy children of mismated marriages.

From November, 1915, until May, 1916, the newspapers of the world devoted more space to Dr. Haiselden than to the President of the United States because the surgeon refused to operate to prolong the life of a misshapen, morally deficient baby.



With the release of "The Black Stork" Dr. Haiselden and the photoplay will receive more publicity than the action upon which the picture is based caused originally.

"The Black Stork" is a eugenic five reel photoplay with a gripping love drama through its entire length. It is a real photoplay with an eminent, widely advertised surgeon as the star.

These are the reasons you should purchase rights now.

Sheriott Pictures Corporation.

Sheriott Pictures .. Corp ..

Offers to

State Rights BUYERS

the Eugenic Photoplay

THE BLACK STORK

with

Dr. Harry J. Haiselden

as the star

For detailed information

Wire ——— Telephone ——— Write

Sheriott Pictures Corporation

203 Schiller Building
CHICAGO, ILL.

220 West 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

LAUGHS MEAN MONEY AND YOUR BOX-OFFICE LAUGHS LOUDEST OF ALL WHEN YOU PLAY THE

BILLY WEST COMEDIES

TWO REELS EACH AND PACKED WITH RIOTOUS YELLS

First Release—"HIS MARRIED LIFE" Second Release "BOMBS AND BOARDERS"

REAL SCREAMS OF THE SCREEN

WATCH for the LATEST

Billy West Cyclone of Mirth

"A HOTEL MIX-UP"

To be Released on February Twenty-sixth

Billy Has Been Seen in Some Screen Screams
Before: but for Whirlwind Action and Howling
Comedy, That Will Send Your Patrons Out with Aching Sides and Wagging Tongues,
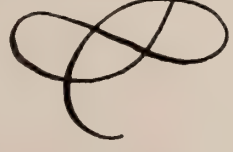
"A Hotel Mix-Up" Has Them All Backed Off the Film

SPECIAL NOTICE

The Billy West Comedies Are Now to be Distributed on the Open Market on a States Right Basis

For Franchises and Information Apply to

The Belmont Film Company



Executive Offices and Studios YONKERS, N. Y.

The STORY relates frankly
the consequences of a wrong choice made by The GIRL who was driven by the best impulse in human life and in The PICTURE
the piteousness of her mistake is presented with clean and certain drama

A MORAL PANTOMIME

Released on the METRO
Program
February 12.

ARTHUR JAMES
presents
FRANCES NELSON
in Wm. Christy Cabanne's
ONE of MANY
A METRO wonderplay in Five unusual acts contrived by Wm.
Christy Cabanne from his own story.

Here's the Evidence

Samuel Sonin, Manager of the Lincoln Theatre, Brooklyn N.Y. makes this unsolicited announcement about

The Great Secret

Story by Fred de Gresac

"A serial feature production, which we personally recommend. As a rule, we are not in favor of booking serial pictures, but, after seeing the first eight episodes of "THE GREAT SECRET," and being assured that this serial production will keep up the high standard of photography and will continue to grow in interest with each chapter. we have therefore decided that we must book The Great Secret."

"It would not be fair to deprive our patrons of seeing this very interesting story and remarkably good acting by their favorite stars."

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN and BEVERLY BAYNE

Adapted and Produced by Wm. Christy Cabanne.

What's true for the Lincoln Theatre is true for you

SEE YOUR NEAREST METRO EXCHANGE

STATE RIGHT BUYERS

Read the newspaper and Trade Journal reviews on this massive production — then get in touch with us.

"HER CONDONED SIN"

IN SIX REELS

PRODUCED BY

D. W. GRIFFITH

(Founded on Judith of Bethulia)

The most magnificent and artistic spectacle staged by this celebrated producer

Included in the Cast are

HENRY WALTHALL MAE MARSH
BLANCHE SWEET ROBERT HARRON
LILLIAN GISH DOROTHY GISH

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
796 East 176th Street
New York City

Comedies!

The

Milo Film Corporation

Presents

THE STRIKE BREAKERS

One Reel Released Feb. 3rd

Sensational and daring feats—well staged—well played—well photographed—will pack your house to capacity.

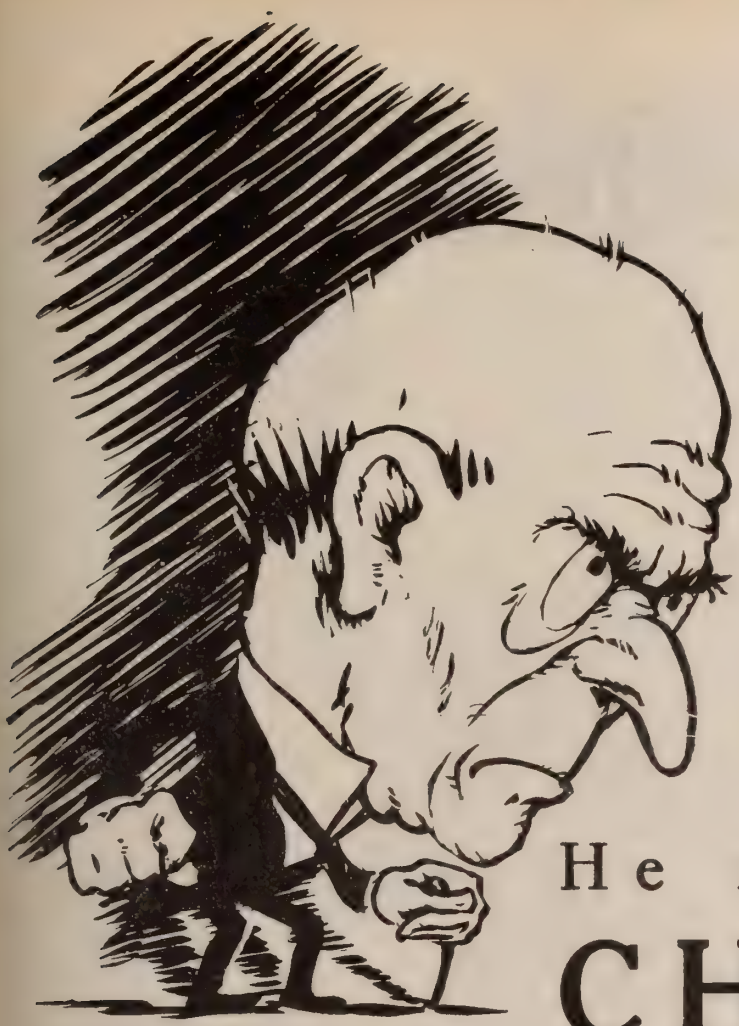
Now is the time to connect with

Milo Comedies



Released Saturday of each week in the order named—

Feb. 3.	The Strike Breakers.	Mar. 3.	A Knot that is Not.
Feb. 10.	Harry the Sleuth.	Mar. 10.	Never Again.
Feb. 17.	The Town Hall Fizzle.	Mar. 17.	The Devil in Again.
Feb. 24.	Great Danbury Fair.	Mar. 24.	Gooseburg Elopement.

By

American Standard Motion Picture Corp.
and thru its affiliated exchanges throughout the U. S.

Times Bldg., N. Y. City

He never sees a

CHRISTIE COMEDY!

but—thousands of movie-goers everywhere do see CHRISTIE COMEDIES and leave the theatre with smiling, happy, satisfied faces that mean real money to the owner of that theatre! Exhibitors know that CHRISTIE COMEDIES do satisfy the public's demand for clean, wholesome, funny comedies—well acted and free from vulgarity. A new one released on the open-market each week.

Week of February 5th—

"SMALL CHANGE"

Featuring NEAL BURNS and BETTY COMPSON

CHRISTIE FILM CO.

AL. E. CHRISTIE · DIRECTOR GENERAL

SUNSET BLVD. AT GOWER ST.

LOS ANGELES · CALIFORNIA

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

K LEINE E DISON S ELIG E SSANAY

Watch for

MAX LINDER

and his

BEVY OF BLONDE BEAUTIES

in his first Essanay comedy

"MAX COMES ACROSS"

DON'T FAIL TO BOOK THE ENTIRE SERIES OF 12
—THE FUNNIEST EVER SCREENED

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Volume XV Number 6 — February 10 1917

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Wm. A. Johnston, Pres. and Editor; Henry F. Sewall, Vice-Pres.; E. Kendall Gillett, Sec.; H. A. Wyckoff, Treas. & Bus. Mgr.

Chicago Offices, Mgr. T. S. Mead, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 427 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, 462 Broadway, F-2188.

Subscriptions $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N.B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the New York Post Office.

News of the Week

Petty Politics Wrecks New York Convention..... 865
Buettner Heads New York State League 865
Profit Sharing Plan made to Manufacturers by Ochs' Organ 866
Committee Finds Tax "Will Break the Camel's Back".... 867
Ince and Sennett to Continue with Triangle 868
Trigger Candidate for National Presidency 868
"News" Campaign for Longer Runs Succeeding Nationally.. 869
Helping the Exhibitor Increase His Box Office Receipts—by H. C. Holah.....870
Joan of Arc Opens in Los Angeles 925
Irish Rioters at Vitagraph Film in Court..... 926
"Filth Films" Before Vermont Legislature 927
Censorship Possible in 20 States 927
Unicorn Will Recapitalize at $5,000,000 929
(Complete Table of Contents will be found on page 936)

Time for House Cleaning

WE are again in receipt of a communication from Lee A. Ochs, a lengthy follow-up of his attack against the Universal Company, and which we are asked to publish in the name of the exhibitors of the United States, Canada and Alaska.

We are consigning the document to the waste-paper basket; we will not publish it for the following reasons:

We regard it as coming wholly from Ochs and not from the Exhibitors League.

We regard the issue as wholly created by Ochs, not at all by the Exhibitors League nor authorized by the Exhibitors League.

We denounce as positively fraudulent the statement of Ochs that he speaks for the exhibitors of the United States.

WE regard the Ochs paper as nothing more or less than a private enterprise, capitalized through the presidency of the Exhibitors League and pushed along by politics—offered first as an alleged organ of the Exhibitor and then offered on a profit-sharing basis to the manufacturer members of the National Association.

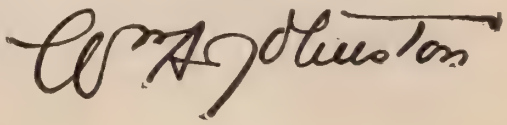
There is nothing new or of any interest to anyone in the follow-up statement issued by Ochs—nothing save an obvious desire to continue an issue for personal motives and with an utter disregard of the best interests of the Exhibitors League, the National Association and the entire industry.

AGAIN, and in behalf of exhibitor organization, and in behalf of the perpetuation of the M. P. E. L. of America, we urge the resignation of Ochs from the presidency of the League.

The facts of the issue remain as first stated.

They are few and plain; nothing can befog them.

(1) On January 17—after many urgent pleadings—Ochs asked for Universal advertising and got a flat and final refusal.



(2) On January 18 Ochs issued a violent attack upon the Universal Company, raking up a year-old incident as its sole basis.

Plain facts and simple ones.

Plain enough and simple enough and bald enough for anyone to see clear through.

PLAIN enough and simple enough and bald enough to be brought to but one court, and that is the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry—for this body to decide whether this plain, unvarnished piece of business is to be tolerated within the industry, and whether at this critical time a personal issue is to be made public property in the sole behalf of any individual or any individual enterprise.

We suggest that this is a duty the National Association owes the industry, a duty it cannot escape. And we suggest that it settle the matter now, once and for all, and without its further airing in the newspapers or in any organ of the industry.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

Speaking Editorially:

More Money Out of Each Picture!

IN the wake of the daily change follow the three besetting evils of the fifth industry—overproduction, inferior productions, and inefficient distribution.

Responsible for the daily change is the timidity of the exhibitor who views his possible patronage through the small end of the telescope. Contributing also to the causes for the daily change is the film exchange that charges the same rental per day, whether a picture be booked for one or three days.

The daily change clothes an art in the garb of the dime museum.

The daily change must go before the day of one hundred per cent. efficiency will come.

Will you—Mr. Manufacturer—by shoulder to shoulder work with the exhibitor help to bring nearer the day of fewer pictures, better pictures, longer runs—and more money out of each picture?

Will you—Mr. Exhibitor—realize that for every night-after-night patron of your theater there are a half hundred you have never reached and never will until the longer run brings them to you? And that the longer run will bring them by replacing the costly daily flash with word of mouth advertising and common-sense advance advertising?

Let's get together—now—in one great drive on the daily change. Let the slogan be:

Fewer pictures, better pictures, longer runs—and more money out of each picture!

We Hope for Hopp

FOR President of the Chicago local league of Exhibitors—Joseph Hopp.

We are pleased to note Mr. Hopp's candidacy and earnestly hope for his election on February 2nd.

He himself is of and he is solidly backed by the best and most substantial exhibiting elements of the city. His election will bring these elements to the forefront in the management of the league.

Joseph Hopp is against petty politics and clique domination. He believes in organization to the end of the individual member's good—and not as something to be capitalized for private gain.

His election is all the more important in view of the fact that Chicago is to hold the Exhibitors' National Convention again this year.

Business—Not Buncombe

SOUNDS like a business convention—that meeting of Indiana State Exhibitors on January 18.

Not a mere subterfuge to hold a ball or exposition, but a genuine business conference at which a hundred or more exhibitors got seriously and sturdily at work and set in motion practical plans to better their box-offices.

Nor a Coney Island festival, nor an election bee.

Instead of asking for donations, they, themselves, put up the money to back their plans for better business.

They didn't demand anything of the manufacturer—except his respect and his serious, perhaps anxious consideration; and they'll certainly get both.

The Burglars in the Business

"WHY don't the manufacturers get together and stop the waste and hold-ups in their businesses?

We were asked this question last week by a gentleman, interested in the present investigation of the industry by the legislature of New York.

Quite a natural question.

Perhaps our reply is of some truth and interest.

We said that the average manufacturer today is so busy, so anxious to make successful pictures, so intent upon the big, rattling problems facing him from all quarters—problems only natural in this big new industry—that if a burglar were operating in his office he'd probably let him go on for the simple reason that he could not spare the time to have him arrested.

This is not an invitation to burglars to take a chance, however. Some day, pretty soon, this business will put the burglar away.

Why Not Revues?

A SUGGESTION to Distributors.

It is a pretty well-known fact that the one, two and three-part pictures of several years ago were often better than the often padded five-part pictures of today.

Why not have many and regular reissues of these pictures called revues?

Call them Vitagraph, Paramount, Selig, Rex, Kalem, American, etc., Revues.

They'll lend themselves to advertising.

They'll stand longer runs.

The new motion picture public will want to see them for the first time; the older people will want to see them again.

Perhaps the fan will object, but that's an indication of good business.

Reissues have gone well. Why not put them out regularly, carefully, in program form and call them revues?

Thank Heaven!

A RECENT letter sent out from this office to the states right buyers indicates that the day of the sex and vice picture is about over.

A shrewd buyer, in the office the other day, says he will not handle another such picture. Their commercial glamour is gone.

The public has turned this kind of picture down.

All these pictures ever did, anyway, was to get the public in. Sensational advertising did that. It's quite easy. Patent medicines have been sold as successfully.

There are no more people to get in now. You can only fool them once.

Wrathy—Not Wealthy

AN error in typography in last week's editorial page made out the small-town exhibitor in New York State to be "wealthy."

The word should have been "wrathy."

We know of lots of wrathy exhibitors, but few wealthy ones.

Petty Politics Wrecks New York State Convention

Subscription Chasing and Universal Baiting Overshadow Sunday Closing and Other Vital Problems for Which Meeting Was Called—Eighty Exhibitors Attend Various Sessions

CALLED for the purpose of impressing New York's legislators to such an extent that Sunday closing and further taxation of picture theatres would be permanently side-tracked, the annual convention of the New York branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America succeeded mainly in spreading before the eyes of the legislators the Ochs-Universal row. The convention adopted a protest against Sunday closing and drafted an amendment to the statute that will be pushed later, but Wednesday's long-planned grand march on the Capitol proved a fiasco. In the hustle and bustle incident to subscription-chasing for the Ochs publication and Universal-baiting none of the managers of the affair had thought to inform the Governor and legislators that the exhibitors were coming, with the result that only a handful of Assemblymen and Senators was on hand to be impressed. Both houses of the Legislature had met earlier in the morning and quickly adjourned.

In point of attendance the convention was well up to the mark set by any previous state affair, an average of seventy-five being present at all the sessions, while guests and exchange men brought the attendance at Wednesday's banquet close to the hundred mark.

With this attendance the initial session of the convention on Tuesday opened most auspiciously. President Ochs appointed the various committees and the convention adjourned until the futile march "up the hill and down again" on Wednesday. But the big event of the day was the successful coup engineered by Ochs's subscription and publicity department which secured the airing of the Universal fight in Boss Barnes's Albany Journal, the capital organ of the majority legislators. The story follows:

EXHIBITORS WANT CLEAN PICTURES

"MOVIE" MEN IN SESSION HERE TO REFUTE STATEMENT MADE BY BIG FILM COMPANY

"The statement sent out by a film company that 60 per cent. of the exhibitors of this country are demanding indecent pictures is a deliberate falsehood, and we intend to refute it and show that the motion pictures exhibitors are demanding clean pictures," said W. Steven Bush, editor of the Exhibitors' Trade Review, one of the leading members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, which opened its annual convention at the Ten Eyck this afternoon.

"Mr. Bush said that in the estimation of the members of the league the refutation of the statement regarding indecent pictures was just as important as the effort that the league will make to have motion picture houses opened on Sunday, and the fight against taxation of such houses by the state."

To many of the exhibitors the Albany Journal story was the first intimation they had received of the Ochs-Universal personal fight, which according to the story was one of the principal reasons for the Albany trip. The effect on the legislators may be learned from the statement of one Senator, who declared, "Don't mention my name, because I'm with you boys to the finish and am going to fight clear through this session. You're playing right into Barnes's hands, and what's more I think this film manufacturer is right. The worst part of it is that some of these exhibitors just seem to pick out Sunday to show their off-color pictures."

Following the failure of the attempt to waylay the Governor and legislators on Wednesday, another convention session was held. Resolutions were quickly passed praising the Ochs publication and calling on all present to subscribe. There followed a long and heated discussion of a resolution presented by W. Fait, of Utica, an advertised contributor to the Ochs paper, rebuking the Universal Company. The rebuke was finally sent back to the committee to be considerably modified and was later passed, with a loud dissenting vote from Samuel Trigger, who requested that his vote be recorded.

The advance deposit committee reported with a strong protest against the present deposit system and, after some discussion, adopted Louis Blumenthal's proposal that representatives of the exhibitor organization confer with representatives of the manufacturers on a mutually satisfactory form of bonding contract, binding alike to league members and the manufacturers.

Following the report of the Bill Drafting Committee the convention decided to withhold its approval from any of the Sunday bills now before the Legislature and favor an amendment to the present code covering Sunday amusements which makes it clear that the prohibition does not apply to motion pictures. Grant Anson was appointed legislative agent to look after the bill.

To further the work it was decided to levy an assessment of $10 on each picture theatre in the state, this being a substitute for the proposed three cent a seat tax.

A proposal to give a salary of $1,000 to Thomas Howard, state secretary, was approved.

Thursday morning's Albany papers again carried long discussions of the Ochs-Universal row, this time baring the details of the Ochs attempt to secure advertising from the film company, and the belated protest following a day after his failure. Other points were brought out far from beneficial to the cause which had brought exhibitors from points as widely distant as New York and Buffalo. Many exhibitors commented on the fact that, though many conventions had been held since the publication over a year ago of the Universal Weekly editorial, it remained to this late day and the creation of the advertising issue for a rebuke to be administered. Other exhibitors noted with disfavor that the most prominent printed sign in the convention headquarters was a subscription boost and the most frequently heard conversation the busy subscription soliciting of W. Stephen Bush and Tom Howard.

Buettner Heads New York Branch of League

Samuel Trigger Chosen National Vice-President—Up-State Men Now Represented Strongly on List

LOUIS A. BUETTNER, of Cohoes, was at Wednesday's session of the Albany Convention elected president of the New York branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. Samuel Trigger, of New York, who has announced his candidacy for National President, was chosen National Vice-President, representing New York State. Following is the complete ticket:

President, Louis Buettner, of Cohoes; first vice-president, John Manheimer, of Brooklyn; second vice-president, David Cohen, of Binghamton; treasurer, Charles Steiner, of New York; secretary, Tom Howard, of New York; national vice-president, Samuel H. Trigger, of New York.

Delegates named for the National Convention were Isaac Hartstall, of Brooklyn; Sidney Ascher, of Brooklyn; W. C. Hubbard, of Rochester; William Brandt, of Brooklyn; J. Walker, of Schenectady; Samuel Suckno, of Albany; I. Rhonheimer, of New York; W. H. Linton, of Utica; A. Hollander, of Brooklyn; William Fait, Jr., of Utica; A. J. Stockhamer, of Brooklyn; William P. Donlon, of Utica; David Picker, of the Bronx; Grant Anson, of New York; Frank Gorman, of New York; and Ira M. Mosher, of Buffalo.

About one hundred were present at the Ten Eyck banquet, held Wednesday evening. The speakers were L. A. Buettner, Lee Ochs, Sam Trigger, John Manheimer, Sam Spedon, Sidney Ascher, Chas. Steiner, David Cohen, Grant Anson, W. H. Linton, Tom Howard, J. M. Moser, W. C. Hubbard. S. W. Bush acted as toastmaster.

The committees appointed by President Ochs follow:

Deposit: Samuel Trigger, William Brandt, Louis Buettner, David Picker and W. H. Linton.

Resolutions: William Fait, Jr., Sidney Cohen, Samuel Suckno, Willis C. Hubbard, L. A. Buettner.

Law and Legislation: Grant W. Anson, chairman, and representatives from each county.

Bill Drafting: Walter Zeisler, E. Manheimer, L. Levine, George Roberts, C. Fischer, Frank Gorman, E. Mayer, Rudolph G. Sanders, Benjamin Apple, Frank Barhydt, M. J. Gersen, and Ira M. Mosher.

Grievance: Walter H. Seeley, Walter Zeisler, W. N. Walker, and Harry Loux.

Membership: John Miller, H. L. Levy, Morris S. Silverman, and W. H. Buck.

Of the exhibitors present over three-fourths were from New York City, those journeying on the special train being as follows:

Gustav Koenigswald, L. Hartsell, H. Weisner, H. Garnsborg, H. Mayer, Chas. Fischer, Jack Swartz, N. Gordon, Sam Trigger, Benj. Lyons, Frank Petter, Sidney Ascher, Louis Levine, David Picker, Albert Israel, Harry Danto, Tom Howard, Lee Ochs, Chas. Steiner, Jos. Perl, Louis Schneider, Elias Mayer, Sydney Cohen, Harold M. Rosenthal, Wm. Brandt, John Manheimer, Rud. Sanders, A. J. Stockhammer, H. Weingarten, Otto Lederer, Louis Rosenthal, Ed. Valensi, John F. Muller, Manuel DeMotta, Harry Shapiro, Nathan Matchis, Samuel Rhonheimer, Max Oestreicher, Frank Gorman, Henry Harnig,

(Continued on following page)

Profit-Sharing Offer Made Manufacturers by Ochs Organ

P. A. Powers, of Universal—Now Criticized by Ochs—Among Manufacturers Appealed to in Scheme to Share Profits of Publication Started "Of, By and For the Exhibitor"

THE backfire of the Ochs-Universal row has brought to light an ingenious offer made by Lee Ochs to P. A. Powers and other manufacturers by which his publication—started "of, by, and for the exhibitor"—was to enter into an agreement to share its profits with a group of film producers. The plan called for enlisting the aid of the members of the National Association in a manner that, it is declared by those familiar with the Governmental Post Office regulations, would make the new publication a "co-operative house organ," and thus outside the regulations covering newspapers and magazines.

P. A. Powers—now condemned by Ochs as unfit for the Griffith Anti-Censorship Committee—was among the manufacturers who were first offered a share in the profits of the "exhibitor's organ," the profits to be divided in proportion to the amount of advertising contributed by each producer. Ochs's appeal to the manufacturers to become interested in his publication has not been given a final answer by the manufacturers though it was temporarily tabled by the Executive Committee.

Full details of the plan to link forces with the manufacturers in a publication carrying their news and announcements to the exhibitors are contained in the following letter sent by Lee Ochs to P. A. Powers and the other manufacturers:

December 26th, 1916.

Members of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry of the United States.

Gentlemen:—

The Exhibitor's Trade Review, Inc, the corporation undersigned, which publishes the Exhibitor's Trade Review, a publication with which you are all familiar, has the following proposition to offer to each of you relative to the placing of advertising in this medium.

The Exhibitor's Trade Review is willing to finance itself and sell advertising at the rate of $100 per page with a 25% discount to the members of your association.

Out of the yearly profits from the publication, the stockholders shall get the first $50,000. The next $50,000 of profits shall be divided among the advertisers who are members of your association, in proportion to the amount of money paid by each for advertising in this medium during the year. The profits realized over and above $100,000 shall be divided 50% to the stockholders and 50% to the advertisers aforesaid, to be divided among the advertisers in the same way as the second $50,000 of profit is divided.

The officers of this company estimate that with 75 pages of advertising at $75 a page and a circulation of 10,000, the expenses of the paper are assured, and that any sums realized over and above this amount will be profit to be divided as above set forth.

We trust that the foregoing will receive your due consideration, and that we will hear from you shortly as to your acceptance, either as a body or individually, of the foregoing proposition.

Yours very truly,
EXHIBITOR'S TRADE REVIEW, Inc.
By (Signed) LEE A. OCHS.

Buettner Heads New York State League

(Continued from preceding page)

Moe Streimer, Chas. Streimer, S. B. Kramer, of Bluebird; John F. Muller, of the Buffalo Times; Mr. Morrison, of Vitagraph; Mr. Raynor, of K-E-S-E; L. J. Gaffney, American Seating Co.

The up-state exhibitors present included: L. A. Buettner, Cohoes, Frank N. Barhydt, Troy, New York; W. H. Buck, Albany, New York; Sapare Battagla, Troy; Milt. Barter, Troy; William Donlon, Utica, Jacob M. Fried, Schenectady; W. Fait, Utica; W. C. Hubbard, Rochester; H. L. Levey, Waterford; W. H. Linton, Saratoga; Benjamin Lyons, Herkimer; I. M. Mosher, Buffalo; Walter M. Powers, Albany; George Roberts, Hudson; N. E. Milligan, Schuyerville; Frank H. Shay, Schenectady; Morris Silverman, Schenectady; Samuel Suckno, Albany; Joseph E. Wiedman, Albany; W. A. Zeisler, Schenectady.

Sunday Closing Fast Becomes a National Issue

The Sunday Closing issue is getting to be a live one all over the country. Besides New York, Illinois exhibitors are having a lively fight in the legislature over this issue, and Texas has just moved into the danger zone, through a bill introduced into the legislature at Austin.

The issue, however, is not very popular anywhere, and in some communities, at any rate, it is not understood at all. One of these pleasant spots is New Orleans where, according to Harold D. Newman, commissioner of safety, there will never be anything to worry about on that score.

WITH ALL DUE MODESTY

"I read practically every one of the motion picture trade journals and I wish to state without the least hesitation that my Motion Picture department in the Port Arthur Daily Record is more ably assisted by the columns of your publication than by all the film press service now being mailed out to dramatic editors."

Kent Watson, Film Editor, Port Arthur Record, Port Arthur, Texas.

Norma Talmadge Goes South

Norma Talmadge leaves for the South within a few days leading a new company where work will be started on her next production, the title of which has not as yet been announced. Through the efforts of William A. Sheer, Inc., Sally Crute and John Charles will be prominent in the cast. The production will be staged under the direction of Julius Steger and Joseph A. Golden.

McClure Secures Wilkerson

W. R. Wilkerson has been engaged to manage the Dallas office for McClure Pictures, and will assume his duties immediately. Mr. Wilkerson is well known in the business in general, and especially around New York, and he is sure to make things "hum" in the Texas territory.

Young Star Opposite Walthall

Doris Kenyon has just been selected by James Young as co-star with Henry B. Walthall in the next Essanay picture, "On Trial." Although but nineteen years old, Miss Kenyon has had a large number of successes.

Civilization Company Formed in New Jersey

Frank G. Hall, who controls the Strand theatre, Market street, Newark, has organized the Civilization Film Corporation to buy and sell motion picture productions on the state rights plan. The new company is capitalized at $125,000. Associated with Mr. Hall are John C. Eisele, of the brokerage firm of Eisele and King; John J. MacGovern, George and Henry Alsopp and Peter Fox.

The company already has acquired the state rights for New Jersey to "Joan the Woman," and is negotiating for other big productions. It also controls the New Jersey rights to "Civilization" and "War's Women."

Frank G. Hall, organizer of the new company, is one of the best-known men in the New Jersey film field. He recently added the Strand theatre to his chain of picture and vaudeville houses and is planning an elaborate campaign in that territory.

"The Vicar" in Eight Parts

The Thanhouser-Pathe production of "The Vicar of Wakefield," starring Frederick Warde, is to be in eight acts. This announcement has just been made by Edwin Thanhouser.

Committee Finds Tax "Would Break the Camel's Back"

Powers, Brady and Zukor Lend the Weight of Their Expert Testimony to the Investigators' Growing Knowledge That Taxation Will Cripple Film Industry

THE investigating committee sent to New York by the New York State Legislature, to determine whether or not the motion picture industry is a fit subject for taxation, reconvened last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, their witnesses being P. A. Powers, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company; William A. Brady, of the World Film Company, and Adolph Zukor, of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

All of these witnesses testified willingly and freely, with the result that the committee has been shown convincingly that the only department of the industry which is profiting by the present state of affairs is that which includes high salaried stars.

Judging by the keyed questions which are being asked of its witnesses, the committee seems to have approached the investigating question with a predetermined state of mind, namely, that some branch of the industry is to be taxed; that it is merely their duty to find out which branch is most justly susceptible to taxation. That the result of their hearings will be a recommendation to levy no tax seems improbable.

On numerous occasions the committee has reverted to one of its original topics—the Eastman Company. The committee first made certain that the majority of all film used is of Eastman manufacture; and the Eastman Company has been brought up in their questionings repeatedly.

Mr. Powers was called to the stand Wednesday. He repeated, with emphasis, that the industry is being run at a loss. He said he knew of three stars whose income this year would exceed the entire profits in all other departments of the trade. Mr. Powers was asked to define a star. He replied: "A star is a person for whom the orchestra has to get out of the theatre to make room for the audience."

Mr. Powers admitted, without reluctance, that the Universal Company has been endeavoring to popularize a type of play in which the "deadly star" is not employed, and that the campaign had not proved a glowing success. Then he told the committee that producing pictures is a "mighty speculative proposition."

"In other words," he was asked, "you think production is so speculative that a tax imposed on productions would be manifestly unfair?"

"I do," replied Powers.

When the witness spoke of the modest way in which Universal started, mentioning that the worldly possessions of the concern then were a few old hats and some lame horses, while now the company has a $750,000 plant, with foreign offices, Senator Hinman spoke up:

"Didn't the Standard Oil Company start in much the same manner?"

"They did," agreed Powers, "but they got theirs out of the ground. We give ours to the actors!"

William Brady took the chair Thursday morning. He spoke with no trace of enthusiasm, although he declared that the picture business has a large future. He told his listeners that his concern had invested $1,000,000 in production during the past year.

Chairman Wheeler asked: "Much of that investment was yours, wasn't it?"

"No, siree!" exclaimed Brady. "I've been too wise to buy picture stock!"

"Is it true," asked Senator Hinman, "that at the present time there is an excess of production?"

THE ABILITY TO RECOGNIZE A GOOD THING WHEN YOU SEE IT

A prominent Pacific Coast Producer writes:

"I have been interested in asking theatre men which trade paper they read and which carries the greatest influence on the Coast. With one exception out of about twenty representative proprietors and managers the reply has been——

"MOTION-PICTURE-NEWS!"

Mr. Brady believed that such is the case. "Showmen, as a rule," he said, "are poor business men. The way the motion picture business is being conducted proves that."

He was asked: "Isn't there a tendency for film theatres to crowd out legitimate houses?"

He replied: "Yes, in some cities. That is the case, especially in the smaller towns." He gave an explanation for this condition and continued: "Pictures are overdone in small towns. Competition has ruined hundreds of these little theatre men.

"I believe that the motion picture has merely scratched the surface. So far, it has only been used for entertainment. When the pictures are used for legitimate purposes, such as education, then money will be made. But not now."

A little later he was asked: "Aren't new companies being formed almost every day? Isn't new money being put constantly into the industry?"

Mr. Brady shook his head decisively. "It's a dangerous proposition," he answered. "Most of these new companies are started on shoestrings; a little money—mostly conversation." He told the committee that producers are forced to put more money into their productions constantly, and continued:

"This is the only business in the United States whose production cost has increased from twenty to two hundred per cent. without increased cost to the consumer."

This question was put: "Aren't the pictures larger today than they were six months ago? Isn't more money going into these productions than formerly?"

"Not proportionately. Production costs were lower six months ago than now."

The discussion turned to picture "regulation." Mr. Brady said he was against regulation except from within the industry. He added:

"Any man who produces a dirty picture—one that he wouldn't like his mother, his wife or his danghter to see, ought to go to prison."

Stars' salaries came up again. The committee is evidently deeply interested in this question of stars' salaries. The witness had this to say on that topic:

"Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford are worth every cent they can get. Most of the other players are overpaid. Many stars who earn $40 to $50 a week on the stage draw ten times that amount in the studio. Their heads have been turned.

"My own daughter is earning so much money that I have to take half her weekly salary and put it in trust for her. Otherwise she would spend it recklessly and foolishly."

The committee wanted to know something about distribution.

Mr. Brady leaned back in his chair and grinned.

"Motion picture distribution is a joke. The system is ridiculous. There are a score of exchanges in some places where one or two would be plenty. There are too many distributing systems. The only money being wasted now, excluding the studio and actors' salaries, is in distribution."

As with the previous witnesses, Mr. Brady was asked what he thought about taxation.

He replied promptly and decisively: "Speaking as the representative of all branches of the industry, I want to say to you gentlemen that this is a very inopportune and unfortunate time to place further burden on an already overladen camel's back."

Adolph Zukor was called to the witness stand in the afternoon. He was attended by his attorney. Senator Hinman quickly approached the questions of stars. He denied any knowledge of a connection between his company and Mary Pickford's company, nor was he acquainted with the terms under which she was working.

When questioned concerning the prosperity which his company might or might not be enjoying, he responded: "The concerns with which I am connected are not in a flourishing condition. I hope they soon will be."

Mr. Zukor said that at present the industry is undergoing transformation. "We produce pictures worth $50 to the exhibitor, but he can't pay that much. We

(Continued on following page)

Ince and Sennett to Continue With Triangle

Hodkinson Issues Statement, Which Is Confirmed by Bauman, Clearing Up the Confused Situation Which Has Existed During Past Few Weeks

THE troubles which have been disturbing the inner peace and harmony of the Triangle Distributing Corporation have been smoothed over. For several weeks, rumors of a feverish variety, indicating that Mack Sennett and Thomas Ince were threatening to withdraw entirely from the Triangle Corporation and affiliate with some other organization, were current.

Advertisements from Ince, Sennett, and Kessel and Bauman, made it evident that affairs were not to their liking at Triangle headquarters. No statements, other than faint denials, could be secured from either of the factions until last Friday, when W. W. Hodkinson issued the following statement to the trade papers:

"Up to this time the announcements we have made have been conservative, and have perhaps said less than we would have liked them to say, simply because we did not wish to make any statement without the fullest possible foundation of fact. It has been my invariable custom, ever since I have been in the motion picture business, to make no promise to exhibitors that I was not in position to fulfill to the letter. It is for this reason that seemingly conflicting reports regarding the release of Thos. H. Ince-Kay Bee and Mack Sennett-Keystone pictures have not until now been fully answered.

"I am now in position to say to exhibitors that Triangle and its producing companies are locked together positively and definitely. Up to this time our final and complete plans have not been announced in detail because we have waited till we could be certain of fulfilling every detail of every promise. We are now certain of our ability to do so, and I will say this—that the Triangle program, consisting of one five-reel Ince-Kay Bee feature, one five-reel Fine Arts feature, and two one-reel Triangle comedies, will be supplied to exhibitors each week through Triangle exchanges, and positively in no other way whatever.

"The special weekly release of a two-reel Mack Sennett-Keystone comedy will also be available solely through Triangle exchanges. We shall have other announcements to make that will be of interest, but this, I believe, answers the questions that have been most asked."

A. Kessel, president of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, issued the following confirmation of Mr. Hodkinson's statement:

"The Thos. H. Ince-Kay Bee five-reel features and the Mack Sennett-Keystone comedies are to be released only through the exchanges of the Triangle Distributing Corporation."

Trigger Candidate for National Presidency

Letter from Harold W. Rosenthal States Reasons Why Present New York Local President Is Deserving of National Office—Need for Proper Executive Evident

SAM TRIGGER, President of New York Local No. 1, has thrown his hat into the ring for the presidency of the National League. Mr. Trigger's decision came as a result of the recent convention in Albany. His position is stated explicitly in the following letter from Harold W. Rosenthal:

January 26, 1917.

EDITOR MOTION PICTURE NEWS:

DEAR SIR:

The 1917 State Convention has met and adjourned. Whether much or little was accomplished depends entirely on one's viewpoint and expectations. But above all else loomed the fact that what the organization needed most was a leader who could unite all factions, and who was a big enough man to secure and retain the confidence and esteem of all the exhibitors of the state.

When Sam Trigger, with his election as State President practically assured by an overwhelming majority, arose and in a highly eulogistic speech nominated Mr. Biettner, who was to have been his opponent, he proved that with him the welfare of the Exhibitors' League came before everything else. The mere fact that some of the up-state locals felt that the presidency should go to their part of the state, was sufficient for Mr. Trigger to sacrifice himself in the hope that by so doing, the up-state exhibitors would show a little more enthusiasm for the State League, and thus make it the powerful organization it should be.

How the delegates to the convention regarded Mr. Trigger's action, was evidenced by the remarkable ovation that followed. Exhibitors from all over the state surrounded him struggling for a chance to shake his hand and shower him with praise.

Beyond all question, Sam Trigger is today the biggest and strongest man in the state, and his splendid action at Albany makes him the logical candidate for the Presidency of the National League at the Chicago convention next July.

Mr. Trigger may not like this mention of his name in that connection, but it is a fact nevertheless that the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America is much in need of the kind of leadership Mr. Trigger, and he alone could give it.

This is purely and solely my personal view of the situation, and I recommend it to the serious consideration of exhibitors throughout the country.

Sincerely yours,
HAROLD W. ROSENTHAL.
Manhattan Local No. 1.

Lillian Walker on General Program

Benjamin B. Hampton, president of the General Film Company, has selected Miss Lillian Walker, of the Greater Vitagraph, to be starred in special two-part features to be released on the General Film program. The first is entitled, "Dimple's Baby."

Tax Committee Meets

(Continued from page 867)

are ahead of the theatres, and we are ahead of ourselves. More pictures are being made than the theatres can digest."

Patrick A. Powers went to the witness stand again in the afternoon. Senator Hinman made several pointed inquiries concerning articles supposed to have been written by Carl Laemmle refuting a statement that the Spreckels sugar people were interested in Universal.

Powers, replying to rapid questionings, denied that outside interests had invested money in Universal. He added:

"Every sugar interest and munitions manufacturer who is investing in picture stock is losing money. I know of concerns which have invested from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000 in picture stock, and which are losing money on those investments now. They produce pictures and sell them less than cost; we are forced to compete with them."

The committee adjourned until January 31.

Elsie Ferguson Latest Star for Cardinal

At the conclusion of the present theatrical season Elsie Ferguson, one of the most popular American stars of the stage, for whose services in motion pictures many of the big producing companies have been striving for more than two years, will act before the motion picture camera. Announcement of her engagement to do a series of screen productions was made last week by the Cardinal Film Corporation.

The Cardinal Film Corporation has under contract for exclusive film appearances Geraldine Farrar in addition to Miss Ferguson. The motion picture, "Joan the Woman," now being exhibited in the Forty-fourth Street theatre is one of that company's productions, directed by Cecil B. DeMille and presented by Jesse L. Lasky.

Hitherto Miss Ferguson has refused the most flattering offers. Her decision to appear at last before the camera was the result of a close study of the development and growth of the present day cinema and her faith in its opportunities to exhibit intelligent and artistic effort.

Miss Ferguson this season is playing in "Shirley Kaye," which has had a successful run at the Hudson theatre, New York.

St. Louis Association Elects New Members

At the meeting of the Theatre Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Association of St. Louis, held January 12, the following new members were accepted:

Active—L. K. Ansell, Variety theatre; C. A. Calbfell, Pauline theatre; Sterline and Tyfka, Fairy theatre. Associate—J. S. Burhorn, K. E. S. E. Service; C. S. Edwards, Pathe Exchange; E. J. Fegan, L. C. F. Film Exchange; G. E. McKeen, Paramount service; A. N. Webster, Vitagraph, V. L. S. E. and Charles Werner, Metro Film Service.

Four more members were appointed to the Grievance Committee, which now is made up of the following: Williams, Reeves, Meyer, Whitman, Fay, Scouros, Wehrenberg, Pasmezoglu and Slinger.

"News" Campaign for Longer Runs Succeeding Nationally

Prominent Exhibitors in United States and Canada Voice Their Disapproval of "Deadly Daily Change"—Many Exhibitors Already Profiting by Longer Runs

THE campaign inaugurated by MOTION PICTURE NEWS to do away with the extravagant and wasteful daily program change, which is at the bottom of the present non-flourishing state of the exhibitors, is receiving help and encouragement from every part of the country.

Few exhibitors favor the daily program change, and their cases are exceptional. The scores of letters we have received and the enthusiastic interviews given our representatives in the various cities convince us that the evil of the daily program change is now realized, and that exhibitors will welcome the longer run.

Only excerpts from the letters and interviews can be printed here, owing to their vast number.

Herbert Effinger, owner and managing director of the Strand and Leader, in Philadelphia, told our representative:

"Of course I prefer longer than one day runs. At our new house, the Strand, we will change twice weekly. This is a theatre de luxe, with every up-to-date contrivance. Situated as we are in a business and residence district, and with our garage and auto boxes, we can cater to motor parties from any part of the city. The Strand seats 1,800.

"Conditions are slightly different at the Leader. Here there are 1,030 seats and the house is a neighborhood one, with competition near. I am trying two-day runs and hope soon to inaugurate a twice-weekly policy. I feel that before doing this there must be some improvements in the house to warrant the new departure; to get people talking, so that those from a distance will come.

"I was quick to realize that if an exhibitor's theatre resembles a barn; if it has no conveniences; if it has no personality, no 'atmosphere,' people will come only to see the pictures. In the barn type of theatre, the daily change is inevitable. It is my belief that most exhibitors who are fostering the daily change are the type whose theatres are barns."

Jay Emanuel, who owns the Ridge theatre, in Philadelphia, caters mostly to neighborhood patronage. After putting in some necessary improvements Mr. Emanuel, on January 1, pulled away from the daily change policy, at the same time raising the admission price from 10 to 15c. Mr. Emanuel has had the strength of his convictions. His results at first were not good; but his patronage is increasing.

Mr. Emanuel is leaving the Ridge to take the management of the Park and Jefferson theatres. At these houses he will not have the daily change. Mr. Emanuel is one of Philadelphia's live wires, and he is certain to win out.

Ben Shindler, manager of the Royal Palace, a 500-seat house, says it is impossible to run his theatre without daily change as the house is too small, and a competitor nearby has a 1,600-seat theatre. Mr. Shindler complains that the difference in rental price between one day and two days run is too small. A good play, however, always justifies his lengthening the run to two days.

Mr. Shindler's difficulty is answered by a statement made in these columns several weeks ago that the only conceivable result of abandoning the daily change, from the producers' standpoint, would be much better pictures.

V. J. Grunder, proprietor of the Dreamland theatre, Cuero, Texas, writes an interesting letter in which he attacks the same issue which Mr. Shindler raises, from a slightly different angle. He says pictures are not good enough yet. An extract from his letter follows:

"You have given figures, clearly showing that the majority of the exhibitors are located in towns under 5,000 population. Now you are advocating better pictures and longer runs. While pictures have improved in the past two years, there is still much to be desired, especially in the educational and children line.

"As to longer runs, this is very well in large cities, where the picture properly advertised will bring in good patronage, but where is the patronage of a smaller town —one under 5,000—coming from?"

Mr. Grunder answers his own question when he says: "While pictures have improved in the past two years, there is still much to be desired, especially in the children and educational line."

W. P. Wilson, manager of the Lyceum, the largest theatre in Winnepeg, Canada, says:

"Owing to the exorbitant cost of feature films in Canada, and the fact that the people here demand these pictures in five reels, at least, it would be practically impossible to give a daily change of program. Much depends upon the advertising a picture receives. A good picture does more business on the second day."

Bruce Campbell, manager of the Dominion theatre, Winnipeg, says:

"Western theatres have, so far as I know, never experimented with the daily change—certainly never successfully. At my house, a half week is the minimum run. If we could obtain the right quality of pictures regularly, we would change only once a week."

Stanley Hand, New England manager of the World Film Corporation, says:

"The daily change is not business-like. Any two-day exhibitor will tell you that a film draws better the second day than the first. Word-of-mouth advertising is the reason. There is no inducement for a girl to tell her friends about the fine picture she saw the night before.

"The two-day change costs less proportionately. I would have to charge an exhibitor $40 for a film one day, but could let him have the same film three days for $50. No film that is worth anything can exhaust its patronage in one day.

"One proof of this is the killing of the old notion that a film run in one theatre of a small town spoils its prospects for a second showing later in another theatre."

Unstinted praise from exhibitors and exchange men of Milwaukee, Wis., has greeted the announcement of MOTION PICTURE NEWS' campaign against the daily change of program.

The daily change in Milwaukee is confined almost exclusively to the outskirt houses. The principal objection offered to its elimination by these theatres has been "We don't think it can be done."

Initiative has been lacking among the picture fraternity of the city to take steps of their own accord and make the daily change a thing of the past. There has, however, been an undercurrent of hope alive that some one would come along and inaugurate just such a campaign as has MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Both exhibitor and exchange man have awakened, and the result in all probability will be a vigorous move along new lines to educate the public as well as some exhibitors, against the daily change. If carried on with the strength and purpose now contemplated, it is expected that before long the present conditions of daily change will be a thing of the past.

Otto E. Golz, manager of the Mutual Film Company in Milwaukee and J. S. Grauman president of the Milwaukee Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association concurred with the opinions of the harmfulness and waste of the daily change, as expressed in editorials in the NEWS.

After citing examples of the saving to the exhibitor by a two day showing in place of one day, Mr. Golz said:

"It is just as unessential to have seven changes of program in the week as it is to have seven different bills of fare in a restaurant on one day. Nine tenths of the theatres should run their shows for at least two days."

Mr. Grauman expressed the opinion that the majority of the exhibitors are in favor of a two day showing if they can get good pictures.

Springfield, (Ill.) exhibitors have apparently decided that the daily change in program is poor policy. Reports from that city indicate that the majority of theatres run their pictures four days, though the quality of the subject sometimes dictates a lengthening or shortening of the run of one day. The remaining houses change but every other day.

The five ten-cent houses in the city first broke away from the daily change in program.

West Coast for Drummond

W. J. Drummond, who has been manager for the Mutual exchange for the past several months, has been transferred to the San Francisco office, the change becoming effective January 22. T. C. Malcolm, who came to the coast to serve as district manager for the McClure Pictures, has been engaged to succeed Mr. Drummond as manager of the Los Angeles office.

Helping the Exhibitor Increase His Box Office Receipts

The First of a Series of Four Articles by H. C. Holah, Manager of the Chicago Herald's Motion Picture Department

Editor's Note.—Mr. Holah is qualified probably more than any newspaperman in the country to discuss the relationship which should exist between exhibitor and the press to further the public demand for pictures. What he has to say is of extreme value and interest.

THE manufacturers and the exchanges are awakening to the vital need for co-operation in satisfying the public demand for good features. The exhibitor who is at the point of contact between the film manufacturer and the motion picture public is appealing for aid in his endeavor to meet the new conditions that have arisen within the industry.

The exhibitor still has his problems. Most of them are yet unsolved. He still strives to create and secure additional patronage, as well as holding the old in an endeavor to pay the increased rental made by the daily exchange of program. The manufacturer has aided the exhibitor by putting out expensive and artistic lobby displays. These are to be commended as an example of the manufacturer's eagerness to serve, but this form of advertising possesses strictly defined limits.

The manufacturer and exchange must now recognize the necessity for educating the motion picture public to an appreciation of the better class of films. The new movement, one of the most progressive steps for the betterment of the motion picture industry, has been the utilizing of newspaper campaigns for the creation of public interest in film productions. When a picture has been advertised well and the public has been sufficiently interested to respond once, the picture, if it has been up to standard, has been a success from the exhibitor's standpoint.

THIS has held good in the past only when applied to serial and series pictures. But the fact remains that the principle holds good for the five and six reel production as well. The manufacturer advertises to the "Trade"—and exploits the fact that the film costs so many thousand dollars to produce—and that the rental will consequently be increased. Some exhibitors can afford to pay the additional rental; others can not. The majority would be glad to sign up for the more expensive production if they felt that they would be given sufficient aid in attracting enough additional patronage to pay for the increase. But as a matter of fact, little consideration is given to the question of interesting the "ultimate market"—the public.

The exhibitor is the one to whom it is left to overcome the apathy and indifference of the movie public towards the expensive feature that he has secured for their gratification. To do this, he can only use a limited sum of money. The amount he can spend in attracting people to his theatre is all too frequently insufficient to serve his purpose. But this same sum which he expends, if hooked up with the larger sums spent by the manufacturer, would have stirred public interest to a point beyond the lukewarm stage.

If the manufacturer would go to work and advertise directly to the public through the medium of the newspapers, he would by this means secure the interest of the people to whom eventually the movie appeal must be made. In other words, the great bulk of the motion picture going public must be educated to a point where they will go to their neighborhood theatre and ask for the particular picture in which they have been interested by a comprehensive newspaper campaign. When a manufacturer has introduced a picture to the motion picture going public in this fashion, all that remains for the individual exhibitor to do is to hook up his individual newspaper advertising with the manufacturers.

PERHAPS you think that the average manufacturer would be foolish to spend a lot of money in advertising his film productions to the general public. But as a matter of fact, I know of one instance at least where this policy was successful. An ordinary feature was placed on exhibition in a Loop theatre—an extensive newspaper campaign introduced the picture to the general public and the coming of the picture obtained as much publicity as the average circus. The 25 cents admission charge, where 10 cents had been the rule, did not dampen the enthusiasm of the fans.

The crowds waiting for admission daily were enormous, and the picture remained for practically two months. During that period it showed invariably to capacity houses. This picture is now being booked by outlying neighborhood theatres. The more progressive exhibitors are taking advantage of the extraordinary newspaper advertising campaign that made the picture a Loop success, by using liberal newspaper space themselves.

They find that people who were unable to see this picture during the run in the Loop are now going from one side of the city to the outlying theatres in order to see the picture.

This demand was created solely among the picture going public by the newspaper publicity given the production. The cultivation and development of the motion picture market means that the branch manager and the exhibitor must be more closely united. Co-operation between the two must go farther than it has in the past.

Each branch manager should be allowed a certain percentage of the rental price of features for newspaper advertising. He could more effectively distribute this money, because he is better acquainted with exhibitors' individual bookings and local conditions—the exhibitor being expected, of course, to spend an equivalent amount. This, I believe, would be the ideal incentive for closer co-operation between producer and exhibitor, and in turn would prove of benefit to both, because it would hold the older patrons as well as creating new.

VOLUME of business is what the exchanges need and they will get it if a more liberal policy is pursued in the matter of granting power to the branch managers. Governed by local conditions and in intimate touch with the various factors that influence the individual exhibitor, the branch manager can best aid in solving the exhibitors' problems. He alone can help the exhibitors in their endeavors to meet the bigger rental charges that the manufacturer finds necessary to charge.

Fewer changes mean lower rental charges—longer runs mean better business for the exhibitor—better business for the exhibitor means that he will pay a better price for the films he does book—and the public will in turn patronize the individual exhibitor who gives them the best the market affords. Every branch of the motion picture industry is affected by the prosperity of the exhibitor—producer or manufacturer—exchanges and branch houses; all these are vitally concerned in solving the exhibitors' problems.

Here is an example of the extraordinary power wielded by the newspaper advertising directed toward the motion-picture-going public. One neighborhood theatre decided to book a recent big release for a three-day run. It was his first experience in booking for more than one day. He gave the exchange booker his dates and was advised that his competitor who controlled three houses wanted the picture for four days, splitting the time between all three of their theatres. This would have given a one-day showing in the first mentioned theatre's neighborhood.

Undismayed, he took a chance, and booked for four consecutive days. He was paying a hundred dollars a day and in a neighborhood theatre at that. His partner thought that the manager had lost his mind, but the problem was solved by the use of one hundred dollars in newspaper advertising on this picture. The picture showed to capacity houses every day. Now there are never more than three changes in this house every week and the film rental is never less than $500 a week. This manager is a consistent newspaper advertiser—he is getting the business—he is using but three changes a week—and he credits the newspaper advertising which he uses with the success he has obtained.

ANOTHER exhibitor booked an extensively advertised marine picture. He booked for only one day. This picture had enjoyed tremendous capacity showing

(Continued on page 928)

WITH THE EXHIBITOR

Community Idea Is Working Out in Small Kansas Town

A splendid example of the limits to which enthusiasm in a good cause will carry those who want "better pictures" has come to light in Oberlin, Kansas. This prosperous little town has a very energetic school principal in the person of Caleb W. Smick, of the Decatur County High School, who has secured a theatre for one night a week, Friday, and has been so successful in stirring up interest in the pictures selected by him in conjunction with his faculty, that he sends out word that his next move will be the establishment of a community theatre, where all the people can go and see the best pictures on other nights as well.

The success of Mr. Smick's plan is due to a common sense selection of subjects interesting as well as clean, to his having secured the active co-operation of all the ministers in town and other "good people," many of whom, as he says, have never before attended picture shows, and to the fact that his expense for operating is cut down to minimum. The school people furnish everything in the way of management and music. If he counted the time and energy of himself, his teachers, and those who give up a night a week to furnish the music and help run the show, he would have some idea what the real business of running a picture theatre is. He and his teachers could run the local grocery store so as to cut down the cost of living. They could do many things for the good of all. And if the local theatre man has not been giving Oberlin good, clean pictures, there will be a community theatre there, even if it has to be supported by subscription.

We want to say to Mr. Smick, though, very frankly, and to any others who may wish to follow his lead (he very kindly offers to explain his methods to anyone writing him) that the success he has made under the conditions we have named, of one performance a week, does not indicate that the plan would work on a six day basis. He will find it cheaper to rent than own his "community theatre," and the moment his personality is left out, expenses will catch up with receipts.

Progressive Nebraska Minister Installs Picture Machine

Rev. A. A. Brooks, of Hastings, Neb., First Methodist Church, has installed a picture machine "To keep young men out of the pool halls and young women from gadding the streets." Once a week shows, clean and interesting, are offered. Hastings already boasts the Brach theatre, with a ten thousand dollar pipe organ, and three other exclusively picture shows, so now "everybody" goes to the theatre where good clean films are in vogue.

Indiana Exhibitors Form New Association

Exhibitors' Protective Association Takes Place of Exhibitors' League—Purpose is to Combat Overhead Distributing Expenses—Twelve Directors

INDIANA otion picture exhibitors at their annual meeting in Indianapolis declared war on the overhead distributing expense by forming a new state organization known as the Exhibitors' Protective Association, of Indiana, to replace the old organization, the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

Twelve directors, who are to be named, will work for the creation of an Indiana film board of trade that will make itself felt by booking films for many Indiana exhibitors. This board, it is planned, will guarantee the rent of the films and thus eliminate the advance deposit system. Ultimately, it is planned that the directors shall form a business corporation, backed by sufficient capital stock, that will be able to take over the general motion film distributing business in the state.

F. J. Rembusch, of Shelbyville, Ind., is the president of the new organization of the exhibitors. He was unanimously chosen for this office by virtue of his excellent work for the exhibitors in their old organization of which he was also the president. The other officers of the new organization, who were elected at the recent convention, are first vice-president, M. Young, Gary; second vice-president, A. C. Zaring, Indianapolis; secretary, C. R. Andrews, Muncie; treasurer, Ben Crose, Indianapolis. Besides Mr. Rembusch, Messrs. Zaring and Crose were officers in the old organization.

The good old days of big profits for the exhibitors have gone, the men at the convention declared, and exhibitors pointed to the fact that 4,000 film theatres went out of business in 1916. Imperfect methods of distributing films, the growth of the competitive bidding system to procure the best pictures on the market, and an increase of more than 300 per cent. in the cost of films, the exhibitors said, has brought about the changed conditions.

Various exhibitors in addressing the convention urged that a "gentleman's agreement" be followed in each city to eliminate competitive bidding. This is being done successfully in Indianapolis, it was pointed out. However, the great step that will hit the "overhead" the hardest, in the minds of the exhibitors, is that a central board of trade become a booking concern for the state, this board being maintained by the exhibitors.

The advance deposit system was knocked by practically every exhibitor, who had a chance to discuss the subject. Mr. Rembusch read letters from practically all of the big producers showing that they are not demanding deposits, or that they are in favor of their elimination.

Besides taking the steps to knock the "overhead" expense and condemning the advance deposit system, the exhibitors discussed the possibility of operating Sunday shows in practically every city in the state. James P. Goodrich, the new governor of the state, appeared as a speaker before the convention, and his words encouraged the men to believe that he will favor a bill legalizing the Sunday shows. Because of this attitude the exhibitors are planning to try to get a new law enacted at the present session of the state legislature.

Goodrich in his brief address, without directly announcing himself for Sunday shows, said he saw no harm in them, pointing out that he has seen the best in religion, literature and art on the programs. He further said that changed conditions now exist as compared with those of the Puritan age and that we cannot go back to that age, however great may be our desire to do so.

Before closing the convention the exhibitors paid $600 in cash as a treasury fund with which the new organization would begin its labors. A larger sum was pledged as subscriptions, but these were not counted or announced as assets awaiting payment.

More than one hundred exhibitors attended the meeting. Some of those outside of Indianapolis, who were present, follow:

J. C. Lockwood, Frankfort; W. H. Esch, Laporte; J. Levine, Laporte; S. W. Grimes, Brazil; J. A. Farman, Sheridan; O. M. Sebring, Shelburn; Dolly Spaan, Marion; William Dickson, Wabash; R. H. Navin, Bloomington; Maurice Fox, Terre Haute; H. C. Sorden, Shelbyville; W. C. Newby, Shelbyville; J. P. Mollet, Ft. Wayne; H. H. Johnson, Lafayette; Ed. Caldwell, Danville; Miss B. Johnson, Lafayette; W. H. Lipps, Alexander; A. Cook, Greencastle; W. M. Wells, Scottsburg; G. Perfect, Huntington; L. H. Donnell, Washington; H. Kornblum, Evansville; V. W. Young, Gary; F. J. Mack, Gary; W. R. Walker, Anderson; O. J. Demaree, Franklin; J. H. Fihe, Elwood; James Mills, Winchester; H. W. Cox, Frankfort; M. Levitt, Lafayette; Sam Carlton, Frankfort; C. E. Zink, Knightstown; F. J. Rembusch, Shelbyville.

Indianapolis Local No. 1, of the Exhibitors' Protective Association, of Indiana, have elected the following officers: B. V. Barton, president; A. C. Zaring, secretary; Harry Koch, treasurer.

The installation was conducted by Brother August Schmidt and state president, Brother F. J. Rembusch, who invested him with a large brass star (which hung around his neck by a chain), and a gavel so large that it took two hands to lift it.

Mr. Barton is the present owner of the Alhambra, Isis and Lyric theatres.

Children's Shows Pushed in Nebraska

THE children's matinee idea takes a wider grip on Nebraska and Iowa every week. Exhibitors who want to know what will satisfy as children's programs may consult this one, chosen by the Woman's club board of censorship in Omaha, Neb., for Saturday, January 20, making a big hit with the children. This is the second of the woman's club matinees on Saturday mornings:

MUSE—Twenty-four and Farnam, Manager Robert Shirley: "The Patchwork Girl of Oz"; an industrial, "How Matches are Made"; a scenic, "Japan Mountain Scenery"; a baby film, "How to Bring Up Babies"; and a cartoon entitled, "All Things Come to Him Who Waits." The first picture was the best liked by the children.

STRAND—Eighteenth and Douglas, Manager B. M. Thomas: The story of Dicken's "Christmas Carol"; a colored film, "An Intimate Study of Birds"; a colored oriental film, "The Sultan's Paradise"; and a comedy.

The censorship board will consider the releases recommended by the Chicago woman. Several of them have been approved. They are: "Rumpelstiltskin," "Robin Hood," "Faithful Shep," "Helen's Babies," "Doll House Mystery," "Little Life Guard," "Pirates Bold," "Rivals," "Runaways," "Little Dick's First Case," "Her Filmland Hero," "His Majesty, the King," "Burglar's Picnic," "Reel Life" and "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

Mullvey Brothers of Madison, S. D., report excellent success with Saturday morning matinees. Yielding to the persuasion of the high school superintendent, Manager Nielson of the Crystal at Wayne, Neb., started showing at special Saturday morning matinees the pictures the superintendent picked out from the MOTION PICTURE NEWS reviews, and is now considering whether to build an annex to his house. R. C. Gibbs of the Strand at Huron, S. D., in Omaha, the other day, said, "These Saturday morning matinees are all velvet, and gee! how the kids do turn out to them!"

Courtesy Begets Courtesy

Many exhibitors do not realize how readily their local editor will give them space in the newspaper, if they but ask for it. They have not asked for it, in many instances, because they do not realize how valuable it is.

A Nebraska exhibitor was surprised the other evening when the editor of the local paper, with his large family, presented a complimentary pass, and saw the show. He was still more surprised when the paper came out with a delightfully attractive write-up of the program. He was amazed at the number of people who, coming to his show, said they had been attracted by the write-up.

The whole thing was the inspiration of Manager J. H. Calvert of the Omaha Bluebird exchange, who thought to send the editor the pass. Now Calvert is proudly displaying a letter from the editor. "It proved to me and will prove to others the value of cultivating the local editor."

EXHIBITOR PERSONALS

CALIFORNIA.—San Diego: F. N. Howe, owner of the Pickwick theatre here, has closed a contract for the installation of a $10,000 orchestral organ in his house. Mr. Howe recently booked some of the biggest photoplay productions, and with an expert musician at the new organ he expects to add much to the pleasure of his patrons. The organ is similar to that installed at the Strand theatre in New York.

IOWA.—Nashua: M. Larsen bought the Grand, Nashua, from F. C. Folz.

Ute: A. L. LeFrantz opened the Star Jan. 13, a brand new theatre, at Ute. It is a splendid house in a town of 500, and he reports good business. The first film shown was the World picture, "Then I'll Come Back to You."

Osage: F. C. Byrum bought out Mr. Page, his partner, in the Lyric theatre, Osage.

West Union: Halverson Brothers have rebuilt the Princess, which recently burned down at West Union.

Waverly: Arthur Earle has closed the Opera house at Waverly until March 1.

Spencer: H. B. Bossert has bought the Star theatre from Summy Brothers, Spencer, Ia.

Sioux City: L. E. Carnes, of the Palace, Sioux City, Ia., says he had to quit selling tickets one night last week when showing the serial "Liberty." The house was so full he couldn't admit another person and had to put up a "Stop" signal in the window.

MINNESOTA.—Hutchinson: Walter R. McGraw, of the draymen's firm of McGraw Bros., has sold his share in the dray line to his brother, Dan McGraw, and yesterday, with Mrs. McGraw and baby, moved to Sauk Rapids, where he has bought the only moving picture theatre in the town, which has a population of 2,000.

NEBRASKA.—Omaha: Exhibitor Jackson has closed the New Star, Sixteenth and Locust streets, Omaha, until March 1.

Manager Mitchell, of the Universal, Omaha, says the Middle Western exhibitors are hailing with delight the new Universal Screen Magazine. He has started a special weekly paper advertising it.

Mayor Monsky, World booker in Omaha, and widely known, is ill in a hospital. Sidney Meyer, road man, is taking his place.

Madison: Exhibitor Otto Wolfe, of the Crystal, Madison, reports a restaurant friend of his who is a great movie fan, especially on Bluebird night, has put out a "Bluebird Sandwich" special that has a club sandwich backed off the boards.

Stromberg: Arthur A. Johnson, of the Lyric, Stromsberg, in a letter says he has changed from features back to a regular program. He is a great lobby display genius, and, in a letter to Manager Mitchell of the Universal, Omaha, Neb., says he appreciates the fine advertising matter being sent him, and that he is getting great results with it.

NORTH DAKOTA.—Fargo: Boyd Rutledge, of Williston, has bought from Ivan Butler the Bijou theatre property. The sale included site, building and theatre effects. Mr. Rutledge will assume sole management.

OHIO.—Cleveland: G. T. Sharp and wife have leased from the Prame Realty Co., Joseph Laronge, president, and E. P. Strong, secretary, the Southern theatre, situated at the corner of W. Twenty-fifth street and Prame avenue, S. W., for twenty years, beginning April 15 last, at a graduating rental from $2,600 to $3,750 per annum.

Tiffin: Thomas J. Powell has purchased the Sigma Motion Picture House from Roswell H. M. Machamer.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Philadelphia: The motion picture theatre located at 2775 Kensington avenue, Philadelphia, was recently sold by the Southwestern Building and Loan Association to Joseph Arnold, who reconveyed it to Samuel Stern, subject to a mortgage of $32,000. The lot is 18 feet by irregular depth, and is assessed at $24,000.

SOUTH DAKOTA.—Huron: R. E. Gibbs, manager of the Strand, Huron, is a forehanded exhibitor. He gets out original heralds, sometimes marked "EXTRA!" advertising a picture, even before he knows on what day he will get that picture. "It makes everybody ask "When is it coming?" and I say "Wait and see," is his explanation.

WEST VIRGINIA.—Bluefield: R. S. Wehrle, the present manager of the Colonial theatre hre, will also assume the management of the New Colonial upon its completion.

WISCONSIN.—Hurley: Ollie Lowny, of Minneapolis, Minn., has purchased from Carl Becker the Garrick theatre, of Hurley, Wis., and after making many interior improvements will continue showing Fox and other high-class pictures.

Merrill: R. C. Krueger has bought the Grand and Cosmo theatres from B. F. Gibble and E. H. House and has already taken the managerial reins in hand, having decided to run the Grand only, and that on the nights of Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

IOWA.—Dallas Center: The picture show at Dallas Center, formerly owned by Mr. Loos, has been sold to Charles Zuck, who took possession January 1.

Wapello: The Keck theatre at Wapello has been sold to W. R. Hiller, of the Hiller Bros. Amusement Company, Eau Claire, Wis. Mr. Hiller took charge of the house January 15.

Grundy Center: The theatre at Grundy Center, formerly owned by Mr. Ells, was recently sold to Mr. Johnson.

KANSAS.—Solomon: F. H. Nies has sold the Cosy theatre at Solomon to H. Collins.

Belleville: M. P. Hedgecoak has sold his theatre at Belleville.

Eldorado: E. B. Munsendorf is about to erect a large moving picture theatre here.

Chanute: Tom Somers proposes to establish an exclusive motion picture house in this town.

Wichita: C. W. McAllister will soon open a theatre seating 2,000, and running vaudeville and pictures.

Dodge City: Mrs. M. S. Munson will build a theatre here to be managed by Elmer Munson, now of Cassiday.

MISSOURI.—Sharon Springs: W. A. Root has sold the Princess theatre to Mrs. H. Pope.

Cameron: M. P. Berry, formerly of Kansas City, has bought a half interest in the Crystal theatre from H. I. Miller.

Hamilton: A. J. Webb and J. W. Herndon of Kansas City, have purchased the Rex from B. M. Hicks.

Sedalia: W. M. Johnson, a leading colored citizen, is building a theatre exclusively for people of his race.

St. Joseph: Frank Tracy, formerly manager of the Royal at St. Joseph, will soon open the Colonial there. He will run pictures, with ocasional vaudeville numbers.

Independence: John E. Lewis will replace his theatre at Independence, Mo., burned a year ago, with a house to seat 800, on a lot 50 by 116.

OHIO.—Middletown: The New Grand theatre, Middletown, has been reopened under the personal management of Theodore C. Chifos, who introduced a novelty by starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and continuing until 11 P.M. Two ticket sellers, Myrtle Boyer and Velma Huff, are on duty, dividing the two shifts. Universal films are exhibited.

Columbus: Mrs. Lettie A. Thompson has bought the Summit theatre, Summit street and Alden avenue, Columbus, Ohio. This theatre is regarded as the finest small picture house in North Columbus.

Bellefontaine: T. J. Larrimore and B. F. Rudasill, managers of the Grand Opera house, Bellefontaine, Ohio, announce that motion picture shows will be given in that house hereafter. The programs call for four reels on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights and six reels on Wednesday and Saturday nights.

MAINE.—Rockland: The Lowell Theatre Company owned by the Maine Theatres, Inc., has leased the Playhouse at Lowell, Mass. The theatre has a seating accommodation of about 1,000 and it is the intention of the new management to make extensive improvements and show the better class of pictures. This organization now controls eleven theatres in the New England field north of Boston.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Sharon: C. H. Ruggles, proprietor of the Colonial theatre, has purchased a new machine, a Powers 6-A, which he will install some time next month, when he will make a number of other improvements at the theatre. He has also purchased new seats and will extend the building 14 feet in the rear, putting in 65 more seats and arranging them in a different manner.

Philadelphia: One of the most important transactions of the year in theatrical and real estate circles in Philadelphia has just been consummated when Alexander R. Boyd, manager of the Arcadia theatre on Chestnut street below Sixteenth, becomes the owner also of the Family theatre, which is located on Market street below Thirteenth, which is opposite City Hall. Just what amount is involved in the transaction is not disclosed. It is Mr. Boyd's intention to expend $50,000 more in improvements to make this house still more popular in every form.

TEXAS.—Brazoria: The management of the Electric theatre has decided to close the house for the Winter.

Eagle Lake: The Grand theatre opened recently to good business under new management.

Have you explained to the house employees that the patrons pay their wages, when it comes down to brass tacks, although for formality's sake you give them their orders? We know that some employees could not get this idea through their heads, if their jobs depended on it. With such don't argue, it's time to change horses, even in mid stream.

LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

Putting a Whole City to Work for You

How William Branch Accomplished This in Conservative St. Paul—Valuable Tip to All Wide-Awake Exhibitors

FROM St. Paul, conservative but always in the van when it comes to anything touching civic pride and welfare, comes the banner idea of the present season.

Faced with the problem of following only two weeks later a rival picture of the same name, but starring children and appealing to children as a "children's picture," with the Famous Players' magnificent production starring that most popular of all screen stars to-day, Marguerite Clark, William Branch, publicity director for the Finkelstein and Ruben Enterprises, did not lose courage.

As one of the oldest publicity men in the business he realized "the line of least resistance," as he aptly expresses it, would get him the farthest. Quick action was necessary. One of St. Paul's largest daily papers had backed the children's "Snow White" picture as a Christmas Week attraction at the rival house. And while, as Mr. Branch says, page and quarter page publicity would have guaranteed business, he did not propose to spend all his receipts in advance for newspaper space at three dollars an inch. He wanted to reach with this picture the thousands of persons who have never seen a motion picture in the past year; the persons who think the "movies" are not fit to be seen; the persons who never read the "movie page" of the paper and who pass by the billboards without a glance; besides the "superior" sort who come out only for the "feature" productions and are not yet convinced that "regular" movies are worth following as a habitual amusement.

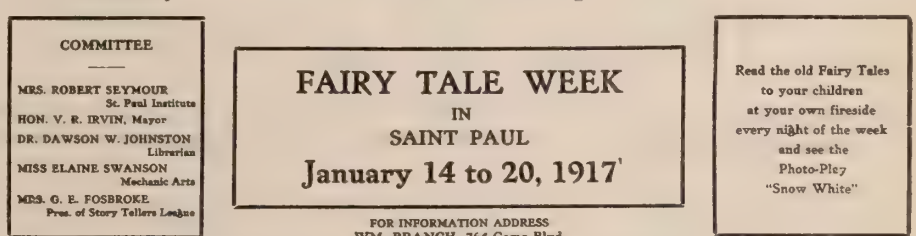
He did this and now the name of his house is on the tongue of every school child, has been shouted from the pulpits of his city, talked about in city council meetings and the mayor's conferences, women's clubs and the many affiliated organizations, big and little, which work for civic pride and not money.

The cost of doing all this did not exceed one hundred dollars, including eighteen inches of newspaper space at three dollars an inch.

Here is what he was up against at the start. One local paper had just presented as the biggest attraction ever a rival "Snow White." It could hardly be expected to enthuse over the comparison he wanted to make in favor of his Marguerite Clark-Famous Players "Snow White." The other two papers were "full up" with holiday week activities, including publicity for a $40,000 a week New York Hippodrome attraction, squeezing all motion picture news to the minimum.

But Mr. Branch knew the educators and welfare people of the city had not forgotten the flood of sex pictures, and that the local authorities were right then being besieged to establish some form of restraint on unfit pictures.

This was the path of least resistance, and the accompanying "letterhead" will illustrate how Mr. Branch utilized the psychological moment when he had a good, clean picture he was not ashamed to ask anybody and everybody to help him make successful.



A personal interview soon convinced Dr. Dawson W. Johnston, City Librarian, of the merit of the plan. "Fairy Tale Week in St. Paul" became an assured success with his acceptance of a place on a committee to foster this idea. It was an easy matter to complete this committee with such true aids as Mrs. Robert Seymour, president of the St. Paul Institute, indefatigable worker for a nationally known institution and center of community and art life in the city, and Mrs. G. E. Fosbroke, president of the Story Teller's League, whose deepest interest was in the narrating and picturing of childhood classics. Hon. V. R. Irwin, mayor, not only gave his personal co-operation, but assisted in having every school pupil notified as a personal favor to him and a matter of civic interest. With his sanction the principal of every school was asked to announce the superiority of the Famous Players production, and its coming to the Princess as part of a "Fairy Tale Week" celebration. And in two of the city's high schools special "Fairy Tale Week" celebrations were held. Book stores voluntarily fell in line with the idea and pushed "Fairy Tale Classics" in their window displays and otherwise, with "Snow White" specially prominent, of course. Then the press "came through" generously with such genuine endorsement several smaller community journals for many miles around took up "Fairy Tale Week."

The lesson from this campaign is that the ever watchful showman, the man who has show instinct, which comes largely of an experience that is fast enlightening the motion picture field with its productions now costing more than some vaudeville, will make a study of human nature and the needs of his patrons with reference to his home community.

And it is this kind of a showman who succeeds always. You don't have to give him the chance. He takes it.

The Princess, a new theatre in a community which is generally not regarded as a "good theatre town," is now established in the hearts of the element of the community hardest to interest in pictures.

But the best part of it all is that motion pictures in St. Paul have been given a new dignity, and are no longer held as necessarily "cheap" by an influential part of the body politic.

Letterhead Used to Send the Message That Put a Whole City to Work

Nebraska Newspapers Are Wide Awake

It wasn't an organized effort, but it might have been, the way Nebraska exhibitors suddenly bloomed into full columns and pages in even the smallest newspapers published throughout the state. The smallest weekly in that Mid-West state never goes to press without its motion picture department. And some of these departments are so good they should be framed.

A. A. Hunt, at Loop City, Neb., furnishes his home paper the items and they are printed. The motion picture reviews published by W. W. Huse of the Wayne, Neb., Weekly Herald, are so good the exchange managers, getting them, have frequently sent them on in to the New York offices to show how good they are. Manager Nielson of the Crystal theatre and Editor Hughes are close friends and work in perfect harmony for their mutual benefit.

The Onawa, Ia., weekly Democrat has a "movie page" that almost outdoes the average metropolitan daily's Sunday page.

These are just a very few of a long string—the string including nearly every country paper, and more of them every week. Wideawake newspaper proprietors throughout the length and breadth of the state seemingly recognize the growing industry.

Invites Ministers

Manager Heller, of the Meridian Amusement Company, Anderson, Ind., recently invited all the ministers of his town to see "The Life of Our Saviour" (Pathe), and he says the showing of this picture, and getting the ministers to boosting his house in this way, has been one of the best things he ever did.

Use of White Space in Newspaper Display

First Purpose of Big Advertising Is to Catch the Eye—White Space Invaluable if Rightly Used

THE first principle of display advertising requires a contrast, a setting off of the advertisement from the news columns of the paper, and from the other "ads."

The smallest "space" that will accomplish the purpose desired, is the space the advertiser must buy. We show herewith examples of effective use of "white space" recently employed by live exhibitors.

Decided, that the new T. and D theatre required a full page of advertising to convey to the public the importance of the event of its opening, and decided that this full page must cause EVERY reader of the San Francisco and Oakland papers to stop and read it, can you imagine any safer way of making sure of this than the "ad" here shown, which reduced to one-fiftieth of its actual size as a full page, stands out here and still catches your eye!

Waste of white space, you say? Positively not, because the space used is the space decided on as the right amount for the purpose, and we challenge anyone to show how any means could be devised which would make more certain the advertisement being read, unless color had been resorted to. A full page of letters two inches high would NOT have been read by some persons. This effective "spot" of attention before us was doubtless not only read but actually pictured in the memory of a hundred thousand "fans." Look at it, close your eyes, and see if you don't see it, small as it is here now.

The advertisement from Chattanooga shows the most artistic, and at the same time effective use of two-thirds of a page we have seen in some time. There is more in it than the other, but its novelty of "makeup" will stop the average reader. In fact with solid news matter above it, as it actually appeared, it equalled a full page in its effect.

The same principle holds, down to the smallest single column "ad," provided the effect desired is "display," to stop and hold the attention of the reader to one point. "Readers" are in general more economical than "display"; but a good "display ad" has the advantage that it will be seen by many who will overlook the small news item, or "reader," and in case the play is important enough to warrant big space, the display, if enough white space is used, cannot miss fire.

The majority of theatre advertisers use both display and news readers—the latter, of course, either furnished in combination with the display at a fair rate, or set in imitation of genuine "news," at display rates.

Unusual Newspaper Ad—Full Page

The Personal Touch Again

Through an arrangement between John Hazza, manager of the Empress theatre, in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and Secretary John Blue of the local patriotic society, eight hundred children, whose fathers are fighting in France, were guests at the theatre recently, when a special program of pictures was shown for their benefit.

The "Baby Popularity Contest" is the latest wrinkle put into effect by Manager Aylesworth of the Princess theatre, in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and a great deal of interest has been worked up among the proud parents of the city. On Wednesday and Thursday nights ballots are distributed to patrons, and those desiring to cast votes for any certain baby write the name of the favored infant on the slip and drop it into a ballot box in the lobby.

Better Pictures for Children, Indiana Slogan

In direct concurrence with the "better, cleaner pictures" campaign of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, women throughout Indiana are bending their efforts toward obtaining better films for children in that state.

The movement is being vigoriously pushed in a score of cities in the Hoosier State, by club and society women and school authorities.

In Indianapolis, Mrs. W. H. Bloss, president of the Parent-Teachers Club of school No. 60, has appointed a committee to co-operate with the board of indorsers for junior motion pictures in securing better pictures in the neighborhood. The Parent-Teachers Club of School No. 41 has taken up the same campaign, and lists of pictures indorsed by the various clubs throughout the city and state have been compiled.

Women of South Bend, Mishawaka, Bedford and other cities are active in educating the juniors toward good pictures by arranging special after-school matinees at various theatres.

Cleverly Created "Ad," Using Plain Type, Rules, and Stock Cuts, from Chattanooga, Tenn.

This Exhibitor Will Bear Watching

You can't get ahead of Manager Myers, of the Palace theatre, Waterloo, Ia. Listen to this one, and think over all the angles of good in the idea.

The other day it snowed in Waterloo, real soft mushy snow, the kind that makes everyone feel uncomfortable and think of the oozing damp that may lead to pneumonia or worse on stepping inside. Busy folk were rushing back and forth from home to office, past the Palace theatre. What few stopped, shook a sheet of messy slop into the lobby of the theatre and made it look like anything but the warm, dry, cheerful place it was within.

Manager Myers saw the point, and so will you. Only Manager Myers got busy right quick and just reached out and grabbed dimes from the snowflakes. This is the way of it. Instead of letting these folks go on by, with heads down and feet plodding through the slush, Manager Myers and his corps of quick, bright ushers (you will find this kind always in a theatre where the manager is alert and active), politely, but insistently stopped every single passer-by, whether patron or mere pedestrian, and whisked a continuous whisk under the cheery glass canopy that Manager Myers happens to have in front of his place. Presto, the pedestrian and the snow separated, and in most cases the pedestrian and a dime separated, and in any event Mr. Myers and his boys got a vote of genuine thanks and were not at all thought to be "butting in" on the private rights of citizens for this hold-up proceeding.

Just an idea, which may foster other similar ideas even in places where snow and glass canopies are not conveniently arranged in proximity to whisk brooms. The idea of polite and properly offered service to patrons and non-patrons alike is worth consideration. For every non-patron will soon become a patron if you can find a good excuse to offer him a legitimate service without cheapening your house by giving "something for nothing" of recognized value that self-respect ought to make you charge for.

That little touch of thoughfulness COUNTS every time.

Who Invented the Potato Matinee

An item has recently come through to us stating that a recent potato matinee held by the Princess theatre, at Boone, Iowa, was the seventh annual stunt of this character. The receipts, given to charity, were sixteen bushels of white tubers. Who dates back further than this with this highly popular form of charity?

Answer This Call for Help!

A Nebraska exhibitor wants to know how to get the opinions of his patrons. "I stand at the door as they enter and as they go out, and I listen; I stand around in the theatre and listen; I sit down in seats and listen; I have had girls and men go in and sit down and listen for me, but every time they see me they shut up like a clam, and they soon 'get wise' to my 'spies.' What am I to do?"

The Best Tip of the Week

The enforced absence from home of the boys on the Mexican border is to be taken advantage of in a novel way in Cleveland, Ohio. Will the boys appreciate this stunt? Well, I guess yes. And their friends at home will pay liberally in good, gold dollars, and maybe you can do the same thing in your town.

Here is the scheme hit upon by Bernard C. Cook of New York, in which he is to be aided and abetted by Emanuel Mandelbaum, general manager of the Stillman theatre. Some day, the latter part of this month, pictures of the boys at Fort Bliss will be flashed on the screen of a downtown picture house. Also some day, the latter part of this month, Clevelanders who wish to have their soldier friends see them, will meet at a place, to be announced later, where a motion picture will be taken. This will be sent at once to the border. So, while you are enjoying a passing view of your boy, he will be sitting in a motion picture theatre in El Paso, looking at a motion picture of you.

Mr. Cook has recently returned from El Paso and he says that the boys have expressed themselves as anxious to get life-sized pictures of their friends and relatives.

Purple Masks Had to Be Worn

A new wrinkle on "Purple Mask" stunts was pulled by the Princess theatre, Boone, Ia., when admission was offered to those wearing the masks to the theatre. Having had the kids in town heading a stampede to your theatre with purple masks on was found to pay.

Get busy, boys, this is a real one!

Manager Darly, of the Alpha theatre, Atlanta, Ga., had a man and woman walk the busiest streets with purple masks on, and created a sensation there. Both stunts are proven business getters.

Clever use by Dreamland Theatre of cuts supplied by exchange free. Half sheet, with space to insert each attraction

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

THERE was unfortunately no handy camera about else Miss Ethyle Cooke, of Thanhouser fame, would have added immeasurably to her histrionic reputation when at an advance showing of "Her Life and His" she was discovered weeping bitter tears.

It will be remembered that Miss Cooke has bitterly pursued Florence La Badie through a dozen Thanhouser productions. In "Her Life and His" she has the part of Nan Travers, a beautiful lobbyist working on the staff of a political boss.

On viewing the finished production Miss Cooke, it is said, was discovered in a corner, weeping.

"I-I-I just h-h-hate myself!" she sobbed. "I f-f-fit in those wicked parts so well that I get so ashamed. Some nights I wake up in a terrible nightmare in which I am causing dear Florence some dreadful sorrow. I dare not take my children to the theatre for fear they will grow up in the belief their mother had been a villainess. O-o-o-oh, isn't it just t-t-terrible?"

HAVING had the advantage of posing for Harrison Fisher, Blanche Babette, who is appearing in support of Florence La Badie in a forthcoming Thanhauser Gold Rooster play, knows well how to deport herself in a studio. Miss Babette has also danced and sung in various musical comedies, was teamed for a time with Harry Tighe, the college comedian, in vaudeville.

Henry Hutt and Ben Ali Haggin are also members of the cast supporting Miss La Badie in her next release, "Her Life and His," to be shown on February 18.

MABEL TALIAFERRO, Metro star, has gone to northern New York to "hunt game." When last seen she was at Grand Central Station, surrounded by bags and packages of many sizes and shapes, which porters, maids and relatives were assisting her in putting on board the train. She seemed greatly excited over the prospect of her trip. The "game" is called "Scenario," and described as hard to find. Miss Taliaferro expects to read several hundred manuscripts during her trip.

A FIRM belief has been implanted in Dan Mason's mind that through some peculiar psychological twist of mind, the best of friends will accept the worst impression that might be gathered from a situation.

It all happened in Providence, R. I., where Mr. Mason, as Chillingworth in the Fox film version of "The Scarlet Letter," was filling his part. As per scenario Dan, in typical cab-driver style, drove his vehicle to the railroad station. Just as he was helping the heroine into the cab three men passed who had formerly known him well.

"Poor Dan," one was heard to commiserate. "He was once a good actor. Now he's a hack driver." And shaking his head sadly, the friend passed right on.

Marie Doro (Lasky)

JACKSONVILLE boasts of having produced one of the youngest and most talented stars of the silent drama, in the person of young Miss Howsom Maude Mickler, who at the age of 8 years has appeared in a number of leading motion picture productions, and is now working with the Technicolor Film Company, in their picture "The Little Skipper," which part she takes impersonating a boy.

Little Miss Mickler, since her first appearance at the age of six, has appeared in a number of Thanhouser and Kalem pictures, was with June Caprice in "A Modern Cinderella," and is now featured in the Regal photoplay "What Becomes of the Children." The little movie player is also an accomplished junior musician playing both the piano and violin.

FOLLOWING a slight illness which kept her away from the studio for the past week, Mary Pickford has again resumed her activities over in Fort Lee in her latest screen subject, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," an adaptation from the well-known Eleanor Gates play and novel.

THE first of E. Oppenheim's novels of adventure to be adapted to the screen is "The Court of St. Simon," now being filmed at the Selznick studios by Robert Warwick, under the direction of Leonce Perret, the noted French motion picture producer, who is making his debut on this side of the Atlantic with this production.

At the same time Clara Kimball Young is making rapid headway with her fourth Selznick-Picture production, a film version of Eugene Walter's "The Easiest Way." Albert Capellani is directing the picture, the cast of which includes Joseph Kilgour in the part of Brockton, the role he played in the original stage presentation of the drama. Radcliffe Fellows plays opposite Miss Young.

ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN, the granddaughter of the illustrious Oscar, makes her screen debut in support of Robert Warwick in the Selznick-Picture presentation of the detective drama, "The Argyle Case." Ralph W. Ince directed the picture which will be presented to the public within a few weeks. The cast includes such well-kown stage players as H. Cooper Cliffe and Frank McGlynn.

SNITZ EDWARDS, veteran comedian and character player, will be seen in a principal part in the Clara Kimball Young forthcoming Selznick-Picture production, "The Price She Paid," adapted from the novel of the same name by the late David Graham Phillips. The picture was directed by Charles Giblyn, formerly of the Triangle forces, and is ready for release.

FRANCINE LARRIMORE, who will appear in "The Royal Pauper," a five-reel Edison production that will be released through the K-L-S-E service on February 12, is another who has made the jump from Broadway to the screen. Last winter Miss Larrimore appeared in the leading role of "Fair and Warmer," the farce comedy success. She has made but a few appearances in pictures.

PROBABLY the only blind man now acting in motion pictures is J. Van Cortland, who is playing in "The Great Secret," Metro's new big serial. Mr. Van Cortland is an actor of culture and experience, and up to a little over a year ago was rarely out of an engagement. Then came his sad affliction. He had been working for the Essanay Company in Chicago, and one night while leaving the studio he was held up by thugs and robbed.

Finding that all he had was $4, the robbers blackjacked and beat him so severely that his eyesight was permanently affected. He came to New York to consult specialists and suddenly went blind. He is just able to distinguish between light and darkness, and has to be led about the streets. Yet strange to say he moves about the stage at the Quality studios with remarkable accuracy as though he were gifted with a sixth sense.

LOUISE HUFF is in disgrace with her former co-workers at the Famous Players studio. No sooner did she get her trunk unpacked at the Morosco studio than she sat right down and began to write those "wonderful California, beautiful, exquisite, unsurpassed, delightful, etc., etc.," missives that every true daughter of the East feels she must indite home the moment she slips over the Rockies.

UNCALLED FOR LETTERS AT THE STUDIO DIRECTORY

Anderson, Tillie
Angel, R.
Argot, Lange
Arsdale, Van
Beau, Lucas V.
Bell, W. H.
Bennett, T. W.
Bonde, Cosimo
Boyle
Claflin, A.
Cohn, Martha L.
Cole, A. J.
Davis, H. M.
Decker, James
Deely, Ben
De Lopez, Mme.
Diamond, James
Gilbert, Henrietta
Hall, George
Holmes, Lulu
Hulse, Vaughan
Jensen, Emil C.
Jores, E. F.
Knoepfle, Rudolph
Lauillard, Edward
Lennon, A.
Lynch, Jack
May, Natalie
Mayfield, Charine
Maynard, Myra
Mueller, Conrad G.
O'Dental, Marie
Pardee, Madeline L.
Pettus, Zuleme
Rand, Anthony
Ruchti, J.
Salzman, Aaron
Stuart, Austin
Sullivan, James R.
Turner, Alice
Walters, E. J.
Willis, L. D.
Wilson, C. T.
Wilson, Carey
Wilson, Olive

UNCALLED FOR LETTERS AT THE STUDIO DIRECTORY

¶ A list of Uncalled for Letters at this office will be published on this page each week hereafter.

¶ Just send in your address and we will immediately forward all mail addressed to you.

¶ This is just another one of the ways MOTION PICTURE STUDIO DIRECTORY is trying to be of service to the profession.

¶ The next MOTION PICTURE STUDIO DIRECTORY is out the last of February. Be sure that we have your correct address before that time so that it will be printed as part of your free biography in that issue.

¶ Also there is a special section in the STUDIO DIRECTORY for Professional Advertising, rates on which are extremely low—$88 per page, including cost of cut—smaller space pro rata.

¶ Two good reasons why your publicity in the STUDIO DIRECTORY is worth while are: First, it is used by all the casting directors in making up their companies: Second, it is used by newspaper editors throughout the country in writing up their stories of the films and personal items on the profession.

Motion Picture Studio Directory

PUBLISHED BY MOTION PICTURE NEWS, INC.
729 SEVENTH AVENUE NEW YORK CITY

IN AND OUT OF WEST COAST STUDIOS

By J. C. JESSEN

ROLLIN S. STURGEON has been engaged by the American Film Company on a long-time contract, and will shortly take up the filming of his first American production which will star Gail Kane, who arrived at the western studio January 22.

The William Russell picture, "My Fighting Gentleman," received its finishing touches at the American cutting rooms, and was forwarded this week to the Chicago laboratories. Francelia Billington plays opposite Russell, Jack Vosburg is the heavy, and the cast includes Lucile Ward, Clarence Burton, Harry Von Meter, William Carroll and Sid Algier.

Director James Kirkwood has completed scenes for the sixth Mary Miles Minter series, "The Gentle Intruder." The supporting cast has George Fisher opposite Miss Minter, Eugenie Forde as the ambitious mother of a lawyer, Harvey Clark, who attempts to defraud a girl out of her inheritance; Marie Van Tassell appears as the spinster aunt, Franklyn Ritchie is the fortune-seeking nobleman, and George Periolat the relative of the girl who leaves her a fortune.

The Signal Helen Holmes Company have begun the actual filming of their next fifteen episode railway serial, "The Railroad Raiders," and Director J. P. McGowan has announced the complete cast to include, besides Miss Holmes, Leo D. Maloney, Paul C. Hurst, Thomas G. Lingham and William Brunton.

Negotiations have been pending for the past three weeks for the purchase of thirty freight and flat cars of all types by the Signal Company for use in the next serial, but owing to the shortage of rolling stock but ten could be purchased. These were bought of the Southern Pacific's San Francisco offices.

A NUMBER of changes have been made in the Lasky studio scenario department. Maxwell Ryder, English actor and writer, and Elizabeth McGaffey are new members of the staff. Mrs. McGaffey has, for the past year, been head of the research department at the studio, and will continue to supervise the research work which will be in charge of Miss Iva-Etta Sullivan, for several years connected with the Los Angeles public library. Mrs. McGaffey will write original stories under William C. deMille and Marion Fairfax.

In the hope of improving upon sub-titles, Studio Manager Milton Hoffman has created a new office of Title Editor, and this will be in charge of Burke Jenkins, who has been connected with the scenario department. In the future he will supervise, editing and re-writing all inserts and subtitles.

Lasky directors last week began four new productions. Marshall Neilan has Jack Pickford and Vivian Martin the Morosco star, as his leading people; and Kathlyn Williams and Theodore Roberts are working under the direction of George Melford. Little Billy Jacobs, Jack Dean, Mabel Van Buren, Hobart Bosworth and Tully Marshall, have been selected to play in support of Fannie Ward in the subject now being filmed by Frank Reicher.

THE $1,000 bonus offered by Jesse L. Lasky and Cecil B. deMille to the director making the highest scoring subjects during the year 1916, has been awarded, but instead of going to one, it was found two were so close that the money should be divided. Productions were scored according to reports from exchangemen received by the Paramount office in New York, and Frank Reicher and George Melford are the fortunate directors. The difference in their score amounts to four hundredths of one per cent., and neither will ever know who had the top number.

The increased number of producing units at the Lasky, caused a necessity of an additional mammoth paint frame which is now being erected, and will be used in connection with the others at the studio. The new one is of double-deck variety, designed by Arthur Shepherd, head of the scenic department.

The Morosco-Pallas studio is spoken of as a deserted village, for most of the stars and players have been transferred to the Lasky plant for one or more productions. George Beban and his director, Donald Crisp, together with Ed. LeSaint making a House Peters-Louise Huff co-starring subject, are the only ones remaining.

David Horsley, Whose West Coast Studios Are Humming With Activity.

Jere Looney, Cathrine Carr and Charles Sarver, who have been connected with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation coast scenario department, have been transferred to the eastern office, and departed for New York last week.

THE production which will require a trip across the continent was commenced last week by Fine Arts Director Lloyd Ingraham, with a company headed by Robert Harron with Colleen Moore playing the opposite lead, and a cast which includes Sam deGrasse as heavy in the role of an unscrupulous political grafter, Loyola O'Connor, Alma Reuben, Charles Lee, Wilbur Higby and Bert Hadley. The story and scenario were written by Manager of Production Frank E. Woods, and are laid in a city where there is equal suffrage.

"The Bad Boy" is to be the permanent title for Robert Harron's first Fine Arts starring vehicle. This has been completed by Director Chester Withey, and also serves to introduce Mildred Harris in her first leading woman part. The story was written by Frank E. Woods, manager of production. An exceptionally strong cast including Richard Cummings, Josephine Crowell, Elmo Lincoln, Harry Fisher take part.

Paul Powell is busy with the filming of his second Constance Talmadge starring vehicle being known at present as "Betsy's Burglar." Kenneth Harland, new Fine Arts leading man, plays opposite Miss Talmadge, and there is a strong supporting cast.

The Kalem Glendale studio, which is to be the producing center for all west coast made productions of this company, is the scene of considerable activity at the present time, as the plant is undergoing a thorough rebuilding according to plans made during the recent visit of William Wright of the company.

WHAT is considered very speedy work in production was accomplished by Director James W. Horne and "The Girl From Frisco" Company on one recent sunshiny day. In all ninety-seven scenes were made. Work began at the studio on a Mexican set in the morning with a great crowd of extra people. From there the aggregation moved to exterior locations away from the studio.

Horne had finished with all the scenes requiring extra people by noon, and with his principals he went to other locations immediately after luncheon. By the time these were shot, Studio Manager S. V. Boyd and his assistants had three new sets up at the studio, and all scenes in which these were used were made before the end of the day.

Frederick R. Bechdolt, magazine fiction writer, who is preparing the stories for the "Girl From Frisco" series, together with Scenes from Chapter Fourteen, "Lass of the Lumberlands"—Signal-Mutual

Mrs. Bechdolt, is spending two weeks with Director Horne and company at the Kalem Glendale studio preparing additional stories for this series.

The new Kalem station at Lone Point for the Hazards Company, is now completed, and has double tracking in front so that work with extra trains there does not interfere with the regular service of the Salt Lake Railway.

"THE PROMISE" is being finished, and "The Hidden Children" is on the way at the Yorke-Metro studio.

"The Hidden Children" is adapted from the Robert W. Chambers story, the scenario being prepared by Richard V. Spencer, who is serving as assistant in the production.

An early Triangle Kay-Bee release, originally known as the Cape Cod drama, has been titled "The Last of the Ingrams." In this, Thomas H. Ince presents William Desmond as the star, supported by Marjory Wilson as the feminine lead, Robert McKim, Walter Whitman, Little Thelma Salter and others in a production directed by Walter Edwards.

THE Thomas H. Ince studios at Culver City is soon to have an electrical sign 120 by 40 feet in size. It will be placed on the side of the administration building facing Los Angeles, where it may be seen from almost any portion of the city. This is the first time a west coast film studio has taken advantage of advertising by means of illuminated signs.

Director William Worthing is having troubles of his own, and as a result is still busy with the filming of "The Clock," on which subject he has been working more than thirty days. Franklyn Farnum and Agnes Vernon share honors in this picture.

THE Nestors had a wonderful celebration this week. Harry Lyons, known professionally as Nolan, became the father of a boy, and therefore Eddie Lyons is uncle. Lee Moran is godfather, and Little Eva Roberts godmother. Director Louis Chaudet was peacemaker during the oratorical contests held to select a proper name. It may be Nestor. But the celebration has not prevented them from going ahead with the filming of "Grizzly Gulch Wakes Up." This is a western burlesque containing enough artillery to supply a regiment.

As though jealous, the Jokers are filming "Who's Baby," written for them by Jack Cunningham, and being made under the direction of W. W. Beaudine.

Jack Conway is now working on the five-reel photoplay titled "Pawned," for which many of the scenes are laid in a pawnshop. Ella Hall, Antrim Short, Jack Connelly and George Pearce are the principals.

Douglas Gerrard is now directing and playing in his first five-reel subject, temporarily titled "A Modern Mona Lisa." Opposite him is Ruth Clifford who takes the name role. They are supported by George Gebhart, Walter Balesco, Ed. Clark, Grace Marvin, Myrtle Reeves, Dan Duffey and others.

JOSEPH DEGRASSE and company of players including Dorothy Phillips, William Stowell and Lon Chaney are spending several days in the mountains for scenes in "The Flashlight Girl." This will consist of five reels, and is spoken of as a mountain drama. Weather conditions in the mountains are such that the company is securing just the type of scenes commonly termed "snow stuff," which they desire.

Universal technical department is giving considerable time to the preparation of scenes and exteriors for the Central American drama being made by Fred Kelsey, with Harry Carey as star. It is titled "Red Saunders plays Cupid." Many of the Universal cowboys take part in this, and Claire DuBrey plays her first big leading woman part.

HENRY McRAE and a company are taking advantage of weather conditions for a Canadian drama laid in the far northwest. "His Mother's People" has been selected as the temporary title, and the company has gone to Elizabeth Lake where all necessary exterior scenes can be made.

Another producing unit absent from the studio is that of Director Lynn Reynolds, who are at Truckee making "The Code of the Klondike." Myrtle Gonzalez and George Hernandez have the featured parts.

"By Special Delivery" is the one-reel melodrama which stars little six-year-old Zoe Rae. This is being filmed by Director George Sargent.

CHARLES SWICKARD has under his direction the filming of "The Plow Woman," adapted from the story of Eleanor Gates. This has a North Dakota frontier days atmosphere, and deals largely with the life of homesteaders. Mary MacLaren plays the name part, supported by Harry DeMore, L. C. Shumway and Clara Horton, a child actress.

ON the face of the material improvements being made at the Fine Arts studio, including a large new enclosed artificially lighted stage, a big exterior stage, scene docks, and enlargement of other buildings, the report that Fine Arts subjects would be made at Jacksonville, Florida, carried little credence among people of the west coast film colony.

Manager of Production Frank E. Woods stated there was no cause for such a report with respect to the Hollywood producing plant. He added that it might be the plan concerning production activities with respect to the Yonkers studio of the company, and that the producing organizations from there would be sent to Jacksonville. No change is planned for the west coast producing units of the company.

CLOSER relationship between the Bankers' Association of Los Angeles and the film industry will probably result from the Fine Arts company, under the direction of Director Chester Withey, using the Hibernian Bank for filming scenes required for "The Bad Boy," which has Robert Harron as the featured player.

The president of the Hibernian, one of the largest Los Angeles financial institutions, is taking the matter up with other members of the association to induce all banks to give the film companies all the support possible with respect to locations. In making the scenes in the Hibernian Bank, practically all the officers took part, and the thousands of dollars in gold and silver coins in the big deposit vaults served the same as so many washers.

"THE Failures" is the definite title given a five-reel comedy drama in the making at the Fine Arts studio with Dorothy Gish as star. She appears in the part of an orphan of a small town who yearns for a "career." This leads her to the city, where she becomes a student at a dramatic school conducted by a swindler. She aids the secret service men in an exposé of the manager's methods, and makes a man out of a shiftless son of a society woman. Frank Bennett appears as the son opposite Miss Gish, and the cast has Jennie Lee, Kate Toncray, Spottiswoode Aitken and Fred Warren. The direction of this was originally placed in charge of Joseph Henaberry, who was taken ill with appendicitis, and the story is now being filmed by Edward Morrissey. Roy Somerville is the author of the scenario, and Carl Brown is in charge of the camera work.

"The Doll Shop," a comedy drama made by Edward Dillon, is receiving the finishing touches. Bessie Love is the star of this picture, and a very able cast, including Max Davidson, Carl Stockdale and Carmel Meyer, together with George Beranger, who has just returned to the Fine Arts stock company after an absence of several months, making up an unusually strong cast. Max Davidson has played with Dillon for a number of years in satirical humorous roles, but his work in this production is spoken of as being his best.

WITHIN the next few days production of the next Signal serial for the Mutual will be commenced. The tentative title is "Webs of Steel," from stories written by P. G. Estee. Director General J. P. McGowan selected this story for the next thirty Helen Holmes episodes, after considering several scores of others submitted by some of the best known writers of the country. He is particularly well pleased with the synopsis, which deals with railroad life.

The working scenarios are being prepared by Director McGowan and his aides, and he plans to be well advanced in the production of this before the first release is made. Preparatory for the production work, the technical staff is working day and night in the erection of exceptionally large sets. Director McGowan has engaged Will Chapman, who has been appearing at a local stock house for several months, and John Hemphill, well known in photoplay circles, for important parts in "Webs of Steel."

THE last scene for "A Lass of the Lumberlands," Helen Holmes serial, was made in Glendale recently, when a locomotive crashed into an electric car and crushed it to pieces. The crash brought about the "death" of Dollar Holmes, the heavy of the story, who for almost thirty reels has been making life unpleasant for the popular heroine. With the making of this subject the members of the producing company left for a week's vacation.

Director Rex Ingram (the Man on the Table) Surrounded by a Few Types Selected for the Bluebird Production, "Humanity"

From Manager of Production Phil Lang of the Kalem Glendale studios comes the announcement of the engagement of Edward Hearn for the leading man role in the "Girl from Frisco" series, succeeding True Boardman, who has been transferred to play the name part in the "Stingaree" new episodes. Mr. Hearn was formerly with the Universal, where he played important parts in Bluebird subjects. He is an expert rider and in every way qualified for the new work he has taken up.

THE "Girl" company is now filming the twenty-sixth episode, titled "The Dominion of Fernandez," which is the first adapted from the stories by Frederick R. Bechdolt, well-known author of western fiction, who has contributed to the best American periodicals. Marin Sais contines in the name role, wth Director James Horne in charge of filming.

Stingaree using a hot barrel of a revolver to brand an absconding bank cashier who tries to betray him furnishes the title for the second of the new Kalem "Stingaree" series, which will be known as "The Mark of Stingaree." When the story for this was received it brought forth a lively discussion as to the advisability of using such a scene, some fearing it would cause the censors to trim the picture unmercifully, but in the end Director Howard Mitchell won, and the story will be used in full. Edith Serling makes her debut as a Kalem leading woman in this number, and Hal Clements and Barney Furey take important parts.

VIRGINIA KIRTLEY, who has not been seen on the screen for several months, has been engaged to play an important part in the Selig production of eight or ten reels, "Who Shall Take My Life," now in the making. Miss Kirtley was formerly with the Selig company, and later was featured in American-Mutual productions. For several months she has given all her time to the writing of screen plays.

FRITZI BRUNETTE is said to have the finest acting role in her screen career in this Selig picture. She takes the part of Kate Taylor in the anti-capital punishment story, which has an all-star cast, including Bessie Eyton, Tom Santschi, Ed. Coxen, Eugenie Besserer, Al W. Filson, Harry Lonsdale, Frank Clark and others.

But a few hours after the news of the dynamite explosion in New York was received in Hollywood, a goodly portion of the explosive was set off at the L-Ko lot for a scene to show the effect of a bomb dropped from a Zeppelin, into a street scene for a subject being made by Director General Jack Blystone, which has Fatty Voss as the featured comedian.

The big street set, which has twice been blown down, was blown to bits. The noise of the explosion caused considerable comment among Hollywood citizens, and one is reported to have turned in a fire alarm, which was not answered by the department until they had telephoned the studio.

A NEW subject, with Alice Howell in featured part, supported by Joe Moore in the juvenile part, will next be made by Director Blystone.

Director Craig Hutchinson is finishing the six-day bicycle race comedy, which has Dan Russell as leading comedian. Technical Director Frank Ormston built a special track, similar to the one used in Madison Square Garden, and this was the scene of several close races. Finally, when the break-away signal was given, the featured rider crashed through, but was not injured.

IN the making of a scene showing a locomotive hitting an automobile, driven by Mary MacLaren, for the Universal five-reel picture, "A Night with Whispering Smith," the auto became unmanageable and backed over a sidewalk into an iron fence which guarded a forty-foot sheer embankment. The machine, after knocking the iron fence down, was stopped by a post and serious accident to the players was averted. Henry McRae is directing the filming of this, and has as his leading players Al Vosburg, Charles Mailes, Rex Roselli, Eddie Polo and an Australian actor, a Mr. Everet, who is playing heavy. Fred Granville, cameraman, from force of habit, continued cranking throughout the accident, and secured pictures showing the automobile hanging by the front wheels. None of the players was injured.

CORONA CINEMA COMPANY, a Los Angeles organization incorporated by Wycliff Hill, has leased the use of a portion of the Selig Zoo stages, and a producing company has been formed for the filming of a seven-reel production to be titled "The Curse of Eve." This will be a state right feature. Frank Beal, who until recently directed for the Selig west coast organization, has been engaged to direct the production of this film, and Vivian Rich, formerly of American and recently with the Selig company in the making of "Beware of Strangers," a seven-reel production, will play the featured part, that of a modern Eve.

THE American force has begun the production of a story at present known as "High Play." It has a present-day atmosphere, and the plot revolves about a vice-president of a banking institution, who fights to save the bank from failure, to keep his sweetheart's brother from wrongful conviction of murder, to save the reputation of another woman, and finally to extricate himself from scandal into which he has been drawn. This small synopsis will give an idea of how strenuously William Russell will be engaged for the next few weeks, but all who know him fully believe that he can put it over in his big, manly way. Franceli Billington is to play the opposite lead.

James Kirkwood caused grips, property men and other employes of the studio to hop to their work in a syncopating manner, because he uses a big orchestra at the studio practically all week. The airs played were practically all of a ragtime character, and served to inspire the players who form the supporting cast in the Mary Miles Minter picture, "The Gentle Intruder."

THE Hamlin Garland story, "Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," is now being filmed by Vitagraph Director William Wolbert, with Antonio Moreno playing the role of the captain. Other members of the cast are not named. The story has frontier locale, and Indian warfare will form an important part of the action.

Director David Smith is busy with the sixth episode of "The Dangers of Doris," which has been titled "Burlesquing Blackmailers," and besides Mary Anderson, the featured player, those taking part are Duffy Kirk, Jack Weatherby and others. This episode pertains to maidens storming a theatrical agency when an attempt is made to entice Doris to go out with a burlesque company, that the publicity may be used to blacken her family's name.

Hollywood Hookum

Feb. 10, 1917 NEWS MORE NEWS

EDITORIAL.

The general public is being robbed by itself.

Facts and figures placed before the Association for the Prevention of Production Prodigality show more than ten thousand manuscripts from budding authors are weekly submitted. To receive, register, read and return the writings it costs the film industry ten thousand dollars.

Such a woeful waste must be made up in some manner, and so the amusement loving people must pay for the hunches that come to those who dash off a ten-reeler on the way to the store or while waiting for the dish water to heat. This needless expense is taken out of production costs. The theatre patron must be content to see the beautiful star, by main strength and awkwardness, lift the heavy cup of earthenware to her lips and feign sipping the tea, while, had it not been for this extra expense she could have had a beautiful china cup and handled it far more gracefully.

The influx of masterpieces causes serious problems to the scenario department people. Out of every five hundred the reader must, to hold up the average, select one for purchase. This is turned over to a ravaging continuity writer who after much fussing and fuming with the head of the department, is blessed with a hunch. He uses the names of characters from the purchased story, and writes a new and better story around them.

But what we started to say was that the best scenario writers of the industry are satisfied that the loud talking concerning the scarcity of good stories is not of the whole cloth. The writers maintain there is a great shyness in the industry of men who really appreciate a good play and are able to judge one when they see it on a tyyewritten page.

Jack Cunningham has taken on as morning mental exercise the preparation of comedy scenarios for Nestor and Joker companies of U City. He finds a cold plunge in the ocean during these summer-winter days does not even startle him after an hour of this work.

Snow stuff's in vogue.

Louise Huff wired for her furs and woolens, left in New York.

MATT MOORE'S IN TOWN.

A new record-breaking story—this one from M. G. Jonas at U City. A set was put up in two minutes by O. L. Sellers, manager of production, and his lieutenants. The cause of the speed was Ruth Stonehouse, who directs that way.

The handsome Oldsmobile with the gray body and all eight cylinders chugging for dear life that passed through our town last week, is the property of Harry Thew. He boasts that it makes Wally Reid's boat look like a Saxon or Metz. (The car has Silvertown cords.—Adv.)

If S. E. Snyder, Balboa publicity man, were writing ad. copy for vaudeville, he could list a brother and sister act by the Brotherton Family of Four. Yes, May, Robert, Joe and Clarence are all camera and laboratory employes at H. M. and E. D.'s place by the sea in Long Beach.

Triple announcements of an Irish Break Down at the home of George DuBois and Eileen Murphy Proctor, are hereby acknowledged by the Hookum editorial staff. If we survive the snuff, three star brand, and Emerald Isle music, the paper wil go to press next week.

Owing to the inclement weather making impossible the storming of the Bastile for the Fox film, "The Tale of Two Cities," the several hundred prisoners are still incarcerated. This scene was to be taken more than three weeks ago, so it is very apparent the supernumeraries have had a very trying time. A bright sunshiny day will be welcomed by all.

Bertram Bracken, Metro director genius is vacationing in our fair land.

Another stereoscopic effect for motion pictures has been invented, the latest report being from Long Beach.

Frank Mayo claims an acquaintance who wants his grave decorated with a sprig of mint and an embalmed cherry. But we say, why give these to the dead?

The little girl who is starred in Pathe films, has been subtitled "baby grand," in addition to Little Mary Sunshine. These publicity fellows are always thinking of new names.

Chester Clapp denies he is a scenario editor, but affirms he is content with living up to the title of merely a scenario writer, so remember he's just the o-o-o-old scenario writer.

As a detective, Director Horace Davey is a regular Bill Burns. After a search of two weeks he recovered his automobile recently stolen, but fails to say that Dicks of the auto clubs found its whereabouts.

Francelia Billington is having a special automobile built to suit the roads between Sabee and Los. The requirements include deep mud swimmer, hill climber and disappearing license plate for the boulevards.

California tourists who do not stop at hotels have found the Kalem Lone Point station of the Hazard company an excellent place. It plays to capacity every night. A journeyman artist, to show his appreciation, left a sign: "I. W. W. Inn."

Bessie Love has received a request from the manager of —— chop house (name deleted by adv. mgr.) for a photograph. This beanery has its walls papered with photographs of stage stars and theatrical programs, many of which have been there for seventy years.

RAINED THIS WEEK.

The cloud hanging over Tom Lingham, Signal heavy, because of his alleged connection with the hold-up of Lloyd Ingraham, caused Director J. Pep McGowan to cast Leo D. Maloney for the villain role in "The Railroad Raiders," thus giving the officers opportunity to forget that Lingham is a bad man.

Hamp Del Ruth, who writes Mack Sennett comedies in his sleep, was seen this week wearing a purple tie, and Sam Rork, the advertising genius of the Keystone, forthwith stole the suggestion for the current adv. Therefore we say Del is more than a fashion plate.

When our post office received a letter addressed to W. S. Hart, New York City, the boys delivered it at once to the Ince Western actor, showing they are well acquainted with the stars of the screen. The envelope bore signs of having been to New York, for it contained a postmark indicating that city, and a notation: "Not at Bankers' Trust Company, try M. P. Actor." Mr. Hart is very thankful to the mail service.

Another proof that there is nothing new under the sun for present day scenario writers, was uncovered this week. When R. A. Walsh, wso filmed "The Honor System," and used a cockroach to carry a message from one end of the prison to the other, knowing full well that the insect would perform before the camera, as one of its characteristics is going straight in one direction until it comes against an obstacle, he thought his scenario writer had given him a new one. While reading our favorite author, Aristophanes, to while away a quiet evening, we came upon the same incident, doing just such an act in the play, "The Acharnians," written in the fifth century B.C.

Jack Pickford has come West again to grow up with the country.

Realism note: Mary Anderson refuses to use onions or vaseline drops when a sob scene is wanted. She just cries.

Hank Mann is charged with celebrating his first week's directorship by eating all the props from a set—a candy shop.

S. Paton and A. Hollubar, director and star of "A Thousand Legs Under the Sea," both made curtain calls at the film production's Southland premier, San Diego, and the vast audience applauded vociferously.

Mary Anderson confesses she has not lost a single freckle since she took up the "Dangers of Doris."

L. Nestor Moran is spinning about in a red Mercer.

Donald Macdonald is back from Actors' America.

Wilbur Nesbit paid our town a visit and was so mused he promised to write a poem about ucity. (Maybe we'll publish it.)

Rumor has it that the Goldwyn or Selfish Film Company will shoot up a few super-dreadnaughts hearabouts.

The Western Electric Company has sent men out to show up our sunlight by producing a film wholly by artificial light, and they are going to call it "The Birth of Light." Shucks!

E. Mason Hopper is considered a lucky man these days, for the picture he is directing with Wally Reid and Myrtle Stedman as stars, has many scenes with young ladies in their nighties.

The Territory in Black is the Territory already sold LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA." Tremendously Valuab Still

The UNIVERSAL'S
STUPENDOUS MONEY GETTER For EXHIBITORS

WATCH THE MAP
FOR SOLD TERRITORY
It won't last long

"20,000 LEAGUES

One of the biggest features of this stupendous picture is that it is without competition—literally there is nothing like it on earth. That means that it is good—not for today and tomorrow only, but for years to come. Jules Verne's masterpiece has been a standard work of fiction for over 50 years. It is still a "best seller." This tremendous picturization and realization of Jules Verne's marvelous prophecies is destined to live as long as the book itself. These are provable facts that put this picture as a State Right proposition in a class by itself. Think.

Elaborate Advertising Campaign Books For All STATE RIGHTS BUYERS - - Send For a Free Copy Today

Everything necessary for a successful advertising campaign is ready prepared for you. Complete publicity stories; ready prepared bullet ads in all sizes; strong, attractive, highly colored paper in all sizes; window cards, etc. Send for the handsome campaign book which tells the story of the picture in detail, and gives you valuable information. Write direct to the State Rights Department of the Universal.

STATE RIGHTS

A glance at the map shows that " 20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA " rapidly found favor with discriminating State Rights buyers. State Rights buyers now in the market may congratulate themselves that choice territory is still open. This is a big business proposition. Remember that this remarkable production

Still Playing Capacity at the BROADWAY Theatre, B'way at 41st Street, New York City

Has broken all box-office records wherever shown. Not alone in New York City; but, for instance, in Portland, Oregon, where it played to $1300.00 in a single day. At the Broadway Theatre, New York, where it is still playing, it has astounded the wisest showmen in the business.

$22,000 in 2 weeks in N. Y.- - All House Records Broken at the STUDEBAKER, Chicago—Over $1300 taken in—in One Single day in Portland, Oregon, with Big Competition

Imagine a picture playing at popular prices doing this amount of business, on Broadway, the coldest and most critical theatrical district in the whole world. Think what this means to you to be able to bring this unusual picture before audiences who see one novelty a year where Broadway sees several hundred.

UNDER THE SEA"

TO EXHIBITORS The minute this picture is offered you by a State Rights manager grab it. It will do more business for you than any picture you have ever shown. If you are branching out and thinking of the State Rights business for yourself, or if you control one or more theatres, write immediately for valuable information to the STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT of the UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

CARL LAEMMLE, Pres. 1600 BROADWAY, N. Y.

Here are LETTERS
Absolute Supremacy
READ
They Much

From Marcus Loew

BOROUGH THEATRE COMPANY
BROOKSIDE AMUSEMENT CORP.
COLUMBIA AMUSEMENT COMPANY
COMET AMUSEMENT CORPORATION
DELANCEY AMUSEMENT COMPANY
EMPRESS PICTURE CORPORATION
GLENDIVE AMUSEMENT CORP.
GLOBE VAUDEVILLE COMPANY
GREELEY SQUARE AMUSEMENT CO.
HUMANOVA PRODUCING COMPANY

TELEPHONE 2900 BRYANT

LOEW'S THEATRICAL ENTERPRISES
LOEW'S BOSTON THEATRES ASSOC'S
LOEW'S CONSOLIDATED ENTERPRISES
LOEW AMUSEMENT COMPANY
LORRAINE AMUSEMENT COMPANY
INTERNATIONAL VAUDEVILLE CO.
MARCUS LOEW BOOKING AGENCY
MARCUS LOEW'S THEATRES LTD.
MARCUS LOEW INCORPORATED
MASCOT AMUSEMENT COMPANY

PEOPLES VAUDEVILLE COMPANY
MONARCH AMUSEMENT COMPANY
MOSTERN AMUSEMENT CORPORATION
MOVING PICTURE COMPANY OF MASS.
NATOMA AMUSEMENT COMPANY
N.Y. & FALL RIVER AMUSEMENT CO.
NEWARK HEIGHTS THEATRE CORP.
ST. JAMES AMUSEMENT COMPANY
20TH CENTURY AMUSEMENT COMPANY
WARWICK AMUSEMENT CORP.

Executive Offices 1493-1505 Broadway New York

January 19,1917.

Bluebird Photoplays (Inc)
1600 Broadway,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

I had the pleasure of sitting through one of your "Bluebird" pictures called "God's Crucible" yesterday, and I want to say to you that that is the kind of material that is bound to put your Organization to the front. It was not that I only liked the picture very much, but the audience seemed to appreciate it even more.

I personally have not seen "The Mysterious Mrs M" but the reports from my men are splendid.

Yours very truly, Marcus Loew

ML-L

MARCUS LOEW of New York is the most successful Picture Theatre Owner in the World

FOLLOW THE
OF TWO OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL THEATR
AND MR. LOEW ARE SUCCESSFUL BECAUSE THE LIKEWISE—YOU CAN ESTABLISH THE SUPREMACY

BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAYS (INC.)

that PROVE the f BLUEBIRD PhotoPlays

THEM Mean o You

From S.L.Rothapfel

RIALTO THEATRE CORPORATION
OPERATORS

S. L. ROTHAPFEL
SECRETARY AND MANAGING DIRECTOR

TELEPHONE {1406 1407 1408} BRYANT

OFFICE OF THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

THE RIALTO
"THE TEMPLE OF THE MOTION PICTURE"
TIMES SQUARE
NEW YORK

January twentieth
1 9 1 7

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.,
1600 Broadway,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

I am about to present "The Mysterious Mrs M".at the Rialto Theatre and I can say this that if the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc. can conscienticusly produce such pictures as these they must be considered seriously in the front ranks of the American producers.

"THE MYSTERIOUS MRS M." directed by Lois Weber, in my opinion, is one of the prettiest pictures I have seen in a long while. The acting, the direction, and the beautiful touches of real artistry are a joy and I can assure you I deeply appreciate it.

Any more such pictures that you might produce you may rest assured that I will be glad to book them, and I will consider them a credit to the Rialto.

Very sincerely yours,

S.L.Rothapfel

SLR/S

Managing Director.

MR. S.L. ROTHAPFEL is the greatest showman since the days of Barnum

LEAD
AL MEN IN THE BUSINESS—MR. ROTHAPFEL GIVE THEIR AUDIENCES "WHAT THEY WANT" F YOUR HOUSE WITH BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAYS

EXECUTIVE OFFICES: 1600 Broadway, NEW YORK CITY

Specialties on the UNIVERS

This is the Program that has brought success to thousands of Exhibitors—You can book it complete—or any release separately.

Special Releases on the Universal Program for the Week of February 19th, 1917.

RED FEATHER—"THE TERROR"—With Jack Mulhal (Five-Reel Drama).
NESTOR—"DOWN WENT THE KEY"—(One-Reel Comedy). Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts.
L-KO—"AFTER THE BALLED-UP BALL"—(Two-Reel Comedy). With Phil Dunham, Merta Sterling and Lucille Hutton.
BISON—"THE COMEBACK"—(Two-Reel Western Picture). (A Chas. Van Loan story.)
JOKER—"ROSIE'S RANCHO"—(Comedy). Gale Henry and Wm. Franey.
POWERS—"A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A DOG"—(Comedy Cartoon)—and "The Buried Treasures of Ceylon" (Dorsey Educational)—(Split Reel.)

SPECIALTIES that any Exhibitor can book with profit. Specialties that will help put over a weak feature; specialties that will bolster up any show, and get the crowds coming that mean profitable returns. Any one of the specialties listed here will MAKE your show. These are listed separately to aid you in booking. Together with the releases shown opposite these releases make up the great UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, which constitutes an entire week's performances of twenty-nine reels. Exhibitors who book the entire program get the benefit of all these remarkable specialties; those who pick and choose must expect to pay a slight advance over the pro rata cost of the

The Most Complete, Va... Balanced Prog...

Regular Releases
AL Program

Regular Releases on the Universal Program for the Week of February 19th, 1917.

GOLD SEAL—"THE GREAT TORPEDO SECRET"—(Three-Reel Drama). Herbert Rawlinson and Neva Gerber.

VICTOR—"THE FIREMAN'S BRIDE"—(Comedy-Drama). Matt Moore and Jane Gail.

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY No. 60.

LAEMMLE—"SIN UNATONED"—(Drama). Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer.

VICTOR—"THE HEART OF MARY ANN"—(Comedy-Drama). Ruth Stonehouse.

REX—"THE KEEPER OF THE GATE"—(Drama). Douglas Gerrard and Ruth Clifford.

BIG U—"THE MAN WHO SAVED THE DAY"—(Two-Reel War Drama). Wallace Reid and Pauline Bush.

IMP—"THE FOLLY OF FANCHETTE"—(Two-Reel Society and Underworld Drama). Mae Bush and Malcolm Blevins.

VICTOR—"A BARE LIVING"—(Comedy). Eileen Sedgwick.

BIG U—"THE LIFE SHE GAVE"—(Indian Drama).

IMP—"A DANGEROUS DOUBLE"—(Two-Reel Drama). Sydell Dowling and Sidney Bracey.

REX—"LOST IN THE STREETS OF PARIS"—(Drama). King Baggot and Leah Baird.

entire program. This to cover the additional expense of individual bookings. If you want increased patronage, popularity and profit you will eventually book the entire UNIVERSAL PROGRAM. TODAY—wire or write any one of the 73 Universal Exchanges and get full particulars regarding the Program that is making thousands of Exhibitors successful. Or write direct to—UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO., Carl Laemmle, President. "The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe," 1600 Broadway, New York.

ied & Scientifically ram on Earth

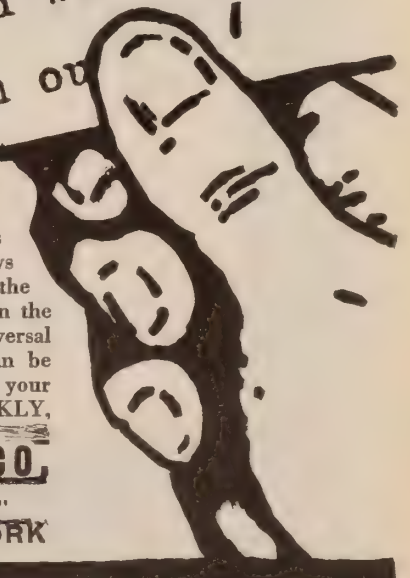
You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

STATE RIGHTS
NOW SELLING ON
"Hell Morgan's Girl"

The type of picture that enables State Right buyers to reap a golden flood of profits. A picture that is there with the punch that pulls the crowds--that packs them in at every performance. A tremendous dramatic production telling the most human story ever filmed. Lavishly produced; thrilling scenes of the great San Francisco earthquake; life in the resorts in the famous Barbary Coast District of the city by the Golden Gate. Extra special paper, ad. props, etc. Choice territory still open. If you want to get in on a good thing communicate immediately with the STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT of the

UNIVERSAL
FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, Pres.
1600 BROADWAY, N. Y.

The UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY WINS



Read this letter received from Laemmle Film Service Chicago

Dear Sir:

I hereby beg to inform you that I have been successful in securing the entire circuit of twelve houses of the F. & H. Amusement Company circuit in this territory, for our Universal Animated Weekly as well as our Cartoon and Travelogue.

This again proves that the Universal has today the best Animated Weekly.

This is a great feather in ou

The Universal Animated Weekly always wins on its merits because the public knows that it is always first on the screen with the world's best news. That is why it will pack any house on the dull day no other picture can draw a corporal's guard. The Universal Animated Weekly is released on the regular Universal Program—or it can be booked separately at a slight advance to cover the expense of individual booking. Write or wire your nearest Universal Exchange, or communicate directly with the UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY, 1600 Broadway, New York.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.
CARL LAEMMLE, PRES.
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"
1600 BROADWAY - NEW YORK

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING "The PEOPLE VERSUS JOHN DOE"

THE PICTURE MARVELOUS. Produced by LOIS WEBER

Producer of such huge successes as "Where Are My Children?" . . . "Hypocrites" . . . "Scandal" . . . "Jewel" . . . "Shoes" . . . and others. This unusual production played to capacity at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and received from the newspaper and film critics an endorsement rarely given to any cinema production. Choice open territory still available. An unusual opportunity for State Rights buyers. Send for complete descriptive, illustrated, printed matter, that will tell you what you want to know about this big business proposition. Write or wire to the STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT of the

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY 1600 BROADWAY
CARL LAEMMLE, President NEW YORK
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

Essanay's February Releases on General Program

So popular has Essanay found its "Is Marriage Sacred?" series that President George K. Spoor has decided to respond to the request of exhibitors that it be extended. Therefore he herewith announces that the original twelve units will be followed by an additional five. The titles of the later productions will shortly be announced.

The General Film Service subjects from Essanay for February, besides including four units of the popular "Is Marriage Sacred?" series, include four strong Black Cats.

On February 3 "Shifting Shadows" is the "Is Marriage Sacred?" release.

"The Hoodooed Story" is the Black Cat feature for February 6. Richard C. Travers and Gertrude Glover appear in the leading roles. Canimated Nooz No. 24, with Alaskan scenes, is the release on the following day. On the Saturday of the week, February 10, "Desertion and Non-Support" is the topic for "Is Marriage Sacred?"

"The Lighted Lamp," with Edward Arnold and Anna Mae Walthall, is the February 13 Black Cat. "All in a Day" splits the reel with Alaskan scenic on February 14. On February 17 "Ashes on the Hearthstone" is the "Is Marriage Sacred?" offering.

Bryant Washburn, who has just finished "Skinner's Dress Suit," a feature taken from The Saturday Evening Post, will appear in "The Four Cent Courtship," the Black Cat for February 20. Canimated Nooz No. 25 and Alaskan scenic follow on February 21. "The Extravagant Bride" on February 24 is the title of the "Is Marriage Sacred?" offering.

Helen Holmes in Thriller

Helen Holmes in "The Railroad Raiders" is the next Mutual photonovel to come from the Signal studios. Work is now well under way and the release dates will be announced shortly. The production will run through fifteen chapters of two parts each.

"The Railroad Raiders" is, of course, under the supervision and direction of J. P. McGowan, the director who has achieved a notable series of box-office successes in similar productions, notably "The Girl and the Game" and "A Lass of the Lumberlands," both of which are now running.

Edison Feature for Feb. 12

"The Royal Pauper," a five-reel dramatization of a story by Henry Albert Philips, will be released by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service on Feb. 12. Francine Larrimore, the beautiful, young Broadway star, plays the leading role in the production.

Two New Kalem Series in Course of Production

"A Daughter of Daring," Rail Drama, with Helen Gibson, and "The American Girl," Featuring Marin Sais, to Be Given

At the Kalem Glendale studios two new series pictures are under way. The first will be heralded as "The American Girl" series, with a splendid cast supporting Marin Sais, a Kalem favorite. Frederick R. Bechdolt, a recent addition to Kalem's staff of contributing authors, and already prominent in the world of fiction for his stories of the Golden West, is preparing the scripts. The episodes will be in two parts, each telling a complete story, but retaining the same cast throughout the series.

The other series, to be issued in one thousand-foot lengths, will feature Helen Gibson, heroine of many dramas of the rails. In "A Daughter of Daring" the Kalem Company believes it has selected a selling title that will stand the test of competition and one that is eminently suited to the character of the stories to be presented. A number of prominent writers will prepare the material upon which these short-length features will be built up, and Miss Gibson will be given opportunity to further demonstrate her fearlessness. Like "The American Girl" series, each episode of "A Daughter of Daring" will tell a complete story, making it plausible for an exhibitor to book the released episodes in any order that he chooses.

Miss Sais is considered by Kalem as the ideal star for a series like "The American Girl." Equally at home in the saddle or in evening clothes, she has the personality to imbue her parts with just the right feeling. Among the members of her company will be Frank Jonasson, Edward Clisbee, Ronald Bradbury, Edward Hearn and Hart Hoxie. Her director will be James W. Horne, who handled Kalem's first "Stingaree" series.

Frederick R. Bechdolt, the author, is a Western newspaper man. He has roughed it in Alaska, mined in the West, and generally lived the experiences he is putting into "The American Girl."

Helen Gibson, whose daring has startled many audiences, will have in her supporting cast G. A. Williams, George Routh and L. T. Whitlock.

Copies of both "The American Girl" and "A Daughter of Daring" will shortly be in the hands of all the General Film exchanges.

Lois Meredith (Pathe)

Lois Meredith in Two Gold Rooster Plays

The Pathe Gold Rooster play for release the week of February 11 is "Sold at Auction," featuring Lois Meredith, supported by William Conklin and Frank Mayo. The production was made by Balboa.

There is a strong love interest that makes the conflict of the action in the piece all the more powerful.

To remove forever anything that will remind him of his dream of happiness, shattered by his wife's infidelity, Stanley sends his infant daughter Nan to be cared for by a woman named Hopkins. He furnishes money regularly for her support, but never goes to see her. Nan is treated as a slavey, receiving none of the money intended for her.

She is carried by the tide of events into what is known as a matrimonial agency. Entirely ignorant of the world, she does not know that it is really something worse.

Nan is placed at auction, and her own father bids for her. As he outbids them all, Hal, the girl's lover, who has traced her, enters just in time to reveal to Stanley that Nan is his own daughter.

Lois Meredith is also featured in a Gold Rooster play, "The Precious Packet."

Enid Bennett Makes Screen Bow on February 18

Robert Harron and Enid Bennett are the stars of the Triangle feature releases for February 18. Robert Harron will appear in "The Bad Boy," a Fine Arts play directed by Chester Withey. Miss Bennett, Thomas H. Ince's "discovery" is to be presented in "Princess of the Dark," a Kay Bee production by Lanier Bartlett, directed by Charles Miller.

"The Bad Boy," is a modern version of the parable of the prodigal son, and is said to be an excellent picture.

Paramount Offers 3 Month "All Star Program"

March, April and May Releases Embody Corporations Policy of Big Stories and Stars

TWENTY-SEVEN productions, releases for March, April and May, are announced by Paramount Pictures Corporation. The list comprises an array of dramatic attractions of high caliber, in which more than twenty of the most popular of the stars in Paramount Pictures will appear. The forthcoming productions are well balanced as to stellar and production strength and represent the most ambitious effort of Paramount over a three-month period.

During these three months Pauline Frederick, whose most recent success was in "The Slave Market," will make three appearances, while Marguerite Clark, who has been breaking theatre admission records with "Snow White" and "Miss George Washington," will make two appearances, in productions that will give her equal or greater screen opportunities. Other productions during this period will find such stars as Mme. Petrova, Mae Murray, Marie Doro, George Beban, Blanche Sweet, Jack Pickford, Kathlyn Williams, Wallace Reid, Myrtle Stedman, Vivian Martin, House Peters, Margaret Illington, Fannie Ward, Lou-Tellegen, Mary Fuller, Sessue Hayakawa, Theodore Roberts, Louise Huff and others.

Mme. Petrova, Margaret Illington and Mary Fuller are the latest additions to the Paramount list of stars. Mme. Petrova will make her Paramount debut in "The Mysterious Miss Terry" on May 7.

Margaret Illington, who has signed a long-term contract to appear on the Paramount program, will make her first appearance on April 2 in "The Inner Shrine," dramatized by Channing Pollack from the story by Basil King.

Mary Fuller will appear in support of Lou-Tellegen in the production of "The Long Trail," which will be released during April.

Preceding the March productions, Paramount will release during February the following: "The Wax Model," in which Vivian Martin is starred, "Each to His Kind," with Sessue Hayakawa in the leading role, "Her Own People," with Lenore Ulrich, "The Black Wolf," with Lou Tellegen, "The American Consul," with Theodore Roberts, "The Fortunes of Fifi," with Marguerite Clark, "On Record," with Mae Murray and "The Winning of Sally Temple," with Fannie Ward in the leading part.

The releases announced for March, April and May are the following:

March 1. Lasky, "Those Without Sin," Blanche Sweet.
" 5. Famous Players, "Sapho," Pauline Frederick.
" 8. Morosco, "Out of the Wreck," Kathlyn Williams.
" 12. Lasky, "Castles for Two," Marie Doro.
" 15. Famous Players, "The Dummy," Jack Pickford.
" 19. Lasky, "The Prison Without Walls," Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman.
" 22. Pallas, "The Spirit of Romance," Vivian Martin.
March 26. Pallas, "The Bond Between," George Beban.
" 29. Morosco, "As Men Love," House Peters and Myrtle Stedman.
April 2. Lasky, "The Inner Shrine," Margaret Illington.
" 5. Lasky, "The School for Husbands," Fannie Ward.
" 9. Famous Players, "The Valentine Girl," Marguerite Clark.
" 12. Famous Players, "The Long Trail," Lou-Tellegen and Mary Fuller.
" 16. Lasky, "The Bottle Imp," Sessue Hayakawa.
" 19. Lasky, "Tides of Barnegat," Blanche Sweet.
" 23. Famous Players, "Forget-me-nots," Marie Doro.
" 26. Lasky, "The Cost of Hatred," Kathlyn Williams and Theodore Roberts.
" 30. Famous Players, "Sleeping Fires," Pauline Frederick.
May 3. Morosco, "A Lonesome Chap," House Peters and Louise Huff.
" 7. Lasky, "The Mysterious Miss Terry," Madame Petrova.
" 10. Famous Players, "Freckles," Jack Pickford and Louise Huff.
" 14. Lasky, "The Conflict," Fannie Ward.
" 17. Lasky, "The Primrose Ring," Mae Murray.
" 21. Lasky, "The Squaw Man's Son," Reid, Stedman and King.
" 24. Morosco, "The Marcellini Millions," George Beban.
" 28. Famous Players, "Cinders," Marguerite Clark.
" 31. Famous Players, "The Love That Lives," Pauline Frederick.

Tom Santschi and Helen Ware in Selig's "The Garden of Allah"

James's First Metro Subject Released February 12

LINCOLN'S Birthday has been set for the release date of "One of Many," the initial offering of Arthur James, head of Metro Pictures Corporation scenario, publicity and advertising departments.

The National Board of Censorship, upon reviewing the picture, pronounced it of moral and educational value and commented on the artistic handling and entertaining value of the subject.

William Christy Cabanne, long associated with D. W. Griffith, and now directing Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in Metro's fifteenth chapter serial, "The Great Secret," is both author and director of "One of Many." Frances Nelson, one of the best known emotional actresses known to the screen world, is the star. In the role of Shirley Bryson she has one of the greatest opportunities of her career.

Shirley Bryson, in "One of Many," works in a manicure establishment to support herself and her invalid mother. Unable to provide the luxuries the sick woman's condition requires, she accepts the aid of an unscrupulous rich man. On her mother's death she goes out into the world again to renew her struggle for a livelihood, meets and loves a youth and marries him. The young man introduces his bride to his father, and the two are transfixed with horror, her husband's father proving to be the man who had lavished gifts on her. How this amazing situation is met furnishes a dramatic denouement.

In the supporting cast are Niles Welch, Harold Entwhistle, Adella Barker, Mary Mersch, Richard Dix, Caroline Harris and Walter Worden.

Lenore Ulrich as Indian Girl

Lenore Ulrich, who plays all descriptions of foreign characters, from Hawaiian, Mexican, Algerian and Indian maidens to assorted types of Orientals, has returned to the American Indian for her newest characterization and the noise of the tom-tom is rife in the Morosco-Pallas studio.

"Her Own People" is the title of Miss Ulrich's next Pallas-Paramount picture, and in this, as the name indicates, she is moved to scorn the wiles and deceits of the lowly white man for the noble-minded red man. But there is one redeeming character among the scheming whites, whose single-mindedness of purpose in making love to the girl finally influences her to change her allegiance from red to white.

Scott Sidney directed the production of "Her Own People," which was prepared for the screen by Gardner Hunting. In the cast are Colin Chase, Howard Davies, Adelaide Woods, Jack Stark, Gail Brooks, Joy Lewis and William Winter Jefferson.

Change Title of Brady Picture

Discovery that another play already carried the title "The Snowbird," as Alice Brady's new picture for the World-Brady interest was tentatively titled, has caused a change in name to "The Dancer's Peril."

Alexis Kosloff ,and a Russian troupe of 100 dancers appear in this feature, giving the formerly interdicted ballet "Scheherazade" in a scene representing the interior of the Imperial Opera House in Petrograd.

Glimpses of the Universal Program for the Week of February 5. Left to Right: Harry Carey and Louise Lovely in "The Outlaw and the Lady"; Maude George in "The Melody of Death"; and the Nestorites in "His Wife's Relations"

Sixth of "Sin" Series Attack on Laziness

McCLURE PICTURES has made in "Sloth," starring Charlotte Walker, a drama claimed to be of unusual appeal, and notable especially because it uses a new way of presenting a motion picture play.

"Sloth" is the sixth of Seven Deadly Sins, the McClure series of seven five-reel dramas, the first of which is to be released on January 29.

It is an attack upon laziness, wielding a sharp sword upon the idle rich and pleading especially for patriotism among the women of to-day. Shirley Mason plays a young society girl who loves to loll in luxury.

Shirley doesn't want George Le Guere to go to the front with the National Guard. Charlotte Walker comes to her in three separate dramas, each presented by novel methods, so that the main thread of the story is never lost in the incidental plots, and in love and battle Shirley is saved from the sin of "Sloth."

Miss Walker is supported by a splendid cast, including Miss Mason, Mr. Le Guere, D. J. Flannigan, Jack Crosby, Grace Williams, Charles De Mussett, A. Barrett, Curtis Cooksey, Emil Hach, Hattie Delaro, Harry McFayden and Helen Strickland.

Another Ovey Comedy Feb. 22

Under the title of "Jerry's Brilliant Scheme," David Horsley will release the eighth of the new series of Cub Comedies, featuring George Ovey, on February 22, through Mutual. The picture, directed by Milton H. Fahrney, finds the comedian portraying his original character of Jerry, who for the love of a girl undertakes some wild practices in deception.

Not able to gain father's consent to his marriage to Tiny, Jerry hits upon the scheme to kidnap father, and while holding him prisoner to have one of his pals impersonate the master of his sweetheart's household.

His love-making efforts progress nicely and his scheme would have borne the desired result had it not been for his pal's expression of his weakness for the bottle that finally resulted in exposing the entire plan.

Universal Offers Program of Varied Features

LEADING a strong program of releases of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company for the week of February 5 is the five act Red Feather feature production, "The Scarlet Crystal," a photodrama of human frailties and weaknesses. This story which was written by J. Grubb Alexander and produced by Charles Swickard with Herbert Rawlinson, with Betty Schade and Dorothy Davenport in the leading roles, will be released Monday, February 5. It is claimed to be a powerful story with a wide and sympathetic appeal enacted by a cast of capable players amid settings of unusual splendor. In the cast supporting the principals are Raymond Whitaker, Marie Hazelton, Gertrude Astor and Dick Ryan.

The seventh episode of the Universal serial, "The Purple Mask," with Grace Cunard and Francis Ford, which will be released this week is entitled "The Race For Freedom."

Besides "The Scarlet Crystal," the Nestor comedy, "His Wife's Relatives," a one act farce by Bess Meredyth and produced by L. W. Chaudet with Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edyth Roberts furnishing most of the laughs will be released on Monday.

"Won by Grit," a Gold Seal three act human interest drama by Willis Woods, produced by George Marshall is the leading offering on Tuesday, February 6. The cast includes Neal Hart, Lois Wilson, Mina Cunard, Richard La Reno, and Helen Wright. The other release of this date is the Victor juvenile comedy, "The Valley of Beautiful Things," produced by Lule Warrenton from the story by Helen Jonas and the scenario by Fred Myton.

The L-Ko two part comedy "That Dawgone Dog," produced by Dick Smith with Sammie Burns as the arch funmaker will appear on Wednesday, February 7. The Big U Indian drama, "Red Vengeance," and the regular issue of the Universal Animated Weekly with its pictorial news also appear on this day.

Three reels are offered Thursday, February 8. The leading release is the Rex two act drama, "The Melody of Death," with Douglas Gerrard, Maude George and Ruth Clifford. The story was written by E. M. Ingleton and produced by Douglas Gerrard. The Powers educational, "Giants of the American Forest," showing the big trees of California is the other offering on the program.

On Friday, February 9 the Imp drama, "Avarice," with Claire McDowell in the leading part will be released. Others in the cast are T. D. Crittenden, Leo Pearson and Betty Schade. The Victor "The High Coast of Starving," written and produced by Capt. Leslie T. Peacocke, with Eileen Sedgwick in the leading part, and The Big U two part drama "The Crimson Arrow," featuring Mona Darkfeather are the other releases for Friday.

The Bison two part Western drama, "The Outlaw and the Lady," written by Harry Carey and produced by F. A. Kelsey will appear on Saturday, February 10. In the cast are Harry Carey, Louise Lovely, Jack Richardson and William Gettinger. Other Saturday releases are the Joker comedy, "Out For The Dough," with William Franey and Gale Henry and the Laemmle drama, "A Studio Cinderella," with Jane Gail and Matt Moore in the leading roles.

"When Thieves Fall Out," a two act Imp drama written by William H. Lippert and produced by John Harvey is the feature offering for Sunday, February 11. This is a photodrama of the underworld. In the cast are Harry Benham, Sidney Bracy, Sonia Marcell, and Mildred Gregory. The other releases are the L-KO comedy cartoon "Fearless Freddie in the Woolly West" and the Dr. Dorsey animated lecture "Joys and Tears of China," a split reel and the Rex drama, "In the Shadows of Night," with William Shay, the well-known star, in the principal role.

"The Promise" Is Next Ivan

The first Ivan production directed by William Humphrey, recently of Vitagraph, which has a working title of "The Promise," has been completed in unusually quick time. James Morrison, Christine Mayo, Rubye De Remer and Guy Coombs, who joined Ivan a short time ago, are in the principal roles.

The atmosphere of the play is laid in America and Japan. Advantage is taken of the many opportunities offered for colorful lighting and scenic effects.

"The Scarlet Letter" Next Classic Adaptation by Fox

WILLIAM FOX has just completed tentative plans for putting into the films several world-famous novels, in addition to those which will soon be issued in celluloid form by Fox Film Corporation.

At the present time he has already selected, by a process of elimination, eleven books to be done into the cinemas from a list which he himself drew up. The directors have all been chosen, and with two exceptions, the star and his or her chief supporting player, have been determined upon.

The success accorded the presentation of "The Darling of Paris," which is founded on Victor Hugo's immortal "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," as well as the promise given in advance showings of "The Scarlet Letter" and "A Tale of Two Cities," were deciding factors in shaping this book-photodramatization policy.

"The Scarlet Letter," Nathaniel Hawthorne's masterpiece, and one of America's real literary classics, will be presented on the regular Fox program on Feb. 12. Three months have been spent in the making of the piece.

In the role of Dimmesdale, the repentant pastor, whose own breast is seared by the scorching red "A" of guilt, Stuart Holmes, is given opportunity for convincing work. Mary Martin appears as Hester Prynne, the sufferer from the stern Puritanical judgment and Kittens Reichert portrays Pearl.

The other principles have also been selected with care. Dan Mason, Edward N. Hoyt, Robert Vivian and Florence Ashbrooke fill the principle supporting roles.

Carl Harbaugh directed the subject and Georges Benoit was the man behind the camera. All sub-titles used in the picture have been taken from the book.

A few of the novels which William Fox has had filmed in the past are: "The Nigger," "The Bondman," "Wormwood," "Kreutzer Sonata," "Under Two Flags," "East Lynne," "Children of the Ghetto," and "The Clemenceau Case."

Bluebird Ready for Early Spring Releases

MARCH offerings of the Bluebird program are headed by dainty Violet Mersereau in John C. Brownell's brainchild "The Boy Girl," ready for release March 5. This is Miss Mersereau's fifth Bluebird production, and was directed by Edwin Stevens. The little star is now at work on a play by Harry Millard, entitled "Susan's Gentleman."

March 12, the release will probably be the Lynn F. Reynolds' story, "The Cruise of the Alden Besse" which may, however, be released under another title. Myrtle Gonzalez, Val Paul and George Hernandez, stock stars in the Reynolds nature-study organization will be featured. Lynn Reynolds always goes out-of-doors for his settings; this time he has gone to sea. "The Code of the Klondyke," incidentally, is another Reynolds Bluebird on the wing.

Ella Hall, in what is now captioned "Pollyooly" will very likely be the March 19 release, this screen version of Edgar Jepson's novel having been made by E. J. Clawson, with Jack Conway directing Miss Hall in a dual role. "Redhead" is being considered as its permanent title for the reason that Miss Hall impersonates two girls with ruddy hair. Another Jack Conway-Ella Hall production now in the making will be "Pawned" to be later released as a Bluebird.

Definite announcement cannot be made as to the March 26 attraction, but Bluebird has plenty to pick from; for instance: Rupert Julian's production "Marcel's Birthday Present," with Louise Lovely co-starring with the director; Mary MacLaren, in "The Plow Woman," stage managed by Charles Swickard; Dorothy Phillips in "The Flash-Light Girl," directed by Joseph De Grasse, and another Rex Ingram picture, "Flowers of Doom."

Universal to Release New Mystery Serial

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company announuces that arrangements have been made for the release in fifteen episodes of a new serial, "The Voice on the Wire," founded on the novel of the same title by Eustace Hale Ball. The screen version was written by Grubb Alexander.

The book enjoyed a widespread popularity and the author is noted for his stories of mystery. "The Voice on the Wire" offers unusual situations which promise to make it a successful film drama.

The leading roles are played by Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber, and the picture was produced under the direction of Stuart Paton.

War Series from General About February 1

The General Film Company has practically completed arrangements for the release of the British Government's official motion picture records of the Great War on or about February 1. They will be released in weekly installments of approximately thirty minutes screen time and the first three releases cover the Battle of the Somme.

So many so-called war pictures have been shown in this country with Long Island or New Jersey as "No-Man's Land" and a horde of extras as the "Allied Army" that exhibitors should welcome a series that comes to them officially from the British War Office with the stamp of approval of the Admiralty, Ministry of Munitions and other accredited Government Agencies. Every effort is being made to secure nation-wide publicity for series and an extensive advertising campaign is being planned.

General Film Exchanges are receiving inquiries as to exact release dates, and it is understood that one of New York's biggest exhibitors with a chain of theatres will announce series inside of the next few days as a principal feature.

The first release will be entitled "England's Five Million" and "The Battle of the Somme" and will show audiences the spectacle of England's manhood marching to the front and the curtain fire which heralded the first advance of British troops.

The General Film Company has just ordered fifty extra prints of this series.

Kinnebrew to Handle Picture

W. T. (Billiken) Kinnebrew, formerly of the Mutual Film Corporation has been appointed as a special representative by A. C. Bromberg, to handle his special feature, "Beating Back" through the Carolina territory.

Maurice Tourneur Doing a Muddy Scene With Mary Pickford for "The Poor Little Rich Girl" (Artcraft)

HOW PICTURES ARE BOOKING

Middle West Likes Bluebirds

Late bookings of Bluebirds from the Omaha, Neb. exchange are reported large. Statements of exhibitors are to the effect that "Love's Lariat," featuring Harry D. Carey is the biggest Bluebird success released in the territory. Many return dates have been booked for the picture.

C. A. Begthol of Hastings, who runs the "New Branch," Neb., and Mr. Longnecker of the Sun, Sioux City, Ia., do not even specify in complimentary letters regarding Bluebirds to the Omaha exchange. Each release has proved of value to them, and of interest to their clientele.

Reports from D. L. Gilmore of the Maynard, Mitchell, S. D., and an exhibitor of Haywarden, Ia., that features cannot be made to pay in those towns has caused J. H. Calvert of the Bluebird exchange to send Carlyle King to these towns to put on "The Bulgar of Algiers" and disprove the conclusion of the exhibitors.

Children Enjoy "Mutt and Jeff"

Judging from reports from the South the "Mutt and Jeff" cartoons are in great vogue. On a recent trip to Atlanta, Ralph DeBruler, manager of the Capitol theatre of Macon, Ga., stated that the Fisher film had drawn more children to his house than any other film. On one day seven hundred youngsters witnessed one of the animated cartoons.

Double Run for "Liberty"

After finishing a recent run at the Happy Hour theatre, Springfield, the "Liberty" serial has been booked for a return performance by R. F. Barrne, manager of the house.

Quaker City Fans Turn Out for Big Productions

House Records Broken by "Purity," "The Great Secret," and "War Brides"—Selznick, Fox, and Metro Pictures

ENTHUSIASTIC reports of Philadelphia exchanges handling big pictures of the moment were caused last week by the remarkable impetus given the bookings of the features.

Selznick pictures were reported well in front and scoring records wherever shown. "The Common Law," according to the manager of the Stanley theatre, Philadelphia, broke all house records, and then met with unusual success all over the movie district. Following the run of the Chambers film, along came "War Brides," and for the second time shattered the Stanley theatre record. Storm proved no hindrance to the big attendance, and after a week's run the picture, moving to the Palace, another Stanley house but four blocks away, played another week to crowded houses. Bookings on "War Brides" are filled solid for twenty-five weeks. Advance bookings on "The Virgin," another Selznick picture, are for six weeks ahead.

Fox releases have also come in for a jump in bookings. Runs of a week given the larger productions in first-class neighborhood vaudeville houses have created a demand far ahead for showings. "The Price of Silence," with William Farnum, has been one of the most successful releases in recent weeks. Incidentally, George Dembow, manager of the Fox exchange, reported securing thirty-five contracts for Fox Film Comedies in a single day.

"Purity," with Audrey Munson, which has been handled in the Pennsylvania section by the Masterpiece Film Attractions, has acquired a big vogue. Arguments as to its propriety or impropriety and the fact that it was held up by the Pennsylvania censors for weeks, have but whetted the public interest.

House records at the Belmont and Imperial, West Philadelphia houses, were broken when the production showed at each for three days.

Metro's pictures also merit through the success they have been meeting. A week's run at two large downtown houses of "The Great Secret" brought requests for booking from the best exhibitors through the territory. A well-directed advertising campaign has materially increased the demand for the production.

Woda to Take "V" Service for a Year

F. P. Woda, proprietor of the Orpheum theatre, 1882 Ninth street, Cleveland, one of the two big downtown theatres in that city, has entered into a year's contract with Vitagraph V-L-S-E for the exclusive use of Greater Vitagraph productions in Mr. Woda's house. For one year, beginning January 22, nothing but Vitagraph pictures will be shown at the Orpheum.

The contract was closed by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, after Mr. Woda and J. R. Johnson, manager of the Cleveland exchange of the Vitagraph Company, had worked out a way by which this exclusive service could be supplied.

Glimpses of L-Ko Fun Makers Whose Efforts Are Seen on the Universal Program. Left to Right: Abe Stern Supervising a Scene with Lucille Hutton; Vera Reynolds, Ingenue; Director Craig Hutchinson and Principal Members of His Company Headed by Dan Russell

"A Daughter of the Gods" Draws Well in Louisville

"A Daughter of the Gods," featuring Annette Kellermann, which opened in Louisville at the Mary Anderson theatre, at the end of the year for a week had a very successful seven day run, so successful in fact that the management arranged to hold over the feature for another week. The prices which ranged from twenty-five cents to one dollar are the highest which have ever been charged in Louisville for a picture show, with the exception of "The Birth of a Nation."

In connection with the engagement of "A Daughter of the Gods," one of the Louisville papers gave box seat tickets to the women of the city whose physical proportions tally with those of Miss Kellermann. The measurements were published in the newspaper on the Sunday the engagement opened and those women who measured themselves and gave affidavit before a notary public that they met the requirements were presented with box seats. There were only three women in Louisville who entered the contest for free tickets that measured up to the standard of the star of "A Daughter of the Gods."

"Vampires" Goes Well in Salt Lake

Edward Mehesy, proprietor and manager of the Mehesy Theatre, Salt Lake City, contracted with the Mutual Film Corporation of Utah for "The Vampires," to be shown at his house every Thursday. Mr. Mehesy states that this series has turned his Thursdays into Sundays, and immediately after showing the sixth episode he contracted for second-run, starting Sunday, January 28, just two days after showing Episode No. 9 on Thursday, January 25.

Mutual service is well represented in Salt Lake, the Mutual trade mark appearing on nearly every screen in the city. "Charlie Chaplin Specials" and "Mutual Tours" are shown at the American; "Charlie Chaplin Specials" and Masterpictures at the Rex; "The Vampires," "Perils of our Girl Reporters," "Mutual Weekly" and other short reels at the Mehesy; Star Productions at the Isis; Vogue comedies and other short reels at the Broadway; "A Lass of the Lumberlands" at Pantages; Masterpictures and short reel program at the Jitney; short reel program at the Empire and short reel program at the Photoplay.

Crandall Books "Great Secret"

Harry Crandall has secured the initial showing in Washington of "The Great Secret," starring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne. Mr. Crandall will retain the film for five days, showing it two days at his down town house and then taking it consecutively into each of his large residential houses in the order named —the Avenue Grand, the Savoy, and Apollo. By this means each section of the city will have the opportunity of seeing this serial the first week of its arrival in the city. This stands as one of the most unusual deals in Washington film circles.

Pathe Serials Are Going Big in Middle West

"Patria" Being Exploited by Largest Houses— "Shielding Shadow," "Iron Claw," Rebooked

EXHIBITORS in the Middle West who have unalterably ruled out serials are booking "Patria," the Pathe-International serial. Heralded as a record breaker, managers of houses throughout this territory report capacity business at each showing has fully borne out advance predictions.

J. E. Bryant, manager of the Plaza, a new house at Sioux City, Iowa, paid the serial this compliment:

"We have always said—that is, we HAD always said—we would never run a serial in this house. After seeing the first seven reels of 'Patria,' we changed our minds. We feel certain it will prove a big winner, else we would never have booked it."

Similar expressions of commendation are heard of other Pathe serials running, notably "The Shielding Shadow" and "The Iron Claw." As regards the former, Mr. and Mrs. John Billow of Avoca, Ia., and Mrs. J. Mahoney of Walnut, Ia., came together in Omaha a short time ago, intent on booking the picture simultaneously. Coincidentally, L. M. Garman of the Strand and Muse theatres, Lincoln, Neb., booked his second run of "The Iron Claw" at the exchange, and for good measure arranged for more "Lonesome Luke" comedies.

Advertisements in the Omaha, Neb., territory show the serial "Patria" is being booked in the largest and finest houses in the territory. The Muse, Twenty-fourth and Farnam, Omaha, ran a page advertisement for the picture in the Omaha dailies on Sunday, January 14. Manager Shirley of the Muse has established, by advertising, a reputation for showing new releases first, and other exhibitors, especially the smaller ones out in the state, pay careful attention to his announcements.

"Mrs. Castle was one of the main drawing features of the picture, looking at it from my viewpoint," said Mr. Shirley. "This is the second serial I have shown at my theatre. I think this will be a winner —that's the reason I booked it."

Juanita Hansen, Featured in "Glory" (Unity)

More Bluebirds Scheduled for Rialto

The success attained by "The Mysterious Mrs. M." which pleased the patrons of the Rialto, New York, during the past week, sent Director Rothapfel to Bluebirds' projection room last Tuesday to look at several of their future releases. Two were selected that have not, as yet, been supplied with a permanent title. One was directed by Lynn F. Reynolds and the other by Jack Conway.

"The Cruise of the Alden Besse" is the working title of the Reynolds picture and has Myrtle Gonzalez, Val Paul and George Hernandez in the leads. It was "God's Crucible," another Lynn Reynolds production, that Director Rothapfel wanted for the Rialto when booking arrangements with Marcus Loew's New York theatre interfered.

"Pollyooly" is the present title of the Ella Hall picture Mr. Rothapfel chose as another candidate for display at the Rialto. Jack Conway worked from E. J. Clawson's scenario in producing Edgar Jepson's story. Possibly the piece will be called "Redhead," for the reason that Miss Hall, in a dual impersonation, plays the role of two little girls with radish-tinted hair.

Loew Audiences Like "The Secret Kingdom"

So great a drawing card has "The Secret Kingdom" proved in all the twenty-four Marcus Loew theatres for which it originally was booked, and where it has now been running for three weeks, that Mr. Loew has contracted for this new Vitagraph 15-episode adventure serial for three more houses.

"The Secret Kingdom" will hereafter be shown, for three days an episode, at the Murray Hill theatre, 42nd street and Lexington avenue; Loew's New Colonial, in Peekskill, New York, and Teller's Broadway, at Howard avenue and Broadway, Brooklyn.

"Ignorance" Selling Well

"Ignorance" which is being marketed by the Young Women's Protective Association, with executive offices at Cleveland, Ohio, has been sold in twenty-seven states.

CHICAGO NEWS AND COMMENT

Live News Items All Around the Town

J. E. Willis, who became well known in local film circles as the Western District Representative for Unicorn, has severed his connection with that organization to accept the general managership of the American Bioscope Company, 6242 Broadway, Chicago. The American Bioscope studio has been greatly improved during the last few weeks, and is now a fully equipped producing plant. For the present the management will confine its efforts to the manufacture of commercial film. In the near future it will manufacture and release the Everett True cartoons, film rights for which have been secured from the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The Reel Fellows Club has secured new quarters on the fifth floor of the College Building, 217 South Wabash avenue. The new clubrooms were obtained through the work of the Ways and Means Committee, of which Attorney David Alexander is chairman. The club has voted to incorporate and to organize for the purpose of fighting detrimental license and censorship legislation.

The Reliable Feature Film Company of this city has acquired the services of "La Petite Buddye" (Buddye Felsenthal), a protege of Madame Pavlowa. This sixteen-year-old dancing marvel attracted the attention of I. M. Schwartz of the Reliable Feature Film Company at the annual affair known as the "Great Chicago Follies." Madamoiselle Buddye is not only an aesthetic dancer of rare ability, but is also said to be a gifted emotional actress. It is probable that Mr. Schwartz will not exploit the diminutive star himself, but will dispose of his contract with the young lady to some producing concern.

E. E. Fulton, president of the E. E. Fulton Company, is now in New York on an extended business trip.

The General Feature Film Company, of Chicago, will hereafter release one feature a week. In announcing this policy S. B. Greiver, manager of this concern, stated that the exhibitors of Illinois and Indiana will now have an opportunity to book such features as "Forbidden Fruit" and "Her Husband's Wife," at no extra expense. The General Feature Film Company is now furnishing service to such prominent houses as the Rialto theatre, of Indianapolis, and other pretentious photoplay houses. Manager Greiver also states that the demand for "The Yellow Menace" serial is still continuing.

"Twilight Sleep," a three-reel film showing how the pain and horror of child birth is being alleviated by the scopolamine treatment, is being distributed by the Modern Motherhood League, of Illinois, with offices in the Mallers Building. This picture, which has been called "a valuable motion picture clinic" by many medical authorities, will be booked throughout Illinois with a lecturer accompanying it. The Modern Motherhood League intends to play the picture to segregated audiences, ladies one night and men the next. It is also intended to enlist the support of various welfare and motherhood associations throughout the state.

Gail Kane, American-Mutual Star, in Whose Honor a Luncheon Was Given at the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, January 22

The Ft. Dearborn Photoplays, Inc., a Chicago producing concern, has completed work on its juvenile picture "Modern Mother Goose." This picture was taken in Chicago and includes among its locations many familiar sites, such as the campus of the University of Chicago. Ellis Paul, a well-known child player, is starred, supported by other Chicago child players, under the direction of Mathew C. von Betz.

David Wark Griffith made a brief stopover in Chicago on Monday, January 22. The producer had just completed arrangements for the opening of "Intolerance" in Milwaukee, and was on his way to New York. He refused to divulge his future plans.

Ever since the announcement that Selma Film, Inc., is to handle the Ella Wheeler Wilcox pictures in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin territory, early bookings have been made by this firm. The first of the two-reel dramatizations of the poetess' works will be called "A Married Coquette."

Mrs. Hamburger, wife of Alfred Hamburger, gave an entertaining and instructive talk before a gathering of club women in the Auditorium on Tuesday, January 23. Her subject was "The Future of the Motion Picture." The importance of the cinema to educators as a medium of teaching scientific subjects and of graphically portraying the beauties of nature was illustrated by Mrs. Hamburger. She also showed the religious significance of the motion picture, its place in civic affairs, and its position as an art. In closing Mrs. Hamburger spoke of the motion picture as "the noblest contribution of the twentieth century to civilization."

O. F. Spahr, general manager of the Enterprise Optical Company, was host at a banquet held last week at the Briggs Hotel. The guests were members of the out-of-town sales department, members of the local sales force, and stockholders of the company.

Among those who came to Chicago especially to attend this affair were S. B. Blakely, of the Pacific Coast territory, and J. E. McAuley, of the Eastern division.

Luncheon for Gail Kane, New American Star

A luncheon in honor of Gail Kane, one of the American Film Company's latest acquisitions, was given by President S. S. Hutchinson on Monday, January 22, at the Blackstone Hotel. Miss Kane stopped off at Chicago a few hours enroute to Santa Barbara, where she will begin the first of a series of productions to be released on the Mutual program.

It was announced at the luncheon that Miss Kane will be directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon, and that her first vehicle will be Cecil Bullivant's latest play, "Whose Wife." Mr. Sturgeon has had a number of film successes to his credit, among them "God's Country and the Woman," and "Through the Wall."

Those present at the luncheon were Miss Kane and her mother, S. S. Hutchinson, John R. Freuler, S. M. Field, W. K. Hollander, T. S. Mead, C. M. Brown, Arthur Curtis, Louella Parsons, Bob McKnight, Paul R. Kuhn, Sidney Burnet, E. O. Brooks, Genevieve Harris, Martin Quigley, Ben Judell, R. R. Nehls, Betty Shannon, Neil Coward, Gordon Seagrove, A. A. Cohn, W. D. Hildreth and Charles Nixon.

Shift in Jones, Linick and Schaefer Managers

The opening of the new Jones, Linick, and Schaefer Rialto theatre brought about a complete shake-up of the Jones, Linick & Schaefer managers.

Harry Earl, formerly manager of the LaSalle, is now manager of the Rialto, assisted by Wm. Rosenblum, who has been assistant manager of McVicker's for the past three years. Louis J. Jones will act as treasurer of the new Rialto as well as retaining his position as manager of the Studebaker and Lyric theatres. Norman E. Freed will continue to manage the LaSalle temporarily, assisted by Mike Simons. Benj. Anderson, who has been assistant manager of the Studebaker, will assist John G. Burch of McVicker's. Chester Amberg, manager of the Williard, becomes assistant manager of the Studebaker.

LIVE NEWS FROM THE PRODUCERS

Madge Kennedy Signed by Goldwyn

Popular Stage Comedienne Brings Talents to Screen—Why Edgar Selwyn Became a Picture Producer

MADGE KENNEDY, one of the best known farce comediennes on the American stage, has signed with Goldwyn Pictures and will be exploited in a series of productions by that organization.

Announcement of Miss Kennedy's engagement follows close on the heels of the Goldwyn acquisition of Mae Marsh, Jane Cowl and Maxine Elliott, in the order named. Miss Kennedy has never before appeared in pictures and her entry into the films brings one of the youngest and freshest of stage favorites to the cinema.

Thousands of persons who have seen her in "Over Night," "Little Miss Brown," "Twin Beds" and "Fair and Warmer" will be delighted with her decision to become a picture star.

Miss Kennedy in her six years on the stage has had the coaching and training of such shrewd and able instructors as Margaret Mayo and Grace George and Edgar Selwyn. She has been content to work earnestly and seriously which accounts for her popularity in the theatre.

Four years in stock in Cleveland followed by principle roles in "Over Night" and "Little Miss Brown" tells the story of Miss Kennedy's career previous to her appearance in her greatest success "Twin Beds" and "Fair and Warmer." Now in a few weeks she will begin her screen work at the Fort Lee studios of the Goldwyn Company.

Edgar Selwyn, whose tutelage accounts in a measure for Miss Kennedy's quick rise, and who is now a partner in the Goldwyn firm, has not always been a friend of the motion picture. Explaining his former prejudice and his reasons for active entrance into the industry he says:

"Years ago I saw men without experience or mental equipment given the important task of producing pictures, in which they revealed their contempt for every one of the fixed principles of dramatic construction and an even greater contempt for the authors of the plays they were screening. I believed then as I believe now that the story is the fundamental basis of the good motion picture.

"Had producers persisted in the viewpoint that the story was of no consequence there would be no picture industry today worthy of a moment's consideration. But a marked change manifested itself from within.

"We have now passed through the stages of the non-thought-producing pictures. Personally I believe the biggest things that are to be done on the screen will be original stories written for the screen. I have entered motion pictures because of this belief and the resources of Selwyn and Company come with me. My prediction is that the actual achievements of the motion picture art still lie ahead in the future."

A Giant with Fox Forces

James Grover Tarver, who is seven feet five inches in height, and has been with the largest circuses since he could walk, is now a member of the Fox forces.

As a boy, Mr. Targer was introduced to Captain Martin Van Buren Bates, the famous Kentucky giant, whose stature was seven feet eleven and one-quarter inches, and who weighed four hundred and ninety-six pounds.

He wore a 26 collar, and a No. 15 boot, Mr. Tarver declares, and his wife, who was Anna Swan, was exactly his height, and tipped the scales at only ninety-six pounds less than her husband.

Cohan's Initial Production for Release March 19

The release date for "Broadway Jones," the Artcraft Pictures Corporation subject which will mark George M. Cohan's initial bow on the screen has been set for March 19.

Originally written, produced and starred in by Cohan, the play proved one of the hits of the New York theatrical season after which it met with similar success on the road. Later the show was put in stock in many cities and became established as one of Mr. Cohan's greatest successes.

Final scenes in "A Poor Little Rich Girl," Mary Pickford's next subject, which will also be released during March, are being completed under the direction of Maurice Tournier. The favorite little actress is said to have a part giving her even a greater opportunity for display of her talents than in any recent picture she has appeared in. This subject also scored a success on the legitimate stage, playing for a long run at the Hudson theatre, New York, and is from the novel by Eleanor Gates. The date of release will be March 5.

Lois Meredith in Moss Film

Lois Meredith, former Pathe Mutual and Metro star, will be seen in "In the Hands of the Law," a B. S. Moss production scheduled for release some time during February.

Prior to her advent to the screen, Miss Meredith, who was recognized as the youngest star on the legitimate stage, scored in big roles of "Madame Sherry," "Help Wanted," "Peg O' My Heart," and other Broadway hits.

Miss Meredith is also known as a short story writer, and in her home town, Belfast, Ireland, did journalistic work for some months, eventually being assigned to do theatrical work, from which she made the step to active stage work.

Jane Cowl, Maxine Elliott and Madge Kennedy, a Goldwyn Star Trio

BLUEBIRD
Photo Plays
Present "THE REWARD
OF THE FAITHLESS" with Wodgewood
Nowell and Betty Schade
DIRECTED BY REX INGRAM

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (INC)

EXTRA

THE tremendous success of BLUEBIRD Photoplays has prompted hundreds of Theatre Managers to institute a special night each week for the showing of BLUEBIRD Plays.

This special night is called BLUEBIRD NIGHT, in some localities, while others advertise it as BLUEBIRD DAY.

Assisting these progressive Managers we are now preparing canvas banners, newspaper cuts, also a permanent combination 3-sheet Poster laid out so as to accomodate a 1-sheet in the centre, allowing the advertising of the release shown on the day announced. Special slides are also being prepared so that Exhibitors will have complete advertising props to put on a regular BLUEBIRD DAY or NIGHT once or twice each week, as the case may be.

We would like to hear from all theatres now showing BLUEBIRD Photoplays in regard to the establishment of a regular BLUEBIRD DAY or BLUEBIRD NIGHT. By thus establishing a BLUEBIRD DAY your public will soon become aware of the fact that each week, the best play of the week will be the BLUEBIRD PLAY, thus you will work up a capacity business on BLUEBIRD DAYS. Let us hear from you if you wish to establish a BLUEBIRD DAY. Write the Executive Bluebird Offices, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Especial attention is directed to the BLUEBIRD Play—"The Mysterious Mrs. M." directed and produced by LOIS WEBER. Book it on our recommendation. It's a truly wonderful production.

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (Inc.)
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Some of the More Stirring Moments from the Ivan Production, "Enlighten Thy Daughter"

Jack Sherrill Now Starring

Jack Sherrill is to be co-starred with Dorothy Bernard in a forthcoming Art Drama, "The Accomplice," which is being produced under the direction of Ralph Dean at the William L. Sherrill Feature Corporation's studios at Flushing, L. I. The picture is to be released on February 8.

Although Mr. Sherrill has been featured in the support of numerous popular stars, and has also been featured alone in several productions, "The Accomplice" will mark his debut into the stellar ranks. His work in several recent productions, notably "Jaffery," "The Conquest of Canaan," and "The Witching Hour," has added to his popularity.

"The Accomplice" is an original scenario, written by Anthony P. Kelly, who is the author of numerous other screen successes. Supporting Miss Bernard and Mr. Sherrill appear Jean Stuart, W. J. Brady and Tom Ward.

Crompton Technical Director for Horsley

As one of the first moves towards surrounding himself with capable people to put on more pictures after present plans, David Horsley has arranged for the re-engagement of Frank Crompton as technical director of all David Horsley productions. The engagement became in force at once and Mr. Crompton is now filing the duties of his position at the Horsley studios in Los Angeles.

Mr. Crompton is accepted as one of the best authorities on technical construction in the motion picture business, in which he has been engaged for the past nine years. Prior to his film experience Mr. Crompton was an architect located in England, South America and other countries. His extensive traveling, together with his knowledge of architecture, fitted him admirably as a motion picture technician, and when he came to this country in 1906 he presented himself to the Edison company and was engaged.

Following his Edison engagement he was successively with Imp, Universal, Keystone and L-Ko.

Japanese Star in Latest Paramount Release

Sessue Hayakawa and Lenore Ulrich Feature in New Plays; Other Subjects on February 5 Program

SESSUE HAYAKAWA in the Lasky production "Each to His Kind" and Lenore Ulrich in the Pallas production of "Her Own People," will be the program features on the Paramount program for the week of February 5.

Acting upon the promises held forth in characterization of an Indian in "The Victoria Cross," the Lasky Company presents him in the role of an Indian rajah, who comes in contact with accidental environment and traits, only to return to his orientalism with stronger faith in it and its kind. Tsuri Aoki plays opposite Sessue Hayakawa in "Each to His Kind," forming the second base of the triangle composed of that star, herself and Vola Vale, who as the English girl creates the conflict in the drama.

The lure and mystery of India has been but slightly touched in the screen drama. In "Each to His Kind," this fascinating atmosphere is introduced with the added dramatic value of scenic contrast in England as well as in India.

The story was written by Paul West for Hayakawa, and prepared for the screen by George Dubois Proctor. In the cast playing opposite the stars and Vola Vale, are Earnest Joy, Walter Long, Eugene Pallette, Paul Weigel and others.

Lenore Ulrich in the Belasco production of "The Heart of Wetona," will be shown in "Her Own People," an Indian characterization and modern drama of racial conflict. For the Indian scenes of this production, the Pallas Company went to an Indian reservation in the West, and most of the members appear in this production. Miss Ulrich had the distinction of being one of the best portrayers of Indian types on the screen. Colin Chase will be seen as Miss Ulrich's leading man in this production, and others in the cast are Howard Davies, Jack Stark, Joy Lewis, William Winter Jefferson and other well-known photoplay dramatic artists.

The story tells of Alona, the daughter of John Kemp, a wealthy society man and the Indian wife whom he marries after renouncing his own society, following an unfortunate love affair.

Surrounding the two features for this week, Paramount will release the 52nd edition of the Paramount Pictographs, the magazine-on-the-screen; the 53rd of the series of "Weakly Trips Around the World," personally conducted by Burton Holmes, in which he takes his travelers from "Regina to the Rockies" and a Black Diamond Comedy, entitled "All at Sea."

The 52nd edition of the Paramount Pictographs contains four unique and interesting subjects, the first of which is a series of most remarkable pictures.

The Black Diamond Comedy "All at Sea" is a screamingly funny one and is the tenth that has been released through Paramount, the production having been made by the United States Motion Picture Corporation.

Paramount will issue with their program features for this week, a special lot of accesories, including advertising and publicity material.

Ivan Signs Guy Coombs

Guy Coombs, for many years known to moving picture patrons, has returned to the screen, joining the Ivan Film Corporation, where he will portray the romantic leading parts which are intimately associated with his name.

The first part assigned to Mr. Coombs introduces him in the character of a navy lieutenant who experiences extraordinary adventures in far-away Japan.

Kitty Gordon in Brady Film

In her new World picture, Brady-Made, Kitty Gordon is said to have a role which presents her physical charms very attractively. In addition, a heart-interest turn to the story provides Miss Gordon with opportunities for acting of a most convincing quality.

Anders Randolph in a Striking Character Pose from "The Girl Philippa" and Two Scenes from this Vitagraph Production Which Features Anita Stewart

Ambitious Plans to Broaden Screen Magazine

Success of Universal Feature Leads to Weekly Instead of Bi-Weekly Release with New Features

THE advent of the commercial and industrial motion picture was received with some misgiving by exhibitors and producers. There was a pronounced sentiment against this form of diversion for the theatre-goer, the skeptical contending that the photoplay was supreme in its value as a box office attraction.

However, the order of things has undergone a transformation that cannot be denied. Far-seeing exhibitors warmly greeted the appearance of Universal Screen Magazine, an educational feature, and the subsequent success of the periodical in films has been indorsement of this sort of screen entertainment.

The Universal Screen Magazine caters to the most intense of human traits—the thirst for knowledge. This much has been proved by the success with which the Universal Screen Magazine has been shown in theatres throughout the United States.

No matter what the community, no matter what the class or, if you will, caste, of the audiences, there has been unanimous indorsement of the educational motion picture, and so the producers have been encouraged to new efforts, and, instead of a bi-weekly release of the screen magazine in future there will be a new screen magazine for the edification of Universal patrons each seven days.

Two particular instances may be cited to illustrate convincingly the popularity of the screen magazine:

One of the foremost New York newspaper critics, in a review of a Broadway theatre's program, called attention to the fact that the screen magazine won greater applause and favorable comment than the five-reel feature drama of which the program boasted.

Since the screen magazine was first published, the producers have called upon theatre-goers to send in suggestions for suitable subjects to be embodied in it. This request has been answered by thousands of persons and many of them have been paid for their co-operation. The pictures have been used.

The Universal Screen Magazine doesn't confine its activities to educational subjects, though these predominate. There are freak pictures, with a little touch of comedy. Willie Hopkins, the foremost clay modeler in the world, contributes to each release with a cartoon in mud.

Mrs. A. Louise Andrea, who received the gold medal award at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in a competition with hundreds of other persons, as an expert cook, is conducting a series of domestic science lessons. In her splendidly-equipped kitchen in The Gentlewoman Magazine offices, she will show patrons of the Universal Screen Magazine how to bake bread and pastries, and how to prepare other foods and candy. Such a series will prove of great interest to women.

The bookings of the screen magazine have shown wonderful increase. Recently this feature was added to the regular programs of two vaudeville circuits and numerous independent exhibitors called for it.

It is the present intention of Jack Cohn, editor of the screen magazine, to eventually publish every subject of interest. He will welcome any suggestions his patrons or the readers of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS have to offer.

New Male Lead for Triangle

Kenneth D. Harlan, new Triangle-Fine Arts leading man, who signed his contract in Chicago and arrived at the Triangle-Fine Arts Los Angeles studio recently, spent his first day talking over his future career with the management.

Though Harlan has not yet been cast for his first part, it is reported that he will play opposite Constance Talmadge, under the direction of Paul Powell.

The new leading man is a college graduate and is 22 year old. He first engaged in amateur theatricals in New York and afterwards graduated to the speaking stage. He was in stock two seasons, and afterwards in vaudeville with Gertrude Hoffman in Sumurun.

Large Niagara House Contracts for Vitagraph Service

A. A. Hayman, manager of the Cataract theatre, Niagara Falls, N. Y., has signed a contract for Vitagraph service with F. F. Hartich, branch manager of the Syracuse exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

The Cataract theatre has a seating capacity of 1,850, and is reported the largest house in Niagara Falls. Its stage is vast enough for a huge operatic production.

With the contract for Vitagraph pictures Mr. Hayman will devote his house entirely to the exhibition of motion pictures.

Exhibitors Crowd to Book Cohan Picture

EXPECTATION is held that the initial George M. Cohan screen play, "Broadway Jones," to be released by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation on April 2, will establish a high-water mark in the way of advance bookings before another week has passed. Hundreds of applications for bookings are being received at the Artcraft headquarters in New York daily, and agreements have already been signed with many of the best motion picture theatres in the country for bookings of from one to four weeks.

One of the first theatres to close for the Cohan photoplay was the Strand in New York, where it will be presented for the first time in this city. Other high-class theatres, such as the Strand, Syracuse, N. Y.; the Strand, Buffalo, N. Y.; the Strand, Hartford, Conn.; the Stillman, Cleveland, Ohio; the Knickerbocker, Cleveland, Ohio; the Circle, Indianapolis, Ind.; the Pastime, Columbus, Ohio; the Walnut, Cincinnati, Ohio; the Majestic, Detroit, Mich.; the Temple, Toledo, Ohio, and the Broadway, Portland, Ore., were among the first to receive bookings. The Modern theatre in Boston will show "Broadway Jones" for two weeks.

One of the most unusual bookings has been closed with the Globe theatre in New Orleans, La., where it will appear for four weeks. A long list of other theatres, representing the finest screen palaces in the country are already signed up for week shows, all applications being considered in the order of their receipt.

Scenes from a Forthcoming Sherrill-Art Dramas, "The Accomplice," Featuring Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill, Supported by Jean Stuart (Center)

Hodkinson to Direct Conquest Pictures

It has been announced by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., that Conquest Pictures, the coming Edison productions based on a new idea and a new ideal, will be released on the direction of W. W. Hodkinson.

Plans are being perfected for the establishment of distributing offices in all of the large cities of the United States.

As has been announced, Conquest Pictures will be released weekly in groups of five reels. Each group will always be exhibited in the form in which it is released, this precaution being taken for the purpose of guarding against the introduction of extraneous subjects of a lower standard than will be maintained in Conquest Pictures.

Second Linder Comedy Is on Marriage

While the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service is completing final details for the presentation of Max Linder's first Essanay comedy, entitled "Max Comes Across," the noted European comedian has launched into the production of his second "made in America" fun film.

"Max Comes Across" will "come across" to exhibitors within a few days. Only the extraordinary precautions which are being taken by President Spoor of Essanay to avoid the slightest hitch in the nation-wide marketing of the film, once it is released, delays the final announcement of the date on which it will be offered to exhibitors.

"Max Wants a Divorce" is the title of Linder's second Essanay production. Already the sets have been erected in the big studio set aside for the comedian, and the preliminary scenes have been filmed. In this comedy the famous Max will present a burlesque on the follies and fads of present-day matrimonial discord.

Biograph Gives Prisoners Laughs

At the request of the Mutual Welfare League of Sing Sing, the Biograph Company has loaned a print of One Round O'Brien, a comedy directed by Mack Sennett, to be shown for the inmates of that institution.

Ceppico, of Signet, Receives New 16-Reel Feature from Italy

G. CEPPICO, of the Signet Film Company, who handled "The Masque of Life" in the United States, has received another feature from Italy which he will present probably as a road show.

The feature contains at present sixteen reels, which Mr. Ceppico will edit down to ten. Unlike "The Masque of Life," which contained no stars, the new picture features a well-known European film star. Neither the film's title nor the star's name will be given out by Mr. Ceppico at present.

It is Mr. Ceppico's plan to have ten or twelve prints made and sent out on the road as he does not believe that the financial possibilities of a strong feature can be properly exhausted by the state-rights method.

"It was many weeks," said Mr. Ceppico, "before the public and the exhibitors realized that 'The Masque of Life' was a good buy. I put it on at the Park theatre, in New York, and the business for each succeeding week increased, until during the fourth week, we turned several hundred people away at every performance.

"Mr. Loew then realized the possibilities of the film and booked it for his circuit. So far $150,000 of state rights have been sold. I believe that if I had handled 'The Masque of Life' myself I could have profited at least two hundred per cent. more than I did. That is why the new picture won't be sold on a state-rights basis.

Mr. Ceppico complained that the attitude of American film men towards foreign pictures is unjust and unfair.

"There are so many good pictures being made abroad that American exhibitors should realize more quickly than they do their business building possibilities."

Shakespeare's "King Lear" Big Box-Office Attraction

REPORTS from exhibitors showing "King Lear" the Pathe Gold Rooster Play produced by Thanhouser, indicate that the Shakespeare subject has fulfilled predictions of the company's officials that it would score an unqualified hit. Though many of the plays of the Bard of Avon are not suitable for screen production, the action and situation in "King Lear" make it an ideal screen scenario.

Newspaper reviewers have received the production well, and have praised the characterization of Frederick Warde, who plays Lear. The New York Evening Sun, Morning Telegraph and "Variety" all applauded the picture highly.

Many exhibitors have reported on the picture. M. J. Weil of the Lake Shore theatre, Chicago, pronounced the feature a wonderful box office attraction. The Grand theatre of Cincinnati booked the picture for a three-day run, enlisting the co-operation of the Shakespearian clubs, professors, school teachers, literary clubs, etc., and wide-spread interest was aroused in it. The Orpheum, Cincinnati, a three thousand seat house, and Loew's New York theatre played to capacity during the run of "King Lear."

Though "King Lear" appeals to the picture fans, it also brings into the theatre many new patrons who have long been interested in Shakespeare, but not previously in pictures. The fact that in most schools the play is on the "required reading" list helps wonderfully. It gives to every man, woman and child in the country who has benefited by a common school education, a first hand knowledge of the subject and therefore a natural desire to see it on the screen.

New Company to Be Headed by Beatriz Michelena?

The possibility of the formation of a new motion picture company on the Pacific Coast, headed by Beatriz Michelena, is the latest development since the latter's resignation from the California Motion Picture Corporation.

While local capitalists are considering such an organization, there is also a possibility that Miss Michelena may bring her own producing company East with her this summer, including her leading man, William Pike, and Director George E. Middleton, both formerly with the California M. P. Corporation. Mr. Pike has played opposite Miss Michelena during her entire career, and Mr. Middleton is nearly as old an associate.

Scenes Which Bespeak of the Variety in "The Royal Pauper," an Essanay Subject Featuring Francine Larrimore, Released Through the K-E-S-E Service

Efficiency Regime Cuts "U" Production Time

THE careful application of efficiency has reduced nearly one-half the time of producing plays for the screen at Universal City. At the same time the excellence of the finished product is said to have been increased immeasurably.

At the present time about eighteen days are consumed in making the usual five-reel photoplay, whereas in the past from a month to six weeks, and, frequently, two months, was the time usually taken to complete a feature of that length.

When H. O. Davis, vice-president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company and general manager of Universal City, assumed charge at the film capital he at once commenced a careful study of the production methods, and finally evolved a plan whereby time and labor could be saved, and at the same time avoid waits for sets.

As a result as soon as a photoplay of any character is turned over to a director for production, complete scene plots are prepared in the office of O. L. Sellers, manager of productions. An arrangement also is made whereby the work on exteriors and interiors is alternated during the making of the picture so that there is continuous work by the company.

At night the sets are erected for the use of the director on the following day, and if these require more time for construction work the director continues on location.

Under the former methods long waits for sets were the usual thing, which resulted in serious and expensive loss of time for the entire company.

All the director at Universal City has to do now is to give the production manager an idea of the character of sets he needs. The matter is then laid before the art director, who has the drawings made at once for the stage carpenters. Without any confusion the arrangements proceed and when the director has his cast ready he finds a card with his name on it tacked to the walls of his sets.

The businesslike methods inaugurated by Mr. Davis have saved both time and money, and all concerned are satisfied. This is especially so of the director, who is relieved of every responsibility other than the making of the photoplay.

H. O. Davis, Vice-President of Universal Film Manufacturing Company

Chinese Drama Forthcoming Universal Subject

Director Rex Ingram aided by a large corps of assistants is hard at work at Universal City preparing for the picturization of a Chinatown feature photoplay which will be presented by a large cast of players including Millard K. Wilson.

In the technical preparations of this photoplay Ingram was aided by Thomas H. Gubbin of the force of H. R. Hough, Comptroller of Universal City. Gubbin lived eight years in China while in the service of the United States Government and speaks Chinese like the natives. He was able to offer Ingram valuable suggestions regarding the costumes and proper sets and also will aid him through the picture in directing the action of the Chinese who will be used in many of the scenes.

Camera Obtains Weird Results in "The Black Wolf"

Novel photographic effects have been obtained in the filming of "The Black Wolf," the Lasky production starring Lou-Tellegen.

The story concerns a sort of Spanish Robin Hood—a bandit who robs the rich in order to befriend the poor. He is finally captured by the duke in whose domains his depredations take place, and is condemned to die. During an interview in the duke's castle the Black Wolf's identity becomes known—he is the son of the murdered uncle of the duke and is the real heir to the duchy.

It is in the handling of these scenes that a very original method is used. Upon the walls of the castle there hang full-length portraits of the ancestors of the young men involved. As the actors in the main drama continue to argue concerning the identity of the Black Wolf, shadowy figures step from the canvases and enact the duel and the final killing of the old duke as it occurred many years before. All this supplementary action is photographed within the room without in the least interfering with the action of the present-day characters.

British Navy Poses for Camera

The moving picture is to contribute its modicum toward the material relief of war-stricken Europe. Arrangements have been concluded whereby remarkable pictures taken of the British fleet in the North Sea, of the Battle of the Somme, and films of the American Ambulance Corps in France and of the American Aviation Corps, are to be marketed with the gross profits from exhibitions going to deserving war relief funds.

The Official War Films, Inc., of which William K. Vanderbilt is president, controls American rights to these pictures. Captioning of the films is now being concluded and they will shortly be released through the General Film Company.

The scenes of the English fleet were taken by Charles Urban, who is one of a handful of men who have been permitted to penetrate the shroud of secrecy with which Great Britain has always surrounded her naval war operations.

Mary Miles Minter in New Production

Production of the latest American-Mutual feature, "The Gentle Intruder," with Mary Miles Minter in the stellar role, has been completed. The release date of the picture will be announced later.

The story is of a young girl who finds herself dependent in the home of the family which is enjoying luxuries rightfully hers.

As niece of a man of wealth whose attorney and old friend gains control of the fortune the other leaves, Miss Minter is thrown upon the world, penniless, and comes to the attorney's home for guidance. Her arrival brings remorse to the fraudulent heir, who makes a position in his household for the girl. Her presence is unwelcome to the lawyer's socially climbing family, but it is through her gentle influence for good that the others change their attitude, and when the lawyer's son finds that "the gentle intruder" has made a way into his heart, the matter of the fortune is righted to the satisfaction of all.

James Kirkwood directed the picture. In the supporting cast are George Fisher, Eugenie Forde, Harvey Clark, Marie Van Tassell, Franklin Ritchie and George Periolat.

New Pathe Serial for Pearl White

With two Pathe serials "Pearl of the Army" and "The Double Cross" approaching completion, plans are under way for the production of another serial to be named "New York Nights" in which Pearl White will again be featured. George Seitz, who has been author or scenario writer of every Pathe picture in which the daring actress has ever played wrote the serial in collaboration with Fred Jackson. He will also direct the picture, in which Theodore Friebus, another of the "Army" cast will have a leading part.

With several Gold Rooster plays in the making, the Astra studio in Jersey City is a busy place. "The Iron Heart" directed by George Fitzmaurice with Edwin Arden, Forrest Wyant, Leonore Harris and Helene Chadwick in the cast has just been completed.

Sunny South for Three World-Brady Groups

THREE World-Brady companies are finding relief at present from the uncertain climatic conditions of the current winter in New York. These are the organizations supporting Alice Brady in "Maternity," Kitty Gordon in "Forget-Me-Not," and Carlyle Blackwell in "Who Is Sylvia?"

Miss Brady and her company have proceeded to St. Augustine to "take" the finishing scenes, the picture having been completed in other details in the Peerless studio at Fort Lee.

Miss Gordon and her assisting players have started for Cuba for a similar purpose under like conditions. Mr. Blackwell and associates have gone to the Adirondacks.

With Miss Brady are Director John B. O'Brien, John Bowers, David Powell, Herbert Barrington, Stanhope Wheatcroft, John Dugley, Madge Evans, Marie Chambers, Florence Crane and others.

The Kitty Gordon party embraces, in addition to the star and Director Emile Chautard, Montagu Love, George MacQuarrie, Alex B. Francis, Lillian Herbert and Norma Phillips. Many other well known players are in the cast.

The tentative titles under which both these plays were held in the process of making have been superseded. "Maternity" was formerly called "Motherhood," and "Forget-Me-Not" carried the temporary name "Haunting Shadows."

"Forget-Me-Not," of which Miss Gordon's pictureplay is an adaptation, was one of the most famous heart-dramas ever acted upon the American stage. It will be released on the World-Brady program in the early spring, while Miss Brady in "Maternity" will appear on the screen April 23.

With Mr. Blackwell are Director Harley Knoles, June Elvidge, Arthur Ashley, Albert Hart, etc. The studio work on "Who Is Sylvia?" is finished, and the picture is due for release April 30.

"Argyle Case" Is Ready

Robert Warwick's first Selznick picture, "The Argyle Case," is ready for release. Director Ralph W. Ince finished the work of cutting and assembling the film last week and a private showing was held for Lewis J. Selznick and his associates.

This play was the joint work of Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, the noted American dramatists, who, in their effort to obtain realistic results, called in as third collaborator William J. Burns, the detective. Robert Hilliard was the star of the original production, which enjoyed a year's run on Broadway and toured all the principal cities of the country with success.

The story of "The Argyle Case" is said to lend itself well to screen presentation. Beginning with the mystery of the murder of old John Argyle, an eccentric millionaire, the plot develops rapidly with suspicion falling upon Argyle's adopted daughter Mary, who is the chief beneficiary under his will. Asche Kayton, a private detective, is called in and his determination to prove Mary innocent lays the foundation for exciting scenes in the finale.

The cast includes Charles Hines, Frank McGlynn, Arthur Albertson, Gazelle Marche, Elaine Hammerstein, Frank Evans, John Fleming, H. Cooper Cliffe, Mary Alden and Robert Vivian.

The East Under F. P. Banner for Marie Doro

Marie Doro and the Famous Players studio staged a reunion last week. The popular star who has been featuring in Lasky pictures on the Paramount program for several months, and who recently married Elliott Dexter, leading man in a number of her pictures, came from the coast and will immediately start work at the F. P. studio on "Forget-me-nots." There will be at least one more Lasky picture released on the Paramount program in which Miss Doro will star before she again appears under the Famous Players banner.

Robert Warwick in "The Argyle Case"—Next Selznick Picture Release

Clune Picture Continues Establishing Records

IF the proof of the pudding is in the eating, W. H. Clune, the California producer who was responsible for the beautiful "Ramona," which was given the highest award ever bestowed by the National Board of Review, has come forward with another and greater output. On New Year's day in Los Angeles this new production, "The Eyes of the World," broke all Pacific Coast records with an attendance of 6,000 paid admissions—the free list being entirely suspended—in his big Auditorium theatre, and followed this up by registering for the first week a new high water mark for all feature pictures, including "The Birth of a Nation," "Ramona" and "Intolerance."

It was in the Auditorium, which is the largest theatre west of Chicago, and has seen more big cinema premieres than any other house in the country, that Griffith's masterpiece was launched, "The Spoilers" was first thrown upon the screen, and "Ramona" made its initial bow, running ten weeks to more than 200,000 patrons.

Mr. Clune last year made arrangements to picture Harold Bell Wright's works. "The Eyes of the World" is the first of this cinema series in ten reels.

The production is still running in the great Los Angeles theatre and bids fair to continue far into February. Another company sent to Arizona launched "The Eyes of the World" on January 1, simultaneously with the Los Angeles premiere, broke all Arizona records for three days, and was immediately booked for a return in the latter part of the same month—an honor never before accorded to any film in Phoenix.

The Los Angeles critics seem to be of one accord in their verdict of the new Clune feature and have been lavish with their praise.

Colorful Posters for "Seven Deadly Sins"

Each of the seven deadly sins—the tradition has been handed down through ages—has a distinguishing color. McClure Pictures is to use these colors in advertising "Seven Deadly Sins," the series of five-reel features that are soon to be released.

Ann Murdock in "Envy" is the first of the group. Envy, of course, is green, and the posters, slides and other advertising matter will have green as the predominant color.

"Pride," starring Holbrook Blinn, will have blue as its color. The proud, as everybody knows, speak of their "blue blood."

Red will be the color of "Passion," starring Shirley Mason, and "Greed," in which Nance O'Neill stars, will be indicated by yellow. A person is "purple with rage," so the posters for H. B. Warner in "Wrath" will have a purple background. Gray always has been a lazy color, and it will be used in advertising Charlotte Walker in "Sloth."

"The Seventh Sin," the theme of which is being kept a secret, will feature George LeGuere in black and white.

Former Ivan "Vampire Lady" Again in Fold

Once again Christine Mayo, who has done her share to make the word "vamp" colloquial slang in our language, has returned to the Ivan banner. Former Ivan plays in which she appeared, notably "A Mother's Confession" and "A Fool's Paradise," created a great vogue for the star. This was especially strong in New England, where, at an annual ball of the New Englanders in Boston, she was elected the most popular actress.

Miss Mayo is now enacting a role peculiarly dramatic and characteristic in the Japanese-American drama, "The Promise," which will be the February release of the Ivan Film Corporation. Miss Mayo is playing under the direction of William Humphrey.

The Divine Sarah Receives Pearl White

Director Edward Jose of Astra took his "Pearl of the Army" company down to Savannah, Georgia, on Monday, January 14, and the trip resulted in a remarkable tribute to Pearl White's world-wide fame from no less a person than Sarah Bernhardt herself.

Madame Bernhardt was playing an engagement at the Savannah theatre, and, hearing that Miss White was in town, sent her word that she would like to have her call upon her in her dressing room at the theatre after the evening's entertainment. Miss White accepted the invitation and, through an interpreter, had an extended interview with the famous Frenchwoman.

Madame Bernhardt is said to have told the screen star that as the name "Pearl White" was as well known in France as in the United States, she could not resist the opportunity of making her acquaintance, especially as she herself had seen with pleasure "The Mysteries of New York," the title under which the "Exploits of Elaine" was released in France.

George M. Cohan Learning Camera Technique from Director Joe Kaufman (Artcraft)

Hall Caine's Son Stars in Arrow Production

"Crime and Punishment," the Arrow Gold Rooster play, with Derwent Hall Caine, son of the famous author, as star, will probably be released on the Pathe program the last week of February. The play is adapted from the book by Fyodor Dostoevsky, and is one of the few stories by a Russian author which has acquired popularity in this country. Dramatic and intense situations in the story open up wide possibilities for the screen.

Briefly it is a tale of a young Russian student, who becomes a radical and is compelled to flee to the United States. Here, again confronted with forces of oppression and injustice, he, in a moment or aberration, commits a crime in order to get money to give to the poor. Love of a girl brings his mind to normal state, and he is persuaded to give himself up to the authorities.

The producers announce no expense has been spared in the production. The Russian atmosphere in the early scenes is said to be reproduced with fidelity. A number of spirited mob scenes lend tenseness to the play.

Mr. Caine, as the young student, is heralded as giving a finished characterization. The supporting cast includes such players as Marguerite Courtot and Sidney Bracy. The production was directed by Lawrence McGill.

Picture Progress Is Made Elaborate

With the beginning of its third year of existence, Picture Progress, the pictorial magazine issued monthly by Paramount Pictures Corporation in the interest of the productions of the Famous Players, Lasky, Morosco and Pallas, and the hundreds of stars connected therewith, is far more elaborate and beautiful, and contains a greater number of stories of universal interest than ever before. The magazine is edited by Harry I. Day.

The cover of the magazine is devoted to an individualistic portrait of Marguerite Clark, the design being in the colors, red and black, and is particularly timely by reason of the hits Miss Clark has recently made in the Famous Players production of "Snow White," adapted from the fairy story by the Brothers Grimm, and also the production of "Miss George Washington," which two photoplays have greatly enhanced the popularity of the star.

Ida Darling Gleams in $5,000 Coat

One of the features of George M. Cohan's first photoplay, to be released by Artcraft Pictures, will be the remarkable wardrobe worn by Ida Darling, who has just been engaged to portray the role of the wealthy Mrs. Gerard. Through the courtesy of C. C. Shayne and Company, the well-known New York furriers, Miss Darling will disclose to feminine followers of the screen many interesting displays in the way of the very latest and costly furs, including a $5,000 cloak just imported from Russia.

The Ninth Episode of Vitagraph's "The Secret Kingdom" Introduces Scenes of a Weird and Mystic Sort

Nat Goodwin Organizes $350,000 Company

The first large film corporation ever organized under the blue sky laws of the state of Wisconsin, which practically prohibit "stock promotion" propositions, will be incorporated this week with a capital of $350,000.

The organization is known as the Nat Goodwin Film Company, and it has as one of its principal stockholders, the actor whose name it bears. The company will produce plays in which Mr. Goodwin is featured, and is said to have him under a five year contract. According to the present plans, the first production will be under way within the next month. Three to five-reel plays will be produced and marketed under the state right plan.

The organization of this new company is the result of negotiations which have been carried on for some time between Levi Pollard, one of the incorporators of the new company, and a well-known mining man, and Mr. Goodwin.

The studio of the new company will be located at San Juanita, Cal. The home offices will be at 1109-1110 Wells Building. The Press Publicity Company of Milwaukee has taken charge of the publicity.

The incorporators are all well-known Wisconsin men, with the exception of Mr. Goodwin. The board of directors and incorporators are: Henry E. Winkler, Frank Saxe and Levi Pollard of Milwaukee, and Mr. Goodwin. Former Governor Francis E. McGovern is also on the board of directors as well as acting as attorney for the corporation. It was under Governor McGovern's administration that the blue sky laws, under which this new company is organized, were placed on the statute books.

Anita Stewart Voted First by Urbana Patrons

Anita Stewart has been placed in the front rank by patrons of the Colonial theatre, Urbana, Illinois. "The Suspect" was put on for one night on January 3, and the house was packed. Regular admission was charged, but many patrons stated they would have been willing to pay extra to see her on the screen.

Oriental Story with Native Actors Is "U" Feature

A STORY written by a Chinese, and enacted entirely by Chinese is the novelty Universal release "The War of the Tongs" shortly to be shown.

The picture is said to give an insight into Oriental life impossible to obtain had the actors been Americans. Inside workings of the famous Chinese tongs are shown. The entire cast, even to extras, are native Chinese. The leading roles were taken by members of the Imperial Chinese Players. The only American touch about the feature is American direction. Every feature is Chinese.

Intimate views of Chinese home life in America are promised. In addition the celebrated Chinese lottery which is shrouded in much mystery is exposed, as are the methods of the tongs. A secret meeting of a warring tong, with the strange rites performed by the members, has been photographed.

One of the many big scenes takes place in a Chinese gambling house. More than 100 Chinese were used in this scene, and all forms of chances, as played by the Orientals, is shown in the exact way it is done in their own country. Besides these scenes which were made in America there are many other interesting scenes which were taken in China.

The story revolves around a Chinese boy, Wong Wing who loves Suey Lee, the daughter of his employer. Chin Ting, a tong leader wants to marry Suey, but her father agrees that if Wong can raise the dowry he can marry his daughter. This arouses the enemy of Chin Ting, as Wong is a member of a rival tong. The conflict of desires of the powerful Chinese and his youthful rival brings about a battle of the tongs. There is depicted a realistis tong battle, and the climax of the drama is surprising.

Drink Evil Is Subject of Next Walthall Release

"BURNING the Candle," a powerful exposition of a man's fight with drink, will be Henry B. Walthall's next Essanay feature. Preliminary scenes are now being filmed on the Gulf Coast near New Orleans. The picture is to be released March 18 through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay service.

The story briefly is of a young Southerner, reared in ignorance of the saloon, who obtained a position in a New York cotton broker's office. His introduction to the cafe cocktail marks the beginning of a headlong downward plunge resulting in the loss of his bride's affection and the wrecking of his home. Redemption is finally brought about by the strong love of his wife.

Mary Charleson, who portrayed the role of the little nurse in Walthall's great drug feature, "The Truant Soul," again is seen as his leading woman in "Burning the Candle." Harry Beaumont is directing the production.

The other features are in the process of preparation by Essanay for near-future release. These are "The Trufflers," presenting Nell Craig in a drama of Bohemian life, and "On Trial," adapted from the Cohan and Harris stage hit of that title.

Pathe Cartoons Joy-Producers

Development of its short reel program to keep pace with its big features and serials is an important part of Pathe's 1917 plans. The arrangement by which all International films are released by Pathe means in addition to a strengthening of the News Film, the entrance into the Pathe Program of many of the most celebrated newspaper cartoonists in the world. The work of the majority of these famous artists is now appearing in the International's animated cartoons, released through Pathe, as part of a split reel cartoon and scenic.

Alternating weekly at the present time are the "Happy Hooligan" cartoons by F. Opper; "Bringing Up Father," by George McManus; "Jerry on the Job," by Walt Hoban; "Krazy Kat" by George Herriman; the famous "Joys and Glooms" by Tom Powers, and the Katzenjammer Kids.

The cartoons of T. A. Dorgan (Tad) will also appear later in animated form.

Scenes, Violet Mersereau in Fascinating Bluebird, "The Boy Girl"; Center, Ruth Stonehouse in "The Saintly Sinner," Bluebird

Paramount Features Are Re-Booking Well

COINCIDENTAL with the beginning of the New Year exhibitors from every section of New York State and New York City are reported to have signed contracts with the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company for extra days on Paramount pictures. The trend toward re-booking pictures previously run has been especially strong, and many exhibitors have arranged for one extra booking a week for many weeks in advance, playing a picture on the same day each week.

The Webster theatre in the Bronx, New York City, is celebrating the week of January 15 by a big Paramount week, booking extra pictures.

The Palace theatre in Schenectady, New York, operated by Max Spigel of New York City, has arranged for one extra Paramount picture per week for six weeks in the future, beginning January 7.

The Windsor theatre, at Third avenue and Fiftieth street, New York City, which is not a regular Paramount house, has just signed for six Pre-Paramount pictures to be run one a week for six weeks.

Even the smaller suburban towns of New York are entering into the grand rush for old pictures, and the Auditorium theatre in Irvington has booked four extra pictures, to be played within a period of two weeks, two of these to be played for two days each.

Similar conditions prevail upstate, exhibitors by the score making demand on exchange offices for extra Paramounts, and re-booking pictures which have scored in the past.

Adolph Klauber's Expert Aid for Goldwyn Pictures

ADOLPH KLAUBER, for several years identified with Selwyn and Company, is the latest personality enlisted for service in behalf of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. His will be the difficult task of engaging the multitude of players—principals and lesser screen lights, who will lend their efforts toward making Goldwyn Pictures distinctive.

For his task of selection Mr. Klauber is singularly fitted. In the main he has been responsible for the excellence of the artists engaged for the roles of productions under the Selwyn banner the past few years.

Prior to directly identifying himself with the business of the theater, Mr. Klauber has carved an enviable name for himself as dramatic critic of the New York Times. He brought to the theatre the sense of appraisal and judgment of values inculcated by his newspaper experience.

Mr. Klauber comes to the Goldwyn banner with his intent practically the same as when he entered the theatre. It is a notable fact that screen plays are ofttimes marred by crudities and inaccuracies, and the new casting director lays this in great part to unfittedness on the part of minor "actors" hastily engaged. It is toward the prevention of such a fault in Goldwyn Pictures that he will first devote himself.

Perret Does Quick Work

Leonce Perret, the French director who recently arrived in this country to make his first American feature picture, is advancing rapidly with the production of Robert Warwick's second Selznick picture, an adaptation of E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, "The Court of St. Simon."

"The rapidity with which the former Director General of the Gaumont Company of Paris is proceeding with his work indicates that the picture will be finished in record time," said Harry Rapf, president of the Robert Warwick Film Corporation.

The story of "The Court of St. Simon" is particularly well adapted to Director Perret's training, the greater part of the scenes being laid in France. It is one of Mr. Oppenheim's most popular novels and the central character will offer Mr. Warwick a splendid role for the screen. The scenario is being completed by Frederick Chapin, who was recently engaged as scenario editor for all the Selznick companies, and work on the production is expected to start next week.

Reality Comes High in Filming "The Easiest Way"

Expense is a forgotten word so far as the Selznick production of "The Easiest Way," Clara Kimball Young's production is concerned, according to the producers.

Evidence of the style in which Director Capellani is putting on "The Easiest Way" was given last week when the Garden theatre was rented for three days and an entire musical comedy company engaged to present the stage scenes that are an essential part of the story.

For the work at the Garden theatre the director actually duplicated some of the scenes in a leading musical comedy success. Thirty cabaret girls from the Strand Roof and fifteen of the prettiest members of one of the big New York choruses provided the animated background before which Miss Young enacted the role of the musical comedy star. Franco's orchestra from the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, with twenty-five pieces, supplied the music and special settings were erected representing a Spanish village. The back of the stage and the dressing rooms were also utilized to present a perfect atmosphere for the "off the stage" scenes in the story.

Religious Subject Draws Box-Office Returns

That Pathe's "The Life of Our Saviour" is a feature possessing remarkable drawing power is attested by many letters from exhibitors who have played it to capacity business.

Fred C. Wright, the manager of the Colonial theatre of Hagerstown, Md., found that this seven-part production in Pathe color made an unequalled attraction and writes as follows:

"We experienced wonderful success in presenting 'The Life of Our Saviour.' At first we thought that this picture would not draw owing to its being a strictly religious subject, but all our doubts vanished when an hour before our doors were opened our lobby was packed to overflowing. Without exaggeration every available seat, steps and standing room was occupied in less than twenty minutes and over 1,500 people turned away."

IN THE STATE RIGHTS FIELD

"Feature Clubs" Bring Big Films to Small Towns

THE Hy-Art Masterplays Company, of Washington, D. C., has been successful in offering a unique proposition in the towns which are too small to justify the exhibitor in paying the customary $50 a day rental price.

The Hy-Arts company of which George R. Mayo is general manager, has induced many small exhibitors to form "Feature Clubs." The exhibitor who undertakes forming a Feature Club is provided with the necessary membership blanks for securing 300 members.

This plan has enabled the Hy-Arts Company to provide many small towns with features which would otherwise have been inaccessible.

The exhibitors in some cases have allowed the patrons to vote upon the picture which shall be shown next. In this way, the exhibitor and his patrons are brought into close personal contact, a relation which can only result in better business.

Backer Advocates Advertising

Only features of undoubted merit and box office value will be handled by the Mammoth Film Corporation, according to Franklyn E. Backer president, and one of the discriminating state right buyers for the East.

As a former exhibitor Mr. Backer feels he is qualified to judge what will score for the exhibitors and please their patrons. He intends to restrict his buying to features which will sell readily at a minimum price of one hundred dollars a day, and will exercise all care in his selections.

Blame for failure on the part of many exhibitors to secure good returns from many superior pictures is placed by Mr. Backer on the fact that unusual advertising, which he believes encourages the public to pay an increased admission price, has been neglected.

In order to provide his customers with the best possible service for his product, the Mammoth executive has created a publicity department to boost his films after they have reached the exhibitor.

Royer and Wheeler Organize Exchange in Pittsburgh

Howard Royer and Edward Wheeler have opened an exchange under the name of The American Standard Film Service Company, at 238 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh, for the distribution of the comedy serial, "Tom and Jerry."

This film consists of four episodes of two reels each and features the Essanay comedienne, Dolores Castinelli.

The American Standard Film Service announces a weekly releasing schedule of two reels, consisting either of two comedies or a comedy and a travelogue.

Sheriott Corporation Formed in Chicago

First Release to Be "The Black Stork," with Dr. Haiselden in the Leading Role—Offices in New York

SEVERAL of the most prominent figures in the motion picture industry in the Middle West have organized the Sheriott Pictures Corporation for the purpose of purchasing country and world rights on pictures made by independent producers. It is the plan of the incorporators of the company to give their purchasers advertising campaigns similar to those now conducted by the largest companies in the business and to furnish paper second to none.

The Sheriott Pictures Corporation already has opened offices in New York City and in Chicago. The New York office is at 220 West Forty-second street, and is in charge of M. E. Mazur, general manager of the corporation. The Chicago office is at 203 Schiller Building, and is being conducted by Nat S. Stronge, until recently business manager of the corporation that publishes Motography. Mr. Stronge is advertising and publicity manager for the corporation.

The first purchase by the new corporation is the five-reel photoplay "The Black Stork" in Which Dr. Harry J. Haiselden, the Chicago surgeon, takes the leading part.

"The Black Stork" is that bird of ill omen which leaves crippled, deformed babies at the homes all over the world in place of good healthy babies left by the white stork when he makes his visits.

The scenario for "The Black Stork" was written by Jack Lait, the short story writer who followed the Bollinger case very closely. Dr. Haiselden is supported by a cast consisting of Hamilton Revele, Elsie Esmond, Jane Fearnly, Henry Bergman, Allan Murnane, Edgar Davenport and George Moss.

"I have but one ambition regarding this photoplay" said Dr. Haiselden, "I desire to hammer home to the authorities of the United States that human lives are of more value than the lives of animals. A death rate of ten per cent. among Uncle Sam's pigs would call for an appropriation of one million dollars. Last year Uncle Sam appropriated $300,000 to stop citrus canker on fruit trees and at the same time Uncle Sam gave $65,000 to better condition of the babies.

"I believe with W. E. D. Stokes, of New York City that we should breed the best of humans, but I would eliminate, as fast as possible, the malformed undesirable babies, and in this way grow into a nation of healthy giants. I tell you the hope of the nation is perfect babies.

"I know that I will be condemned by a large part of the medical profession for taking the leading part in this play, but I care nothing for the condemnation so long as I drive home the truth. This photoplay, will no doubt cause many broken engagements and many aching hearts, but even so every parent, every young man, every young woman anticipating marriage, should see it. They will go home and dream of it and will return to see it again."

State Right Sale for "Warning"

R. M. Savini, general manager, Unity and United Film Service, Atlanta branch has just closed a contract with the Photo Drama Company of New York, whereby he has secured the state rights of the Rev. C. H. Parkhurst's drama of humanity, entitled "Warning."

Mr. Savini will control the following states: North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana.

His intentions are to put this feature out as a road production playing strictly on a percentage basis.

Hall Caine's Film by State Rights

W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, has retained E. J. O'Donnell, formerly with Sherman-Elliott, to handle the sales exploitation of "The Deemster," by Hall Caine, and other superlative productions which will be state righted.

Mr. O'Donnell is well known in the state rights field, and plans launching an intensive sales campaign on "The Deemster."

Consolidated Opens Branch in Los Angeles

The Consolidated Film Corporation, which has conducted an independent exchange at San Francisco for the past several months, is opening a branch exchange in Los Angeles, which will be located at 818 South Olive street (Film Row). This company was organized several months ago by Marion Kohn of San Francisco, who is president.

George B. Epstein, a Los Angeles merchant and bank director, is the other member of the firm. The corporation is capitalized at $50,000, the stock for all of which has been subscribed for.

The Consolidated is handling the releases of the Educational Film Corporation, and have been very successful with the booking of "Driftwood" the Raver production, which they purchased for this district.

"Glory" Goes to Europe

The rights for the United Kingdom on "Glory" the latest release of the Unity Sales Corporation have just been purchased by Joseph Simmons, the well-known dealer in foreign rights.

San Francisco Society Turned Out in Force for the Premiere of "Patria" in the Palace Hotel

D. S. Schayer Leaves Notable for State Rights

D. S. SCHAYER, who has been connected with the head office of the Notable Feature Film Company, Salt Lake, for the past two years, has severed his connection with this concern to enter the state rights field. By way of a starter he has bought "Protect Your Daughters" and "Seeing New York," Post Mason's four-reeler, and is in the market for additional film. The concern Mr. Schayer heads is to be called The State Right Feature Film Company, and will embrace the inter-mountain states of Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana and New Mexico.

"Protect Your Daughters" is now being booked and shown in Utah, and under the novel and compelling advertising stunts is making a clean-up.

Mr. Schayer is now working on "The Trip to New York." A local man has written a good lecture to accompany the film and the printers are getting out some rubber-neck wagon cut-outs together with railroad tickets for throwaways. In addition signs are being made to transform the front of the average theatre into a railroad depot while caps and bands have been ordered for the doorman and ushers who are to be uniformed as train crews and depot assistants.

To still further the illusion the different aisles are to be designated as Track 1, Track 2, etc., and the ushers carrying train lanterns will give the "high ball" to signal the "passengers" to their seats. Incidentally the various organizations, schools and clubs in each town are to be worked to the limit through mailing lists and unique heralds and general appeal.

Mr. Schayer is the second film man to leave the Notable Feature Film Company within the past six months to enter the state right field in that territory, the other being David Levitt, who is now associated with the Desert Film Company, which is handling "The Argonauts" and several other big productions.

Queen Service Makes Good

The Queen Feature Service, of Birmingham, Alabama, while less than one year old, is taking a firm hold in the South. This service is handling all of the Ivan productions, some of the Moss pictures as well as a great many independent releases. One feature a week is the releasing schedule, aside from specials. Christie comedies are also handled.

"Witching Hour" in New York

The Rogson Film Company, Inc., Louis T. Rogers, president, 15 West Swan street, Buffalo, N. Y., and 218 West 42nd street, New York, has arranged with the Lenox Film Corporation to lease their special feature "The Witching Hour" by Augustus Thomas, with C. Aubrey Smith, Marie Shotwell, Robert Conness and Jack Sherrill, for New York State, exclusive of Greater New York.

Another War Picture to Be Released

After a lapse of nearly a year the Eiko Film Company has again succeeded in securing from Germany 10,000 feet of war pictures taken along the battle fronts of the Central Powers in Italy, Russian Poland and Roumania. The scenes depicted show many remarkable achievements accomplished by the Germans and Austrians.

These pictures have been assembled into seven reels and represent the best of the 10,000 feet which arrived in New York in December last. They will be released shortly under the title "On the Austro-German Battlefronts." They have been woven into story form based on actual events that have transpired in the last few months, and are in a sense a sequel to their last production "Germany on the Firing Line," which was so well received, wherever shown.

"Crisis" Opens in Louisville

The Big Feature Rights Corporation, with Colonel Fred Levy at its head, opened with William N. Selig's "The Crisis" at the Mary Anderson theatre, Louisville, Ky., on January 22. The theatre was crowded and the S. R. O. sign has been out for every succeeding performance.

The Louisville Herald says: "Everyone is certain to enjoy 'The Crisis' for it tells a story that is firmly fixed in the heart of every true American. War, it neither glorifies or disdains, and those who have become tired of 'horrors of war' films may be certain that 'The Crisis' is not a propaganda story."

The Louisville Journal says: "Mr. Selig has worked in a broad and picturesque background of history. The Lincoln-Douglas debates and the political campaigns of the 60s are vividly reproduced."

Randolph in Charge of Casino in Detroit

The Casino Feature Film Company, 2206 Dime Bank Building, Detroit, Michigan, has for its Manager C. C. Randolph, one of the best known men in the state, and formerly manager of one of the Detroit exchanges.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

Harry Rathner, of the Supreme Feature Film Company, Minneapolis, arrived in town on a business trip last week, making his headquarters with Mr. Cobe of the Unity Sales Corporation.

Frank L. Browne, manager of the Allston theatre, Allston, Mass., was in New York last week.

Isidore Feibleman, legal representative and Myer Efroymson treasurer of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, visited the home offices of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, last week and were guests at the Vitagraph studio.

E. E. Fulton, of Chicago, is a New York visitor.

JUST FOR FUN

By LONGACRE

SOL LESSER and Harold Edel have both announced the acquisition of new features. Sol's weighed eight pounds when Mrs. Lesser presented it to him, and Harold's weighed eight, too. Just for fun see whether you can guess the answers.

T. E. LETENDRE has moved his publicity office to the Times Building, suite 1009.

A GENTLEMAN in Fox's "Honor System" ferociously bites off the top of a beer bottle in one of the scenes. Have you ever seen this done, asks the press agent? Well no, to be frank, we haven't, but we've seen a cigar maltreated thusly at times.

MONROE SALISBURY is one of the actors who prefers to act picture by picture rather than hold a permanent position—press agent. This preference ought to start a new form of publicity that should become popular among some of our best people after they have "severed connections."

ON June 28, 1918, "The Honor System" will celebrate its thousandth performance in New York City, inasmuch as this William Fox picture has the premier of its two-a-day showings five hundred days earlier—Press Agent. Call this optimism if you want, but suppose all the theatres should burn down before that date.

THE recent editorial (?) outburst of L'Enfant Terrible of trade journals calls to mind the dignity of the language employed by both parties in the last presidental campaign. The very idea of intruding the invectives of national politics into this business of gentlemen!

THE extreme dull feeling that existed in film circles last week has finally been accounted for. No company announced a forthcoming picturization of "Snow White."

AT a late hour on press day Al Christie and the Horkheimer Brothers were still tied for first honors as Pacific Coast connoisseurs of feminine beauty.

We're Sick

"FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN and Beverly Bayne, co-stars in Metro wonderplays and special feature films, each write one letter a day to some sick child in a hospital. It is sometimes difficult to crowd it into the work of a busy day—and all their days are busy—but the two stars believe it repays them in happiness given and received."

MARY MILES MINTER always shampoos her hair in champagne to heighten the golden lights, says no less an authority than Terry Ramsaye. Evidently it has the same effect on the exterior of the skull as it has on the interior.

LEANDER RICHARDSON has been engaged in a one-round go with Battling Bronchitis, which accounts for his absence from circles pertaining to the fine art of motion picture press agenting during the last week. We hope Leander got all the better of the argument.

"MABEL TALIAFERRO, star in Metro wonderplays, frequently receives letters from students and college professors, consulting her on matters pertaining to Irish literature and the Celtic Renaissance. Miss Taliaferro's acquaintance with Lady Gregory, William Butler Yeats, and other present-day literary lights of Ireland gives her a first-hand knowledge of artistic affairs not yet recorded in books."

EVEN police departments are susceptible to the wiles of the motion picture actress, it might seem. Edna Mayo, having a warm spot in her heart for mistreated horsies, doggies and kitties, goes about Chicago protecting these creatures from brutal man. In the past she was in the habit of sending in a report to the green-lighted department, signed just E. Mayo. Then, when the annual clearing sale, or whatever it is that police headquarters have, came around the proper official wrote to Mr. E. Mayo, asking "him" to stop in and get a commission at any odd moment, and so Edna went. The official gasped with surprise and recognition, he being, as it were, an ardent patron of the silent drama. But he didn't renig; no indeed, so now its "Officer" Edna Mayo. Some one please write a scenario entitled "The Darling of the Chicago Police."

SPEAKING of Darlings, calls to mind the terrible tragedy of our contemporary wit, H. H. Van Loan, who is mentioned briefly in another part of this page of paroxysms.

Handsome Herbert, the publicity loather, is now singing a song which begins with the line—"The well laid plans of mice and men——"

The chief objection against Herb seems to be that the London Board of Trade was afraid he might take money out of the country.

Those of us who know Herbert's tendencies to waste money, especially in giving banquets to members of the estimable press, can sympathize with the Board of Trade.

The Longacre Lampoon

All the News That Fits, We Print Longacre Square, N. Y., February 10, 1917

EDITORIAL

Whether or not Theda Bara in her new contract with William Fox signed away her right to the light of day makes little difference. If an agreement was inserted that she keep away from motion picture balls and the stages of picture theatres it would have been a fine idea. The idea of stars showing themselves off before the public is quite all wrong. The popularity of a player stands a much better chance of remaining a big thing if he or she keeps as much in seclusion as possible. Look over the list of prominent stage stars, pick out the favorites and from among those pick out the ones who go bally-hooing around among the general public, displaying themselves to their admirers. You won't find many. Has Maude Adams ever graced a public ball room? Has John Drew ever touted his talents from the house tops? The answer is that the very mystery that surrounds a player who stays away from the public gaze counts much more forcefully than a few "I thank you" and "It is a great pleasure to be with you tonight" phrases delivered from a platform. The motion picture fanatic after seeing his favorites in the flesh and blood is more inclined to recall the cut of the suit or gown worn when he saw them last when he next sees them on the screen, instead of paying attention to the picture or the acting of the players. When there is a medium for entertainment that creates such an illusion as the screen it seems a shame to spoil it all by these "Personal Appearances."

LOCAL NEWS

—Double H. Van Loan fooled all his friends by staying in this city instead of sailing for Eng. of recent date as was his previous plan. He will not go at all is the present news.

—In Bill Hart's last picture in which he appeared in the novel role of a bad man, he displayed names of all his murdered friends in a note book. Several of these were entitled Smith. Bill must be starting a campaign against the w. k. reviewers of this bus.

—Lynde Denig, contrary to all reports to the contrary, has not resigned his right as handsome leader of the w. k. reviewers.

—Doug Fairbanks was seen debutting from the Lambs Club last wk. in a coat of emerald hue.

—A. H. Shirk has printed Pete Schmid's request for a real meeting of the Apostles of Apicius, with which we agree as no others.

—Ed Mullen told as something about Ben Grimm which we refuse to print, as the p. o. rules have to be regarded.

—The p. a's. of the bus had their usual meeting at Keen's last wk. on the upper floor. A waiter was observed going upstairs with one (1) glass of beer.

—Albany was the goal of many from here last wk.

—Rumor has it that E. Dick Schayer is going into business in Knoxville, Tenn., in partnership with Geo. N. Shorey of that place and N. York.

—News are rather scarce this wk.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Exchangeman Lightens Days in "The Pen"

Kraupa, Monarch, Shows Pictures Every Saturday to Convicts, Thus Making "Rock Breaking" Easier

THE prisoners in the Eastern Penitentiary, situated in Philadelphia, are being entertained every Saturday afternoon through the efforts of Edward Kraupa, proprietor of the Monarch Film Exchange of Philadelphia. Mr. Kraupa not only conceived the idea but got the permission of the prison authorities to the plan and gives his services free.

Prominent producers lend the films gratis. Popular new releases are shown, usually five reelers. The projection machine was donated by Lewis M. Swaab, 1227 Vine Street, Philadelphia. A long term prisoner was taught to operate it.

Mr. Kraupa also gives weekly free picture shows of a similar character to the interned German sailors at League Island and to the Orphans at the Jewish Foster home.

A blaze in the projection room of the Pathé exchange, Philadelphia, destroyed a print of "The Image Maker," last week. No other damage was done, and Manager Osborne was able to get another print from New York in time for the release date set for that territory, January 21.

Since the advent of M. Milder as manager, things have been humming in the Selznick, Philadelphia Exchange. Mr. Milder was connected with the General Film Company for some years, being formerly in the Philadelphia branch, but more recently in the Cleveland office, going from there to the Quaker City.

J. M. Flynn, for a year connected with the Philadelphia World Exchange, is now assistant manager to Mr. Milder.

The contract for special decorations for its new home has been given to the McNamee Company by W. E. Smith, president of Famous Players Exchange in Philadelphia. The move will be made in a few weeks. Five times the space of its present quarters will be available in the new building. The entire office furniture will be in massive mahogany of unique design.

Leon Netter is spending nearly all his time in New York now looking over the State rights field for Masterpiece Film Attractions in the East.

The chain of branch offices he has established will soon meet those of Sol Lesser working from the West Coast.

T. G. Flynn has been appointed manager of the Philadelphia Exchange, coming here from the New York Masterpiece office.

Not a Single Credit Memo. for the Week

J. A. Steinson, manager of the New Orleans exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, has succeeded in breaking one record. The feat is really unusual. For a week ending January 13, Mr. Steinson did not have to issue a single credit memorandum. Usually any film exchange will make a sufficient number of clerical errors in billing, shipping, booking, or what not to swell the number of credit memos issued to approximately the same volume as the bills themselves.

Mr. Steinson's record is so remarkable that Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, on hearing of the occurrence, wrote him:

"It is indeed a pleasure to read that for the entire week just closed you did not issue a single credit from your office, and that there was no mis-shipment or delinquent shipment of any sort. We hope you can keep up this admirable record. It is an indication of the service you are rendering the exhibitor."

Mutual Philadelphia Shift

Burt King, formerly of the General Film in the South, has been appointed branch manager of the Mutual's Wilkes-Barre office, succeeding Wm. H. Rippard, who has been transferred to the Mutual's Philadelphia exchange.

N. E. Savini Joins Unity

N. E. Savini has resigned his position with the George Kleine offices of New Orleans, La., to accept the management of the Unity Film Service there.

Besides handling "The Yellow Menace" serial and other state right productions, Mr. Savini has just closed a contract whereby he will handle "The Crimson Stain Mystery" in the Louisiana territory.

Mr. Savini has several lines out to handle other big productions besides the above mentioned, which he will announce shortly. He is working under the personal direction of his brother, R. M. Savini, who is general manager of the Unity and United Film Services in the South, with his headquarters in Atlanta.

Mr. Savini has been in the exchange end of the film business for the past four years, and numbers many friends among the exhibitors.

Circular Letter for Results

Exchange managers in Middle Western cities find it pays to take the telephone or the city directory of small towns where exhibitors are complaining their pictures are not a success, and mailing a letter to every woman and a whole lot of men in those towns, telling something about the picture and inviting them to go see it. Frequently this causes a flood of patronage to the theatre, and the exhibitor is at a loss to explain it until someone tells him.

Some Parcel Post Delivery Trouble

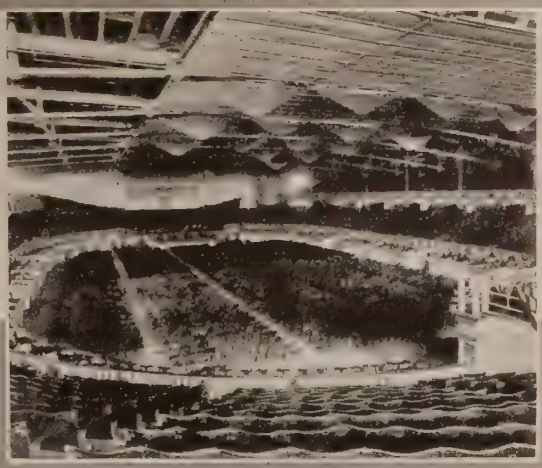
Exhibitors handling Bluebird films in the Omaha territory have been notified by J. H. Calvert of the Omaha exchange that he will not permit the returning of films by parcel post unless a special delivery stamp is placed on the package. A number of exhibitors have taken advantage of the new law, but the ordinary stamps cause a valuable delay of hours.

Even with special delivery stamps the service is unsatisfactory at present and will remain that way until the post office department arranges a transfer system at the depot, similar to that now maintained by the express companies whereby a film is taken from one train and immediately transferred to another. With a special delivery stamp on it the film box must first be taken to the post office, then delivered by messenger, making it a matter of hours instead of minutes in making the transfer. This has resulted in scores of substitutions being necessary by the Omaha exchanges and a change of policy to ensure rapid transportation is urgently needed.

Benefit for Former Boston "U" Manager

The Film Exchange Managers' Association of New England will tender a benefit to J. A. Eslow, former manager of the New England Universal film exchange, at the Colonial theatre, Boston, Sunday evening, February 4. Mr. Eslow has had a paralytic shock, which has left him helpless, and is now at his sister's home in Michigan. Mr. Eslow had just started upon his new duties as western manager for Unicorn when taken ill.

Edward Farrell, manager of the Pathe exchange, Boston, is managing the benefit, at which vaudeville acts from the leading local theatres will appear. It is also hoped that several film stars will come over from New York City for the occasion.



Gulick Merges International-Pathe Branches

Amalgamation of International branch offices with those of Pathe in Washington, Atlanta and Boston has recently been completed by Earl Gulick of the International.

While in Boston Mr. Gulick took personal charge of the International interests in the suit brought by Boston exhibitors for the privilege of showing the photoplay serial "Patria" in which Mrs. Vernon Castle is the star. A prominent figure in the court room at Boston during the trial was Miss Dorothy Green, who plays the part of Fanny Adair in "Patria." After the court proceedings had been concluded, Miss Green appeared at the Keith theatres in Boston where despite a heavy cold, she made speeches and was given a cordial reception by large audiences.

Frank L. Newman, Manager of the Royal and Regent Theatres, Kansas City, Who Managed the Showing of "Snow White" at Convention Hall

Convention Hall, Kansas City

A. D. Flintom, Manager of the Paramount Exchange at Kansas City Who Instituted the Showing Which 500,000 Attended

Kleine Toronto Branch Moves

Growing business, due to increased popularity of Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay features, has forced the "Keys" service branch office at Toronto, Ont., to give up its offices at 96 Bay street for more commodious quarters at 39 Adelaide street, West. The new location offers facilities which will permit Manager Cooper to continue painstaking service to Canadian exhibitors in spite of greatly increased volume of business.

The new offices include a well-equipped projection room, where exhibitors and newspaper men may view the forthcoming Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay releases.

Wettstein with Art Dramas

Ralph A. Wettstein, formerly with the Triangle Film Company, having represented this company in Wisconsin practically since its organization, has gone over to the Arts Drama Service, and has established his office at 600 Caswell Block, Milwaukee. He is already busy with the bookings on "The Witching Hour," having placed this picture for a run at the Merrill theatre in the near future. Mr. Wettstein was formerly a producer of vaudeville acts, having at one time had a number touring the country.

McClure Mid-Western Office Opened

Chicago offices for McClure Pictures have been opened in the Mallers Building, 5 South Wabash avenue. C. B. Price, western division manager, has appointed T. C. Montgomery and J. A. Davidson, Chicago representatives. Both are well-known to motion picture exhibitors, and have been connected with the industry in various capacities for years.

Montgomery Moves Headquarters

M. M. Montgomery, formerly manager of the Indianapolis World office, has recently become manager of the Kansas City office. Richard Robertson, formerly manager of the Kansas City office, resigned his position to engage in another enterprise in Kansas City which, according to Mr. Robinson, is also in the motion picture line.

Exchangemen, Exhibitors and Operators as One

FOR sometime there has been an active movement in Canada for the formation of a national association to include the exchangemen, exhibitors and operators.

To further this idea, the publicity service department of the Canadian Universal Film Company of Toronto, is conducting a campaign in its house organ, The Bulletin, for a Canadian film directory. Coupons are printed in the magazine which show the name and address of the members of the industry, their occupation, birthplace, experience, etc., and when all this data is in and collected, it will be published in the shape of a list, which will be available for reference to all manufacturers, and employers of skilled labor, as far as the moving picture industry is concerned.

Moreover, it will present a splendid list upon which to do the work as far as the national organization is concerned.

When interviwed on the subject, W. A. Bach of the Department stated that the results already attained were well up to his expectations and that he had already been in communication with the various operators unions and exchanges and all had promised their support. This will be the first complete list of the Canadian industry ever made.

Malcolm in Charge of McClure

T. C. Malcolm, former Los Angeles exchange man who for a long time was manager of the General exchange in Los Angeles, has been sent to the coast by McClure Pictures to serve as coast representative. While en route from New York he stopped at Denver and there appointed Mr. Glasser, formerly affiliated with the Mutual and Metro exchanges, as manager.

At Salt Lake F. A. Tipton, up to the present time manager of the Salt Lake Mutual exchange, was employed to take charge of the McClure Pictures interest there. Mr. Malcolm will have his permanent office in Los Angeles and work in connection with the local Triangle exchange, through which releasing organization McClure Pictures will be rented to the theatres.

Kleine Managers Transferred

J. P. Gruwell has been appointed manager of the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay branch office at Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. Gruwell has been identified with the Kansas City branch of the "Keys" service for some time, and is well equipped in experience and ability to give splendid service to the exhibitors of the Cincinnati territory. He succeeds Harry Bugie, former Kleine branch manager at Cincinnati, who has been transferred to the Philadelphia office, where Mr. Bugie was stationed before assuming the management of the Ohio office.

Pathe Executives Are Honored

Manager Abeles of Pathe's New York booking office and his assistant, Mr. Hammel, were tendered a surprise party by the employes of that office the other day.

Seats had been secured at the Palace theatre and after the show the party adjourned to a well-known restaurant, where an excellent supper was enjoyed. At the supper table Mr. Abeles was presented with a gold penknife inscribed with the emblems of the Elks and the Masons, of which organizations he is a member. Mr. Hammel was given a handsome cigarette case. The usual speeches were made, in which every one pledged himself to do his best to make 1917 a record year for the rooster.

Vitagraph Increases Sales Force

W. K. Howard, manager of the Minneapolis branch of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, has added C. L. Filkins to his sales force, and now has four road men traveling out of the Minneapolis office. And the results are easily evidenced by the booking reports sent in by Mr. Howard. On "The Secret Kingdom," Greater Vitagraph's new adventure serial, the Minneapolis exchange reports not only great interest among exhibitors, but also heavy bookings.

The new feature releases under the Blue Ribbon brand are taking well, and Mr. Howard reports an unusual activity among the theatres showing Vitagraph releases.

NEWSY REPORTS FROM ALL SECTIONS

Opposition Against Appointment of Oberholtzer

Politics and Bitter Words Mingle in Pennsylvania's Censorship Muddle—New Appointment Not Likely Soon

THE censorship situation is still in the limelight in Philadelphia.

The removal of J. Louis Breitinger by Governor Braumbaugh is a direct result of the fight between the Penrose and Vare factions.

Although the Penrose contingent won in the speakership contest and therefore will control most of the state patronage, they cannot reinstate Breitinger as the censorship board is in the hands of the Governor.

Dr. Ellis Paxon Oberholtzer whom rumor persistently names as the future head of the Board is regarded by most picture men as the most narrow and autocratic member of the present Board. A strong current of opposition has set in against the appointment, which in the opinion of film magnate Stanley V. Mastbaum will cause such a storm as to compel the Governor to change his mind about such an appointment. Mr. Mastbaum also predicts that the Senate would never ratify this appointment. He thinks Breitinger's removal unjust.

Both Oberholtzer and Breitinger have made statements. Dr. Oberholtzer who is a close personal friend of the Governor is quoted as saying the Governor was justified in his removal of the Chief Censor.

Mr. Breitinger whose policy has been not to talk for publication has at last broken his silence and said:

"Oberholtzer's actions are no doubt due to my recalling his assignment to the Pittsburgh office which I had made sometime ago. As his work there only resulted in a petition to the Governor for his removal, I thought he was not capable of handling the situation at that place, at which he became highly incensed and threatened dire results.

The Legislature convenes again on January 22 at which time it is expected the Governor will announce the new Chairman of the Board.

The home and School League of Philadelphia, has adopted a resolution commending the work of Breitinger and urges the Governor to appoint a man in Breitinger's place "who will use the same judgment and careful supervision of the moral tone of the motion pictures of our state."

One Cent Tax on Tickets

Among the amendments to the city charter which the council of Vancouver, B. C., will propose to the British Columbia legislature at its next session is one which will make provision for the levying of a tax on all theatre tickets sold within the city. The matter has been brought to the attention of the council by local women's organizations, which desire the raising of funds in this manner for the purpose of aiding patriotic work in connection with the war.

With a flat tax of one cent on each ticket, it is estimated that the annual revenue from this source would be in the neighborhood of $60,000. A tax of a fixed percentage of the value of the tickets has also been discussed. In any event, power to levy the tax must be secured from the legislature, and the required six weeks' advertising will be undertaken at once.

Safe Film Structure Planned

Erection of a $100,000 structure in Milwaukee for the housing of films is contemplated by Nat. Stone of the Boston store. Construction plans will embody all fireproofing and other safety features possible.

Canadian Soldiers View New War Film

Initial Canadian appearance of Capt. Donald C. Thompson's seven reeler, "War As It Really Is," said to have been filmed on the French front under sanction of General Joffre, was held at the Regent theatre, Toronto, under the auspices of the Toronto Daily Star, the week of January 1.

The feature played to 44,566 paid admissions, a record for the Canadian city. Extra performances daily were necessary. Morning exhibitions were patronized almost exclusively by soldiers, as high military officials recommended the subject as one of educational value.

Regal Films, Limited, are Canadian distributors for the picture. The Hessler Publicity Bureau is handling the exploitation of the film for world rights.

Phila. House Changes Hands

Another theatre for the display of high class motion pictures has been taken over by Stanley V. Mastbaum, managing director of the Stanley Company and its allied organizations in Philadelphia.

Mr. Mastbaum last week sprang a surprise by announcing that in affiliation with Messrs. Sablosky and McGuirk, he had taken control of the Broadway theatre at Broad street and Snyder avenue. The playhouse is one of the handsomest in South Philadelphia, and has won a following by its policy of presenting vaudeville and photoplays. This policy will be followed by the new lessees.

Pioneer Picture Man Dies

O. T. Crawford, moving picture theatre promoter and pioneer film exchangeman of St. Louis, died on January 17, in San Francisco, and was brought to St. Louis for burial. Mr. Crawford was the first man to open an exchange for films in that part of the country.

Scenes from Current Issues of "Reel Life" and the "Mutual Weekly." Left: Niagara Falls. Center: A Young English Bloodhound. Right: The Foundered Battleship "Milwaukee"

Dinner of the Motion Picture Directors' Association Held at the Hotel Astor, New York, on January 16

Signal Buys Majestic, Chattanooga

The Signal Amusement company, Chattanooga, Tenn., operating the Alcazar, Fine Arts, Alhambra, Bonita and Royal Motion Picture Theatres, has, for a consideration of $30,000, bought the assets of the Tennessee Realty and Leasing Company in the Majestic Vaudeville Theatre. The assets include a five-year-lease of the property and certain contracts with vaudeville booking offices.

The Majestic has been successfully operated as a vaudeville house for a number of years. It is understood that the Signal Amusement Company will make extensive improvements on the Majestic. It is further understood that the improvements will include a new front and lobby, with additions to the stage and seating capacity.

Theatre Twice Victimized by Film Thief

Two robberies within a week has resulted in the Universal Film and Supply Company of Oklahoma City to offer a reward of ten dollars for each of six reels made away with. A. B. Momand, manager of the Idion Theatre, at Shawnee, Oklahoma, was the victim of the theft. On Sunday, December 31, and again on Sunday, January 7, cans containing film disappeared from the lobby of the playhouse.

Mr. Momand has offered to pay for the cost of re-issue of the reels, but the exchange is anxious to recover the film without replacing it with new. Detectives have been unable to locate a clue to the perpetrator of the robbery.

Express Company Must Pay Loss

A CASE of considerable importance to the exhibitors of British Columbia has just been decided in the Court of Appeals at Vancouver, confirming a decision rendered in a lower court a short time ago. This judgment establishes the fact that an exhibitor can recover from an express company damages for lost profits, occasioned through the failure of the carrying company to deliver film with customary and reasonable promptness.

The suit just concluded was brought by the Victoria Dominion Theatre Company, Ltd., of which J. R. Muir is president, against the Dominion Express Company. Attorneys for Mr. Muir showed that for the past three years the last boat on each Wednesday and Saturday night, sailing from Vancouver, had carried a consignment of films for the Dominion theatre in Victoria, and while admitting, as contended by the express company, that there were no special instructions to rush the shipment in question, the express company must have been aware of the fact that the films were intended for the Monday show.

Instead of being sent to Victoria, however, they were through a mistake sent eastward, and did not arrive in Victoria until Tuesday, the theatre having been forced to remain closed during Monday afternoon and evening with resultant loss upon which the suit was based.

The theatre company placed their loss through this enforced closing at $194, while the express company claimed that their liability should not exceed $50, which was the stated valuation of the shipment of film in the contract drawn up between the parties.

In an opinion rendered by Chief Justice Macdonald, he stated that the principal question, and one upon which there was no evidence whatever, was whether or not the parties to the contract had considered any such probable loss of profits when the contract was made, but added that the express company must surely have understood the need for urgency. Justice Martin, who concurred, was of the opinion that the express company had proven that it could not be held liable for delay in delivering a casual consignment.

Justice McPhillips called particular attention to the extent to which Canadians are dependent upon the Dominion Express Company for express service, and thought that the very highest form of service should be demanded from it; that any article consigned to it should be immediately forwarded by the first available train or boat.

The amount awarded to the Victoria Dominion Theatre Company was $194, the amount demanded in the original suit.

Jersey Censors Pass "Purity"

The Audrey Munson feature "Purity" was passed without eliminations by the Board of Censors, sitting in Trenton, New Jersey, on January 10. Several members of the Board after viewing the film expressed the opinion that it was a highly artistic and moral production.

Renewed interest is being shown in the picture by exhibitors who had previously hesitated about booking it.

Canadian Troop Film Soon Ready for Release

MOTION pictures showing the Canadian troops in action, and the successful part played by the British "tanks," have been released for exhibition in Canada. These are the official pictures issued by the Canadian War Records Office.

The film concentrates upon the splendid part in the Somme operations played by the troops from Canada in the advance which initiated last summer's operations on the Somme. The Canadians were moved to this section of the Western front in September, 1916, after a year or more in the famous Ypres area. The new film shows the Canucks "going over the top" and their victorious advance under heavy fire.

H. Bastien, proprietor of the Wonderland theatre, Ontario street, East, was found guilty last week of having appropriated and placed on sale, hospital tax tickets already sold once. Bastien was tried in December, his arrest following the conviction of one of his employes who was selling the stolen tickets.

At the time of his arrest the employe had been seen by two plain clothes men taking the tickets in his hand and instead of allowing them to fall in the box, he deliberately placed them on sale again at the box office.

When tried, he claimed that he had run short of tickets and was using a few in that way while his employer was getting more from the nearest theatre, but when the place was searched, the police found a roll of two hundred tickets that had not been touched. The evidence in the case also showed that the last purchase of tickets made by Bastien at the city hall dated back to August.

The employe was found guilty and the license department, where the hospital tax tickets are issued, decided to make a case against the proprietor. The pair will be sentenced shortly.

The Admission Price Situation in Milwaukee

From all indications Milwaukee will soon be an exclusive ten cent picture town. The most recent addition to the ranks of the ten cent houses, has been the Merrill theatre for over a year Milwaukee's one, and only fifteen cent house. When Manager E. C. Bostick arrived in the city to take charge of the house he speedily reduced the admission price to ten cents, and the result has been astounding. From playing to just comfortable houses, the Merrill has been playing to capacity houses all day.

On the opening of Henry Walthall in "The Truant Soul" the Merrill was holding the crowds out at six thirty P. M., the supper show having been a capacity one.

Another house to join the ten cent ranks is Saxe's Orpheum. This house which has been housing features at fifteen and twenty-five cents, recently opened with the Triangle program at ten cents. The Strand theatre which took a fifteen cent flyer with E. H. Sothern has gone back to ten cents.

Manager Landau of the Butterfly long ago put himself on record for an exclusive ten cent house.

The Alhambra played at fifteen cents, and then went back to ten cents. After two weeks at ten cents "Civilization" will be played at twenty-five, fifty and seventy-five cents. This is the first high price picture ever run at the Alhambra, and the results will be watched with interest.

Want Salt Lake Ball in Conjunction with Denver's

There is a movement on foot among Salt Lake motion picture theatre managers and exchangemen to put over a motion picture ball in conjunction with the one proposed by the Denver Screen Club.

As the stars will pass through Salt Lake en route to Denver from Los Angeles, it is believed that they can be induced to stop over and lead the grand march which will probably be held in the auditorium.

Toronto Exhibitors and Exchangemen Co-operate

Widespread publicity given the big Get-Together rally of Motion Picture Exhibitors and Exchangemen, of Toronto, assures a big turnout today and Wednesday.

Posters were spread broadcast urging attendance, and emphasizing the importance of the occasion in which exhibitors and exchangemen were to co-operate for protection and mutual benefit.

The Canadian branch of the Universal publicity department sent out special prospectus dilating on the necessity of attendance and the importance of co-operation for success.

Selig Actor Called by Death

William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, has received news of the death of Matt B. Snyder, who appeared in several of the Selig features, namely "The Crisis" and "The Garden of Allah." Mr. Snyder's death has cast a gloom over all members of the Selig staff, both in Chicago and in Los Angeles, as he was beloved by all who knew him.

Anna Little (Selznick)

"Snow White" Delights Ohio Newsboys

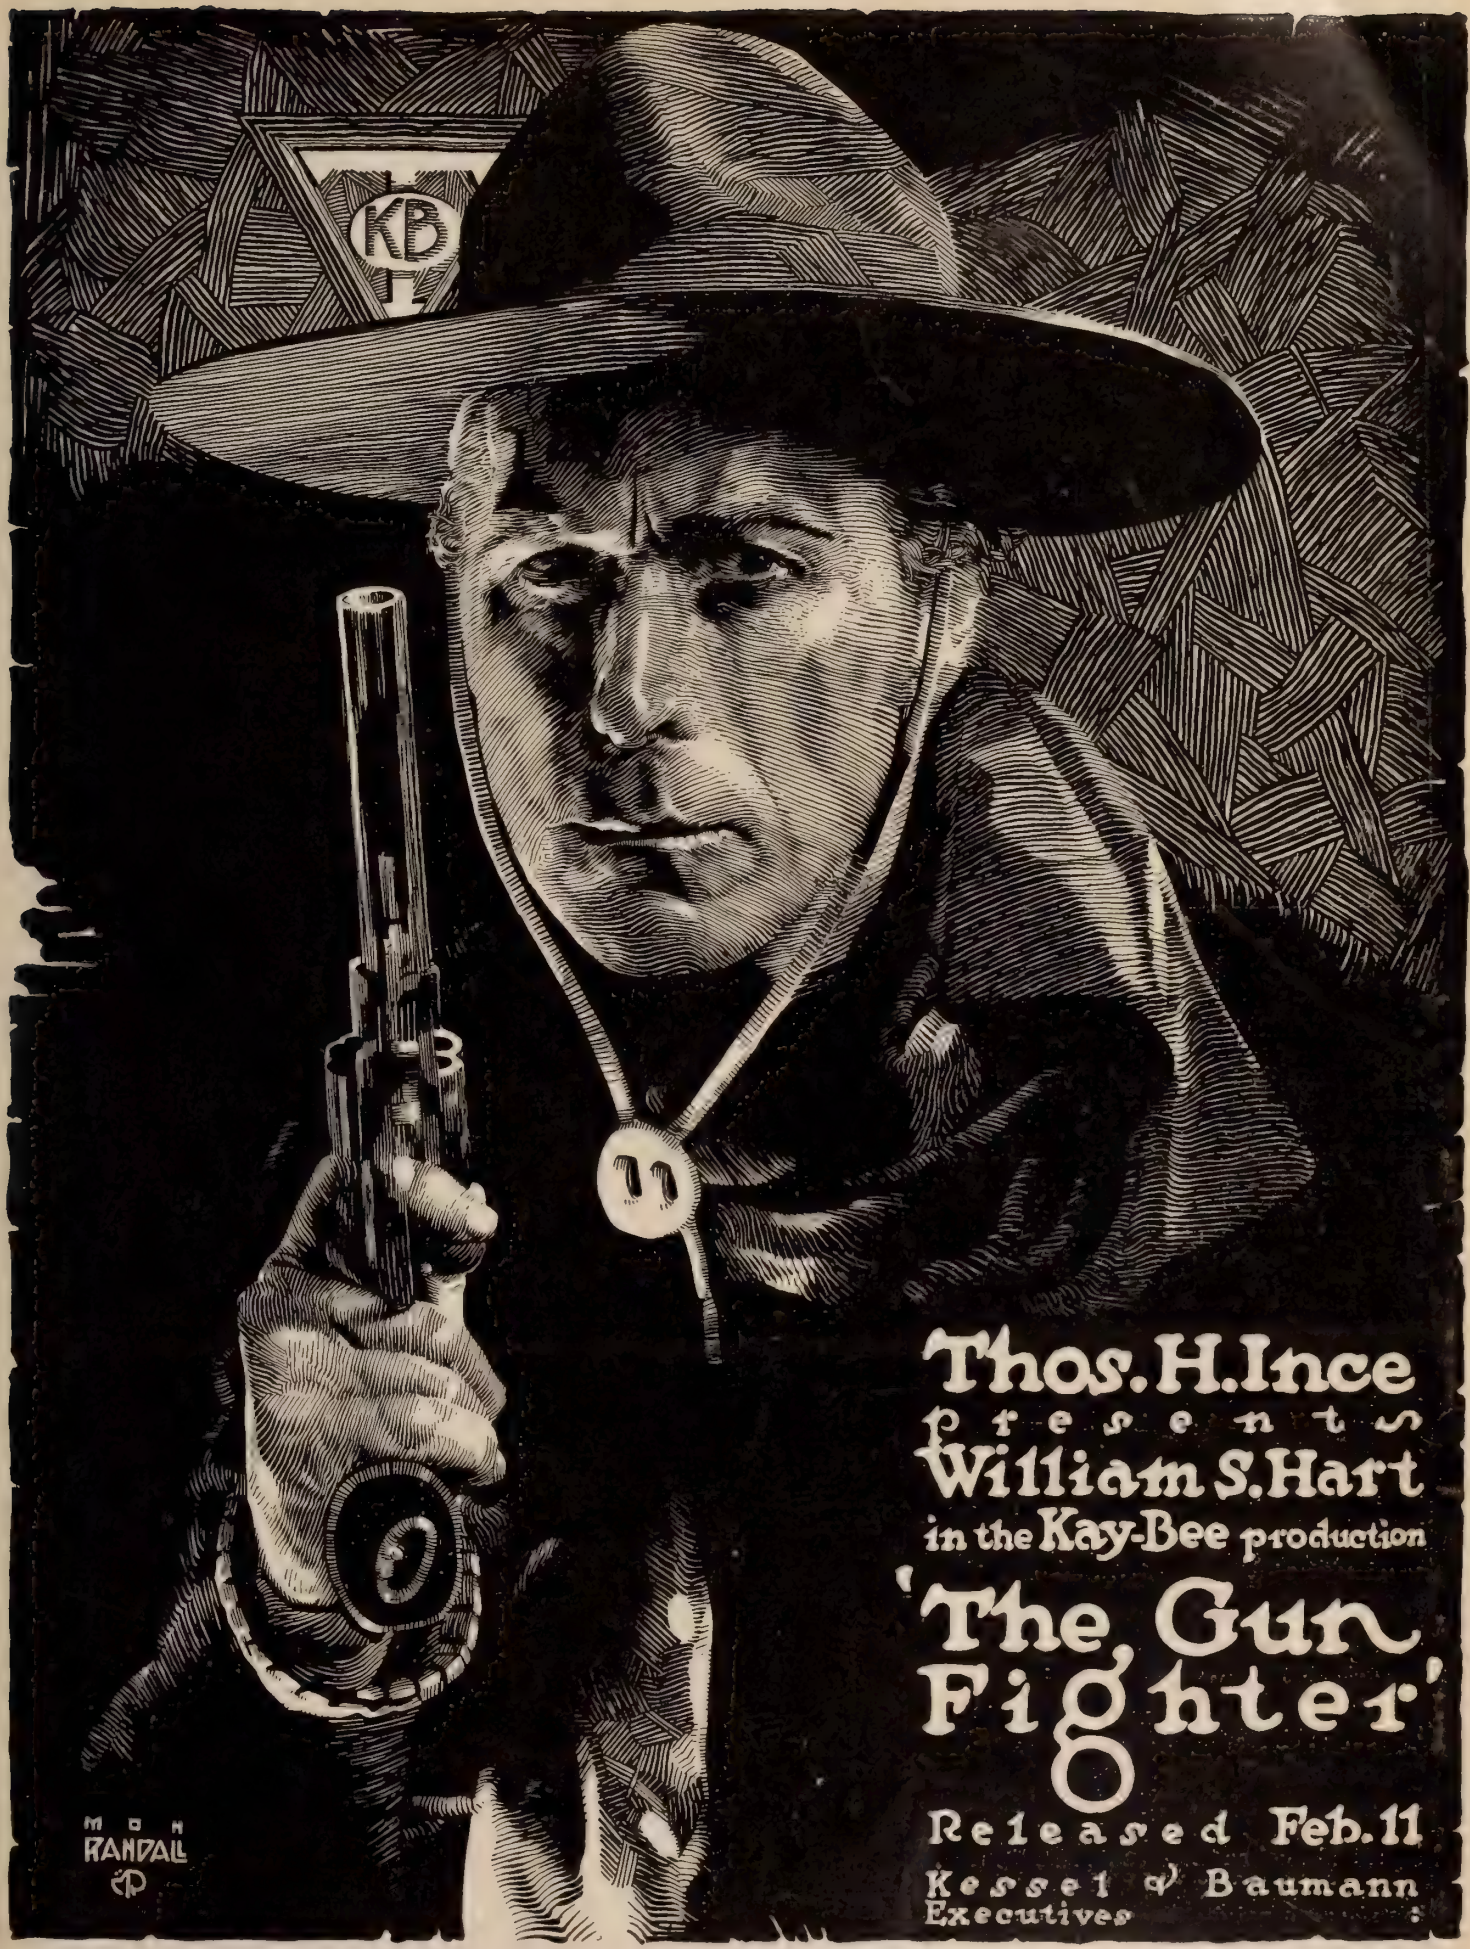
Marguerite Clark, as the Princess in "Snow White," a Paramount picture produced by the Famous Players, was the center of attraction at the Majestic Theatre, of Columbus, Ohio, on Sunday morning a week ago at a special matinee, when the management of the Paramount Theatre entertained all the newsboys of Columbus and surrounding towns. There were over 2,000 "newsies" who attended the special performance, the first of its kind that has ever been given on a Sunday in Columbus.

Miss Clark was told the previous Friday morning of the party that was to be given in her honor, while at the Famous Players studio, where she is now making "The Fortunes of Fifi," her next Paramount Picture. She was very much elated and immediately sent the "newsies" a telegram in which she expressed her pleasure at the venture and hoped that the newsboys would let Snow White be their fairy queen and that they would endeavor to do at least one helpful deed daily.

The boys themselves selected the date for the matinee, and when Marguerite Clark learned that they had derived great pleasure from the show she was moved to say, "It makes me happier than words can express to know that so much pleasure has been given to everybody through the picture. It was the most pleasant picture I ever undertook, and from every section of the country I have learned that this has been accomplished and this picture is one of the most popular that has been screened. I hope all the 'newsies' all over the country will find as much joy and happiness in it as I have had."

Lucille Stewart in Person at Capital

With the showing of the photoplay "Ninety and Nine" at the Garden theatre, Washington, D. C., Tom Moore presented the stars in person, so that Washington had the opportunity of knowing in the flesh Lucile Stewart and Hundley Gordon. The Garden did a large business during the three days' visit of Miss Stewart and Mr. Gordon.



Bijou, Richmond, Shows Pictures

Under an arrangement just completed by the management of the Jake Wells' theatres in Richmond, Va., all of the International Circuit shows will be transferred from the Bijou to the Strand. The Bijou has once more become a picture house, opening with "A Daughter of the Gods." Complete orchestras will be installed in all of the Wells' theatres.

Censor Situation in Ohio

After an uncertain and unofficial tenure of office for six months, Mrs. Maude Murray Miller has been officially named a member of the Ohio Board of Censorship.

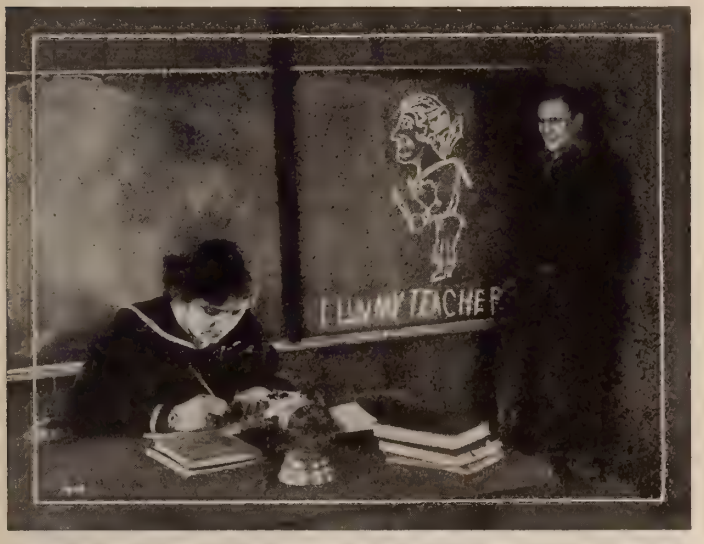
Now that Governor Cox has assumed the reins of government, it is expected strong pressure will be brought to bear to have the censor ban removed from "The Birth of a Nation."

KB
Thos. H. Ince
presents
William S. Hart
in the Kay-Bee production
'The Gun Fighter'
Released Feb. 11
Kessel & Baumann
Executives
MON
RANDALL

The Gun Fighter

is a vivid transcript of the old west, depicting the eternal struggle between right and might ... a dramatic high-explosive, offering the beloved Hart in another throbbing role :

Kessel and Baumann
Executives



SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"The Golden Fetter"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

WALLACE REID and Anita King make an ideal starring pair, if they can be furnished with pictures like this one to show their paces. We will guarantee any audience will rate this one of the best Lasky productions in many months. It has story, it has action, it has good direction, and it has heart interest and the love romance with scintillating brilliance. There are many kinds of complications which give the hero and the heroine reasonable grounds for falling in love with one another, which is the only excuse for many pictures, but here we have one opportunity after another for both parties to see that the other is just the one for a life partner.

Faith Miller, a New England school teacher, invests in a fake mine. She goes to inspect her property and finds herself in a pretty rough town. The good-hearted miners pretend they need a school teacher, and her pupil is "Smiling Jim" Ralston. He soon becomes her hero, when two outlaws murder the sheriff at the school house, and teacher and pupil are handcuffed together and ride away to cover.

A Wide Awake Pupil

The story moves along new trails, unbeaten paths in picture-story telling, with familiar characters, outlaws, cowboys, kindly "Big Annie" (Mrs. Lewis McCord) and the arch villain Slade (Tully Marshall). Interest starts early in the first reel, and at the end of the fourth reel there seems to be at least three more reels due to clear up satisfactorily all the complications.

The named stars are great, and every picture fan seeing that one can be banked on to boost for the house showing it. It is really a marvel of sustained interest and clean, pleasing story of the kind of life that appeals to the city and country audience alike. If Paramount can continue to find half as entertaining stories as the two reviewed this week, there will be no question of the survival of the "program" pictures. Such pictures as these, which deserve patronage, which build business, assure stability.

"Trilby"

(Clara Kimball Young Reissue-World—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. GOULD

ASIDE from any other consideration, there are two paramount reasons why this picture will once more appeal to the spectator, and in consequence, to the exhibitor. One is "Trilby." The other is Clara Kimball Young.

Immortalized in song and story the tragic tale of the little model remains always new and appealing. Whether or not the depth of sentiment and pathos of the written story can be entirely retained in the picturization, is a mooted question. Some writers are enabled to put into cold type a genuineness, either of love or tragedy, which seems beyond the capability of living breathing models to reproduce. If not of this classification, George du Maurier's work closely approaches it.

Verging toward the trite, it may be said that Miss Young gives an entirely satisfactory characterization of "Trilby." Not a tragic or emotional opportunity of the many offered, but is critically portrayed. Not a blithesome, care-free moment—and it is these which are the basic foil making for the greatness of the tragedy—but is naturally and charmingly enacted.

There is scarcely need to tell the story of "Trilby," the artist model of the Latin Quarter of Paris, beloved of Billie, youngest of three English Artists known in the Quarter as "The Three Musketeers of the Brush." The hypnotic power of Svengali, a musician, leads "Trilby" away during the height of an "engagement celebration" on Christmas. In foreign lands her capturer through his power makes of her a world renowned singer—she whose voice had hitherto been received with derision and smiles from her intimates.

The coincidence of circumstance brings Svengali and "Trilby" to the home town of Billie, where heartbroken at his sweetheart's desertion he has returned. The attendance of the "Three Musketeers" at the concert given, the pain of non-recognition of Billie by Trilby, and the tragic denouement when Trilby, unable to conclude her concert without the presence of Svengali, who is held back stage by Billie's two friends, leaves the stage in a trance just as Svengali dies from a heart attack, follows in quick succession. Comes a happy reunion, when Trilby released from her hypnotic state, recognizes Billie. Then, tragedy capping tragedy, the ghost of Svengali in the form of a life-like picture in Trilby's room, brings back every horror of the past, and results in the little artist model's death.

Svengali Exercises His Power on Trilby

Finished characterizations are given by Wilton Lackaye, as Svengali; Chester Barnett as Billie, and Paul McAllister as Ghecko, Svengali's "shadow."

"Money Magic"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

FROM "beanery" to one hundred thousand dollars a year, has perhaps befallen other winsome women besides Bertha Gilman (Edith Storey), the heroine of Hamlin Garland's well-known story "Money Magic." And with mother badly in need of a rest, from the drudgery of the kitchen and running a rough mining camp hotel, it is hardly to be wondered at that such an offer of marriage was acceptable.

The characters in this play are all likeable, when the author so designed them to be. The local barber, the only rival for Bertha's hand, we were glad to see lose his "mortgage" on the girl, and the gambler who gives up his gambling hall and does everything he can to live down the past, except to desert his old dad and sister, has a sympathy compelling role it would be hard to spoil. William Duncan plays this part well. Laura Winston, as the mother, and Florence Dye, as the fiancee of Ben Fordyce, the young lawyer who deserves the love of Bertha because he is the man she should have married, and whom she can't help loving, fit their roles exactly. Antonio Moreno as the aforesaid hero measures fully to what is expected of him, and the result is a good story, interesting right straight through, which will appeal seven days of the week to any audience.

Bertha Takes Charge

The fact that so widely read and attractive a story is so admirably dramatized, with such well-liked stars as Miss Storey and Mr. Moreno, should make this release very prominent among Vitagraph pictures.

It is a deeply touching human interest story delightfully told in pictures. The theme is the self-sacrifice by two sick and dependent persons, for the sake of making possible the love of the two healthy and red-blooded young people who had everything these two lacked to make them happy.

"His Sweetheart"

(Morosco-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THERE is no doubt whatever of this picture being accepted as good from every angle it may be viewed. George Beban has taken his place among the film stars for his masterful delineation of Italian characters. Therefore his name will win a prestige for the play at the outset. But the sweetness of the theme, of the idolizing of the old Italian mother as "his sweetheart," combines with the most stirringly melodramatic and fastest acted play we have seen this winter. It is not the George Beban we have known, with the long moments of deep pathos. Judged by box-office returns, pathos alone appeals to some, but does not appeal to others—in pictures—for we all know the tremendous success Mr. Beban's stage appearances have always had. So we take pains to say this picture is entirely different from the ones preceding it, and can be billed as a quick-moving powerfully melodramatic story in which the sweet pathos is only the theme, and far from the dominant element of the play.

Mamma Mia Torn from Joe's Embrace

The arrival of Joe's "sweetheart" is followed by the raiding of a bunch of crooks. After she has innocently aided one of the crooks to escape she is accused of being a thief, and convicted. Meantime, twice Joe saves the life of the District Attorney, and is rewarded with final happiness in the release of "mamma mia" and proof of her innocence.

Shooting the driver of a fast moving automobile, which is wrecked with its passengers before one's eyes, and removing a golf-ball loaded with nitroglycerine while the player's club swings for a fast drive, are two of the thrills which mark this as the kind of melodrama which will please everybody, from the kids in the front row to the elderly patron who likes a touch of "melo," when it is reasonable and legitimately called for by the plot.

And yet George Beban as Joe, the Iceman, is the dominant "character" of the play, and has a distinctly fine character part, which he enacts perfectly. Sarah Kernan as Mamma Mia and Helen Eddy as Trina Capino are simply wonderful in their parts.

"A Hungry Heart"

(Peerless-World—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THERE is plenty of action in this adaptation of "Frou Frou," but it is not of just the right sort to satisfy the appetite of the average amusement seeker. It is hard to resist a feeling of sympathy for poor Frou Frou when she sees that her sister has usurped her place in her husband's home, but as the sister really loved Frou Frou, and as her husband really loved her too, it is hard to understand why they allowed her to run away with another man. The main fault with "A Hungry Heart" is the lack of precisely pictured characters. The public seems to like someone distinctly good and someone distinctly bad in a picture. Here none of the characters is either good or bad. And so, while there are many situations of dramatic character they always seem to lack that valuable element supplied by a real definite clash or struggle.

Frou Frou Accuses Her Sister

According to the French custom Frou Frou marries the man of her father's selection, de Sartorys, knowing all the while that her sister, Louise, loves him. After her marriage Frou Frou continues to lead a gay life; she can't become settled in her home. Louise arrives to pay a visit, and to de Sartorys fills the gap by the fireside left by Frou Frou. In time Frou Frou grows to see her mistake and pleads with her husband to send Louise away, so that she may assume her rightful sphere. He refuses for some unknown reason and so Frou Frou leaves with one, de Valreas. They go to Venice and after a short time de Sartorys follows, fights a duel with de Valreas and kills him. Afterwards Frou Frou returns to her home to see her child and beg forgiveness of her husband before she dies.

Alice Brady is featured as Frou Frou and gives a telling emotional performance. George MacQuarrie brings everything but precision to the role of de Sartorys. Gerda Holmes does well as the sister, while a large cast including Edward Langford, Alec Francis, John Dudley and Edna Whistler give support. Emile Chautard produced the picture in a satisfactory manner from a scenario by Frances Marion.

"Patria"

(International-Pathe—Fourth Episode)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

PLENTY of action marks the fourth episode of "Patria" in which Mrs. Vernon Castle stars. More melodrama is encountered by the introduction of a dancer (also Mrs. Castle), who looks enough like Patria to be her twin sister. This lady is employed by Baron Huroki and the other conspirators to take Patria's place. The plot is deep dyed. Patria starts on a journey to Newport via water, and the dancer and another adventuress (Dorothy Greene) take the next cabin. It is only a matter of waiting till nightfall to seize Patria and throw her overboard, thus making the way clear for the dancer when the ship arrives.

The Conspirators Learn of Patria's Plans

Some scenes were taken atop the Ziegfeld roof in New York and display all the trappings of a cabaret at its best, specially when Mrs. Castle dances. Among the best of the thrills is a fight participated in by Milton Sills and the manager of the dancer.

"Pride"

(Second of the "Seven Deadly Sins" Series—McClure-Triangle—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

STILL dealing with the adventures of Adam and Eve, as did "Envy," the first of the series, "Pride" hardly measures satisfactorily alongside the previous production. The plot is somewhat lacking in precision of action and there are a couple of ferocious villains with only a lukewarm hero to offer them any sort of resistance. The appetite of the thrill seeker will be partially rewarded by the spectacle of an automobile, with Eve at the wheel, plunging dangerously into a lake and throwing its fair driver headlong into the water—but only partially. Thrills have been done after a much better fashion.

In this story Eve is at boarding school and is bent on marrying a bogus gentleman of royalty calling himself Le Comte de Frais. Eugene D'Arcy, a banker, who, for some reason not fully explained, claims the staid matron of the school, Miss Nelson Blanchard, as his mother, covets the girl and schemes to have her. Adam, the other suitor, plays only third fiddle in the long running, but he isn't proud at all. Eva and Le Comte finally elope and board a ship for Europe without bothering about the marriage ceremony. D'Arcy follows and strips the assumed cloak of royalty from Le Comte's shoulders, revealing him as Tony or Pedro, the gunman. And then Adam proceeds to discover everything villainous about D'Arcy, including the fact that he's a dope fiend. D'Arcy dies and Adam and Eve are reunited again in time to tackle the next Deadly Sin.

The Father Learns the Truth

Holbrook Blinn is featured as D'Arcy and gives a telling performance. Shirley Mason and George Le Guere continue as Eve and Adam, while Helen Strickland and Guido Colucci appear in other prominent roles. The locations and settings are appropriate.

"Sold at Auction"

(Balboa-Pathe—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE Horkheimer brothers of the Balboa studio might be described as producers of typical pictures. For form's sake and as a matter of course they deal in pictures molded along popular lines. If they have a point to make, they never take any risk of the observer going away without the significance of it. They impress it heavily on his mind. It must be obvious, not subtle.

Working on this premise one can term "Sold at Auction" a good picture; for the majority. It is not as good as other products of the Balboa studios of the same classification, but it is ripe melodrama at its ripest. The main situation, which discloses a father bidding for his unknown daughter's hand in a marriage that gives every promise of being mock, when the gentleman's evil ways are considered, is reached rather laboriously and with profuse use of our old friend, Coincidence.

Nan, the girl in the case, has been brought up by an old lady of the Cinderella-step-mother type who makes her work for herself and her daughter. Nan's father who cast her from his home when she was a babe because of the infidelity of his wife sends her a last remittance which Mrs. Hopkins and her daughter plan to confiscate. A reporter loves Nan, and Mrs. Hopkins, afraid lest she lose her services as drudge, tells her there is negro blood in her veins. Heart-broken she goes to the city and there falls into the hands of a marriage broker who plans to sell her to her father. The melodramatic climax has arrived. The reporter arrives to save the day and so does Mrs. Hopkins burdened with a troubled conscience. The evil father is stricken dead and Nan and her reporter are happy.

The settings of the piece are not quite up to average standards. Lois Meredith is featured as the much-abused Nan, and creates an appealing character. William Conklin is the father and Frank Mayo the reporter. Marguerite Nichols, Charles Dudley and Lucy Blake are others. Daniel Whitcomb and Sherwood McDonald are author and director respectively.

"Bridges Burned"

(Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

Madame Petrova in this play has the role of an Irish gentleman's daughter, whose heart is given to a chance visitor at her home without reserve. When her condition is discovered her father demands a marriage, but she refuses to consent to a forced wedding, on the ground that the fault is equally hers, and she is able to support herself and her expected child. This attitude on her part wins the true admiration of the man, who is now anxious to marry her, but she yields only at the persuasion of her old servant, who says to rob her child of its birthright is not her right.

Immediately after the marriage, which she still believes her father has forced upon Ernest Randall, who is the younger son of an English baronet, Mary leaves home and secures employment in a cotton mill. Her promotion there to work in the manager's office, and her successful undertaking of welfare work for the employees, causes her name to be published in the London papers. There Ernest, who still loves her, learns her address and comes to her. She insists that he make a man of himself, and he enlists in the English army. Returning a hero, their previous marriage becomes a blessing, and they live happily at the old mansion which he repurchases after poverty has forced its passing into other hands. Through the death of his older brother, Ernest has meantime become the Earl of Randall.

Mary and Her Father Reach Their Injured Guest

There is little opportunity in this play for Madame Petrova to reach the emotional heights she is so capable of. Mahlon Hamilton, as the lover, does some passionate loving, yet not ardent enough to satisfy some, while his attentions are clearly not within the rules of the best convention.

The Irish atmosphere, and the staging and settings generally are up to usual Metro standard. The emotional role of the piece is that of Robert Broderick, the father, which seemed to us not to register fully the sympathetic possibilities, but rather to exaggerate harshness and sternness than true depth of feeling. A good supporting cast, up to the usual Metro standard, is seen, with the direcors in all technical respects up to the mark.

There can be no question that this picture will crowd houses on the name of the star and the title. But what is expected of either is not fully lived up to. .

"One Touch of Sin"

(Fox Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THIS picture tells of a girl who misplaces her love and confidence in a worthless man and who lives to rue it for the period of five reels. Then she finds real love. Her adventures lead her across the continent of America from the miserable slums of New York to the miserable mining town of Golden City, which after all the cards are down discloses one genuine man among its many scapegraces. The story builds in a free and easy fashion to a climax that possesses real power. The villain and the hero meet in a death grapple in a mine, the mine is exploded and is flooded with water and the hero drags the villain out by the neck only after a great struggle.

Tabor Interferes in Behalf of Mary

Mary Livingston proceeds to love not wisely, but too well a Western miner, Mallaby. When deserted by him she goes West in hopes of seeing her father before he dies, but it is too late. Here she meets Mallaby again and he instead of making amends attempts to pursue his ungentlemanly attentions further. She finds a protector in the person of Watt Tabor, who marries her without any love on her part. In time she grows to admire and appreciate him, specially when he agrees to forget her past, restore her baby to her and make her happy in every possible way.

Gladys Brockwell is featured as Mary. She is emotional to an extent that borders on exaggeration. Her closeups are usually marked by a quivering lower lip. But her work is sincere and she gets her scenes over to good advantage. Jack Standing is inclined to over-act as Mallaby. Willard Louis furnishes some heart interest and more humor as Tabor, while others are Sedley Brown, Carrie Clark Ward, Frankie Lee, Jack MacDonald and Charles Edhler. Richard Stanton produced the picture in a meritorious fashion from a scenario by L. Genez.

"Jim Bludso"

(Triangle-Fine Arts—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

WITH many thrills and a plot of the heart interest variety, "Jim Bludso," a picture based on the poem by John Hay, makes an excellent release—by all odds the best of the more recent Fine Arst subjects. The production given it by Tod Browning is quite without the bounds of adverse criticism. The flood scenes, showing the river overflowing the levee and sweeping into the town, are so realistic that one is forced to believe that they were not arranged specially for the camera. That is realism lifted to the *n*th power. Those scenes form a mighty big series of thrills and are only equaled by the scenes of the climax, showing the old Mississippi River boat burning to the water's edge.

After all, though, it is the story that is the biggest thing about "Jim Bludso." How pleasant it is to sit down and write a few lines without drawing in a complaint about the padding or the superfluous footage or the anti-climax! Pleasant to the reviewer, yes, but the exhibitor may be even more pleased over their absence. His audience won't wriggle uneasily in their seats when "holds the interest from start to finish" hadn't been invented the screen has only reflected half of the picture. If the phrase 'steen years ago, it might make its debut in connection with "Jim Bludso" with fine effect.

Jim Bludso is engineer on the "Prairie Belle" in the days before the war of the North and South. When the country takes up arms Jim enlists and his wife runs away to the South—her home. Jim, fighting for the North, is saved from death by a negro, who afterwards becomes his devoted servant. Returning home, Jim finds his little son in charge of Kate, the daughter of the village storekeeper. The man who ran away with Jim's wife and later deserted her, is in the town putting through a crooked levee building proposition. He becomes Jim's enemy at the start, because he scorns the negro. Concluding scenes of the flood and the race of the "Prairie Belle" and another boat, which ultimately results in disaster for the former, bring Jim and Kate closer together and clear away all the clouds.

An atmosphere of seemingly perfect realism pervades the entire production. The characters live in the "sixties" and never in our own "'teens." Wilfred Lucas makes a very likable Jim. Olga Grey is the wife, Winifred Westover is Kate and little George Stone is Jim's son. Sam De Grasse takes the heavy role. James O'Shea appears as the negro, and others are Charles Lee and Monte Blue. It is a fine cast from the lead straight through.

"The Scarlet Crystal"

(Red Feather-Universal—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE man with his wife, his daughter, his fiancee or his sister might do well to pass "The Scarlet Crystal" by—maybe come back and see it later with his bachelor friends or with other benedicts released for the time being. From which it may be gathered that this particular picture is neither for children's matinees nor mothers' meetings nor for the family outing on week day evenings or Sunday afternoons. It is a well done picture containing several highly dramatic situations, but they are rather broad and deal intimately with topics that are not altogether pleasant for consumption by Mr. and Mrs. Common People and all the little Peoples.

Back to His Old Haunts

The story has to do with a young society man who marries a sweet young thing from the country and who hasn't the strength of mind to stay away from his old companions, which group includes many cigarette-smoking and cocktail-drinking actresses from the "Follies." The ties of Hymen are severed for the time being and the society man starts slipping downward at lightning speed. It takes the thought of his new-born heir and nightmare of a vision to straighten him out again. He pictures the manner in which he ruins a young girl and then himself and then he awakes to beg his wife's forgiveness.

Herbert Rawlinson gives a polished performance as the husband, Betty Schade is the wife, Dorothy Davenport, chief of the "Follies" girls, and Marie Hazleton the young girl of the nightmare. Charles Swickard produced from a scenario by J. Grubb Alexander.

"The Dominion of Fernandez"

(Kalem—Two Parts)

REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

WIDE arid wastes and cactus covered plains are most vividly portrayed in this picture, a chapter of "The Girl from 'Frisco" series, in which scenic effects and a rattling good theme well handled add a trifle more lustre to the already brilliant career of the impetuous, impulsive Barbara Brent (Marin Sais). The pure Western aroma is still faithfully depicted—and although True Boardman, as John Wallace, is no longer seen—an able substitute has been found in the person of Edward Hearn, as Tom Barton, who it appears from the startoff is anxious to comply with every whim and fancy of the fanciful, dauntless Barbara Brent.

Tom's Precipitous Action is Curbed by Barbara

Cattle rustling and opium smuggling are the predominant features, around which the story is woven. Fernandez, of the old Spanish grandee type, has earned for himself power, prestige and wealth by smuggling and cattle rustling, and the tortures as practised in the so-called dark ages of the Spanish inquisition are improved upon to a great extent by this miniature monarch as occasion demands. He is surrounded by a fierce looking band of Mexicans who do his biddings unhesitatingly.

Some of his men, on a cattle raid, steal Barbara's horse, and she determines to recover it, and though fully appreciating the danger of so doing she and Tom induce Ace Brent, the father, to accompany them on the expedition. Their audacity pleases Fernandez and he orders his men to return the horse, which he had already set aside for his own use, but a moment or so later when he learns from his lieutenant that Barbara had been eavesdropping and doubtless had overheard a conversation concerning the delivery of a quantity of opium, he calls his men and instructs them to overhaul the Brent party at any cost.

Then come the thrills and stirring incidents, but in the end, of course, Barbara & Co. come out victorious and the malefactors are found enmeshed in the intricate webs of the law.

"The Devil's Pay Day"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

HOWEVER colorful the story by George Hivley, "The Toll of Vengeance," is as a literary work, we think a mistake has been made in selecting it for pictures. It is the story of a country girl who marries a city man of no character and less morals, and of another man who tries to seduce the wife without success, but yet causes the husband to use his acts as an excuse to divorce his wife. She returns home, is refused admittance by her own father, for no wrong of her own, and becomes a woman without a heart or even a soul.

She later wreaks vengeance on her former husband, when he has the opportunity to reform and lead a decent life, by fascinating him and causing him to desert, for her, his wife and child. Then she murders the other man and causes her former husband to be tried for the crime. Death before the verdict saves him from further suffering and his wife and child from the taint.

This is in its nature not a pleasant story. There is no pretension of a "moral." Franklyn Farnum, Leah Baird, and Charles Perley in the principal roles do not succeed in making improbable and repulsive characters appear real and human. We do not think this play will be successful, even from a box-office standpoint, in the majority of theatres. We feel sure the family and small-town theatre will find it subject to unfavorable criticism, for reasons apparent in the story as above outlined, and will not women generally resent being told that "thrown back on her own resources Jeannie is compelled to accept the inevitable" as a means of livelihood (the immoral life)? We cite this as an instance of the spirit of the play, which seems to us in dealing with the lowest phases of life without the usual redeeming feature of regeneration of the principals, to lack the necessary sympathy compelling inspiration that would make it a popular and money-getting subject, if such sordid views of life carry an appeal.

The Wife's Appeal for Mercy

We need only cite the Bluebird release of the week following, from the hands of Lois Weber, "The Mysterious Mrs. M," a clean-cut, forceful story with a big human appeal and moral, to show why we feel that "The Devil's Pay Day" is not up to Bluebird standard.

"On the Austro-German Battlefronts"

(Eiko Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

ALTHOUGH the title of this picture would imply a reproduction of the scenes of carnage so inseparably allied with modern warfare, such is far from being the case. In fact, the only picture anywhere approaching such is the one showing the use of liquid fire. The other pictures are largely devoted to scenes showing the efficiency of each unit of the military system which go to make up the wonderful fighting machine as now perfected.

Gustav Amberg has produced a film of an interesting as well as historically valuable nature, without dealing unnecessarily with a portrayal of the horrors of war. True, there are sceness showing the removal of the wounded from the field hospitals to permanent hospitals, each at the military base of the injured man's regiment, but with the one exception noted above, one has to "imagine" how such destruction was wrought as shown by the ruined cities, destroyed bridges and other evidences of warfare on a stupendous scale.

An interesting feature is the bringing in of innumerable prisoners from the Italian and Russian fronts, and judging from the pleased expressions on the countenances of the women and children who have been rendered homeless and destitute through no cause of their own and are now being fed by the military authorities, one is forced to the conclusion that their rations are wholesome and, if not plentiful, at least adequate.

Equally worthy of mention is the showing of the return home of the subsea craft "Deutschland," and its arrival at Bremen after its wonderful feat of blockade running, with the rousing welcome accorded her by seemingly the whole population of that city augmented by a host of visitors.

These pictures finely illustrate also the efficiency of the military, which is seen repairing bridges, making roads of mountain passes, constructing railways, installing searchlights and performing other tasks necessary for the advancing armies, and for the rapid transportation of troops, munitions and provisions.

"Her Good Name"

(Van Dyke-Art Dramas—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"HER GOOD NAME" is a conventional picture in many respects and if it were more conventional in others it might have been a deal more powerful. The final situation is one of dramatic strength, but it suffers somewhat from being led up to by a series of incidents that are unconvincing, and their character naturally tends to weaken the effect of the denouement. The love affair of the artist from the city and the little country girl which concludes after the fashion of all happy romances is developed only in a few scenes and jumps from the love-at-first-sight stage to the fadeout—in-one-another's-arms finale with startling rapidity.

The little country girl goes out motoring with an undesirable suitor and he demands a kiss. She runs, takes refuge in a cabin and leans against the door. He leans against the other side of it and standing the two doze off and do not come to until the sun comes out. A rather improbable doze, is this. The next morning the father of the girl shoots the undesirable and is duly brought to court. It is in the girl's power to save him by swearing that she was "betrayed" on that night, the subtitle tells us. After a great struggle she does, but it is all useless because the father dies of a weak heart! Enter the artist for a happy ending.

Matters are not benefited greatly by an over-use of the closeup. Jean Sothern, featured, gets most of these scenes and next in line in the limelight come her kitten, her puppy and her canary. Some of the animal bits might be eliminated to better effect. Miss Sothern makes a good impression in her light scenes. William H. Turner contributes the best acting as the father. Earl Metcalfe is the artist hero and doesn't have much chance. Arthur Housman, Ethel Tully, Barbara Castleton and Mrs. Parker Spaulding are others. The scenes are appropriate in every instance.

"The Princess of Patches"

(Selig-K-E-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS is frankly melodrama and comedy mixed, in a style plentifully familiar in the palmy days of traveling stock. The lead is played by Violet De Biccari and Vivian Reed, with honors rather in favor of the star not advertised. Frank Weed as "Waggles" is really the rest of the show, besides the several villains, led by Charles Le Moyne as "Judas." Burke Wilber plays as Jack Merry, the lover, and Hildor Hoberg as the Southern gentleman, the father.

The story, adapted from Mark Swan's drama of the South, is not a war story. This helps. The scenes on a cotton plantation and the river were real, and added much to the enjoyment. The pickaninnies helped much, as pickaninnies always do, when they are the real "article."

"Patches," running away from the kind of home any girl could be excused from leaving, since father beats and kicks mother, just to show his meanness, starts some delightful comedy by being discovered enjoying a cool dip in the river, when Waggles innocently removes her clothes, thinking the owner must have committed suicide. "Patches," sighting a barrel near by, makes her introduction to her future home in this rather stiff and incomplete garb. Then the "willuns" get busy, and steal Patches' proof of identification, her mother's locket, and it is a nip and tuck guess through several reels how she is going to recover the necklace. A hand to hand encounter between one of the villains and Waggles, who has the heroic role, and the narrow escape from being blown up in an old house-boat which is used by the villains as a lair, add the final melodramatic thrills to a picture with plenty of variety, and several points to make it likeable, although the entire plot is too obvious.

LATE NEWS

"Joan the Woman" Opens in Los Angeles

Premier of Farrar Picture Is Welcomed in Coast City—Critics Enthusiastic—Long Run Expected—DeMille Present

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S production with Geraldine Farrar, "Joan the Woman," was tendered a most enthusiastic reception in Los Angeles. The second premier of the motion picture that caused eastern authorities to speak of it as "the high-water mark of picture production," was given on the evening of Jan. 15, at Majestic theatre, and the audience resembled one to be seen at a grand opera first night. The carriage line is said to have been longer than for any other film premier. If one can judge from the demand for advance tickets, and the action of scalpers, the subject is destined for a long run.

The opening night audience was a critical one, made up of artists of operatic, legitimate, and screen stage, writers, film men, exhibitors and others, and the applause frequently given spoke plainly as to the appreciation of those who watched the picture. At the end of the first section of the film the hand clapping continued for several minutes. Several called for Mr. DeMille and a greater part of the audience took it up, but the producer could not be induced to appear.

The presentation was conducted in the same manner as at the New York showing, and the incidental music prepared by Mr. Furst was given by an orchestra of forty-two pieces under the leadership of the composer. Mr. DeMille returned from the east to supervise the opening personally, which was taken charge of by Fred Kley, general representative of the Cardinal Film Corporation, and Kenneth McGaffey served as manager for the exhibition.

Critics of the Los Angeles press, in their reviews, recognized Mr. DeMille as a producer "in a class by himself with respect to artistry and brains"; described his film as "'different' representing as it does two forms of art, the historical and the religious"; and "scoring an instantaneous and emphatic success for DeMille and Miss Farrar as well as the ideal in drama in motion pictures."

Guy Price, of the Los Angeles Evening Herald said, "It will ever remain a master achievement."

George St. George, of the Evening Express, said, "It is one of the really big things the screen has given us."

Florence Bosard Lawrencem of the Evening Examiner said, "As a historical study alone, the picture has tremendous value, but that becomes of secondary interest in the vitality of its dramatic moments."

Harry Carr, of the Daily Times, said, "'Joan the Woman' represents the high tide of motion picture producing," and other commendatory notices were printed.

National Board Approves of N.A.M.P.I. Efforts

The movement of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry for censorship from within, which has been steadfastly advocated by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, has met recognition and approval from the National Board of Review, which has turned to the Association for co-operative action regarding prevention of production of plays using the female nude. An expression of encouragement toward any step looking in the direction of the artistic development of the motion picture as proposed by D. W. Griffith is contained in a statement of the Board, issued January 22.

Reviewing the past year and looking forward to 1917 the Board states in part: "At its annual conference with producers of motion pictures the Board announced, as its present policy, its decision not to pass any pictures in which the female nude is displayed. All producing companies, members of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, have accordingly agreed not to permit in their studios the production of any photoplays using such a figure.

The Producers' Branch of the National Association voted that any attempt on the part of any unscrupulous manufacturer to use the motion picture for indecent or immoral purposes must be dealt with summarily and effectively and offered every support to the law-enforcing authorities in the suppression of any immoral picture.

Discussions of sex problems, which are being conducted throughout the nation, belong to a distinctly different category and deserve dramatic treatment on the screen as well as on the stage. The motion picture aims to present dramatically and seriously life as it is lived in various strata of society. It must, therefore, not be condemned when it shows the bad in order to emphasize the good.

Sobel and Shear Admit Partner

The Sobel and Shear Amusement Company of New Orleans, composed of Nat Sobel and Al. G. Shear, has admitted a third partner and has incorporated in the sum of $51,000, all paid in. E. V. Richards, Jr., one of the best-known film men in the South, is the third partner. The name of the firm is the Sobel-Richards-Shear Enterprises, Incorporated.

Messrs. Sobel, Richards and Shear are all pioneers in the motion picture game in the South.

Society to Prevent Immoral Films Formed in Ohio

Secretary of State Fulton has authorized the incorporation of the "National Society for the Suppression of Immoral Motion Pictures." The incorporators include Captain Frederick F. Stoll, president; Louis G. Bernard, vice-president; Joseph Kolb, secretary, and Charles C. Maddox, treasurer. Temporary headquarters will be opened in Cincinnati.

According to those identified with the new company the society is designed to create sentiment against the exhibition of "immoral, obscene, indecent and suggestive" motion pictures in public showhouses throughout the United States, "and to create sentiment" among all patrons of motion picture theatres in favor of "nothing but clean, high-class motion pictures as a moral and educative force."

It is the intention to make it a nation-wide organization, with separate state organizations. The Governor of each state in the Union will be named as an honorary vice-president.

Nebraska Exhibitors Solid Against Censorship

The Omaha Screen Club, at a meeting Thursday, January 18, discussed the probability of censorship legislation before the state legislature, now in session, and laid plans to unite in considering it if any is introduced. Reports of censorship bills were discussed. It appeared likely such a bill would be introduced.

Manager L. A. Getzler of the Mutual exchange was selected to head any movement toward censorship. Exhibitors will make up the bone and sinew of any battle put up. They have taken a deep interest and are ready for action. They believe the conduct of the film business in Nebraska does not merit the indignity of criticism. Manager J. H. Calvert of the Bluebird exchange in Omaha, discussing the matter, said:

"It is the city exhibitor who has the stain of guilt, if anybody has, but the people don't have to attend if they want to. Even the city exhibitors are not showing such awful pictures any more. We never hear a kick on them, in that regard."

"Preparedness" Girl to be Chosen by Universal

Universal announces that during the Hardware Show at Madison Square Garden, New York City, which will be held from February 6 until the 9th, a girl will be accepted by popular vote to assume the role in a series of "Miss Preparedness" pictures. Two hundred applicants from Manhattan and fifty from Brooklyn have already entered their names in the contest. Marjorie Sterrett, who started the school children's battleship fund, is among the Brooklyn representatives.

Irish Rioters at Vitagraph Film In Court

Magistrate Walsh Releases Moore and Nolan, Who Objected to "Whom the Gods Destroy"—Irwin Endeavors to Prevent Future Outbursts

AT a hearing in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, on Wednesday morning last, Edward Moore, of 500 West 114th Street, and William Patrick Nolan, of 262 West 22nd Street, New York, were arraigned for the part they were alleged to have played in interrupting a showing of "Whom the Gods Destroy" in the Luna Theatre on Jan. 13.

I. V. Schavrien, of 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, who prosecuted the case against the two defendants, stated that among a limited number of American Sinn Fein agitators there is a concerted movement to prevent public exhibition of this Vitagraph feature on the ground that it is anti-Irish.

Victor Herbert, the famous comic opera composer, is president of the society. Among its vice-presidents, as stated on its letterhead, are Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff; James K. McGuire, former chairman of the New York State Democratic Committee; Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet; Monsignor Henry A. Brann, and Thomas Hughes Kelly, all of New York; and Joseph McLaughlin, of Philadelphia; Hon. O'Neill Ryan, of St. Louis; and James O'Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass.

It was charged that the two defendants had gone to the Luna Theatre specifically to stop the showing of "Whom the Gods Destroy" by whatever means they thought necessary.

Frank Auditor, proprietor of the theatre, testified that, with the exception of the Irish agitators present at the showing, none but Italians were in the audience.

Moore said he had attacked the production because it is "a photographic lie." Asked to give his reasons for it, he testified that "Whom the Gods Destroy" tries to make the audiences believe that Sir Roger Casement was pardoned instead of being hanged. Moore said that to show the king pardoning Sir Denis Esmond (the alleged picture parallel of Sir Roger) was to establish the whole production as anti-Irish.

Nolan objected to the picture, he testified, because two of his brothers had participated in the recent Irish rebellion and one of them had been killed. "'Whom the Gods Destroy' shows a few 'rebels' holding the English soldiers off with sticks and rocks," he said, "when everybody knows that 1,400 armed Irish revolutionists held off 30,000 trained British soldiers with rifles."

Magistrate Walsh discharged the two defendants on the ground that it had not been proved beyond a reasonable doubt that these two men were two who did the rioting among the number of Irish agitators present.

Both defendants were warned that a recurrence of their efforts in the Luna Theatre might cause them considerable discomfort; they were told, if they had a protest to make in the future against "Whom the Gods Destroy," to make it to the theatre manager in person, and not to try to do it in a crowded theatre from the seats.

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph-V-L-S-E, has addressed a letter to all the officers of "The Friends of Irish Freedom" asking them not to condemn a picture which they have not seen, and inviting them to a private showing of "Whom the Gods Destroy." Proper time for a reply to Mr. Irwin's letters has not yet elapsed. Mr. Irwin states that his company will spare no effort to protect, to the fullest extent of the law, any exhibitors who are annoyed or threatened for showing "Whom the Gods Destroy."

Present at the hearing before Magistrate Walsh were Rev. Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady and Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, co-authors of the story which was produced under Commodore Blackton's personal supervision; and Harold Bolster, business manager of Greater Vitagraph.

An interested listener to the case was Frank Hitchcock, former postmaster-general, who was there as a guest of Commodore Blackton.

Court Action Invoked by "Knowledge" Buyer

An injunction has been granted to Robert T. Kane by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, United States District Court Judge,, Chicago, naming Fred Beck and Louis Weiss, said to be doing business under the names of King Comedy Company and Twentieth Century Film Company, also naming a number of other exchange and film men, among them Heaney and Hawkins, enjoining the foregoing from selling, renting, exhibiting or otherwise disposing of prints of "The Garden of Knowledge," a film recently bought by Mr. Kane from Dal Clawson of Los Angeles, California.

Ann Murdock Under Empire

Miss Ann Murdock is announced for a series of Empire-Mutual pictures. President John R. Freuler, of the Mutual Film Corporation, and the Empire All Star Corporation, has closed a contract with Miss Murdock, and this contract has been transferred to the Empire concern, the newly formed corporation for the presentation of the Charles Frohman successes in motion pictures for Mutual distribution.

Work on the first of the Empire's Murdock productions will begin in a few days at New York studios now being fitted up for the making of the Charles Frohman pictures.

Miss Murdock's initial picture venture was "The Royal Family," a five-reel drama in which she had previously appeared successfully.

Other photoplays in which Miss Murdock has been starred are "Captain Jenks" and "Where Love Is."

"Civilization" in the Trenches

Arrangements are being made by the representatives of the Harper Film Corporation, in England, handling the Ince spectacle in the British Isles, to show the picture to the Allied soldiers in the war zones of the Somme and Verdun. It is also in contemplation to have the picture smuggled into the German lines. The French and British prints were specially edited and titled for their respective countries.

Charlotte Walker in "Pardners"—Mutual Star Production

Center, Ann Murdock, Now a Mutual Star

Clean Films Wanted in West, Says Hammons

General Manager E. W. Hammons of the Educational Films Corporation of America, is back in New York after a two weeks' trip through the Middle West. He brings glowing reports of the progress of clean films.

"On the train en route to Minneapolis I talked with a moving picture man who told me how poor he heard conditions were in the exhibiting business in that city. He said vaudeville had 'come back' and was cutting into the receipts."

"When I got into Minneapolis I saw one of the liveliest exhibiting centers in the country. If vaudeville was hurting, the exhibitors didn't know it. The city was in the grip of the worst snow storm in forty years and even that couldn't keep the people away from the moving picture theatres!"

This storm brought Mr. Hammons into Chicago nine hours late on a twelve hours' trip.

"In Chicago I found clean pictures everywhere. Even the posters in front of the theatres seemed to have toned down."

Censorship Bill Before Utah State Senate

Introduction of a bill in the Utah State Senate, providing for the appointment of an official censor, marks the first warlike move in what portends to be a lively and long drawn out censorship fight. Exhibitors of the state are banding together to oppose the measure.

The bill is fathered by Senator Joseph Chez. It stipulates the State Superintendent of Public Instruction be made censor with a fee of two dollars for each reel inspected. Considering that the eleven exchanges in Salt Lake carry nearly 17,000 reels, the position of censor, should the bill go through, will be the exhibitors believe, a rich political plum.

Provision is made for the employment of clerks to keep record of films viewed. It is also stipulated in the document, that in event of protest from the decision of the censor, a board consisting of the governor, secretary of state and the attorney-general will be the court of last appeal.

A penalty of twenty-five dollars is provided for violation of the censor edict. A second offense will entail a fine of not less than one hundred dollars. Each unapproved picture reel exhibited, and each day it is presented, is to constitute a separate violation.

Censor Question in Winnipeg More Active

Arguments pro and con in respect to proposed legislative measures to enforce censoring of motion picture censoring and also touching on the present status of the censoring regulations featured a recent meeting of the Social Workers' League in Winnipeg, Canada.

"Unless all other business houses have to do the same, we would fight this to the last ditch," said Max Bloom, counsel, in commenting on the amendment which J. Hedley Garland, provincial amusement commissioner, stated he intended framing.

"Filth Films" Before Vermont Legislature

Bill Before Vermont Legislature to Limit Exhibition of "Unfit Pictures"—Age Limit of Attendance May Be Lowered from 15 to 13

THE legislature of Vermont is considering two bills bearing upon the regulation of motion pictures. The first of these has to do with the attendance of children unaccompanied by parent, guardian, or some one over twenty-one years of age. The second one has to do with what have been called "unfit pictures." This one says that no vulgar or immoral pictures or those which depict burglary, train robbery and other acts which constitute felony shall be shown in the state.

A hearing was held on Tuesday at Montpelier, the capital, at which appeared Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the Natioanl Board of Review, and Hiram E. Miller, representing the New England exhibitors, who came from Boston.

Following the discussion, it appeared to be settled that in the first bill the minimum age limit would be cut from fifteen to thirteen, and to allow pictures to be shown in educational and philanthropic institutions for children if they were exhibited free of charge. The second bill was modified by striking out the clauses having to do with burglary, robbery and those crimes which constitute a felony. It was generally felt that the bill was not as satisfactory as a drastic regulatory measure now on the statute books, passed in 1892, and having to do with pictures, plays, etc. It has been suggested that if anything is to be enacted in connection with motion pictures it would be better to have the present law made definite in its application to motion pictures and picture houses rather than to pass any new resolution.

Censorship Possible in Twenty States

National Association Reports That More State Legislatures Will Take Up Subject for Discussion in February—Griffith Active

CENSORSHIP bills are being considered in twenty State legislatures, and are in immediate danger of enactment within days or weeks in at least half of them. This is borne out by the reports now in the hands of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. This is probably by no means all, as new bills will be introduced daily until well into February.

The censorship committee of the National Association, headed by David W. Griffith, has been laying its plans, and is ready to take up the fight in every State, provided only that the support of the producers, distributors and exhibitors of the country is furnished. But William A. Brady, president of the National Association, stated last week that without the united support of the whole industry it would be hopeless to even start the fight.

"We have got to go to the country united, both in our ideas and in our pocketbooks, or there is no use of going at all. It is up to every one of us individually, and the least of us who stays out can gum the whole plan."

The following states are considering censorship: Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Antipodes Censor Board of Official Makeup

Latest advices from Australia indicate that those who in future will pass upon the morality and wholesomeness of films designed to be exhibited to residents of the Antipodes, will at least be broad enough to allow "kissing scenes" to go through without protest.

Such, at least, were the indications, when at a Cabinet meeting held the latter part of December a board for the censorship of motion pictures was appointed. The Board as constituted is wholly official, and consists of the Chief Secretary, Minister for Education, Director for Education, Inspector General of Police and Director of Health. Mature consideration lent itself to the barring of representatives of so-called moral societies which have condemned stage kissing as an immoral act.

A synopsis of each imported film is to be forwarded to the board. If any doubt exists as to the propriety of the subject a screening must be given. The first picture to be barred by the board is "Twilight Sleep" which to date had had a successful run in Australia.

It is said by those who are in a position to know that the films of all countries are offenders.

Club Women Run Theatre and Censor Plays

For one week club women of Terre Haute are to be given an opportunity to run a motion picture theatre as they think it should be run, and act as their own censors for the pictures they show.

The experiment is under way this week in the American theatre, Terre Haute which has been turned over to the women by J. S. Hered the owner. Strict censorship is to be maintained, particularly on Friday and Saturday when the films will be selected by the women. Half of the net proceeds will be given to the clubs for the benefit jointly of the Public Health Nursing Association of Terre Haute and the Legislative Council of Indiana.

Censor Board Resolution for Washington

A bill providing for a state motion picture censor board to pass upon all pictures sent into the state is to be submitted to the legislature of Washington by Commissioner Pettit. A draft of the bill is first to be passed on by the censor boards and special service boards of Seattle and Spokane.

The measure provides for a board of three or five to give their whole time.

Mutual Program Headed by Ann Murdock Film

Week's Announcements Promise Balanced Schedule of Comedies, Dramas and Educational Subjects

ANN MURDOCK will appear for the first time on the program of the Mutual Film Corporation on February 5. The vehicle which has been chosen for Miss Murdock's Mutual debut is entitled "Where Love Is." This is an adaptation of William J. Locke's novel of the same name.

The story of "Where Love Is," revolving around the English aristocracy, deals with the struggles of a young artist for fame and a rising politician to secure a seat in Parliament.

In the cast surrounding Miss Murdock is Henry Stanford, Shirley Mason, Bigelow Cooper, Edith Wright, Helen Strickland, Mabel Trunelle, William Warsworth and Raymond McKee.

On February 5 also will be released the fourth of the Mutual "Featurettes," the two reel "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" stories.

Two one-reel comedies are in the week's program. On February 8 George Ovey will appear in the Cub comedy, "Jerry's Big Raid"; Goldie Colwell and George George also help supply the laughs in this one-reeler.

The Vogue comedy, ready February 11, will be "The Musical Marvel," with Ben Turpin figuring as a piano player in a Western "honky-tonk" or dance hall and opportunity for much Western "atmosphere."

J. Warren Kerrigan, George Periolat, Pauline Bush and Jack Richardson appear in the American contribution scheduled for February 10.

"The Old Sheriff," a one-reel drama, dealing with the life of the West in the days of outlaws, the pursuing posse and the quick-on-the-trigger sheriff.

The seventh chapter of the Mutual photo-novel, "The Perils of Our Girl Reporters" is added to the program this week. "The Smite of Conscience" is the title of this two-reel story.

On February 6 will be ready No. 14 of the "Tours Around the World," showing "Picturesque Landscapes of Holland," "The Temples of Luxor, Egypt" and "The Rocky Coast of Dalmatia."

The Holland views show typical scenes of the entire country—the houses built on piles, windmills with their great canvas wings, meadowlands where sheep graze, canals laden with water craft and peasants in their native garb.

"The Temples of Luxor" depict the grandeur of Egypt fourteen centuries before the birth of Christ. The temple of Medinet-Habu is shown, also the temples of Sethes I and Deirel-Bahri, and statues of Rameses II and Memnon.

The Mutual Weekly with its scollection of interesting news notes comes on February 7, and also No. 74 of "See America First." This release is devoted to "The Mississippi Coast."

On the same reel is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic animated for the screen by Harry Palmer, and entitled "Old Roue Visualized."

Uncle Sam's Defenders No. 6, will be issued on February 9 and Reel Life No. 41 on Feb. 11, rounds out the program.

Next Vita. Blue Ribbon Feb. 5

Following the release of "The Glory of Yolanda," featuring Anita Stewart, as a Blue Ribbon release on January 29, Vitagraph V-L-S-E will release "Money Magic" on February 5.

"Money Magic" features Edith Storey, Antonio Moreno and William Duncan in a story that is entirely different from any recent role in which Miss Storey has been seen. It was produced as the first of Miss Storey's western studio pictures, under the direction of William Wolbert.

The scenes in "Money Magic" show Miss Storey as a mountain girl with big hopes and ambitions of getting somewhere in life, and depict her rescue from this existence only to have another role, even more difficult, forced upon her.

Baren Supplies Special Service

L. Lawrence Baren, director of publicity for Ivan Film Productions, has opened a special office for the purpose of supplying states right buyers, exchangemen and exhibitors throughout the country with novel publicity for the purpose of assisting his customers in making a financial success of their various bookings

Mr. Baren is well qualified for this, having successfully edited and criticised the productions of various prominent producing companies The charge for this publicity will be nominal

Horsley Engages Crompton

David Horsley, producer of the Cub Comedies for the Mutual Film Corporation, as a first move in surrounding himself with capable people to put on more pictures after the present plans, has arranged for the re-engagement of Frank Crompton as technical director of all David Horsley productions.

Frank Crompton is accepted as an authority on technical construction in the motion picture business, in which he has been engaged for the past nine years. Prior to his film experience Mr. Crompton was an architect, located in England, South America and other countries. His extensive traveling, together with his knowledge of architecture, fitted him admirably as a motion picture technician, and when he came to this country in 1906 he presented himself to the Edison Company and was engaged.

Enters Matrimonial Sweepstakes

Cupid has again entered the ranks of the local film circles. This time he invaded the Fox exchange. Carl F. Senning, manager of the Fox exchange, has taken unto himself a wife, Miss Rose Stewart Watson, of New York state. The young lady was a chum of Mr. Senning's youth in Kentucky. The event came as a surprise to film circles here.

Four Thousand Pickford Twenty-Fours Lasted Three Weeks

Investigation of a complaint that Artcraft had failed to live up to promises of "free distribution" of twenty-four sheet posters on Pickford releases, as announced in our issue of November 4, 1916, brings an illuminating denial from the Artcraft executive offices. The extent of the costly generosity of this company is laid bare in the discovery that four thousand posters, saving to exhibitors eight thousand dollars, were called for before the original issue and several subsequent issues gave out.

As originally announced, free distribution of "several thousand 24-sheet stands" was promised. The Pickford Company, producing for Artcraft, had agreed to share the burden of this expense as advance publicity, believing that distributing this money direct to the exhibitor and on condition that he add to it the cost of posting, would be good advance advertising.

Artcraft, as Mr. Lichtman explains, operates on a very small percentage as distributor for the Pickford Company, and was compelled in many cases to purchase and give exhibitors twenty-four sheets, promised to customers by enthusiastic branch managers, before notice could reach them that the limit of distribution had been passed. This cost the distributing company alone bore, in order that its good faith could not be questioned. Artcraft had to pay for these posters out of its small margin of allowance as a distributor, the Pickford Company's percentage of receipts having to be paid them in order that their costly standard of production might be maintained.

Three weeks after the announcement in the NEWS, more than four thousand stands had been furnished. This fact will explain where the "several thousand" promised went to.

Helping the Exhibitor

(Continued from page 870)

in the Loop, and was put over by a remarkable newspaper advertising campaign. When the exhibitor ran his program copy for the day in which the picture was to be shown he played to capacity houses—but on the second day he found them coming stronger than they did the first day—and found the newspaper had erroneously repeated his ad. These are but few examples of the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising.

When the film manufacturer and exchange man thoroughly realize the necessity for adequately aiding the exhibitor, and are willing to do so, they will seek the most effective medium for reaching and interesting their market and his. They will find it necessary to help him when helping themselves—and the fact that he enjoys prosperity because of the increased patronage will mean increased prosperity all the way down the line.

They seek additional business. They are going after it. They will get it, but the medium they will use will not be poster displays nor hand bills nor any of the commonly considered mediums, but will be the medium which has proven the most effective.

Sterner Laws Aimed at Chicago and Illinois Exhibitors

An organization of Illinois club women is seeking to force a state-wide censorship bill through the Illinois legislature. These agitators have recently investigated 1,765 features shown in different sections of Illinois, and declare 1,045 of these to be "immoral," while 300 are stigmatized as having "no excuse for being made." These women are advocating a law similar to the one now in force in Ohio. Several members of the legislature are said to be aiding the women in their campaign, hoping to thereby win the large women's vote.

The Chicago F. I. L. M. Club, an exchangemen's organization, is actively fighting the proposed measure. A committee consisting of David Alexander, J. L. Friedman, I. Von Ronkle, F. M. Brockell, and Ralph Proctor, has been appointed by the club to investigate the best methods of attack. One of the arguments that will be used is the evil effects of the censorship laws in Pennsylvania.

Three new ordinances aimed at the long-suffering Chicago exhibitors will shortly come up before the city council. One of these seeks to make the powers of the local censorship board absolute. At present, if a film is rejected by the board an appeal can be made to the chief of police, or to the mayor, and the board's decision can be set aside. One instance of this that will be recalled is that of "The Little Girl Next Door," which was passed by the mayor and city council after the board's rejection. Under the proposed ordinance one man (presumably Major Funkhouser) would have absolute authority, and no appeal may be made.

A tax of $1.00 per reel to cover the cost (!) of censoring is also proposed. This would apply to all productions shown in Chicago.

An ordinance now before the council advocates a sliding scale of license fees for moving picture theatres according to their seating capacities. The proposed schedule is as follows:

Seating Capacity.	Tax.
300 or less	$200
300-600	350
600-1,000	500
1,000-1,500	700
1,500 or more	1,000

These taxes could not be pro-rated. A theatre in operation any fraction of a year would have to pay an entire year's tax.

Alderman Horn is chairman of the sub-committee that drafted this license schedule.

Decision in Moss-Ivan Suit

Justice Cohalan of the Supreme Court, New York, has handed down a decision in the case of the B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation vs. The Ivan Film Corporation, which arose out of alleged similarity of titles of the Moss picture, "The Girl Who Doesn't Know," and the Ivan picture, "The Girl Who Did Not Care."

Justice Cohalan decided that the similarity of names was not sufficient to justify an injunction restraining presentation of the Ivan picture.

Unicorn Will Reorganize at $5,000,000

Bankruptcy Proceedings Have Been Filed, but Company Will Proceed as Formerly—New Exchanges Are Added

DESPITE the fact that proceedings in bankruptcy were filed some days ago against the Unicorn Film Service Corporation, of 126-130 West 46th street, it is asserted, that the concern is to continue business, on a reorganized basis and upon a larger scale than heretofore. $5,000,000 will be back of the reorganized concern.

Several additional exchanges will be added to those recently under operation, including branches in Atlanta, Ga.; New Orleans, La.; Dallas, Tex.; Seattle, Wash.; Butte, Mont.; and El Paso, Texas, and Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal.

The report, as confirmed by officials of the company, includes the fact that an entirely new policy will be adopted. As at present formulated, the new Unicorn idea, is one five-reel feature, two three-reel features; three two-reel features, and three single reels and specials, each week.

Mr. Schlank and John L. Lyttle, the attorney, have been appointed receivers for the Unicorn Film Service Corporation.

Mr. Schlank said:

"There is no reason to suppose other than that the Unicorn Film Service Corporation, will be reorganized on a firmer and more ambitious basis. The rights to important productions, as well as to short reel subjects which the concern controls, establishes it upon a firm footing."

Rialto Leads Two Programs with Vitagraph Films

Another Vitagraph subject will follow "The Courage of Silence," showing this week at the Rialto, on the February 4 program of that house. This will be "Arsene Lupin," a five-reel presentation from the detective novel and stage play. On the regular Vitagraph Blue Ribbon program this will be released on February 26.

Earle Williams is starred in the picture. In the supporting cast are Ethel Gray Terry, Billie Billings, Julia Swayne Gordon, Miss Krause, Miss Best, and Ida Tiebel; Frank Morgan, Harry Leone, Bernard Seigel, Gordon Gray, Logan Paul, Hugh Wynn, and Mr. Wright.

"The Courage of Silence," which is released on the Vitagraph-V-L-S-E program on February 12, co-stars Alice Joyce and Harry Morey. Others in the cast are Willie Johnson, Mildred May, Cleo Ayres, Robert Gaillard, Walter McGrail, Anders Randolf, and Dorothy Conroy.

Anna Little Joins Selznick

An engagement of unusual interest to all exhibitors is that of Anna Little, the former American and Universal star, to play opposite Robert Warwick in the Selznick-Picture production of E. Phillips Oppenheim's stirring novel, "The Court of St. Simon."

Although only on the screen four years Miss Little has a large following and has achieved a reputation as one of the prettiest and most talented of the younger leading women of the films.

Miss Little is a typical product of California's balmy clime, although many of her early years were spent in Chicago.

Burger's Work with I. F. S. Is Ended

The work of consolidation of business of International with Pathe having been completed, J. K. Burger no longer remains with the International Film Service at the head of their exchange organization. Just what his future movements will be, Mr. Burger, who is known as "Simon Legree" Burger to exchangemen and exhibitors alike, refuses to state definitely, but he will remain in the motion picture business.

Hornig Made President of Maryland League

Frank A. Hornig, one of the best known exhibitors of Baltimore, has been elected president of the Maryland Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. Mr. Hornig conducts two theatres in the southwestern section of Baltimore. Other officers elected at last Sunday's meeting were Louis DeHuff, manager of the New theatre, first vice-president; Eugene B. McCurdy, of the Eureka and Lafayette theatres, second vice-president; Thomas D. Goldberg, of the Goldberg and New Gordon theatres, secretary, and William Stumpf, of the Goodtime theatre, treasurer.

A constitution and by-laws were adopted and other matters of interest in the organization were disposed of. Upon the suggestion of J. Louis Rome it was decided to divide the city into nine districts and each district should be represented on the board of directors.

Rothacker Stock Dividend

At the recent annual stockholders' meeting of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, the following directors were elected:

Watterson R. Rothacker, chairman; H. J. Aldous; N. J. Baumer, A. A. Rothacker, David Beaton, Jr.

A dividend of 7 per cent. on the preferred stock of the corporation was also declared and paid this month.

The Rothacker Company claims to be the first organization to use elevated railroad advertising stands, as they are doing, to direct the public to the laboratory studio.

Sanger Announces Signing of Margaret Anglin

After the mystery which has so long enveloped the plans of the Sanger Picture Plays Corporation and the many conjectures chanced by those on the outside wondering, Eugene B. Sanger, the firm's president, announces that he has signed Margaret Anglin as one of his stars. Other names, equally well known, are promised shortly. This is Miss Anglin's initial entrance into the realm of motion pictures.

TABLOID REVIEWS FOR BUSY EXHIBITORS

Art Dramas, Inc., Program

"The Hoodooed Story." (Essanay. Screen time, twenty-eight minutes.. C. D. To be released Tues., Feb. 6.)—Synopsis: Smith, a magazine writer, finds he has made a mistake; his best story is rejected by the editor. That evening highwaymen rob Smith of the manuscript and his last 30 cents. Then the editor writes him that the stenographer has erred in returning the story, Smith therefore hustles to recover same, and again the editor rejects the story. Through it all Smith meets and marries the stenographer and has no further trouble marketing his literary effusions.

"Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 24." Cartoon by Wallace Carlson with Alaskan Scenic. (Essanay. Screen time, fifteen minutes. To be released Wed., Feb. 7.)—Synopsis: The great banquet of the Ancient Order of Enemies of Toil at the Hotel Fritzcarlson, New York City, where 500 Weary Willies are each supplied with a keg of beer and a tube. Followed by scenes from the preparatory school for young brides where embryo matrons are educated in the proper way to "bean" a husband with a rolling-pin or stove poker. The other half of the reel is devoted to Alaskan and Yukon scenery.

"Desertion and Non-Support." (Essanay. D. Screen time, twenty-seven minutes. To be released Sat., Feb. 10.) Synopsis: Mary Monroe (Lillian Drew) and Charles Hayward (Edward Arnold are eugenically married, but it later would appear that the medical test was a failure and Charles shows symptoms of lung trouble. Mary, horrified, quits him and he goes West. After a year it is decided that his lungs are sound, but he has fallen heir to a fortune and also fallen in love with his nurse. Mary hears of this and journeys West to claim him. Failing in this, she sues him for desertion and non-support, but the case is thrown out of court because it was she who deserted him.

"Lost and Found." (Selig. Two reels. Mon., Jan. 29.)—An unusually good cast for a two-reeler appears in this film. The players are George Fawcett, Vivian Reed, Charles Le Moyne, and Thomas Guinan. The last mentioned actor plays the hero, and is the only miscast player. The plot is pretty threadbare in spots, but the interest is maintained fairly consistently. Captain Hendricks, a retired sailor, wants his daughter to marry Brooks. She loves Morgan, but the Captain objects to the man because he wears a bracelet. One night Brooks attacks the girl, but Morgan shoots him. A noted lawyer finds that Morgan is his long-lost son, identifying him by the bracelet. Morgan is found innocent of the murder, and marries the Captain's daughter.

"Wolf of Los Alamos." (Kalem. Episode of "The Girl from 'Frisco" Series. Two reels.)—In this episode John Wallace (True Boardman) bids good bye to Kalem and does it with grace and dignity. "I have come to say good-bye," he says; "Congress convenes next week and I must go to Washington," but Marin Sais as Barbara Brent shows of what sterling stuff she is made, for besides rounding up and lassoing a Hindoo cook, she has a terrific fall from her horse down the side of a steep cliff. This film maintains the keenness of interest as displayed in the former episodes; the picturization is good, the exteriors in some instances are remarkable and Marin Sais also proves herself an adept with the lariat. The picture should prove a winner wherever "The Girl from 'Frisco" has been introduced.

"The Blundering Blacksmiths." (Kalem. One reel.)—Ham and Bud are forever bursting out in some new phase of comedy and in this they are as farcical and harmless as ever. An open flirtation with the village belle—in church—is the introduction, Ham casting googoo eyes and Bud kicking and nudging him to compel behavior—then next day the foreclosing of a mortgage because the village belle (Ethel Teare) will not marry Hiram Hardheart (Henry Murdoch). The belle's father cannot raise the $1,000 necessary to save the home and she in desperation seeks aid of the village blacksmith. "Do or die" is evidently his motto, for he engages in a fistic encounter with "One Punch Murph," a pugilist of renown. The purse is $1,000. Ham wins. The mortgage is lifted. The belle and her father are happy and Hiram mortified. A thoroughly clean picture, plenty of comedy and well produced.

"The Violet Ray." (Kalem. Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter." One reel.)—Intense dramatic scenes reveal themselves ever and anon in this interesting series and George Larkin as the police reporter has honors anew thrust upon him. The theme deals with the perfection of a powerful violet ray mechanism by James Manlove (Cyril Courtney), a retired naval engineer, and the endeavors of secret agents of a foreign country (presumably Russia, to judge from their names—Dimitri and Orloff) to obtain the secret of controlling the ray. Failing to get same from the inventor, these agents blind him with his own mechanism, and then capture Marjorie, his daughter (Ollie Kirkby), who also knows the process. She refuses to give it up and is about to be subjected to the same fate as befell her father, when Grant appears upon the scene and with one shot from his revolver smashes the switch controlling the machine, covers the agents with his gun and marshals them to the office of the chief of police. A highly interesting picture and worthy of being classed with any of its predecessors in this series.

"The Death Siding." (Kalem. Episode of "Hazards of Helen" Series. One reel.)—Typically Western and proving beyond a shadow of a doubt that a Mexican greaser is persona non grata in certain "cow centres," for after Ramon (Richard Johnson), a greaser, has been forcibly ejected from a saloon and just as forcibly advised to "beat it" out of town by a gang of cowpunchers from the "Lazy H" ranch, two other Mexicans steal a couple of horses belonging to two of the aforementioned cowboys. Ramon, of course, is suspected and a wild chase ensues. Seeing himself pursued he seeks shelter in the railway station at Lone Point and Helen (Helen Gibson), the operator, hearing his story, secretes him just as some of the cowboys ride up. Some stirring dramatic situations follow, also a thrill or two—one, in particular, where Ramon and Helen, chasing a runaway flat car, Ramon lassos one of the standards of the car and holds the rope taut from his hold on horseback while Helen, hand over hand, gains the car, applies the brake and prevents a head-on collision with the Limited. In the meantime Ramon has to cut the rope to prevent his coming into contact with a "dead" box car on the siding, and in so doing both he and horse are precipitated down the embankment. The horse is killed, Ramon injured, but in the meantime the real thieves are captured and the sheriff guesses "we don't mind if you stick around town after all." A vivid picture indeed of drawing false conclusions, but the picture itself is sufficiently illustrative without some of the superfluous subtitles.

Mutual Program

"Shorty Goes to College." (Monogram. No. 3 of "The Adventures of Shorty Hamilton." Two reels. C.-D. Mon., Jan. 22.)—A concise story of Shorty's discharge from a ranch because of his "ultra" Western ways. There are a number of good ranch episodes brought into the earlier part of the film and some mighty good scholastic features in the latter part. The subject of the sketch, a self-styled "roughneck," gets a chance of a college course on account of his rough and tumble antics, and his valor on the football field gains for him the admiration of the Dean's daughter Ruth. Ruth has another admirer — the professor of mineralogy — and Shorty is in his class. So the plot thickens. Shorty, a roughneck, Ruth a somnambulist and the professor a jealous suitor. Shorty is backward in his studies, and particularly in his English, is, through a chain of circumstances almost found guilty of theft—several uncut diamonds being missing from the Dean's safe and subsequently being found on Shorty's person. But Shorty is game—Ruth's nocturnal peregrinations he will not give away and matters look mightily serious until Ruth declares herself and the Professor, who has been unduly active, is "ducked" in a water trough and Shorty decides to go back to the ranch.

"Mutual Tours Around the World," No. 13. (Gaumont. One reel. Trav. Tues., Jan. 30.)—The picture conducts us to Teheran, the capital of Persia, where we are introduced to some of the many interesting phases of Persian life. An old mosque is reproduced, several Persian types of humanity are flashed upon the screen and then road travel through the El Burz Mountains is described by means of wagon and horses. The beautiful caves and glens and massive peaks are delightfully presented, after which the coast resorts of quaint old Normandy are visited. Etretat, Honfleur and Trouville, with their beautiful scenery and odd architecture, engage one's undivided attention. Winter sports are depicted and the picture closes with a most realistic skiing contest, where experts are shown covering vast spaces over the snowy slopes.

"See America First," No. 73. "Never Again." Komic Kartoon. (Gaumont. Split reel. Sc. and C. Cart. Wed., Jan. 31.)—San Diego and surrounding country on the Pacific Coast are delightfully treated in this number of an interesting series. Places of historic interest are pictured, with brief explanatory subtitles. The camera is made to do wonderfully clever work, as the views are all well selected and clearly reproduced. Sunset Cliffs, the Bennington Monument, Ramona's Marriage Place, Soledad Canyon, the Residence of Mme. Schumann-Heink, Balboa Park, Pigeons' Tower, Union Station, Sweetwater Dam, Sunny Jim Cave, Temple of Peace at Point Loma, and many other edifices and scenes are faithfully depicted, all of which render this reel highly instructive and most interesting.

The latter half of the reel is given over to a comic cartoon by Harry Palmer. "Never Again" is the oath taken by a man after smoking cigars presented to him by his wife at Christmas. He lights one and throws it from a window. A caged parrot gets it and is sickened. He tries another and in disgust throws it away from him. It strikes the sidewalk and its fumes asphyxiate a policeman. He finally throws the whole box out, only to have it returned by a street cleaner.

"Retribution." (Signal-Mutual. Two reels. Drama. Mon., Jan. 29.)—This is the fifteenth and last episode of "A Lass of the Lumberlands" series and in it the doom of Dollar Holmes is sealed. First he was compelled to wed his son Stephen's mother and in his endeavors to oust Dawson from the Indian lands he seeks the aid of the courts which really brings about his downfall. But even then the law is cheated of its rightful prey, for Dollar Holmes comes to his death in a railroad collision. All the exteriors in this picture are realistic reflections of the West, the characters taking part are all truly Western and the whole series, including this last instalment, reflect creditably upon the producers, directors and actors alike.

"Jerry and the Outlaws." (Cub. One reel. Comedy. Thurs., Jan. 25.)—This is a really laughable picture, the situations are novel in the main, and where old have been redressed to conceal their identity. The photographic work is clear and most of the scenes are well selected. George Ovey is featured and he takes full advantage of every opportunity. The picture opens with Ovey as Jerry serenading his best girl, he snugly nestled in the branches of a tree, then comes the old man's ire, a little shooting, a policeman overcome by Jerry, who dons the officer's tunic, cap and belt. In this rig he obtains the stern parent's arrest and manages to elope with his girl. They fall into the hands of three fierce-looking bandits and while the bandits are gambling for the girl, Jerry steals their revolvers and performs a few antics. Here more police come on the scene to arrest him, but as he has "rounded up" the three bandits he escapes arrest and receives the congratulations of the police captain. A worthy successor to prior Ovey comedies.

"Circus Cyclone." (Vogue-Mutual. Two reels.) The funniest thing in this extravagant farce is Paddy McQuire made up as an elephant. An animal given human traits will invariably get a laugh, even when only an animal skin is used. Gypsy Abbott is the girl beloved by an artist and a baron. Her mother favors the nobleman; Gypsy loves the artist. Love is not always blind, at least not to its rival's failings. The artist suspects the baron and tracks him. Sure enough, the pretended noble turns out to be an all-around handy man in a circus, a would-be lady killer, and a petty thief. The artist has some lively experiences before he accomplishes the arrest of the baron and wins the girl. He does all this through the intervention of a "dog-faced boy," who disguises himself as a trained elephant and breaks up a circus performance. If you want to know how easily a man can manipulate a trunk and a tail at short notice, you must see Paddy McQuire in a "Circus Cyclone."

"Uncle Sam's Defenders," Nos. 5-6. These are two very good reels, showing "Scouts of the Sea and Air" and "Bull Dogs of the Deep." Rows of hangars and aviators testing hydroaeroplanes, a Curtiss flyer, with Lieutenant Young, a daring aviator, in the machine, are shown. A 500-pound projectile and an 11,000-ton destroyer are some of the efficient instruments of war seen. Mine laying and recovering a mine is most informing. Thirty-seven sea fighters in street formation is demonstrated in Guantanamo Bay. Clearing the decks for action, battle formation and target practice are most inspiring. Night on Guantanamo Bay, a flag, and a patriotic verse about "Love, Law and Hope," winds up this excellent reel

Universal Program

"Why, Uncle!" (Nestor. Mon., Jan. 29.)—This comedy from a story by Bess Meredyth shows an uncle and his nephew who are good sports, both of them, awaiting the arrival of a relative who is purported to be an "angel." But in reality he is a good sport himself and all the posing as angels by all three parties goes for naught, as in the end the happy truth is discovered. Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran, Priscilla Dean and Fred Gamble put this comedy over in excellent style.

"June Madness." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Tues., Jan. 30.)—A diverting release concerning a man who professed to be a woman hater but who is caught at last when he least expected it. The humor of this picture lies in its many touches written in by the author, Willis Woods. Everyone makes love in June, they confirm, and the many glimpses of ardent love-making which the bachelor sees all about him serve to emphasize his comical plight. The picture would benefit by judicious editing, although even in its present state it makes entertainment of above-the-average sort. Roy Stewart, Gypsey Harte, Wadsworth Harris and Kingsley Benedict are the leads.

"Faking Fakirs." (L-Ko. Two reels. Wed., Jan. 31.)—Rival concessionists at a seaside resort gyrate in this L-Ko, which is somewhat below the high standard that the company has been setting of late. There is more plot than action and the picture drags quite a bit. The scenes in which the principals ride on the scenic railway are quite too jerky for real amusement. The laughs in this come chiefly in the first few feet of the picture. Later it slows down considerably. Phil Dunham and Lucille Hutton are the principals.

"It's Cheaper to be Married." (Victor. Thurs., Feb. 1.)—Being a bachelor deprives a fellow of an expected fortune and gives it to his brother, who is married. A very good comedy in which Ralph McComas, a fat man who is not vulgar, Eileen Sedgwick and Milton Sims have the principal roles. The latter is a very good comedian, having a simple face which he knows how to employ to comical advantage.

"The War Waif." (Universal Special. Two reels. Thurs., Feb. 1.)—A pathetic story of the European war is presented in an excellent fashion in this picture, written by Grace Helen Bailey and produced by Allan Holubar. An English colonel, unfit for service because of the loss of an arm, turns his mansion into a hospital. A French soldier is one of his patients and the manner in which he is reunited with his child is effected in a most touching way. Scenes and settings are all excellent. Little Zoe Rae, Holubar himself, Irene Hunt and Nellie Allen are the leads.

"The Forbidden Game." (Imp. Two reels. Fri., Feb. 2.)—This is a crook melodrama of a rich young man who is leader of a gang just for the fun of it. It starts in at such a furious pace, including a murder and a free-for-all fight, that the spectator is somewhat bewildered. The action, of course, doesn't rise after the usual fashion, but drops considerably in tempo and with it the interest is lessened. However, the lovers of the crook melodrama will find much to entertain them in this release. Ben Cohn wrote the story, and in the cast appear Edward Hearn, Richard Ryan and Franzie Gunn.

"The Hero of Bunko Hill." (Victor. Fri., Feb. 2.)—Another of Captain Peacocke's offerings—a little too broad in spots but containing a good comedy idea well done on the whole. A stranded actor, to gain funds for his company, is led to pose as the long lost son of a native. The son had no teeth and was tattooed all over, and the actor is obliged to suffer tortures at the hands of the dentists and tattooists and even then the ruse is not successful.

"His Coming Out Party." (Joker. Sat., Feb. 3.)—William Franey and Milburn Moranti, as the better halves of their respective families, have a high old time sneaking off to play poker, while Gale Henry and Lillian Peacock remain at home contriving means to put an end to it. They eventually succeed after the reel has passed with an average number of gags of the usual Joker sort.

"Diamonds of Destiny." (Imp. Sun., Feb. 4.)—A girl to save her brother from execution agrees to pull one more trick for the gang. The job is to procure some diamonds from a collector. She starts on her campaign, but falls in love with the victim and, of course, there is the usual happy ending after a good many scenes of considerable suspense have appeared. Louise Lovely, Paul Byron, Alfred Allen and Victor Rottman are the leads.

Pathe Program

"Skinny's Love Tangle." (Rolin. Split reel. Week of Feb. 11.)—The fat boy of the Rolin studio has the lead in this fairly humorous half reel, in which he plays practical jokes on every one present at a Hallowe'en party. On the same reel with "Schemer Skinny's Scandal."

"Schemer Skinny's Scandal." (Rolin. Split reel. Week of Feb. 11.)—A country boarding house is the scene of this comedy in which numerous and sometimes humorous conventional tricks are pulled. Fatty is again the leading light and is furnished good support by practically every other member of the Rolin studio. On the same reel with "Skinny's Love Tangle."

"Childish Delights." (Pathe. Split reel. Week of Feb. 11.)—This half-reel which is in color, shows the activities of a baby. Most of the fun arrives when it proceeds to take a bath. Every bit as good as the average comedy. On the same reel with "Florence Rose Fashions," No. 18.

"In Southern Highlands." Pathe. Split reel. Week of Feb. 11.)—Interesting scenes in the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina divide this reel with an animated cartoon, "Der Captain is Examined for Insurance."

Weeklies

Mutual Weekly, No. 108. (Gaumont.) At Marblehead, Mass., a cob-webby-looking flying machine is in the course of construction to compete against torpedo boats. Inaugural shoes for Mr. Wilson are made at Brockton, Mass. The perfect footwear is made, marked and packed, ready for the approaching function. The first Serbian minister to the United States arrives in Washington. Suffragettes picket the White House. According to the screen that part of Jersey affected by the $4,000,000 explosion looks like a war-scourged battlefield in Belgium. A Spanish submarine is visiting New London. Miss Sybil Carmen demonstrates the new Pontine coat with hat to match. A little Pontine bag, puffed around a walking stick is fanciful and catchy; it looks like a closed sunshade. Hosettes, are quite alarming at first glance, "but we have to come to them yet." They are nifty—or was it the limbs of the pretty model? Mail for the boys in the trenches shows that the Allies do not allow anything to hinder the letter from home. The funeral of Admiral Dewey is impressive. The procession is seen leaving the Capitol. Forest Rangers entertained by firemen is interesting. Climbing in snow shoes in the Ranier Mountains looks exciting. Some walk, but more roll.

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 9. (Saturday, January 27.)—Congressional committee ready to investigate Wall street leak, New York City; fancy skating by well known amateurs and professionals, Mill Neck, L. I.; Francis Heany delivers the deciding electoral vote for President Wilson's re-election to Vice-President Marshall, Washington, D. C.; funeral procession of Yuan Shi-Kai, first president of China, Pekin, China; installation of the Right Reverend Michael J. O'Doherty as archbishop for the diocese of the Far East, Manila, P. I.; "Billy Sunday's Tabernacle," an animated cartoon by F. M. Follett; elk and antelope forsake mountain tops, Yellowstone Park, Wyo.; Admiral William G. Benson, who succeeds the late Admiral Dewey as ranking senior officer of the American Navy, Washington, D. C.; U. S. S. Mississippi launched, Newport News, Va.

"Hearst-Pathe News, No. 5." (Pathe. Sat., Jan. 13.)—This reel shows Uncle Sam's boys in khaki drilling to the rhythmic strains of the band at Brownsville, Tex.; six silent suffrage sentinels picketing the entrances to the White House to impress President Wilson with their cause; observation balloons roaming over the enemy's territory, adjoining the Mediterranean Sea, in search of plans and formations; animated cartoon by Leighton Budd; Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President; the Harvard hockey team beginning early practice for the Intercollegiate championship contest; the superdreadnought Pennsylvania leaving Brooklyn Navy Yard to participate in the winter target practice at the Guantanamo drill grounds; a second "Black Tom" explosion rocks the East as a half million shells are exploded, causing $10,000,000 loss, and the simple ceremonies of the inauguration of Col. Frank O. Lowden as the new Governor of Illinois.

K-E-S-E Program

"Adventures of Buffalo Bill." (K-E-S-E. Screen time, one hour and fifteen minutes.)—Synopsis: The late Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), is shown in the early days of his thilling career as a pony express rider in the pioneer West; later as hunter of buffaloes and then as the chief Indian scout for the United States Army. Appearing with Buffalo Bill in the picturizations of the Indian battles which follow are Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, Major-General Jesse M. Lee, Brigadier-Generals Frank D. Baldwin and Marion P. Maus, and other heroic figures of the pioneer days. Historically accurate versions of the Battle of Summit Springs, the battle of Warbonnet, Colonel Cody's knife duel with the Sioux Chief, Yellow Hand, and his fight with Chief Tall Bull, in which the Indians were killed, are shown. Five thousand United States troops and Indians participate in the battles. Buffalo Bill's later life, giving intimate glimpses of him at home, and of his great hunting expeditions, including that on which he guided the Prince of Monaco after big game in the Rockies, concludes the picture.

The ADMIRAL DEWEY FUNERAL

500 FEET—12 Cents Per Foot

NOW READY FOR DELIVERY Wire Your Order at Once

METRO FILM SERVICE CO. WASHINGTON, D. C.

LOBBY DISPLAY FRAME SPECIALISTS

MENGER & RING, Inc.

NEW YORK 304 W. 42nd St. CHICAGO 2021 Federal St. ATLANTA, GA. Southern Theatre Equipment Co.

Complete Settings

for Motion Picture and Stage Productions

Furniture — Properties

All makes and periods. All descriptions.

Dealers, Builders and Furnishers of every studio stage essential

RENTALS SALES CONTRACTS

The William Bradley Studios

318 West 43d Street, N. Y. 'Phone, Bryant. 8173

FEATURES—CURRENT AND COMING

Art Dramas, Inc.

Dec.—21. Lash of Destiny (Gertrude McCoy) 5
Dec.—28. Whoso Taketh a Wife (Jean Sothern) 5
Jan.— 4. The Rainbow (Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill) 5
Jan. 11. Infidelity (Anna Q. Nilsson and Eugene Strong), Erbograph 5
Jan. 18. God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon), Apollo 5
Jan. 25. Her Good Name (Jean Sothern), Van Dyke 5
Feb. 1. Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana), Apolo 5
Feb. 8. The Accomplice (Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill), Wm. L. Sherrill Feat. Corp. 5
Feb. 15. The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilsson and Walter Hitchcock), Erbograph 5
Feb. 22. Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon), Apollo 5

Artcraft Pictures

Nov.— 6. Less Than the Dust (Mary Pickford) 5
Jan.— 8. The Pride of the Clan (Mary Pickford.)

Bluebird Photoplays

Jan.— 8. The Piper's Price (Dorothy Phillips) 5
Jan.—15. Her Soul's Inspiration (Ella Hall) 5
Jan.—22. God's Crucible (George Hermandez, Myrtle Gonzales and Val Paul) 5
Jan.—29. The Devil's Pay Day (Franklin Farnum) 5
Feb.— 5. The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford and Mary MacLaren) 5
Feb.—12. The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Nowell and Betty Shade) 5
Feb.—19. The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum and Agnes Vernon) 5
Feb.—26. The Saintly Sinner (Ruth Stonehouse) 5
Mar. 5. The Boy Girl (Violet Mersereau) 5

Fox Film Corporation

Jan.— 8. The Price of Silence (William Farnum) 5
Jan.— 8. A Modern Cinderella (June Caprice) 5
Jan.—15. Bitter Truth (Virginia Pearson) 5
Jan.—22. The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara). 5
Jan.—22. The Primitive Call (Gladys Coburn) 5
Jan.—29. One Touch of Sin (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb.— 5. The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt) 5
Feb.—12. North of 53 (Dustin Farnum) 5
Feb. 12. The Scarlet Letter (Stuart Holmes). 5
Feb. 19. Title not announced (June Caprice). 5
Feb. 19. The Tiger Woman (Theda Bara) 5
Feb. 26. Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson) 5

Ivan Feature Productions

Dec. 1. The Sex Lure (The Girl Who Did Not Care—Title in Greater New York) 6
Jan. —Enlighten Thy Daughter (Frank Sheridan, Katherine Kaelred, James Morrison and Marie Shotwell) 5

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Jan. 8. The Master Passion (Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness) Edison. 5
Jan. 15. Little Shoes (Henry B. Walthall and Mary Charleson), Essanay 5
Jan. 22. Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed), Selig 5
Feb. 5. Skinner's Dress Suit 5
Feb. 12. The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton, George Fawcett and Frank Campesu), Selig 5
Feb. 19. The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore), Edison 5
Mar. 5. The Trufflers (Nell Craig), Essanay 5
Mar. 12. Little Lost Sister (Selig) 5

McClure Pictures*

Jan. 29. Seven Deadly Sins, "Envy" (Ann Murdock, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 5. Seven Deadly Sins, "Pride" (Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 12. Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guerre) 5
Feb. 19. Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 26. Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Mar. 5. Seven Deadly Sins, "Sloth" (Charlotte Walker, Shirley Mason, and George Le Guere) 5
*Released through Triangle Exchanges.

Metro Pictures Corporation

Jan. 8. A Wife by Proxy (Mabel Taliaferro), Columbia 5
Jan. 15. The White Raven (Ethel Barrymore), Rolfe 5
Jan. 22. The Threads of Fate (Viola Dana), Columbia 5
Jan. 29. Bridges Burned (Madame Petrova), Popular Plays and Players 5
Feb. 5. The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore), Columbia 5
Feb. 12. One of Many (Frances Nelson), 5
Feb. 19. The Promise (Harold Lockwood and May Allison), Yorke 5
Feb. 20. The Secret of Eve (Mme. Petrova), Columbia 5
Mar. 5. The Belle of the Season (Emmy Wehlen), Rolfe 5
Mar. 12. The Beautiful Lie (Frances Nelson), Rolfe 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Jan. 8. The Butterfly Girl (Margarita Fischer), Fischer 5
Jan. 15. Beloved Rogues (Kolb and Dill), American 5
Jan. 22. The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter), American 5
Jan. 29. Pardners (Charlotte Walker) 5
Feb. 5. Where Love Is (Ann Murdock), Mutual 5

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Jan. 8. Great Expectations (Louise Huff and Jack Pickford), Famous Players 5
Jan. 11. The Happiness of Three Women (Myrtle Stedman and House Peters), Morosco 5
Jan. 15. Betty to the Rescue (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5
Jan. 18. A Girl Like That (Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore), Famous Players 5
Jan. 22. Lost and Won (Marie Doro), Lasky 5
Jan. 25. The Golden Fetter (Anita King and Wallace Reid), Lasky 5
Jan. 29. His Sweetheart (George Beban), Morosco 5
Feb. 1. The Wax Model (Vivian Martin), Pallas 5
Feb. 5. Each To His Kind (Sessue Hayakawa), Lasky 5
Feb. 8. Her Own People (Lenore Ulrich), Pallas 5
Feb. 12. The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen), Lasky 5
Feb. 15. The American Consul (Theodore Roberts), Lasky 5
Feb. 19. Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5
Feb. 22. On Record (Mae Murray), Lasky 5
Feb. 26. The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark), Famous Players 5
Mar 1. Those Without Sin (Blanche Sweet), Lasky 5
Mar. 5. Sapho (Pauline Fredericks), Famous Players 5
Mar. 8. Out of the Wreck (Kathlyn Williams), Morosco 5
Mar. 12. Castles for Two (Marie Doro), Lasky 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS

Jan. 7. Her New York (Gladys Hulette, William Parke, Jr., and Robert Vaughn), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 14. Kick In (William Courtney, Mollie King, Robert Clugston and Suzanne Willa), Astra 5
Jan. 21. The Image Maker (Valkyrien), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 28. Twin Kiddies (Baby Marie Osborne, Henry King, Daniel Gilfether, R. Henry Gray and Loretta Beecker), Balboa 5
Feb. 4. A Modern Monte Cristo (Vincent Serrano, Thomas A. Curran, Helen Badgley and Boyd Marshall), Thanhouser 5
Feb. 11. Sold at Auction (Wm. Conklin, Lois Meredith, Marguerite Nicholas and Frank Mayo), Balboa 5
Feb. 18. Her Life and His (Florence La Badie, H. R. Herbert, Jeanne La Motte, Joe Phillips, Harris Gordon, and Ethyle Cooke), Thanhouser 5
Coming—When My Ship Comes In (Jane Grey), International 5

Red Feather Productions

Jan. 8. Fighting for Love (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5
Jan. 15. The Double Room Mystery (Hayward Mack and Ed. Hearn) 5
Jan. 22. Heart Strings (Allen Holubar and Maude George) 5
Jan. 29. Love Aflame (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5
Feb. 5. The Scarlet Crystal (Herbert Rawlinson, Betty Schade and Dorothy Davenport) 5
Feb. 12. Me and M' Pal (Edna Flugarth) 5

Selznick Pictures

Dec. 1. War Brides (Mme. Nazimova), Herbert Brenon, Prod. 8
Dec. 18. The Foolish Virgin (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. —. The Argyle Case (Robert Warwick) 5
Jan. —. The Eternal Sin (Florence Reed and William E. Shay), Herbert Brenon Prod. 5
Jan. —. Panthea (Norma Talmadge) 5

Triangle Film Corporation

Jan. 7. Truthful Tulliver (W. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 7. The Weaker Sex (Dalton-Chas. Ray-Glaum), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 14. The Little Yank (G. Gish), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 14. The Bride of Hate (Keenan-Margery Wilson), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 21. Nina, the Flower Girl (Love), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 21. The Iced Bullet (Wm. Desmond), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 28. The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 28. Chicken Casey (Dalton), Kay Bee. 5
Feb. 4. Jim Bludso (Lucas), Fine Arts 5
Feb. 4. The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 11. The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge), Fine Arts 5
Feb. 11. The Gun Fighter (Wm. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 18. The Village Prodigal (Robert Harron), Fine Arts 5
Feb. 18. A Princess of the Dark (Enid Bennett), Ince-Kay Bee 5

Unity Sales Corporation

Dec. 1. Land Just Over Yonder 6
Dec. 15. Humanizing Mr. Winsby 5
Jan. 15. Glory 7

Vitagraph—V-L-S-E

Jan. 8. The Man of Mystery (E. H. Sothern) 5
Jan. 15. Blind Justice (Benj. Christie) 7
Jan. 22. Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland). 5
Jan. 29. The Glory of Yolanda (Anita Stewart) 5
Feb. 5. Money Magic (Edith Storey, Wm. Duncan and Antonio Moreno) 5
Feb. 12. The Courage of Silence (Alice Joyce and Harry Morey) 5
Feb. 19. Kitty Mackay (Lilian Walker) 5
Feb. 26. Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams) 5
Mar. 5. Intrigue (Peggy Hyland, Marc McDermott and Bobby Connelly) 5
Mar. 12. The More Excellent Way (Anita Stewart) 5

World Pictures

Jan. 8. On Dangerous Ground (Gail Kane and Carlyle Blackwell) 5
Jan. 15. The Man Who Forgot (Robert Warwick, Gerda Holmes and Doris Kenyon) 5
Jan. 22. The Bondage of Fear (Ethel Clayton) 5
Jan. 29. Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler and Johnny Hines) 5
Feb. 5. A Hungry Heart (Alice Brady) 5
Feb. 12. The Red Woman (Gail Kane) 5
Feb. 19. A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Henry Hull and Muriel Ostriche) 5
Feb. 26. A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick and Doris Kenyon) 5
Mar. 5. The Web of Desire (Ethel Clayton and Rockliffe Fellowes) 5

SHORT SUBJECTS CURRENT AND COMING

Foxfilm Comedies

1— 1. Social Pirates (Charles Arling).. 2 reels
1— 8. Chased Into Love (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips..... 2 reels
1—15. Noah's Ark (Hank Mann)..... 2 reels
1—22. Her Father's Station (Anna Luther) ..... 2 reels
1—29. There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips)... 2 reels

General Film Company*

Latest Announced Releases

SELIG—Cupid's Thumb Print, 2 D.....21702-03
VITAGRAPH — The Hall Room Girls (Claire MacCormack), 1 C..... 21704
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 11, 1 Top... 21705
ESSANAY—The Hoodooed Story (10th of Black Cat Series), 2 C-D.....21706-07
KALEM—Ghost Hounds (Ham Comedy), 1 C..... 21708
ESSANAY — Canimated Nooz Pictorial, No. 24, and Alaska, Sc. (Split reel).. 21709
SELIG—Selig-Tribune, No. 12, 1 Top... 21710
VIM—Title not announced, 1 C..... 21711
KALEM—The Trap (17th of "Grant, Police Reporter" Series), 1 D... 21712
VIM—Title not announced, 1 C..... 21713
VITAGRAPH—The Suitor from Siam (5th of "Dangers of Doris" Series), 1 C-D 21714
ESSANAY — Desertion and Non-support (9th of "Is Marriage Sacred?" Series), 2 D.....21715-16
KALEM—The Prima Donna's Special ("Hazard of Helen' Series), 1 D.... 21717
SELIG—A Strange Adventure (Jack Pickford and Bessie Eyton), 1 D..... 21718

* General Film Company has abolished release dates.

Metro Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 22, 1917
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 3, The Hidden Hand), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
ROLMA—Married But Single (Ralph Herz), 1 C.
Monday, January 29, 1917.
DREW—The Pest (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 4, From Sunshine to Shadows), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 5, 1917
DREW—Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 5, The Trap), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 12, 1917
ROLMA—Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 6), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 19, 1917
DREW—Her Obsession (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 7), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, February 26, 1917
DREW—Reliable Henry (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 8), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.
Monday, March 5, 1917
ROLMA—A Modern Romance (Max Figman), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 9), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, January 29, 1917
MONOGRAM—Shorty Goes to College (Adventures of Shorty Hamilton, No. 3 D.....05300-01
Tuesday, January 30, 1917
GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World (Teheran, the Capital of Persia; coast resorts of Normandy, France; winter in the Vosges Mountains, France), 1 Trav..... 05302
Wednesday, January 31, 1917
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 109, 1 Top. 05303
GAUMONT—See America First (San Diego, Cal.), Sc., and Kartoon Komics, split reel..... 05304
Thursday, February 1, 1917
CUB—Jerry and His Pal (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05305
Friday, February 2, 1917
MUTUAL—Scouts of the Sea and Sky (Uncle Sam Defenders, No. 5), 1 Top. 05306
Saturday, February 3, 1917
AMERICAN—Title not announced (J. Warren Kerrigan), 1 D..... 05307
Sunday, February 4, 1917
VOGUE—Sticky Fingers (Paddy McQuire), 2 C.....05308-9
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Making Lace by Machinery; Toddles: New York's latest dance; Raising Fresh Water Fish; Design Your Own Gown, 1 Mag. 05310
Monday, February 5, 1917
MONOGRAM—Shorty Goes Insane ("Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," No. 4), 2 D.....05311-12
Tuesday, February 6, 1917
GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World (The Rocky Coast of Dalmatia, On the Adriatic Sea, Great Temple of Luxor (Egypt), Picturesque Landscapes of Holland), 1 Trav..... 05313
Wednesday, February 7, 1917
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 110, 1 Top. 05314
GAUMONT—See America First (The Mississippi Coast), Sc. and Kartoon Komics, Split reel..... 05315
Thursday, February 8, 1917
CUB—Jerry's Big Raid (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05316
Friday, February 9, 1917
MUTUAL—Bulldogs of the Deep ("Uncle Sam's Defenders," No. 6), 1 Top..... 05317
Saturday, February 10, 1917
AMERICAN—The Old Sheriff (J. Warren Kerrigan), 1 D..... 05318
Sunday, February 11, 1917
VOGUE—The Musical Marvels (Ben Turpin), 2 C.....05319-20
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Queer Fish with Shells, Diary of An Egg, Every-day Life Savers, Hypnotizing An Alligator, 1 Mag..... 05321

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 22, 1917.
BURTON HOLMES—Ottawa and Toronto, 1 Trav.
BLACK DIAMOND—He Did It Himself, 1 C.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, January 29, 1917.
BURTON HOLMES—Georgian Bay to Winnipeg, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.
Monday, February 5, 1917
BURTON-HOLMES — Regina to the Rockies, 1 Trav..... T-1096
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 53, 1 Mag.
Monday, February 12, 1917
BURTON HOLMES—Beautiful Banff, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 54, 1 Mag.
Monday, February 19, 1917
BURTON HOLMES—With the Stony Indians, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 55, 1 Mag.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Monday, February 12, 1917
Patria, No. 5 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 11; Astra, 2 D.
Skinny's Love Tangle and Schemer Skinny's Scandal (Fatty Lampton), Split reel comedy, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 18 (Rose), Fash.; Childish Delights (Pathe), Colored Educ., Split reel.
Happy Hooligan—Ananias has nothing on him (Cart.), and Blackfeet Indians (Glacier National Park), Sc., International, Split Reel.
Wednesday, February 14, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 14, 1 Top.
Saturday, February 17, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 15, 1 Top.
Monday, February 18, 1917
Patria, No. 6 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 12 (The Foreign Alliance), Astra, 2 D.
Lonesome Luke—Lawyer, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 19 (Rose), Fash.: Picturesque Algeria—Province of Constantine, Split Reel.
Wednesday, February 21, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 16, 1 Top.
Saturday, February 24, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 17, 1 Top.

Triangle Komedies

Sunday, January 14, 1917
Love Under Cover, 1 C.
The Pipe of Discontent, 1 C.
Sunday, January 21, 1917
A Noble Fraud, 1 C.
Honest Thieves, 1 C.
Sunday, January 28, 1917
Heart Strategy, 1 C.
A Grab Bag Bride, 1 C.
Sunday, February 4, 1917
The Male Governess, 1 C.
The Road Agent, 1 C.
Sunday, February 11, 1917
Won by a Foot, 1 C.
His Deadly Undertaking, 1 C.
Sunday, February 18, 1917
The Telephone Belle, 1 C.
When Hearts Collide, 1 C.

Unicorn Film Service*

Monday, December 11, 1916.
SUPREME—Love's Wilderness, 3 D.....1113A
BUFFALO—The Slave of Passion, 1 D...1113B
Tuesday, December 12, 1916.
JUDY—You Never Can Tell, 1 C.....1114A
HIAWATHA—The Woman He Wed, 2 D.1114B
Wednesday, December 13, 1916.
SUNSET—The Trail of Fate, 2 D.....1115A
HIPPO—High Cost of Living, 1 C.....1115B
Thursday, December 14, 1916.
RANCHO—Desert Gold, 1 D.....1116A
GAIETY—Kisses and Fists, 1 C.....1116B
UTAH—A Belle of the Sage Brush, 1 W..1116C
Friday, December 15, 1916.
JUDY—Mary Lost Her Lamb, 1 C.....1117A
BUFFALO—Fires of Fate, 2 D.....1117B
Saturday, December 16, 1916.
SUPREME—The Challenge of Chivalry, 2 D 1118A
Sunday, December 17, 1916.
JOCKEY—A Devil in His Own Home Town, 1 C.....1119A
SUNSET—The Mystery of the Mesa, 1 D.1119B
* Releases issued every two weeks.

Universal Film Company

Monday, February 5, 1917
NESTOR—His Wife's Relatives (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edyth Roberts), 1 C..... 02145
Tuesday, February 6, 1917
GOLD SEAL—Won by Grit (Nela Hart and Lois Wilson), 3 D.....02146
VICTOR—The Valley of Beautiful Things (Juvenile Comedy), 1 C..... 02147
Wednesday, February 7, 1917
L-KO—The Dawgone Dogs (Sammie Burns), 1 C..... 02148
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 58, 1 Top..... 02149
BIG U—Red Vengeance (Re-issue), 1 D. 02150
Thursday, February 8, 1917
REX—The Melody of Death (Douglas Gerrard, Ruth Clifford and Maude George), 2 D..... 02151
POWERS—Giants of the American Forest, 1 Educ..... 02152
Friday, February 9, 1917
IMP—Avarice (Claire McDowell), 1 D... 02153
VICTOR—The High Cost of Starving Eilleen Sedgwick), 1 C..... 02154
BIG U—Title not decided, 2 D..... 02155
Saturday, February 10, 1917
BISON—The Outlaw and the Lady (Louise Lovely and Harry Carey), 2 D..... 02156
JOKER—Out for the Dough (Wm. Franey and Gale Henry), 1 C..... 02157
LAEMMLE—A Studio Cinderella (Jane Gail and Matt Moore), 1 C (Reissue) 02158
Sunday, February 11, 1917
IMP—When Thieves Fall Out (Harry Benham), 2 D..... 02159
POWERS—Fearless Freddie in the Woolly West (Cart. Com.) and Joys and Tears of China (Dr. Dorsey Educ.), Split reel 02160

(Continued on page 934)

STATE RIGHTS—CURRENT AND COMING

Anti-Vice Film Company
Is Any Girl Safe?.....5 reels

Argosy Films, Inc.
The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Dec.—Absinthe (King Baggot), Universal Re-issue .....5 reels

Biograph Company
Her Condoned Sin.....6 reels

California Motion Picture Corp.
December—The Passion Flower. (Beatriz Michelena) .....

Christie Film Company
Dec.— 4. Sea Nymphs.....1 reel
Dec.—11. Miss Billie Buttons.....1 reel
Dec.—18. Hist! At Six O'clock.....1 reel
Dec.—25. Cupid's Uppercut .....1 reel
Jan.— 1. His Model Wife.....1 reel
Jan.— 8. Out for the Coin.....2 reels
Jan.—15. Black Hands and Soapsuds.....1 reel
Jan.—29. A Gay Deceiver.....1 reel
Feb. 5. Small Change.....1 reel

Claridge Films, Inc.
The Birth of Character.....5 reels
The Heart of New York.....5 reels

Cosmofotofilm Company
Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross.....4 reels
O 18.....4 reels
His Vindication.....5 reels

Dixie Films
Dec.—Tempest and Sunshine (Evlyn Greely) .....5 reels
Dec.—Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.
Oct.— 1. The Land of Silence.....1 reel
Oct.—15. To the Rainbow.....1 reel
Oct.— 8. The Hermit of Hood.....1 reel
Oct.—22. Hans and Henri and the Neophyte .....1 reel
Oct.—29. Mazamas and the Three Sisters..2 reels
Nov.— 5. Deschutes Driftwood.....1 reel
Nov.—12. Oddities in Film Form, No. 1...1 reel
Nov.—19. The Snows of Many Years.....1 reel
Nov.—26. Hiyu Skookum Pow-wow La Push .....1 reel

E. & R. Jungle Film Company
Jungle Brats.
Fowl Play.
Discovered.
When the Clock Went Cuckoo.
When Jones Went Wrong.
Napoleon's Night Out.
Circus Brides.

Eskay Harris Feature Film
Alice in Wonderland.....6 parts

European Film Company
Fighting for Verdun.....5 reels

Exclusive Features, Inc.
Where is My Father?.....7 reels

Jos. W. Farnham
Race Suicide.....6 parts
The Awakening of Bess Morton.....5 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.
Oct.—10. The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Connes) 5

Harper Film Corporation
November 16. Civilization.

Herald Film Corporation
Around the World in 80 Days.....6 parts

Hippodrome Film Co.
At the Front with the Allies.....

Juvenile Film Corporation
Apr.—.1. World War in Kidland.....1 reel
Apr.— 8. A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Apr.—15. Chip's Elopement.....1 reel
Apr.—22. Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.2 reels
Apr.—29. Chip's Rivals.....1 reel
May—13. For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
May—27. Chip's Carmen.....2 reels

Kemble Film Corporation
The Zeppelin Raids on London and the Siege of Verdun.....5 reels

Kulee Features
Germany on the Firing Line.....6 parts
France on the Firing Line.....6 parts
The Unborn (Bessie Bondhill).....5 parts

Lincoln Motion Picture Company
The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

C. Post Mason Enterprises
The Wonder City of the World (Greater N. Y. by Day and by Night).....4 reels

Moral Uplift Society of America
It May Be Your Daughter.....

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation
The Power of Evil (Margaret Nichols)....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels

Patriot Film Corp.
How Britain Prepared.....8 reels

Pioneer Feature Film Corp.
The Soul of a Child.....5 reels

Private Feature Film
—.—Ignorance (Earl Metcalfe) .....6 reels

Radio Film Company
Satan the Destroyer of Humanity.....7 parts

Ray Comedies
July—12. Casey's Servants.....
July—19. Casey the White-Wing.....

Sherman Elliot, Inc.
Dec.— 1. The Crisis (Selig)..... 7
Coming. The Garden of Allah (Selig)..... 10

Signet Film Corporation
Nov.— . The Masque of Life.....7 reels

Standard Newsfilm, Inc.
Demons of the Air.....2 reels

Sunbeam Motion Picture Corp.
Ty Cobb in Somewhere in Georgia.....6 parts

Superior Films Company
The Faucet.....5 reels
The Cowpuncher.....6 parts

Triumph Film Corporation
Dec.— 5. The Libertine.....6 reels

Unity Sales Corporation
June—19. The Bishop's Secret.....4 parts
June—26. The Lottery Man.....5 reels
July— 3. The Marriage Bond.....5 reels

Universal Film Mfg. Company
Idle Wives 70 Sp. Oct.....
Where Are My Children?.....5 reels
Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea .....10 reels
People vs. John Doe (Harry De More, Leah Baird).....5 reels
Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer) ....4 reels
Hell Morgan's Girl.....

Variety Films Corporation
My Country First.....6 reels
The Pursuing Vengeance.....5 parts

Warner Brothers
Dec.—Robinson Crusoe (Savage) .....5 reels
Jan.—Are Passions Inherited (Dorothy Farley and Wm. Conklin).....7 reels

SHORT SUBJECTS

(Continued from page 933)

REX—In the Shadows of Night (Wm. Shay), 1 D Re-issue..... 02161
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Race for Freedom (7th episode of "The Purple Mask"), (Francis Ford and Grace Cunard), 2 D..... 02162

Monday, February 12, 1917

NESTOR—A Hasty Hazing (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts), 1 C.. 02164

Tuesday, February 13, 1917

GOLD SEAL—The Indian's Lament (Marie Walcamp and Lee Hill), 3 D.. 02165
VICTOR—The Girl of the Hour (Herbert Brenon and Vivian Prescott), Re-issue, 1 C..... 02166

Wednesday, February 14, 1917

IMP—The Girl Reporter's Scoop (Roy Stewart and Irne Hunt), 2 D..... 02167
L-KO—The End of a Perfect Day (Hank Mann and Gertrude Shelby), 1 C..... 02168
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 99, 1 Top..... 02169

Thursday, February 15, 1917

VICTOR—The Losing Winner (Carter De Haven and Flora Parker DeHaven, 2 C-D..... 02170
BIG U—The Half-breed's Confession (Re-issue), 1 D..... 02171

Friday, February 16, 1917

LAEMMLE—The Fourth Witness (Louise Lovely and Lee Hill), 2 D..... 02172
UNIVERSAL—Screen Magazine, No. 7, 1 Mag. 02173
L-KO—Brave Little Waldo (Fatty Voss), 1 C..... 02174

Saturday, February 17, 1917

BISON—John Osborn's Triumph (Murdock MacQuarrie), 2 D..... 02175
JOKER—Mule Mates (Gale Henry and Wm. Franey), 1 C..... 02176
LAEMMLE—Broken Hearted (Wm. E. Shay), Re-issue, 1 D..... 02177

Sunday, February 18, 1917

POWERS—Mr. Fuller Pep—He Does Some Quick Moving (Cart.), and Drama of the Orient (Dorsey Educ.), Split Reel 02178
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Marguerita Fischer), 3 D..... 02179
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—The Secret Adventure (8th episode of "The Purple Mask"), (Francis Ford and Grace Cunard), 2 D..... 02180

Vitagraph-V-L-S-E.

Monday, January 15, 1917.

The Secret Kingdom (Fourth Episode, The Honorable Mr. Oxenham).....2 D
Jolts and Jewelry (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest) .....1 C.
Captain Jinks, The Widow (Frank Daniels) 1 C.

Monday, January 22, 1917.

The Secret Kingdom (Fifth Episode, Carriage Call No. 101).....2 D
Big Bluffs and Bowling Ball (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest).....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Baby (Frank Daniels).....1 C.

Monday, January 29, 1917.

The Secret Kingdom (Sixth Episode, Human Flotsam) .....2 D
Somewhere in Any Place (Hughie Mack and Patsey DeForest).....1 C.
Captain Jinks' Dilemma (Frank Daniels)...1 C.

Monday, February 5, 1917.

The Secret Kingdom (Seventh Episode, The Ghost Ship).....2 D

Monday, February 5, 1917... ... ...

Rips and Rushes (Hughie Mack).....1 C.
Captain Jink's Wife's Husband (Frank Daniels .....1 C.

Monday, February 12, 1917

He Never Touched Me (Hughie Mack).....1 C.
Captain Jink's Love Letters (Frank Daniels.1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Episode No. 8, Rum Cay .....2 D.

Monday, February 19, 1917

Cops and Cussedness (Hughie Mack).....1 C.
Captain Jink's Cure (Frank Daniels).....1 C.
The Secret Kingdom (Episode No. 9, The Swamp Adder).....2 D.

The Punch---That You Have Missed!

Wake up, Mr. Producer! Can't you give us plays with a real punch? Have you heard this wail from the exhibitors—from the exchange men? And have you ever torn your hair figuratively all over the lot in an effort to meet this protest—and failed? What's the Big Answer? Because you were stocked up with commonplace scenarios, and didn't know how to get others! I can solve your problem for you—if you are willing to pay the right scenario editor the right price, and what is more I can prove my ability to you by more new, practicable suggestions in half a day than you have probably had in half a year. This is not a boast. It is a fact. Understand, I am not out of a job. I am looking for a bigger field—a field so big that I shall have to put forth every ounce in me to measure up to it. I have had ten years of unusual training, not only in motion pictures, but in the magazine, newspaper, and general literary field, and I think you will agree that my references are remarkable. I am not a job-hunter. I am an opportunity-hunter. I shall be glad to listen to your proposition.

Punch

Care Motion Picture News

New York City

Have Your

RELEASES

in by

Saturday Noon

Releases not in at

That Time

will be left for the Following Issue

ARE YOU A STATE RIGHT BUYER?

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR SOMETHING-OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY, SOMETHING OF THE UNUSUAL KIND?

HERE YOU ARE

5 Great Reels 5

ALASKA WONDERS IN MOTION

Is the greatest feature ever brought out of the North and guaranteed good

State rights now selling. Territory going fast

Wire today

SMITH FILMS

303 SO. HILL STREET, LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

CLASSIFIED

Operator and Piano Player, recently closed with "Birth of a Nation" Co., desires position at once. Best of reference. B. Ludescher, General Delivery, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

SHERMAN SAYS:—"INSTALL 'AMBERLUX' LENS FILTERS." PRICE, INCLUDING BUSINESS-GETTING SLIDE, $3.50. W. D. WARNER, 8 E. BROAD ST., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Equip your Stage for Vaudeville. Write for Special Offer on Complete Outfit of Scenery and Rigging. BOON SCENIC COMPANY, Hicksville, Ohio.

For Sale—Hollywood (Cal.) Motion Picture Producing Plant. Now being conducted as commercial laboratory and studio paying 20 per cent per annum on investment. Has newly equipped laboratories, 50 x 60 indoor stage, 102 x 126 exterior stage, dressing rooms, scene darks, property rooms, carpenter and paint shop, etc. Everything for making pictures is in the plant. All, including real estate, must be sold at once to close an estate. Address Motion Picture News, 429 So. Figueroa street, Los Angeles, Cal.

STUDIO LIGHTS
Cooper Hewitt Electric Company
EIGHTH & GRAND STREETS, HOBOKEN, N. J.

A film Exchange without an up-to-date Renovating Plant, such as the Rex Film Renovating Plant, is not very progressive.
The Rex Film Renovator Co.
Columbus, Ohio.

Your Best Laboratory Insurance
Corcoran Tanks
with the Patented Joint
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
9½ JOHN ST. NEW YORK

FOR SALE—New Prints of
D. W. GRIFFITH—BIOGRAPH RELEASES STARRING MARY PICKFORD, BLANCHE SWEET, HENRY WALTHALL and Other Big Money Makers—with Posters
EDWARD M. ROSKAM
1003 Candler Bldg., New York

Star Carbons
JONES & CAMMACK
Sole Distributors for the U. S.
12 Bridge Street New York

CAILLE
Ticket Office Equipments
Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.
Caille Bros. Co., 1003 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Motion Picture News
Reg. in U. S. Patent Office
HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TIME FOR HOUSE CLEANING (W. A. JOHNSTON). 863
EDITORIALS 864
COMMITTEE FINDS TAX "WOULD BREAK THE CAMEL'S BACK" 869
"NEWS" CAMPAIGN FOR LONGER RUNS SUCCEEDS NATIONALLY 869
Indiana Exhibitors Form New Association 871
Putting a Whole City to Work for You 873
Use of White Space in Newspaper Display 874
Two New Kalem Series in Course of Production 891
Paramount Offers 3-Month "All Star Program" 892
Universal Offers Program of Varied Features 893
"The Scarlet Letter" Next Classic Adaptation by Fox 894
Bluebird Ready for Early Spring Releases 894
Quaker City Fans Turn Out for Big Productions 895
Pathe Serials Are Going Big in Middle West 896
Madge Kennedy Signed by Goldwyn 898
Japanese Star in Latest Paramount Release 901
Ambitious Plans to Broaden Screen Magazine 902
Ceppico, of Signet, Receives New 16-Reel Feature from Italy 903
Shakespeare's "King Lear" Big Box-Office Attraction 903
Efficiency Regime Cuts "U" Production Time 904
Sunny South for Three World-Brady Groups 905
Clune Picture Continues Establishing Records 906
Oriental Story with Native Actors Is "U" Feature 907
Paramount Features are Re-Booking Well 908
Sheriott Corporation Formed in Chicago 909
Exchangeman Lightens Days in "The Pen" 912
Exchangemen, Exhibitors and Operators as One 913
Opposition Against Appointment of Oberholtz 914
Express Company Must Pay Loss 915
Canadian Troop Film Soon Ready for Release 916
"Joan of Arc" Opens in Los Angeles 925
Irish Rioters at Vitagraph Film in Court 926
"Filth Films" Before Vermont Legislature 927
Censorship Possible in Twenty States 927
Unicorn Will Recapitalize at $5,000,000 929

DEPARTMENTS

With the Exhibitor 871
Live Wire Exhibitors 873
The Eastern Studios 877
In and Out of West Coast Studios 878
Advance Offerings of the Programs 891
How Pictures Are Booking 895
Chicago News and Comment 897
Live News from the Producers 898
In the State Rights Field 909
Just for Fun (In and Out of Town) 911
Among the Exchanges 912
Newsy Reports from All Sections (Exhibitors' Personals). 914
Late News 925
Tabloid Reviews 930

ACCESSORY NEWS SECTION

Editorial 939
Projection 940
The Camera 946
Music and the Picture 951
Building and Furnishing 955

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Bridges Burned" (Metro) 922
"Devil's Pay Day, The" (Red Feather-Universal) 923
"Dominion of Fernandez, The" (Kalem) 923
"Golden Fetter" (Lasky-Paramount) 919
"Gun Fighter, The" (Triangle-Ince) 921
"Her Good Name" (Van Dyke-Art Dramas) 924
"His Sweetheart" (Morosco-Paramount) 920
"Hungry Heart, A" (Peerless-World) 920
"Jim Bludso" (Triangle-Fine Arts) 922
"Money Magic" (Vitagraph) 919
"On the Austro-German Battlefronts" (Eiko Film) 924
"One Touch of Sin" (Fox Film) 922
"Patria" (International-Pathe) 921
"Pride" (McClure-Triangle) 921
"Princess of Patches, The" (Selig-K-E-S-E) 924
"Scarlet Crystal, The" (Red Feather-Universal) 923
"Trilby" (Clara Kimball Young Reissue—World) 919

"MOVIE" PLAYING CARDS

50 Cents Per Pack
SPECIAL PRICE IN QUANTITIES
Each pack consists of 53 cards of leading photoplay stars (all different). Standard size playing cards in best grade of Ivory finished bristol with gilt edges.
Every theatre patron wants these. Theatre Managers make good money selling them.
Send 50 cents for sample pack and get our price by the dozen.
ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO.
608 Olive Street
St. Louis, Mo. or 35 Grand River Avenue, East Detroit, Mich.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
432 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

THE BIOSCOPE
is
The English Trade Journal of the Moving Picture Industry
Annual Subscription (post free)
14s. (Dollars $3.50)
85 Shaftesbury Ave., London, N.W.

MOTION PICTURE STUDIO DIRECTORY
NEXT ISSUE PUBLISHED
LAST OF FEBRUARY

PICTURE THEATRE BUYERS!
If you are looking for a theatre in So. California, large or small, City, Country or Beaches, Correspond with
LEO RYAN, 730 S. Olive St.
Los Angeles, California

DUPLEX Rewinder
1000-Foot Flange
Complete Laboratory Equipment
DUPLEX MACHINE CO.
(Incorporated)
316-318 75th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS DEVOTED TO THE CONSTRUCTION, EQUIPMENT AND OPERATION OF THEATRE, EXCHANGE AND STUDIO

ITS ECONOMY

Now is almost a proverb — quietly the knowledge has spread into every nook and corner of the nation

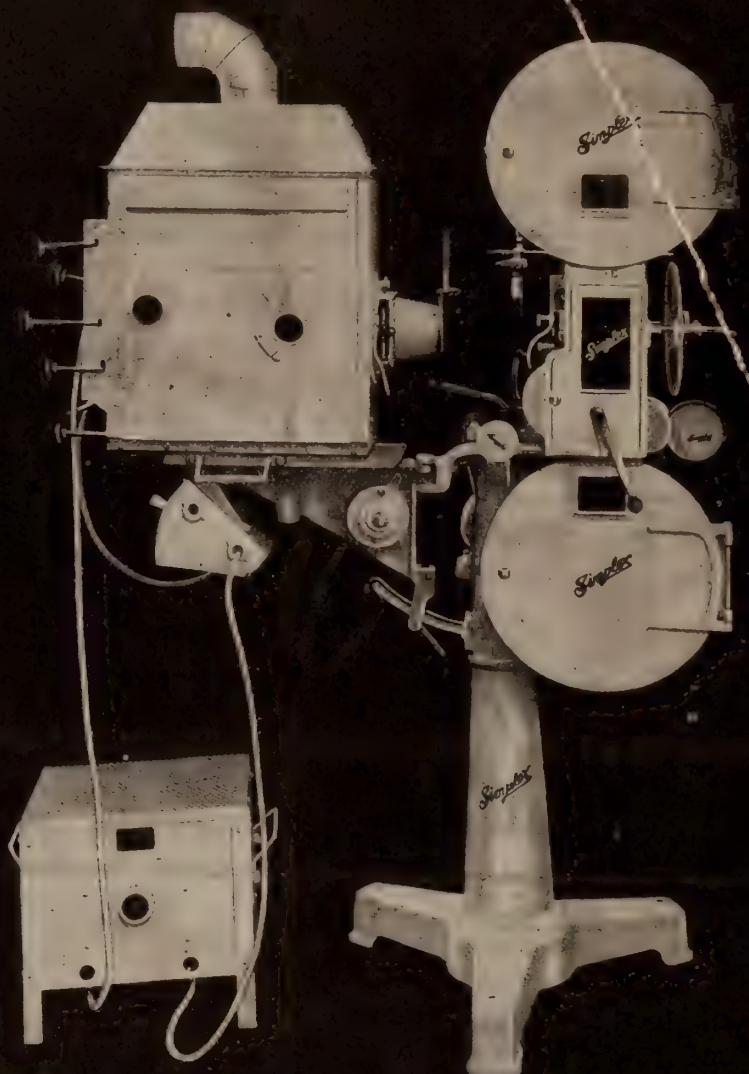
THE MOTIOGRAPH

MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR

Even in Alaska, Australia and other foreign countries you will hear identically the same thing said as in the many theatres in the United States where the MOTIOGRAPH is used.

The Low Cost of Up-keep, the Perfect Projection and Simplicity of operation is unequalled.

F. H. Richardson, the Projection Expert, says :



"The Motiograph is now a machine which I can conscientiously recommend to the serious consideration of motion picture theatre managers who are contemplating the purchase of new projection apparatus.

Write for literature

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.
568 W. Randolph St. CHICAGO, ILL.
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

Simplex
TRADE MARK REG.

for PERFECTION in PROJECTION

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

Construction, Equipment and Operation

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Everything for Theatre, Exchange and Studio

PICTURE MUSIC

MOTION Picture interests have harped on the subject of Music for the Picture until they have reached the point where they believe that something is really being done. They have fooled themselves into believing that suitable music is being arranged for the exhibitor. Listen to this:

MOTION PICTURE NEWS,
729 Seventh Avenue,
New York City.

GENTLEMEN:

There is a problem which confronts the Motion Picture Exhibitor within the theatre more than any other one thing and that is music. Years ago anything which was produced on a film went and went big without music, but now it is different. A film not only has to be good to get over now, but it has to be helped with music. Not banging out chords, but music which carries the audience along and takes the place of the voice on the speaking stage. Some of the companies think they have helped us small exhibitors by sending out cue sheets, and others have at times made complete scores. The cue sheets most of the time are absolutely worthless. I have turned many of them over to my head musician only to have them given back with the comment "no good" and what is more they weren't.

There is only one reason and that is because the man who gets them up shows he is working in the interests of some one music house and only recommends their selections or else he keeps pushing his own stuff which no one has ever heard of. It is a case of promoting music selections at the expense of the picture. No attempt is made to add to the picture by sending out suitable music. The picture companies are being cheated and the exhibitors are losing a most valuable help.

Your cue sheets are the exceptions, they are the only ones which can be used, the only trouble is you do not print enough. I was sorry you could not send me the ones I wrote you for the other week. Is not there some way to impress the importance of the cue sheet on all the picture makers. They are more valuable than synopses for the patrons for they make pictures much more enjoyed. Good music is now necessary. If you can help the exhibitor get good cue sheets you will help motion pictures more than you ever know for you will make patrons.

Very truly,

THIS is absolutely true—pictures to-day are being exploited by men who have something to sell themselves. They may write music themselves or they may work for some one music house. In either case practically every number on every cue sheet is made up of selections from one of these particular sources. No wonder the theatre owners are provoked. They pay out good money for help along this line and all they get is a so-called cue sheet which is only an advertisement for some one else's personal goods. You can't blame them for being sore about it.

The plan which MOTION PICTURE NEWS is following is a helpful one as those who use our cue sheets know. Any one of our sheets may be used as they stand for if the musician does not happen to have the selections called for all he need do is merely substitute some piece which he has in his library of the same tempo. The original selections are chosen from any and all music publishers as long as they are appropriate. As in everything else the NEWS insists on its cue sheets being independent, otherwise we would not publish them.

As we have stated on this page before, we want to see every branch of the industry and those industries allied with it make all the profits possible. This includes the music publishers. For this reason we publish each week a list of the latest musical publications from all publishers which we recommend for musicians' libraries. We take those having varying tempos so that they can be substituted in any of our cue sheets when they are appropriate.

EVERY manufacturer we have talked to says he realizes that the exhibitor must have musical help, but he has other troubles more urgent. He is busy and like other things, which can be taken up almost any time, he leaves it for to-morrow. There is only one way to remedy this condition and that is for the exhibitors all over the country to write to the companies making the pictures they show stating that they must have proper cue sheets and why. Don't write the exchanges, they can't help you, though they may co-operate; write the home office. If you don't know to whom to write send your letters to the NEWS and we will see that they reach the proper parties.

There is one sentence in our reader's letter that we feel is worth repeating. "If you can help us to get good cue sheets, you will help motion pictures more than you ever know, for you will make patrons," he says. It is this fact —"Good music makes patrons," that MOTION PICTURE NEWS has advocated and has sought to live up to in its Music Department. That service which really plays fair with the exhibitor and his orchestra leader, which seeks with sincere effort and independence to enable him to provide the best possible accompaniment for each picture he shows, is certain to "make patrons."

Better pictures and better music is our slogan—they go hand in hand. The only way to get them, however, is to show that the demand is there and the producers will come across. Particularly if their customers show enough interest to write and insist on proper musical service.

E. K. GILLETT.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

EQUIPMENT OPERATING

PROJECTION

By I. G. SHERMAN

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Golden Rule Operator

ALBERT H. ESTES, Orangesburg, S. C., writes: "The most important subject of the day is now clearly coming to light, and I do not take any point of view but the operator's, as I am one of those 'things' myself; but I believe that every man in the game of projecting films should look deeply into the matter of taking care of the films in his possession, and give them the best of care.

"For many years I have been in the game, and I have seen beautiful productions utterly ruined by the 'boneheadedness' of some operator who did not give a whoop for the operator who was to receive the film after he had used it, and where if the least bit of care had been taken the next fellow would have been saved a few hours' work and a day of bad projection.

"I have just read the letter of Brother G. K., of Milwaukee, Wis., and your answer, and I also think as you do: 'It is an outrage.' But now my point is just this: Suppose the operator who shipped that film to the exchange had taken a little care of it, there would have been no ill feeling between the operator and the exchange. Am I not right?

"I do not side in with any one but the operator, and I think that there should be a feeling of co-operation among them, or at least there should be some bond of friendship to help the other

THIS FILM NEEDS NO INSPECTION

LAST USED BY

ALBERT H. ESTES,
The Bluebird Theatre,
Orangeburg, S. C.

I. A. T. S. E. 347.

Condition of Leaders and Trailers_____
Condition Received In_____ Condition Shipped In_____ Condition of Film_____
[illegible] of Subjects_____
Condition of Titles_____
Date_____ 191__
Remarks_____

fellow, or, as a paragraph from the Bible says: 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' (No, I am not a preacher's son, but I learned that when I was a kid at Sunday school.)

"I am sending you in this letter a couple of labels and a film report sheet I use in doing my part to help the other fellow. I am a constant reader of the new-found Projection Department and shall gladly send you my views as to why operators receive films in such bad condition and how it can be remedied, and a few other things that operators should do, but don't. Keep up the good work you have started in the NEWS, and accept my best wishes for the NEWS and yourself."

Answer: While this is not to my mind "the most important subject of the day," it is nevertheless a subject that is given too little attention by the proper authorities. I agree with you perfectly; there should be some bond of fellowship between operators, and especially those who call themselves "union men," that would prove to the exchange manager and exhibitor that the title operator meant something.

It is not exactly "boneheadedness" on the part of the operator; for operators of today possess knowledge; it is their don't care a darn attitude, and their unwillingness to apply that knowledge where it will do most good. The suggestions you have made are good.

So is the film report slip, but I am afraid that if you live up to the headline you will have your work cut out for you. It is to be regretted that there are not more operators who believe in the "golden rule," but we can live in hopes.

As I said in my previous article, I do not think it a part of the operators' duty to inspect film without pay; that is up to the exchange. But if the film leaves the exchange in first-class condition, then it is up to the operator to keep it in the best possible condition, which could be done with very little trouble if they would follow your plan.

Co-operation is a big word, but when exhibitors, exchange managers and operators realize that it is the only way in which an industry as large as this is can be made to prosper, then we may find the remedy for the existing evil conditions.

I hope that this letter will not be your last to the department, and I will be glad to receive your views in this or any other matter that will be of benefit to our readers. For your kind wishes, thanks.

Charging Dry Batteries

E. L. J., Brookfield, Mass., asks: "Is it possible to charge a dry battery? If it is not, don't answer my question; but if it is I would be very thankful to you if you would tell me how."

Answer: It is possible. And here is the answer: When the cells are nearly exhausted, punch holes through the zinc covering, having first removed the cell from the paper carton; these holes should be punched about two inches from the top of the cell and should be placed about an inch and a half apart, care being taken that you do not punch them too near the upper edge, which might injure the black insulating substance.

After you have punched these holes, submerge the cell into a vessel containing a saturated solution of sal ammoniac. The vessel containing this solution must be filled only to within an inch from the top of the cell, otherwise the binding posts will become corroded and the cell short-circuited, making it of no further use.

The cells may be left in the solution for several hours, and if you have a battery volt-ammeter you can readily tell when the battery has been recharged to its full capacity; if you have no meter, a small battery bell will let you know when the battery has become alive again.

You will find that this method will enable you to use old batteries for a considerable period of time, but remember when charging that the cells must not be connected or permitted to come into contact with each other while in the solution.

From Far Off California

ANDREW L. STONE, JR., Burlingame, Cal., writes for list of film studios, and says: "I have noticed that a number of motion picture theatres have had considerable trouble with films where the sprocket holes were too large, and which caused a noticeable up and down movement of the film upon the screen. There is a way to stop it, and I always use it on these occasions.

"If the machine has not an enclosed mechanism, by putting the forefinger under the upper loop and holding the film with a slight tension until you pass the bad place there will be no up and down motion of the film. Another way is to press tightly against the film before it reaches the aperture. Either of these methods will do the trick. Hoping that this will prove useful to operators, I am yours sincerely."

Answer: In regard to the list of film studios, the Studio Directory published by MOTION PICTURE NEWS contains a most complete and up-to-date list of studios, and can be bought for fifty cents per copy. The suggestions in reference to overcoming the up and down movement of the film upon the screen when it is caused by sprocket holes that have become enlarged are very good. I did that very thing when operating, and found that it would do just what you claim for it.

Any further suggestions that you may have up your sleeve the department will be glad to hear about, so send them along.

Ideal Operating Room at Grand Haven, Mich.

An Operating Room of Ample Size

THE "Robinhood" theatre, Grand Haven, Mich., has one of the most up-to-date as well as commodious operating rooms of any theatre in the Middle West. The dimensions of this room are twenty-eight by twelve feet, the manager, H. S. Robbins, being one of those who believe in giving the operator plenty of room in which to do his work, in this respect he differs from a great majority of exhibitors; so many seem to think that any old place will do for the operating room as long as it is small—the smaller the better. The operator, C. L. Davis, is evidently a man who believes in the old adage "A place for everything and everything in its place" as a scrutiny of the accompanying illustration will show. The equipment consists of two Power's 6-B machines, current is delivered to the arcs through a Fort Wayne Compensarc, and the picture projected upon a Satin Gold Fibre screen located 91 feet from the operating room. The entire room presents an atmosphere of perfect cleanliness, as witness the metal containers in which to deposit carbon butts, the heavy metal vault in which to keep the films, and over by the door a cuspidor. All these things prove that the operator takes pride in his work and where that is the rule it naturally follows that projection must be good. The theatre has a seating capacity of 498, and is located in the business district of the city where by putting on a sane program (six reels to a show) and with a general price of admission of ten cents the management is enabled to make a reasonable profit on their investment. A four thousand dollar Bartola organ furnishes the musical program and taken all in all the Robinhood is entitled to the name "Reel Theatre," or if you wish REAL theatre.

To Carbon Manufacturers

M. D. P., Brooklyn, N. Y.: Your article on carbons, page 452 of January 20th issue of the NEWS is very interesting since it has been my contention for the last few years. I believe that the best carbon combination has not yet been found.

I think that a negative carbon should always have a tip on instead of the round top of most solid carbons, or a basin shape as in most soft cored carbons. I would suggest a soft carbon having a hard core for the negative; this would have the same effect as a certain calk used in horse shoes, having a steel center in a soft iron body which always wears away first leaving a point in the center.

Answer: I agree with your second sentence. I don't believe that the best carbon combination has yet been put on the market, but the manufacturers are experimenting all the time in the hope of finding the ideal carbon combination, and from the progress that has been made in the last few years it does not seem that we will have to wait much longer for a combination that will meet all requirements.

The suggestion you make is respectfully submitted to the various carbon manufacturers and we would like to hear from them as to whether the suggestion is practical or not, and if not, why. Your request will be complied with.

Truth, Not Flattery

FROM Jos. M. Menhorn and Herbert Butcher, operators of the Strand theatre, Akron, Ohio, comes the following: "We wish to thank you for the compliment paid us in the January 27th issue of the NEWS, on the general appearance of our operating room.

"We have since installed an 'Auto-Arc' controller on one of our projectors; the other has a 'Speedco,' you remember. We are always willing to 'try out' any new thing that we think will improve our projection.

"We are using a spot light for the singer, and don't think that we have the right size lens. We are pulling 35 amperes at the arc with ⅝ upper and ½-inch lower carbons, throw 125 feet. Can you advise us regarding the size lens to use?"

Answer: First let me say that Webster defines "compliment" as a delicate form of flattery, and it was not my intention to flatter. The photograph that appeared in the issue you mention spoke for itself, and it does you both credit that you take pride in your work and are ever eager to improve your projection, which was mentioned in another article a week previous in these words: "The Strand is noted for its excellent projection."

That means that the operators are men who are always on the job, and it follows that when the operator is on the job projection must be first-class, and from all I have heard about your manager, Mr. Winter, I guess if you were not giving results you would be joining the army of "job hunters."

The lens problem I submitted to our friend Mr. Kliegel, of the firm of Kliegel Bros., who manufacture spot lights for theatres, and here is his answer: Of course, it depends upon the diameter of the lens as to the size spot light you will obtain. If you are using a lens of five-inch diameter seven and one-half inches focal length will be required, while if the lens is six-inch diameter it will be necessary to use a lens whose focal length is ten inches. With a throw of 125 feet either of these lenses, depending upon the diameter, will give you a spot approximately six feet in diameter, which can be drawn down to a "head-spot" by drawing the arc further away from the lens.

Light Shield

THE accompanying illustration is of a new light shield, the invention of Messrs. Weakley and Hughes, of Hardin, Mo. It consists of an oval shaped pane of glass of a suitable color set in an aluminum frame and hinged to the front of the lamp house by a universal joint so that it can be swung into any position desired.

The inventors of this device, which is known as the "Ideal," from their experience in the operating room realized that the motion picture operator was subjected to an unnecessarily large amount of eyestrain, caused by the almost constant observation of the intense light where it emerges from the cone of the condenser mount and is focussed on the aperture.

It is claimed that the use of this screen, shade or shield will prevent the dimness of vision or partial blindness which often exists for a time immediately after the operator has made an observation of the spot.

I have had this device tested out by operators of my acquaintance, and while each one has his own preference as to the color of glass to be used, they are nevertheless in favor of it.

It is an extremely well made little device, and can be quickly attached to any type of projecting machine, and will merit further investigation by operators who have been troubled with headaches caused by this particular kind of eyestrain.

CORRECT
COMBINATIONS
FOR
SPEER "HOLD-ARK"
HARD CORE — METAL COATED
LOWER CARBONS

DIRECT CURRENT

40- 50 Amperes	5/8 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 7/16 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
50- 60 Amperes	3/4 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 7/16 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
60- 80 Amperes	7/8 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 1/2 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)
80-100 Amperes	1 x 12" Speer Cored Carbon (upper) 9/16 x 6" Speer Hold-Ark (lower)

FOR SALE BY THE LEADING MOTION PICTURE SUPPLY HOUSES

THE CARBONS THAT ARE GUARANTEED

SPEER CARBON CO.
ST. MARYS, PA.

MOTION PICTURE MACHINES
Power—Simplex—Baird
HALLBERG'S 20th Century Motor Generators
MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens
SANOZONE Deodorants, the perfect perfume for Motion Picture and all Theatres
WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS
Ask for Catalogs
Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

MINUSA
"SCREEN LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS"
The ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN Perfected.
MINUSA CINE PRODUCTS COMPANY
SAINT LOUIS | CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH CALGARY ALBERTA | NEW YORK
SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

UNION ANNOUNCEMENTS

Some of the 1001 excuses offered by union members for not attending meetings of their locals. More to follow from time to time, some of them good ones.

No. 6 Progressive Canadian Union

Local Union 303 Moving Picture Operators of Hamilton, Ontario, are a progressive organization. They are small in numbers, having a membership of only ten members, but with the desire to improve their knowledge and conditions so firmly established in each and every member what they lack in numbers will be gained by their strength, and while I do not set myself up as being a prophet, I prophesy that success will come to local 303. and make them one of the strongest locals in the I. A.

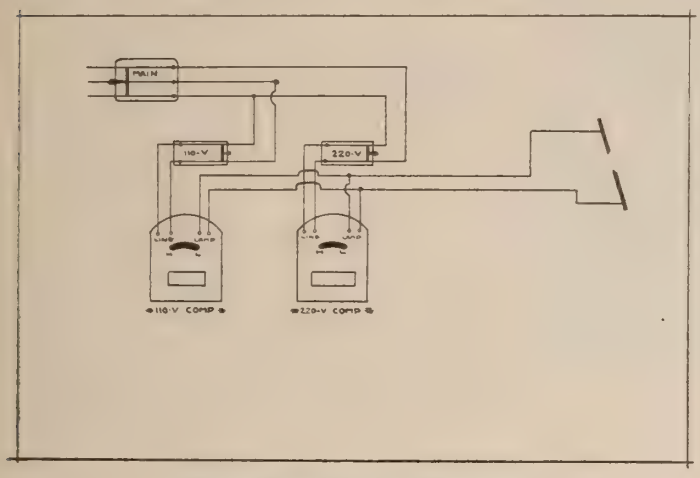
Corns hurt me too bad. Wanted to give my feet a rest.

Local 35 to Give a Ball

Plans are under way for the Annual Ball to be given by the members of Local 35, I. A. T. S. E., of New York City, on the evening of Sunday, February 25th, at Amsterdam Hall, West 44th street. Local 35, whose members consist of all spot light operators in the Greater City, was for several years the "mother" of the moving picture operators' organization, and there is no doubt but what the affair will be liberally patronized by all members of affiliated unions. A good time is always assured at any affair given by this organization.

Don't intend to attend as long as Jim is president.

Theatrical Ball



An affair that promises the lovers of Terpsichore an unusually good time is to be given by the Theatrical Association of Hoboken, N. J., on Thursday evening, February 15th at New Odd Fellows Hall, 412 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J.

The officers of the Association are Walter Brube, president; Walter A. Bemis, vice-president; Fred Grube, treasurer; Dick Farrell, financial secretary and Charles Wines, recording secretary. These officers make up the committee who have the affair in hand and they promise that this year's event will eclipse all previous efforts, and from present indications a record breaking crowd will turn out to see Wolff Gilbert and Miss Violet Tilford lead the Grand March which will be under the direction of floor manager Thomas Betts. Those identified with the various theatres in Hoboken are helping the boys in this undertaking and the management of the Empire Theatre have promised that they will have in attendance a number of their stars to assist in making this a gala occasion and one not soon to be forgotten.

Brooklyn Projection Association

The Brooklyn Projection Association whose officers are: Al. Mackler, president; A. S. Meyers, vice-president; B. Greenwald, secretary-treasurer; J. S. Winick, organizer and George Hirsch, recording secretary, and whose membership comprises motion picture operators and other employees of the various theatres in Brooklyn, and whose objects are to promote the feeling of brotherly love among its members and to provide financial assistance to members who may become sick or disabled were enabled to add quite a considerable sum to their treasury by the generous response of the many who participated in the Second Annual Ball given by that organization on New Year's eve at Brownsville Labor Lyceum. Neither money nor effort was spared to give those who attended a pleasant evening, and judging from the crowded condition of the ball room and the pleased expressions on the faces of those who attended, their efforts were successful beyond exception. The ball room was specially decorated for the occasion and confetti, streamers, whistles and caps were presented to all who attended giving the scene a carnival-like aspect. A few minutes before midnight the hall was darkened and a novel tableau was presented showing Father Time slowly vanishing, and on the stroke of 12 the New Year, in the form of a robust youngster, properly costumed, appeared and wished the merry makers a Happy New Year. After the formation of the couples for the Grand March which was lead by Miss Lucille Lee Stewart and Mr. Huntley Gordon, another surprise was presented, the hall being suddenly lighted with Panchroma

Arc Lights, and motion pictures were taken of the march by M. Berkowitz, which will be shown in several local theatres, giving those present an opportunity to see themselves as others see them. Powers and Simplex machines were used to project several film comedies which were greatly enjoyed.

Transformers in Parallel

Louis H. Ulffers, chief operator, Bishop's Theatre, Hoboken, N. J., submits the above drawing and asks: Is it possible to operate the two compensarcs as shown in the accompanying sketch? If so, what amperage and voltage will be delivered at the arc? If it is impossible, why? It is not a matter of cost in making this arrangement, as it is only to be used in case of emergency.

Answer: In the diagram you have one of your transformers connected on the 110-volt circuit, while the other is connected to the 220-volt supply. The connections are as they should be, and are what is known as "in parallel." If these transformers, economizers, compensarcs or what ever you want to call them are of the same type there is no reason why it should not be possible to operate them, and you also have the added advantage of using a higher amperage at the arc should that become necessary, which I will try and explain.

With both switches in "open" position the closing of the 110-volt switch will pass current to the arc through the 110-volt transformer. Should this switch be left open and the 220-volt switch closed it would follow that the arc current would pass through the 220-volt transformer. But, should both switches be closed, the current at the arc would be equal to the capacity of each transformer while the voltage would remain at standard arc voltage.

We will suppose that each of these transformers have a rated capacity in amperes of 60. The points of regulation being 30, 40 and 60 amperes. From this it will be seen that with both transformers in circuit it will be possible to get as much as 120 amperes at the arc, the stated capacity of both machines, but there are few instances where it becomes necessary to use such a high amperage.

I am merely trying to show the possibilities with such a transformer connection, and it is one of the best diagrams I have had submitted. As an emergency or auxiliary connection it is quite practical, as well as having the advantages which is outlined above. It is my understanding that the arc voltage is not appreciably affected where both transformers are used. The windings of the primary and secondary taking care of the voltage.

Film Winds Around Sprocket

F. J., Belfast. N. Y., writes: "I am running a Powers 6A machine and have had trouble lately with one side of the film winding on the intermittent sprocket; it winds around two or three times, then breaks off leaving it on the sprocket, causing the picture to jump on the screen. I have sent for a new sprocket thinking that might be the cause. Will you please send me details how to put in the new intermittent sprocket. I think I read this in the NEWS some time ago, but have lost the article."

Answer: The trouble you complain of is probably due to undercut teeth on the intermittent sprocket and with the installation of a new sprocket no doubt will disappear. The fitting of an intermittent sprocket by the operator is something that I do not care to recommend. When we consider that it must be absolutely accurate, being adjusted at the factory within one ten-

In Every Corner of your pictures, as well as in the center of the screen, the details will stand out sharp and vivid if your projector is equipped with a lens, which transmits a flood of brilliant light and focuses with extreme accuracy because the lens does not rotate.

Marlux

A Marlux lens gives you an ideal equipment when used with a first class modern projecting machine—and enables you to make the most out of an older projector.

See your Dealer or write direct to

CROWN OPTICAL COMPANY
Rochester, N. Y.

The RadiO Slide

The Most Satisfactory and Quickest Made Slide in the World

RADIO MAT-SLIDE
PATENT APPLIED FOR
RADIO MAT-SLIDE CO. MAKERS
NEW YORK

MR. EXHIBITOR

Surely you know the effectiveness of your screen as a communicating medium.

With RadiO Slides you can make your screen the Theatre's Daily News Paper.

For Sale by all Leading Dealers

RadiO Slides

Box of 50 $1.75 $2.00 in Canada

Order a box today

For Sale By All Live Dealers

RadiO Mat-Slide Co.

121 West 42nd Street New York

J. T. MALONE FILMS, Canadian Agent, Montreal

Almost Invariably

in the houses where the projection is good enough to be talked about—where the pictures are unusually clear and well toned—there is being used a

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN

The pioneer screens of their kind, Radium Gold Fibre Screens have always been kept well in the lead of all of their competitors.

That they are manufactured and sold by a company that keeps every business promise made should be a convincing argument for prospective purchasers.

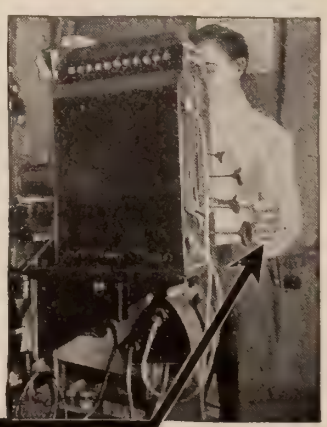
Write today for price and further details.

Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc.

Leon Schlesinger, Gen. Mgr.

220 W. 42nd Street, New York City

Canadian Distributors—J. T. Malone Films, Inc., Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal; Allfeatures, Ltd., 56 King St., W., Toronto.



Cut that out, Operator

Keep both hands free—not one on the feed rod all the time. Get the Boss to put in an Auto-Arc like other houses are doing. Set it once, and it keeps a perfect arc for you without further attention. Impossible for carbons to freeze or burn apart. Makes pictures clear, sharp and snappy.

AUTO-ARC

was invented by a practical operator who knows what your troubles are, and how much you have to do. It never goes wrong. Simplicity itself. Get one on 30 days' trial. You can put it on, and, once you have tried it, you or the Boss won't have it taken away again. He will like it because it soon pays for itself. It actually saves about one-fourth of the current.

Price $67.50 f. o. b. Owensboro, Ky. Price after Feb. 1, $75.00.

Write for further information.

American Auto-Arc Co., Inc.

37 W. Van Buren St. CHICAGO, ILL.

thousandth of an inch, it is much the better way to send the entire intermittent assembly in to the factory where the job can be done right. An operator might be able to fit the sprocket so that it would give good results, but the chances are too many against his so doing. That is where managers show their shortsightedness in not having a complete intermittent movement on hand where in case of trouble the operator could slip the old one out, install the new one and send the one in need of repairs to the factory where the adjustment can be made as it should be, thus insuring you against imperfect projection through not having the parts fitting perfectly. I have mailed you instructions for this delicate operation, but you must exercise great care, otherwise you will do more harm than good.

Wants Electrical Books

J. R. B., Angola, Ind.: Where can I get a good book or set of books on motion picture electricity?

Answer: Theo. Audel and Company, 72 Fifth Avenue, New York City, publishes a set of books known as Hawkins' "Electrical Guides" which can be bought for ten dollars the set. There are ten books in the set, each one of which contains much valuable information.

Carbon Holders

F. C. G., Baltimore, Md., writes, requesting samples of carbon, and registering a "kick" for not receiving the NEWS on time, and asks: "Are there special holders for the new negative carbons and what is the cost of same?"

Answer: Your request will be complied with.

Your letter, in which you complain that you do not receive the NEWS until several days after your employer, has been referred to the Post Office Department and is being investigated.

There is a special holder for the new negative carbons, and when carbons are ordered the manufacturer includes one of these holders without charge. They can also be purchased from nearly all supply dealers for prices ranging from fifty to seventy-five cents.

Boston's New Dudley Opens

The Dudley theatre was opened at Dudley and Ruggles street, Boston, the evening of January 22, by the Dudley Amusement Corporation, Fred Green, president. H. E. Gustin, for 15 years in vaudeville and pictures, and manager of the Niagara theatre, in Roxbury, is manager.

The new theatre cost $100,000. A $20,000 organ is being installed. The house seats 1,400, all on one floor, and there is standing room for 100. Six girl ushers are used. Prices, 10 cents afternoon (5 for children), and 10 and 15 in the evening.

The auditorium is a single chamber with ceiling 20 feet high, pierced by ventilating openings, from which fans draw off the used air. The floor is silent, being covered with linoleum. There is a 12 x 12 projecting room, solid concrete, and outside the main wall of the theatre, cooled by a large suction fan.

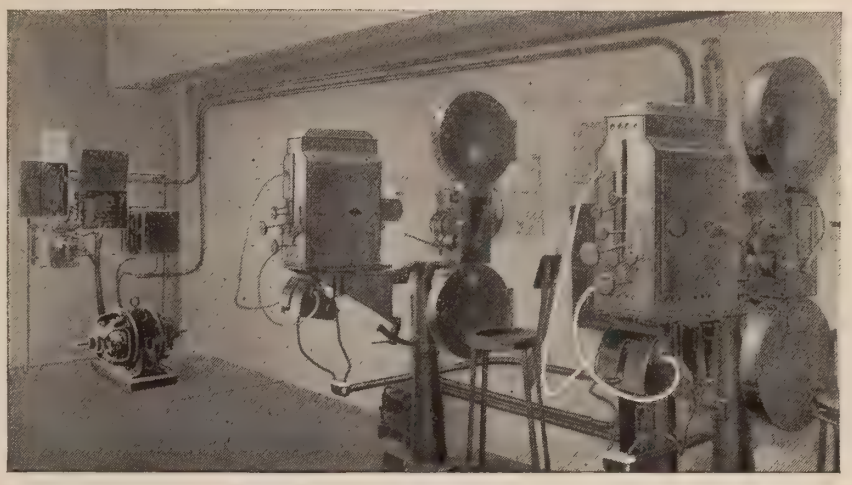
There are two Simplex projection machines, motor driven, and G. E. arc controllers. There is also a G. E. motor generator, to change the alternating into direct current. The throw is 90 feet. The spot lamp is worked from the projection room.

The auditorium is entered by four double doors, from a long corridor with terrazzo floor and wash board permitting the hall to be flushed with a hose. The walls are in yellow with green paneling, and some 25 large frames and colored photographs of World, Metro and Pathe stars line the walls. The same scheme is followed in the heated lobby, 20 x 30 feet, with floors of mosaic.

The opening night Mr. Gustin received floral offerings from Metro, the Roxbury Board of Trade and many friends and associates.

WHY THROW CARBONS AWAY

When you can save them by using the D & L Carbon Savers. Price each . . . . $1.00 Extra Heavy Weight



Exhibitors Supply Company, 4th Floor, Mallers Bldg. CHICAGO ILL.

Send for special price list of supplies.

Are you driving patrons away?

Are you using alternating current for projection, or direct current from out-of-date, easily damaged apparatus?

Do you know that the easiest way to keep people from coming again is to give them a flickering,

Wagner Converter installed in Operator's booth dim picture, full of ghosts, constant interruptions? This causes eye strain.

If you have not met the White Light Converter, it's time you were doing so.

Send for booklet, "Ghosts" and Bulletin 10922.

Wagner Electric Manufacturing Company,
Saint Louis, Missouri

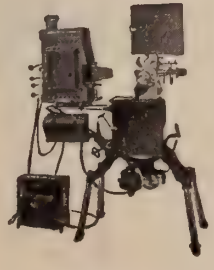
410

"SIXTEEN YEARS OF KNOWING HOW"

A PROJECTION MACHINE

can be no better than its

INTERMITTENT MOVEMENT



A radical advance in "Intermittent" design and construction is the memorable achievement that has placed

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

in its present preeminent position

CATALOG D GIVES ALL DETAILS

Mailed Upon Request

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
NINETY GOLD STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

THE CAMERA

The Manufacture of Cinematograph Film Stock

(Continued from last week)

OF all the operations connected with the manufacture of sensitized photographic films none is more interesting than the application of the light sensitive emulsion to the celluloid sheet or base, and it will therefore prove interesting to explore the darkrooms of the photographic factory and study the things which take place there.

Strange though it may seem, the principle of the film coating machines now used by the largest producers of sensitized materials and the arrangements for drying the freshly coated film stock have undergone very little change since the inception of manufacturing photographic surfaces on flexible supports, which is a matter of some thirty or more years ago.

With the aid of the diagram, Fig. 2, we shall now endeavor to make clear the manner in which a roll of sheet celluloid is coated with photographic emulsion and subsequently dried.

In Fig 2 A is a roll of substrated celluloid base suitably mounted between supports on the coating machine and capable of being revolved when the machine is in operation. From the parent roll A the celluloid sheet passes over and under the rollers B B B and thence to the coating roller C. We are now at the actual stage where the emulsion is applied to the celluloid base, and this operation is one in which most all photographers express great interest.

From the rollers B the celluloid sheet passes around the under side of the coating roller C, which revolves in the emulsion-pan P and, as will be noted by reference to the diagram, the roller C is partially submerged in the sensitive silver-bromide emulsion contained in the pan P. This method of coating photographic films and papers is known as the "dipping method," and, although one of the first methods introduced, is still the most extensively employed in practical photographic manufacturing. It will, therefore, be worthy of further particularization.

The passage of the celluloid stock around the rollers B B B puts a tension on the flexible sheet, which, in addition to removing any tendency to buckle, also causes the celluloid to hug the coating roller C so tightly that no emulsion can get between the roller and the flexible sheet. Although it might not seem possible to submerge the film in this manner without some emulsion getting onto the back, nevertheless millions of feet of film stock are coated each week in this manner, and so long as sufficient tension is applied to the celluloid sheet by the rollers B B B there is no fear of any emulsion getting between the stock and the coating roller.

As will be seen further on, the coated and dried film is finally slit up into narrow ribbons of cinematograph size, and since a margin on each side of the coated roll is waste stock, the emulsion is scraped away at the time of coating over a narrow area on each side of the celluloid sheet. When it is considered that the photographic emulsion is rich in pure silver, and when it is realized that millions of feet of celluloid are processed weekly, it will be apparent that this detail of scraping the emulsion from the edges of the stock effects an enormous saving in valuable emulsion, which would be difficult to recover from the useless marginal strips removed by the slitting machine.

We have now to consider the emulsion-pan P (Fig. 2) and its important and valuable contents—the gelatino-bromide of silver emulsion. Putting the cart before the horse, we will first give brief consideration to the character of the silver-bromide photographic emulsion. As is generally known, the discovery of gelatine emulsion as applied to photography is ascribed to Dr. Richard Leach Maddox, who in 1871 suggested the use of the silver haloids emulsified in gelatine as a much more sensitive photographic medium than the wet collodion of that period.

Upon the discovery of gelatine emulsion rests the entire art of cinematography, for without the ultra-rapid plates and films now commonly used instantaneous or "snap-shot" photography would not be possible—and cinematography consists of making series of "snap-shots" with very short intervals between the shots.

Since it would not be possible or, if possible, not advisable to set forth here the formula by which some successful film or plate maker prepares his emulsion, it would be foolish to give any formula for preparing an emulsion. But it may be of some interest to set forth the bare principle of the emulsification of haloid silver salts in gelatine.

A mixture is made of Silver Nitrate, Potassium Bromide, and photographic gelatine (a refined grade of gelatine) dissolved in water. In order to facilitate the ensuing chemical reaction it is found advisable to use an amount of Potassium Bromide somewhat in excess of that which would appear to be required. We may consider the characteristic reaction between the Silver Nitrate and the Potassium Bromide to be:

Or, in other words, the $Ag\ NO_3 + KBr = AgBr + KNO_3$, Bromide combines with the silver, forming Silver Bromide, while the Nitrate attaches to the Potassium, forming Potassium Nitrate, which is a residue and is gotten rid of later.

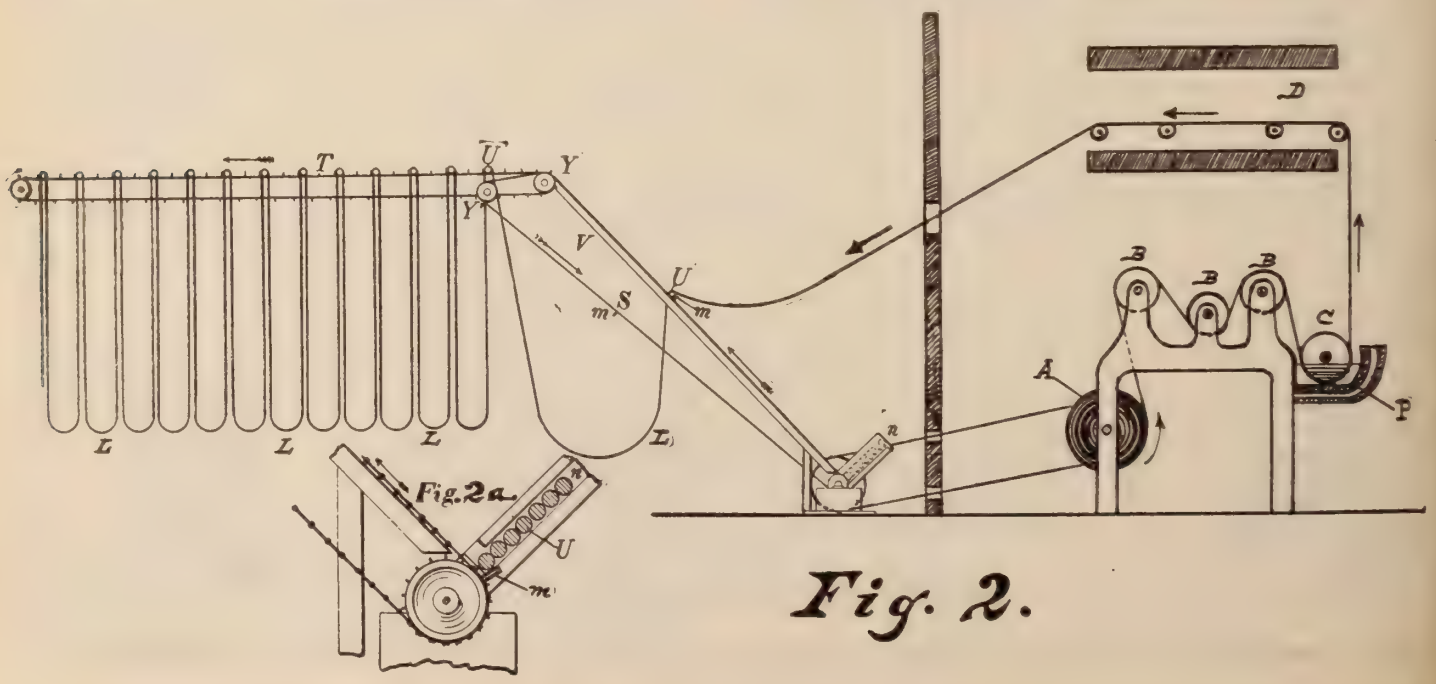


Fig. 2.

After the various components constituting an emulsion have been added to one another, according to the requirements of the emulsifying process employed, comes the boiling of the emulsion, also known as the process of "digesting" or "ripening." It is by boiling the emulsion for the proper period that speed or sensitiveness to light is attained. This boiling or ripening is not done directly over a stove or source of heat, but the receptacle which contains the emulsion mixture is placed within a larger vessel containing water, and the water in the outer vessel is raised in temperature to the desired point. This is obviously comparable to the method by which a carpenter melts glue in his glue-pot, and such a heating arrangement is called a "water-jacket."

This boiling or "ripening" of the gelatino-bromide emulsion is continued up to the point where no greater sensitiveness can be attained, which is governed largely by the extent to which the gelatine used can resist deterioration. After the emulsion has been allowed to cool or set it is next shredded by squeezing through a cloth or by an emulsion-press, and is then washed to free the mixture of the excess Bromide and the Potassium Nitrate residue.

When washed clear of extraneous chemicals the emulsion is reheated (liquefied) and is then led by suitable piping to the emulsion-pan of the coating machine.

Returning now to the emulsion-pan (P, Fig. 2), it will be noticed that this also is water-jacketed in order to keep the emulsion at the proper state of liquefaction best suited to the requirements of film coating. The emulsion-pan P is either made of silver or silver plated, which is necessary by reason of he fact that the emulsion is a silver compound, and if the pan were made of some other metal undesirable chemical reactions might take place which would ruin the emulsion. The coating roller C may also be made of silver, but is sometimes of rubber, while we have seen highly efficient coating done with a coating roller of plain wood.

Having looked into all pertinent details of the coating operation proper, we are now ready to follow the coated stock further upon its journey through the darkrooms. After leaving the coating roller the film travels upward (as shown by the diagram Fig. 2) and enters a cooling chamber or box, D, which is kept at a very low temperature and causes the freshly applied emulsion to set (partially harden), so that there is no danger of its running and thus producing a coating of uneven thickness.

In practical film coating it is found, however, that the freshly applied emulsion does run backwards somewhat during the upward travel of the film from the coating machine to the cooling chamber D, and this fact provides the film maker with the means of varying the thickness of the coating. It will be readily apparent that if the film travels rapidly the emulsion will not have much chance to run back down the celluloid sheet, and a thick coating will be secured, while if the coating machine is run slower the emulsion will run down the film (between the cooling chamber and coating machine), and a thinner coating will thus result.

As previously noted, the passage of the coated sheet through the cooling chamber D has set the emulsion, so that while still soft it will not run, and upon its emergence from the cooling box the film passes to the drying room, which is generally a long passage or alley (darkened, of course).

The mechanism by which the film is handled while drying is driven from the same source of power as the coating machine, and may be said to work in unison with the latter. The drying method shown at the left of the diagram (Fig. 2) is known as "festooning," and, while long in use, still holds its own as the best of the drying systems for sensitized photographic goods in great lengths. On suitable sprockets near the ceiling of the drying alley run a pair of chains T (only one side is shown in the figure), spaced approximately the width of the celluloid sheet apart. These chains T are driven along by the sprockets Y Y (Fig. 2), which are actuated by other chains S, which run downward to the motive source. The chains S are provided at several points with studs m which pass under the lower end of a chute n, which is filled with round wooden rods or sticks U of sufficient length to extend across the chains S S and T T. It is to be noted here that the sticks are free to slide or roll downward in the chute n.

Fig. 2a is a detail view of the chute n and shows the manner in which a rod is picked up by the chains S every time the studs m (on the chains S) pass beneath the chute. Now the film sagging downward as it comes from the cooling chamber D is picked up by a stick U which happens to be traveling upward on the chains S. Since the chains S and T are traveling at a lesser speed than that at which the film is eemrging from the cooling chamber, the film hangs over the stick U in the form of a large loop or "festoon" L. By the time the film has been formed into a loop or festoon of sufficient size the chains S have elevated the stick U to the level of the upper chains T, which are provided with studs at regular intervals. The sticks U are now engaged by the studs on the upper or horizontal chains, and the film proceeds down the drying alley suspended in the form of huge loops, as indicated by the letters L in the diagram.

The air in the drying room is washed before being allowed to enter, and is regulated, as regards temperature and humidity, in such manner as to secure best results in the drying operation.

As might be inferred, elaborate precautions must be taken in the coating, setting and drying rooms to avoid any trace of dust. In addition to cleaning these darkrooms regularly, the expedient is frequently practised of greasing the walls of the respective rooms, with the end in view of catching stray dust particles.

After running through the drying alley the film comes to the take-down machine, which may be said to consist of a series of rollers, over and under which the film passes in order to relieve it from being stretched or strained by the action of the take-up roll upon which the coated and dried film is received. We have not considered it necessary to illustrate the take-down apparatus, but another point concerning the drying process needs mentioning. If the sticks U were allowed to remain in the same position throughout the drying period, marks might result on the back of the stock, so it is found advisable to move these sticks along at intervals to different positions under the celluloid sheet. While the position of the supporting sticks U is changed by laborers in some plants, the Kodak Company have devices on their conveyor chains which release the sticks occasionally so that they may slide along to a fresh position under the suspended film.

As we have now followed our roll of celluloid to the point where it is a sensitized photographic film, we shall conclude next week by describing the manner in which this large roll of sensitive material is transformed into narrow cinematographic bands for the cameraman.

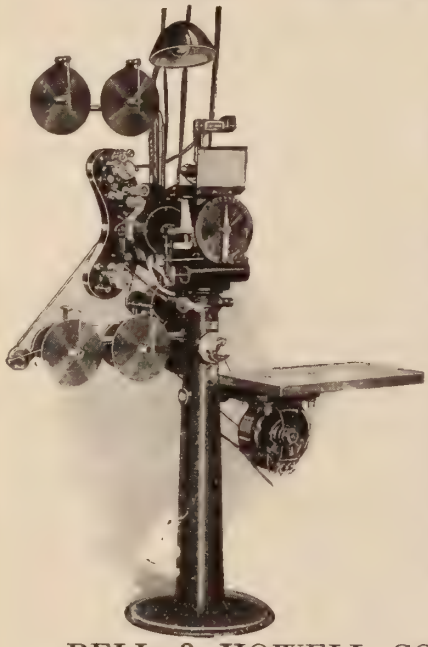
(To be concluded next week)

Bell and Howell in Los Angeles

DONALD J. BELL of the manufacturing firm of Bell & Howell, Chicago, has been in Los Angeles for the past two weeks completing arrangements for the opening of a branch sales department there. Suitable quarters have been secured at 652 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, and William Dumphy, who was sent to the coast a few weeks ago, will be the manager.

How to Convert Waste Film Into Leader Film

MANY inquiries are received by the Eastman Kodak Company for a method of blackening, or making opaque, waste motion picture film so that it can be used as a leader film. The question has been taken up by the research laboratory of the company and the following notes have been gathered from reports of various trials and experiments.



On first consideration, it would appear that there are several possible methods of making film opaque, such as (1) coating the film with an opaque medium, (2) introducing an opaque substance into the gelatine coating, (3) dyeing the film.

The first method is obviously not practical as it is difficult to prepare a medium that will not wear off as the film passes through the projector, while it would be expensive to coat the same.

The second method was tested by precipitating sulfides of metals, such as mercury, lead, copper, bismuth, iron, cobalt and nickel within the film. Of these, lead sulfide proved the most suitable, though in no case was the film made sufficiently opaque. In view of this fact and the possibility of reticulation, necessitating hardening of the film before treatment, and the comparatively large number of operations involved, this method was likewise not considered practical.

The third method, viz., tinting the film, gave more satisfactory results. The dye employed need not necessarily be black, although water soluble Nigrosin is used to some extent in the trade. This dye is not very soluble, and it is necessary to add alkali, such

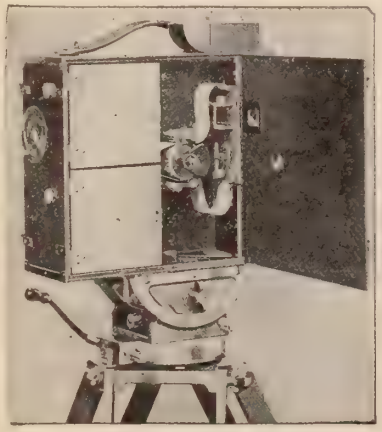
OUR CONTINUOUS FEED PRINTER

Produces prints of the finest "Screen Quality" at the minimum of cost. In Design—in Durability of Construction—in Quantity of Output—in General Efficiency, it has no equal.

BELL & HOWELL COMPANY

Manufacturers Standard Cinemachinery — Perforators— Cameras—Printers,

1807 Larchmont Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.



New York Office and Display Rooms,
614-15 Candler Building, 220 West 42nd Street.

WRITE FOR ANNOUNCEMENT OF Important Improvements of the Motion Picture Camera

Send a postal for our Announcement—just off the press—of the Universal Motion Picture Camera's exclusive new features.

First, speed enables you to "get the picture and get away before the other fellow gets set up." Then, this is the only camera with an adjustment for "framing" the film so that the picture can be located in any desired relation to the perforations. The film transmission is improved—you get absolute registration of film. Further, it is easy to guide the film straight because the film channel makes threading easy—opens like a gate. The focusing tube magnifies image double size—with film in place! Footage indicator measures number of feet exposed. Static, eliminated — this lightweight, one-piece all-metal camera grounds through the body of the operator.

Capacity, 200 feet. Four extra magazines enable total of 1000 feet.

Positive superiority—exclusive improvements—extraordinary quality at a remarkable price — less than half price of similar instruments. Address.

BURKE & JAMES, Inc.
240 E. Ontario St., Chicago

Eastern Branch—
225 Fifth Ave., New York

UNIVERSAL
MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

as potassium carbonate, in order to increase its solubility and dyeing power. The following formula has been used, though it is necessary to wash out the soluble salts after dyeing and give a subsequent bath of glycerine, in order to prevent the film from subsequently becoming brittle. The formula is:

Nigrosin (Water Soluble)	5 lbs.
Alum	6 ozs.
Potassium Carbonate	1 lb.
Water	15 gals.

The film will be completely dyed in about two hours.

In view of the fact that leader film must withstand much more wear and tear than ordinary film, it is obvious that any method which has a tendency to make the film brittle must not be used, however promising it may be in other respects.

It is possible to form anilin black within the film by first bathing it in anilin sulfate and then in a bath of bichromate. However, in this as in the Nigrosin process, there is a danger that some of the soluble salts may be left in the film after drying, and if not washed out they will have a tendency later to make the film brittle and become useless.

In view of the possible difficulty of procuring Nigrosin, experiments have been made with numerous other dyes, and it has been found that by suitable admixture of two or more dyes it is possible to render the film sufficiently opaque, providing the dyes are used at a high concentration. The mixed dyes, however, must be either exclusively acid or exclusively basic. Suitable acid dyes are Chromotrop FB, Orange GRX, Quinoline Yellow, Brilliant Patent Blue, Napthamine 12B.

The rate of dyeing with acid dyes is rather slow, but this can be increased by mordanting the film or by the addition of acetic acid to the dye bath. As the film dries, the acid evaporates, thus removing any danger of subsequent brittleness. Good results may be obtained with the following formula:

Chromotrop FB	20	ozs.
Brilliant Patent Blue	20	ozs.
Quinoline Yellow	20	ozs.
Acetic Acid	32	ozs.
Glycerine	½	gal.
Formaline	½	gal.
Water	25	gal.

Dyeing will be complete in about 10 minutes at a temperature of 70 degrees F. If it is convenient to dye for a longer time, the bath may be diluted accordingly.

Basic dyes can also be used to advantage, especially those having a strong affinity for gelatine; by using these, film may be made opaque with a minimum concentration of dye. With the following formula, no mordant or addition agent is required:

Fuchsin	1	oz.,	120 grs.
Methylene Blue	2	oz.,	360 grs.
Auramine	2	oz.,	360 grs.
Glycerine	½	gal.
Water to	25	gal.

Ten minutes' immersion at 70 degrees will usually be sufficient, after which the film should be rinsed and dried.

While the above formulae are quite satisfactory, they are only examples of what can be done by mixing suitable magenta, yellow and blue dyes. Similar results may be obtained with a number of other dyes, always bearing in mind, however, that acid and basic dyes must not be used in the same formula, as they tend to precipitate each other.

It is also very necessary to make sure that the dyes will not subsequently affect the film, by applying the following test for brittleness: Immerse half of a short length of film in the dye bath, and when dry maintain it at a temperature of 212 degrees F. for 24 hours. After removing the film, allow it to remain in the open air until the undyed portion absorbs sufficient moisture to regain its original flexibility. If the dyed portion is more brittle than the undyed then the dye bath is unsuitable.

Blue Tones on Motion Picture Film

A BLUE landscape does not exist in nature; the nearest approach to an all-pervading blue tone is a seascape at sunrise or sunset. A pleasing effect, however, is often made on the screen by a combination of a blue tone and a suitable tint. Many formulae have been recommended for the production of such tones, but owing to either lack of instructions or due to vital defects in the formulae, the tones lacked transparency and the baths have not kept well.

Although excellent blue tones may be obtained by the use of dyes, the more certain method is to replace the silver image of the film by a blue compound such as the pigment Prussian blue. This is prepared by mixing a solution of an iron (Ferric) salt and a solution of potassium ferrocyanide, the blue pigment being at once precipitated. If on the other hand, the iron salt is added to a solution of potassium ferricyanide—note the difference—a dark solution is obtained, but if a piece of metallic silver is placed in the solution, a layer of Prussian blue will be deposited on it, due to the fact that the potassium ferricyanide has been reduced to potassium ferrocyanide in the region of the silver. This process is exactly the same as that which takes place during toning, the silver image being replaced in part by Prussian blue.

The re-action can be accomplished by means of either a single or a two-solution process, by methods recently worked out in the research laboratory of the Eastman Kodak Company, as follows:

Two-Solution Toner.—A piece of film is first immersed in a solution of an iron (Ferric) salt, rinsed, and then immersed in a solution of potassium ferricyanide. The Ferricyanide is reduced locally in the region of the silver image and the potassium ferrocyanide thus produced at once reacts with the iron salt present in the film forming Prussian Blue, a blue-toned image being thus obtained. The working details are as follows:

Immerse the film for two minutes in

Ferric alum	4 lbs. 6 ozs.
Water to	50 gallons.

Rinse for one minute in running water and immerse in the following until toning is complete:

Potassium Ferricyanide	4 lbs. 6 ozs.
Water to	50 gallons.

The bath should be maintained at about 70 degrees F.

The quality of the final tone is determined by the nature of the original positive, whose density should be slightly under normal, by the time of immersion, and the time of rinsing. Prolonged immersion in the ferric alum intensifies the tone and prolonged rinsing weakens it. The tone also depends on the time of immersion in the ferricyanide, although the full effect is usually obtained in three to four minutes.

After toning, the film should be washed for twenty minutes. Usually a thin yellow veil persists in the highlights, but is not apparent on projection.

The life of the bath is unusually long, fifty gallons of each solution toning about twenty thousand feet of film. The ferricyanide keeps well in the dark, but in time some of it will be reduced to potassium ferrocyanide which tends to produce a blue fog on the film. When this occurs the bath should be thrown away.

It is not always possible to duplicate a tone by this process, owing to the uncertainty during the washing out of the ferric alum. In view of the simplicity of the process and the stability of the solutions, this method is therefore recommended for the man who only tones at infrequent intervals.

Single Solution Toner.—In this case, advantage is taken of the fact that if a solution of potassium ferricyanide is added to a solution of ferric alum in the presence of a salt such as potassium oxalate, there is no sign of a precipitate, but if a piece of metal is placed in the solution, the potassium ferricyanide is at once reduced to ferrocyanide and Prussian Blue deposited upon the metal as above.

The single toning solution is made up as follows:

Potassium Bichromate		75 grains.
Ferric Alum	8 ozs.	85 grains.
Oxalic Acid	20 ozs.
Potassium Ferricyanide	6 ozs.	290 grains.
Ammonium Alum	33½ ozs.
Hydrochloric Acid (10%)	6½ ozs.
Water to	50 gallons.

The method of compounding this bath is very important. The solids must be dissolved separately in a small quantity of warm water and allowed to cool. The solutions should then be filtered into the tank exactly in the order given and the whole diluted to the required volume. Only earthenware crocks should be used for dissolving the chemicals, chipped enamel ware must be strictly avoided. If the instructions are followed closely, the solution will be free from any sign of precipitate and will remain so for a considerable time.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Our plant, recently destroyed by fire, has been rebuilt and thoroughly equipped with all new machinery of most improved type.

Developing Printing Color Work

YOUR BUSINESS SOLICITED

PACIFIC FILM LABORATORIES

5813-27 Santa Monica Boulevard Los Angeles, Calif.

STOP

Producers that suffer delays and disappointments at the hands of the DEVELOPER and PRINTER should investigate EVANS' SERVICE.

Our reputation for quality, responsibility and promptness deserves your immediate attention.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.

416-24 West 216th St. New York City

Telephone 6881-2 Audubon

BROOK LIBRARY

Feature Advertising Trailers Classy and Attractive

Showing the Star and The Feature Title

Investigate and find out how reasonable you can obtain this service.

W. J. GILMORE, Mgr.

Room 709-10 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y.

GOERZ

Kino Hypar F:3.5 Lens

THIS is the lens that has met the most exacting requirements of both studio and field motion picture photography. It is made in 1⅝, 2, 2⅜ and 3 inch focus and can be fitted to all types of Kinemetograph cameras. We also call your attention to our GOERZ ROUND CLOSING DISSOLVING AND VIGNETTING DEVICE, MICROMETER MOUNTS and other standard devices. Send for our latest descriptive matter. We are at your service for technical or other information.

C. P. GOERZ AMERICAN OPTICAL CO.

317 J East 34th Street New York City

A scenario department

considers only type-written manuscripts—others are too hard to follow.

Your audiences are interested in clear pictures only—for the same reason.

The clearest pictures are on Eastman Film—identifiable by the stencil mark

"EASTMAN"

in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The nature of the film to be toned will depend upon the intensity of the tone required, and this can be easily determined by a few preliminary trials. The image is considerably intensified by the bath, so in most cases very thin film will be required. Toning will be complete in ten minutes with the bath at 70 degrees F. A shorter immersion will give paler tones. The film should then be washed for ten or fifteen minutes until the highlights are clear. The very slight permanent yellow coloration of the gelatine which usually remains has no effect when projected. If there is any sign of blue stain, it is an indication of a stale bath or that it was incorrectly mixed.

If hydrochloric acid is added to the bath equal to the original amount, after toning five thousand feet of film, the bath on the whole will tone fifteen thousand feet per fifty gallons of solution. If after reviving the bath with hydrochloric acid, the tones remain flat, then the bath has become exhausted and should be thrown away. As the bath becomes exhausted the time of toning should be extended beyond the ten minutes to obtain the necessary contrast. It is false economy to exhaust the bath to the limit and get inferior tones, since the cost of the chemicals used is insignificant in comparison with the value of the film being treated.

When using the bath it must be borne in mind that it is sensitive to light, its nature being similar to the solution used for making blue print paper. Whenever the tank is not in use it should be covered. It is also very important that no metal comes into contact with the solution. Plain wooden racks with or without wooden pegs should be used. Any metal used in the racks or pins used to connect the film would gather the Prussian Blue in preference to the film. Metal faucets should be replaced by wooden plugs. After continued use of the bath a slight bluish sludge will collect at the bottom of the tank. This can be disregarded unless it forms to an appreciable extent; it is due to either incorrect mixing, the action of light or contact with metallic substances.

The figures given for the life of the bath only apply if all the conditions above are observed. The blue tones obtained are permanent under normal conditions, though the blue color is destroyed by a weak alkali such as ammonia or sodium carbonate. Very weak ammonia will turn the toned film violet, though this color is not permanent, the film turning blue again on keeping.

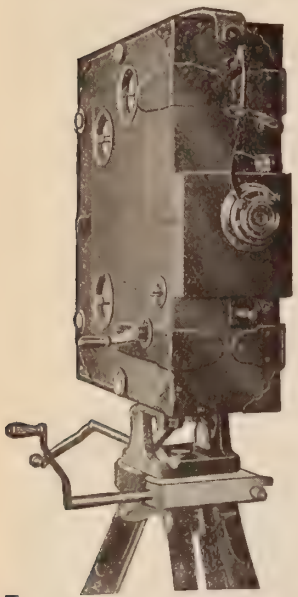

PHOTO CINES NO. 4 CAMERA and TRIPOD

fitted with Zeiss Tessar Lens F3.5—
Automatic diaphragm dissolve, single turn and reverse action, filmpunch, adjustable frame line.

Price $250.00 Complete

SEND FOR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

TOPICAL-PATHE-DEBRIE CAMERAS AND ACCESSORIES

G. GENNERT

24-26 E. 13 St. New York — 320 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
455 S. Olive St. Los Angeles — 693 Mission St. San Francisco

"HEART STRINGS"

(Red Feather Photo-Play)

"Love Is Idleness" by Macbeth is the Theme

REEL 1

1—"Adoration" (4/4 Moderato) by Barnard until—T: "I sentence you to ten years."
2—"Continue ff" until—T: "Yes, I'm the wife of the man."
3—"Theme" until—T: "And in one of the cities."
4—"Little Serenade" (4/8 Allegretto) by Gruenwald until—T: "Nights Shadow as they advance."
5—"After Sunset" (4/4 Moderato) by Pryor until—T: "The sullen sky stroke."
6—"Furioso for Storm" until—S: "Change of scene."
7—"Melody by Huerter" until—T: "All the pleasures of life."
8—"Repeat Furioso" until—T: "I didn't want to be an orphan."
9—"Gretchen" (Intermezzo) by Martin until—T: "To one it was ten years."
10—"Organ to action" until—T: "To the good Doctor, etc."
11—"Flirtation" (Tempo di Valse Moderato) by Meyer Helmund until—T: "Considine has paid, etc."
12—"Notturno" (9/8 Andante) by Grieg until—T: "I'll call again to-morrow."
13—"Theme" until—T: "So the days wore on."
14—"Berceuse" (6/8 Andante tranquillo) by Delacour until—T: "Dear I'm not happy here."
15—"Melody by Friml" until—T: "Have you no thought."
16—"Dramatic Tension No. 1" by Reissiger until—T: "You think this woman, etc."
17—"Theme" until—T: "Is Miss Jon there."
18—"Dramatic Tension No. 2" by Reissiger until—T: "Just a moment."
19—"Reverie" (4/4 Lento) by Rissland until—T: "After a sleepless night."
20—"Heart Throbs" by Arnold until (4/4 Moderato) until—T: "Telegram."
21—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.

SUPERIOR TITLES

Clear, Clean and Brilliant.
Eastman stock.
Wording Perfectly Balanced. With or Without Borders.

ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO.
1339-51 Diversey Parkway Chicago, U. S. A.

MUSIC AND THE PICTURE

Mozart's "The Magic Flute"

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the second of a series of articles compiled from various sources dealing with the history of musical selections. It is our hope by continuing these to awaken in the minds of musicians the desire to study the history of music, for by doing this there is a certain inspiration which can not be realized in any other way.

The Opera

EMANUEL JOHANN SCHIKANEDER, the author of the libretto of "The Magic Flute," was a wandering theatre director, poet, composer and play-actor. Vain, improvident, shrewd, a bore, he nevertheless had good qualities that won for him the friendship of Mozart. In 1791 Schikaneder was the director of the Auf der Wieden, a little theatre where comic operas were performed, and he no doubt would have made a success of his venture, had he not been so ambitious. On the verge of failure, he made a fairy drama out of Wieland's story, "Lulu, or the Enchanted Flute." He asked Mozart to write the music for it. Mozart, pleased with the scenario, accepted, Schikaneder following closely Wieland's text. He soon learned that Marinelli, a rival manager, the director of the Leopoldstadt theatre, thought of putting upon the stage a piece with the same subject. He, therefore, hurriedly, and with the assistance of an actor named Gieseke, modified the plot, and substituted for the evil genius of the play the high priest Sarastro, who appears to be the custodian of the secrets of the executor of the wishes of the Masonic order.

Certain writers have found a deep and symbolical meaning in the most trivial dialogue and even in the music of the overture. Some have gone so far as to regard the opera as a symbolic representation of the French Revolution, the Queen of Night being the incarnation of Royalty. Pamina is Liberty, the daughter of Despotism, for whom Tamino, the People, burns with passionate love. Monostatos is Emigration; Sarastro is the Wisdom of the Legislature; the priests represent the National Assembly.

Mozart, Goethe and Hegel saw nothing in the text but the libretto of a magic opera. The former once wrote of the text, "The author understood perfectly the art of producing great theatrical effects by contrasts." Hegel praised the libretto highly for the mixture of the common and the supernatural, for the episodes of the tests and the initiations.

Schikaneder knew the ease with which Mozart wrote; and he also knew that it was necessary to keep watch over him, that he might be ready at the appointed time, he therefore put Mozart in a little pavilion which was in the midst of a garden near his theatre. The music of "The Magic Flute" was written in this pavilion and in a room of the casino of Josephdorf. Mozart was depressed when he began his task. Schikaneder, in order to cheer him up, surrounded him with members of his company, of whom one was the then famous singer, known on the stage as Gerl. It was this fascinating beauty who was said to have influenced him.

The overture was finished September 28, 1791. On September 30 of that year "Die Zauberfloete," a grand opera in two acts, was produced at the Auf der Wieden theatre and Mozart conducted the first two performances.

The opera disappointed the Viennese at first, and Mozart was broken hearted. "The Magic Flute" was regarded as a Singspiel, a "magic farce," with unusually elaborate music. The following quotation tells the story: "The new machine-comedy, 'The Magic Flute,' with music by our Kapellmeister Mozart (sic), which was given at great expense and with much sumptuousness, did not meet with the expected success, for the contents and dialogue of the piece are utterly worthless."

Schikaneder was obstinate in his faith in the composition and the opera soon became the fashion, so that the two hundredth representation was celebrated at Vienna in October, 1795. The libretto was translated into Dutch, Swedish, Danish, Polish, Italian. Paris heard the opera in 1801 as "Les Mysteres d'Isis." The first performance in London was May 25, 1819, in Italian, and the first performance in America was in Boston on January 11, 1860, also in Italian.

Mozart died shortly after the production of "The Magic Flute," in deep distress. This opera with the music of his Requiem was in his mind until the end. The frivolous and audacious Schikaneder, "sensualist, parasite, spendthrift," became wealthy by this opera, and in 1798 he built the Theatre An 'der Wien. On the roof he put his own statue clothed in the feather costume of Papageno. His luck soon broke and in 1812, he died in poverty.

The Overture

The overture is scored for two flutes, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, two horns, two trumpets, three trombones, and strings.

The overture begins Adagio, with three fortissimo E-flat major chords for full orchestra "which have some hidden Masonic significance. The chief movement is a brilliant and elaborate fugue, which is treated with orchestral freedom. About the middle of its development it is interrupted by the "Masonic" E-flat major chords which were heard at the beginning. "These chords are the only thing in the overture that reappears in the opera; yet the work is by no means open to the charge of music irrelevancy, for the theme of the fugue is eminently suggestive of the lively character of Papageno, the bird-catcher. The overture to 'The Magic Flute' was probably the one Rossini has in mind when he once said: 'I've been trying for months to write some fugued overtures a la Mozart; but I've had to tear them all up. The great model is too overpowering! Mine were all detestable.'"

There has always been, since 1791, discussion concerning the treatment of Masonic thoughts and rites in "The Magic Flute," both in the text and the music. Jahn had a firm belief that "the dignity and grandeur with which the music reveals the symbolism of these mysteries certainly have their root in his (Mozart's) intense devotion to the Masonic idea. A clear indication of this devotion was given in this overture to the initiated, but in a way that shows how well he distinguished between Masonic symbolism and artistic impulse."

Mozart's devotion to Masonry is well known, and he may have been inspired by Masonic thoughts when he wrote the overture. He may have anticipated Herder and Ulibischeff and endeavored to express the idea of a struggle between light and darkness. It is highly probable, however, that he was chiefly concerned with making music. As Henri Lavoix says in his "Histoire de l'Instrumentation:" "Here the master, wishing, so to speak, to glance back and give a final model of the old Italian and German overtures with a counterpointed theme, which had served, and still served, as preface to many operas, pleased himself by exhibiting the melodic theme that he had chosen, in all its forms adorned with the riches of harmony and instrumentation. The result of this marvellous work of the carver is one of the most perfect in-

At every convention the demonstrations of

THE BARTOLA ORCHESTRA

are jammed with attentive people. Why?

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 708-710 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Factory
Oshkosh, Wisconsin

strumental compositions ever produced by human genius. Yet no one can establish the slightest resemblance between the overture and the grotesque magic piece on which Mozart lavished the most precious treasures of his prodigious imagination."

Fugue subjects like this which were common property, were often wandering melodies. The solemn chords that open and interrupt the overture may suggest the knocking of those seeking initiation, or they may recall "the probation which must be undergone by those who engage in the search for a higher light." They are effective without explanation. As Jahn well said: "The true triumph of genius consists in having created a work which, wholly apart from scholarship or esoteric meaning, produces by its perfection an irresistible effect on the musical mind, animating it to more active endeavor and lifting it to an atmosphere of purest serenity."

"The overture of 'The Magic Flute,' which will for centuries to come still ravish the ear: that sportive, happy wonder-child—shedding light and joy, it will ever soar skyward, in spite of fog and utter darkness."—Robert Schumann.

"THE DOUBLE ROOM MYSTERY"

Reviewed on page 438

(Red Feather Photoplay)

CREEPY CREEPS (Mysterioso), by Tyers, is the Theme

1—"New Era" (Overture) by Heed until—T: "Silver Joe and his Partner."
2—"Mysterioso" by Lake until—S: "Chasing the burglars."
3—"Agitato No. 4" by Becker until—T: "Silver Joe and his pal."
4—"Rustling leaves" (6/8 Mosso) by Koehler until—T: "Hello, Boss, hold your paper."
5—"Tendresse (2/4 Andantino) by Ravina until—T: "The ice man. etc."
6—"Intermezzo" (3/4 Presto) by Arenski until—T: "I'm going to tell you a little story."
7—"Melody" (4/4 Moderato) by Kretschmer until—T: "In the meshes of the law."
8—"Adoration" (4/4 Moderato) by Barnard until—T: "Innocent or guilty."
9—"To Spring" (6/4 Allegro appassionato) by Grieg until—T: "I got you out. etc."
10—"Ein Maerchen" (4/4 Maestoso) by Bach until—T: "Come on, Silver."
11 "Mysterioso Agitato" by Becker until—T: "Susanne, trust me."
12—"Rustle of Spring" (2/4 Agitato) by Sinding until T: "Say that thing. etc."
13—"La Reve" (3/4 Adagio ma nomtropo) until—T: "Eight-nine."
14—"Dolorosa (4/4 Allegro Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "Second offenders are always, etc."
15—"Reverie" (4/4 Moderato) by Arnold until—T: "Mister, you're flirting with death."
16—"Last Spring" (4/4 Andante) by Grieg until—T: "Letter."
17—"Flirtation" (Intermezzo) by Meyer Helmund until—
* * * * * * END.

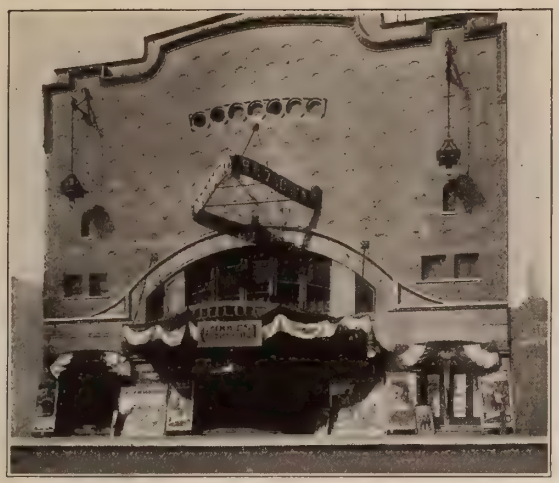
"THE WHITE RAVEN"

Reviewed on page 596

(Metro Picture)

"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" (3/4 Andantino) by Saint Saens is the Theme

1—"Silence" until—T: "Opening Scene dancing."
2—"Piano Solo" improvise to action until—T: "Nightingale name, etc."
3—"Loh, Hear the Gentle Lark" (4/4 Allegro non tropo) by Bishop until—T: "Love and Alcohol."
4—"Continue pp" until—T: "It's time for your turn, Nan."
5—"My Tango Boy" by Roberts. NOTE: To be performed as a vocal solo with piano accompaniment until—S: "Nan is finished, people applauding, etc."
6—"Silence" until—T: "From laughter to tears."
7—"Forgotten," Song by Cowles. NOTE: To be performed as a vocal solo with Piano accompaniment until—S: "People applauding."
8—"Silence" until—S: "Dancing."
9—"Piano improvise to action" until—"Now we will see, etc."
10—"Piano ppp" until—S: "Dancing again."
11—"Piano ff" for dancing until—T: "You don't have to do this."
12—"Eventide" (6/8 Andante Con Moto) Romance for Cello by Gruenwald to action pp or ff until—T: "And together we came up here."
13—"Nocturno in F" (3/4 Andantino) by Krzyzanowsky until—T: "The stranger."
14—"Continue ff" until—T: "If you got the dust kick in."
15—"Silence" until—T: "Holy smoke, won by the lowest pair in the deck."
16—"Prelude" (Aandante) by Chopin until—T: "You are not the type of woman."
17—"Theme" until—T: "The years have dealt harshly."
18—"Organ to action" until—T: "The intervening years of work, etc."
19—"Raymond Overture" by Thomas until—T: "The great Aria from Lucia."
20—"Great Aria or Mad Scene from Lucia." NOTE: To be performed as a vocal Solo with Piano or Flute Obligato until—S: "Audience applauding."
21—"Silence" until—T: "Letter will you accompany the bearer to my dressing room?"
22—"Heloise" (Intermezzo) by Langey until—T: "En route to Broadway."
23—"Canzonetta" by Herbett until (3/4 Allegretto)—T: "Unable to serve, etc."
24—"Continue to action" until—T: "Blaisdell's letter to the Prima Donna."
25—"Theme" until—T: "Mlle. Baldini now the Opera's favorite."
26—"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," to be performed as a Vocal Solo with Piano accompaniment—S: "Mlle. Baldini finished her Song."
27—"A La Bien Aimee" (Valse Lente) by Schuett until—T: "A frequent visitor, etc."
28—"Organ to action" until—T: "Why do you continue to receive, etc."
29—"Theme" to action until—T: "Blaisdell's financial foes."
30—"In the Garden" (4/4 Andante) by Goldmark until—T: "The trap."
31—"Continue to action" until—T: "A financial Samson and Dalilah."
31—"Theme" until—T: "Hammering at Midland Central."
33—"Short Agitato" to action until—T: "In his hour of need."
34—"Erotik" (4/8 Lento Molto) by Grieg until—T: "Vengeance is mine, said the Lord."
35J"Organ to action" until—T: "A temperamental Prima Donna."
36—"Dramatic Tension" No. 1 by Reissiger until—T: "Don't go, you have a right to happiness."
37—"Continue or repeat to action" until—T: "The long journey."
38—"A Leaflet by Gruenwald" (4/4 Moderato) until—T: "At the end of the trail."
39—"Theme" until— * * * * * * END.



"PANTHEA"

Reviewed on page 591

(Selznick Pictures)

"Reverie" by Rissland (4/4 Lento) is the Theme

1—"Intermezzo" (2/4 Presto) by Arensky until—T: "Panthea a price pupil."
2—Any good Classic Piano Solo by a Russian Composer until—T: "A supreme moment for Panthea's instructor."
3—"Chanson sans Paroles" (3/4 Allegretto Graziso) by Tschaikowsky until—T: "Could Panthea have foreseen."
4—"Continue pp" until—T: "Panthea's Brother Ivan."
5—"Second Movement" (Allegro con Grazia) from the Pathetic Symphony by Tschaikowsky until—T: "There should be no Tsar."
6—"Continue ff" until—T: "Our Cousin Waslaw."
7—"Continue to action" until—T: "The Baron calls on his friend."
8—"Serenade" (6/8 Allegretto) by Rubinstein (Schirmer Galaxy No. 49) until—S: "Interior of Panthea's room."
9—"Rustle of Spring" (2/4 Agitato) by Sinding until—T: "Ivan hides in his cousin's home."
10—"Largo from the new world symphony" by Dvorak until—T: "Serge, a schoolday sweetheart."
11—"Theme" until—T: "A box for the opera."
12—"Berceuse" (4/4 Andante) by Iljinsky until—T: "The fight."
13—"Good Agitato" (Watch shots) until—S: "Panthea returns to her home."
14—"Heart Throbs" (Reverie) by Arnold until—T: "Armed with counterfeit passports."
15—"Romance" (4/4 Andante Cantabile) by Tschaikowsky until—T: "The second day out."
16—"Continue to action" until—T: "England."
17—"Elegie" (Moderato) by Czibulka until—T: "Off the coast of England."
18—"Good Furioso" to action until—T: "News of the fire."
19—"Continue pp" until—T: "Sympathetic hand awaiting survivors."
20—"Nocturno" by Krzyzanowski until—T: "Late that night."
21—"Creepy Creeps" (Mysterioso) by Tyers until—T: "I am a fugitive from Russia."
22—"Bacchanale" (2/4 Presto) from the Seasons by Tschaikowsky until—T: "Pleasant convalescent days."
23—"Flirtation" (Waltz Intermezzo) by Meyer Helmund until—T: "You seem well enough."
24—"Continue to action" until—T: "A survivor from the wreck."
25—"Andantino in Modo di Canzona" from the 4th Symphony in F minor by Tschaikowsky until—T: "Ecstasy."
26—"Continue to action" until—T: "At midnight."
27—"Theme" until—T: "Two years spent in perfect happiness."
28—"Serenade" (Andante) by Drigo to action pp or ff until—T: "Pablo, a Violinist."
29—"Continue pp" until—S: "Pablo near Gerard's bed."
30—Fine Violin Solo suggest Serenade by Moszkowsky until—S: "Panthea printed on white card."
31—"It was a dream" (Andante) by Lassen until—T: "A silent prayer, etc."
32—"Fine Piano Solo" (Classic and Unknown) until—T: "I will call at your home."
33—"Nocturno Op. 48" No. 1 by Chopin until—T: "Hop playing my nerves, etc."
34—"Attention Violin Player," watch action on screen and improvise the action (Orchestra and Organ Silence) until—T: "The Baron's visit for good or evil."
35—"Theme" (repeat if necessary) until—S: "Insane Musician leading his toys."
36—"Prelude" (Lento) by Rachmaninoff until—T: "Do you mean what you said?"
37—"Theme ff" until—S: "Pablo playing Violin near Gerard's box."
38—"Improvise Violin Solo" until—S: "Panthea enters."
39—"Amo Melody" (Lento) by Robyn until—T: "Off for Pablo's Home."
40—"Continue to action" until—S: "Russian Police Captain in office."
41—"Continue ff" until—T: "Gerard recovers health in the country."
42—"Barcarolle" (June) from "Seasons" (4/4 Andante Cantabile) by Tschaikowsky until—T: "Woman can understand."
43—"Organ to action" until—T: "A banquet at the Baron's home."
44—"Valse Suite" by Brahms until—T: "Baron talking to Russian Agent."
45—"Theme" until—T: "She has been as much to me."
46—Continue or repeat ff until—S: "Panthea struggling with the Baron."
47—"Short Agitato" to action until—S: "Baron drops dead."
48—"Love Song" (Dramatic) by Flegier until—T: "Madame, I have a warrant for your arrest."
49—"Continue ff" until—T: "A month later."
50—"Theme" until— * * * * * * * END.

Broadway Theatre, Lawrence, Mass.

"The SEEBURG Motion Picture Player, Style 'R,' which you installed in our Broadway Theatre is giving perfect satisfaction. We have never had the slightest trouble since it has been placed there, and it has proven a great asset to our shows. We cannot recommend it too highly."

TOOMEY & DEMARA.

THESE THEATRES AND HUNDREDS LIKE THEM HAVE SOLVED THEIR MUSIC PROBLEM FOR ALL TIME BY INSTALLING THE INCOMPARABLE

Atlanta, Georgia

"We have been experiencing all sorts of trouble with the music problem, and not until you induced us to purchase a SEEBURG did we solve the music question."

N. L. Pardoza

SEEBURG

PIPE ORGANS and Self-Playing Orchestras

Myrtle Theatre, Lewistown, Mont.

"The tone of the SEEBURG is more pleasing than that of much higher-priced instruments of other makes."

John B. Ritchey

J. P. SEEBURG COMPANY

Manufacturers

1004 REPUBLIC BLDG., CHICAGO

BOSTON
162 Boylston St.

NEW YORK
729 Seventh Ave.

PHILADELPHIA
923 Walnut St.

PITTSBURGH
Seltzer Bldg.

ST. LOUIS
602 Princess Theatre Bldg.

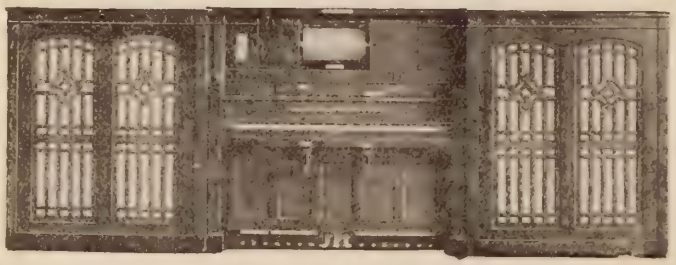
ATLANTA
65 N. Pryor St.

MINNEAPOLIS
80 So. 8th St.

SAN FRANCISCO
52 Turk St.

FARGO, N. D.
Stone Bldg.

BEAUMONT, TEXAS
702 Pearl St.



Marlowe Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

PLOUGH, CONNERS & KOFFMAN
(Incorporated)
(Theatrical Enterprises, Chicago)

"All of the best known Pipe Organs were demonstrated for us, after which we purchased two SEEBURG instruments. We have yet to hear an organ of any other make at any price which can compare with the SEEBURG tone.

P. C. Koffman

CREMONA

SOLO STYLE M 2

The Solo Instrument

Not only produces Better Music, but its operating expense is lower.

A request will bring you full particulars

THE MARQUETTE PIANO CO.

1608-1622 So. Canal Street
CHICAGO

M. WINKLER'S

DRAMATIC and INCIDENTAL NUMBERS are specially written and composed

FOR

THE MOTION PICTURE

SPECIAL IF YOU MENTION THE NEWS PRICE

Small Orchestra and Piano	23c
Full Orchestra and Piano	30c

DRAMATIC TENSION
INDIAN LOVE THEME
CHINESE ALLEGRETTO
WESTERN ALLEGRO

are now obtainable

FROM

CARL FISCHER—Cooper Square
NEW YORK

"GOD'S CRUCIBLE"

Reviewed on page 596

(Bluebird Photo-Play)

"Cupidietta" (2/4 Moderato) by Tobani is the Theme

1—"Gretchen" (Intermezzo) by Martin until—T: "His teachers failed."
2—"Continue to action" until—T: "In his early manhood."
3—"Elegy" (6/6 Moderato) by Czibulka to action pp or ff until—T: "Afterwards in a City."
4—"Swing Song" (6/8 Allegretto) by Barns until—T: "Success had come."
5—"Sunshine and Shadows" (4/4 Allegretto) by Sudds until—T: "The following morning."
6—"Theme" until—T: "Dolly Dimples Dugan."
7—"Extase" (9/8 Andante Moderato) by Ganne ff during disputes until—S: "Telephoning."
8—"Theme" until—T: "Thus de Lorenzo, etc."
9—"Longing" (Andante) by Bendix until—T: "For many months."
10—"Alita" (Tempo di Gavotte) by Losey until—S: "Warren gets his gun."
11—"Continue ff" until—T: "Lorenzo's Rages grow worse."
12—"La Grace" (4/4 Moderato) by Bohm until—T: "Jack Cousins, guide."
13—"Continue to action" until—T: "A day's travel."
14—"Causerie" (4/4 Andante) by MacMillen until—T: "A portion of the outlaw."
15—"Good Agitato" until—T: "A week of narrow escapes."
16—"Reverie" (4/4 Andante) by Vieuxtemps until—T: "I've heard it makes folks, etc."
17—"Continue to action" until—T: "And when the sun came over."
18—"Dawn" (Andante) by Kate Vannah until—T: "Eight o'clock."
19—"Rustling leaves" by Koehler until—T: "Can I say my prayers?"
20—"Organ to action" until—T: "The trail is washed out."
21—"Repeat Rustling Leaves" by Koehler until—T: "In daylight serious damage."
22—"Serenade" (3/4 Allegretto) by Chaminade until—T: "Three days passes by."
23—"Esperanza" (2/4 Moderato) by Johnstone until—T: "For the first time in a long life."
24—"Organ to action" until—T: "An hour later."
25—"Album Leaf" (3/4 Moderato) by Kretschmer until—T: "Can a hungry man."
26—"Dramatic Tension" by Winkler until—T: "It was the day, etc."
27—"Christmas Dreams" Waltz until—T: "Christmas eve found, etc."
28—"Last Rose of Summer Song." NOTE: Do not substitute this song—this is a direct cue until—T: "You'd better dance."
29—"Any good jig" until—S: "Dance is finished."
30—"Sparkling Eyes" (2/4 Allegretto) by Puernor until—T: "That's our outlaw."
31—"Continue watching effects of sleighbells" until T: "Merry Christmas Folks."
32—"Theme" until—T: * * * * * * * END.

"THE PRIMITIVE CALL"

Reviewed on page 761

(Fox Production)

Indian Love Theme by Winkler is the Theme

1—"Basket of Roses" (Andante) by Abers until—T: "And while the agent is putting, etc."
2—"Ramona" (Indian Intermezzo) by Lee Johnson until—T: "Flashback to former scene interior of room."
3—"It Was a Dream" (Song) by Lassen until—T: "Flashback to Indian Camp."
4—"Continue Ramona" until—S: "Dancing."
5—"Continue Ramona" until—S: "Dancing."
6—"Continue pp" until—T: "Our friend with the mission."
7—"Eldorey" (2/4 Moderato) by von der Mehden pp until—T: "Girl dancing."
8—"Continue ff" until—T: "Everybody dancing."
9—"Cupid's Caress" (Valse Lento) by Roberts to action pp or ff until—T: "Amusements on land having been exhausted, etc."
10—"Heart's Desire" (Gavotte) by Losey until—S: "Girl falls overboard."
11—"Short Agitato" until—T: "Soon after the agent reports his failure."
12—"Organ to action" until—T: "Elkhorn return to his own."
13—"Morning on the Plains" (Indian Song) by Wheelock until—T: "While to the agent home, etc."
14—"Continue to action" until—T: "Betly seeks a chance meeting with Elkhorn."
15—"Au Bord D'un Ruiseau (6/8 Allegretto Grazioso) by Boisdeffre until—T: "You always seem near."
16—"Continue to action" (Watch shot) until—T: "The days pass all too quickly."
17—"Theme" until—T: "I'm worse plight than her little girl."
18—"Alita" (4/4 Tempo di Gavotte) by Losey until—T: "The home whose foundation was threatened"
19—"Monona" (Intermezzo) by Armand until—T: "While love binds Elkhorn."
20—"Theme" until—T: "That evening the flickering campfire shines."
21—"Indian Melody" by Bucalossi until—T: "Save me from that savage."
22—"Continue ff" until—T: "Betrayed by their protector."
23—"Indian Trail" by Lamater until—T: "You called me a savage."
24—"Continue ff" until—T: "Ostracized by the Indians, Elkhorn, etc."
25—"Lovers Song" (Andante) by Wheelock to action pp or ff (repeat if necessary) until—T: "For weeks the search for the girl, etc."
26—"Indian Love Song" by Lake (repeat if necessary) until—T: "Go back to the milk and water people."
27—"One Step pp" until—T: "Dancing scene then to action until—T: "The primitive call."
28—"Theme" until— * * * * * * * END.

BUILDING AND FURNISHING

Robinhood Theatre, Grand Haven, Mich., Distinctive for its "Simplicity"

THE Robinhood theatre of Grand Haven, Michigan, is distinctive for its simplicity of construction. The theatre is next door to the Grand Haven State Bank, in the heart of the business section of the city.

The Robinhood was designed by W. H. Clark of Grand Rapids, Mich., and was built in 1916. The building is 35 feet wide by 100 feet deep, and is constructed of concrete block and Oriental (rug) brick. The front makes an attractive appearance, the cornice and trimmings being of white stone. The general construction of the front is based on Colonial architecture.

The spacious lobby, which is 24 feet wide by 12 feet deep, is handsomely finished in white marble and mahogany, all trimmings being of brass. The box-office, which is also unusually large, is constructed of white marble, mahogany, leaded glass being used instead of the usual plate glass. A Caille ticket selling machine is used for quicker and better service in handling the patrons. The lobby is lighted by two semi-indirect fixtures of the opalescent bowl, chain suspended type. There are several poster frames of both the hangings and the easel type adorning the lobby, these taking one and three sheet posters and stills of the current and coming attractions. On either side of the lobby is a small room which is used as the manager's office and a storeroom. The doors leading into the theatre are finished in mahogany, having French plate-glass mirrors in them, adding greatly to the already attractive lobby. The lobby has a red tile floor, this tiling extending out to the curb stone has an immense R inlaid in it.

The interior of the house is artistically decorated, the walls being tinted a light yellow and divided into panels with ivory borders. On either side of the screen is an exit door, above which is a balcony. Flower boxes containing artificial flowers have been placed on these balconies and the bottom framing of the screen has also been decorated with artificial flowers.

The projection room is exceptionally large, measuring 12 by 28 feet, is located above the lobby. Two Powers 6-B motor-driven projectors, used in conjunction with Fort Wayne Compensarc motor generator set, are partly responsible for the results obtained by C. L. Davis, who has charge of the projection room. Mr. Davis is also to be complimented for the neatness of his projection room. The length of throw is 91 feet, a Satin Gold Fibre screen being used to the perfect satisfaction of the management.

The theatre has a seating capacity of 498. The seats are arranged in three sections, the center section having eight seats across, the side sections each have three seats across. The chairs were furnished by the American Seating Company, of Chicago, and are everything that is desired for comfort.

A system of perfect ventilation makes the theatre one of the coolest in the locality. Exhaust fans in the ceiling and numerous electric wall fans keep the temperature several degrees below that of the street. The exhaust fans were furnished by the B. F. Sturtevant Company, of Boston, Mass.

An Interior Spacious and Attractive

Simplicity is the Keynote of the Robinhood

A hot water heating sysem was installed by the American Heating Company, this being one of the most efficient methods of heating a theatre. The radiators were set into a space built into the wall of the house and are hidden from view by an iron grating upon which artificial flowers have been draped.

The theatre is lighted in a novel way. The lights are entirely hidden from view in an inverted light trough behind the moulding at the top of the walls of the auditorium. This is the indirect lighting system, the light first striking the ceiling and then being reflected from the ceiling into the auditorium.

The music for the picture is furnished by a Bartola Orchestra costing $4,000. The management claims that this instrument is best adapted for the requirements of their house. The Bartola Instrument Company, of Oskosh, Wis., furnished and installed this instrument.

Paramount, Triangle, Artcraft, Selznick and other high-class productions from the weekly program. There are three performances daily consisting of six reels, and admission price for both matinee and evening is 10c, with the exception of Triangle-Keystone days when 15c is charged. The theatre advertises its program daily in the local newspapers and also has a mailing list of its patrons to whom the weekly program is sent.

Cost of Tivoli, Chattanooga, Will Be $115,000

IT is estimated that the cost of the Tivoli theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn., which is to be erected by the Signal Amusement Company, will be $115,000. The building will be of fire-proof construction and heated by warm air forced over mammoth steam coils automatically forming a portion of the ventilating system. The theatre in summer will be cooled by huge Typhoon blowers located in the rear end roof of the building.

The booth will be located in the balcony. The seating capacity on two floors will be 1,670. A stage large enough to accommodate the largest legitimate attraction on the road will be erected. The lines of vision will be so arranged as to make the rear seats in the balcony perfectly good for pictures. A modern lighting system will be installed

Brill Installs Slot Machines in His Houses

SOL BRILL has installed slot machines in his three Brooklyn houses. The machines were installed by J. W. Surburg, Chocolate Duplex Vending Machine Co., of 208 Broadway, New York City. These machines are fastened to the rear of the seats, and contain Ecla milk chocolate.

The three houses in which they were installed are the Sumner theatre, having a seating capacity of 1200, the Globe and Central theatres having a seating capacity of 600 each.

THEATRE AND EXCHANGE MAILING LIST SERVICE

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

N 98

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.

80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK — Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO — Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Corner Unit Hinged Frames

Mr. Exhibitor:

Don't you realize that not alone does "NEWMAN" stand for QUALITY, but also ORIGINALITY?

We are Originators of every conceivable style of frame, in which to properly display POSTERS AND PICTURES.

YOU will eventually use brass frames. WHY not now?

Get our Latest Catalogue. It is yours for the asking.

The Newman Mfg. Co.

717-19 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.
Established 1882

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars.

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO

the most important weekly publication of the Italian cinema industry.
12-16 pages
in two colours; large size.
Subscription abroad:
15 frcs. yearly

EXCELSIOR

International Cinema Review. The only publication in 4 languages: French, Italian, English and Spanish.
Published monthly in elegant illustrated edition.
Subscription abroad:
10 frcs. yearly.

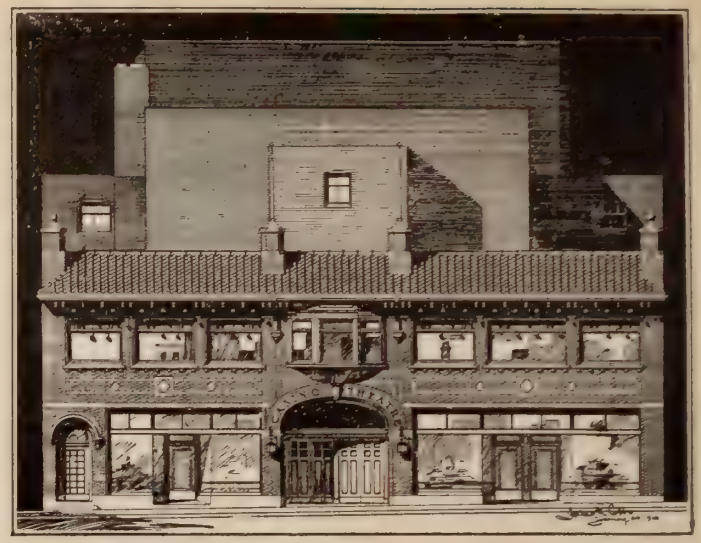
CINEMA YEARLY DIRECTORY

Complete guide to the cinema industry and commerce both in Italy and abroad—World wide circulation—20,000 addresses—500 illustrations—Contains all legal and business informations about the cinema trade. Big volume of 1000 pages, handsomely bound in cloth. Price: 10 frcs.

Publishers:
THE INTERNATIONAL CINEMATOGRAPH OFFICE
—Via del Tritone, 183—ROMA (Italy)

What Does De Luxe Mean?

When they asked a colored gentleman what it meant, he replied: "It done mean jes' what it says. A thing what's de luxe can allus be told by de looks." Our



4-Page Program De Luxe

is an artistic creation of rare beauty, printed in three colors and twelve designs. It is intended for the exhibitor who enjoys a first-class patronage and desires to build and hold a clientele of character. A full week's program may be run on the two inside pages, and the back cover, if sold as advertising space, may be made to Pay the Entire Cost of the program. If you're running a first-class theatre, you simply must have the De Luxe program. It will pay big in prestige. Territorial protection guaranteed. Send for samples to Cahill-Igoe Company "Direct Advertising Specialists" 117 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Casino Theatre, Halifax, Nova Scotia, R. J. McAdam, Proprietor

DIRECTORY OF NEW THEATRES

CALIFORNIA

REALIZING that the trend of business is to the southward, J. A. Quinn, who has been identified with a number of photoplay theatres in Los Angeles, announced a few days ago that he had signed a fifteen-year lease, at a total rental of approximately $500,000, on a building at 810-14 South Broadway, which is to be transformed into a modern motion picture theatre with a seating capacity of about 900.

The walls of the building now on the property will be utilized and a new front, with spacious lobby, will be built. The building will be ready for occupancy by April 15.

Negotiations for the construction of the theatre were completed recently by Seymour & Batchelder, Hollingsworth building, representing both Mr. Quinn and F. P. Fay, the owner of the property. The construction work, according to Mr. Quinn, will be started immediately.

ILLINOIS

A new theatre is in course of construction at Naperville, Ill., which the owner-manager, A. R. Morgan, hopes to have completed and ready for occupancy March 1.

Roscoe Robinson has opened a new motion picture theatre at Robinson City, Ill. He has been running the Maine theatre, at Carmi, and will retain his interest in that house, with Harry White as manager. The Robinson theatre will be known as the Strand and will be equipped with a duplicate Simplex machine, motor-driven, and used in connection with a gold fiber non-flicker screen. The house is well ventilated, the air being changed every eight minutes. In the Winter time the theatre is supplied with air over heated coils, which insures ventilation without draft.

MASSACHUSETTS

The new Strand theatre, Church street, Westfield, was opened recently to a good house, and the entire proceeds were turnd over to Noble hospital by the Goldstein Bros. Amusement Company, owners. In addition to the amount realized through the box office, the hospital women were given a block of 160 tickets which they have sold among their friends for $1 each. The new house fulfills the wants of the town for a ground floor playhouse, modern and fireproof. The house is nearly double the capacity of the old Westfield Opera house, which has been in use for years. The seating capacity is close to 1,500, and the house is so arranged that a clear view of the stage is obtainable from any point.

MISSOURI

The Colonial theatre was reopened permanently January 23 under the management of Frank F. Tracy, who has obtained a lease on the pretty Seventh street amusement house and is arranging to make it more popular than ever as a vaudeville and photoplay theatre. It is his intention to present two vaudeville acts of high grade and standard motion pictures at each performance, maintaining the place always at 10 cents.

KANSAS

The Royal theatre of Tonganoxie was almost condemned when Manager John W. Evans was notified by the State Fire Marshal that he would have to widen the aisles to comply with the provisions of the law. The building was so narrow that Mr. Evans saw and appreciated that such compliance would be impractical, so he leased the adjoining building—the Phenecie—and has commenced reconstruction on the two. The newly adjoined property is nearly twice as long and much wider than the old and when the projected alterations and improvements are completed the Royal will be a genuine, up-to-date motion picture theatre.

Another motion picture house is in prospect for El Dorado. Mrs. M. S. Munson contemplates the immediate erection of a modern brick structure on West Central avenue for that purpose. Incidentally Oscar Everetson, who purchased the lot just west of the Munson lot, has just announced that he would erect a building for a picture show.

MAINE

Maine Theatres, Inc., of Rockland, has contracted for the erection of a new theatre on a plot belonging to ex-Governor Haines of Waterville, Me., at Rockland to have a seating capacity of 1,400. Work will be begun early in the Spring.

MASSACHUSETTS

The new Strand theatre of Westfield was opened on the 22d of January last and justified in full the anticipations, ambitions and expectations of its founders in that it should be a theatre of safety and uniqueness in all other respects. Many unforeseen and most trying difficulties have delayed the completion of the structure, which was to have been ready for opening in September; but all these have been overcome by the liberal expenditure of energy and money. Great progress has been made recently on the remaining details of furnishing, equipment and decorations; and when the doors were thrown open no detail apparently had been left incomplete.

Out-of-town parties have purchased the machine and equipment of the Alco moving picture house on Railroad street, Great Barrington.

Although several months ago he refused to grant a license for a motion picture theatre in Washington street, opposite Ruggles, Mayor Curley of Boston, yesterday issued the permit after a public hearing that lasted but a few minutes.

After the Mayor had announced last August that he would not grant the privilege, the corporation, of which Fred Green is president, went ahead with the original plans and erected an $80,000 house.

At the hearing the only speaker was the Mayor. He explained that his refusal to grant the license was based on the belief that there was not sufficient patronage in the district for a new theatre.

John Janiszewski, Pleasant street merchant, is considering plans for establishing a motion picture theatre in his three-story block at 315 Pleasant street, Gardner. He has plans under way for remodeling the ground floor and building an addition at the rear for a space 108 feet by 28, providing a seating capacity of 500.

The proposed theatre will be located in a thriving mercantile center that has developed rapidly in the lawer Pleasant street district among Lithuanian and Polish-speaking people.

MICHIGAN

J. R. Perkins, manager of the new Rex theatre, opened house last week to a good business, and the new Rex is classed among the classiest of the upper peninsula houses. Mr. Perkins is a motion picture man of note and discrimination and aims to place his house in the first tier of motion picture successes.

OHIO

An Eastern syndicate has taken over the Marvin theatre of Findlay, which has been closed for several years, and it was opened under most auspicious circumstances a few days ago.

A motion picture theatre will be erected at Yorkville soon, according to the plans made by D. L. DeRomedis, a merchant of Yorkville. Mr. De Romedis has purchased a tract of land, with 585 feet frontage and 85 feet deep, along the Pennsylvania railroad, on part of which he plans to erect his theatre.

TEXAS

John J. Hegman, manager of the Crescent theatre, Temple, is making arrangements to open a new motion picture theatre in Austin, which will be christened "The Queen." The contract for the building has been let by Major Littlefield, the owner of the ground, and the new theatre should be ready for occupancy by March 1, from which date Mr. Hegman has a five-year lease. The new building will be a beautiful structure with marble and tile front, seating capacity of 600, and thoroughly modern in every respect.

Earle C. Keck, part owner and manager of the Ruby theatre, Plainview, is looking for a site for a new motion picture theatre in the thriving town of Plainview.

UTAH

Salt Lake City is soon to have a new motion picture house. G. Godfrey has already broken ground for same, which he says will be modern in every respect and have a seating capacity of about 600.

WEST VIRGINIA

A permit has been granted to S. L. Matz of Bluefield for the erection of a theatre on Raleigh street, with entrance on Princeton avenue. The building is to be constructed of steel and brick and will be absolutely fireproof. There will be exits on all four sides of the building and same can be emptied in less than three minutes. The theatre will be equipped with the largest stage in the state and Bluefield will have the opportunity of seeing some real attractions. The new playhouse will bear the name of the New Colonial and will be heated by the most modern methods of hot water heating and a uniform heat is assured at all times. Being open on all four sides, it will be ideally ventilated. The present Colonial theatre will be used as a lobby only and will be handsomely decorated and finished with marble and tile. As to being fireproof, the theatre will have a series of exits opening in the alleys on three sides and to Raleigh street on the back; also the exit back through the lobby entrance to Princeton avenue. The theatre will be under the management of R. S. Wehrle, present manager of the Colonial, and who has managed Bluefield's best picture houses with singular success during the last four or five years.

WISCONSIN

Negotiations are under way for the erection of a new motion picture theatre at Kenosha. W. H. Miller of Kalamazoo, Mich., is at the head of the venture.

J. S. Grauman, who has been very successful with his Atlas and Regent theatres in Milwaukee has just announced his leasing of the Miramar and Murray theatres, which will give him a string of outskirt houses. These last named houses seat about nine hundred each and are very favorably located.

Nat Stone will erect a theatre for the showing of films on the west side of Fourth street, between Grand avenue and Sycamore street, Milwaukee. The property is now occupied by the Family hotel.

Mr. Stone has owned this property for some time, awaiting an opportunity to erect a suitable building on it. The piece has a frontage of 75 feet and a depth of 150. There is an alley in the rear.

FULCO

FULCO LAMP COLORING

is just the thing when you want to work out a decorative scheme WITH COLORED light effects. Inexpensive and easy to use.

Amber, Blue, Green, Pink, Purple, Red, Ruby and White Frosting.

HALF PINTS — PER BOTTLE — $1.20 (ANY COLOR)

Larger Quantities Proportionately Less

E. E. FULTON CO.

Exhibitors' Supplies of Every Kind. 156 W. Lake St. Chicago

OPERA CHAIRS

Steel—Cast Iron

Exceptional in Quality—Comfortable

You are invited to make use of our Service Department. Send blue print or sketch for Free Seating Plan.

If you are desirous of reseating, we can help you dispose of old chairs.

Write for Catalog N.

We manufacture Special Out-of-Door Seating.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.

1475 Buchanan Ave., S. W.
Grand Rapids, Mich.

FAC-SIMILE PAINTINGS

in a beautiful gilt 3 inch width frame size over all 25 x 22 inches. Pictures are painted in oils and water colors of every popular player, all made from poses to appropriately fit this style of frame. Complete with brass name plate, $5.00 each.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES.

Size 22 x 28 75c Each Size 11 x 14 20c Each

SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS $3.00 per thousand. Made by a process that has the appearance of a real photograph. PHOTOGRAPHS, size 8 x 10, all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each. GRAVURE FOLDERS, containing pictures of all the prominent players, including feature stars, $10.00 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of all the players, 600 names, 40c. each.

TRANSPARENCIES, ALL SIZES, from 50c. to $2.50. FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS from $2.50 to $35.00, according to size and frames.

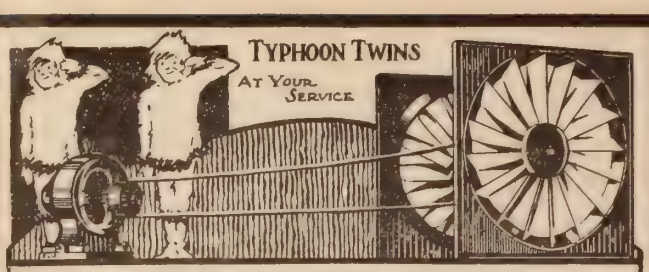
KRAUS MFG. CO., 220 W. 42nd Street, N. Y.

12th floor, CANDLER BUILDING.

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

MOTION PICTURE STUDIO DIRECTORY

NEXT ISSUE PUBLISHED



LAST OF FEBRUARY

Make Your House Popular

By a perfectly projected picture. You cannot do this with an old junky machine. Write us to-day. We will sell you a new machine of any make on our EASY PAYMENT PLAN. You would be surprised at the number of Theatres throughout the country that are purchasing from us in that way. Why don't you investigate to-day?

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Powers, Edison, and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers, and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres. Third Floor, Mallers Bldg., Cor. Madison Street and Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

— does your business fall off in hot weather?

It won't if the TYPHOON TWINS cool your theatre.

Their fresh-as-sea-air breezes will make your entire house cool and restful during the hot, sultry summer months.

Folks will come to your show just to cool off—and their extra nickels and dimes will pay for the TYPHOON TWINS long before the summer is over.

Low in cost.———Easily installed. Liberal terms of payment, if you act at once, before our spring rush begins.

A post card brings full information. Send it NOW—while you think of it.

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY
Box N, 1544 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

TYPHOONS COOL & VENTILATE
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 B'WAY NEW-YORK CITY

The Annual Ball

of the

St. Louis Moving Picture Machine Operators' Union

Local 143 I. A. T. S. E. & M. P. M. O.

will be given

Thursday Evening, February 8, 1917

at New Club Hall, 13th and Chouteau Ave.
ST. LOUIS

All visiting brothers are invited to attend

BALL COMMITTEE

JNO. NICK R. SRENCO WM. ROBISON
A. L. STONE FRED. MOSIER

Better Satisfaction

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements.

The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Arc Controllers
2. Brass Rails
3. Building Materials
4. Cameras
5. Camera Lenses
6. Carbons
7. Chairs
8. Chair Upholstery
9. Change Making Machines
10. Condensers
11. Converters and Transformers
12. Developing and Printing
13. Developing Materials
14. Developing Tanks
15. Disinfectants and Perfumes
16. Economizers and Rheostats
17. Electric Signs
18. Elevators and Escalators
19. Exterior Lighting
20. Film Cabinets
21. Film Carriers
22. Film Cleaners
23. Film Dyes
24. Film Stock
25. Fire Extinguishers
26. Floral Decorations
27. Gas Engines
28. Heating
29. Interior Lighting
30. Interior Telephones
31. Lithographs
32. Lobby Display
33. Metal Ceilings
34. Motors
35. Mural Paintings
36. Musical Instruments
37. Paints
38. Perforating Machines
39. Printing Machines
40. Projection Booths
41. Projection Lenses
42. Projection Machines
43. Projection Machines (Home)
44. Reels
45. Rewinders
46. Safety Exit Locks
47. Screens
48. Slides
49. Stage Settings
50. Studio Lights
51. Ticket Selling Machines
52. Ticket Taking Machines
53. Uniforms
54. Ventilating and Fans
55. Vacuum Cleaners

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subjects marked in the above lists.

Name.....

Theatre.....

City.....

State.....

AGAIN AND AGAIN

without missing a week during the last two months the News has carried more cash advertising than both of the trade papers having the next largest amounts.

AND NEXT WEEK

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Do you know of any other one-reel subjects receiving such comments?

What the press says about our Scenics and Educationals

MORNING TRIBUNE - - - - - - - - - LOS ANGELES, CAL.

LAND OF SILENCE PICTURE IS IMPRESSIVELY BEAUTIFUL

Nature Views Rival Clara Kimball Young Feature in Interest and Merit

BY MAITLAND DAVIES

[illegible] Thomas Dixon's novel [illegible] Clara Kimball [illegible] from one of them [illegible] disappointed. The present pictu[illegible] one. It [illegible] the former; but most will like it better.

The story is interesting and well acted and the many admirers of Miss Young will find much to please them

I am cutting the young picture off with these few words, because I want space to tell about another picture that is at Tally's. It is the first of a series of educational features and it is called The Land of Silence. Nearly all the motion picture theatres devote a certain amount of attention to travel pictures, news weeklies, and films that are, to a certain extent, educational; but in all the long list that I have come across in daily visits to the movie palaces during the past few years I have never found anything so impressively beautiful as The Land of Silence. It has a sort of an excuse for a story in it, just enough to give a reason for touring through the great open places, and shows a man and his dog, anxious to get away from the hustle and bustle of the city, the turmoil and strife of "civilized" life setting forth to find the land of the great silence.

If you have ever been fortunate enough to get away into the real open, the land far removed from railways and tourists, where nature has an opportunity to open its inner heart to you, you will love this picture and it will carry you almost as far away from your immediate surroundings as it carried the man and his dog. It breathes the spirit of freedom, of rest and contentment and the camera has really caught the spirit of nature.

The cloud effects are superlatively fine in form and the cameraman has caught the real color in his tinting.

Robert Service has spoken of this country in these lines:

"It's the great, big, broad land way up yonder,
It's the forest where silence has lease,
It's the beauty that fills me with wonder,
It's the stillness that fills me with peace."

He knew it, and you may come nearer to knowing it through these pictures than in any other way save actual contact with it. Never mind the feature—it is good; but there have been others like 't; nothing like The Land of Silence has been shown before.

Read This

TALLEY'S B'WAY THEATRE, Los Angeles, Cal., Booked for 18 Months

ROTH'S PATOLA, San Francisco, Booked for 12 Months

NOTE: Mr. M. H. Kohn, Mgr. Consolidated Film Corporation, reports that after seeing a number of releases these two gentlemen signed up the first contract of this length they ever signed.

Watch for the Ditmars' Animal Pictures. Released February 5th

Book at the Following Exchanges

Metro Pictures Service, Pittsburg, Pa.
OHIO — WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA—KENTUCKY

Broadway Feature Film Co., Detroit, Mich.
MICHIGAN

Metro Pictures Service, Chicago, Ill.
ILLINOIS—INDIANA

Metro Film Service, Washington, D. C.
DELAWARE—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA — MARYLAND — VIRGINIA

Photoplay Exchange, Salt Lake City, Utah, and the Photoplay Exchange, Denver, Colo.
SOUTHERN IDAHO — EASTERN MONTANA — WYOMING — UTAH — COLORADO — NEW MEXICO

Metro Film Exchange, Phila., Pa.
EASTERN PENNA. & SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY

Consolidated Film Corp., San Francisco and Los Angeles
ARIZONA — CALIFORNIA — NEVADA

Monarch Feature Film Co., Kansas City, Mo.
MISSOURI — KANSAS — NEBRASKA—IOWA

Lambson Film Exchange Inc., Seattle, Wash.
OREGON — WASHINGTON — NORTHERN IDAHO — WESTERN MONTANA

Zenith Feature Film Co., Minneapolis
MINNESOTA — WISCONSIN — N. & S. DAKOTA

Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, Canada
DOMINION OF CANADA

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION

OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

FEBRUARY 17, 1917

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

The day of "hitch your wagon to a star" has passed; today you must "hitch your wagon to a hundred stars."

Paramount Pictures

feature the greatest stars on earth.

Why not in your Theatre?

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP'N.

Adolph Zukor Pres. Jesse L. Lasky Gen'l Mgr. Cecil B. DeMille Prod'n Mgr.

New York City

VOL. XV-NO. 7

PRICE 10 CENTS

An Unusual Red Feather Production

"THE WAR OF THE TONGS"

A thrilling and sensational drama of Life among the warring Chinese Tongs in America
Enacted by the famous Imperial Chinese Players
The entire cast composed of Chinese actors only Scenario and continuity written by Chinese
Props, sets and details all planed and executed by Chinese

NEW - NOVEL - UNUSUAL - UNIQUE
Nothing like it ever shown in America.

Nothing like this marvelous production has ever been either produced or shown in this country before. It shows you the crafty workings of the rival Chinese Tongs or secret societies; for the first time a faithful reproduction of Chinese gambling dens; shows the actual games and methods of play in close-ups; shows Chinese courtship, arrangement of dowry and other quaint marriage rites. Full of swift action with an intensely interesting and human story. Book it and you will have the greatest novelty ever shown in your town. Ask for full particulars from your nearest Universal Exchange.

特別 紅翎奪本 特別

中國著名御座巧演

出神入化之五出頭

堂戰劇

Paramount Pictures

Always Something New

The Paramount Program is the oldest feature program, yet there is always a newness of spirit and vitality that is characteristic. This strength and virility is not a "now and then" attribute—it is a week in—week out fact.

The New Releases
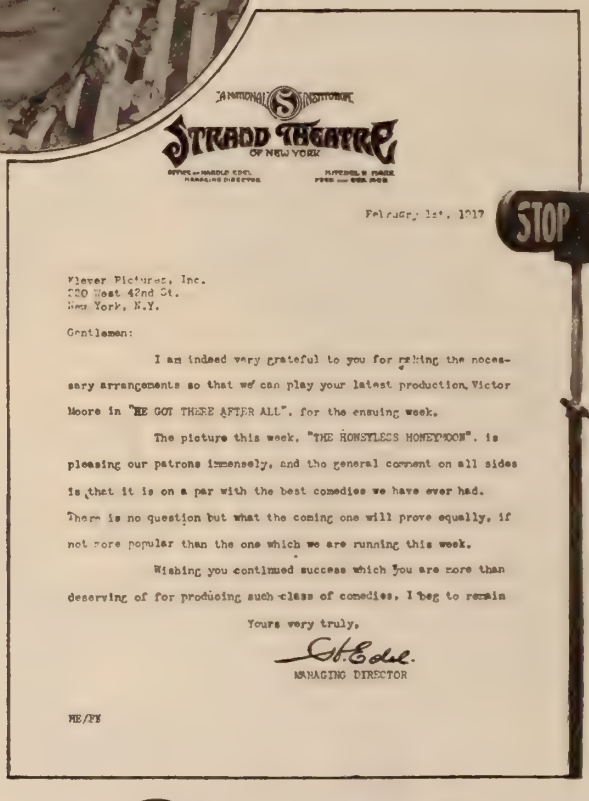
THIS WEEK

JESSE L. LASKY
presents
SESSUE HAYAKAWA
in a powerful racial drama
"EACH TO HIS KIND"
by Paul West

The lure and mystery of India has been but slightly touched in screen drama. In "Each to His Kind" this exotic and fascinating atmosphere is introduced with the added dramatic value of scenic contrast in England as well as India.



PALLAS PICTURES
presents
LENORE ULRICH
in a thrilling modern drama of racial conflict
"HER OWN PEOPLE"

Lenore Ulrich won a great personal triumph on the stage recently as an Indian girl in "The Heart of Wetona." It was her rare interpretation of the heart, soul and traits of Wetona that convinced Pallas-Paramount of her unusual adaptability to the stellar role of "Her Own People."

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP'N.
Adolph Zukor Pres Jesse L. Lasky Vice Pres Cecil B. DeMille Director General
New York City

"The Proof of the Pudding is in the Eating"—A Message from Harold Edel, Managing Director, The Strand, New York

A National Institution

STRAND THEATRE OF NEW YORK

OFFICE OF HAROLD EDEL, MANAGING DIRECTOR — MOVIETONE & MUSIC FREE AND FOR ALL

February 1st, 1927

Klever Pictures, Inc.
220 West 42nd St.
New York, N.Y.

Gentlemen:

I am indeed very grateful to you for making the necessary arrangements so that we can play your latest production, Victor Moore in "HE GOT THERE AFTER ALL", for the ensuing week.

The picture this week, "THE HOMELESS HONEYMOON", is pleasing our patrons immensely, and the general comment on all sides is that it is on a par with the best comedies we have ever had. There is no question but what the coming one will prove equally, if not more popular than the one which we are running this week.

Wishing you continued success which you are more than deserving of for producing such class of comedies, I beg to remain

Yours very truly,

H. Edel.
MANAGING DIRECTOR

HE/FH

Paramount announces

Victor Moore

in the One Reel KLEVER KOMEDIES

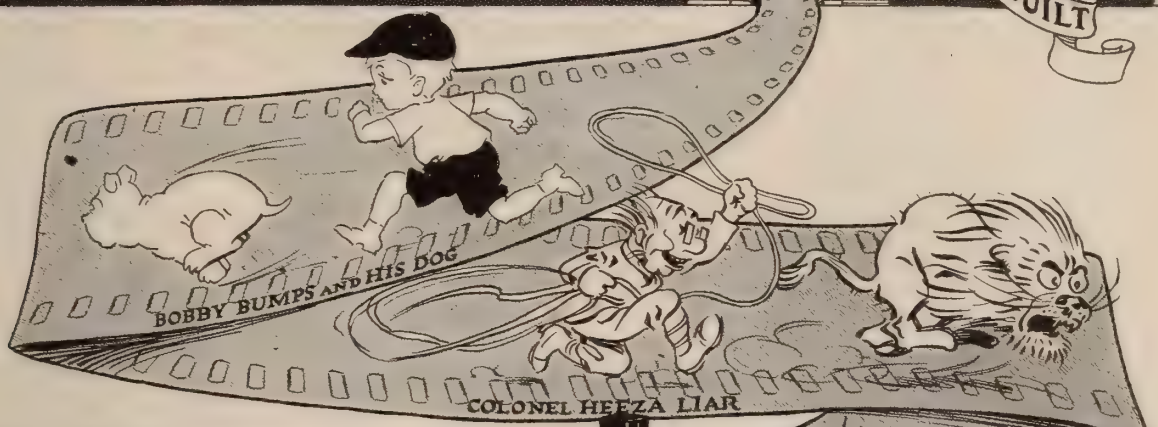
Released February 12

"HE GOT THERE AFTER ALL"

shown at the Strand Theatre, New York

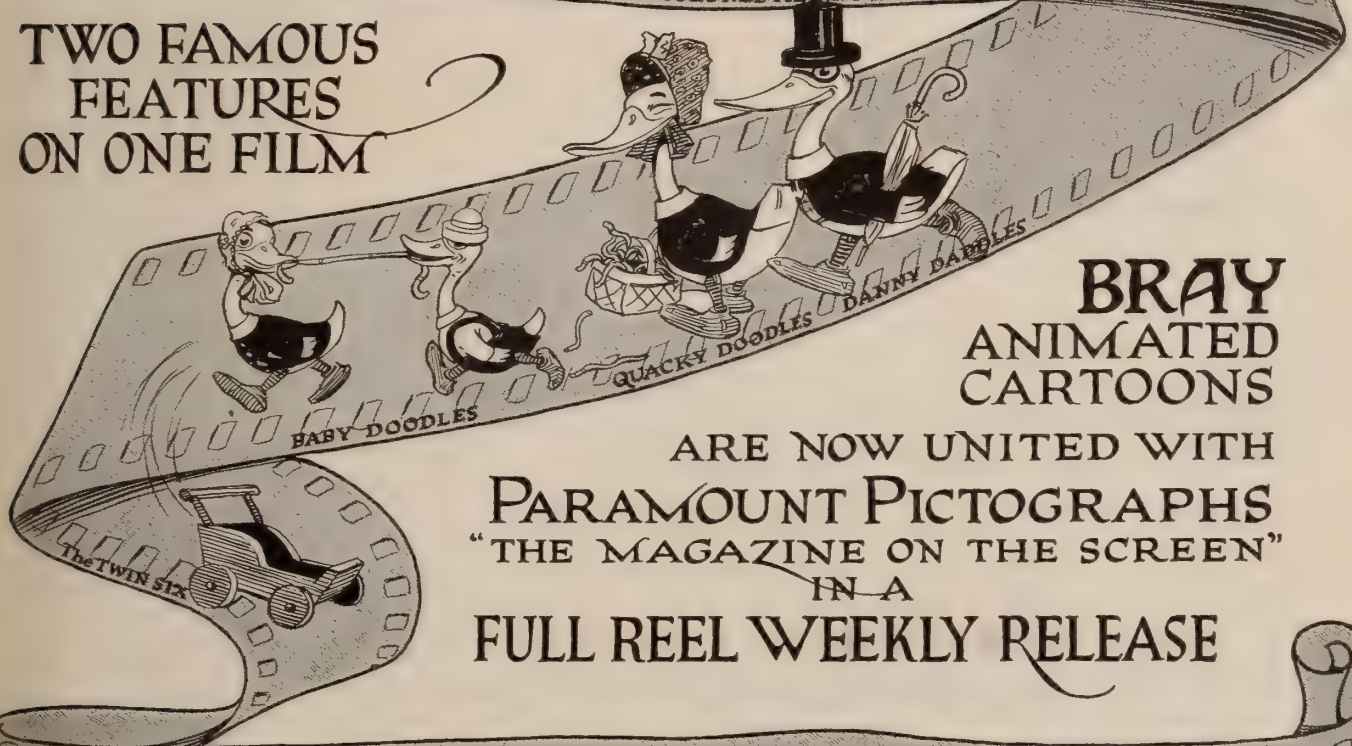
Produced by

KLEVER PICTURES, INC.



220 West 42nd St., New York City

Released in Canada through Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, Canada



BRAY ANIMATED CARTOONS

THE HOUSE THAT BRAY BUILT

TWO FAMOUS FEATURES ON ONE FILM

BRAY ANIMATED CARTOONS

ARE NOW UNITED WITH

PARAMOUNT PICTOGRAPHS

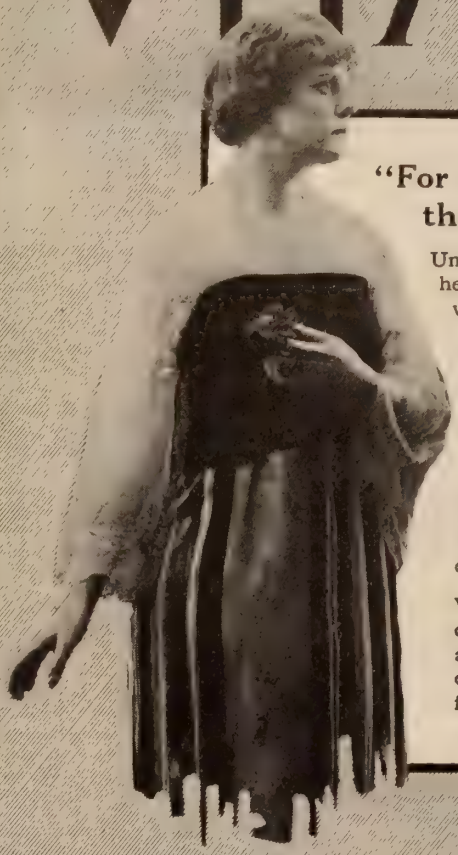
"THE MAGAZINE ON THE SCREEN"

IN A

FULL REEL WEEKLY RELEASE

Paramount-BRAY-Pictographs

RELEASED ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAMME



PRODUCED BY THE

BRAY STUDIOS INC., 23 EAST 26th ST. N.Y.

Better to read fifty advertisements than to miss the one YOU need.

VITAGRAPH

V-L-S-E inc.

"For him I have only pity—but I could kill the woman who took him from me!"

Unbeknown, the outraged wife was pouring the secret of her heart-torn agony into the ears of the very woman whose influence had invaded the sanctity of her home.

How could she know that this was the woman she hated beyond all things in life? What could she know of the remorse, the sacrifice, the fires of expiation through which the woman had come, cleansed of her sin?

And now, out of the darkness of his exile, the husband was returning, to find, not only his wife, but at her side the woman whose love had cost him more than life itself.

Were the embers of hate and the smouldering fires of passion to burst forth anew in an all-consuming blaze of destruction when these three tragic figures met again?

Alice Joyce and Harry Morey

In

"The Courage of Silence"

A Five Part Blue Ribbon Feature

by Milton Nobles

Directed by William P. S. Earle

The Feature Which Delighted Capacity Audiences at The Rialto, New York's Photoplay Theatre de Luxe, the Week of January 28th

VITAGRAPH

V.L.S.E Inc.

The Crowning Achievement of the Screen

J. Stuart Blackton's Stupendous Production

"WOMANHOOD"

or "The Glory of the Nation"

By J. Stuart Blackton and Cyrus Townsend Brady

Produced Under the Personal Supervision of J. Stuart Blackton

Author and Producer of "The Battle Cry of Peace"

Assisted by William P. S. Earle

Featuring

ALICE JOYCE and HARRY MOREY

With an All Star Cast

Including

PEGGY HYLAND, Naomi Childers, James Morrison, Joseph Kilgour, Bobby Connelly, Mary Maurice, Walter McGrail, Edward Elkas, Templer Saxe and many other Vitagraph Favorites

TO BE RELEASED SOON

A Story of Childhood That a Hundred Million Parents Want To See With Their Children.

MARY PICKFORD

She lived in a house of gold—yet her spirit was imprisoned. Wealth of goods she had—yet she was poor. Her parents were too busy to see her; their servants did not love her. Such is the story of "A Poor Little Rich Girl," greatest of all the Mary Pickford record breaking productions.

Artcraft Pictures Corporation

729-Seventh Ave., New York

"A POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL"

FROM THE PLAY BY ELEANOR GATES
DIRECTED BY MAURICE TOURNEUR

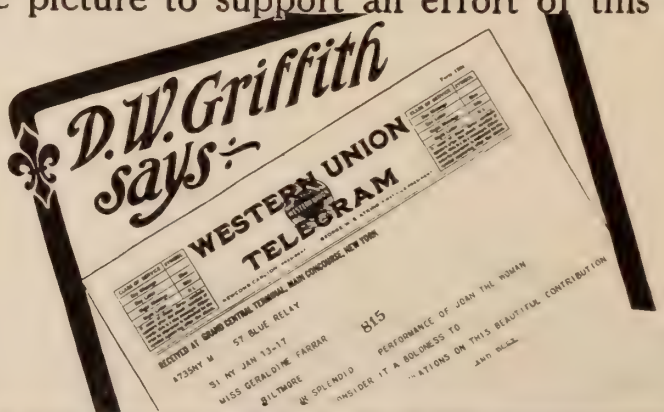
To be Released
MARCH 5TH

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."



MOTION PICTURE MAIL.

JANUARY 27, 1917.

S. L. Rothapfel says

I SAW "Joan the Woman," produced by Jesse L. Lasky under the personal direction of Cecil B. DeMille, and as a lover of the moving picture I consider it a treat for every one to go and see this production at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

In my opinion, I consider it the greatest picture since "The Birth of a Nation" and one that will take equal rank with this great production. In many respects it is even finer. If we are to develop the moving picture, if we are to make it the glorious institution that we want to make it, if it is to rise to the point where it can truly be called an art, every moving picture fan owes it to himself and to the picture to support an effort of this kind.

GREATER THAN PRAISE!

FROM THE CRITICS AND LEADING AUTHORITIES OF THE INDUSTRY
IS

THE PUBLIC ENTHUSIASM FOR

"JOAN THE WOMAN"

OF WHICH

GERALDINE FARRAR

IS THE STAR AND

CECIL B. DEMILLE

IS THE PRODUCER

NOW BEING PRESENTED TWICE DAILY TO CAPACITY AUDIENCES BY

JESSE L. LASKY

AT THE

FORTY-FOURTH STREET THEATRE, NEW YORK

AND THE

MAJESTIC THEATRE, LOS ANGELES

CARDINAL FILM CORPORATION

485 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

SELZNICK PICTURES

Harry Rapf
Presents

ROBERT WARWICK

In

(By Arrangement With Klaw & Erlanger)

"THE ARGYLE CASE"

By Harvey J. O'Higgins, Harriet Ford
And William J. Burns

DIRECTED BY THE RENOWNED

RALPH W. INCE

A PICTURE THAT HOLDS
ALL THE ELEMENTS
OF SUCCESS . . .

MYSTERY-ADVENTURE
ROMANCE AND ACTION.

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS
LEWIS J. SELZNICK
EXCHANGES

BRANCHES
EVERYWHERE

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

SELZNICK PICTURES

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

In "THE PRICE SHE PAID"

By David Graham Phillips

CHARLES GIBLYN Director

ALBERT CAPELLANI Director Gen'l

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MARRIED FOR MILLIONS AND RENOUNCED THEM FOR LOVE . . .

Joseph M. Schenck's Presentation of

NORMA TALMADGE

In

"PANTHEA"

By Monckton Hoffe

WAS AS BIG A HIT IN CHICAGO AS IN NEW YORK . . .

"Possesses the very ingredients of what is good in photo plays - photographic excellence, narrative continuity, dramatic intensity and splendid acting" Chicago News.

Directed By ALLAN DWAN

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS

LEWIS J. SELZNICK EXCHANGES

BRANCHES EVERYWHERE

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE

NOTICE to EXHIBITORS of WORLD PICTURES

We hereby notify you that extra bookings on Marie Dressler's "Tillie Wakes Up" will be granted to World Pictures Contract holders in order in which applications are received.

Under no circumstances may extra bookings be permitted to interfere with regular play dates of Franchise holders.

Exhibitors please notify our Service Branch at the earliest possible moment the number of extra days wanted.

WORLD FILM CORPORATION
NEW YORK CITY

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM
NEWCOMB CARLTON PRESIDENT

RECEIVED AT 821 SIXTH AVENUE, NEAR 46TH ST., NEW YORK ALWAYS OPEN

71B GY 26 COLLECT FY BOSTON RI 419PM JAN 25 1917

WORLD FILM CORPN
130 WEST 46 st NEW YORK

WOULD IT BE POSSIBLE FOR ME TO HOLD OVER MARIE DRESSLER IN TILLIE WAKES UP FOR NEXT WEEK IT·S GOING LIKE A WHIRLWIND GIVE IT TO ME. IT CANT BE BEAT.

PARK THEATRE,
BOSTON.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

WHEN CAN WE HAVE A REPEAT ON TILLIE

HUTCHINSON AND LOCKWOOD
MAJESTIC THEATRE
BURLINGTON

JUST SAW PRIVATE SHOWING TILLYE WAKES UP GREATEST COMEDY FEATURE YET IS MARIE DRESSLER·S BEST PERFORMANCE SO FAR WANT EXTRA TIME BOOKING

OLYMPIA THEATRE,
MC·KEESPORT PA.

YOU MUST ARRANGE MARIE DRESSLER IN TILLIE WAKES UP FOR A FULL WEEK I POSITIVELY MUST HAVE IT.

EMERY THEATRE,
PROVIDENCE R. I.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM
NEWCOMB CARLTON PRESIDENT

JUST SAW TILLIE WAKES UP AT PRIVATE SHOWING CONGRATULATIONS ON PRODUCTION OF BEST COMEDY I HAVE SEEN . WILL ARRANGE FOR INCREASED BOOKINGS IN ALL OUR THEATRES

JOHN P HARRIS
DAVIS ENTERPRISES CO
PITTSBURGH PENNA

WILL RUN MARIE DRESSLER IN TILLY WAKES UP FOUR DAYS INSTEAD OF TWO

EMPIRE THEATRE
PORTLAND

WILLIAM A. BRADY
in association with WORLD PICTURES
presents

GAIL KANE
in "The Red Woman"

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

TRIANGLE

SUNDAY, FEB. 18th

ROBERT HARRON IN "THE BAD BOY" — Fine Arts

AND

A Triangle Komedy

"THE TELEPHONE BELLE"

THURSDAY, FEB. 22nd

ENID BENNETT IN "PRINCESS of the DARK" — Ince-Kay Bee

AND

A Triangle Komedy

"WHEN HEARTS COLLIDE"

SUNDAY, FEB. 18th

The special Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedy

"STARS AND BARS"

A Real Riot of Fun

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

PICTURES

THE NEW TRIANGLE

There is a NEW TRIANGLE.

The word has taken on an added significance, with the entrance of the Triangle Distributing Corporation into the field of activities broadly included by the word "TRIANGLE."

The motion picture industry knows what the word "TRIANGLE" has stood for, and still stands for, in its reference to the grouping in one compact program of the pictures produced by three studios, each in a class by itself—which will continue as heretrfore.

But now there is an added meaning, a NEW TRIANGLE—the Exhibitor, the Producer, the Distributor—joined firmly and solidly together by ties whose strength will stand every test.

The Triangle Distributing Corporation is composed of SPECIALISTS, men who appreciate the vital inter-dependence of producer, distributor and exhibitor whose breadth of vision comprehends that the needs of one are the needs of all. They will learn, through close touch with the exhibitor, his views and his suggestions, and thus be enabled to transmit to the producers of Triangle pictures information which will aid them in supplying a product even higher in standard and more satisfying in box-office efficiency than has been the case heretofore—and this is saying much.

Further announcements of very great importance to all exhibitors will follow.

Triangle Distributing Corporation
Wm. W. Hodkinson, President
1457 Broadway, New York City

RELEASED ONLY BY TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

they're coming!

the TWO PART SPECIAL

CHRISTIE COMEDIES!

THE GRATIFYING POPULARITY AND SUCCESS of the single-reel, once-a-week CHRISTIE COMEDIES have induced us to produce, in addition, two TWO-REEL-FEATURE-COMEDIES each month—crammed full, of the good looks, interest, action and real fun always expected and found in CHRISTIE COMEDIES. These two-reelers will meet your need of strong, snappy, short FEATURE FILMS of the class of comedy that does build business and produce profits.

The CHRISTIE TWO-PART SPECIALS for FEBRUARY and MARCH are

"BRIDE AND GLOOM"—Feb. 15th

and

"OUT FOR THE COIN"—Mar. 1st

—get them on the open market from any CHRISTIE EXCHANGE.

Regular single-reel CHRISTIE COMEDY release for week of February 12th—

"OH FOR A WIFE."

Go see these CHRISTIE COMEDIES now! We know you'll book them if you see them—we know you'll profit if you book them.

CHRISTIE FILM CO

AL.E.CHRISTIE · DIRECTOR GENERAL
SUNSET BLVD AT GOWER ST
LOS ANGELES · CALIFORNIA

MUTUAL NEWS

"What's Going On In The Mutual"

WEEKLY NEWS OF THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION AND ITS 68 EXCHANGES

FEBRUARY 17, 1917

MARGARITA FISCHER HAS STRONG ROLE IN "DEVIL'S ASSISTANT"

"THE DEVIL'S ASSISTANT" is the newest Fischer-Mutual Photoplay. It features Margarita Fischer. It was produced at the studios of the Pollard Picture Plays Company at San Diego, California. It is in five acts. It will be released the week of March 5th.

Fourth of Fischer Series.

"The Devil's Assistant" is the fourth of the Fischer-Mutual Photoplays. The ones previously released are "The Pearl of Paradise," "Miss Jackie of the Navy" and "The Butterfly Girl." All are still playing to capacity business at theatres all over the country. Today Margarita Fischer is one of America's foremost screen idols. She continues to grow in popularity with each new release. In "The Devil's Assistant" she has a role totally different from anything that she has previously attempted. Those who have had the privilege of attending a pre-release showing are unanimous in the opinion that Miss Fischer is as charming and winsome in this drama as in anything that she has enacted.

Story With a Moral.

Aside from its appeal as an entertainment, "The Devil's Assistant" will appeal to many audiences on account of the moral it points. The same unusual camera work and technical perfection that have made previous releases from the Pollard Picture Play studios popular will be noted in this new release. "The Devil's Assistant" is a strong attraction for any theatre. Bookings on Fischer-Mutual Photoplays can be arranged at any Mutual Film Exchange.

Crane Wilbur Is Again With Mutual

Crane Wilbur will soon be offered in a series of five reel Mutual Photoplays which will be distributed by Mutual Exchanges. Mr. Wilbur has been at work for some weeks in the David Horsley studios in Los Angeles. Several Wilbur-Mutual Photoplays have already been completed. Mr. Wilbur feels that in them he has done some of his best work. In the past many exhibitors have found Crane Wilbur one of their strongest drawing cards. His return to the screen will be welcomed by a host of photoplayers. Titles and dates for release for the Wilbur-Mutual Photoplays will be made shortly. Mutual Exchanges are now ready to accept bookings.

Mutual Star Productions For February

Week Beginning February 5th.

Title.	Lead.
Where Love Is.....	Ann Murdock

Week Beginning February 19th.

The Gentle Intruder	Mary Miles Minter

Week Beginning February 26th.

The Greater Woman	Marjorie Rambeau

"THE RAILROAD RAIDERS"

In Which Daring Helen Holmes Is Featured

NEW SERIAL PRODUCTION

Helen Holmes and her husband-director, J. P. McGowan, are again at work on a 15 chapter photonovel featuring Helen Holmes. Work has already begun on the new chapterplay. Its title is "The Railroad Raiders." Its locations will be in and about the offices, shops, roundhouses, depots and yards of a big transcontinental railroad. A glance over the manuscript of the story indicates that this will be the best railroad chapterplay ever filmed by the Signal Film Corporation. Helen Holmes was a great drawing card in "The Girl and the Game." In "A Lass of the Lumberlands" she did even more thrilling "stunts," and the picture proved even more of a box-office magnet. Now, in "The Railroad Raiders," she is working in a still better photonovel—one which will draw even bigger business to the theatres showing it. Exhibitors may arrange bookings now on "The Railroad Raiders" at their nearest Mutual Exchange.

Several big new stages have been specially erected at the Signal studios for the new chapterplay. This week Director McGowan is superintending the erection of a set that is costing $2,500. The exact date of release for chapter one of "The Railroad Raiders" will be announced in the near future. The new serial is in fifteen chapters—each two reels in length.

Sturgeon to Direct Gail Kane

Rollin S. Sturgeon, known to photoplay fans as a director of note, has been engaged to superintend the productions in which Gail Kane is to appear.

GALAXY OF STARS IS NOW WORKING IN MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS

A TRULY phenomenal galaxy of stars is now arrayed under the Mutual banner. Each of the stars is already a national celebrity—an actor or actress whose name and fame is known from coast to coast. They are not people with reputations yet to be made—people for whom the exhibitors will have to create a following—but stars whose names are so well known that the announcement of their coming to any theatre will result in capacity business.

Many Studios Busy.

Studios in New York, Los Angeles, San Diego and Santa Barbara are working day and night. The plants of the American Film Company, Inc., the Pollard Picture Plays Company, the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, the Mardan Photoplay Company, The Lone Star Film Corporation and the Empire All Star Corporation are busy hives of industry. In one studio Marjorie Rambeau has completed or is appearing in such Mutual Photoplays as "The Greater Woman," "Motherhood," "The Debt," "The Second Wife" and "The Doll's House," and Nance O'Neil, who has finished "Mrs. Balfame," is working in "Hedda Gabler" and "Bleak House." At the American plant Gail Kane is enacting "Whose Wife," William Russell is starring in "My Fighting Gentleman" and "High Play," and Mary Miles Minter has just completed "The Gentle Intruder." At San Diego, Margarita Fischer is playing in "A Knight at Tarquizzi" and "Birds of Passage." Ann Murdock, first of the Frohman stars engaged by the Empire All Star Corporation, is hard at work in New York, and Edna Goodrich is soon to begin her first Goodrich-Mutual Photoplay. Charlie Chaplin is hard at it in Los Angeles creating laughs by the thousand, and in the near future still other former Frohman stars will appear before the camera.

"Big Stars Only" Policy.

All of these activities indicate Mutual's sincere intention to live up to its new slogan of "Big Stars Only." Nothing short of the best in the way of either stars or plays will satisfy Mutual executives. Exhibitors showing Mutual Photoplays are going to have the pick of the market. Advance reservations on the big productions now in the making can be arranged now at Mutual Exchanges.

A Gaumont cameraman of the Mutual Weekly scored a real "scoop" in getting the wreck of the U. S. S. Milwaukee on the screens of Los Angeles theatres hours ahead of any other animated weekly. This is but one instance of Gaumont's efficiency.

MUTUAL

"BIG STARS

Announcing Forth
Exemplifying Tha

THE announcement of the new Mutual Policy for 1917 — "BIG STARS ONLY"—caused many of our Exhibitor friends to write us for specific information of productions and stars to be presented under the "BIG STARS ONLY" banner. Herein are set the initial results of the new policy. The attractions listed below are productions of the highest quality—each featuring a star of the first magnitude and each a production of genuine merit. We recommend these new Mutual Photoplays to exhibitors operating first run houses in the larger cities, with the assurance that each production will be found to be of the highest standard. Definite release dates will be announced at an early date. Reservations are now being made at all Mutual Exchanges.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU - MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS

"The Greater Woman"
"Motherhood"
"The Debt"
"The Second Wife"
"The Doll's House"

Produced by Frank Powell Producing Corporation.

NANCE O'NEIL—MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS

"Mrs. Belfame"
"Hedda Gabler"
"Bleak House"

Produced by Frank Powell Producing Corporation.

RESERVATIONS NOW AT ONLY"

Coming Attractions New Mutual Policy

GAIL KANE—MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS
"Whose Wife"
Produced by American Film Company, Inc.

MARY MILES MINTER—MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS
"The Gentle Intruder"
Produced by American Film Company, Inc

WILLIAM RUSSELL-MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS
"My Fighting Gentleman"
"High Play"
Produced by American Film Company, Inc.

MARGARITA FISCHER-MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS
"A Knight at Tarquizzi"
"Birds of Passage"
Produced by Pollard Picture Plays Company

ANN MURDOCK—MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS
(To be announced soon)
Produced by Empire All-Star Corporation

CHARLIE CHAPLIN—MUTUAL SPECIALS
"Easy Street"

EDNA GOODRICH—MUTUAL PHOTOPLAYS
(To be announced soon)

ALL MUTUAL EXCHANGES

EDNA GOODRICH

MARJORIE RAMBEAU

NANCE O'NEIL

ANN MURDOCK

MUTUAL

POLLARD PICTURE PLAYS COMPANY
Presents
The Popular Star

MARGARITA FISCHER

IN

"The DEVIL'S ASSISTANT"

A tremendously powerful story with a moral. A photoplay affording Miss Fischer some unusual opportunities for the display of her emotional ability. Directed by Harry Pollard. In five acts. Released week of March 5th. Fourth of the Fischer-Mutual Photoplays. ~ ~ ~

Now Playing:
"THE PEARL OF PARADISE"
"MISS JACKIE OF THE NAVY"
"THE BUTTERFLY GIRL"

BOOKING NOW AT ALL MUTUAL
EXCHANGES~

MUTUAL

Records ~ SMASHED!

Attendance records in theatres everywhere are being smashed with this sensational chapter-play. Daring Helen Holmes and her supporting company are "pulling" the fans back again and again to see this 15 chapter photonovel. Life in the lumbercamps and Helen's experiences on a logging road are thrillingly portrayed. Thrill follows thrill. Whole trains are deliberately wrecked to add a final "punch" to the picture. It's in 15 chapters—a new chapter each week for 15 weeks. Book "A Lass of the Lumberlands" NOW!

NOW BOOKING AT ALL MUTUAL EXCHANGES

HELEN HOLMES
IN

A LASS OF THE LUMBERLANDS

Produced by SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

MUTUAL

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION Presents

"SHORTY JOINS THE SECRET SERVICE"

Fourth of "The Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" Featurettes-

"Shorty" on the trail of the mail thieves. Anita Keller, U·S·Secret Service operative, is held captive in an insane asylum. ~ ~ ~ Her rescue is accomplished in a most sensational manner. ~ ~

RELEASED FEBRUARY 5TH

Produced by MONOGRAM FILMS

Released Through

MUTUAL EXCHANGES ~

MUTUAL

RECORD CROWD SEES "PERILS OF OUR GIRL REPORTERS" AT ACADEMY

Sensational Film Depicting Actual Newspaper Life Shown for First Time at Popular Downtown Theater Attracts Multitude in Afternoon and Evening—Overwhelming Reception as "The Jade Necklace" is Flashed on Screen.

Buffet... Amuse... est difficulty that theater attendants ...ould handle the crowds. Thirty minutes ... ore the regular ... of the Ac... ening ... erg...

"PERILS OF OUR GIRL REPORTERS" THRILLS AT REGENT

Capacity Audiences See First of Great Series of Newspaper Life and the Dangers That Best Women News Gatherers.

Those many lovers of the motion picture art who visited the Regent Theater last night and yesterday afternoon were thrilled by the portrayal of actual newspaper life as depicted in "The Jade Necklace," the first number ... the big film series, "The Perils ... Our Girl R... ..."

THE PE... GIRL
FIFTEEN STARTL...
The ...
1. ...
2. ...
3. ...
4. ...
5. ...
6.
7.
8.
9.
10.
11.
12.

"Manager Jules Michaels of the Academy, who is one of the shrewdest and most capable amusement men Buffalo has ever had, said today that he had almost made the mistake of his life by not booking the 'Perils of Our Girl Reporters'. He had already booked so many features that it seemed impossible to make room for this series but the advance notices of the pictures and that little something which may be called business instinct finally convinced him that it would be better to make room for the 'Perils of Our Girl Reporters' no matter what else he had to throw out to do it. 'If I had not done this,' he said, 'I would have missed an attraction that is proving THE GREATEST RECORD BREAKER THE ACADEMY HAS EVER BOOKED.'"

Here's convincing evidence of the tremendous success of the "Perils of Our Girl Reporters". What Manager Michaels states as his experience with this sensational film production, is true of exhibitors all over the country. The "Perils of Our Girl Reporters" is a "sure-fire" big-box-office attraction. Produced by Niagara Film Studios in fifteen thrilling motion picture stories—one a week—each complete. Featuring Earl Metcalfe, Helen Greene and Zena Keefe. Directed by Geo. Terwilliger. If you want your share of this big money harvest, book the "Perils of Our Girl Reporters" NOW.

THE PERILS OF OUR GIRL REPORTERS

FIFTEEN STARTLING MOTION PICTURE STORIES — EACH COMPLETE

Call, write or wire your nearest Mutual Exchange NOW

BOOKING NOW AT ALL MUTUAL EXCHANGES

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

MUTUAL

VOGUE COMEDIES

VOGUE FILMS, Inc., Presents—

"THE MUSICAL MARVEL"

TWO REELS RELEASED FEBRUARY 11th

FEATURING BEN TURPIN

FROM start to finish this Vogue Comedy is a whirlwind of laughs. The chuckles begin with the first hundred feet of the first reel, and grow in strength till the very end. Ben Turpin was never funnier in his life than as the pianist of a Western concert hall who is convinced that he can become a second Paderewski. The scene shifts from the far west to New York but the laughs continue throughout. Directed by Robin Williamson. Bookings can be arranged at any Mutual Exchange.

Slapstick with a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

VOGUE FILMS, Incorporated

General Offices, 6225 Broadway, Chicago, Illinois

MAKING CUB COMEDIES

Cub Comedies are produced, not in a hit or miss way, but in conformity with a well defined policy.

This policy is to make Cub Comedies as your patrons like them.

So, before a single foot of negative is exposed the producer first satisfies himself, as far as it is possible for him to judge, that his picture will win general approval.

The observance of this policy has been a boon to the business of exhibitors everywhere as is reflected in the steadily increasing demand for Cub Comedies.

Book Cub Comedies—your patrons will like them and they'll help your business.

Released Thursdays through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corp.

DAVID HORSLEY PRODUCTIONS

Released Feb. 15
"Jerry's Big Mystery"
featuring
GEORGE OVEY

Released Feb. 22
"Jerry's Brilliant Scheme"
featuring
GEORGE OVEY

Our advertisers tell us when we give YOU the best magazine.

MUTUAL
"Hey, Kids! Hurry Up! Gaumont!"
You can just hear the bright little chap shouting to his playmates. He's the best advertisement you can have. He went to the children's matinee last week, and now he's passing on the good word about
GAUMONT SINGLE-REELS
Get all the children's admission money you can. It helps pay the rent, and the children will be steady patrons for you in years to come. You can bring them back week after week with Gaumont pictures, they're GREAT for children.
"Reel Life" is a big winner; it's chock full of stuff for the kiddies. The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly interests them in history in the making. "Tours Around the World" shows them fascinating foreign lands. "See America First" instills love of country; and with it is a Gaumont Kartoon Komic so screamingly funny that the children almost fall off their seats laughing.
The Better Films Committee of the Illinois Congress of Mothers endorses these pictures. The Fordham Theater, Bronx, N.Y., is making a hit with some of them. Wise exhibitors everywhere are using them. Whenever a mothers' or teachers' committee confers with you, you are always safe when you offer them all the Gaumont Single Reels. The best thing you can say is, "I am showing them every day NOW and pleasing my patrons."
ORDER FROM YOUR MUTUAL BRANCH TODAY
Gaumont Co
FLUSHING, N. Y.
GERANNE DONALD
MUTUAL
GAUMONT PICTURES
"REEL LIFE"
OF INTEREST TO CHILDREN
TO-DAY

Goldwyn Pictures

Goldwyn's Message to Quincy, Illinois

[And 10,000 Towns Like It]

MR. SOHM, of Quincy, does not know whether his Belasco Theatre will be able to afford Goldwyn Pictures because he is a "little exhibitor."

This announcement is to assure him and the thousands of other exhibitors like him that the big and powerful Goldwyn productions will be at his disposal and within his reach.

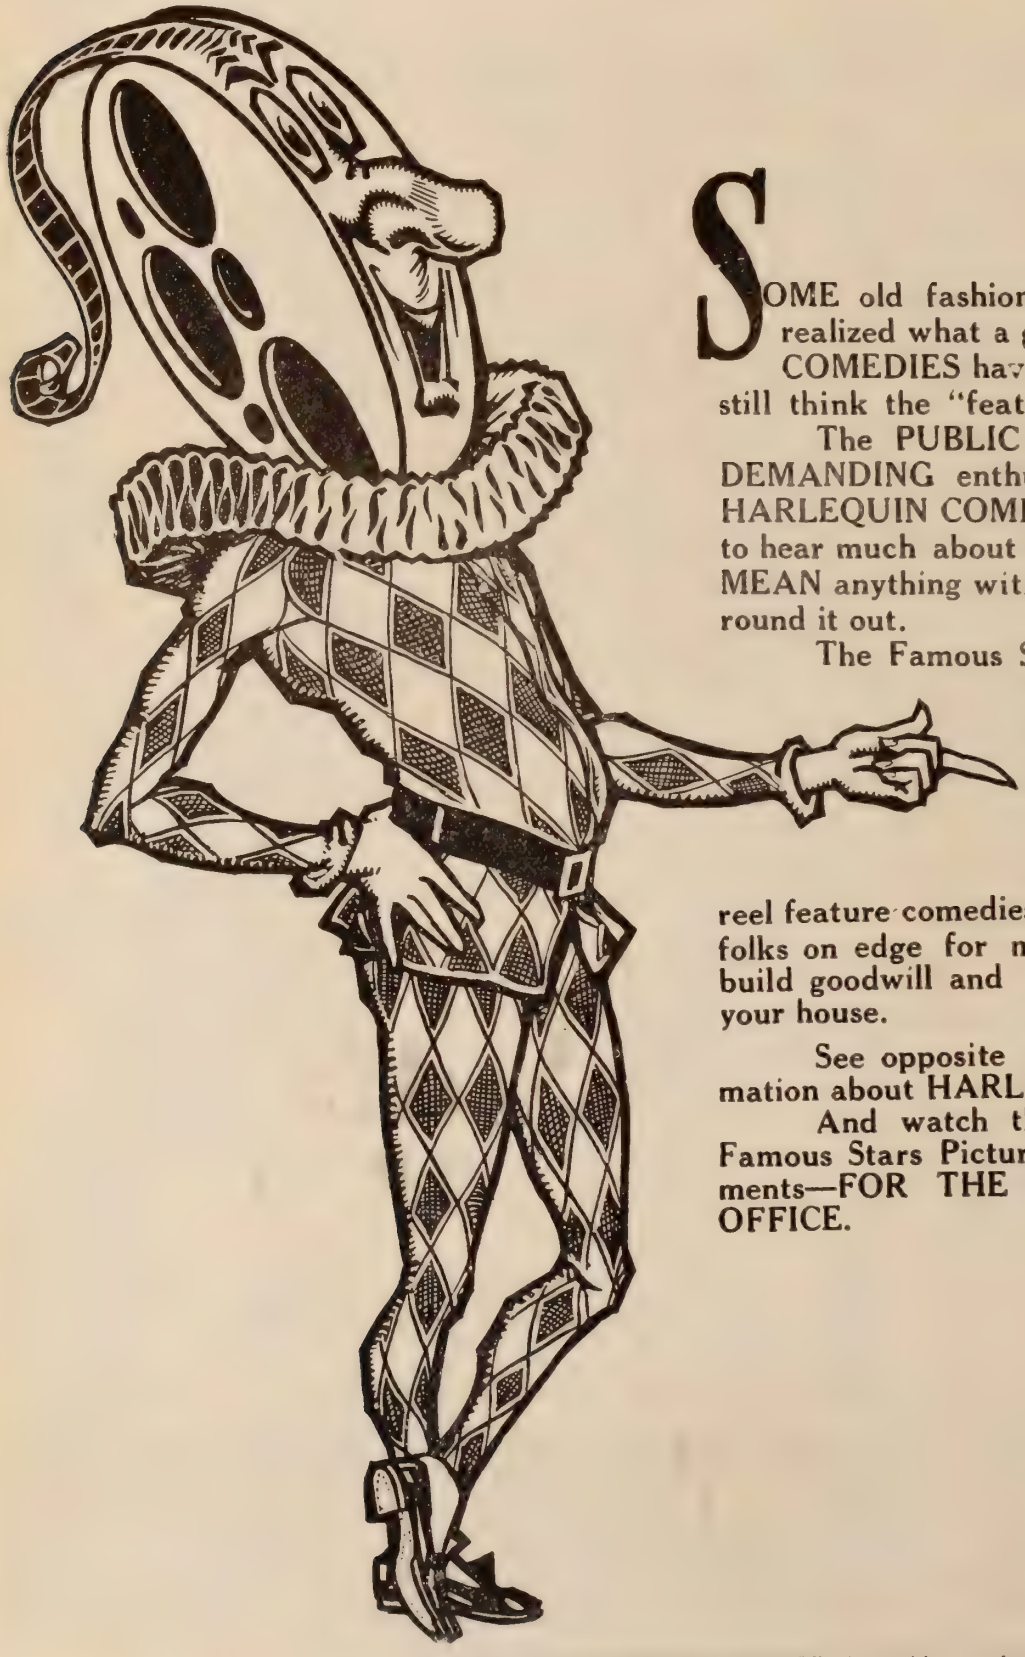
"Little exhibitors" are the backbone of the motion picture industry; they determine the success or failure of a producer. What could be more profitable and satisfying than producing big pictures for the "little exhibitors" as well as for the big ones?

Goldwyn expects to contribute to its own success and solidity in the industry by the cordiality and intelligence of its relationships with the owners and managers of the smaller theatres.

ADVISORY BOARD:

SAMUEL GOLDFISH,
Chairman
EDGAR SELWYN
IRVIN S. COBB
ARTHUR HOPKINS
MARGARET MAYO
ROI COOPER MEGRUE
ARCHIBALD SELWYN
CROSBY GAIGE

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation



16 East 42nd Street New York

Telephone: Vanderbilt 11

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

Famous Stars Pictures Corporation

One Forty Nine Broadway New York City

SOME old fashioned exhibitors haven't yet realized what a great big place the RIGHT COMEDIES have in their programs. They still think the "feature's the thing"—entirely.

The PUBLIC knows better. They are DEMANDING enthusiasm and good cheer—HARLEQUIN COMEDIES which you are going to hear much about here. A program doesn't MEAN anything without the right comedies to round it out.

The Famous Stars Pictures Corporation begins a new era in Screendom. Famous stars, famous authors, famous directors, will combine to produce refined but screamingly funny two reel feature comedies. Comedies that will keep folks on edge for more. Comedies that will build goodwill and "comeback" patronage for your house.

See opposite page for additional information about HARLEQUIN releases.

And watch this magazine for further Famous Stars Pictures Corporation announcements—FOR THE SAKE OF YOUR BOX OFFICE.

Introducing

Mr. Tworeel Harlequin. He's the herald of GOOD comedies—the sort of comedies you've been waiting for to make your program A No. 1 from the first flicker to the last close up.

There's a jim dandy Harlequin two reeler coming along soon now starring one of the cleverest, prettiest, smartest little women in Filmland—a FAMOUS STAR from a FAMOUS FAMILY OF STARS.

Who is she?

We'll never tell you—that is, not this week.

But you are good enough business man to watch for further announcements of

HARLEQUIN

The Comedies with Counterplots

Harlequin comedies are "different" comedies—they've got a point as well as a tickle to them.

Remember—famous stars, famous authors, famous directors, all working together to produce just the very best fun that this great big, good natured world affords.

You'll be glad to welcome Harlequin.

Who Stars?

Who Stars?

Famous Players Pictures Corporation

One Forty Nine Broadway New York City

PREMIER ANNOUNCEMENT

BERNSTEINS DRAMATIC FILM PRODUCTIONS

THE STORY, CAST, DIRECTION, SETTINGS AND PHOTOGRAHY OF PICTURES BEARING THIS TRADE MARK WILL POSSESS THE BEST THAT THOROUGH EXPERIENCE CAN POSSIBLY PRODUCE

THE TRADE MARK IS A FURTHER ASSURANCE THAT THESE PRODUCTIONS MAY BE ENJOYED BY EVERY MAN WOMAN AND CHILD; THEY ARE MADE FOR THE CLEAN-MINDED MILLIONS WHO SUPPORT YOUR THEATRES

The works of the following writers will appear under this trade mark

HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK
Author "The Honor System" etc.

ETHEL & JAMES DORRANCE
Authors "His Robe of Honor" etc.

RAY LEWIS
Author "Songs of Earth" etc.

ROSALIE ASHTON & BEATRICE MORRIS
Authors "The Undertow" etc.

IN PREPARATION

THE SEVEN CARDINAL VIRTUES

A SERIES OF DRAMATIC PRODUCTIONS DEPICTING LIFE IN ALL ITS PHASES

Direction JACK PRATT
Supervision ISADORE BERNSTEIN

MADE IN AMERICA'S MOST BEAUTIFUL STUDIO

BERNSTEINS FILM PRODUCTIONS

BOYLE & STEVENSON AVENUES
LOS ANGELES

Next ad with full particulars will appear 4 weeks hence

ANN MURDOCK in ENVY

Read what the Critics say:

The Morning Telegraph

It would be hard to find a production better equipped in the way of players: each of the three principals has strong screen personality. Ann Murdock is a vivacious and sparkling Betty, and most ornamental, while Shirley Mason, who will appear in other pictures of this series, has a film magnetism which will carry her a long way on the road to popularity. She is a natural, unaffected little actress. George Le Guere is, of course, a fine juvenile. Agnes Smith.

Exhibitor's Trade Review

Ann Murdock, who is featured in this release, wears many pretty gowns, and she is indeed an engaging picture to behold.

Billboard

The film has action; Miss Murdock is good to look upon, there are some unique scenes, especially that of a rainstorm, and it has the virtue of not being obviously didactic.

Variety. ("Envy")

It has much scenic beauty and a wealth of melodrama with a "punch," not to speak of the very agreeable pictures of the slender Miss Murdock several times in a boudoir negligee of black knickerbockers, and once again in an Annette Kellerman bathing suit.

The Moving Picture World

Miss Murdock presents a most pleasing appearance. She is cute, as you might say, and when she dons a peculiar style of bloomers and stretches out on a comfortable divan you don't blame either Adam or Skinner for their admiration. Rather do you envy the twain for being admitted to her presence. Edward Weitzel.

Motion Picture News

Ann Murdock heads the cast. As Betty Howard, the actress, her beauty and histrionic skill are important assets in the success of the picture. A fetching boudoir costume, a chic bathing suit and an elaborate "nightie" are features of her extensive wardrobe. Peter Milne

Dramatic Mirror

This winning and gentle drama is anything but deadly, especially when decorated by the piquant personality of Ann Murdock.

If "Envy" with Ann Murdock is representative of the series, the release of this chain of plays should be eagerly watched for by exhibitors. A. G. S

New York Tribune

If the "Seven Deadly Sins" continue to be made so attractive, it is going to be difficult to say "Get thee behind me."

Harriette Underhill.

SEVEN DEADLY SINS

Mc Clure Series Dept.,
Triangle Distributing Corporation,
1459 Broadway, New York City.

McCLURE PICTURES

These Magazines tell the story of SEVEN DEADLY SINS

BOOK THROUGH TRIANGLE EXCHANGES

An immense country-wide advertising-campaign in leading newspapers is starting — see our announcement next week

BOOK —

Address McClure Series Dept.,

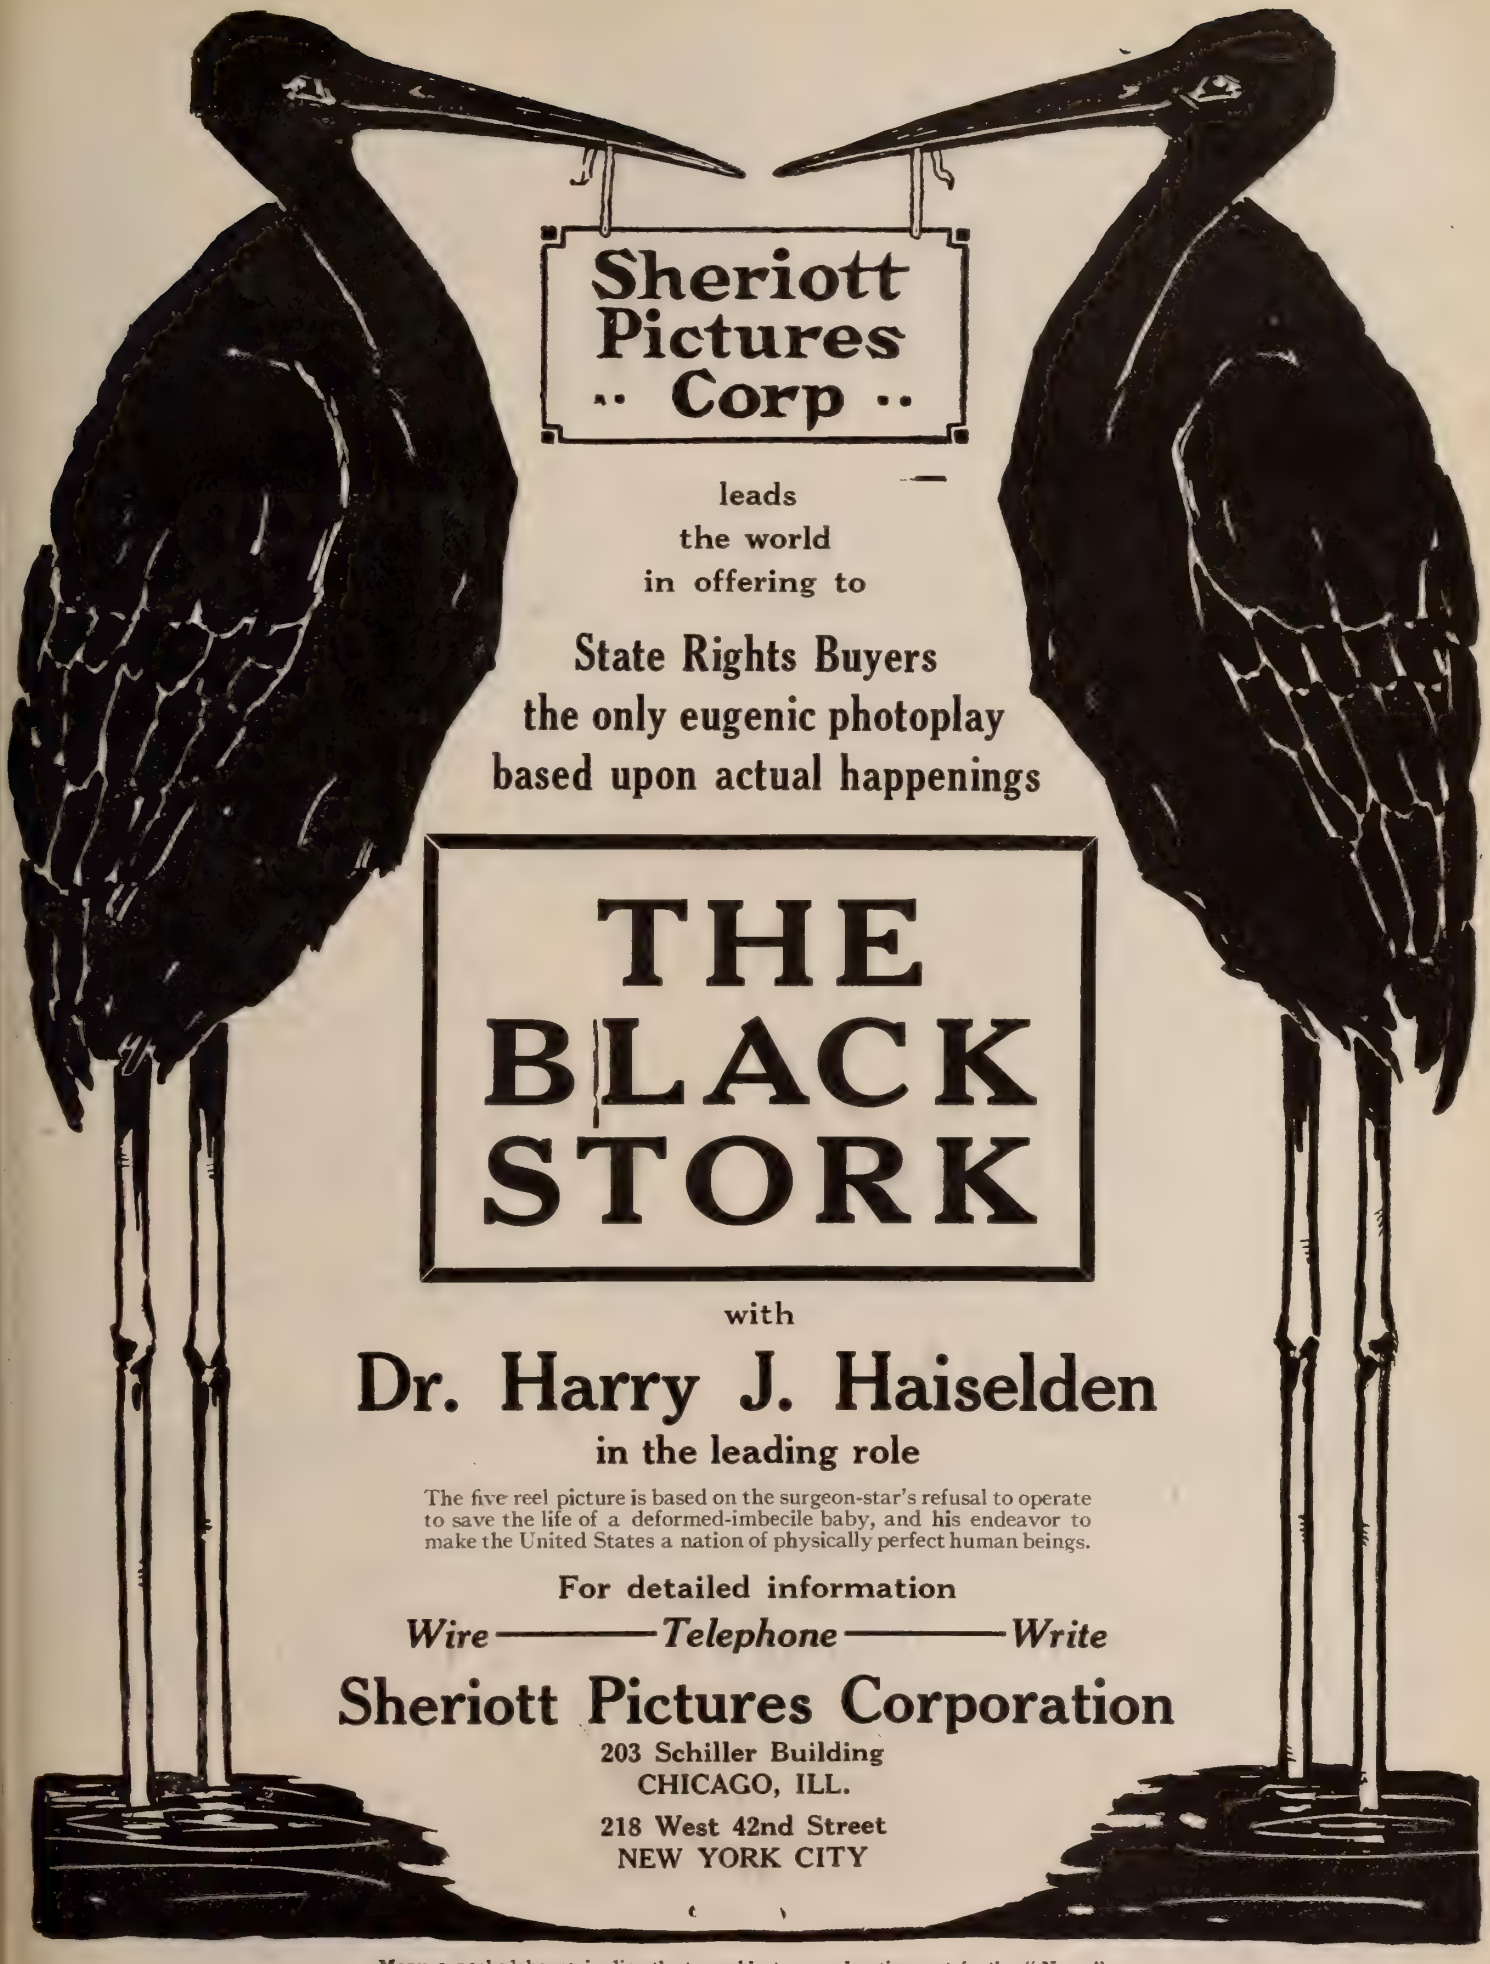
Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Here is the gigantic magazine advertising campaign behind SEVEN DEADLY SINS

'seven plays-seven stars'

Twenty-four national magazines, including the four leading motion picture magazines are telling the story of SEVEN DEADLY SINS—to over fifty million readers

Letters are pouring into the offices of McClure Pictures asking where this series can be seen



Link your theatre to the greatest advertising campaign in motion-picture history

SEVEN DEADLY SINS

McCLURE PICTURES

Triangle Distributing Corp. 1439 B'way New York

Dr. Harry J. Haiselden
Playing the lead in
The Black Stork
is better advertised than any
Star in filmdom
DOCTOR IN CHICAGO HELD JUSTIFIED IN LETTING BABY DIE
JURY OF SCIENTISTS READY TO VINDICATE HAISELDEN, IS REPT
Chicago Daily News
DOCTOR IN CHICAGO HELD JUSTIFIED IN LETTING BABY DIE
HAISELDEN IS UPHELD BY THE CORONER'S JURY
JURY OF PHYSICIANS VINDICATES HAISELDEN
DR. HAISELDEN IS EXONERATED
Chicago Surgeon Upheld for Allowing Baby to Die
AUTOPSY PUTS BOY IN CLASS OF DEFECTIVES
DOCTOR HELD NOT NEGLIGENT
CHICAGO DOCTOR NOT NEGLIGENT IN BABY CASE
HOLD DR. HAISELDEN WAS JUSTIFIED
DOCTOR WHO LET BABE DIE CLEARED
DOCTOR IN CHICAGO HELD JUSTIFIED IN LETTING BABY DIE
DOCTOR JURY TO VINDICATE DR. HAISELDEN
DEATH OF BABY RAISES STORM
DOCTOR WHO LET IT DIE IS TO BE EXONERATED
DR. HAISELDEN INSISTS THAT HE WAS RIGHT
DR. HAISELDEN IS JUSTIFIED
DR. HAISELDEN IS VINDICATED
JURY FINDS DOCTOR WAS JUSTIFIED IN LETTING CHILD DIE
MAY PROSECUTE DR. H. J. HAISELDEN
HAISELDEN RIGHT, DECLARES CORONER
Jurors Say Baby Had Defects Than Haiselden
Dr. Reinhardt Says Dr. Haiselden Did Right to Allow Dr
Haiselden Was Justified in Letting Bollinger Baby Die Natural Death
Expects Vindication on Charge of Seeking Newspaper Notoriety.
Physician Assures Responsibility in Bollinger Case — Says the Country Is With Him, and He Would Take Stand
Others Agree Doctor Right Letting Child Die
Medical Society May Expel Dr. Haiselden
HAISELDEN RETAINS LICENSE
STATES RIGHTS BUYERS
Apply to
SHERIOTT PICTURES CORPORATION
203 SCHILLER BLDG. CHICAGO, ILL.
220 WEST 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

Sheriott Pictures Corp

leads the world in offering to

State Rights Buyers
the only eugenic photoplay based upon actual happenings

THE BLACK STORK

with

Dr. Harry J. Haiselden

in the leading role

The five reel picture is based on the surgeon-star's refusal to operate to save the life of a deformed-imbecile baby, and his endeavor to make the United States a nation of physically perfect human beings.

For detailed information

Wire ——— Telephone ——— Write

Sheriott Pictures Corporation

203 Schiller Building
CHICAGO, ILL.

218 West 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

The SCARLET LETTER-

Hawthorne's Tragic and Beautiful Story of Old Puritan New England Has Been Made Into a Master Photoplay Filled with Thrills and Throbs - an Epic of Emotion and Sentiment and Interest

WILLIAM FOX

PRESENTS THIS GREATEST OF AMERICAN CLASSICS WITH

Stuart Holmes

AS PASTOR DIMMESDALE

DIRECTED BY CARL HARBAUGH

FOXFILM COMEDY SERVICE

RELEASE FOR WEEK OF FEBRUARY 12th

"THERE'S MANY A FOOL" Two Reels

THE CLEVEREST BURLESQUE EVER SHOWN IN A FILM BASED ON "A FOOL THERE WAS"

HANK MANN as the Fool.

CARMEN PHILLIPS as the Vampire

FOXFILM COMEDIES ARE RELEASED WEEKLY.
INDEPENDENT OF REGULAR FOX PROGRAM

PATHÉ

LOOKING INTO A GOOD THING!

THE EXHIBITOR WHO LOOKS INTO

LUKE

COMEDIES IS LOOK-INTO A GOOD THING AND WILL SURELY BOOK THEM.

HERE'S A LETTER FROM ONE OF THE MOST FAMOUS EXHIBITORS OF THE SOUTH MR. ERNEST BOEHRINGER.

"We are agreeably surprised by the consistent excellence of your 'LUKE' comedies. Not only is the featured comedian (Harold Lloyd) one of the best but the entire company is composed of excellent comedians and the action keeps the spectators in an uproar.
More power to 'Luke' He should be the biggest business getter on your books. He would be if all the exhibitors knew the regularity with which he comes across in satisfactory style."
Ernest Boehringer, m'g'r
Triangle Theatre
New Orleans, La.

PRODUCED BY ROLIN

PATRIA

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIAL HAS BEEN BOOKED OVER THE ENTIRE KEITH CIRCUIT AND ALSO BY ALL THE PROCTOR
THEATRES OF NEW YORK AND THE VICINITY

•

THE COUNTRY'S GREATEST SHOW-
MEN KNOW A GREAT ATTRACTION
WHEN THEY SEE IT.

•

RELEASED BY PATHÉ

THE STAR OF

PATRIA

IS

MRS. VERNON CASTLE

THE BEST KNOWN WOMAN IN AMERICA.
THE STORY IS BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE,
THE FAMOUS AUTHOR. THIS IS THE ONLY
SERIAL EVER SHOWN IN THE

PALACE

THE COUNTRY'S LEADING VAUDEVILLE THEATRE.

◆

PRODUCED FOR INTERNATIONAL
BY WHARTON, INC.

RELEASED BY PATHÉ

PATHÉ

AN AD ON PEARL OF THE ARMY
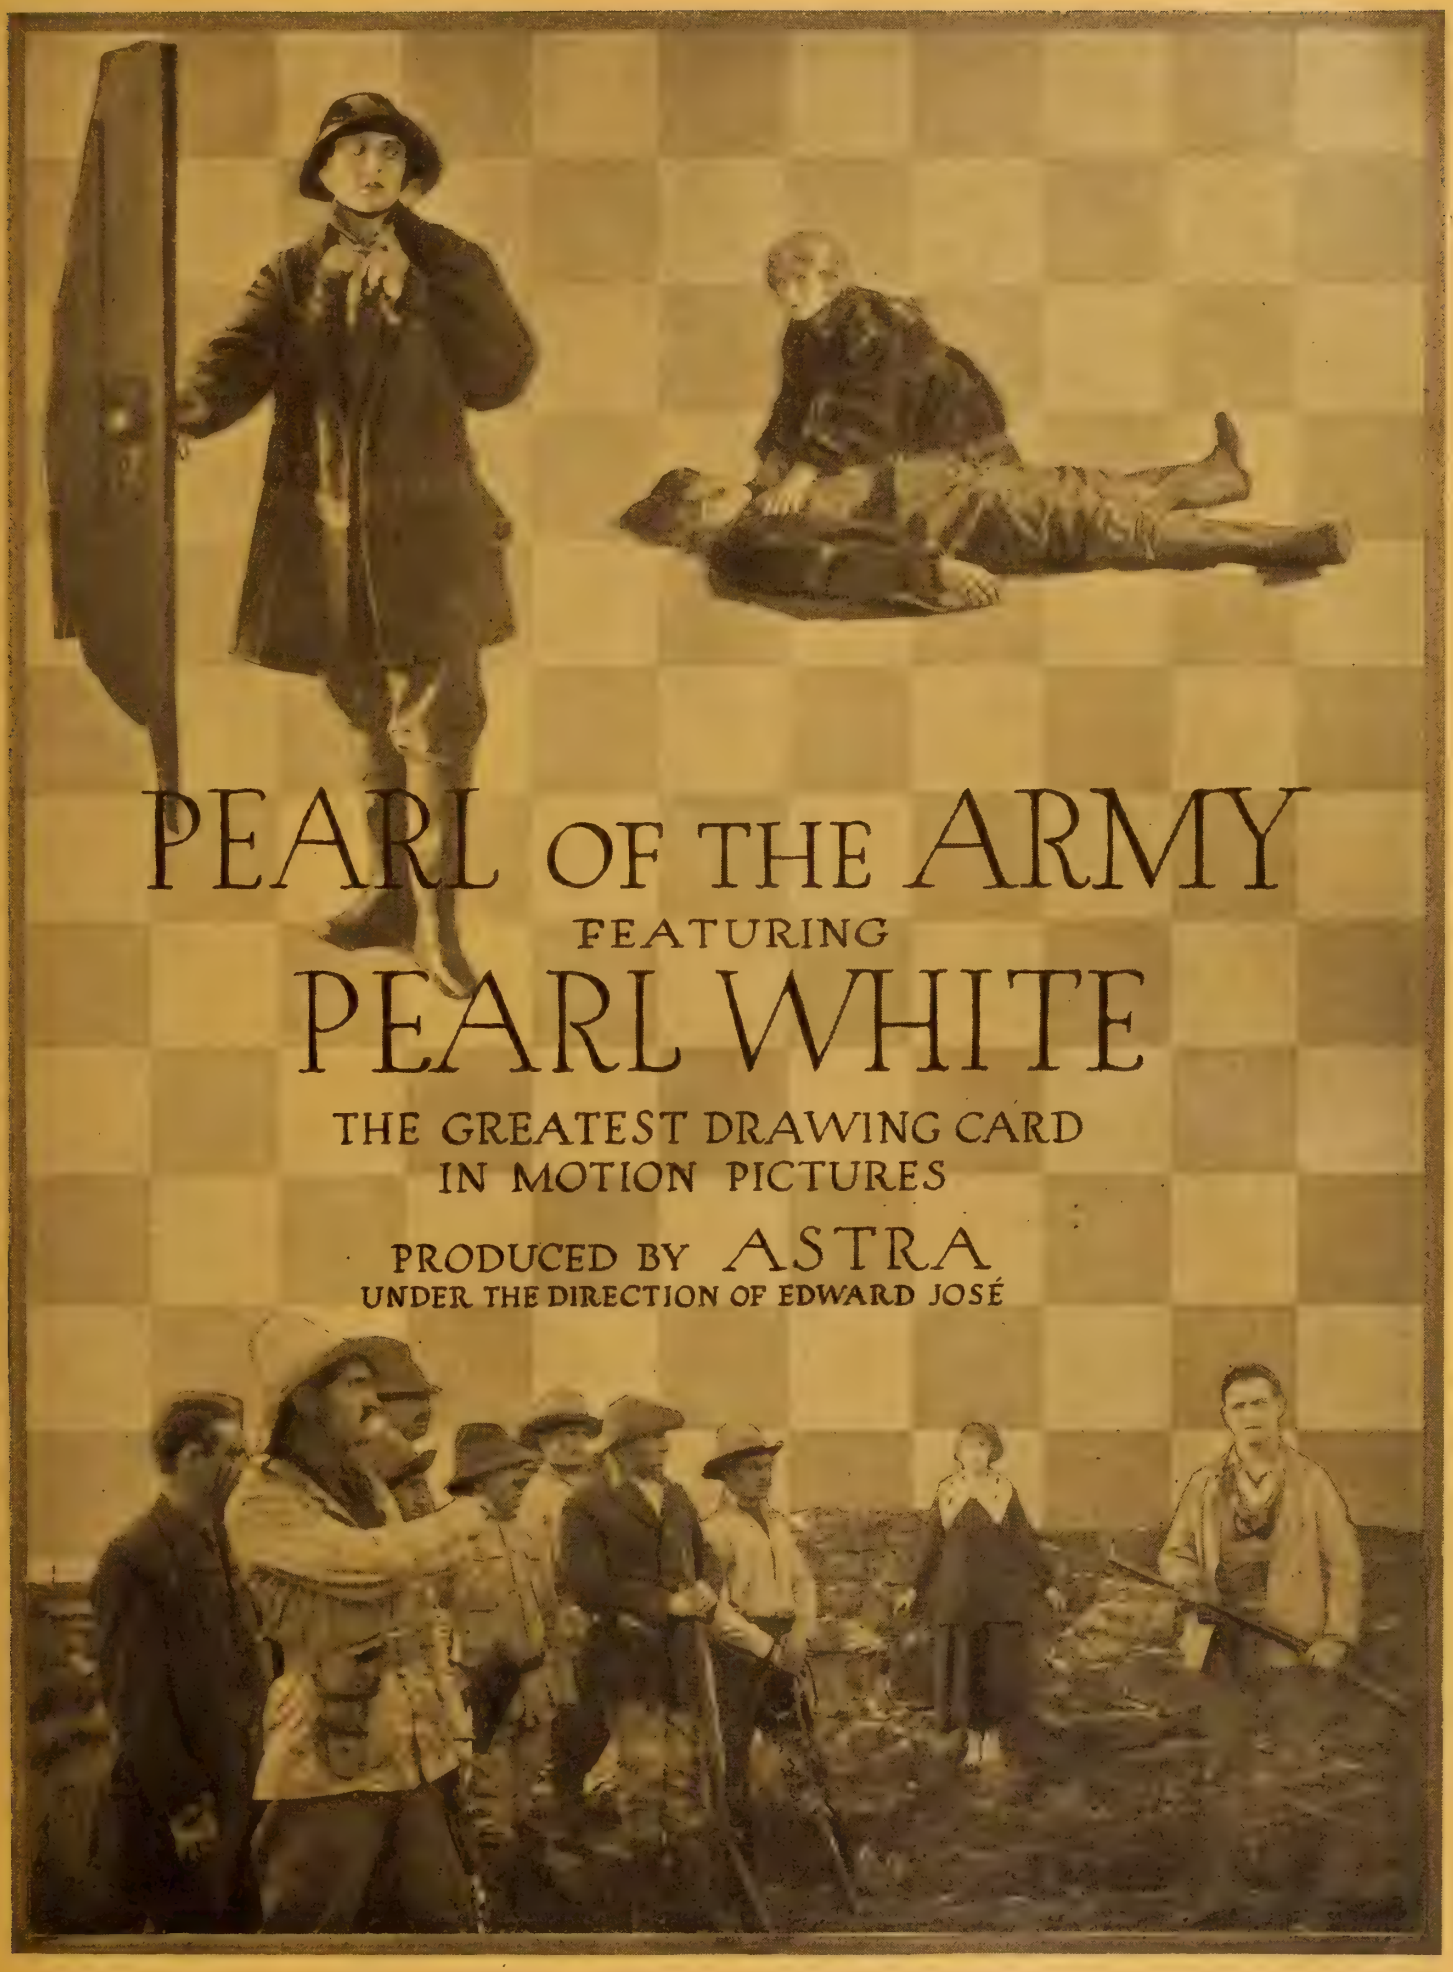
THAT THE EXHIBITORS WROTE

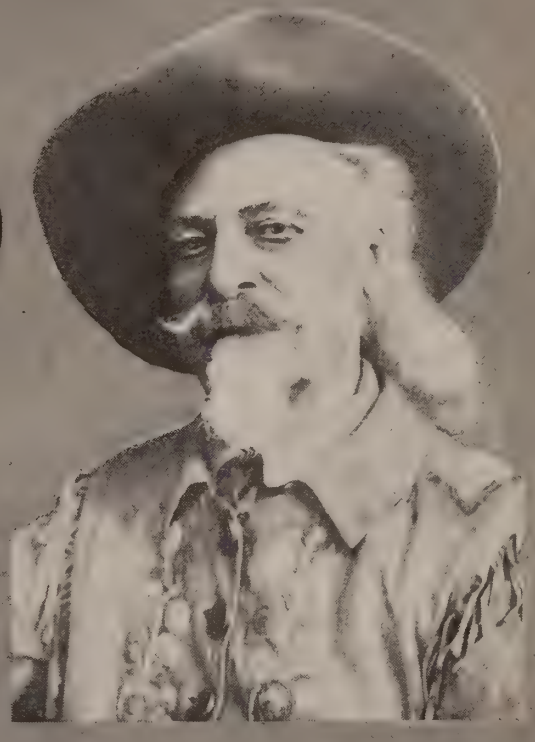


"Our record with you is 146 consecutive weeks of PATHE serials. To skip two weeks would hurt our business."

HARRODSBURG AMUSEMENT CO., Inc.
Harrodsburg, Kentucky

"I have found PATHE serials not only the best, but also the best drawing serials from a box office standpoint, and I have shown quite a number of other serials since their inception."

JAY EMANUEL, Manager
RIDGE AVENUE THEATRE
18th and Ridge Ave.,
Philadelphia, Pa.



EVERY "PEARL OF THE ARMY" EXHIBITOR IS A PATHÉ SERIAL BOOSTER

PEARL OF THE ARMY
FEATURING
PEARL WHITE
THE GREATEST DRAWING CARD
IN MOTION PICTURES
PRODUCED BY ASTRA
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF EDWARD JOSÉ

PATHÉ
FLORENCE LABADIE
IN A THRILLING FIVE PART GOLD ROOSTER
PLAY BASED ON PRISON REFORM
HER LIFE AND HIS PRODUCED BY THANHOUSER
RELEASED FEB. 18
THE GIRL WHO WANTED TO LIVE MEETS THE MAN WHO WANTED TO DIE. YOU WILL NOT WANT TO MISS A SINGLE SCENE.

KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

Adventures of BUFFALO BILL

¶ His Indian battles, last hunting trip with the Prince of Monaco, owner of Monte Carlo, and incidents of his home life.

¶ 5,000 U. S. troops and Indians take part, including the famous generals and chiefs engaged in the Indian wars.

¶ Actual battles refought on Western Plains and the Bad Lands—Col. Cody's death fight with Chief Yellow Hand.

¶ BUFFALO BILL is the most romantic figure in American History—the idol of every man and boy.

¶ BOOK IT NOW WHILE HIS NAME IS ON EVERY TONGUE.

Screen Time, 1 hour, 15 minutes

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

We Congratulate You, Mr. Rothapfel!

The Rialto, New York's Ultra-progressive picture theatre, contracts for a week's showing of

ESSANAY'S

"SKINNER'S DRESS SUIT"

Your Patrons Will Thank You, Mr. Rothapfel!

The Rialto Shows only the highest class pictures and "SKINNER'S DRESS SUIT" fits perfectly Rochester Lucky To Have You, Mr. Seeley!

The Piccadilly, Rochester, Walter Hoff Seeley, Mgr., for the first time in its history, shelves its regular program and gives three days to

"SKINNER'S DRESS SUIT"

GET BUSY, MR. EXHIBITOR!

KLEINE - EDISON - SELIG - ESSANAY SERVICE

80 Fifth Avenue, New York

(Branches Everywhere)

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

BRYANT WASHBURN

is presented in

"SKINNER'S DRESS SUIT"

Taken from the famous story by Henry Irving Dodge in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. 5,000,000 readers of the Post were thrilled by the story. Everyone will want to see the play. You have a ready made audience waiting. Don't miss this opportunity for a self advertised photoplay—a comedy-drama full of heart interest; it strikes a note that reaches every home.

Screen time 1 hour, 15 minutes
Harry Beaumont, Director

By Arrangement with Houghton Mifflin Co.

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Essanay
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St. Chicago

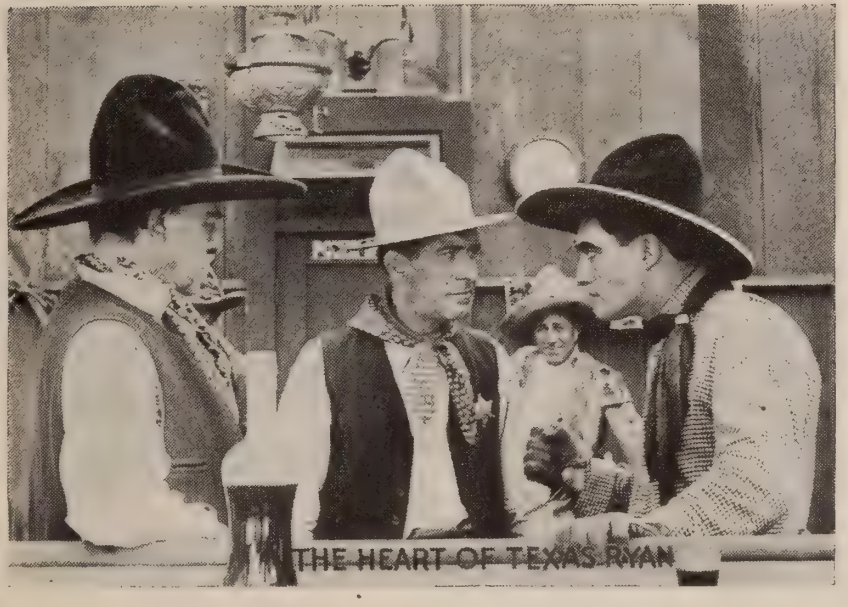
K LEINE E DISON S ELIG E SSANAY

HENRY B. WALTHALL

America's foremost actor, has made the hit of the year, in his two masterly dramas, "THE TRUANT SOUL" and "LITTLE SHOES." Don't let your patrons miss these two super-attractions.

OTHER ESSANAY FEATURES

"The Phantom Buccaneer"
"The Chaperon"
"The Return of Eve"
"According to the Code"
"Sherlock Holmes"
"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"
"The Discard"
"The Misleading Lady"
"A Daughter of the City"
"The Raven"
"The Man Trail"
"In the Palace of the King"
"The Slim Princess"
"The Breaker"
"The Prince of Graustark"
"The Sting of Victory"
"That Sort"
"The Little Shepherd of Bargain Row"
"The Havoc"
"Vultures of Society"
"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"
"The Alster Case"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Blindness of Virtue"
"The White Sister"
"Graustark"



Essanay
GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT
1333 Argyle St., Chicago

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

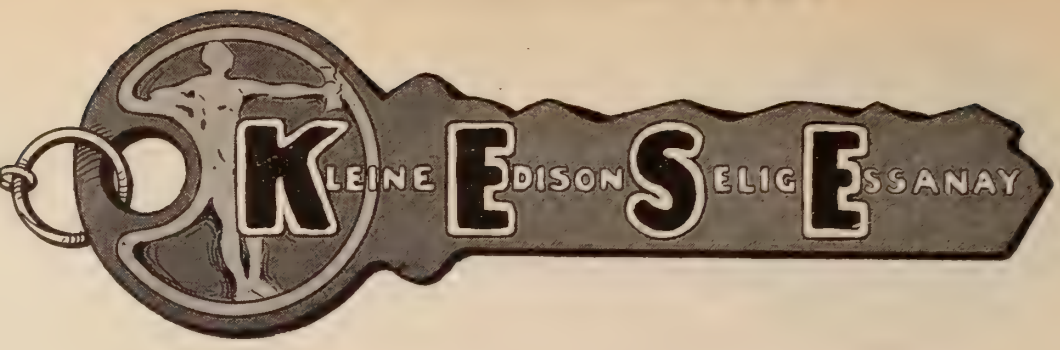
KLEINE EDISON SELIG ESSANAY

"THE HEART OF TEXAS RYAN"

A Selig Red Seal Play Filled to Overflowing With Exciting Situations. See The Ride For Life. The Battle On The Border. See Jack Parker's Rescue From the Bandits!

Absolutely the Most Distinguished Company of Stars Ever Appearing in a Five Reel Drama, Including George Fawcett, Bessie Eyton, Frank Campeau, Tom Mix and Charles Gerrard.

BOOK THESE SELIG PLAYS



The Rosary
The Country That God Forgot
A Black Sheep
House of a Thousand Candles
The Circular Staircase
At Piney Ridge
The Carpet From Bagdad
Unto Those Who Sin
A Texas Steer
Into The Primitive
The Princess of Patches
Thou Shalt Not Covet

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

Chicago, Illinois

RED SEAL SELIG PLAYS

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Do You Want a Human-Interest Story of a Child?

Most Exhibitors Do, So Most Exhibitors Will Book

"THE ROYAL PAUPER"

a five-reel production of the studios of

THOMAS A. EDISON, INC.,

featuring the young, beautiful and magnetic Broadway Star,

FRANCINE LARRIMORE

(For release February 19th)

"The Royal Pauper" is not a story of kings and castles—mighty people and beautiful things. It is not a wearying drama based on the complex "problems" of life. The "royal pauper" is a little girl who is crowned only with her golden hair and who is a princess only in an imaginary fairyland that she creates in the atmosphere of a poorhouse. Her faith and goodness, however, make her dreams come true and at last a valorous knight lays the crown jewels of love and happiness at her feet.

It is a story that makes you smile through your tears and it is superbly staged and acted.

EVERY HIGH-CLASS MOTION PICTURE HOUSE IN AMERICA WILL SHOW "THE ROYAL PAUPER"—MAKE ARRANGEMENTS NOW FOR YOUR BOOKING.

SIX SUPERB SCREEN SUCCESSES——

SIX FIVE-REEL EDISON MASTERPICTURES NOW AVAILABLE.

If You Have Not Booked Any of Them, Now Is Your Opportunity to Book Them All and Show Them In a Series—the Approval of Exhibitors and the Public Throughout the Country Attests to Their Unqualified Merits.

THEY ARE:—

"The Cossack Whip," with Viola Dana.

"The Heart of the Hills," with Conway Tearle and Mabel Trunnelle.

"The Master Passion," with Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness.

"The Last Sentence," with Marc Mac Dermott and Miriam Nesbitt.

"A Message to Garcia," with Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness.

"The Royal Pauper," with Francine Larrimore.

KLEINE-EDISON-SELIG-ESSANAY SERVICE

80 Fifth Avenue, New York, and other principal cities

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

General Film Service

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
PRESENT
RALPH W. INCE
AS ABRAHAM LINCOLN
WITH
MARY MAURICE AND JAMES MORRISON

IN A SPECIAL EDITION OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PICTURE EVER FILMED IN THE DAYS OF SINGLE REEL FEATURES

"THE SEVENTH SON"

EXHIBITORS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY HAVE PROCLAIMED THIS WONDERFUL FEATURE, THE PICTURE OF PICTURES AND HAVE BEEN CLAMORING FOR ITS RE-ISSUE

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

"The American Girl"

QUALITY, NOT LENGTH, IS WHAT COUNTS

WE take great pleasure in announcing the early release of a New SERIES of two-part productions under the general title of "The American Girl."

We promise you superior photography, a superabundance of fast, snappy action, good direction and the services of Miss Marin Sais in the stellar role, supported by a strong cast of Kalem favorites.

The stories are being prepared by Frederick R. Bechdolt, one of the most brilliant writers of thrilling fiction ever recognized by such powerful magazines as The Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, The Red Book, Everybody's and the Popular.

The director is James W. Horne, whose "Stingaree" and "The Girl from Frisco" SERIES have been pronounced short length masterpieces.

'an You afford to pass up this Quality SERIES into which we ave put all the experience gained in producing our former ERIES Successes? Ask your nearest General Film Exchange for ıformation that will enable you to reap a substantial profit.

KALEM

235 West 23rd St.,

"A Daughter of Daring"

A MONEY MAKER IF THERE EVER WAS ONE

IT is also our pleasure to announce the starring of Miss Helen Gibson in a SERIES of one-part Railroad Dramas, unique in their conception and execution.

Miss Gibson, whose heroic exploits are not approached by any other player of her sex in motion pictures today, needs no lengthy introduction.

In "A Daughter of Daring" we will introduce many new and novel bits of business, plenty of thrills and more action and story to the foot than can be found in the average five-part production.

The stories (each complete) will be written by men who know the technical side of Railroading, who write from experience and can weave romances of the Rails about Helen Gibson in a never-to-be-forgotten way.

We urge you to see your nearest General Film Exchange and arrange for these splendid SERIES pictures before a competing theatre ties them up.

That we know how to produce SERIES pictures with the punch—short length features that are not open to the criticism of serials with their "to be continued next week" trailers—is universally conceded. Think it over, then act!

COMPANY

New York City

TRADE KALEM MARK

MACK SENNETT
PRESENTS
MISS MABEL
NORMAND
AND HER OWN COMPANY IN
"MICKEY"
THE LITTLE GIRL YOU WILL NEVER FORGET

SOON TO BE RELEASED
MABEL NORMAND FEATURE FILM CO.
KESSEL AND BAUMANN EXECUTIVES
LONGACRE BLDG. NEW YORK CITY:

MACK SENNETT—KEYSTONES

ONLY ONE KIND

THE UTMOST IN COMEDY

NOW READY FOR RELEASE

INDEPENDENT OF ANY PROGRAM

ONE TWO-REELER EACH WEEK

"THE NICK OF TIME BABY"
"STARS AND 'BARS'"
"MAGGIE'S FIRST FALSE STEP"
"HER CIRCUS KNIGHT"
"DODGING HIS DOOM"
"VILLA OF THE MOVIES"
"HER FAME AND SHAME"
"A MAIDEN'S TRUST"
"HER NATURE DANCE"
"A ROYAL ROGUE"
"SKIDDING HEARTS"
"HIS NAUGHTY THOUGHT"

IMPORTANT NOTICE!!!
THERE ARE NO ONE-REEL MACK SENNETT-KEYSTONES

Triangle Film Corp., Distributors

Kessel and Baumann, Executives
Longacre Bldg., New York City

IS IT FAIR TO CONVICT A PERSON

That is the Burning Question of the Day

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS!

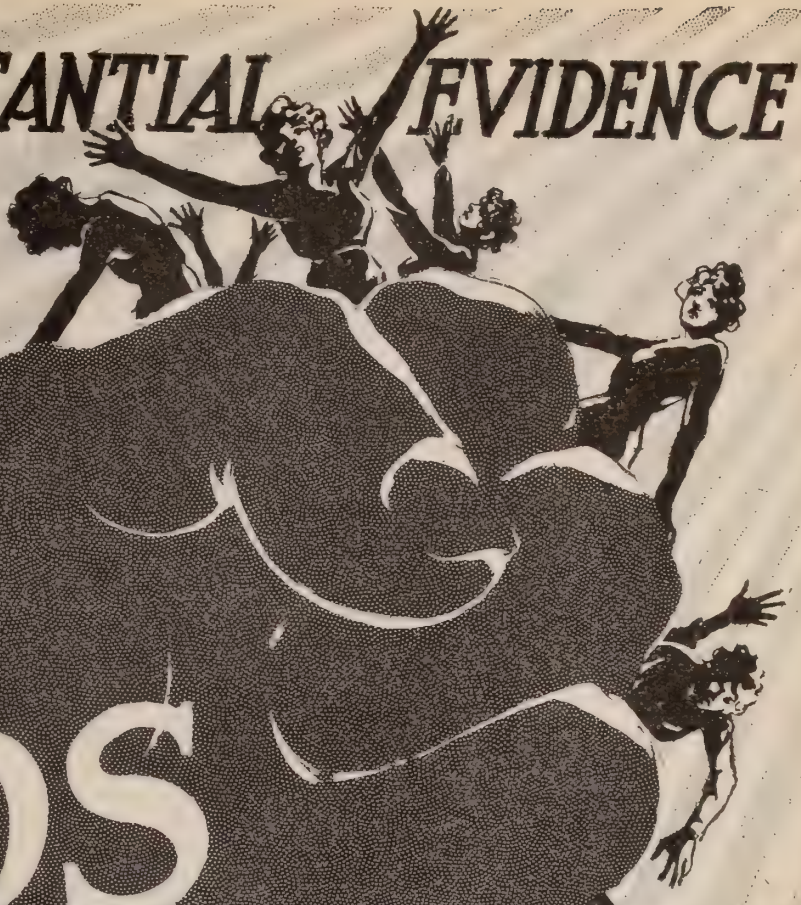
Newspapers everywhere are awakening society's conscience to the crime of conviction on circumstantial evidence.

NO OTHER SUBJECT IS BEING SO FREELY DISCUSSED

Everyone, at some time, has been misjudged or what is worse has condemned an innocent loved one.

Parents condemn their children, lovers their sweethearts, husbands their wives because a set of circumstances seemingly show their guilt.

A TREMENDOUSLY HUMAN STORY WITH AN IRRESISTIBLE PERSONAL APPEAL



B. S. Moss presents

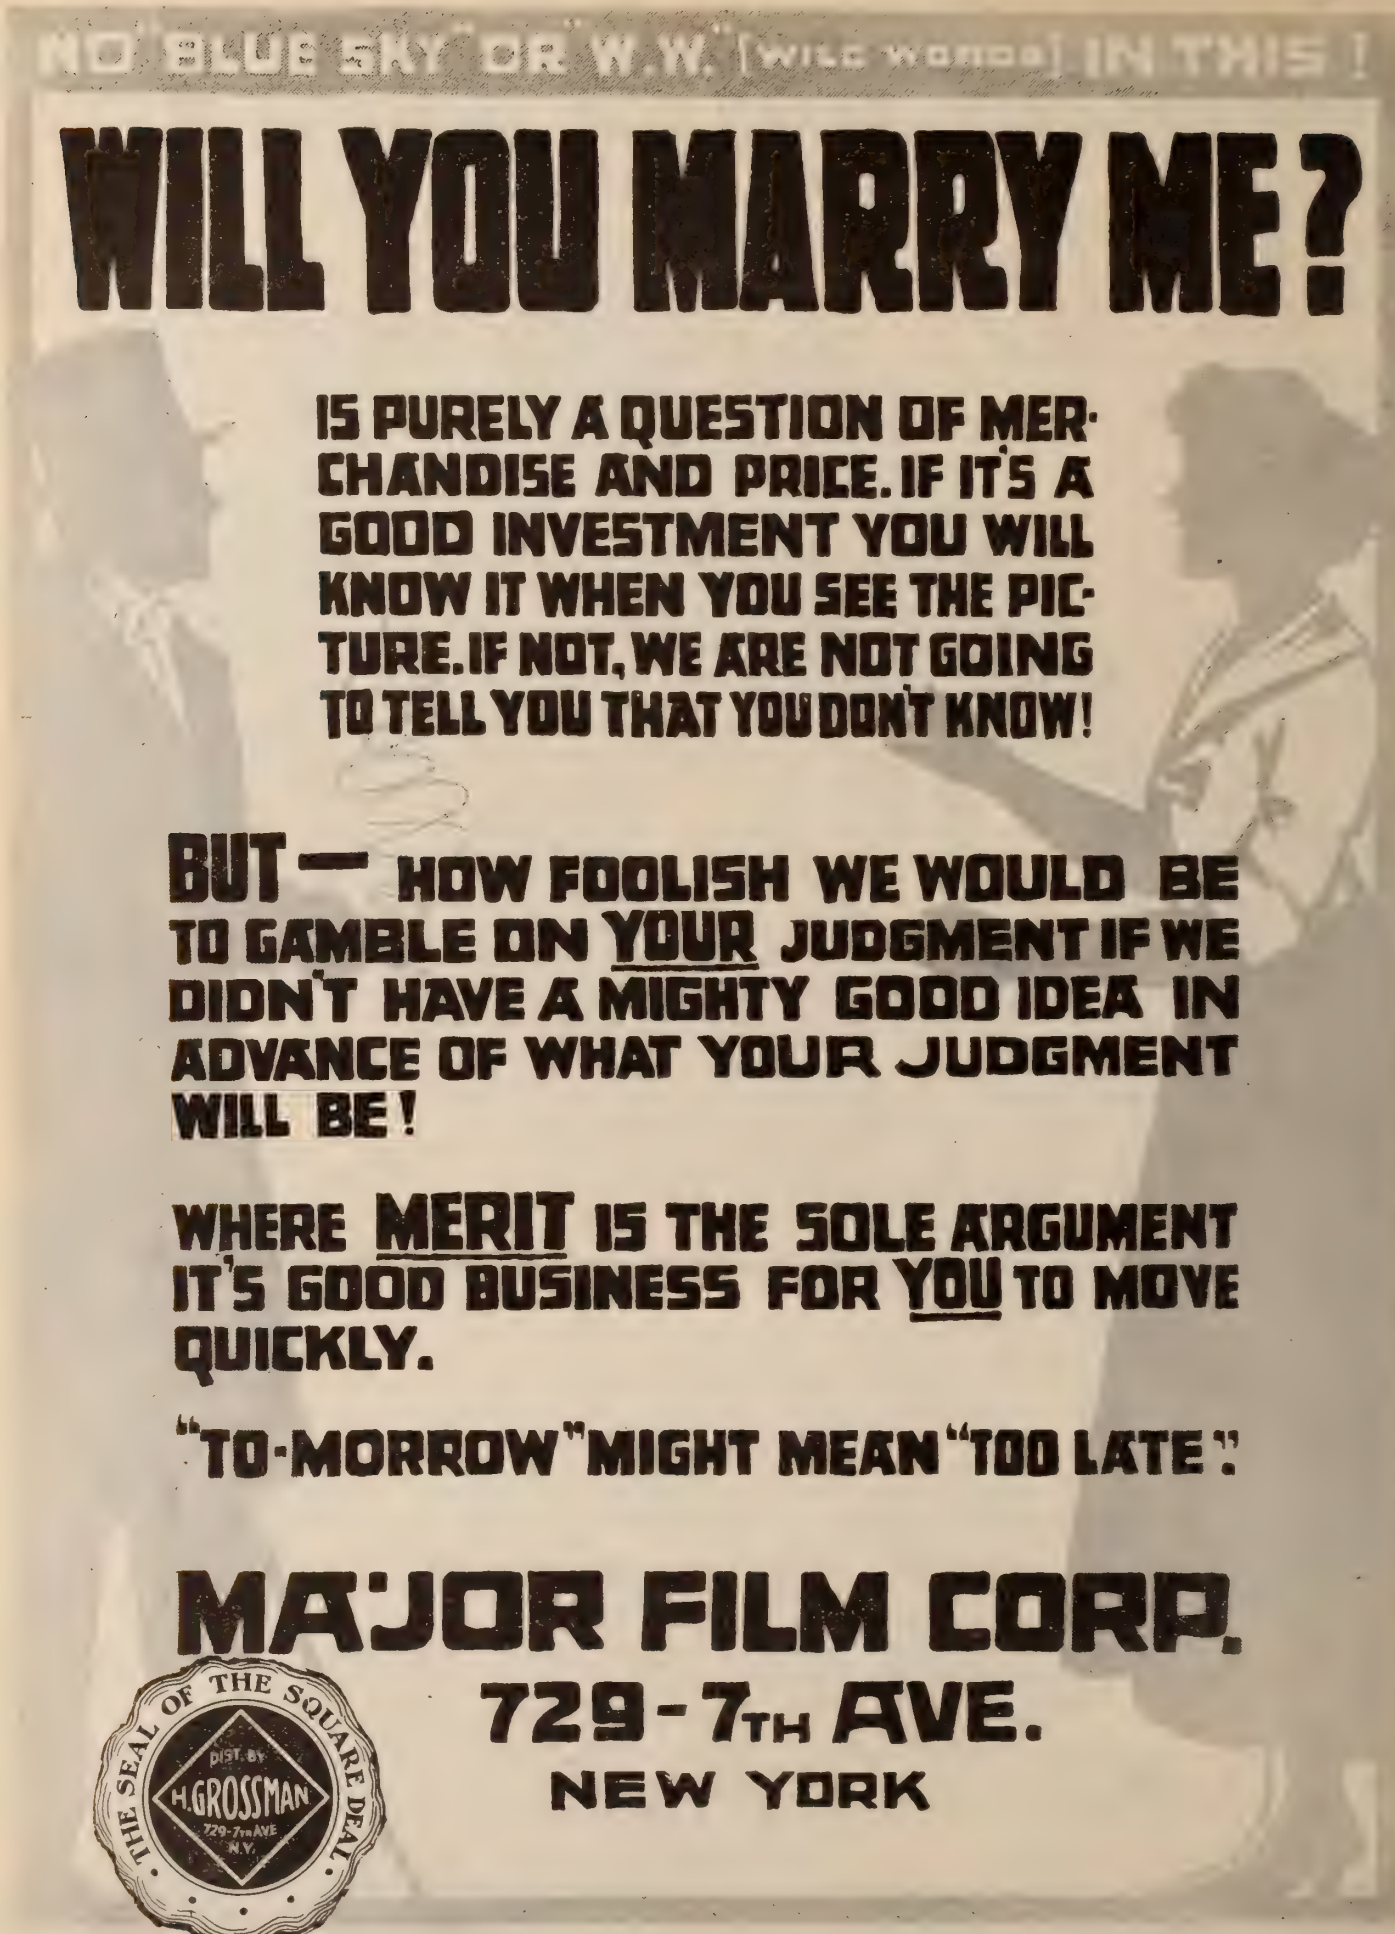
"A Master Photo-Play That Will Kindle Every Human Emotion—

IN THE CLUTCH OF THE

ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

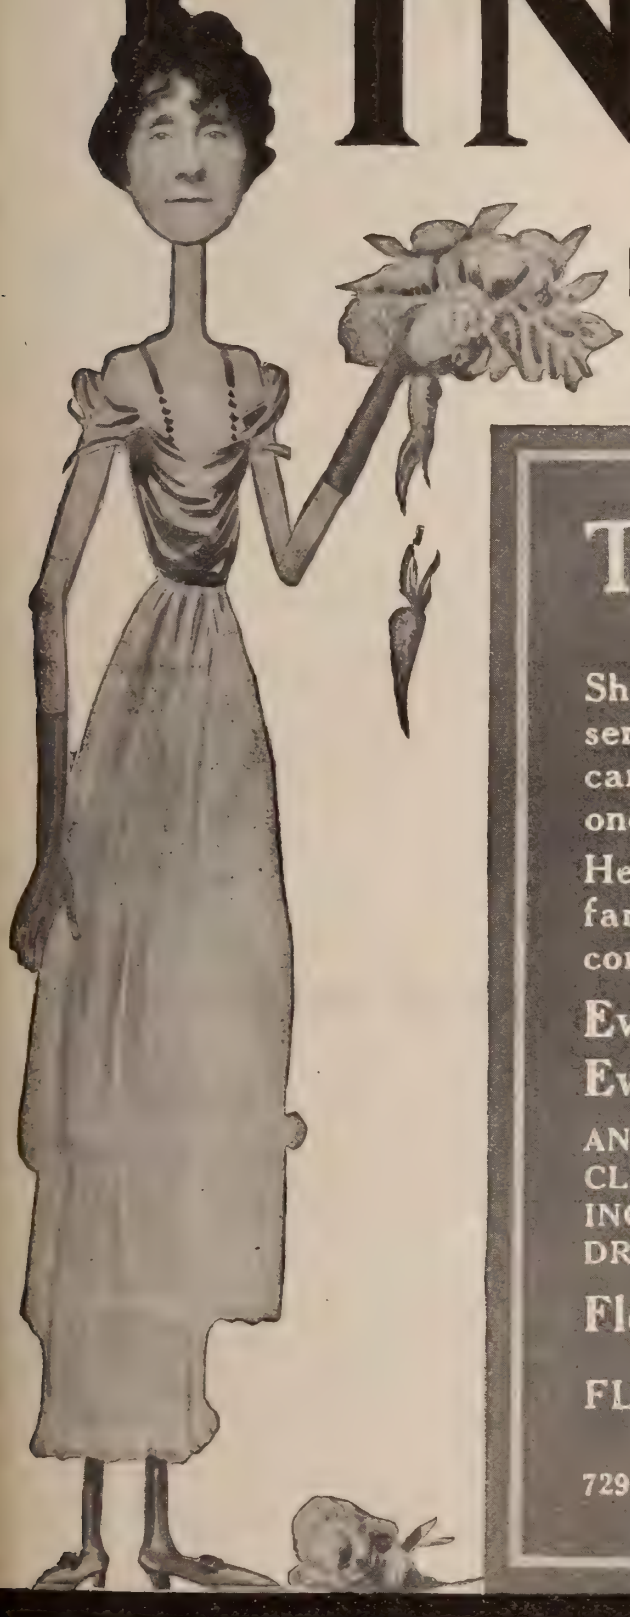
MOSS FILMS

"HANDS LAW"



featuring
LOIS MEREDITH

A gripping, thrilling photo-play with a tender love story—throbbing—human. A story with an appeal straight to the heart telling of lives wrecked, hearts broken and of other lives barely saved from sacrifice in the treacherous quicksands of circumstantial evidence.



STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

You can bill this picture like a circus—advertising matter of every description already prepared. Here is your opportunity to cash in on this big, powerful screen masterpiece.

B. S. Moss Motion Picture Corporation
729 Seventh Avenue - - - - - New York City

NO "BLUE SKY" OR "W.W." [WILD WOMEN] IN THIS!
WILL YOU MARRY ME?
IS PURELY A QUESTION OF MERCHANDISE AND PRICE. IF IT'S A GOOD INVESTMENT YOU WILL KNOW IT WHEN YOU SEE THE PICTURE. IF NOT, WE ARE NOT GOING TO TELL YOU THAT YOU DON'T KNOW!
BUT — HOW FOOLISH WE WOULD BE TO GAMBLE ON YOUR JUDGMENT IF WE DIDN'T HAVE A MIGHTY GOOD IDEA IN ADVANCE OF WHAT YOUR JUDGMENT WILL BE!
WHERE MERIT IS THE SOLE ARGUMENT IT'S GOOD BUSINESS FOR YOU TO MOVE QUICKLY.
"TO-MORROW" MIGHT MEAN "TOO LATE".
MAJOR FILM CORP.
729-7TH AVE.
NEW YORK
THE SEAL OF THE SQUARE DEAL
DIST. BY
H. GROSSMAN
729-7TH AVE
N.Y.

FLORA FINCH!!

IN ALL HER SCRAWNY, SKINNY MAJESTY!

THE first funny-woman of the screen who to this day has no successor.

She will now appear in a comedy series that only a FLORA FINCH can make great—and there's only one FLORA FINCH!

Her tremendous following is her fame, and in State Rights it becomes your asset.

Everybody Knows Flora Finch!
Everybody Wants Her!

AND NOW, AS AN INDIVIDUAL EXCLUSIVE STAR, BACKED BY CORKING PRODUCTION, NEW IDEAS AND A DRIVING ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

Flora Finch is ready for you!

FLORA FINCH FILM CORPORATION
729 7th Avenue, New York

THE SEAL OF THE SQUARE DEAL
DIST. BY H. GROSSMAN 729-7TH AVE. N.Y.

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

"PAMELA'S PAST" FEATURE FILM CO.

offer to State Right Buyers

"PAMELA'S PAST"

A five reel dramatization of Frances Aymer Matthews' famous novel "PAMELA CONGRIEVE" and starring

MAUDE FEALY and IRVING CUMMINGS and an all-star cast including

MIGNON ANDERSON
FRANK FARRINGTON
LUCY PEYTON
HARRY BENHAM

Full line of publicity matter in preparation

STATE RIGHTS ONLY AND AT PRICES FITTING YOUR POCKET-BOOK

(This picture is not a reissue but is now offered to buyers for the first time)

Write, phone or wire

"PAMELA'S PAST" FEATURE FILM CO.

W. RAY JOHNSTON, Manager

46 Main St., New Rochelle, N. Y.

LAST CALL FOR STATE RIGHTS ON THIS BIG DRAWING CARD!

Laura Nelson Hall

N. B.
Only a very few states open on "Beating Back."
Is yours one of them?
If so, don't pass up the opportunity!

"DOPE" 6 Stars Reels

Featuring the celebrated vaudeville artists

LAURA NELSON HALL and HERMAN LIEB

with

ERNEST TRUEX
WM. H. TOOKER
GASTON MERVALE
CHRISTINE BLESSING

DOPE is proving the biggest reissue on the market today and territory is moving fast

14 prints placed in the last thirty days

Mr. State Right Buyer, You have got to get busy!!

New Posters, New Photos, New Heralds.
In fact an entire new line of publicity

Wire or write

DIRECT - FROM - BROADWAY - FEATURES

46 Main St., New Rochelle, N. Y.

RELEASED
ON THE METRO
PROGRAM
FEBRUARY 19.
YORKE
FILM CORPORATION
presents
HAROLD LOCKWOOD and MAY ALLISON
IN THE PROMISE
A METRO
wonderplay in 5 acts
adapted from the novel of James B. Hendrix and directed by
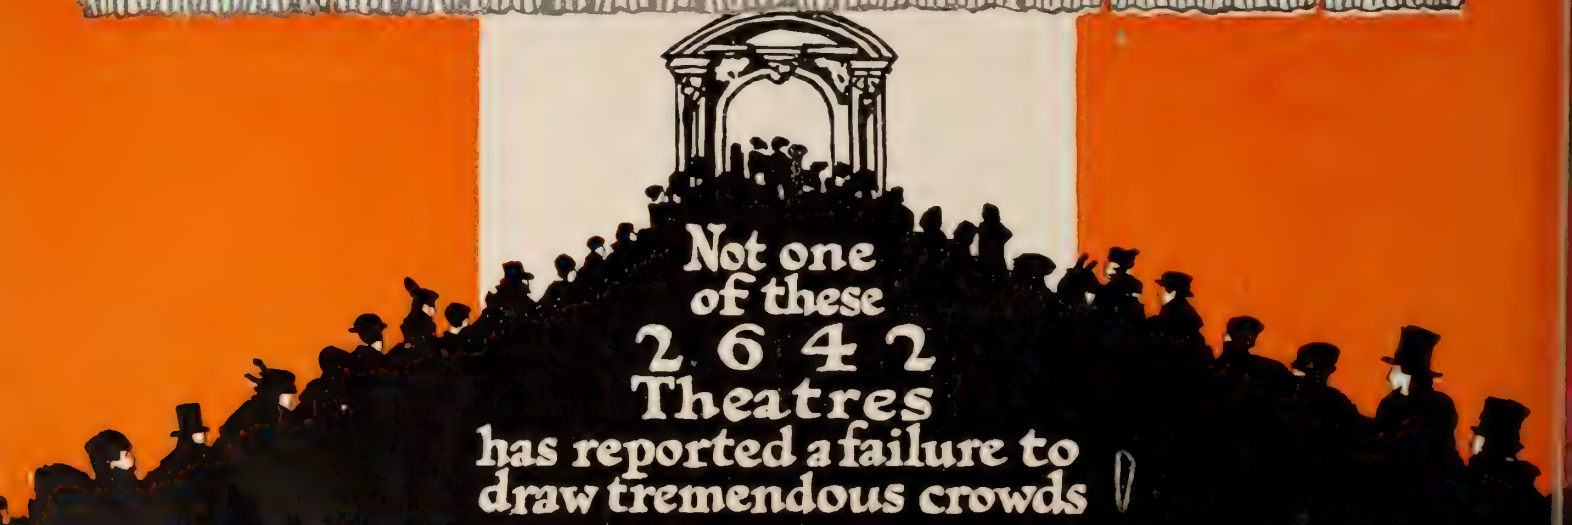
Fred J. Balshofer
By Arrangement With
ALL STORY WEEKLY

2642 Theatres

in two weeks have booked and more daily are booking



Wm. Christy Cabanne's master serial

The Great Secret

Story by Fred de Gresac

starring the supreme box office magnets

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN and BEVERLY BAYNE

Not one of these 2642 Theatres has reported a failure to draw tremendous crowds

As a businessman, think this over

BOOKING THROUGH

METRO EXCHANGES

Produced by SERIAL Producing Co.

Presented by QUALITY Pictures Corpn

"The Orang"

(500 Feet)

First Chapter From

"THE LIVING BOOK of NATURE"

By Curator RAYMOND L. DITMARS, of the

New York Zoological Park

the largest of its kind in the world

"The Orang" picturizes a chapter of primeval ancestry. The scenes in this remarkable picture offer striking proofs of Darwin's theories. They are not the scenes of trained animals, but show different examples of the Orang, a man-like type, unconsciously portraying traits that are strangely human.

Some of the episodes are screamingly funny, but there is a feeling throughout this nature playlet that a strong lesson has been demonstrated in man's primeval ancestry.

Each week we shall release a new chapter of 500 feet from "The Living Book of Nature."

These pictures have never been shown at any theatre in the World except at the Strand Theatre, Broadway, New York, where they have had a record-breaking run for four months and will continue to be shown there.

Book at the following Exchanges:

Quality Film Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.
WEST PA. & WEST VA.

Photo Play Exchange, Salt Lake City.
UTAH, COLORADO, WYOMING, NEW MEXICO

Lambson Film Exchange, Seattle, Wash.
OREGON, WASHINGTON, IDAHO, MONTANA.

Monarch Feature Film Co., Kansas City, Mo.
MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, NEBRASKA

Broadway Feature Film Co., Detroit, Mich.
MICHIGAN

Celebrated Players Co., Chicago, Ill.
INDIANA, ILLINOIS

The J. A. Cressey Interests, Dallas, Texas.
TEXAS, OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS, LOUISIANA, ALABAMA, GEORGIA, FLORIDA, TENNESSEE, NORTH AND SOUTH CAROLINA

Standard Film Service Co., Cleveland, Ohio.
OHIO AND KENTUCKY

Zenith Feature Film Co., Minneapolis, Minn.
WISCONSIN, MINNESOTA, NORTH AND SOUTH DAKOTA

Peerless Feature Film Exchange, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.
EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA AND SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY

Metro Film Service Co., Washington, D. C.
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, DELAWARE, MARYLAND

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER"

Written and directed by Ivan Abramson

Now Playing at The PARK THEATRE N.Y.

attracted 39,217 paid admissions in 7 days The normal capacity of the Park Theatre during the same length of time is 33,000

In other words 6,217 more people attended during the first week of "ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER" than the house was built to accommodate

And at prices ranging from 25¢ to $1.00

The Week in Detail

Sunday, Jan. 28	3,751	paid admission
Monday, " 29	4,405	" "
Tuesday, " 30	4,866	" "
Wednesday, " 31	5,610	" "
Thursday, Feb. 1	5,860	" "
Friday, " 2	6,744	" "
Saturday, " 3	7,981	" "
Total	39,217

EVERYDAY INCREASED INTEREST

ENLIGHTMENT PHOTOPLAYS CORP'N.

220 WEST 42nd ST., PHONE BRYANT 7812 SUITE 1005

HENRY J. BROCK, President

NO MORE POWERFUL DRAMA HAS EVER BEEN OFFERED

VICTOR WATSON
Dramatic Editor of William R. Hearst's great New York American

Said:

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER" contains as many thrills and heart throbs as can be crowded into two hours. It ranks with the biggest film hits in history"

H. UNDERHILL
of the New York Tribune

Said:

"The most calloused movie fan could not fail to be impressed. If any mother is too busy to enlighten her daughter she need not fear. Any girl who would dare tread the primrose path after seeing the awful fate that befell Lillian is foolhardy indeed."

NOW SELLING
STATE RIGHTS

ADDRESS
ENLIGHTMENT PHOTOPLAYS CORP'N.
220 WEST 42nd ST., PHONE BRYANT 7812 SUITE 1005
HENRY J. BROCK, President

WILLIAMSON BROTHERS
Inventors, Originators and Exclusive Producers of Submarine Motion Pictures

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT TO FOREIGN BUYERS

THIS CORPORATION TAKES PLEASURE IN ANNOUNCING That Hereafter It Will Manufacture And Market Its Own Productions Exclusively, and that from now on the original "WILLIAMSON SUBMARINE EXPEDITION PICTURES" will be handled by it in all countries of the world, except the United States and possessions. Arrangements have been perfected for the immediate sale of territorial rights and the exploitation of this remarkable production in all foreign countries.

FOREIGN BUYERS ARE INVITED TO COMMUNICATE DIRECT WITH THE SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVES WHOSE TERRITORIES AND NAMES ARE QUOTED BELOW,

RUSSELL E. SHANAHAN
SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE FOR Europe. Address Savoy Hotel, London, England.

STEPHEN T. KING
SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE FOR South and Central America. Address Cecil Hotel, Buenos Aires, South America.

STANLY H. TWIST
SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE FOR Africa, India, Australasia, and the Orient. Address: Care American Consul, Capetown, S. Africa; Bombay, India; Tokio, Japan; or Sydney, Australia.

OR WITH

SUBMARINE FILM CORPORATION
ERNEST SHIPMAN, Manager
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
8th Floor, Longacre Bldg.
NEW YORK CITY, U. S. A.

ART DRAMAS

A half interest in the Ford Motor Company once went begging at $5000—

And it is a great deal easier to secure an Art Dramas exhibiting franchise now, than it will be next month.

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL

presents

DOROTHY BERNARD

AND

JACK SHERRILL

in

"THE ACCOMPLICE"

A novel theme, developed in a strikingly dramatic manner, featuring two star players of proven box-office magnetism.

Produced by William L. Sherrill Feature Corp.

BOOKING AT THESE EXCHANGES

NEW YORK—MODERN FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS, Inc., 729 Seventh Avenue.
BOSTON—BOSTON PHOTOPLAY COMPANY, 205 Pleasant Avenue.
PHILADELPHIA—ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO., 1321 Vine Street.
PITTSBURGH—LIBERTY FILM RENTING CO., 938 Penn Avenue.
DETROIT—TRI-STATE FILM EXCHANGE, 120 Broadway.
CLEVELAND—TRI-STATE FILM EXCHANGE, Sincere Building.
CINCINNATI—TRI-STATE FILM EXCHANGE, 23 Opera Pl.
CHICAGO—ART DRAMAS SERVICE, 207 South Wabash Avenue.
SAN FRANCISCO—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Humboldt Bank Building.
LOS ANGELES—DE LUXE FILM LASKY CORPORATION, Los Angeles Investment Building.
DALLAS—SOUTHERN ART DRAMAS CORPORATION, 1911 Commerce Street.
SALT LAKE CITY—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, 137 East 2nd Street South.
DENVER—PHOTOPLAY EXCHANGE, Welton Street.
KANSAS CITY—STANDARD FILM CORPORATION, 319 Gloyd Building.
ST. LOUIS—STANDARD FILM CORPORATION.
DES MOINES—STANDARD FILM CORPORATION.

116 WEST 39TH STREET NEW YORK CITY

The La Salle Film Co.

offers

LAFCO COMEDIES!

"LAFCO"—What does it mean?

It means clean, wholesome, invigorating comedy—free from the vulgar and the risqué.

It means that the misused custard and the antiquated slap-stick have given way to the humorous pranks of care-free, irresistible youth.

It means a satisfied audience and boosted receipts on "Lafco" day, and—

It means a new, high standard in the comedy market.

THE TEN LAFCO COMEDIES WE HAVE READY FOR SCREENING WILL SUBSTANTIATE ALL OF OUR STATEMENTS

They are single reelers and will be released one each week, through the Independent Exchanges

TERRITORIAL RIGHTS ARE NOW SELLING

STUDIOS:
Sunset and Gower St.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

EXECUTIVE OFFICES:
111 West Monroe Street
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

·LAFCO COMEDIES·

Buyers—Take Notice!

THE WHIP

IS COMPLETED

Eight Reels of Real Thrills

Write or Wire

Paragon Films

924 Longacre Building NEW YORK CITY

WATCH for Further Announcements

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

BECAUSE OF LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

the next issue of the "NEWS" dated February 24th will be published one day late—
A VERY UNUSUAL OCCURRENCE

BECAUSE OF ITS PAST RECORD

the next issue of the "NEWS" dated February 24th will carry more advertising than any of its competitors—
A VERY USUAL OCCURRENCE

THE GREAT

HALL CAINE

MASTERPIECE

THE DEEMSTER

STARRING

DERWENT HALL CAINE

STATE RIGHTS

NOW BEING SOLD

ARROW FILM CORP.

TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK CITY

PHONE BRYANT 7095

K LEINE E DISON S ELIG E SSANAY

ESSANAY WILL PAY half of your newspaper advertising on MAX LINDER COMEDIES. We have decided on a NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN and desire to place that advertising where it will do your box office the most good, RIGHT IN YOUR OWN HOME TOWN PAPER. For particulars get in touch with the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Branch or our special representatives in your city at once.

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E K-E-S-E

Volume XV
Number 6

February 17,
1917

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Wm. A. Johnston, Pres. and Editor; Henry F. Sewall, Vice-Pres.; E. Kendall Gillett, Sec.; H. A. Wyckoff, Treas. & Bus. Mgr.

Chicago Offices, Mgr. T. S. Mead. 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 427 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, 462 Broadway, F-2188.

Subscriptions $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N.B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Entered as Second Class Matter at the New York Post Office.

News of the Week

Industry Answers "News" Appeal for Longer Runs.....1035

Trigger Wants Westerner for National President.....1037

Douglas Fairbanks Signed by Artcraft 1037

"The Whip" Is Sold on State Rights Plan.....1038

Chicago F. I. L. M. Club Replies to Indiana Exhibitor....1039

C. O. Bauman Quits N. Y. M. P. for Trip Around World.....1040

Exhibitors Form Corporation in Northwest 1040

Helping the Exhibitor Increase His Box-Office Receipts.....1041

Utah Picture Men Now on Co-operative Basis.....1042

New Jersey Exhibitors' Ball Is a Festive Occasion.....1043

Tax Committee Continues to Investigate 1043

Griffith Committee Adopts Board's Standards.....1044

Florida "Blue Law" Regime Alarms Picture Men.....1044

Mary Garden Signed by Goldwyn 1071

The Shrinking Public

"WE are facing a shrinking market in pictures." This is the thought expressed recently by a film executive in Chicago; and he cites several very excellent reasons why the public is not going to pictures.

Chief among these is the over-advertising and positively fraudulent advertising of certain weak or distasteful pictures.

Very true.

This is simply patent medicine advertising. It is no great trick to fool the public once.

BUT we all know what has happened to the patent medicine business; and, of course, fraudulent advertising will hang itself. It is distinctly unfortunate for the larger and better element and for pictures as a whole that the business must be dealt these black eyes to the satisfaction of a very few.

This is one reason for the shrinking public, and there are many more.

We could fill this page with them in tabulated order.

But, however patent and plain they are, they are nevertheless minor reasons.

HE real reasons are few and fundamental; and we shall still be lifting ourselves by the bootstraps so long as we struggle against the minor faults and leave the major ones in full action.

There are just two main reasons for a shrinking market in any commodity.

These are, first, the goods themselves; and second, the advertising they get.

So long as the goods are poor or the advertising is poor or both are poor the market for any commodity will shrink or fall far below its true development.

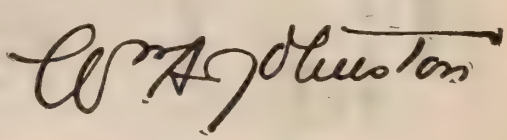
The fundamental fault with pictures is the daily change.

It is a double-barreled disturber.

Not only does it militate against the making of good pictures, but it also prevents the advertising of them.

THE critics who assail the quality of our weekly releases, on one hand; and on the other, those who criticize the advertising of pictures will have to go deeper than the surface.

They will have to go down to the ruinous daily change policy.



This whole problem, like every big economic problem, runs in the inevitable circle.

Longer runs bring more money back to the producer, enabling him to make better pictures, which pictures make possible longer runs.

And into longer runs—and only through longer runs—enters advertising, the one great and necessary factor to stop a shrinking public and bring it up to maximum strength.

It takes patience to correct a fundamental fault.

But one thing is certain—the picture concern which has the patience—and the capital—to do it—will stand high and mighty in the order of things to come.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

Speaking Editorially:

Pots and Kettles

THERE are clean pot and clean kettles, just as there are dirty pots and dirty kettles.

There are reputable and responsible exhibitors just as there are irresponsible ones; there are fair-minded, business-like exchanges just as there are relics of the olden days of bluster and brag.

Such are the thoughts prompted by the "exhibitor versus exchange" wrangle, by listening to the words, bitter and otherwise, that are passing between the rival camps.

Honest theatre owners are suffering because irresponsible exhibitors, while a small minority, are yet numerous enough to dominate the situation. Organization, the only means of salvation for the responsible exhibitor is barred by petty personal politics.

The fair-dealing, sincere exchange manager must pay the penalty for his fellow with less principle. But the exchanges, through their F.I.L.M. Clubs, are organizing along lines that seem destined to curb equally well the tricky exchange and the shady exhibitor.

And in this move, though individual mistakes will occur, and there will be much reshaping of plans and methods, we feel certain that in the end the reputable exhibitor will find a solution of his problems.

A Recipe and a Reason

AN exhibitor, Harry Simon of Demopolis, Alabama, in a letter chock-full of good, wholesome sense gives a recipe for good business for the small-town theatre.

He recommends a mixture carefully stirred of:

1. More reliable and business-like exhibitors.
2. Honesty and service among some exchanges.
3. Cleaner, better but cheaper features.

He gives also a reason for bad business, comprising his objections to present-day pictures:

1. Too much Russian Intrigue.
2. Too many sex plays.
3. Too many complicated plots.

The story, he says is the thing—to entertain the public with, and bring happiness to the box office.

Doing Away with the Misfit

WHO will be the first to make pictures for special appeal, announcing beforehand the type of picture and what kind of theatres it is expected will want to run it, distributed, if you please, through a recognized channel known for fair dealing and dependability?

Who will come forward with pictures that before they even reach the hands of the director who is to create them, are assured "some place to go?"

Such a far-visioned policy would ignore the "deadly movie fan" and the "daily change." Present conditions would have to yield to such a force.

What Minneapolis Wants

AN editor of the Minneapolis Journal is inviting opinions on pictures from the public—and getting many. Pictures are not as popular in Minneapolis as they have been.

The replies are practically as one: give us pictures for the family circle.

What of 1917?

BRITISH theatres have been appealed to by A. Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to carry slides advertising the War Loan.

A striking evidence of the unparalleled power of the picture theatre in influencing the public.

A warning, too, to the legislative bosses in the country who, we are informed, are actually in touch with one another throughout the entire country today consulting as to how they can milk this industry upon a general scale.

And a suggestion—old but ever new to the industry—of how the screen can save itself from its ever active enemies—if we have organization.

To put it plainly and compactly—if we don't have an organized industry before the end of 1917 we won't have an industry by the end of 1917.

American Pictures Abroad

HOMER CROY, the ever-active humorist, sends us a copy of the Melbourne (Australia) Herald of December 9.

Out of the thirty-nine paragraphs on current pictures on the photoplay page, thirty-six have to do with American productions. The remaining three deal each with an English, an Italian, and an Australian picture.

A striking evidence of the hold American pictures have upon other publics.

It interests us, too, to note that the material for paragraphs is gleaned from MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

He's Looking At Us

THE haze of peanut politics which envelopes Times Square is such that we're apt to see each other darkly through darkened glasses.

We now have with us a man with Northwestern binoculars. He's looking us over; and for those who want a new and refreshing viewpoint we recommend the reading of an article, "Escapades of a Rube in New York City," in the January 27 issue of "Amusements," a Minneapolis trade paper, with a close-to-the-heart circulation among the exhibitors of the Northwest.

Interne the Stars

IT is suggested that the entrance of this country into the war may prove of benefit to the picture industry.

It may be possible to interne some of the stars, by some pretext, as a result of which the industry will be able to save several millions in as many months and thereby get a new lease on life.

"One of the best thoughts I have heard!" exclaimed a producer, who was standing by.

Jack-pots and Pictures

"THE business of producing pictures," said a man who had tried it, "even when you sell them successfully, reminds me of a man who won a big jack-pot.

"His friends around the table spoke enviously of his good fortune.

"'You've made a pile,' said they.

"'Yes,' he answered doubtfully, 'but when you take the agony out of the pot I haven't made anything.'"

Industry Answers "News" Appeal for Longer Runs

Fight Against Daily Program Change Becomes a National Impulse—Exhibitors, Distributors and Producers Rally to Cause That Will Save Money and Give Better Pictures

ALL departments of the motion picture industry—exhibitors, distributors and producers, in all sections of the country—have heeded the call for volunteers to the growing host of business men who have been farsighted enough to combat the wasteful daily program change.

The majority of film men, whether they be exhibitors, distributors or producers, realize, however, dimly, that the daily program change is one of the most destructive, and insidious evils at the foundation of the present unprosperous condition of the industry. The fearless ones have come forward, and will continue to come forward. MOTION PICTURE NEWS will continue its campaign vigorously.

W. H. Clune, in a splendid interview, says:

"I am asked to tell why we maintain in our Los Angeles theatres the policy of runs of one week or more for program pictures, and what advantages there are in this method. Like most of the motion picture houses in the early days we changed our bill daily, but the conditions existing today are not at all like those prevailing when pictures were a novelty, and we believe that we have advanced with the times. The fact that we have not followed the practice of daily changes since 1911 speaks for itself.

"In that year the representative of the General Film Company convinced us that there were advantages in running a film two or more days. We first tried the thrice-a-week plan and found it worked so well that we soon went to the twice-a-week system.

Paved the Way

"We also led the way in making a dime our minimum admission when San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma, Denver and other cities were charging a nickel. When Denver managers tried to raise the price to ten cents to save themselves from ruin even their wealthiest patrons raised a great how-d'-y'-do.

"Of course, the problem of the big city and the small town in this matter of time allotted to a show is governed by different conditions, just as the change in the popular attitude toward pictures has changed everywhere. When films were a novelty and people were filled with enthusiasm over the new method of entertainment and couldn't seem to get enough of it, there were obvious advantages in frequent changes. We could count on some patrons coming twice or more a week. The business has now settled down to a solid basis and is occupying the same ground in the public mind as the older theatre offerings.

"In the smaller towns today the old conditions still prevail in a way. The people there are not surfeited with entertainment enterprises of various kinds and perhaps a more frequent change entices them out oftener than city people can be tempted to come out.

"It is obvious that in the city the frequent change of bill sacrifices the value of that mouth-to-mouth advertising which draws the money out of pockets as nothing else will do. The improvement in the quality of pictures has been such that by this method we can get thousands to see those of high standard who would be lost to us if we took them off for the mere sake of announcing a new bill.

"Under the plan of one week runs we find that we can build up a consistent, dependable clientele as we could not do otherwise. If we were merely picking our audiences up off the street and competing with other theatres for a floating patronage we should no doubt favor the daily change. But the solid following that we get by our method far outweighs in value anything that we could get by the daily shift.

> ¶ "I think Motion Picture News is absolutely the incomparable trade newspaper of the business."
> Julian Johnston,
> Editor,
> Photoplay Magazine.

"There can hardly be any disputing that the practice of frequent changes, with the demand it creates for supply from the mere quantity standpoint, encourages cheap and hasty production and injures the whole film business, both that of the producer and the exhibitor. Those of us who want to insure the permanency and evolution to higher standards of the motion picture game ought to be far-sighted enough not to follow any practice that contributes to the detriment of the line in which our money is invested. We know of no argument for a return to the daily change."

Long Runs in Omaha

The daily change and long-run situation in the territory supplied by Omaha, Neb., may be summed up in these words:

In towns and cities of 25,000 or over a two-day run is the rule, in smaller towns it is the exeception; a more than two-day run is the exeception in all places in the territory.

It might also be added that many exhibitors in the smaller towns believe in the longer run and more and more are coming to believe in it. Competition enters into the case in the instance of small town exhibitors who believe in the longer run but are afraid to abandon the daily change because their competitors would get the business.

The ideal situation was pictured by T. W. Bryant of the Gem theatre in Oelwein, Ia., a town of 7,137 people, who was in Omaha the other day. "Miss R. C. Ingersoll is the manager of the Strand theatre," he said. "We realized the value of the longer run, got together and talked it over, and as a result we have two-day runs instead of the daily change and are making more money than we ever made before."

A deplorable situation is that in only rare instances do the exhibitors get together as did Miss Ingersoll and Exhibitor Bryant. They are more like Manager Hugo Biltz of the Hipp theatre, Omaha, who said: "I believe the more I change the better. There are mighty few pictures worth three days in my house, and most of the big pictures are worth two days only at the most." Manager Biltz does not place most emphasis on the patrons who return from day to day.

Manager Thomas of the Strand, Omaha's largest motion picture theatre, has views opposite to those of Manager Biltz. "The longer run is a certainty of the near future," he said, "I practice it all the time. I would rather run a good picture all week than to run pictures of poorer quality for two days. The situation is resolving itself into the old "quality versus quantity" fight and I and every other exhibitor who has the future of the business at heart are on the side of quality.

"Give us the quality and we will make much more money on the longer runs."

Reasons given by exhibitors in the Omaha territory for long runs are these, and they are the best because they affect the box office:

Cheaper Cost

The advertising costs less and is more effective because you can concentrate the total on one subject for plenty of advertising, instead of skimping along with a small amount from day to day.

The expressage is less.

The film rental is less.

The longer run sentiment in the middle west is growing. Among the pioneers is R. E. Falkenburg of the Majestic theatre, Lexington, Neb., who in a town of 7,300 has given two-day runs for the last four months, and at the end of that time declares he is making more money and has built up a steadier patronage than ever before.

All of the theatres in Iowa City, a city of 12,000, recently started two-day runs. In Oskaloosa, a town of 10,000, two-day runs are now the rule.

William Hemsky of the Crystal theatre, Cedar Rapids, Ia., a town of 40,000, is a strong exponent of three-day runs. He runs Brady-Mades the first three days, and a Metro the last three days, running one of them an extra day. He declares he is making more money than ever before.

"We hear a whole lot of talk about longer runs and the exhibitors are constantly saying they are going to start them, but they don't," is the report from road men. H. F. Kennedy of Broken Bow, Neb., a town of 2,500, recently declared he was going to start longer runs in the Lyric theatre.

Keefe Brothers of the Star theatre, Hampton, Ia., are afraid, they say, that their competitor will get all the business if they start longer runs. They insist they believe in longer runs and believe they will mean more money if they are started—but they declare, also, they are afraid their competitor, three blocks away, with his daily change will attract the crowds.

Fisher and Bemis of the Empress, Grand Island, Neb., are among the new followers of the two-day runs, showing Brady-Made and Fox pictures two days each.

L. G. Biox of the Elite theatre, Nelson, Neb., a town of 978, says an exhibitor with the only theatre in the town is foolish to run daily changes. He is the only exhibitor in his town and he runs two features each week, giving them two days each, for two days, one early in the week and the other late; he runs programs. His house is closed on Sundays. "I make money, more than I ever did with a daily change," he declared when in Omaha the other day. "I advise every exhibitor in my circumstances to do as I am doing. I think he is foolish if he doesn't." Exhibitor Biox says he could make just as much by running three features two days each, but he has a certain number of patrons who like a mixture of a program. So far as is known, he is the only exhibitor in a town of less than 1000 in the Omaha territory who does not have a daily change—except those exhibitors who open their houses only twice or three times a week.

Washington, D. C.

In Washington, D. C., long runs have always been a feature of Tom Moore's houses—the Strand and Garden. In fact, Tom Moore was the first who dared to cut away from the daily change of program, and that was at a time when the exhibitor believed there were not enough patrons of the motion pictures to hold a show longer than one day.

These houses hold plays from three days to a week, according to the strength, or, rather, drawing capacity, of the play.

Harry Crandall, who manages the Crandall theatre in the downtown district and the Savoy, Apollo, and Avenue Grand in three distinct resident sections of Washington, D. C., has this to say of the change of program at his houses: "In the downtown district pictures can always run from two to four days, and only something exceptional can run longer. I find the two-day engagement best, even though I bring the play back within the next week."

C. R. Milliman, manager of the local Bluebird Photoplay exchange, Washington, D. C., says of the daily change of program: "With few exceptions, there is small reason for a daily change of program in a city like Washington. Even in many of the towns a two-days' run can be made with better profit to the exhibitor in many cases. In Washington each theatre or neighborhood may be calculated to cover about 10,000 people in the residential sections and much more than that in the downtown sections. The latter houses have long since abandoned the daily change, so it is only with the residential house we have to deal. As these are only open in the evenings, with at most three shows, and with a capacity of 400 to 1,000, it will be noted what a small part of the possible patronage is reached in one evening's showing of a film."

New York City

On February 1 two large uptown New York houses began a six-day Paramount run. The houses, the Olympia and the Adelphia, the former at 107th street and Broadway and the latter at Eighty-ninth street and Broadway, have been using Paramount Pictures for some time. For the past few months each house has run three days on one Paramount Picture and two days on the other. On and after February 1 each one of these houses will run three days on each picture.

San Diego, Cal.

In San Diego, Cal., F. N. Howe of the Pickwick, says: "I think the daily change is a thing of the past. We once tried out a four-changes-a-week plan, but soon dropped it, but now have two features a week, with once in a while a feature on for a solid week. I don't think the producers can build enough good features to warrant a daily change, anyway. Without a daily change a manager can be more careful in his selection of pictures and can afford to play better stuff. The editorials in Motion Picture News on this subject are on the right line."

Kent G. Bush of the Broadway and Superba: "There is every argument against the daily change, as I view it, especially in a city of 90,000, like San Diego. When you count up the cost of your paper, your newspaper publicity, your expressage and all, the figures are too much to warrant us in trying out the daily change. We would rather have longer runs than we do now; even a week with some features would not be too long. You can say that we are absolutely against the daily change, and do not know any good reason that can be advanced in its favor here."

Chicago

The Rose theatre, one of Chicago's loop motion picture houses, contrary to its former practice of daily change of program, is running "The Darling of Paris" Fox five-reel feature, for a full week. Harry Miller, manager of this house, is very much pleased with the results, and in all probability will continue the practice of weekly change of program.

Philadelphia

George Dembow, manager of the Philadelphia Fox Exchanges, says:

"Wherever exhibitors have doubled on Fox features they have increased profits."

Keith's Alleghany theatre is one house which increased its contract on Fox features from three day to six with about thirty per cent. increase of business.

The American theatre of Pottsville, Pa., an 800 seated house, manager by T. G. Brennerman, has changed from a one day to two on Fox releases. This he has tried for six weeks with good profits.

The Philadelphia office now holds the record on whole week Fox contracts having five to its credit, all in Philadelphia

The Arcadia is the latest Quaker City house to contract for a whole week of Fox features. The others are the Alleghany (Keiths), Broadway, Colonial and Nixon.

Edwin Meeker, manager of the World exchange, Philadelphia, thoroughly endorses the stand of Motion Picture News against daily change, and says his office is doing all in its power to spread this doctrine. Mr. Meeker being a new man in the district, this department is in charge of Allen May, an old time theatre man himself, long city representative for World.

Two theatres have already tried the plan with thus far excellent results. Others are coming in line through Mr. May's efforts.

One is the Logan Auditorium, Wm. Crozier, manager, who tried the two day plan a few weeks on World-Brady-made pictures, and took a yearly contract for two days for each feature.

William Greenfield, the Imperial, 60th and Walnut streets, tried the experiment of two days on pictures by contracting for one day, then booking those he wished for two days or more. Being successful through several months, he then tried the plan for a two day run for two weeks, the prices being raised also from 10 to 15 cents on special features.

Now Mr. Greenfield has taken out a year's contract for two days on each World-Brady-made he runs.

Mr. Kraupa finds that three or at utmost four is the largest profitable run for his houses even on the biggest releases.

West Virginia Exhibitors Will Fight Censor Bill

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of West Virginia was organized at a meeting of prominent motion picture exhibitors in the Mercantile Club rooms last week. The organization was effected for the purpose of fighting the bill now pending in the state legislature which would provide for the establishment of a board of censors in West Virginia.

Two mass meetings were held Sunday afternoon, one at the Rex and the other at the Court theatre. Prominent attorneys and men familiar with the motion-picture business addressed the meetings. A committee composed of Charles A. Feinler, Rube Robinson and John McAleer was named to start a campaign to show the public the fallacy of censorship.

Objection is made to the bill on the ground that a board of censors is not needed in West Virginia, inasmuch as practically every film shown here has been censored by either the Ohio, Pennsylvania or National board. It is said that the added expense of censorship here would drive many good pictures from this field.

The following officers of the new association have been named: President, Charles A. Feinler, of the Court; vice-president, George Zeppides, of the Rex; secretary, Rube Robinson, and treasurer, M. A. Seibert, Moundsville.

An executive committee was elected to carry on the fight, consisting of John McAleer, Universal Film Exchange, chairman; Chas. A. Feinler and Reuben Robinson.

Trigger Wants Westerner to Head Exhibitors' League

"Man with Ability to Demand Confidence of League Needed," Says New Yorker in Denying That He Seeks Office — Prefers to "Remain a Worker in the Ranks"

"IN my opinion the next president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America should be an exhibitor from the West," declares Samuel H. Trigger, presidetn of New York Local No. 1, and National Vice-President from New York State. Coming from a New Yorker, a prominent figure in League politics since the inception of the organization, the statement gains unusual importance as a forecast of the sentiment of exhibitors at the next convention in Chicago.

Calling for a man who could "sustain, strengthen and demand the confidence of the League," Mr. Trigger goes on to deny that he is a candidate for the office of president, and requests those who are boosting for him to "forget it, as I would much prefer to remain a worker in the ranks."

Joseph Hopp, of Chicago, and Frank Rembusch, of Indiana, are at present the most prominently mentioned Westerners, though neither has been induced to signify his willingness to become a candidate for the national office. The sentiment in favor of a successor to the Ochs regime, which crystallized at the recent Albany fiasco, first chose Samuel Trigger because of the energetic efforts he has put forth in the League's cause since its organization.

Mr. Trigger's exclusive statement to a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS last week follows:

"I noticed in your issue of February 10th a statement to the effect that I was out for the presidency of the National League. Will you please deny such statement, as you know the reasons why I would not be a candidate for that office.

"In my opinion the president chosen at our next convention should be an exhibitor from the West, a man thoroughly acquainted with all the branches of the industry, and one with organization ability and force to sustain, strengthen and demand the confidence of the League, a man balanced well, and truly square, to whom difficulties and obstacles are simply things to be surmounted. Such a man could get every big man in the business to support the League with his money and influence.

"There are scores of such exhibitors. I am frank to admit that I am lacking in a number of the above qualifications. So, will you kindly tell those doing the boosting, to FORGET IT, as I would much prefer to remain a WORKER IN THE RANKS, and reiterate that under no circumstances will I become a candidate for League presidency."

Mammoth Handling "Cabiria"

D'Annunzio's stupendous spectacle, "Cabiria," has been secured for New York State by the Mammoth Film Corporation, and is already bringing in a fine list of bookings, demonstrating that this big feature is still in great demand. It furnishes, aside from its dramatic value and sensational spectacle, an authentic insight into the times of ancient Rome, affording in that way to scholars of Latin and Roman history a fine opportunity for field work in these studies.

Ban on "Garden of Knowledge"

Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who recently granted Robert Kane's petition for an injunction restraining other parties from showing alleged "dupes" of "The Garden of Knowledge," went a step further when attorneys for Weiss and Beck appeared before him last week in Chicago to continue the hearings. Judge Landis, after accepting an invitation to view the picture, expressed his opinion succinctly by issuing an injunction against the showing of the picture anywhere by any one. The justice is quoted as condemning the feature as a crude display of the nude, and adding, "You can throw it in the lake for all I care, but don't show it anywhere."

New York as Tom Hamlin of Minneapolis Sees It

Northwest Publisher Has Pertinent Views on Real and Near Trade Publications Following New York Visit

TOM HAMLIN—it may have been "Thomas" once, but to the exhibitors of the Northwest it's just "Tom"—has written his observations of the film situation in New York in characteristic style for his publication, "Amusements." Under the heading "Escapades of a Rube in New York City," Editor Hamlin gives his impressions in breezy fashion, with particular attention paid to the trade paper situation. Coming from a trade editor so well known for the intimate basis on which he stands with his readers, the following excerpts, under the head "The Trade Journals," will be especially interesting:

Then I visited with Mr. Vandivert of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS and he introduced me to William A. Johnston, the publisher.

Although I formerly thought I was almost as good an editor as Johnston I was most favorably impressed with him and I like him as well as I like his editorials, which means a whole lot.

Then I visited with Mr. Chalmers and Mr. Wylie of the old established Moving Picture World. They have a real publication there also and are so firmly established with a decent policy that they can and do consistently refuse advertising of pictures that would harm the industry.

A young feller and an old feller started a paper here some time ago and called it the "Exhibitors' Trade Review."

Ochs and Bush. They are two pretty nice fellars I guess and treated me as often as I treat—which is seldom.

They registered keen rage and then reluctant forgiveness about an article I wrote about the escapades of various officials of the exhibitors' league in a previous issue of AMUSEMENTS.

It's an awful rut to get in, boys. I mean the ideas that some persons gather, viz.—that the sun, moon and stars revolve about them so that all exhibitors might not perish.

They declare that there is a mint of money "behind" them. I wonder if it will ever catch up to them? If it does it may enfold them and strangle them.

Then what becomes of their frantic protestations that they can lose a few thousand dollars every week and still be "independent"?

Expensive wall paper is not always the most artistic. It is temporarily attractive, but its wearing qualities may be nil.

When a few men are elected to formulate plans to benefit ALL the exhibitors and then use their offices instead to promote a private publishing enterprise they are going outside their jurisdiction.

They may be good exhibitors, but, as publishers, they are (in labor parlance) "scabbing on the job."

And, by the way, when any representative of this "Exhibitors' Trade Review" is sent up into the Northwest under the guise of helping the industry his primary object is to try and secure subscriptions to a new publication which he personally is vitally and financially interested in.

And regardless of what one or two misguided officers of the Exhibitors' League may think, I believe that I know whereof I speak and I will not knowingly let the rank and file of the exhibitors be buncoed.

After careful investigation I can cheerfully recommend the Moving Picture World and the MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Between them they manage to reach about SEVENTY per cent. of all the exhibitors in the country.

AMUSEMENTS reaches ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. of the exhibitors in twelve states exclusively.

We want real exhibitors' conventions in the future but NOT expositions which drain everybody and cause exhibitors to neglect the convention which should do them the most good.

They do not want a few exhibitors whom they have trusted in office to pay themselves $1,450 each or to start publications at the expense of the rank and file.

Wid Gunning, publisher of "Wids," is a real live wire. He showed me a lot of courtesy which is a code of ethics unwritten but firmly established among actual newspaper men.

I always admired his publication for the evident truth it contained and for the valuable advice it gave to the exhibitors. He is actually running an "independent" publication for the exhibitors. * * *

At the same time practically all of these busy men were temporarily stampeded and willingly allowed their pockets to be picked when a few exhibitors got out a fancy-covered magazine looking like the Ladies' Home Journal and spread it along Broadway under their noses from Forty-second street to Sixty-third street.

Fairbanks Joins Artcraft

Douglas Fairbanks, who was recently employed by the Fine Arts-Triangle Company, has been signed for a year's contract by the Artcraft Film Corporation, according to sources whose reliability is above question.

It is understood that Fairbanks will receive the salary of $15,000 a week.

An announcement in detail will be published in MOTION PICTURE NEWS next week.

"The Whip" to Be Sold on State Rights Plan

Well-Known Melodrama Is First Open Market Feature Produced by Maurice Tourneur—Play Was Long Popular in England and America

"THE Whip," the first picture made under the direction of Maurice Tourneur to be released on the State rights plan will be ready for the inspection of buyers in a few days.

"The Whip," was written by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton and produced originally at the famous Drury Lane Theatre, London, and proved a sensational success at once, packing the London auditorium for the greater part of two years. Brought to this country by William A. Brady, it was presented here at the Hammerstein Manhattan Opera House, drawing houses that taxed the capacity of the Thirty-Fourth Street Theatre in New York for a longer continuous period than had been the fortune of any play, native or foreign.

Because of its massive effects, presentation of "The Whip" in any but the largest cities and on the largest stages was possible. Despite these conditions, Manager Brady, it will be recalled, organized a road production and while "The Whip" was playing to its overflowing audiences in New York via the original company and production, a touring organization was playing extended engagements in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco and other cities.

The picture was finished but a fortnight ago and the work of cutting and titling is still in progress. The taking of the feature took Director Tourneur and his organization to many sections of the country. The railroad wreck, for instance, was pictured just south of Greenwood, Maryland, along the lines of the Southern Railroad, permission for the staging and photography of the realism with the use of the two fully equipped passenger trains and other railroad minutes having been courteously granted by the southern and northern executives of the line. Four hundred and twenty-eight scenes are included in the picture entirely, the units requiring eight reels. Director Tourneur selected the cast, principals and auxiliaries, and superintended all the vast human and chattel material needed in the staging.

Interested buyers can get further information by applying to the Paragon Films, Inc., 924 Longacre Building, New York City.

Paula Blackton Pictures Open New Field to Art

The invitation showing of Paula Blackton's "Country Life Stories," at the Rialto theatre last Friday morning, introduced almost a new art in motion pictures. Possibly each one of the stories told has been equaled by some producing company in the past, but never before has a series of stories appeared with this universal theme of appeal so flawlessly worked out and so happily received.

These pictures are the product of the combined genius of Commodore and Mrs. Blackton, of Vitagraph. The idea of creating these most unusual and entirely different stories in which the ideal country life should be pictured as a background for wholesome entertainment is Mrs. Blackton's. The genius of direction evident in every foot of the film must presumably be credited to Mr. Blackton. The titling, which was a noticeably important part of the telling of these fascinating stories must have required many weeks of consideration.

The first of these pictures to be released for public showing has been making a big hit at the Rialto this week. This is "The Diary of a Puppy." It is expected the entire series will be released through Vitagraph, and Mrs. Blackton will devote the profits sure to come of this fine effort to future good works of a similar kind. A review of the pictures will be found on another page.

"Honor System" Postponed

The opening performance at the Lyric of R. A. Walsh's ten-reel cinemelodrama, "The Honor System," has been postponed by William Fox from February 6 to the afternoon of Monday, February 12.

National Board Members Appear at Censor Hearing

Cranston Brenton and Miss Mary Gray Peck, representing the National Board of Review, have gone to Missouri to appear before the committee considering the censorship bill introduced into the legislature of that state.

Hearings began in Jefferson City the latter part of last week.

Joseph Miles

La Salle Co. Comedy Producers Announce Promise

The La Salle Film Company, of Chicago, has been in existence four months, but its incorporators deferred making any announcement to the trade until a sufficient amount of footage had been produced. The company now has on hand eight high-class comedies of one-reel length. These will be released through independent exchanges on a one-a-week basis. The pictures will be known as "Lafco Comedies."

The company has secured a fully equipped studio in Los Angeles, and a large cast of competent comedians is now working under Director M. De La Parelle. One one-reel comedy a week is being produced.

The incorporators of the La Salle Film Company are four prominent Chicago business men. They are F. L. Bateman, president; George W. Leighton, vice-president; Frank J. Seng, treasurer, and Phil A. Grau, secretary. These men contend that there is a demand for high-class comedy free from slap-stick, vulgarity, or smut. They believe that the La Salle product will satisfy this demand, and yet have so many humorous situations and laughable acting that the resultant laughs will come with gatling-gun rapidity.

B. F. Lewis, General Manager of the company, has opened offices in the Harris Trust Building, Chicago.

Fairbanks Guest of Press Men

Wednesday evening Douglas Fairbanks was entertained by the Brooklyn Press Club, as an invited guest of William H. Kemble, who controls the local Triangle theatre and exchange.

He told them of his studio trials and tribulations, answered several of the club member's inquiries, and concluded his address with "I'd rather climb the side of your club house than try and amuse you with a speech. Since leaving the speaking drama for the screen I find that my voice is getting somewhat shaky."

Gruelle Signed by Bray

Johnny B. Gruelle, who attained fame some few years ago when he won the thousand-dollar prize offered by the New York Herald for the best comic, has been engaged by the Bray Studios, Inc., to animate his Quacky Doodles series for Paramount patrons. They will, therefore, appear at regular intervals, together with Colonel Heeza Liar and Bobby Bumps and his famous dog, Figo.

The premier appearance of the Quacky Doodles family on the Paramount-Bray Pictographs will be February 17.

Lillian Walker Makes Plans Clear

Lillian Walker requests publication for a statement that she has not signed a new Vitagraph contract, but that she is merely appearing in Vitagraph two-reel pictures temporarily at the personal request of Benjamin B. Hampton. In the meanwhile, Miss Walker is completing negotiations with another producer and the signing of a long-term contract with the new company will be announced shortly.

Chicago F.I.L.M. Club Replies to Indiana Exhibitor

States That the Writer of the Protesting Letter Published in News of February 3 Does Not Understand Circumstances—Upbraids Him for Holding Metro Film for Payment

THE letter from H. L. O'Donnell, of Washington, Ind., which was published in the February 3 issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, protesting against the activities of the Chicago F. I. L. M. Club, has brought an answering protest from that organization in the form of a letter in which it is strongly stated that Mr. O'Donnell has a mistaken impression of the real purpose of the club.

The letter follows:

Permit me, on behalf of the F. I. L. M. Club of Chicago and the Hoy Bureau, to reply to the communication of Mr. H. L. O'Donnell, of the O'Donnell Eskridge Amusement Company at Washington, Ind., which appears in your issue of February 3d. A careful perusal of this letter convinces one that an altogether erroneous conception of the F. I. L. M. Club idea has penetrated to Washington, Indiana.

Mr. O'Donnell seems from his personal experiences to have obtained the impression that the F. I. L. M. Club and its Central Bureau, The Hoy Service, was founded in a spirit of malice, and with the avowed intention of threatening the rights of honest Exhibitors. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The F. I. L. M. Club, which was originated in Chicago and which at the present time is finding its counterpart in many of the most important cities throughout the nation, was born in a spirit of the utmost fairness toward Exhibitor and Exchange alike.

The men in Chicago who have been the guiding influence in the parent organization from the outset, with consistent and unyielding purpose, have adhered to the highest standards of integrity and just dealing, not only in regard to controversies between Exchanges and Exhibitors, but also in regard to controversies between the Exchanges themselves. It has been a cardinal principle of the F. I. L. M. Club to consider as faithfully a complaint submitted by an Exhibitor against an Exchange as a complaint submitted by an Exchange against an Exhibitor.

It must of course be readily conceded that the fairest and most conscientious organization in existence may, during the course of numberless matters of varied character coming before it for consideration, make mistakes and perhaps adopt policies which after they have been submitted to fair-minded criticism, be subject to modification and improvement.

With this thought in mind the F. I. L. M. Club has always welcomed honest criticism. Mr. O'Donnell, however, in his somewhat vindictive letter, sets forth facts which raise a very serious question. Admitting that Mr. O'Donnell is an Exhibitor of the highest integrity and assuming, for the sake of argument, that the Metro Film Service was actually indebted to the O'Donnell Eskridge Amusement Company in the amount claimed, it nevertheless follows that the methods taken by the Exhibitor in Washington, Indiana, to secure payment of the bill which he claimed was due him was not only a method illegal in its character, but high handed and far reaching in its consequences.

I wish to quote only two sentences from the article in which the F. I. L. M. Club is attacked. Says Mr. O'Donnell: "We could not, for the amount involved, afford to go to Chicago or New York and enter into a law suit with the Metro Film Company, therefore we did the only thing left to us. We held the last films they sent us, notifying them that they could have them whenever they paid us the amount due us."

In other words, Mr. O'Donnell constituted himself both judge and jury regarding the merits of his claim and then proceeded to retain another person's property in order to effect a collection of the assumed bill.

If the F. I. L. M. Club or its Credit Bureau admitted the justice of such procedure as was followed by the O'Donnell Eskridge Amusement Company, it would mean that any Exhibitor could with impunity collect any unjust bill he might claim. Surely Mr. O'Donnell will agree that, while he himself may be highly regarded, that nevertheless there are many Exhibitors who are thoroughly irresponsible and dishonest. The Exhibitor who has a just complaint should not be afraid to obtain proper consideration by presenting his claim to the F. I. L. M. Club of this city. Mr. O'Donnell was asked by wire and by letter to release the films detained and to refer his claim to the Central Bureau, but he preferred to take the matter into his own hands. He cannot now complain if other Exchanges fearing similar action on his part seek to protect themselves before they do business with him.

The contention was never made that the O'Donnell Eskridge Amusement Company was, as Mr. O'Donnell puts it, "crooked" nor has the Hoy Service at any time or place blacklisted his theatre, as Mr. O'Donnell terms it, nor has his personal character in any manner been maligned.

As far as the Hoy Service knows, Mr. O'Donnell is a very estimable gentleman. The writer does not know whether the bill which Mr. O'Donnell claims was just or not, but the writer does know that the method which Mr. O'Donnell used was most unfair, illegal, and most heartily to be condemned by Exhibitor and Exchange alike. The quarrel is not with Mr. O'Donnell's object, but with his method.

In conclusion, the writer feels that it is only fair to Mr. Friedman, author of the article in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS of January 20, to state that this article was not originally intended for publication but that its purpose was to present salient facts for the information of your publication. Mr. Friedman's sole reason for withdrawing his name from his original communication was that he did not wish to appear seeking publicity for himself or company on the strength of his office.

Those familiar with the development of the F. I. L. M. Clubs and their methods will vouch for the sincerity and integrity of the men who have the F. I. L. M. Club interests most at heart. I speak for all concerned in making the statement that fair and just criticism will never be resented but that such criticism will always be received in a mood of thoughtful deliberation and honest consideration.

Very truly yours,
H. W. DRUCKER,
Secretary Film Club of Chicago.

HAVE YOU A GROUCH?

In any controversies which arise concerning the film industry in any of its departments it is the desire of Motion Picture News to ventilate both sides of the issue thoroughly and fairly.

If you feel grouchy over some injustice, and if it will help your cause to air your grievance in these columns —write us.

We want both sides—all sides.

There are no "barred zones." This is an open forum.

Indiana F-I-L-M Club Holds Meeting

The Film Exchange managers of the city of Indianapolis met at the Severin Hotel Friday, January 26, at 6 P. M. for the purpose of organizing the Indiana Film Managers' Association. H. W. Drucker of the F-I-L-M Club of Chicago was present, and helped in the formation of the organization. The purpose of the club is to cooperate with the film companies in other cities to eliminate such evils in connection with the renting of the films as come up in the every day life of film exchanges.

Those present included W. A. Ratz of the K-E-S-E Company, D. W. Van de Walker of the General Film Company, W. H. Engleman of the Mutual, Sam Sax of the Blue Bird Photo Play Company, K. O. Landis of the World Film Company and J. I. Schnitzer of the Central Film Service Company, representing the Universal films. The managers are assured of the united backing of the manufacturers in their work through the organization.

Bauman Quits N.Y.M.P. for Trip 'Round World

C. O. Bauman, of Kessel and Bauman, Sells Out Interests and Leaves for Pacific Coast, First Stop on 'Round-the-World Jaunt

C. O. BAUMAN, of Kessel and Bauman, has withdrawn from the New York Motion Picture Corporation, and has started for the Pacific coast, his first stop on a trip around the world.

A. Kessel, president of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, in an interview for MOTION PICTURE NEWS, stated that Mr. Bauman's resignation came as a result of his desire to get out of the business for a year or more in order to take a rest.

"Mr. Bauman has had the wanderlust pretty badly lately," said Mr. Kessel, "and he is going to take advantage of his year's retirement by seeing something of the world. He is now on his way to the Pacific coast, where he will stay for several weeks. From Los Angeles he intends going to San Francisco and booking passage on one of the Honolulu steamers. From Honolulu he may go on to Japan and China, although his itinerary was not settled at all definitely when he left, his intentions not being definite."

When asked concerning Mr. Bauman's future business plans, Mr. Kessel said: "A year is a long while to make forecasts in this business, although I don't believe just now that Mr. Bauman expects to come back with us.

"My brother and I will conduct the affairs of the New York Motion Picture Corporation as formerly. Mr. Bauman sold out his entire interests.

Exhibitors Form Corporation in Northwest

Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest Has Been Formed to Fight Unclean Pictures—Co-operation Is Urged

FROM the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest, a newly formed organization, the following letter has been sent to the exchanges of Minneapolis:

DEAR SIR:

As Secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest, I feel called upon to drop you these few lines.

After a conference with Mayor Van Lear concerning certain pictures being exhibited in the City, this organization went on record as being opposed to any and all vice pictures, or pictures with titles that are a disgrace to the motion picture industry.

We are certain that every exchange will feel that this organization is working in the right direction to eliminate censorship by going on record as being opposed to such pictures as have been shown in four or five theatres of this City during the past month. It seems strange to us that the exchanges cannot realize that the time for putting out pictures of that sort has passed and that the public is disapproving of motion picture theatres more and more as the result of that class of pictures being exhibited. We hope that the exchanges will realize that we are trying to bring back the picture patrons by giving them good, clean and wholesome films and we are almost certain that the exchanges handling such subjects will be more than pleased to co-operate with this Association in this effort to regain the confidence of the public.

While practically every exhibitor in the Twin Cities is a member of this organization, still there are a few that have not united with us, and some of them think that they can put on pictures of questionable merit and get away with it. This Association has gone on record as being opposed in a body to every picture which has received the least bit of criticism, and our reason for writing you at this time, is because the legislature is now in session and unless we all work together we are liable to be put out of business, the innocent suffering for the guilty. You know as well as we do that there are already two bills in the legislature concerning motion pictures and when you get State Censorship you will find that you will pay for all the laxness you are now displaying.

As a last appeal this Association requests you to work with us toward eliminating that class of pictures which have caused such articles as have appeared in the daily papers during the last few weeks, and to prevent such articles appearing again.

We will make no more appeals to the exchanges. We are trying to do our part and if the exchanges feel that they can afford to have a State Censor Board, all we can say is—"Try it and find out what you will get."

Trusting to hear from you on this matter, we remain,

Very truly yours,
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' CORPORATION OF THE NORTHWEST, By WILLIAM KOENIG,
Secretary.

As stated on the letterhead of the new organization the officers are:

Officers: James Gilosky, president; C. W. Gates, vice-president; William Koenig, secretary; C. E. Van Duzee, treasurer. Executive Committee: D. G. Rodgers, Minneapolis, L. V. Calvert, Minneapolis; Frank E. Nemee, St. Cloud; J. B. Reisman, St. Paul; H. P. Greene, Minneapolis. Vice-presidents, Jay E. Sherwood, Madison, Wis.; J. E. Hipple, Pierre, S. D.; A. J. Kavanaugh, Grand Forks; Anton Gilles, Breckenridge, Minn.; J. E. Boyle, Dubuque, Ia.

Waterville, Not Rockland

The article on page 956 of last week's NEWS concerning a new theatre in Maine, for the erection of which the Maine Theatres, Inc., have secured a lease on the property owned by Ex-Governor Haines, will be erected at Waterville, not Rockland, and will be up-to-date in every particular.

"Come to Omaha," Cry of New Reel Fellows' Club

Half a hundred exhibitors and exchange men of Omaha, Neb., at a meeting last week, organized the Reel Fellows Club, the social branch of the Omaha Screen Club, and laid the preliminary plans for a Motion Picture Week in Omaha early in the spring, the first event of its kind ever held in that city. C. W. Taylor, manager of the Geenral Film Co.'s local branch, was elected temporary chairman, and Robert Shirley, exhibitor at the Muse theatre, was elected temporary secretary.

The plan is to invite every exhibitor in the territory supplied by Omaha, including all of Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota, and parts of Kansas and Missouri, to come to Omaha for a big ball, for special shows and to be the guests of the local movie men. The object is to exchange ideas between the exhibitors, and to give the out-of-town exhibitors an opportunity to see the latest released as well as to show the visitors a grand old time. The "Movie Week" will probably be in March or early in April.

Film Magnates in Jacksonville Guests at Dinner

Heads of the visiting producing companies from New York to Jacksonville were given a dinner at the Hotel Mason, Tuesday night, by Mayor J. E. T. Bowden's Movie Committee, composed of a number of prominent capitalists of this city.

Among those who were present were: B. A. Rolfe, president of the Rolfe-Columbia Photoplayers; Julius Steger, president of Triumph Films Company; Joseph Golden, president of Crystal Films; J. M. Burroughs, vice-president of Regal Company; J. O. Walch, president of the United States Film Company; C. A. (Doc) Willat, manager of production of the Technicolor Company; Victor Moore, of Klever Pictures, and George M. Cohan, now producing his stage successes through Artcraft.

New Elite Company Settles on Staten Island

Staten Island has been invaded by another new film company. Announcement was made last week that Elite Photography, Inc., a recently formed organization, has consummated a deal for the purchase of the Beaver Film Corporation's studio at Dongan Hills.

The plant is one of the most up to date in the country. W. Lindsey Gordon, president of the Elite company, announces production has already begun. Arrangements are being made with leading exchanges to handle Elite subjects.

The first photoplay to be produced will be a two-reel feature from the pen of Harry S. Percy.

Correction

In the advertisement of the Sheriott Pictures Corporation, which appeared on page 855 in last week's issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS the New York address was printed incorrectly. It should have been 218 West 42d street, intead of 220 as was stated.

Helping the Exhibitor Increase His Box Office Receipts

The Second of a Series of Dollars and Cents Articles by H. C. Holah, Film Editor of the Chicago Herald

MR. EXHIBITOR, are you as owner or manager of the neighborhood theatre giving your problems the consideration they demand?

You are deeply concerned and desirous of pleasing the motion-picture-going public. To that end you have built a magnificent theatre, representing the most advanced theories of theatre design, and the outlay of a sum of money. It is impressive throughout. The appointments are all that could be desired. Decorations have been carefully planned, and you have expended time and care in the selecting of equipment. Possibly you have bubbling fountains, a tasteful color scheme, uniformed attendants and other impressive institutions. All of these convey an atmosphere of welcome to your patrons. Every possible phase in your effort to please the public has been carefully thought out before the doors of your theatre have been thrown open.

The mechanical end of your business has been the object of solicitude on your part. You have secured skilled operators. You have purchased the most expensive projection equipment. All of these things constitute and convey to your public the subtle difference between a quality house and a careless house.

PRIMARILY, you are striving to "sell" the motion-picture-going public the superexcellence of your house. But regardless of time and money you have expended in housing and projecting your films, you have neglected the most important item of all—the selection of film subjects that will give full value to your patrons for the admission price they pay. They come to be amused and entertained. The class of pictures you show determines whether or not you are satisfying the majority of your patrons. Think this over.

When you have secured a picture that appeals to the majority of people in your neighborhood, tell them about it. Advertise it. Play it up strong. Book it for more than one day. Inform every man, woman and child in your neighborhood that you will be showing a film that you believe will satisfy them. Whatever type of advertising you use to accomplish these results you can bank on getting the surprise of your life. Results are what count. They can only be obtained by the proper judicious expenditure of money for advertising.

The ever-present menace and evil of the daily changes can only be eradicated by advertising. You admit that this daily change basis for the booking of films is one of the most harmful phases of your business. Yet, because of your lethargy you are permitting the motion picture fan to force you into a daily change. The biggest factor in the industry is not the motion picture fan. It is the larger number of those people who do not attend your show constantly—the group of people known as the motion-picture-going public. Your advertising should be directed at these people.

THESE suggestions may not solve the problem for your individual conditions. Possibly your neighborhood theatre cannot apply these ideas. But regardless of how different the conditions are in your territory, a careful analysis will reveal the fact that conditions are fundamentally the same as those set forth above.

THE THIRD ARTICLE OF MR. HOLAH'S SERIES WILL DEAL WITH CO-OPERATION AS IT CAN AND SHOULD EXIST BETWEEN THE EXHIBITOR AND THE EXCHANGE MAN.

The manufacturers and exchange men alone cannot regulate or change the custom of the daily change. This is only possible through co-operation with the exhibitor.

The manufacturer meets the demand of the exhibitor—the exhibitor is the mouthpiece of his motion-picture-going public.

The exhibitor can demand and the manufacturer will give as much variety in subject as the tastes of the motion-picture-going public dictate. In other words, to do away with the daily change, the exhibitor must first of all sway his market and educate them to a point where they do not demand a constant succession of varied films.

The "Shrinking Market" one of the bugaboos of the exhibitor of to-day is due primarily to the fact that the exhibitor does not cultivate "intensively" the neighborhood theatre market. The fact that pictures are being shown for one day only destroys the possibility of advertising successfully for that particular film. By the time many prospective patrons hear of the presence of the picture it has left your theatre. Consequently there is no opportunity for the public to get acquainted with the places where the films they want to see will be shown. As a result of the fact that the "fan" attends a theatre regardless of what is being shown, and that the public does not attend unless they have been first "sold" on a picture, the neighborhood theatre seldom has a capacity house.

LOOK over your house to-night. Is it as full as it should be? Are you carrying a capacity house? If not, look to this, one of the most essential points demanded by the motion-picture-going public. Between you, as an exhibitor, and the public, as your market, lie the films you book. Study the likes and dislikes of your patrons. Analyze the things that appeal to them—and see that they get them.

Summing it all up, these things are self-evident. First, that the neighborhood theatre owner or manager must acquaint himself with local conditions. Second, that using this knowledge of the territory from which he draws his patronage, in booking his films, he should select what appeals to the largest number. Third, if the neighborhood theatre is owned or controlled by an outsider (someone not familiar with the local field) he should allow the local manager full authority in handling his business.

The final success or failure of a neighborhood theatre rests solely with the man in charge. The manager is the custodian of the key that turns the lock of failure or success. His control of a theatre determines whether or not the theatre is a moneymaker or a "white elephant."

The development of your market in your territory requires a consideration of the people's taste—their amusement—their ambitions—their interest—their likes and dislikes, and then, with all these factors, select a picture that you believe will appeal to the largest number.

Boston Complains of Heavy Over-production

H. Rifkin, of the Eastern Feature Film Company, Boston, Mass., who was a visitor in New York last week, told a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS that the supply of film of all classes exceeds the demand in that territory to such an extent that exhibitors are compelled to run programs of three hours and more.

Boston, one of the first territories to adopt the twice-weekly change, has been brought face to face with the over-production problem. Films are a glut on the market. Vaudeville houses are showing twelve reels of film and six vaudeville acts for twenty-five cents. Picture houses run as many as ten and twelve reels for from ten to twenty-five cents.

There are twenty-five exchanges in the Boston territory. Exhibitors are now forced to book large programs because of the competition. Mr. Rifkin stated that few, if any, exhibitors are making money.

Pennsylvania Censor Deficit

The general deficiency bill for the various departments of the Pennsylvania State government was presented to the 1917 legislature last week, and it shows that the State Board of Censors, generally believed to be self-sustaining because of the fees collected for the examination of films, has a deficiency for the last two years of $687.

Utah Picture Men Now on Co-operative Basis

Screen Club Organized and Will Be Inaugurated by Ball—Theatre Heads, Exhibitors, Meet—Progressive Spirit Bred

A SPIRIT of better understanding among the various branches of the film business from exchanges to exhibitors, in Utah, was inaugurated as a result of several get-together meetings held last week.

First of all the Amusement Managers' Association of Utah, was organized with the following officers:

Frank J. Newman, manager of Pantages theatre, president; M. H. Hanauer, Broadway theatre, vice-president; E. Mehesy, Mehesy theatre, treasurer, and Geo. E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, secretary, and H. E. Ellison, general manager of the Swanson theatres, chairman of the board of trustees which is made up of the officers heretofore named. Incorporation papers are to be filed Monday, and following a general call sent out by the secretary to every exhibitor and theatre manager in Utah, it is proposed to make the official roster more representative of the state at large as the entire board as it now stands is made up of Salt Lake men.

On the heels of the action of the theatre managers the managers of the eleven exchanges represented here met and discussed the general situation, they, too, being seized with the spirit of organization. Each exchangeman is now in communication with his head office with the object in view of securing permission to organize for the benefit of all concerned. As soon as all have been heard from it is expected that they, too, will form an organization.

In the meantime both bodies are holding semi-weekly luncheons. These meetings are conducive of better understandings, some good-natured chaff and incidentally progress.

This not being enough, both organizations got together Monday at their luncheon and organized the Utah Screen Club, announcing that the first thing on the program would be a big ball at the auditorium with several well-known screen stars to lead the grand march. It was also promised that among those present would be the headliners on the current bills at the Orpheum, Pantages, Salt Lake theatre. Simon Bamberger, the newly inaugurated Democratic Governor, and the members of the legislature now in session here may also be among those present. Everyone is now planning stunts for this occasion.

The lineup to date includes a grand automobile parade headed by a band and platoon of police; a bill-posters competition; booths for the different brands of pictures; an ambitious souvenir program, etc.

The Screen Club Committees now at work are:

General Committee — Frank Newman, Geo. E. Carpenter, Louis Marcus, W. P. Moran, and Messrs. Frazer, Cannon and Hanauer.

Finance Committee — Frank Newman, George Mayne, W. P. Moran, Ben Ketchum.

Advertising Committee—Frank Newman, Geo. E. Carpenter, H. E. Ellison, E. P. Levy.

Music Committee—Frank Newman, in sole charge.

Refreshment Committee—Finance Committee takes charge.

Tickets and Distribution—Ben Ketchum.

Rental Committee—Mr. Cannon.

Present indications are that the committees will work in conjunction with the Denver Screen Club which is to hold its ball, from latest advices, February 3. An effort is being made to secure the same motion picture stars for both events.

"The Adventurer," Best Seller, to Be Filmed

Herbert Blaché, president of the U. S. Amusement Corporation, announces he has secured the screen rights to Upton Sinclair's well-known novel, "The Adventurer," which was one of the most successful novels of a few years ago.

Marion Swayne, who has starred in a number of photoplays, has been engaged especially to portray the central figure of the story. According to the announcement she is precisely the type called for by the story, her attractive and sympathetic personality lending themselves admirably to the characterization. "The Adventurer," like most of Mr. Sinclair's stories, is not only intensely dramatic but it also conveys an all-important message.

Supporting Miss Swayne in this production will appear Pell Trenton, Kirk Brown, who appeared in the last U. S. Amusement Corporations art drama, "Whoso Findeth a Wife," and Yoland Doquette. The picture is being produced under the direction of Madame Blaché at the U. S. Amusement Corporation's studios in Fort Lee.

Amsterdam and Carson Buy Philadelphia Exchange

B. Amsterdam and L. Carson of Philadelphia, have purchased from Sol Lesser and Leon Netter the Philadelphia exchange of the Masterpiece Film Attractions including the Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia rights to the pictures now owned by Masterpiece in this territory namely, "Cabiria," "Neptune's Daughters," "Purity" and "The Spoilers."

Mr. Netter will remain in New York devoting his entire time to purchasing states rights pictures for the Masterpiece concern including the Philadelphia office.

Mr. Amsterdam will himself manage the Philadelphia branch. T. G. Flynn the present manager will return to New York.

Mr. Amsterdam will still retain his interest in the White Film Company at 1237 Vine street, which handles features as well as service reels.

L. Moyer, formerly of Universal and more recently with V-L-S-E will be the Wilkes-Barre representative for the Masterpiece Film Attractions. Many sales have been reported.

Theatre Managers Organize in Newark, N. J.

The Theatre Managers' Association of Newark and Essex County became a permanent organization at a meeting held in the Strand theatre last Friday evening. The membership includes practically all the larger Newark playhouses. The meeting succeeded a conference earlier in the week when it was decided by practically the same interests to abandon card tacking, window card display and all forms of "lithographing," and depend for advertising entirely upon the billboards and newspapers. The new rule will go into effect this week.

The newly organized managers' association is the first of its kind in the State and is affiliated with the United Managers' Protective Association in the New York theatre building, New York City.

It is intended to have membership limited to managers of theatres with a seating capacity of 800 and more. The officers elected are: Thomas W. Miner, Miner's theatre, president; R. J. Crowley, Proctor's Palace theatre, vice-president; Morris Schlesinger, Broad Street theatre, treasurer. Among others in the organization are Mrs. A. C. Webbe, Goodwin theatre; William Putnam, Paramount theatre; John B. McNally, Strand theatre; George Jacobs, Paramount theatre; Louis J. Fosse, Keeny theatre, and Dr. A. Tunison, Lyric theatre.

Cleo Madison with Stern Co.

Cleo Madison is not to be the star of Bernstein Film Productions, it was learned this week, when it became known that Louis Jacobs, who came to the coast several months ago to serve as business manager of the Stern Film Company, has made a contract with Miss Madison, for a long period, and will star her in a number of productions of five, six or seven reels.

Isadore Bernstein is now negotiating with several other actresses, and work of preparing the studio on Stephenson avenue for production continues.

Mr. Jacobs declined to make any statements other than to verify the making of the contract, and that he is now negotiating for a studio site and motion picture rights for a number of the best stories by well-known authors.

Fight Against Censor Bill on in Utah

Salt Lake exhibitors have banded solidly together to fight the censorship bill introduced in the Utah Legislature by Senator Chez. At a meeting of the Utah Theatre Managers' Association the proposed measure came in for heated condemnation and at the conclusion of the meeting the managers effected the organization of a permanent organization.

Letters calling for the support of the exhibitors have been sent broadcast over the state.

Senator Chez's resolution in part provides for the Superintendent of Public Instruction to examine all films, and that he receive two dollars per reel for such work.

New Jersey Exhibitors' Ball Is a Festive Occasion

Prominent Citizens of Newark, Well-Known Stars, Join with New Jersey Exhibitors in Making Annual Ball an Event to Be Remembered—Mayor and Anita Stewart Lead March

MORE than 7,000 residents of Newark and environs enthusiastically approved of the New Jersey State Exhibitors' annual ball and reception, held in Krueger's auditorium, Thursday night.

Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, with Anita Stewart, led the grand march. Socially and financially the event was an achievement. Exhibitors, exchangeman, screen stars, operators, musicians and playhouse patrons became acquainted.

New Jersey exhibitors have given to Newark its biggest society event of the Winter season. Unlike many other society events the spirit of real democracy prevailed. The boxes were occupied by those well-known in public life, in society or prominent in motion picture industry. Mayor Raymond, F. C. Breidenbach, president of the Police Board; Henry Kalish, City Attorney; William Kimberley, secretary to the mayor, and Frank Donnelly, police sergeant, were the center of attraction in one box; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew entertained a number of friends in another, while Herman F. Jans, president of the New Jersey Metro Film Service, and friends occupied an adjoining box. Representatives of Universal, Bluebird, Fox and Vitagraph all had boxes where they received and entertained during the evening.

F. E. Samuels, secretary of the committee on arrangements, to whom too much credit for the success of the occasion cannot be given, declared there were 104 representatives of twenty different film companies present. By actual enumeration more than 600 New Jersey exhibitors were in attendance. However, the interest of the large majority of the audience was centered in the promise that numerous screen favorites would be presented during the evening's entertainment.

In this respect too the exhibitors made good their promise. Among the first to arrive was Florence La Badie unanimously chosen by the committee on arrangements to act as chairman of the judges selected to pass upon the fifty contestants in the beauty and popularity contest. Anita Stewart arrived just before midnight in time to fulfill her promise to act as the companion to Mayor Raymond in the grand march. Leah Baird received a splendid reception when she was presented as was Florence Turner, Violet Mersereau, Alice Brady and Paul Panzer. Little Madge Evans and Katherine and Jane Lee received ovations none the less cordial than their older associates. Following the granch march and contest the exhibitors tendered the screen stars a luncheon at which Dr. Charles Hespe, president of the league, presided.

The beauty and popularity affair, terminated with the unanimous selection by the judges of seventeen year old Hortense Berger of Jersey City, as the girl to be given a year's training and schooling by the Thansouser Company, and then, if mutually satisfied, offered a contract.

A carefully arranged program consisting of novelty dancing acts and exceptional music was a source of variety appreciated by the large audience. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gray of the Vitagraph, were pleasing features of this program. Prof. MacDonald and Marguerite Cadell of the Grand Central Palace, consented to add to a program. The First Infantry Band and orchestra, in charge of Prof. R. Schaaf, furnished the music.

The executive committee having in charge the details of the reception and ball were, J. G. Crawford, Chas. H. Hespe and Philip Bornstein, joint general chairmen; Philip Bornstein, treasurer; W. C. Smith, B. F. Porter, chairmen lighting committee; L. E. Atwater and F. C. Cross, chairmen reception committee; F. E. Samuels, chairman program; David Hennessy, chairman ticket; Max Le Bow, chairman wardrobe; F. H. Mertens, chairman floor; Philip Bornstein, chairman printing; Sam Spedon, chairman publicity and press; Marguerite Courtot, chairman ladies' reception; H. J. Rockafeller, master of ceremonies; H. A. Austerman, chairman decoration and Martin Singer, chairman entertainment.

Associated with Miss La Badie on the Popularity Board were Louis Blumenthal, G. A. Falzer and Walter Meier, all of Newark.

Tax Committee Continues to Investigate

No Startling Revelations Are Disclosed at Last Hearing—Printed List of Forty-six Questions Sent to Important Companies

THE tax investigating committee, closed its third session at the Murray Hill Hotel last Friday afternoon after hearing the testimony of Theodore Wharton, of Wharton, Inc.; William Wright, manager of the Kalem Company; Samuel L. Rothapfel, of the Rialto theatre; W. W. Hodkinson, president of the Triangle Distribution; R. A. Rowland, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation, and Abraham Finch, assistant treasurer of the Astra Film Company, a contributory concern of Pathe.

The Wheeler committee is leaving no stone unturned in its efforts to ascertain which division of the industry can most justly bear a tax burden. In order to exhaust their subject as speedily as possible, the committee has sent out mimeographed copies of forty-six questions to all manufacturers and distributors.

It is safe to say that if the forty-six questions are answered completely and accurately the Albany committee will have in its possession more real facts concerning actual film conditions than has ever before been known by any one.

It is also safe to say that if the reluctance some of the witnesses have shown in the hearings is reflected in the written answers to the questions, the committee will know just about as much about the "inside workings" as they knew before they left Albany.

Theodore Wharton made an excellent witness. He did not evade his questioners; he talked directly to the point; he gave facts and figures; and he brought his yearly balance sheet along.

On the serials, "Patria," "Mysteries of Myra," "Beatrice Fairfax" and the feature "The Black Stork," he testified that his concern's net profits for the past year were $45,229. He mentioned the losses to which film producers are subjected and illustrated his point with an interesting example.

William Wright, general manager of the Kalem Company, was another witness on Wednesday. He declared that his company could not be taxed justly and to convince the investigators of the hazards which abound in this industry he pointed out that Kalem lost $100,000 last year on a single serial.

W. W. Hodkinson, president of the Triangle Distributing Corporation, spoke of the large surplus of water in the ordinary motion picture company's stock, which was there for trading and merger purposes. He firmly believed, he said, that no producer could be taxed justifiably.

S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto theatre, obliged the committee by relating his life's story in full, from the time he was a bartender in Pennsylvania, and made his first effort, shortly thereafter, to introduce clean pictures in a mining community, to the position he now occupies as managing director of one of the finest picture theatres in the world.

Richard A. Rowland and Abraham Finch added further weight to the data already secured by the committee pointing to the growing belief that the industry is not taxable.

As in previous hearings, the Eastman Company, of Rochester, received occasional attention. In view of the constant recurrence of the raw stock topic in the hearings, there is a likelihood that the committee will conduct, or has already conducted, certain investigations not far from Rochester, N. Y.

Seattle Theatre Burns

One dead, one missing and eight injured was the casualty list resulting from a fire which destroyed the Grand Opera House, Seattle, Wash., a short time ago.

The first alarm was turned in early in the morning. Firemen were working on the roof of the building when it crashed in burying several and killing Assistant Fire Chief Gilham. Guests in an adjoining hotel were forced to leave the building.

The walls of the theatre are still standing.

The theatre was owned by a syndicate in which the controlling interest was held by the Amos Brown estate. The loss on the building is estimated at $45,000.

Griffith Committee Adopts Board's Standards

National Board of Review's Rules of Censoring Have Been Accepted by National Association for "Censorship from Within" Campaign

AT a recent meeting of the producers' branch of the National Association the conclusion was reached that it would be impossible for the producing companies to formulate any standards which would prove satisfactory, as the discussion brought out clearly the fact that the formulation of standards of judgment in motion pictures from the realm of morals could not be reduced to such rules, but that rather general principles were necessary which must be interpreted on the basis of particular pictures under review.

It was accordingly voted by the National Association that as the National Board had formulated standards through its nine years' work, and as all producing companies in the National Association were submitting their films regularly for review by the National Board, that the standards of the National Board be adopted officially by the National Association.

As a matter of fact they have always been in force and have been adopted officially by the individual producing companies, but had never been adopted by the association.

The standards of the National Board accordingly were adopted at the meeting of the association on January 19, and the Secretary of the Association, F. H. Elliott, was instructed to obtain the standards of the National Board from the National Board's office and send them out from the National Association with a letter from the association to all directors working for companies having membership in the association.

A special edition of the Standards of the National Board will be received from the press within the next day or two, and will be supplied to Mr. Elliott as secretary of the association for mailing.

At this same meeting the Secretary of the National Board transmitted to the members of the National Association the fact that the Board of Directors of the National Board of Review had carried on an extensive investigation to determine public opinion regarding the presentation of the nude on the motion picture screen; that this investigation had led the National Board to believe that its experiment in refusing to pass either for or against a feature picture containing the nude and placing it before communities for local expression of opinion had been effective, and that on the basis of this investigation the National Board had adopted as a present policy not to pass any more pictures in which the nude female figure was portrayed; that this position of the National Board would be incorporated in the new standards of the board.

Following this announcement the members of the National Association present voted that the action of the National Board be made the action of the National Association, and that all the members of the association should agree not to permit the directors in their studios to stage any more scenes in which the nude was portrayed.

Florida "Blue Law" Regime Alarms Picture Men

Arrest of Two Exhibitors Giving Sabbath Shows Thought Prelude to Legislation Against All Sunday Performances

FLORIDA is now feeling the effect of "Blue Laws" enforcements, which may result in the passage of a bill through the next legislature which meets in June curtailing the opening of motion picture theatres on Sunday. The arrest on January 14, of A. A. Tano, manager and owner of the Rialto theatre and Carl Kettler, proprietor of the Bijou theatre at West Palm Beach, charged with violation of the Sunday closing laws, is having a widespread effect on theatre owners and managers in other cities of the State, and seems to be an effort on the part of some to make the matter serious enough to bring it to the attention of the legislature.

As Florida is one of the Winter Playgrounds of the World, the effect of Sunday closing of theatres may do untold damage to the managers and owners of play houses. Some persons declare the theatre managers have brought it upon themselves by showing too many risque pictures, and sex problem productions, but the feeling of the theatregoers throughout the United States which appears general against these kind of pictures is also being felt in the State.

The Exhibitors League of Florida meets in Tampa during Gaspirrila Week, the annual carnival in that city, on February 5 to 7 inclusive, and will take up the matter in its entirety and try and find some solution to the problem facing the theatre managers and owners.

In connection with the arrest of the two exhibitors in West Palm Beach, the following statement was issued by them: "We have been advised by our attorneys, that it is legal for us to operate our houses on Sunday, and we think this statement must be true for the motion picture houses all over the State, in Jacksonville, as well as Key West, Miami and Tampa and other cities, which operate on Sunday. We have not shown any pictures at our theatres on Sunday which were not just as religious and moral in their tone and character as any sermon which could be delivered from the pulpit of a church.

We realize that our city depends entirely upon our tourist trade, which consists of ladies and gentlemen of the highest intellectual moral order, who are used to such harmless forms of amusement and naturally look for the same here."

The Tropical Sun, published in West Palm Beach, issued an extra on the arrest of the theatre managers, and dedicated their columns to the "Simple Simons of that city who are trying to make people do what they don't want to do."

Censorship for Missouri Imminent

A bill introduced to the forty-ninth general assembly of Missouri by Senator McClintic, if passed, will create a board of censors to be composed of three members, one woman and two men. One of the men will be chairman, and receive an annual salary of $3,000. The woman will be known as vice-chairman, and will get $2,500 a year, and the man will be secretary and will be reimbursed to the extent of $2,400 a year. In addition to this, there will be a chief clerk, with an annual salary of $1,800; two assistant clerks, one at $1,500 and the other at $1,200; two stenographers at $1,000 each and two at $720 each; a chief inspector at $1,500, and three assistant inspectors at $1,400; one operator at $1,400, two at $1,200 each, and one at $1,000; an assistant operator or patcher at $600, and another patcher at $480; and two messengers at $720 each. This totals up $28,860, and the board may spend $5,000 more, if necessary, for employees. The act further says that each member of the board will be allowed all expenses of whatsoever nature incurred by them in carrying out the provisions of the act.

The bill gives the board the usual power to inspect and cast out all films, stereopticon slides, banners, posters and advertising matter that may, in its opinion, tend to debase, offend or corrupt morals. A dollar for each set of slides and for each reel of a thousand feet of film will be the fee imposed.

The bill saddles an annual inspection fee of $25 on shows of less than 250 seating capacity; $50 on houses with capacity between 250 and 500; $75 between 500 and 750, and $100 on all theatres seating over 750

Passage of Censor Bill Looked for in Arkansas

Within the next week the Censorship bill now pending before the Arkansas Legislature is expected to be reached for passage. Advance indications are that unless active measures are taken against it the measure will become law.

At its introduction over two weeks ago a number of exhibitors flocked to Little Rock to fight the measure. Following a survey of the situation one of the leading picture men said that a compromise bill, fairly satisfactory to the picture interests, would go through the legislature.

The bill under consideration provides for the appointment of a censor commission of three members. Every motion picture intended for exhibition must be submitted for their inspection. A fee of two dollars a reel is charged for the examination, one-half of the proceeds going to the State Treasurer for a general school fund, and the other half going to defray the expenses of the commission and pay salaries.

Exhibition of an unapproved picture is punishable on first offence with a fine not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars. For each subsequent offence the fine may be from one hundred to two hundred dollars.

Arkansas exhibitors should unite for speedy and energetic action.

WITH THE EXHIBITOR

Winnipeg Exhibitors, Faced with Legislation, Organize

The motion picture exhibitors of the city of Winnipeg held a meeting Thursday, January 25, in the office of the Dominion theatre, Winnipeg, in regard to forming an exhibitors' association.

The following officers were elected: Mr. Hyde, manager of the Crescent theatre, president; Mr. Kershaw, manager of Wonderland theatre, vice-president; Mr. Jones, manager of Columbia theatre, treasurer; Mr. Wilson, manager of Lyceum theatre, secretary.

It has been decided that the name of the Association be "The Provincial Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association," and the following fees have been decided upon: all theatres with a seating capacity of over 500, $1.00 per month; all theatres with a seating capacity under 500, 50 cents a month; all theatres in the Province outside of Winnipeg, 50 cents per month.

It is rumored in this city that the Government is going to try and put into effect a bill which will mean the censoring of all newspaper ads. There is also talk of another bill going through which will give the Government power to recall any film showing in any theatre, providing a petition for its withdrawal is signed by twenty-five people.

St. Louis Association Takes in More New Members

Judging from the reports that have come to this office, the Theatre Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, of St. Louis, is one of the most active and enterprising organizations of the kind in this country.

The weekly bulletin, which is issued invariably, contains records of interesting and energetic action on the part of the association's members, as well as a healthily growing list of new members. At the last meeting, the following new members were admitted: F. X. Ehrlen, Mollie Mathews, W. Savage, L. B. Stoddard, O. R. McGiven, E. H. Howe, S. Bowman, F. W. Gebhardt, Sam Sherman. Many prominent people have spoken before the Association on questions vital to the film industry.

Minimum Admission Fixed by Toronto Houses

By common consent the following theatres in Toronto: Odeon, Arena, Kum-C, Criterion, King's Playhouse, Temple and Astor, have agreed to make their minimum admission price 10 cents on Saturday evenings, children under 10 years of age 5 cents, but all over the ten year dead line to pay the whole 10 cents with war tax.

This mutual agreement is laid to the strength of the Exhibitors' Association in Toronto, and is expected to be followed by more and a farther spread action.

Does Not Exactly Dare Us To Print This!

New Shining Star Found Among Our Correspondents Who Calls a Spade a Spade and Asks Your Help

THE following snappy letter doesn't have to issue a "dare" for admittance to our columns. As letters go, it is in the "star" class and could "hold us up" to any reasonable terms as exclusive distributors.

From the Princess theatre, Odebolt, Iowa, comes this thunderbolt at us:

Editor Motion Picture News:

Have noticed from reading your good magazine that you like to get the viewpoint of different cogs in the film industry, so here goes for the viewpoint of a small town exhibitor in the wilds of Iowa.

We have noted with concern and disgust the ever increasing salaries being paid to "stars," "would be" and "has been," and we wonder how soon the limit will be reached.

How long are the producers going to play into the hands of these film parasites, and do you think said producers will ever see the light? Why must the producers try and hog all the stars on the market, when by so doing they are cutting their own throats? Not only that, but the whole film industry is being threatened. Huge salaries mean, of course, huge rentals, and huge rentals mean that the small theatres must eventually close.

When the small theatre passes, then you can bank on it that the film industry as a whole is passing. It stands to reason that film rental from lots of small theatres amounts to more than the rental from a few big ones. Distribution is the backbone to success in the manufacturing of motion pictures and if there are no theatres to distribute to, how are the manufactures going to come out? They'll come out, but at the wrong end.

Two years ago we paid $30 a week film service. At the present time we average twice that much, not counting any special films we may run from time to time. At that we don't think we are paying the exchanges too much, for we know the exchanges are being literally "held up" by "stars'" salaries. What are you going to do?

If things keep up, we'll be very much in favor of a nation-wide boycott of big star films. Boycotts seem to work very nicely in real life, so why not in reel life?

We don't care to work our heads off for the doubtful honor of running Clara, Mary, "Doug." and Sir Charles. True, they are drawing cards, but not enough so to overcome the huge rentals asked for said stars. How these "Higher-Ups" must laugh (behind the scenes) the way manufacturers, distributors and exhibitors fall for their nice, little hold-up game.

And now poor, underpaid Douglas must have $15,000 per as his little bit for doing some more tumbling and looking happy (we don't see how he can help looking happy, the money he is handed). Douglas serves the ultimatum of producing his own pictures. If only he is allowed to do just that. Then he can worry about production, distribution, etc. If he makes $50,000 a week we won't begrudge him a cent, but we know and "Doug" knows that such a thing is not apt to happen.

Personally, we like acrobatics and the "Habit of Happiness," also we don't blame the young man in question for getting all he can, but we do blame the producer for falling for such "stuff."

The best remedy for the present high salaries is for the recipients of these salaries to produce their own pictures and market them themselves. They'll find out that the picture industry is not dependent for success on a few stars; also, they'll wonder how they ever got by asking $10,000 a week in "ye good old days."

We are not "daring" you to publish this letter, and don't care whether you do or not. We wish you would go after the high salaries evil though, so that the trade would take steps to put things where they belong. As the future of motion pictures depends to a great extent on the lessening of huge salaries, huge salaries should be given some "pitiless publicity."

Gay Outing for Exhibitors of Philadelphia

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Philadelphia, comprising the independent exhibitors, has completed arrangements for a supper and dance to be given on the Bingham Hotel roof, February 15.

The supper will be confined to the exhibitors and their friends. Some 300 couples, many from New York, have already signified their intentions by buying tickets. The ball will be open to the public.

The Bingham House Orchestra will furnish the music. Many attractions are promised by the league. Prominent stars of filmdom are expected. Little Emmy Gorman of "Little Orphan" fame will be on hand. Original souvenirs will be distributed. Invitations have been sent to the mayor and other city officials.

A big publicity campaign is being waged by the committee, consisting of B. Amsterdam, treasurer, S. Blatt, J. Conway, A. J. Fischer, John Redmond and Benjamin Shindler.

Five hundred attractive posters have been placed in prominent hotels, theatres and other conspicuous places around the city and big advertisements are being run in the leading daily papers.

Efficiency Expert Replies to Criticism

Interesting Letter Predicts that Big Combine of International Scope Will Furnish Perfect Picture Programs at Low Cost

IN our issue of February 3 we published an answer to previous statements by an efficiency man which stirred up wide comment. We have found many persons since who have disagreed with this efficiency man, quite naturally, because he said the whole industry was wrong and among other things said the "fifteen cent price" was not a popular one. He suggested some very obvious "remedies" to those who know what ought to be, but he left entirely to the imagination of the reader how these remedies were to come about. He now clears up what he really meant in a long letter, extracts from which we publish herewith: EDITOR MOTION PICTURE NEWS:

"Permit me to reply to the letter . . . which disputes my statements.

"I will first explain what I mean by the business being corralled at a low rental rate. When the Paramount service started it furnished a high grade, dependable, continuous service . . . going a long way, perhaps, to making the Strand theatre, New York City . . . Now had the Paramount . . . made a price which would fit the gross receipts of all classes of theatres in all sizes of cities and towns . . . there would not have been the opportunity for others to break in.

"My deduction now is this: When the big organization (which I am credibly informed is now in process of formation) comes into full operation, with the right man at its head, the pictures will be the ones wanted, and the price will admit of no argument, and so the number of prints used will be so great that the profit to the manufacturers will be assured and the immensity of the whole enterprise will make formidable opposition impossible. I know this remark will raise a storm of protest, but please take note of the principles underlying the statement, namely, that the very best pictures will be provided and at the lowest price. What more can the exhibitor ask?"

Mr. Heal then calls attention to the fact that we now speak of "Charlie Chaplin" pictures where we used to say "Keystone"; that our stars have no standing abroad, in most cases, and that the International world market is the ultimate basis for figuring the full possibilities of the business; therefore stars are not to be a necessary feature of the big combine he says is coming.

He states that from facts widely published three years ago there were more changes in theatre ownerships then than there were theatres; and he says he has confidential statistics of relative receipts, capacity, etc., of foreign theatres as compared to American theatres, that would open our eyes if we knew them.

He suggests a business doctor would adjust the number of theatres in each community to a statistically indicated correct number relative to population.

"As to the salaries of stars and directors (reverting now to his actual words) . . . It is a blot on the intelligence of the picture manufacturers of America that they should allow themselves to be 'buncoed' into paying such extravagant salaries as some actors are reputed to receive . . . Theatrical business is down and out today, and yet the motion picture men step in and offer theatrical people salaries and terms of which they never dreamed in their time of greatest prosperity. Is it any wonder that the writer and others who have helped to 'Keep the Ball Rolling' have spoken very plainly about the film magnates and their lack of 'calibre?' I here reiterate, what I have said before, and I don't think the reform is coming from the exhibiting end.

"I don't think there are enough real, big exhibitors in the business."

Then Mr. Heal recommends a big, brainy, man at the head of a "general staff" combining theatrical instinct, intimate knowledge of the industry and executive ability amounting to genius, to direct the one or at most two big factions which shall control by operating on equitable grounds "observing the law as to restrictive business."

We have read this letter carefully, and while it frankly has substance and statistical facts behind it, we believe Mr. Heal lacks that "intimate knowledge of the industry" which enables him to speak with the authority he insists his statistical knowledge gives him. Will not somebody undertake to explain to Mr. Heal the reasons why an immense combine, even with the right man to lead, could not stifle all competition?

EXHIBITOR PERSONALS

ILLINOIS.—Arthur: Willard Fleming recently purchased the Garden theatre of this town from Frank Stanley and took charge at once. Mr. Fleming is not a stranger to the motion picture industry, having acted in the capacity of assistant to Mr. Stanley some years ago when motion pictures were first introduced in Arthur.

KANSAS.—Augusta: Mrs. Jack Reinbold accompanied her husband to Kansas City last week, as usual, to select pictures for the Idle Hour at Augusta, Kan. Mrs. Reinbold does most of the selecting; in fact, frequently making trips by herself for the purpose. She has been markedly successful. Augusta is a mining town, and she seems to hit off its tastes well. Billie Burke has made a hit there, and has been one of the most successful bookings made by the Idle Hour.

LOUISIANA.—New Orleans: Ernest Boehringer, general manager of the Boehringer Amusement Company, has returned from New York. Leon Grandjean, his publicity chief, directed the houses during his absence.

MARYLAND.—Baltimore: Mr. Arthur B. Price has taken over the management of the Mt. Royal theatre, North avenue near Linden street, Baltimore. He will manage the house in conjunction with the Rialto, of which he has been manager since its opening. The Mt. Royal is owned by the Mt. Royal Amusement Company and the Rialto by the Linden Amusement Company. While the corporations are separate, the interests in them are very close; in fact, Mr. Myer Fox is president of both organizations. Mr. Price opened the Mt. Royal over a year ago, after having taken a very active interest in its construction, and he held the management until a few weeks ago, since which time he has devoted his attention to the Rialto exclusively. On Monday, January 29th, however, the Mt. Royal was again placed in Mr. Price's hands, and he will take up the office as manager of both theatres. The Mt. Royal will be conducted along the lines as laid down by Mr. Price when he had the house before. He began the management by booking a couple of serials and it has been decided to have the days on which they will be shown known as serial days.

Mr. Frank H. Durkee has added another motion picture theatre to his line of houses, having taken over the New Elektra at 1039-1041 North Gay street, Baltimore. The lease of the theatre was secured from the United Theatre Company, Ltd., the former lessees. Mr. Durkee takes possession at once and is now conducting the performances. The consideration is withheld. The New Elektra has a seating capacity of about 350, and it is the purpose of the new management to present the leading photoplay features. In addition to the New Elektra, Mr. Durkee controls the Palace at Gay and Hoffman streets, the Plaza, Broadway, near Gay street, the Colonial, Gay street near Washington, and the theatre connected with the Community Building at Hamilton, a suburb of Baltimore.

MISSOURI.—St. Louis: The Pageant theatre, 5851 Delmar boulevard, which was built a year and a half ago by the Pageant Amusement Company, headed by A. E. Morelock, has been sold to Charles and Spyros Skouras, and Gustave Gallanis, who will operate the house under the name of the Marathon Amusement Company. The Skouras brothers, who already operate two theatres in St. Louis—the Lafayette, at Lafayette and Jefferson avenues, and the Olympia, at Fifteenth and Market streets—are known as very progressive and successful theatre managers, and they will continue the same policy of big features, which was maintained by Manager Morelock, who has been the active manager of the Pageant since its erection. This theatre is one of the largest and best equipped motion picture houses in the city, and enjoys a very profitable and high class patronage. The house seats 1,400 persons.

NEW YORK CITY: An escalator is the newest thing in motion picture theatre construction. Charles Steiner's $225,000 house, which is being built on East Houston street, will boast one.

VIRGINIA.—Lynchburg: Charles M. Casey, owner of the Belvedere theatre of this city, has leased the Isis theatre, which for the past year has been under the control of Jake Wells. The Isis is reputed to be the finest exclusive photoplay theatre in Virginia and Mr. Wells is said to have spent $2,500 in improvements when he assumed charge. Mr. Casey proposes to run the house as a five cent theatre and offer Metro, Paramount, World and Greater Vitagraph productions with the special Mary Pickford and Clara Kimball Young features on the daily change plan.

QUEBEC.—Montreal: The Idealograph theatre of this city recently burned to the ground and resulted in the death of four people and damage amounting to about $20,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. However, they suspect same was due to defect of insulation.

A fire was averted at the Globe theatre a few days ago owing to the booth being of the most modern construction. However, ten reels were burned, including a Pathe feature, and reels from the General and Universal departments.

Arthur St. Germain, controlling the Electra theatre of this city, has found a loophole in the new Provincial War Tax Law. He advertises extensively throughout all the trolley cars in this city as follows: "Admission ten cents, including war tax," thereby eliminating the tolling out of extra war tax tickets to the people, who in reality pay this, as the admission tickets are plainly marked, "Nine Cents Admission," and the one cent war tax is therefore included in the price of admission.

The London theatre of this city has been purchased by Sam Holman, the present proprietor of the New Grand theatre.

E. L. Perry, who has been in charge of the St. Dennis, Montreal's million-dollar house, for the past six months, has resigned to take the management of Keith's Riverside theatre, New York City. Gerald T. Gallagher, who has been associated with Mr. Perry for some time past, will assume the management of the St. Dennis.

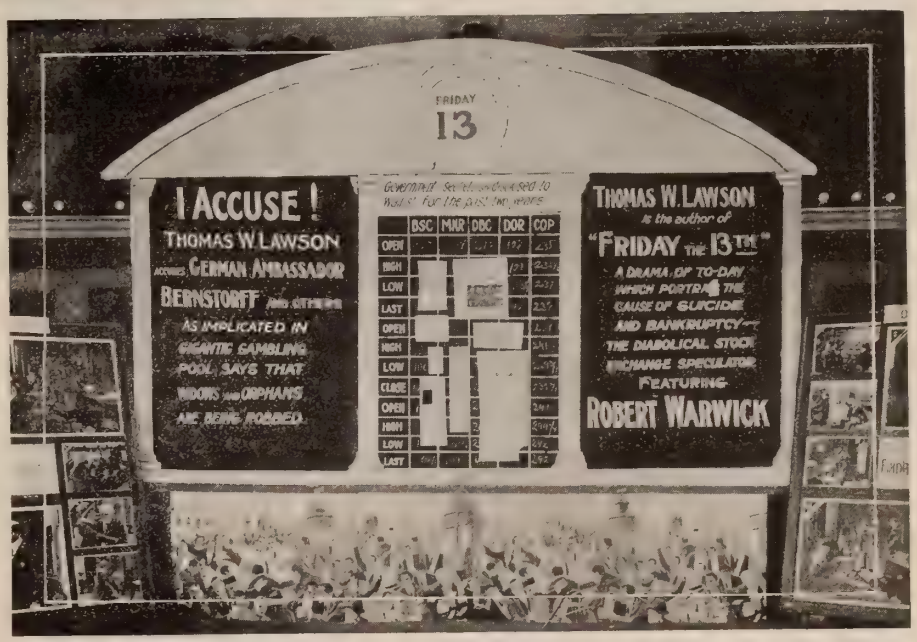
SASKATCHEWAN.—Broadview: G. Saywell, proprietor of the Star theatre at Broadview, has disposed the same to Mrs. Jas. Foley of Broadview. Universal service is used exclusively.

BRITISH COLUMBIA. — Vancouver: The Opera House at Kamloops has changed hands, A. D. MacMartin being the new lessee and manager. Mr. MacMartin is an old theatrical man and a well known newspaper cartoonist. He will use Bluebird, Red Feather features and the Universal serial He reports that business is good in Kamloops.

OHIO—Findlay: Harry Boymiller has been appointed manager of the Marvin theatre, of this town.

Columbus: J. E. Wright and Emmet Cox, joint owners of the Northern theatre, Columbus, have just purchased the Sigma theatre, Tiffin. They will continue to operate both theatres.

ILLINOIS—Potomac: Alva C. Leonard, editor and publisher of the Record, a weekly newspaper of Potomac, recently sold his motion picture theatre to E. B. Spain, a native of Potomac.



LIVE WIRE EXHIBITORS

Keeping Your Lobby Up to the Minute

If you can take advatnage of the cry that is on everybody's lips, the thought that is in everybody's mind at the moment, you can win for yourself fame and dollars. No business requires such consistent "up-to-the-minute" alertness as feeling the public pulse and providing throbs for the same through motion pictures.

M. Kashin, of the Midway theatre, Montreal has shown a capacity for this sort of accomplishment which is never failing, as seen by the accompanying illustration of how he has turned the "Leak Investigation," which has made almost as much of a stir in Canada as in the United States, to his immediate advantage.

Thomas W. Lawson and "Friday the Thirteenth" get a new impulse through this master of "catching on" to the instant thrills of the moment.

M. Kashin, Midway Theatre, Montreal, Lets No Opportunity Pass to Make Timeliness an Asset for His Lobby Display

Amateur Dramatic Club Uses Picture to Get Pointers

The Pretenders, an amateur dramatic club of Knoxville, Tennessee, pulled a brand new stunt when through the courtesy of the Paramount exchange in Atlanta and the Queen Theatre in Knoxville they had a private showing of the picture version of "Under Cover." The Pretenders are going to give "Under Cover" at a benefit performance on a local stage soon and they wanted to get acting pointers from the picture which contains in the cast Owen Moore and Hazel Dawn, both celebrated stage stars. All pronounced the picture a very fine and a very faithful adaptation of the play and felt that they had been much benefited from watching it on the screen. Members of the Club said they gained many fine dramatic points.

"Let Public Choose" Proves Beneficial Policy

William L. Sherry, president of the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company, distributors of Paramount pictures for New York State has inaugurated a neat scheme which is proving a business-getter to theatre managers.

The plan consists in the distribution to the theatre's audience of lists of pictures previously shown at the house. Each member of the audience is asked to check the picture he wishes to see rebooked, to write his name and address on the slip and return it to the usher.

A circular was prepared and sent to every exhibitor taking service from the William L. Sherry Feature Film Company a few weeks ago, and within a day or two after this circular was mailed a hundred thousand voting slips were requested.

Since that time there has been a total of 175,000 voting slips requested by the theatre managers of the state, who have immediately seen the advantage of catering to the public by letting it select extra pictures in addition to the regular program of two Paramount Pictures a week, and they have already placed bookings for these pictures, having collected the voting slips and arranged for bookings according to the votes cast.

"White Way" of Broken Bow, Nebraska. Lyric Theatre at Right of Picture

"Ad" Clocks a Baltimore Wrinkle

Bernard Depkin, for the Strand theatre, Baltimore, Md., among other live wire wrinkles, proposes to have a number of clocks all over the business section, on which will appear the slogan:

"At the Strand Spend an Hour Every Day AND DRIVE DULL CARE AWAY."

Bright Lights of Broken Bow

Any day in the week you can see a picture of the grand theatres along New York's big show way, but how often have you seen the surroundings of a typical motion picture theatre in the middle western small town?

Here is Tenth avenue, Broken Bow, Neb., the "great white way" of this little city of the plains, and to the right is the new Lyric theatre; admission ten cents, feature nights, fifteen and twenty cents. It is a modern house, seating 450 people. On the second floor is the Odd Fellows lodge hall. This theatre was just opened.

Moving Mechanical Figures and Back-Drop Catch the Eye in This Lobby Display

SPARKS AND FLASHES

L. B. Skeffington, Publicity Manager for the Strand theatre, Rochester, N. Y., hopes to put over a half-holiday for the public schoolchildren, to visit the Strand and see Mutual's "Silas Marner."

George Cohen, Manager of the Good theatre at Beacon, N. Y., put over International's "Patria" in regular New York and Chicago style, with exclusive invitation advance showing to press, city officials, and prominent club and society people.

John J. Motl, of Mullen, Neb., runs Artcraft and other big pictures in the Opera House, at ten and twenty-five cent prices. Mullen has 105 population, with sparsely settled surrounding country. This enterprising manager writes a personal letter to every neighbor patron in advance of each big production he shows.

A. J. Laurie, The Canada theatre, Montreal, has issued a small booklet, four pages and cover, cheaply but neatly printed, with heart to heart talks about his house with no mention of stars or plays, which he writes, helped business. He distributed ten thousand, house to house, on "moving day" in Montreal, when he knew his neighborhood would have a lot of newcomers. The right thing, AT THE RIGHT TIME, always pays.

We like to see sincerity in advertising. The Circle theatre, Indianapolis, in a recent unusually attractive advertisement claims the reader's interest on the jump in this unusual way: "There were a great many pictures that we might have presented today, to-morrow, and Saturday,—but there was nothing just quite so charming, so filled with the little human touches and brightened by such a dainty and appealing little star as "Her New York" with Gladys Hulette—which is the reason you are going to see it at the "Circle." There's an irresistible charm to this little play and player. You'll cry a little and you'll laugh a little and you'll smile inwardly as well as outwardly at its quaint and tender story."

Please note the above did not say "featuring" Gladys Hulette, nor refer to "that greatest and superfine production with Pathe's supreme artiste." And the fact that the picture is just what it is claimed for it, in such appealing language, is a tip we feel we can safely add.

Mechanical Figures in Chaplin Display

From Los Angeles comes the accompanying picture of a "live" lobby display, in which mechanical figures attract passing crowds. Even the back drop of the scene "moves" and tells the story of the film as you watch the figures go by. Charlie pursued by a "cop," with the pawnshop proprietor bringing up the rear, appears first at the door on the right and moving across the miniature "stage" disappears through the door on the left.

Manager Gore of the Liberty theatre uses similar displays on all Mutual-Chaplin features, with S. R. O. results.

A "Dickens" of a Surprise Party

The Paramount Picture, "Oliver Twist," was particularly timely for the Y. M. C. A. boys of Seattle, Washington, for it was but a few weeks before this picture was anonunced for release that the young men had begun the study of Dickens in their evening classes. They began with some of the other books first and were in the midst of "Oliver Twist" when the picture came to town.

As a surprise to the management of the Coliseum Theatre, they arranged a street parade one evening, and marched to the theatre, three hundred strong, with the banner shown herewith, telling that they were on their way to see Dickens's immortal characters in pictures. The boys created a great deal of publicity, all their own idea, and the theatre did capacity business that evening. The boys want more such pictures, and the management, you can bet on it, will see that they get them.

Alhambra, Cleveland, Has Patrons "Review" Its Pictures

The Alhambra Theatre has recently concluded a contest in which patrons were asked to write criticisms of its film plays. Many hundreds have taken advantage of this unusual contest and reviews of the films show that the patrons of moving pictures are discriminating.

Most women reviewers showed a decided preference for movies with an intense love interest. But not the siren sort of movies. They wanted wholesome and convincing stories with a broad streak of sunshine in them, and an admirable heroine. Also they showed a preference for men stars with a gift for sugary lovemaking.

The men critics expressed a liking for pictures that were agreeably diverting. They had no use for pictures devoid of comedy. They didn't want mysteries or complicated plots, and didn't care how exaggerated the situations were so long as they held attention easily and entertained.

From all that, the management reached the conclusion that audiences of this theatre, made up of both men and women, of course, prefer stories which contain a "strong love interest, a little pathos, and some comedy."

Y. M. C. A. Boys Surprise Management of Coliseum Theatre, Seattle

Added Day Paid This Theatre

The accompanying picture of crowds outside the Queen theatre, Knoxville, Tenn., on the third day of showing of Marguerite Clark in "Snow White" is published as a lesson to the exhibitor who does not realize the tremendous pulling power of mouth-to-mouth advertising on a sure-fire feature. Two days is the usual "limit" on pictures at the "Queen." Saturday is not usually a heavy day, because Saturday is "country day" in Knoxville, and reissue Chaplins and nickel prices draw the Saturday crowds.

So great was the third day crowd, however, on this showing the management was threatened with arrest, because in a period of about twenty minutes during which the manager stepped around the corner to get a bite of lunch, the house got "plumb full" at a time when ordinarily the theatre would have emptied as fast as it filled, shows being continuous.

Meeting the Women Half Way

J. Jordan, exhibitor at the Electric, Manila, Ia., had trouble getting the parents to let their children come to his theatre—especially on feature night. So Jordan got every description possible of the pictures he had coming, and showed them to the ministers, the mayor and other public officials. Then he issued a statement signed in the handwriting of three ministers of the town's leading churches, and by the mayor. This statement was printed on the front page of the home paper every week. Monday night was feature night. The parents could not stand before this argument because the signers paid such high praise to the pictures.

Jordan insisted upon the public men being his guests at each picture to show them their faith in the printed reviews and other advertising matter had not been misplaced. The men who sign the statements are now satisfied to sign them on Mr. Jordan's say-so, often without reading the advance reviews.

Hints to the Manager

Speaking of words of wisdom from babes, don't forget that those who have the least right, perhaps, to pass judgment on your theatre, will make the most noise about what you are doing. The green scum surfaced canal serves its purpose just as well, for the boat skimming its surface, as the bounding ocean. It's not through what channels your purpose is served, but how well the distribution is made, which counts. Think this over carefully.

We try to tell in these columns the why of what other exhibitors are doing that you should know about, as well as the detail of it. What is good for them may or may not be good for you. And if you know why they succeeded, you may invent even a better way of reaching the same goal. And don't forget we can't give you ideas for others, unless we know what you and the others are doing, first hand. Please write "Ye Editor, With Exhibitors Department," and let your bright idea come to light, for the common good.

We have said often enough we wanted to help with your problems. We mean it.

Third Day of Showing "Snow White" at Queen Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn.; Proof That Longer Runs Pay, at Least on Sure-Fire Subjects

When Music Really Counts

THE city exhibitor, with his tens of thousands invested and his daily expense in three figures is to be envied his job compared to the small town owner and manager, who is up against the task of pleasing everybody in his "home town."

The important hero of such a show is often the piano player, who is the "whole show" sometimes, as told in the following true story from a Southern town where "Charley" is the idol of the front rows, with their wriggling, squirming kids, and in the local vernacular "sure does play the pitchers."

Charley generally strolls in leisurely during the showing of the first pictures, several of the bolder boys calling "Hello Charley" the meeker ones just smiling in the shy fashion of the ordinary boy.

But this particular night something surely was wrong, for Charley came in before the pictures began and started right off with some lively tunes. For about seven minutes the front rows listened, but they hadn't come for a concert; they didn't want to hear, they wanted to see. From somewhere shrilled a piercing whistle, in exactly three seconds there were a dozen or more, then some cracking hand claps.

You know just how it was. In an instant would come bedlam there in front. With no stopping of the playing Charley said to a chrysanthemum-headed youngster on the front row, "Come here a minute." Shockey went and a rapid sentence or two were exchanged. Shockey waved an imperative hand at the front rows. And into the momentary stillness that had settled on the rioters as they watched Charley and Shockey, daintily tripped and dipped the exquisite measure "It's a long ways to Tipperary."

The seats emptied of boys, they crowded close to Charley, who didn't mind it one bit, and they lilted the plaint of the homesick lad of the Emerald Isle. Then some school songs, The Old Oaken Bucket, Siss Boom Rah, My Bonnie. When Charley swung into Dixie, they cheered with a vim, and sang with a vim, albeit a bit wobbly about the words. But several of them filled in the weak spots with the Rebel Yell in a boyish treble. Then all at once there was a scramble and scurry for seats.

The 7.10 train had arrived, the show had come, and Charley had saved a small riot. For remember, everybody knew everybody else and to lay a restraining hand on one of the "kids" would have ruined that house forever.

Policy and Program Shelved to Show Essanay Film

For the first time in its history the Piccadilly theatre, Rochester, N. Y., Walter Hoff Seeley, manager, has departed from its usual policy, shelved its regular program feature for three days and will play instead, Feb. 8-10, Essanay's "Skinner's Dress Suit," released through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service.

Mr. Seeley is regarded as an ultra-progressive manager and the Piccadilly shows to a class of spectators far above the point of mediocrity. It is said to be the only motion picture theatre in the State of New York charging a uniform price of admission of 50 cents. Mr. Seeley is able to get this price of admission because he has established the reputation of showing pictures of super-excellence. When he saw "Skinner's Dress Suit," screened for him at the suggestion of Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay's New York branch manager, William Raynor, he decided immediately that he had a feature worthy of the Piccadilly and for the first time in the history of that theatre the regular program was put aside for a three days' showing of "Skinner's Dress Suit."

THE EASTERN STUDIOS

MOTHER of Harry Corson Clarke, the well-known comedian, and grand mother of Fred Jones, a popular Metro player, Mrs. Adele Clarke, seventy-five years young, appears in Viola Dana's forthcoming Metro-Columbia feature production, "The Purchase Price," directed by John H. Collins. Mrs. Clarke is said to be the only great-grandmother acting in motion pictures.

AN unusually fascinating story, called "The Duchess of Doubt," by Charles A. Logue and Jorn Clymer, has been chosen as Emmy Wehlen's next vehicle for the Metro program. George D. Baker will direct this five-part Metro-Rolfe feature, which gives the attractive Viennese star opportunity to display the beautiful gowns for which she is noted. "The Duchess of Doubt" has a strong sympathy interest.

BETTY HOWE, International star, who had prominent parts in several of the episodes of "Beatrice Fairfax," has just been discharged from a hospital in Brooklyn, where she underwent a serious operation for appendicitis.

Miss Howe was in a critical condition for several weeks, but she is now in her normal health again, and expects to appear shortly in a new picture for the International.

BARON CARL VON WINTHER, a member of the Danish nobility, who plays the East Indian in Metro's serial, "The Great Secret," starring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, is a director who has taken up acting to get the motion picture actor's point of view, having studied the profession from every other angle.

The Baron is an expert cameraman, and is familiar with every detail of laboratory work in connection with preparing of a picture for the screen. For the speaking stage, he studied at the Royal School of Acting in Copenhagen, Denmark, taking it up, as he says, "just for fun."

IF one may believe the protests of Marguerite Clark after her reckless disregard of the truth in "Miss George Washington," it is a very complicated process for an actress to play the role of an actress on the screen.

That is what the little Famous Players star has been doing in "The Fortunes of Fifi" in which she will soon be starred on the Paramount Program. The trouble lies in submerging her own personality, endowing the actress whom she is impersonating with a personality at the same time getting over the role which the supposed actress is playing. Miss Clark would class this type of acting under the general caption of hard work.

LOU-TELLEGEN and Mary Fuller are in Saranac, where they are staging the winter scenes for "The Long Trail," in which the former is to be starred by the Famous Players. Of course, it was purely a matter of accident—but they managed to reach Saranac at the one week in the year when that place is wildly exciting—Carnival Week. Both Lou-Tellegen and Miss Fuller, being excellent skaters, have threatened to show their skill on the ice during the performance.

PAULINE FREDERICK'S maid is desolate—as all French maids invariably become upon the slightest provocation. This time the desolation arises from the fact that Miss Frederick has completed "Sapho," and that the French atmosphere which has permeated the Famous Players studio during the staging of the picture is gone. No longer do the silver notes of her native tongue greet her ears as she waits outside the scenes for her mistress, and the maid is no longer happy.

DENVER, noted for its altitude, its hotel restaurant fountains, from which guests can choose their own mountain trout in the live state for later eating, and for the number of suspicious express packages imported from Cheyenne, boasts also of Rubye De Remer.

In a short space of a few months Miss De Remer has gained recognition on stage and screen. Her beauty first won her a place in the chorus of the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic. Then in a small part in a comedy drama the Colorado girl attained her ambition to enter the pictures. Meritorious performance in "Enlighten Thy Daughter" brought her to the front in a dramatic role, and Ivan Abramson, recognizing her possibilities, immediately cast her as leading lady in "The Promise."

STILL further goes the search for reality and exactness of production. The latest instance was a search of "Poor Richard's Almanac" to obtain authentic historical data as to weather conditions in New England in the year 1778, to be used in reproducing scenes in the forthcoming Metro-Yorke production, "The Hidden Children," a picture version of Robert W. Chambers's novel. Harold Lockwood and May Allison are the stars in this picture, which is directed by Oscar Apfel.

THE trend toward reality—a portrayal of life as life is—which in the past few years has been the aim of the best directors, is perhaps best and most recently exemplified in the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, "The Glory of Yolanda," written and directed by Marguerite Bertsch, and featuring Anita Stewart.

Miss Bertsch, with a score of successes to her credit, each embodying the deft strokes of character drawing, of humor and of truth to life portraiture which are characteristics of her work, is credited with bringing even more realism to the screen in this, her latest production.

In the six years Miss Bertsch has been with Vitagraph she has been responsible either for the originals or adaptations of such plays as "Vengeance of Durand," "Prince of Evil," "Mills of the Gods," "A Million Bid," "The Dust of Egypt," "Salvation Joan," "My Official Wife" and many others. Miss Bertsch not only wrote but directed "The Law Decides" and "The Devil's Prize."

Mae Marsh Spoils a Quart of Champagne by Breaking it on the First Goldwyn Camera to go into Action. In the Group Surrounding Her are Samuel Goldfish, Marguerite Marsh, Arthur Hopkins, George Hill and Ralph Ince

P. THAD VOLKMAN has returned to the Rolfe-Columbia studios after a vacation of several weeks. He is assisting Harry Davenport in the production of Lionel Barrymore's forthcoming comedy drama by June Mathis.

Mr. Volkman's last work for Metro was with Julius Steger in "The Stolen Triumph." Formerly he was assistant director to Charles Horan, being associated with him in the direction of Lionel Barrymore in "The Upheaval," "The Quitter," and other Metro features.

THE popularity of George M. Cohan, even with Broadway cops, was put to the test one night last week in New York and proved that George M. stood in well with the menials of the law and order along the Great White Way. A cameraman from Mr. Cohan's studios propped up his machine on Times Square to get some night views of the blazing street for the first Cohan-Artcraft picture, "Broadway Jones."

To the amusement of the crowd that quickly gathered, a powerful limb of the law ferociously approached the photographer, and announced that he was arrested for blocking the traffic. "I just want to get a few feet of Broadway," pleaded the cameraman. "For what?" demanded ye cop. "For George M. Cohan's movie," came the reply. "George M. Cohan? Oh, well, that's different," exclaimed the powerful one, whereupon he urged the cameraman to go as far as he liked and savagely bade the crowd to move along.

OLIVE TELL, who by many self-confessed connoisseurs of feminine pulchritude is yielded the palm of beauty pre-eminent among all her sisters of the stage, has been engaged by Harry Rapf to play the principal role in the support of Robert Warwick in his Selznick-Picture version of E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, "The Court of St. Simon." Miss Tell's most recent appearance was in the support of Lou Tellegen in "A King of Nowhere."

Louise Du Pie in "Old Ways and New." (Plimpton Epic Pictures)

R. A. WALSH, director of "The Honor System," served in the British Aviation Corps during the year following his graduation from Seton Hall College in South Orange, N. J. Walsh himself drove the aeroplane to which three cameras were lashed to get a bird's-eye view of the marauders sweeping down on the border village for William Fox's cinema spectacle, to be unreeled at the Lyric on Feb. 6.

TAKE it on his own word, Vincent Serrano was a fairly busy man during the filming of "A Modern Monte Cristo," the Thanhouser production. Half a dozen dives from a Harlem River bridge, as many more leaps into a rough sea, pearl fishing in a diving helmet, and a few little rescues by aeroplanes—all were in the day's work. Due to the variety of "stunts," more retakes were necessary than in any previous Gold Rooster play produced in the New Rochelle studio.

ROBERT CARSON, William Farnum's prototype, and who hails from the Nevada City whose name he bears, has been placed under contract by Metro. He will be seen in support of the Bushman-Bayne combination in "The Great Secret."

Prior to facing the camera, Carson was in vaudeville. He has previously appeared in the Fox production, "The Darling of Paris." The literary world has also seen his contributions of stories and novels under the pen name of Pritchard.

FOLLOWING a slight illness which kept her away from the studio for the past week, Mary Pickford has again resumed her activities over in Fort Lee in her latest screen subject, "A Poor Little Rich Girl," an adaptation from Eleanor Gates's play and novel.

THE pranks of motion picture photography was recently responsible for the retake of a number of scenes in "Her Beloved Enemy," featuring Doris Grey and Wayne Arey. One of Miss Grey's fetching gowns screened similar to another, and as particular attention is being paid to the star's costumes in the picture, the retake was ordered.

GRAND opera has lost a splendid villain or "heavy," as they call it in those restricted circles, while the motion pictures have made a corresponding gain, for Albert Massour, friend of Scotti, the world's greatest baritone, and whom such an authority as Boris Goudonoff advised to take a few more years in Paris, has joined the Metro forces and is playing the role of tough and gunman in the new big serial, "The Great Secret."

Mr. Massour decided to change from grand opera to screen drama when he was an invited guest at the making of a picture in one of the Metro studios, where Wm. Christy Cabanne was directing. There and then he became infatuated with the motion picture, and determined to devote studious attention to it.

Elsie Ferguson (Cardinal)

JEAN SOTHERN, the pretty little lady who is starred in the Van Dyke Company's Art Drama "Her Good Name," appeared in a new role at the Van Dyke studios recently.

The action called for the use of a kitten and a puppy. They were secured, and then the fun began. Fur flew when each caught sight of the other. Director Terwillinger received a scratched nose trying to separate the combatants. Then Miss Sothern appeared:

"Oh, how darling" she cried, gathering the struggling animals in her arms. Kitty purred (so says our informant). Puppy tried to stretch his tongue a foot toward Miss Sothern's face. And all ended happily.

ONE perfectly good bottle of sparkling, bubbling champagne is to be broken over the tripod of the first camera to be turned at the Goldwyn studios. This as a matter of ceremonial form only, of course. In addition, the players—such of them as bestir themselves early—will be served on the opening morning with a studio breakfast.

In the meantime Ralph W. Ince, Goldwyn's director-soon-to-be, is transferring his effects to the studio in Fort Lee, N. J., and arranging his personal staff. Announcement will be made later of the star whose destinies he will shape for Goldwyn, and a few days later work will be under full headway.

FRANK POWELL has engaged Anne Sutherland, the noted character actress, to appear in a prominent part in the support of Marjorie Rambeau in "Motherhood," the second of the series of Marjorie Rambeau feature pictures now being made by the Frank Powell Producing Corporation, to be distributed through the Mutual Film Corporation.

Miss Sutherland has been a stage favorite for many seasons in New York and other cities.

IN AND OUT OF WEST COAST STUDIOS

By J. C. JESSEN

IN the hope of better fitting the members for their work as directors, the Motion Picture Directors' Association, at a meeting last week decided upon a number of dinners where prominent men of all lines of trade will be speakers. A projection machine and screen will be installed at the organization's suite in the Alexandria Hotel, and there scenes made by different members of the association will be shown and criticised. For example, if a doctor is the speaker of the evening, sick room, hospital and accident scenes will be shown. Artists familiar with studios of Paris and other cities will speak when such scenes are projected, and newspaper men will criticise the technique of the printing shop. By these dinners it is planned that every kind of scene requiring special knowledge will be shown and discussed.

At the regular meeting of the association, five new members were elected, they being Directors Colin Campbell, Donald Macdonald, Frank Cooley, Ford Sterling, and Bertram Bracken.

UNUSUAL interest is now being manifested in the association, as election of officers for the ensuing year will be held within the next three or four weeks. Already a number of names have been suggested as candidates, and these will all come before the nomination committee at the first meeting the second Thursday in February. The election will be held two weeks later. The association is in a very flourishing condition with a membership of more than seventy-five, the leading directors of the west coast colony.

BIG owners of real estate in Los Angeles are seeking to anchor the business center in its present locality by bringing about the erection and finishing of the most elaborate motion picture theatre on the coast. An organization incorporated under the name of the Stability Building Company, has this work in hand, and the building is now being erected at Third and Broadway, Los Angeles. This house will probably be named the Empire, and will have a seating capacity of more than three thousand. A long-term lease has been made for the theatre by Sid Grauman, who has the Empress at San Francisco, one of the largest and most successful theatres of the northern city.

An interesting feature in connection with the building of this house is the fact that only California materials are to be used in its construction. The interior finishing will be of California Redwood. It is said the lease also specifies that only California-made films will be shown here.

"Clune's Review," is the name of a weekly newspaper to be published by the Clune Theatre Company, in the interest of the five houses this organization conducts in Los Angeles, Pasadena, and Santa Ana. The paper contains three pages of stories about plays and players soon to be seen at the Clune houses, and a page of advertising by local merchants. The house organ is to be distributed to every home in Los Angeles and other towns, where this firm has theatres.

CHRISTIE Comedies are playing at two leading downtown Los Angeles houses this week, the Garrick on Broadway and Alhambra on Hill street. In both instances managers report favorably on the reception of the one-reelers, stating that all patrons have enthusiastically criticised them favorably.

With the return of David Horsley from New York, the South Main street studio took on renewed activities, as negotiations were closed with the Mutual Film Corporation for the release of not only the Cub Comedies, but also Crane Wilbur features. The features consist of a series of six, known under the general title of "The Morals of Men." Three of these have already been completed, "The Painted Lie," "Love Everlasting," and "The Single Code." The next one to be taken up will be "The Eleventh Commandment," and another scenario already prepared has been titled "The Eye of Envy." One of the pictures will be released every four weeks, but no date has been set for the first release of the series.

ANOTHER contract made by Mr. Horsley provides for the foreign rights of all Cub Comedies, which was purchased by Charles F. Pope, who has been Horsley's New York representative.

Mr. Horsley also made the statement that he had disposed of the greater portion of the Bostock animals to the United Circus Corporation, of which Frank P. Spellman is the head. Only those of the collection of 115 trained for motion picture work will be retained.

In addition to the making of Cub Comedies and Wilbur features, Mr. Horsley plans to make other pictures, the first of which will be "Aladdin's Lamp," of the nature of a spectacle. He was accompanied to the coast by two players, a leading woman and a comedian, but would not announce the identity of either.

EVERYONE about the American studio took part in the reception tendered Gail Kane, who arrived Saturday, January 27th, with her mother from the East. Dressing rooms had been prepared for her, and Manager J. R. Crone with his staff had arranged everything for the new American star prior to her arrival. The following Monday make-up tests were made under the supervision of Director Rollin S. Sturgeon, who will direct Miss Kane during her American engagement, and the following day work was begun on the filming of the first subject, which is of a melodramatice type, titled "Who's Wife?" This is from a story by Cecil Arthur Bullivant, and the scenario was prepared by Doris Schroeder.

(Continued on page 1054)

Agnes Vernon Entertains Wilbur D. Nesbit of the Makin Advertising Company, Chicago, at Universal City

UNCALLED FOR LETTERS AT THE STUDIO DIRECTORY

Alexander, Sara
Anderson, Tillie
Angel, R.
Argot, Lange
Arsdale, Van
Beau, Lucas V.
Bell, W. H.
Bennett, T. W.
Bonce, Cosimo
Boyle, Miss
Carter, Nan
Clarke, George
Claflin, A.
Cohn, Martha L.
Cole, A. J.
Compton, Charles
Davies, Howard
Day, Joel
Decker, James
DeForest, Hal
Deely, Ben
De Lopez, Mme.
Diamond, James
Dickson, Lydia
Dillion, J. W.
Gilbert, Henrietta
Greene, Margaret
Hall, George
Holmes, Lulu
Hulse, Vaughan
Jensen, Emil C.
Jores, E. F.
Knoepfle, Rudolph
Lauillard, Edward
Lennon, A.
Lynch, Jack
McDonald, Wallace
May, Natalie
Mayfield, Charine
Mueller, Conrad G.
O'Dental, Marie
Pardee, Madeline L.
Pettus, Zuleme
Pierard, Jean P.
Rand, Anthony
Ruchti, J.
Salzman, Aaron
Stanley, Henry
Stuart, Austin
Sullivan, James R.
Tearle, Conway
Traverse, Madeline
Turner, Alice
Walters, E. J.
Willis, L. D.
Wilson, C. T.
Wilson, Carey
Wilson, Olive

SERVICE FOR THE PLAYER

¶ The Studio Directory is in every way possible making itself of service to the player.

¶ The list of uncalled for letters which we are publishing each week on this page is but one very small evidence of this fact.

¶ Send us your name and address when you are out of a position and we will endeavor to assist you in securing one.

¶ Be sure that we have full information concerning your career so that we can publish it in your free biography in the next Studio Directory.

¶ This free biography in the Studio Directory means unlimited free publicity for you as practically every casting director, newspaper editor and exhibitor in the country gets a copy.

¶ And When You back this free biography publicity up with portrait advertising—at but $88 per page including cut, smaller space pro rata—you have secured a permanent agent working for you all the time with every casting director, newspaper editor and exhibitor in the country.

Motion Picture Studio Directory

PUBLISHED BY MOTION PICTURE NEWS, INC.

729 SEVENTH AVENUE NEW YORK CITY

(Continued from page 1052)

The tentative title selected for the next Mary Miles Minter subject is "Lizz." The story was written by Director James Kirkwood, and George Fisher has been cast to play the male lead. Al Vosburg, formerly of the American, has been re-engaged, and will appear as juvenile. Another important part is taken by Jack Vosburg, a cousin of Al.

MEMBERS of the producing staff have daily been expecting the arrival of John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual, who is making a tour of the country and will spend several days at the American plant at Santa Barbara, and also visit the studios of the Signal, Vogue, Lone Star, and Horsley companies.

Edward Sloman directed the filming of the first scenes last week for the next William Russell drama, "High Play." The setting for this was that of a gambling saloon of a very fashionable and speedy type, and is one of the most attractive settings seen on an American stage.

X. K. Stout, who has been affiliated with the Mutual Exchange at San Francisco for the past fifteen months, has been appointed assistant studio manager of the American, and has taken up his new work. His wide experience from the exchangeman's field fits him for the position as assistant to Studio Manager J. R. Crone.

Lucile Young, until recently affiliated with the Fine Arts studio, who took the part of Mary Magdalene in "Intolerance," has been engaged by the American, and is now working in her first production in the female heavy role in the William Russell subject, "High Play."

WESLEY GRAY GILMORE, who has been identified with a number of coast studios, having served as auditor and business manager of the Centaur and Nestor Film Companies, and most recently identified with the Ince Culver City studios as superintendent, has accepted a position as business manager of the Signal Film Corporation and this week took up his new duties. This will relieve Mr. McGowan of many duties pertaining to the management of the company, and thus give him more time to look after the actual production of the company's subjects.

William Buhler is another new Signalite, who was engaged this week by Director McGowan to play an important role in the coming serial.

Three more members for the Shorty Hamilton adventure series have been completed at the Monogram Film Company by Director William H. Clifford. These have been titled "Shorty Plays Wildman," "Shorty Promotes His Love Affair," and "Shorty Goes Insane."

The Monogram Company is said to be the first one to place the author on a par with the star, and the statement was given out at the studio that Mr. Clifford and Mr. Hamilton, both being stockholders in the company, are to share equally in the company's profits. Clifford wrote the stories for the Shorty comedy series made for the Mutual program more than two years ago, and is believed to be the most appropriate man for the work of writing and directing this eccentric comedian.

At the end of a strenuous day in the Metro-Yorke Studio Harold Lockwood receives a baseball from Director Fred Balshofer to start some strenuous sport

A TRIPLE role comedy is in the making, known as "The One Man Story." In the opening and closing scenes, this character is the guest of honor at a club dinner, where he tells of his Western experience when he was the sheriff of Badman's Gulch. His twin brother arrives just after he had rescued a girl from outlaws, and the brother knocks the sheriff out and steals the girl after donning the sheriff's clothing and badge. Outlaws come upon him and he is killed. Then it is the sheriff revives and captures the outlaws and retakes the girl. At this point in the tale, the porter comes forward, disguised with a bear-skin, and the bold man disappears in a cloud of dust. Walter Newman prepared this story, which is being filmed by Robin Williamson, with Ben Turpin in the all important role.

"Easy Street," the ninth of the Chaplin-Mutual comedies, saw its last at the studio this week when the final editing was done and the negative shipped East. Mr. Chaplin and Vincent Bryan have been busy for the past few days preparing a story for the next subject, which will be cast within a day or two. As there are to be three more Chaplin subjects, and no announcement has been made of the screen comedian's future, many inquiries are to be heard in film circles as to what Mr. Chaplin's next contract will specify.

HENRY LEHRMANN, directing genius of the company that bears his name, is now on his way to New York for a conference with William Fox relative to the making of future subjects for that program.

A company has been organized to produce films at Redlands under the direction of Julius Frankenberg, and Vivian Rich has been placed under a two years' contract as star for the organiation.

The Thomas H. Ince production, "Civilization," is to be shown throughout the Orient, representatives of the Harper Film Company, Messrs. A. C. Nargelis and E. R. Champion having sailed from San Francisco on January 27.

Mr. Ince has had the title and sub-titles translated into eight languages for the Far East, and plans to have the first openings within the next eight weeks. Where the Eastern premiere will be held first, has not been decided but definite arrangements will be made by the representatives upon their arrival in China. E. H. Allen, business manager of the Ince studios, went to San Francisco to see the representatives before their departure.

SO favorable have been the criticisms of the first Enid Bennett subject from the Ince Culver City studio, that Mr. Ince has decided to at once release her second picture, which has just been completed and titled "The Little Brother," which will shortly be offered on the Triangle program. Miss Bennett is supported by William Garwood, who was specially engaged to play the opposite lead, and others in the big cast include Dorcas Matthews, Carl Ullman, Josephine Hedley, and the production was filmed under the direction of Charles Miller.

Miss Bennett has just returned from a vacation of a month spent with her sister in New York, and C. Gardner Sullivan has written a special story for her, giving her the role of a girl who is reputed to be a snob. Reginald Barker has been selected to direct the production.

JOSEPH deGRASSE, who went east during the holidays for a vacation and rest, found so many friends that he came back and assured acquaintances that he had not been resting but recreating. With the aid of Ida May Park, he is preparing a story which will shortly be put into production, with Dorothy Phillips, William Stowell and Lon Chaney as leads.

"Betsy's Burglar," Paul Powell is now directing, and it gives Constance Talmadge opportunity to play another role similar to that of the mountain girl in "Intolerance." Kenneth Harlan takes the male lead, Clyde Hopkins is the grocery boy who becomes a detective, and other principals are Monte Blue, Joseph Singleton, Josephine Crowell, Hal Wilson and Kate Bruce.

THE Bessie Love Fine Arts subject, first known as "The Doll Shop," and later titled "The Spitfire," is now to be known as "A Daughter of the Poor." This was made by Edward Dillon, and the final scenes having been made and the subject cut, it has been forwarded to the New York laboratories.

Complete itinerary for the Director Lloyd Ingraham-Robert Harron Fine Arts Company in their trip from Los Angeles to New York, provides for stops at El Paso, were two days will be spent, several days at New Orleans, and about a week at Atlanta, Ga. The company will be at Washington, and use the capitol buildings for a background and from there will go to New York, where the final scenes will be filmed. The day for their departure has not been fixed, owing to the interior scenes not being completed.

A few days of filming will make possible the completion of the first Dustin Farnum picture by Director William Taylor, which is an adaptation from the Bertram Sinclair novel, and will be released under the same title, "North of 53." This has been dated for release, but owing to delays it will not be ready at the time for which it is announced. Supporting Mr. Farnum in his debut on the Fox program are Winifred Kingston as leading woman, and a cast which includes Rex Downs, William Conklin, Jode Mullally, Edward Alexander, and others together with Queen, a bull terrier who is charged by the players with stealing all their scenes.

A NUMBER of changes are to be made in the Fox production "The Honor System" which is to be given its New York premier on February 6, and a number of scenes for the finale of the story were made at the studio during the past week. Fortunately Milton Sills, who was the male lead in the subject, was in Los Angeles filling an engagement, and secured for the retakes. The making of these scenes delayed the beginning of a new production under the direction of R. A. Walsh, which will offer Miriam Cooper, in private life Mrs. R. A. Walsh, as star.

Before this appears in print, Director Frank Lloyd will have made the last scenes for the spectacle film "The Tale of Two Cities," adapted from the historical novel of the same name by Dickens. During the week the storming of the bastile and the liberation of prisoners were made, requiring a large number of extras, estimated at more than a thousand.

NEW subjects are to be taken up within the next few days by Director Richard Stanton and Otis Turner. The former will continue with Gladys Brockwell as his lead, and George Walsh and Anno Luther will play for Director Turner.

Tom Mix has filmed his first two-reel Western Fox comedy, but title has not been made known. Four other Fox comedy companies are busy with productions.

Director Jack Blystone of L-Ko Doing a Scene with Alice Howell, Fatty Voss and Babe McKenzie

The new Lasky studio carpenter shops, the largest of any plant on the Coast, were put to use last week. These are so arranged that the raw material comes in one end, and by a progressive system advances to an assembling department and when put together there is taken directly on to the stage. Motor driven vehicles are to be added to carry the scenery and props from the factory to the point on the stage where they are to be used. The factory contains every kind of wood-working machinery needed, and is a model for completeness and efficiency.

ANOTHER new building was decided upon by the Lasky official this week, and erection was begun at once. This is to be used exclusively for experimental photography work, and will be in charge of Alvin Wyckoff, director of photography at the studio.

Tom Moore, who recently came west, has been engaged by the Lasky Company and will appear as leading man in subjects starring Mae Murray and produced by Robert Leonard.

A VERY thorough surprise was administered members of the West Coast film colony last week, when announcement of their marriage was made by Joe Moore and Grace Cunard. The couple went to a nearby city, Wednesday evening, after securing license in Los Angeles, and were quietly wed. The marriage did not become known until Friday. Mr. Moore, a brother of Owen, Matt and Tom, has been on the west coast for the past year playing for Universal and L-Ko companies. At the studio where the latter brand is made he first met Miss Cunard several months ago, where she had been engaged in filming "The Purple Mask," with Francis Ford. No one suspected a romance to grow out of the acquaintance and admission of their marriage came as a thunderbolt out of a clear sky.

WALTER WRIGHT, known at the Keystone as the sure-fire comedy thrill maker, has completed his latest Mack Sennett comedy which has been titled "Skidding Hearts." His two usual players, Ora Carew and "Baldy" Belmont, are seen to particular advantage in this story for both take double roles, she being the heroine as well as a Chinese maid, and Mr. Belmont appearing as the auto race driver and the Chinese cook. All of the auto racing scenes were made at the Santa Monica road course during the Grand Prix and other races held in November, and one of the big thrills injected is a comic attempt at suicide while a car is moving at a 100-miles per hour clip. The characters are in pairs, for besides the double roles of the principals there are two suitors, and the girl's parents, each one trying to pick her husband. This Keystone will not be released until in the latter part of February or early in March.

WILLIAM DUNCAN has begun the filming of the Vitagraph serial, "Hearts of Flames" and with his players are now spending several days on the Mojave desert. Carol Halloway, who has been in pictures for the past two years, following a short career in opera, has been selected as leading woman to play opposite Duncan. Her most recent work was in the American Beauty photoplays where she was engaged for a year. Other members of the serial cast are W. L. Rogers and Charles Wheelock.

Mack Sennett and his co-workers in the art of making laugh provoking comedies, have prepared two additional subjects which are now ready for release, raising the total to ten. "Her Nature Dance" is one, with Fritz Schade as a delicatessen owner, who becomes a cave man, or at least wears that kind of costume. All the Keystone beauties take part in the nature dance which brings jealousy to the heart of Eva Thatcher, the delicatessen owner's wife, and the two-reeler is concluded in a whirlwind style. b

Gene Rogers and Cecile Arnold are two other principals of this story, which was directed by William Campbell. The other Keystone comedy finished has been titled "A Royal Rogue." It has royalty, imposters, crooks, love and jealousy and almost a wedding, and a big cast which includes Billy Armstrong, Ray Griffin, Raymond Russell, Hal Cooley, Martha Trick, Juanita Hansen and Jack Henderson. T. P. Kerr was the director of this picture.

PRODUCER FRED J. BALSHOFER, Harold Lockwood, May Allison, Lester Cuneo, and others of the Yorke-Metro producing organization, are in Bear Valley, where northwestern scenes for "The Promise" are being filmed. Reports from Bear Valley are to the effect there is much snow there, a great quantity falling after the Yorke players went to the high mountain retreat, and anxiety is felt as storms have broken telephone and telegraphic communication. They are expected back within a few days.

EDITH STERLING has been engaged by the Kalem company to play lead in the new "Stingaree" series opposite True Boardman. Miss Sterling has been in pictures for a number of years, and will be remembered for her very excellent work in western subjects made by the St. Louis company and released through the Universal. She is an excellent horsewoman and, like her husband, Art Accord, has won many prizes at stampedes. She but recently returned from Central America, where she played lead in the Nevada Company's production, "The Planter," opposite Tyrone Power.

The Pacific Film Laboratories, destroyed by fire several months ago, have been rebuilt, and the working organization, which has been located at the old Oz Laboratories, has moved to the new quarters.

This is the fourth plant built by William H. Faust, owner of the laboratories, and by men of the industry it is spoken of as complete in every detail. Innovations have been introduced in the new plant which make it a commercial studio with unusual facilities. The Pacific Laboratories will take care of the developing and printing of producing firms working at their studios, or private laboratories with tanks, printers, drying frames can be rented, where their own people may look after finishing the production. The printers installed are the products of the Bell and Howell and A. Fried factories.

In connection with the new plant Mr. Faust has added an enclosed studio, sixty by seventy feet, with a twenty-four-foot ceiling. The open-air stage is 110 by 130 feet and alongside are dressing rooms, carpenter and paint shops, and property rooms, all completely equipped, ready for instant use. Henry Kohler, who has been affiliated with the Pacific Laboratories for the past two years, has been selected as manager for the new plant.

(Continued on page 1095)

Hollywood Hookum

Feb. 17, 1917 NEWS MORE NEWS

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Maybelle: The dimple in Herby Rawlinson's chin is there for life. No, it is not grease paint.

Archibald: You should not address pretty Betty Compson in the tone you did. She is too young to wed. We're serious about this.

Blue Eyes: Certainly Big Bill Russell is as handsome as he looks on the screen.

Movie Fan: Clara Williams is not an Italian. She just makes up that way. Seattle was her birthplace.

Memphis Maid: Roy Stewart's first motion picture scene was as a prize fighter. He has since played caveman types and graduated into the class of successful heroes. He's not superstitious.

Gwendolyn: We cannot mention the kind of toothpaste Eddie Lyons uses. The Adv. Mgr. won't permit.

Budding Scenarioist: Hampton Del Ruth is the man who writes the funny stories for the Keystone. Try writing at 3 A. M. and you may be able to burlesque melodrama.

Serious One: Marshall Neilan is not appearing in pictures. He's directing for Lasky. That's the reason you missed his handsome face.

Freddie: No. Louise Glaum is not a vampire off the film stage. She's just weird.

Old Sol batted around a thousand all week.

Ptomaine is the name of Harry Carey's dog.

Jim Colwell, American P. A., was down from Sabee, to tell our people about Gail Kane gettin' here.

Herm Lucas, a filmster, eloped the other week with Beatrice Place, and they were married at Riverside.

Fine Art studio boasts of the handsomest leading men in pictures, Roy Stewart and Kenneth Harlan. (A fellow dared Hookum to print this.)

Walter Long, Lasky heavy, is trying to break the Consolidated Crepe Hair Trust by growing a mustache between every picture. Four weeks old and it's looking fine.

Hookum acknowledges receipt of a thousand word story titled "A Movie Maker," being an interview from the o-o-o-old dramatic critic Calder Johnstone. (Space forbids.)

Sessue, to add realism to his recent imaginary trip to Honolulu, has taken it upon himself to master the thumbing of a ukulele. His dressing room door bears this sign: "Pest House."

This will serve to inform all press agents and publicity writers that Hookum waste paper basket is filled every week with imitations of Wallace Irwin's "Togo" letters to stars. Have a heart for the janitor.

Universal Fred Kelsey believes in the eat and grow thin propaganda. His three-a-day always consists of enough to satisfy a thresher and he's only a director. Fred claims he dropped fifty-three pounds. (Adv. U City Cafe. 1 time.)

Dustin Farnum pulled a good one on Fox players at Truckee the other week by offering beautiful prizes for skiing, tobogganing, skating, etc., and then winning all the prizes himself. We could not learn what happened to the judge.

Jim Kirkwood attributes the development of his artistic taste to his early job in a Grand Rapids furniture factory where he learned wood carving. He is still at it and he has whittled one store box all to pieces at Santa Barbara.

Santa Cruz country is all stirred up. A mysterious grave was found and the officers went to the bottom of the mystery with shovels. Then the villagers remembered Fine Art players made a scene where a corpse was laid to rest. The earth was soft a foot down.

Walter Edwards, Chester Lyons, and Bill Desmond are reported to have gone up in the air this week. Seal Beach was the scene of the high flying and Bill had it on them as the picture of him flying had to be shot from above, requiring director and cameraman to ascend first. Some breeze, they say.

The Week's Best Tough Luck Tale: Hank McRae and band of Universalites worked all day Sunday, Sunday night and until noon Monday without a stop. Tuesday morning after sufficient pep had been mustered all returned to the studio to learn all scenes would require retakes because of static.

As boxing contests are held on the second and third Tuesday of every months, it was necessary for officers of the Motion Picture Directors' Association to call a special meeting on a Thursday evening to get a vote on changing the meeting night to the second and third Thursday of each month, instead of holding them on the second and third Tuesday evening. (We love our art.)

Louise Lovely has lost her dog.

Wedgewood Nowell, we are told, is soon to become a Universal director.

Mr. Selig Stork played a joke on itself this week by presenting the zoo with three cub lions.

Harry Todd sang in a Rolin plunge scene, and now his voice is only good for the silent drama.

Bebe Daniels has been seen of late in a new 1917 Chandler 4, a creation of brown trimmed in black with red seat covers.

If the party who sent a pink shirt to a Fox leading man for Christmas will supply receipt to prevent fading, no questions will be asked.

Theodore Roberts has found it convenient, because of the manner of moving buildings about the Lasky studio, to have his dressing room paged every morning.

Billie Rhodes has found that the making of beach scenes in Calitornia in January is a good substitute for double exposure. The shivers make possible the portrayal of dual roles.

Elliott Dexter, in the absence of friend wife, is batting around the century mark with respect to attending fights. He hasn't missed one within a radius of fifty miles of Los Angeles.

Louis Chaudet had a celebration all his own this week, for from the local exchange he found that twenty-seven of the pictures he had directed, mostly Nestor comedies, were shown in Los Angeles during the previous week.

George French has played so many minister and justice of the peace parts for wedding scenes in Christie comedies, that he can recite the marriage ceremony backwards, crosswise and checkerboard style, whatever that is.

The new schoolhouse at Foxburg was opened this week. The equipment contains everything from colored chalk to a picture of George Washington, and the children are now busy four hours every day learning their three R's.

Helen Holmes went shopping this week and bought cows, and calves, and hogs, and plows, and everything for her Utah farm. Her needed presence at the studio prevented her from driving the new tractor through the eighteen hundred miles to the patch.

Frank E. Woods believes that people should see America first in films, for he has written a story which provides for a continental tour ending at another Broadway. Gosh, how the players hate it! Lloyd Ingraham is thankful for the opportunity to get away from the hold-up men.

Alliteration Mary, the Mutual Maid, and her Dir., Jim Kirkwood, from SaBee, were in town this week.

Wedding bells have been ringing according to neat and nifty announcements. Congrats to Paul Gulick.

Tony Marino is raising and rearing his own mustache and Consolidated Crepe Hair has dropped two points since it became known.

Oscar Apfel won first and third prizes at the county poultry show with his White Rocks—a kind of chickens, not a temperance drink.

Milt Hoffman, Lasky studio general manager, contends that renewals of contracts tend to break up his efficiency system, for it takes so long to read all the whereases.

Wally Reid is appearing as a convict who works in the prison carpenter shop and every workman at the Lasky studio agrees with Wally that as a carpenter he is some fiddler.

Chet Withey drove up to the Fine Arts studio Thursday in a bright blue taxi, and all film folk, forgetful of his New Year resolutions, thought something had happened to him, but Mr. Withey was in perfect health.

An L-Ko dummy fell under one of our street cars and now the vehicle has a flat wheel. The accident caused a panic. One woman fainted, for she thought it was Dan Russell. Archie Mayo tells this story for the truth.

Upon returning from Fort Bragg, Harold Lockwood said he caught a ten-pound trout, Lester Cuneo reported shooting two bears, and May Allison told us she found a pearl in an oyster. Fred Balshofer explained what was the matter with them.

Bill Brunton, Signalite, has stepped into the limelight as manager of the recently organized teams of the ice hockey association. Bill is an old skater—ice skater—who hockeyed all over British Columbia before movie magnates saw his curly hair.

"Mickey," Mabel Normand's first picture, is spoken of as the director's Waterloo, Richard Jones being the third director on the subject.

The mother of Virginia Corbin told a publicity writer the child was "precocious," but as the story had "ferocious"—the writer has taken to the woods.

The boys at college want George Walsh to come back so they can have him on the football team, but he can't be persuaded to return to the days of cramming.

May Allison volunteers to be umpire for the Yorke-Metro baseball team, and Gladys Brockwell insists she will be captain of the Fox Film Girlies' Club. Looks like an early spring.

ADVANCE OFFERINGS OF THE PROGRAMS

Added Subjects in Essanay's Marriage Series

"Is Marriage Sacred?" Essanay's series of dramatic photoplays dealing with problems of matrimony, as announced in last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS, has been extended.

The first of the added photodramas will be "The Pulse of Madness," a dramatic offering hinging on an inconsequential quarrel between a man and his wife which develops into home-destroying proportions.

Other subjects added to the series will be "The Pallid Dawn," "The Wifeless Husband," "Meddling with Marriage," and "The Tomb of Romance."

These productions, as has been the case with previous units of the "Is Marriage Sacred?" series, will have a screen time approximately of thirty minutes. They will be released through the General Film Service.

Plan Two Ultra Subjects as Full Evening Program

The first of a series of two and three reel dramas will shortly be released by Ultra Films, Inc., under a novel plan. The idea is to give an entire evening's program in two subjects, made up of one three-reel subject and a two-reeler.

The first offering will consist of "Doom," two reels; "Romance and Ransom," three reels. "Doom" has to do with the love affair of a military inventor whose new explosive formula destroys the man who tries to steal it. One of the unusual scenes of the picture shows the demolition of a ship by the new explosive, which acts only upon contact with water.

"Romance and Ransom" centers about intrigue in two small states in Central Europe, and the action carries one back to the days of the medieval robber barons when romance and ransom were linked in well nigh every political episode.

Leading Fox Players on February's Program

Theda Bara in Another Siren Role—Valeska Suratt and Her Gowns—June Caprice and Stuart Holmes Will All Be Seen

FOUR of the biggest stars under William Fox's management will appear in a group of photoplays which the Fox Film Corporation offers for the first three weeks in February. Five large productions will be crowded into the month.

Those who have the stellar roles in the announced quartet of releases are Theda Bara, Stuart Holmes, Valeska Suratt and June Caprice.

On Feb. 5 Miss Suratt will appear in "The New York Peacock." The picture is said to have many startling effects in scenic settings. As Zena the siren, the star wears a startling collection of gowns and millinery creations. Harry Hilliard, Eric Mayne, Alice Gale, Claire Whitney, W. W. Black, John Mackin and Frank Goldsmith are in the supporting cast. Mary Murillo is author of the scenario and Kenean Buel the director and both are favorably known.

"The Scarlet Letter" presented on Feb. 15 features Stuart Holmes. Mary Martin and Kittens Reichert are prominent in the cast. Carl Harbaugh made the picturization from Hawthorne's novel, and Georges Benoit directed the production.

Miss Bara is seen in another vampire part as the Princess Petrovitch in "The Tiger Woman" which will be released Feb. 19. J. Gordon Edwards filmed the script which was written by Adrian Johnson from the story of James W. Adams. Supporting Miss Bara are E. F. Roseman, Louis Dean, Emil De Varny, John Webb Dillon, Glen White, Mary Martin, Herbert Hayes and Kittens Reichert.

"A Child of the Wild" released simultaneously with the Bara feature, stars June Caprice in the role of a mountain girl.

"Lost and Found" Features Fawcett

William N. Selig announces "Lost and Found," a Selig feature drama, with George Fawcett, for release in General Film Service. The production was directed by Al Green who is also the author of the story. Mr. Fawcett and Vivian Reed are seen at their best, and the play is of unusual excellence.

"The Saddle Girth" is the name of another Selig drama scheduled for General Film Service. The production features Louella Maxam and Tom Mix.

The Selig-Tribune will continue to be released every Monday and Thursday in General Film Service and will spare no expense in presenting the latest in news pictorials.

"A Strange Adventure" Released

William N. Selig announces the release in General Film service of "A Strange Adventure," said to be a shorter length subject of unusual merit. The subject, written and directed by Marshal Neilan, presents Jack Pickford and Bessie Eyton in versatile roles. Miss Eyton is the Princess incognito, while Mr. Pickford is stricken with love at first sight of her. Then things are said to happen in rapid succession.

Brenon as a Leading Man

The two-act comedy drama, "The Girl of the Hour," with Herbert Brenon in the leading role, will be released on Feb. 13 by the Universal Company.

Miriam Cooper Reclines in Furs Surrounded by Valeska Suratt, Both Fox Stars

Scenes from Short Subjects That Lend Variety to Universal Program

Live Subjects Predominate on "U" Program

Releases Bring Popular Stars to Screen in Strong Features—Comedies and Cartoons Lend to Variety

TOPPING the Universal program for the week is the Red Feather five-act feature, "The Terror," a photoplay of the underworld. The story was written and produced by Raymond Wells, from the scenario of Fred Myton. The leading role is played by Jack Mulhall, who depicts a young gunman whose finer qualities are brought out by the love of a Salvation Army lassie. In the cast supporting Mr. Mulhall are Malcolm Blevins, Noble Johnson, Jean Hersholt, Virginia Lee, Grace McLean and Hugh Hoffman. "The Terror" will be released Monday, February 12.

The comedy element of the program is supplied by the Nestor, L-Ko and Joker brands. "A Hasty Hazing," the Nestor of February 12, features Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts and shows the manner in which a bridegroom gets all the hazing rightly due a freshman. It was produced by Louis Chaudet from a scenario by Bess Meredyth. "The End of a Perfect Day" is a two-reel L-Ko, released on Wednesday, February 14. Another L-Ko, "Brave Little Waldo," featuring Fatty Voss, comes on Friday, February 16. The Joker aggregation, headed by Gale Henry and William Franey, appears in a picture entitled "Mule Mates," released on Saturday, February 17. This offers something novel in the way of comedy, owing to the presence of Fred Woodward in the cast. Mr. Woodward is a well-known animal impersonator and is seen in the garb of a donkey in "Mule Mates."

The Gold Seal of Tuesday, February 13 entitled "The Indian's Lament," lends three reels of drama to the week's program. Marie Walcamp is featured with Lee Hill. The one-reel Victor picture released the same day, "The Girl of the Hour," is a dramatic subject starring Herbert Brenon and Vivian Prescott. "The Girl Reporter's Scoop," a two-reel Imp drama of newspaper life, issued on Wednesday, February 14, has Irene Hunt and Roy Stewart as principals.

Carter De Haven and Flora Parker De Haven appear in "The Losing Winner," a two-reel Victor comedy drama for Thursday, February 15. "The Half Breed's Confession," a Big U Western drama, is the companion picture for the same day

"The Fourth Witness," released Friday, February 16, as a two-reel Laemmle, is a dramatic picture with a touch of mystery. Louise Lovely and Lee Hill are the featured players. The seventh issue of the Universal Screen Magazine comes on the same day.

The three-reel picture "Robinson Crusoe," based on the well-known work of Daniel DeFoe, with Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer starred, is released as a special feature the week of February 12. Special advertising, including a variety of paper and window card posters, has been prepared for this subject.

A two-reel melodrama, a story of Wall street, entitled "John Osborn's Triumph," is a Bison release of February 17. Murdock MacQuarrie and a strong cast of Universal favorites appear.

"Broken Hearted," a one-reel Laemmle, released February 17, starring William Shay, and a "Mr. Fuller Pep" cartoon, "Mr. Fuller Pep—He Does Some Quick Moving," which is split with a Dr. Dorsey educational, released under the Powers brand on Sunday, February 18, add variety to the program.

The eighth episode of "The Purple Mask," "The Secret Adventure," is the remaining picture of the week. Francis Ford and Grace Cunard continue their precarious adventures in this.

Advertising Matter on Caine Picture Ready

A special line of paper and advertising matter has been prepared for the Arrow Film Corporation's state rights picture, "The Deemster," featuring Derwent Hall Caine, son of the author, Hall Caine.

Two styles of twenty-sheets, two styles of six-sheets, three styles of three-sheets, and three styles of one-sheets have been prepared for this attraction. In addition to this line of paper, special press sheets, lobby display and other materials have also been prepared all of which will doubtless aid the exhibitor in the showing of this film, one of the most remarkable reproductions of one of Hall Caine's works.

Varied Topics Embodied in Gaumont Program

The Gaumont Company opens the week of February 18 with the entertaining "Reel Life." This issue, No. 42, is worthy of note for the diversity as well as the interest of the subjects it contains. There are comprehensive pictures of "Oysters on the Mississippi Coast." The "Properties of Water" is a revelation to those unacquainted with its power and possibilities On the same reel are "Making an Individual Dress Form," "Training Man-Hunters" (bloodhounds), and "Dance of the Rainbow," an aesthetic open-air dance

The second release of the week is "Tours Around the World" No. 16, reaching the screen February 20. It provides pictures of the Scottish Highlands, Heidelberg, Germany; Monte Carlo, Monaco, and the neighboring watering place, Mentone, France. The pictures from Scotland are of the northeastern part of the Highlands in County Cromarty.

February 21 Gaumont will release its split-reel "See America First" and the Gaumont Kartoon Komic. The scenic, No. 76, is Vicksburg, Miss., and the National Military Cemetery there. The humorous contribution from the pen of Harry Palmer is "Polly's Day at Home," revealing chapters in the life of a mischievous parrot.

On the same day the Mutual Weekly is issued from the Gaumont laboratories.

Satanic Majesty Film Riles Ohio Censors

"The Devil's Pay Day" has been barred from Ohio by the Ohio Board of Censorship on the ground that it is immoral. It is being questioned whether the censors took the same stand on this film as they did on "The Devil's Daughter." It was said then that the Ohio Board of Censorship went on the theory that, as there was no definite knowledge the Devil had ever been married, there was doubt as to whether he was the fond papa of a devoted daughter; therefore the title was misleading. Exhibitors are now wondering whether in this case the Ohio censors argued that there are no salary lists known in the warmer region; therefore the Devil could not walk up to the cashier's window and collect his stipend on a pay day, which is unknown in Hades.

Triangle Presents Two Stars in Week's Releases

Dorothy Gish and William Desmond are the stars of the Triangle feature releases for February 25. Miss Gish will appear in a Fine Arts comedy drama, entitled "Stagestruck," written by Roy Somerville and directed by Edward Morrisey. William Desmond will have a vehicle well suited to his personality in "The Last of the Ingrams," an Ince-Kay Bee production, written by John Lynch and directed by Walter Edwards, under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

In "Stagestruck" Dorothy Gish is given unusual opportunities for displaying her versatility in satirical comedy roles. She plays the part of an orphan in a small town, where she lives with a crusty old uncle and aunt. Her soul yearns for an artistic career and she answers an advertisement in a newspaper to study drama by taking lessons in a school for acting. Frank Bennett plays the leading masculine role opposite Miss Gish. The other principals in the cast include Kate Toncray, Jennie Lee, Spottiswoode Aitken and Fred Warren.

William Desmond plays the title role in "The Last of the Ingrams." It concerns the regeneration of a young ne'er-do-well, through his meeting with the village Magdelene, and of his conquest of the narrow-minded bigots who strove to drive the two from their altar of sacrifice.

Five Contracts Daily Record of Vita Branch

Under the management of W. C. Gookin the Kansas City exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E. has added 121 new accounts in the thirty consecutive days between December 15 and January 15, often reputed the worst time of the theatrical year.

The new contracts are all for Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature service, and, with two exceptions, include "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's new adventure serial.

Mary Miles Minter Grown Up with her Hair Up (American)

Morality Play in New Form, Mutual Release

"Damaged Goods" Reissued in Seven Reels—Shorty Hamilton and Ovey Comedies, Weekly and Topicals Balance Program

A NEW edition of "Damaged Goods," one of the most successful dramas with a moral produced on stage or screen, will be released on the Mutual schedule for February 12. Richard Bennett, who is responsible for both the legitimate and picture productions, has personally supervised the revision of this picture, which is presented in seven reels. A new introduction has been made and the entire production has been carefully re-edited.

Aside from being a preachment on morality, "Damaged Goods" illustrates by a living example what harvest may accrue from even a thoughtless sowing of wild oats, and presents an unusually strong, powerfully gripping, drama.

Appearing with Mr. Bennett are Adrienne Morrison, Maude Milton, Olive Templeton, Josephine Ditt, Jacqueline Moore, Florence Short, John Steppling, Louis Bennison, William Bertram, and George Ferguson.

The eighth chapter of the Mutual series "Perils of Our Girl Reporters" will be released this week under the title "Birds of Prey." Helen Greene and Earl Metcalfe have the principal roles and are assisted by Edith Sinclaire and Arthur W. Mathews.

In this story Helen Greene, as Claire Bristow, the girl reporter, in search of a story answers an advertisement as companion to Mrs. Durkee, an eccentric and very wealthy widow. In this position Claire unearths the plot of two foreign crooks, posing as friends of Mrs. Durkee, to get possession of her almost priceless jewels.

The fifth of the "Adventures of Shorty Hamilton" series, "Shorty Turns Wild Man," will be released on February 12. In this story Shorty, in another attempt to assist Anita Keller in her Secret Service work, makes up as a wild man and attempts to frighten thieves away from a radium mine.

David Horsley presents George Ovey in a Cub Comedy on February 15, under the title "Jerry's Big Mystery." Supporting Mr. Ovey appear George George, Claire Alexander, Goldie Colwell, Jefferson Osbourne, M. J. McCarthy, Arthur Munns, Ray Lincoln and Tom Riley.

On February 18 Vogue films contributes "Lured and Cured," in which Lillian Hamilton and Paddy McQuire create the principal laughs.

Mutual Tours Around the World, ready February 12, takes the travelers to three countries. First Mount St. Michel, in France is visited, the Lake Iseo, Italy, and then a jump is made to Africa where views of Morocco of yesterday and today are shown.

Mutual Weekly, No. 111, will be released on February 14. On this day also appears "See America First," which this week shows views in and around Los Angeles, Cal. The usual Kartoon Komic completes the reel.

Reel Life, issued February 18, is made up of five subjects, "Oysters on the Mississippi Coast," "Properties of the Water," "Making an Individual Dress Form," "Training Man Hunters" and "The Dance of the Rainbow."

Market Soon to Have First Conquest Pictures

THE first five-reel grouped release of Edison Conquest Pictures has been assembled and will be placed on the market as soon as the final arrangements for the distribution of these productions have been completed.

The outstanding feature of the initial program is a three-part production of Ralph Henry Barbour's well-known story of "prep" school life and football, "The Half-Back." It is produced in co-operation with two widely known preparatory schools that are located in the vicinity of New York, with all of the atmosphere of campus life, and introduces an actual spirited football game. The struggles of Joel March for knowledge and fame and his ultimate triumph on the athletic field and in the class room, is said to produce a fitting picture for the first Conquest Pictures program.

The subjects completing the first program are "The Passing of the Red Man," a visit to the reservation of one of the last tribes of Blackfeet Indians; "Puss in Boots," a presentation in animated silhouettes of the well-known fairy tale; "The Life History of the Silk Worm," a quasi-scientific film made in the Edison Laboratories under Mr. Edison's personal direction, and "The Dinosaur and the Missing Link," a comedy actual models, in motion, of prehistoric man and his curious pets.

While no definite date can be fixed for the initial release of Conquest Pictures, it is stated that they will be placed on the market within a very few weeks.

Davenport Is Metro Director

Harry Davenport has been added to the directing staff of Metro Pictures Corporation, and will direct Lionel Barrymore in his next five-part screen production, a comedy drama by Juno Mathis. Mr. Davenport is a member of the famous Davenport family, being a brother of Fanny Davenport and of Edgar L. Davenport. His father was the celebrated E. L. Davenport.

Mr. Davenport recently went into motion picture work as an actor, having appeared on the speaking stage in a number of Broadway successes. He spent a year with Pathe, then went to Vitagraph.

Kitty Gordon Picture Completed

The first of the Kitty Gordon series of World Pictures has been completed in Cuba. The subject is a screen version of "Forget-Me-Not." Montagu Love is seen in the supporting cast.

HOW PICTURES ARE BOOKING

Biggest Houses Book "The Girl Philippa"

Extended Engagements to Be Played in Large Amusement Centers—Souvenir Book-Musical Score Supplied Exhibitors

FOLLOWING its record-breaking run at the Rialto theatre, New York, "The Girl Philippa," Vitagraph's eight-reel presentation of Robert W. Chambers' famous novel, with Anita Stewart in the title role, last week began its country-wide exhibition.

Chicago, Boston, Seattle, Birmingham, Cleveland, Tacoma, Des Moines, Providence and other great amusement centers have all booked the production, which Vitagraph officials declare is the biggest money-maker yet released through Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

The big Ziegfeld theatre, Chicago, began its run of "The Girl Philippa" on February 3. Reports were that the house was sold out of its reserved seats for the first week. The Modern theatre, Boston, shows the Vita feature for two weeks, beginning February 5. A request was made by the management for the privilege of extending the run if desired, but this could not be guaranteed because of heavy bookings.

In Seattle, the Clemmer theatre opened a two weeks' run of the production on January 28, with widespread interest promising crowded houses. The Strand, Birmingham's largest photoplay palace, will show "The Girl Philippa," starting February 11. Tacoma opens with the feature on the same day as Seattle, January 28.

In Des Moines the Majestic theatre begins an engagement of the picture February 25 at what is said to be the highest rental ever contracted for by an Iowa house. Providence, R. I., will see the spectacle at the Modern theatre, a two weeks' run beginning February 12.

A special souvenir book on "The Girl Philippa," with its cover printed in three colors and its type matter on sepia paper, has been sent to all Vitagraph V-L-S-E. exchanges for the use of exhibitors among their patrons. The book is supplied at cost price. A third edition has been printed. Each edition has totaled 250,000 copies.

Free musical score sheets for full orchestra, prepared by S. L. Rothapfel for "The Girl Philippa" when it was shown at the Rialto, also are available.

Western Cities Take Scenics

Consolidated Film Corp., of Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal., who are handling in that territory scenics and educational films, report that they have just signed a contract with Eugene H. Roth, of the Portola theatre, San Francisco, calling for one year solid booking of these subjects.

Another contract has been closed with T. L. Tally of Tally's Broadway theatre in Los Angeles, for eighteen solid months' booking.

Small Towns Booking Features for Long Runs

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L S-E., was in receipt last week of four contracts for approval and closing from different localities, the contracts in each case being for yearly feature and short-reel service from Vitagraph in the leading theatres in the respective localities.

The Rialto theatre, Detroit; the Strand, Evanston, Ill.; the Grand, Madison, Wis., and the Princess, Joliet, Ill., all have contracted for Blue Ribbon features for a year, beginning at once.

In every case the contract calls for a Blue Ribbon feature every week, with the length of the run anywhere from two to four days.

Two remarkable contracts were signed for "The Fall of a Nation" last week. The Gay theatre, at Knoxville, Tenn., will run this production, which is now released through Vitagraph V-L-S-E. exchanges, for four days, marking the longest run ever accorded a picture in that city.

The city of Morristown, Tenn., very evidently is going to its one theatre in relays, for the Princess there has contracted for "The Fall of a Nation" for four days. The population of Morristown is a little less than 4,000.

Gladys Hulette (Thanhouser)

Nebraska and Iowa Like "Snow White"

The reception being given "Snow White" by Nebraska and Iowa exhibitors bids fair for the progress of children's matinees. While not all the bookings are for special children's days, most of them are and in a number of cases the exhibitors are paying voluntary tribute to the worth of the picture.

J. E. Wallace, superintendent of schools at Shaler, Ia., booked the picture for two days, and gave a special matinee of his own which was a big success. C. W. Bartlett of the Majestic, Fairbury, Neb., declared when in Omaha the other day, "As a box office attraction, it's a winner and best of all, it satisfied my patrons. Both children and grownups were so well pleased they stopped at the door to tell me about it." William Hemsky of the Palace, Cedar Rapids, Ia., after a first showing re-booked the picture for three more days. "I showed it to a thousand school children and teachers, and I know that many saw the picture twice before they left the theatre," he said. "They praised it wonderfully." Mrs. R. S. Tate of the Opera House at Sidney, Ia., said she showed it to capacity houses the day after Christmas—a hard day—and everybody spoke highly of it as a charming picture.

"More pictures of this kind would certainly head off this censorship talk," was a frequent expression by exhibitors.

Postcard Canvass Brings Praises of Gaumont Weekly

Announcement was recently made that the Gaumont staff was kept informed of how the Gaumont Pictures were pleasing exhibitors by a frequent postcard canvass as well as by reports through Mutual Branch Managers. The latest release through Mutual concerning which the Gaumont Company has made inquiries is the Mutual Weekly. This was by means of post cards, and the replies have been highly gratifying.

This news-reel owes its popularity in part to the European connections of the Gaumont Company through which events of importance abroad are secured.

South Praises Gaumont Series

Reports from Southern exhibitors indicate that the Mutual-Gaumont series, "The Vampires," is playing to the S.R.O. sign at the majority of houses.

From the Hauber theatre, Pine Bluff, Arkansas, has come a report that the crowd attending on the first day's showing of the first episode could not be handled. A similar testimonial is sent from the Elite theatre, Jackson, Tenn. The Mill-Clapp theatre, Okolona, Miss., reports that "The Vampires" has made a greater hit than any serial previously booked.

Robert Warwick Has Strong Emotional Opportunities in the Selznick Release, "The Court of St. Simon"

Run on Exchanges for "Seven Deadly Sins"

Demands of exhibitors for bookings of "Seven Deadly Sins," the McClure series of five-reel pictures is exceeding all expectations according to reports from the Triangle exchanges.

The widespread publicity campaign, followed by meritorious productions are given by the producers as reasons in explanation of the large bookings.

C. B. Price, Western division manager for McClure Pictures has ordered double the number of prints first called for. In the East, Joseph Partridge, manager, reports he is unable to take care of the numerous calls for bookings of the series and almost every mail brings in additional requests.

Solid Loew Booking for "Big V" Comedies

Marcus Loew has contracted for forty days' solid booking on all of Greater Vitagraph's "Big V" comedies. This contract, which went into effect on February 2, beginning with the New York theatre, was secured by George Balsdon, Jr., at the New York exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E. Twenty-seven of the Loew houses are now running "The Secret Kingdom," Vitagraph's new adventure serial, as a first-run attraction. The "Big V" comedies will be featured in the same way by the Loew chain.

Twin City Houses Contract for "V" Pictures

Finkelstein & Ruben, controlling several of the largest motion picture theatres in Minneapolis and St. Paul, last week signed a contract with W. K. Howard, manager of the Minneapolis exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, for the use of Greater Vitagraph features and short-reel subjects in all their houses.

With several leading releasing companies without a first run in either Minneapolis or St. Paul, the efforts to secure such a contract were unusually spirited among the local exchanges.

Reviewers High in Praise of "Patria" Serial

Press Describes Pathe-International Picture as "Dainty," "Beautiful" and "Thrilling"—Mrs. Vernon Castle Applauded

IN corroboration of exhibitors' reports, the press in many sections of the country has acclaimed "Patria," the Pathe-International serial with Mrs. Vernon Castle as star, as one of the best and most delightful pictures produced

R. E. Pritchard says in the New Orleans Item: "'Patria' reveals one of the most beautiful productions ever shown on any screen. Probably every one in the audience was surprised at the daintiness of the production, the wonderful photography and the clever acting, but these things were not accomplished at a sacrifice of thrills, for there is action every minute, and the ending of each episode leaves the spectator hardly able to wait for the next.

"We have been led to think of Mrs. Castle merely as a dainty dancer, but in this serial she proves herself to be one of our best actresses. There is an unusually strong cast supporting her. Apparently nothing has been spared to make this serial a big success. As it stands now, there has never been a better serial made."

"A thrill a foot might well be the advertising description of 'Patria,'" says the Detroit Journal.

"In the first three episodes Mrs. Castle had ridden a horse at breakneck speed, swam for her life, motor-boated, scaled a ship's side hand over hand up a rope, dove off an ocean liner, shot out a fuse that threatened to blow her out of the picture, and crouched in a racing motor that zipped through guarding gates across the very path of a speeding express train.

"If there remained any more things in the realm of humanly possible, undoubtedly the director has saved them for the succeeding episodes."

John De Koven in the Cleveland Leader says:

"Mrs. Castle in 'Patria' not only swings a pistol as swiftly as W. S. Hart, but jumps from the mast of a burning ship, races a motor and launch, clings to a life buoy in an icy sea, operates a machine gun in the trenches, flies an aeroplane, wrestles with Mexicans and Japanese, plunges over a waterfall into a whirlpool—and wears an assortment of styles that will make Billie Burke ill. This serial is heralded to have cost a million. It will be, we should say, easily the serial hit of the year."

The Birmingham Herald, at Birmingham, Ala., in announcing the presentation of "Patria" at the Rialto theatre says:

"'Patria' is heralded as the greatest serial of the age, with the best-known woman in America as the star, and backed by the greatest advertising and publicity campaign ever launched. The first episode has drawn and delighted thousands at the Rialto. It is indeed the serial supreme, as claimed by its producers."

Howard S. Clemmer of the Clemmer theatre, Spokane, wired Pathe's New York office as follows:

"We had the pleasure this evening of showing 'Patria' to over twelve hundred Spokane society people. Two shows to accommodate crowd in elegant ballroom new $3,000,000 Davenport Hotel. Whole affair wonderful success."

Broadway Showing of "Skinner's Dress Suit"

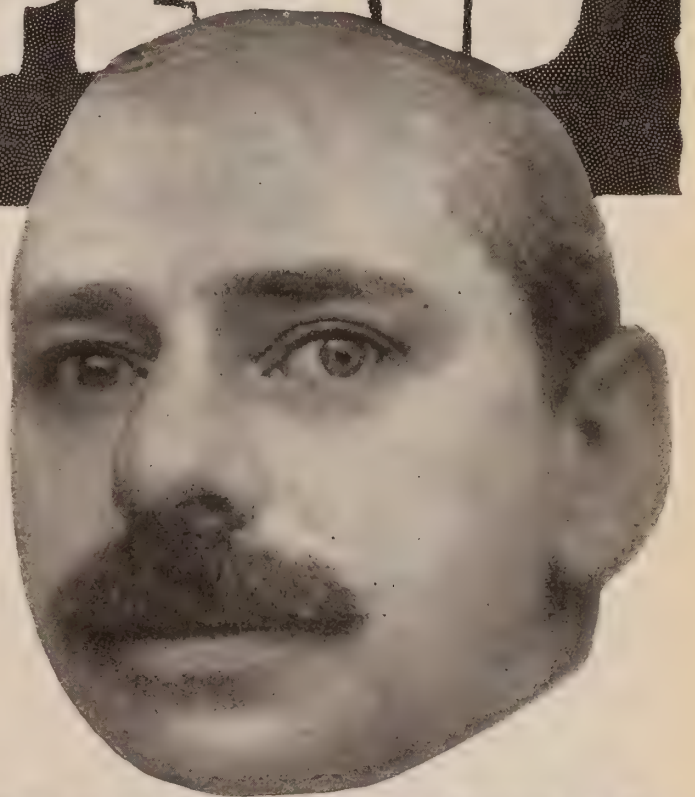
The Rialto will give the premier showing in New York of the Essanay production "Skinner's Dress Suit" for the week starting February 18. An advance showing convinced Mr. Rothapfel, manager of the playhouse that the picture was one of the best released in some time.

The story was written by Henry Irving Dodge, and was first published in the Saturday Evening Post and later in book form. It is now reckoned as the third best seller on the market, rapidly overhauling the two leaders. The picture is said to be intensely human and to possess dramatic features of the highest order.

Bryant Washburn has the lead in the production. Hazel Daly, Harry Dunkinson, James C. Carroll and U. K. Haupt are in the supporting roles.

The endorsement of tremendous weight w building for permane Exhibitor can ignore T ment of These Leaders who have achieved su

BLUEBIRD



S. L. ROTHAPFEL needs no introduction to the Trade. He is known (if not in person—by reputation) to every Exhibitor in the business. Mr. Rothapfel, by virtue of his exceptional managerial ability, keen foresight and knowledge of what the public wants, has achieved a brilliant success. That is distinctly why we doubly emphasize the fact that in Mr. Rothapfel's choosing BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAYS for the Rialto (America's Finest Moving Picture Theatre) he has set an example that will be followed by the shrewdest Exhibitors in the Trade. IT'S A PRETTY SAFE BET TO FOLLOW THE FOOTSTEPS OF SUCCESSFUL MEN. Think it over.

S. L. ROTHAPFEL

BLUEBIRD
1600 BROADWAY

hese Two Men carries
th Exhibitors who are ce.-No serious minded
e Foresight and judg of the Exhibiting industry
ccess and who have chosen
PHOTO-PLAYS

MARCUS LOEW, as one of the largest individual owners of Moving Picture Theatre Circuits in the entire world, THINKS before HE ACTS, and always bases his judgment on something tangible. This "Something Tangible" is "the wishes of his patrons." Mr. Loew realizes as does Mr. Rothapfel, that the life of pictures depends on the QUALITY of the pictures and NOT upon the Star. That's why Mr. Loew booked BLUE-BIRD PHOTO PLAYS in all his Theatres. Thousands of shrewd men have succeeded by following the examples of other successful men. Apply that successful principle to your Business.

'HOTO PLAYS
NEW YORK CITY

MARCUS LOEW

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

Which? Specialties or Regular Releases

Special Releases on the Universal Program for the Week of February 26, 1917.

RED FEATHER—"THE GIRL AND THE CRISIS"—(Five-Reel Drama). W. V. Mong and Dorothy Davenport.

NESTOR—"A MILLION IN SIGHT"—(One-Reel Comedy). Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran.

L-KO—"SPIKE'S BIZZY BIKE"—(Two-Reel Comedy). Dan Russell.

REX—"THE RENTED MAN"—(Two-Reel Drama). Claire McDowell, M. K. Wilson.

VICTOR—"THEY WERE FOUR"—(One-Reel Comedy). Neal Hart.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE No. 8.

BISON—"THE TORNADO"—(Two-Reel Western). Jack Ford.

JOKER—"PASSING THE GRIP"—(One-Reel Comedy). Gale Henry and Wm. Franey.

POWERS—"MR. FULLER PEP—AN OLD BIRD PAYS HIM A VISIT"—(Comedy Cartoon)—and "The Land of Buddha Seen by Dr. Dorsey"—(Split Reel).

Regular Releases on the Universal Program for the Week of February 26th, 1917.

GOLD SEAL—"MARY FROM AMERICA"—(Three-Reel Comedy Drama). Douglas Gerrard and Ruth Clifford.

VICTOR—"A NOVEL ROMANCE"—(One-Reel Comedy Drama). Flora Parker DeHaven and Paul Byron.

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY No. 61.

IMP—"A NIGHT OF TERROR"—(One-Reel Drama). Matt Moore and Jane Gail.

IMP—"EVIL HANDS"—(One-Reel Drama). Edith Roberts and Edward Hearn.

BIG U—"A BATTLE OF WITS"—(Two-Reel War Drama). Harold Lockwood.

LAEMMLE—"UNDOING EVIL"—(One-Reel Drama). King Baggot and Jane Gail.

IMP—"TANGLED THREADS"—(Two-Reel Underworld Drama). Lorimer Johnson and Ted Sloman.

BIG U—"BURIED ALIVE"—(One-Reel Western Drama). Wallace Reed and Dorothy Davenport.

The Two Combined Constitute the full UNIVERSAL Program

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

To the Exhibitor Who Runs an "Open Booking" or "Feature" House

You are always on the lookout for distinctly good specialties that will strengthen your show, popularize your house and add to your profits. The specialties in the smaller circle above are the finest of short reel subjects that can be booked anywhere. Look over the list, and thank the Universal for so arranging the great Universal program that by paying a slight advance you can book these marvelous attractions and be assured that you have crowd getters no matter what else you may have on your program. This list is made for your convenience. Read it carefully and then communicate with your nearest Universal Exchange or with the home office at the address given below.

To the Exhibitor Who Runs a "Program" House

If you are running a program house and are not getting the patronage you think you are entitled to look at the twenty-nine reels included in the releases listed in BOTH circles above. These twenty-nine reels constitute the regular UNIVERSAL PROGRAM—the most varied and scientifically balanced Program on earth. Look at the high class Dramas with well-known stars, in two and three reels; look at the comedies, Nestors, L-KO'S and Jokers; look at the Universal Animated Weekly and the Universal Screen Magazine, the two greatest one-reel features in the world; look at the Westerns, with more punch to the reel than most other five reel Westerns; look at the Red Feather five reel feature, the peer of any five reelers on the market. You can't beat this layout, gentlemen. Better get in line for good business to-day by writing to your nearest Universal Exchange, or to

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 Broadway - - - - - - - - - - New York

Book the Complete UNIVERSAL Program

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea"

Territory Going Fast

Look at the Map

STATE RIGHTS

On this—the most remarkable picture ever filmed—the stupendous production that is still the sensation of Broadway, where at the Broadway Theatre it played to $22,000 in two weeks—are going rapidly as a glance at the map will show.

This remarkable realization and visualization of Jules Verne's great dreams and future prophecies as foretold in his 50 year old classic "20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA" cost a half a million dollars to produce and was over two years in the making.

It is an ideal State Rights production, because so long as people can read, Jules Verne's wonderful tale will be read, and the people will clamor to see the story in this great picture. It will be as great a box office attraction five years from now as it is today when it is breaking all records wherever shown.

Write today for the magnificent book giving full particulars regarding every detail of this mammoth production, including advertising props, etc. Address all communications to the STATE RIGHTS DEPT. of the

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

1600 Broadway CARL LAEMMLE, President "The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe" New York

Undersea Photography Made Possible by the Williamson Bros. Inventions

"This is Hell Morgan's Girl"

You Doubt Her
You Accuse Her
You Pity Her
You Condemn Her
You Hate Her
You Love Her
SHE'S WONDERFUL

STATE RIGHTS
Now Selling

State Rights Men and Exhibitors who understand the Box Office value of State Right Productions, will need no selling arguments to convince them of the golden flood of profits in "HELL MORGAN'S GIRL". One single inspection of a sample print will SELL any State Rights man and book any Exhibitor in the country

"HELL MORGAN'S GIRL" altho' powerful of title, is one of the greatest pieces of direction ever known—the story is unusual—the scenes and settings lavish and faithful to the last degree and there's not one single iota of suggestiveness in the entire five reels. It's a money getter from the word "Go". Wire for territory, terms and information to the STATE RIGHTS DEP'T of the UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURINC CO.

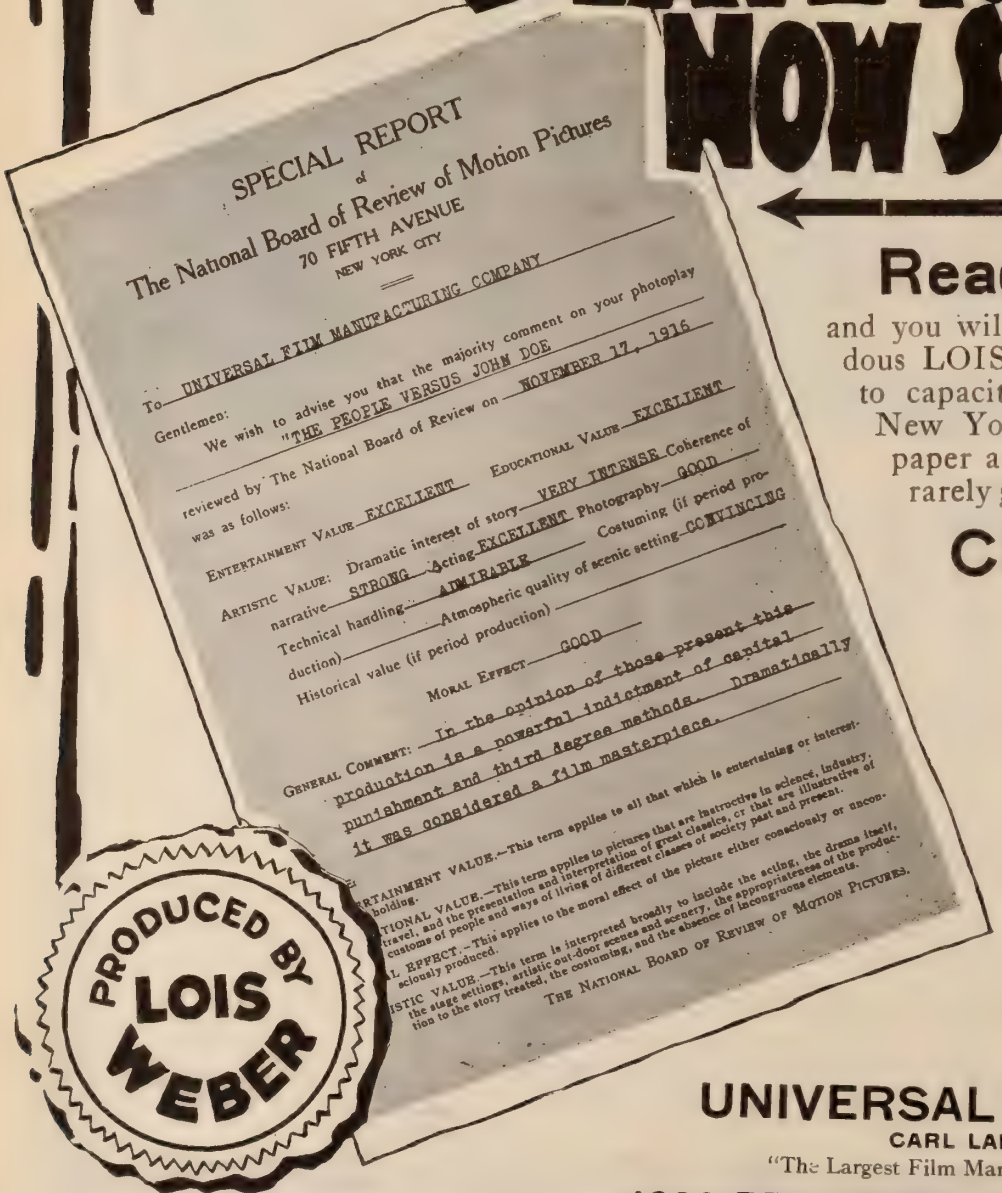
CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"



1600 Broadway NEW YORK

"The PEOPLE AGAINST JOHN DOE"

Produced by Lois Weber

Producer of such notable successes as "Where Are My Children?"...."Shoes"....
....."Scandal"....."Jewel".....
"Hypocrites".....and others.

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

SPECIAL REPORT
of
The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures
70 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK CITY

To UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Gentlemen:

We wish to advise you that the majority comment on your photoplay "THE PEOPLE VERSUS JOHN DOE" reviewed by The National Board of Review on NOVEMBER 17, 1916 was as follows:

ENTERTAINMENT VALUE—EXCELLENT EDUCATIONAL VALUE—EXCELLENT

ARTISTIC VALUE: Dramatic interest of story—VERY INTENSE—Coherence of narrative—STRONG—Acting—EXCELLENT—Photography—GOOD—Technical handling—ADMIRABLE—Costuming (if period production)—Atmospheric quality of scenic setting—CONVINCING—Historical value (if period production)—

MORAL EFFECT—GOOD

GENERAL COMMENT: In the opinion of those present this production is a powerful indictment of capital punishment and third degree methods. Dramatically it was considered a film masterpiece.

...RTAINMENT VALUE.—This term applies to all that which is entertaining or interest-holding.

...TIONAL VALUE.—This term applies to pictures that are instructive in science, industry, travel, and the presentation and interpretation of great classics, or that are illustrative of customs of people and ways of living of different classes of society past and present.

...L EFFECT.—This applies to the moral effect of the picture either consciously or unconsciously produced.

...STIC VALUE.—This term is interpreted broadly to include the acting, the drama itself, the stage settings, artistic out-door scenes and scenery, the appropriateness of the production to the story treated, the costuming, and the absence of incongruous elements.

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF REVIEW OF MOTION PICTURES.

PRODUCED BY LOIS WEBER

Read This Report

and you will understand why this stupendous LOIS WEBER production played to capacity at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and received from newspaper and film critics an endorsement rarely given to any cinema production.

Choice Territory Still Open

This is the ideal type of State Rights production. It not only gets the capacity crowds, but it starts discussion in Press and Pulpit, as well as among the People themselves. Choice territory still available, but quick action is necessary. Write today for handsome illustrated and descriptive folder which tells you all about this big production; advertising props, paper, etc. Address all communications to the STATE RIGHTS DEPARTMENT

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK

CHICAGO NEWS AND COMMENT

Gay Time Is Promised at Reel Fellows Ball

The Reel Fellows Ball, to be held at the Essanay studios, Saturday, Feb. 10, promises to be a huge and brilliant affair. President Geo. K. Spoor of Essanay is cooperating in every way to make the occasion the most successful in film history. During the evening every prominent Essanay player will be seen working under the Cooper Hewitts. Four sets will be run full-blast. Mr. Spoor has put all the facilities of the Argyle plant at the disposal of the Reel Fellows, including the use of the carpenter and scenery departments for decorating the studios.

Dancing will start at 9 o'clock, and the grand march will begin at 10.30. Music will be furnished by a 15 piece orchestra supplied by Benson.

The ball is being advertised by slides run in all the down-town and North Side picture houses. Window cards are being placed in stores on the north and west sides. A vigorous advertising campaign will be conducted in the newspapers. The editors of the newspaper photoplay columns are boosting the event vigorously. These aggressive advertising and publicity measures are expected to produce an attendance of 5,000.

The admission price is $1.00. The receipts will be donated to the fund now being raised by the Reel Fellows Club for its new quarters at 207 So. Wabash ave. These rooms will be officially opened at a smoker to be held in them Saturday evening, Feb. 3.

Rothacker Donor of Unique Wedding Present

Miss M. B. Morrison, who has for six years been the private secretary of Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Mfg. Co., was recently married. Mr. Rothacker and R. G. Gradwell, vice-president of World Pictures, gave outright to Miss Morrison the complete ownership of the Typewriter Film & Slide Company. This company is an Illinois corporation organized and formerly jointly owned by Messrs. Rothacker and Gradwell. It is believed that this is the first instance in business history that ownership in a duly incorporated concern has been transferred as an absolute gift.

John M. Harlan, a prominent Chicago attorney, and son of former Chief Justice Harlan of the Supreme Court of the United States, has volunteered to give Miss Morrison free legal advice whenever she needs it. This offer was also a wedding present to Miss Morrison.

R. S. McCullum who has been connected with the local Universal Exchange, is now assistant manager of the Minnesota Triangle office.

Chas. C. Pyle, Sales Agent, Bartola Instrument Company

Newsy Notes About Town

Loop theatres are finding the "better pictures and longer runs" policy a profitable one. "Intolerance" continues its success at the Colonial; "A Daughter of the Gods" still packs them in at the Studebaker, and "Panthea" will be held another week at the La Salle. Other attractions that will be continued another week are "The Man of Mystery" at the Ziegfeld, and "Are Passions Inherited?" at the Bijou Dream.

Gareth Hughes, a sensitive Welsh actor, recently brought suit against a Chicago film company to restrain it from releasing a film in which he was started. He objected to its title, "Why Girls Won't Tell." A compromise has been effected, and the feature is now christened "The Sins Of The Daughters."

Simeon B. Griever, a prominent Chicago exchange man, has organized a company known as "Chicago Agents for Mid-west Exhibitors." This concern was formed to give out of town exhibitors Chicago representation, and also to furnish them with advertising and publicity material suitable for best exploiting the films booked by members of the association.

The Chicago F. I. L. M. Club has been corresponding with the New York F. I. L. M. Club regarding a national convention. The New York organization agrees that Chicago deserves the honor of the first convention, owing to the fact that the Chicago exchangemen's club was the pioneer organization.

Jack Leaverton, manager of the Lea-Bel Company, a Chicago exchange handling feature films, announces that his concern has acquired the rights for this film for the entire United States.

(Continued on page 1086)

Were You Aware That—

Wm. Fox is offering a number of cash prizes for the best replica of the painting in the Studebaker Theatre lobby. The painting is a life-sized study of Annette Kellermann. The lobby at times has the appearance of an art school, filled as it is with Windsor ties and velvet coats.

Fred Linick recently came here to take up his duties as local sales representative of Unity Photoplays. Another recent arrival was J. W. Brickhouse, who left St. Louis to cover Northern Illinois for Art Dramas, Inc.

The Chicago Selznick office will distribute "The Masque of Life" in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, and Michigan.

F. M. Brockell and Harry Weiss, joint managers of the local Selznick offices, are being familiarly hailed as "Potash & Perlmutter." Their success in grabbing bookings entitles them to the sobriquet "The Gold Dust Twins."

Wm. M. Schwartz, president and general manager of Schwartz Films, Inc., announces that the first release of the Ella Wheeler Wilcox pictures will be "Lais when Young," instead of "A Married Coquette." Schwartz Films, Inc., is distributing the picturizations of the poetess' works in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

R. R. Nehls, general manager of the local laboratory of the American Film Company, was given an elaborate gold-mounted fountain pen upon his retirement as president of the Reel Fellows Club. This auriferous stylus is being used by its owner to sign the weekly salary checks. Very appropriate, n'est pas?

The ideas incorporated in the forthcoming Selig picture "Beware of Strangers," were conceived by Walter Howe, city editor of the Chicago Tribune.

Lubiner & Trinz have booked the McClure series "Seven Deadily Sins" for their entire circuit.

J. Wesley Smith, a member of the Rothacker Film Mfg. Company's camera department has just returned to Chicago after a twelve weeks' business trip to Denver, Colorado.

Harry Leonhardt, Western district manager of the Fox Film Company, has just left his headquarters in Chicago for a tour of all the Western Fox exchanges, including Alaska and Honolulu. This makes the sixth time during the year that Mr. Leonhardt has taken this trip. He is expected back in Chicago about the middle of March.

LIVE NEWS FROM THE PRODUCERS

Maxine Elliott to First Appear in Anspacher Play

Maxine Elliott's first screen play will be the work of Louis K. Anspacher, author of "The Unchastened Woman." The theme or character of the picture is not revealed.

The charming stage star will face the camera for the first time at the Goldwyn Fort Lee studios on Feb. 15. Announcement has been made that she will be directed by Allen Dwan.

Miss Elliott declared last week that her preparations for a picture debut has tested her patience to the utmost. Thirty-one gowns, she said, have been called for up to the moment, with more to come in the future. And Miss Elliott has accomplished the task of obtaining the gowns in twenty-seven days.

James Aubrey in Western "V" Comedies

James Aubrey will hereafter be featured in the "Big V" comedies, which now are being made at Greater Vitagraph's western studios. Another member of the "Big V" company is Edward Dunn. Billie Leslie and Virginia DeLillies are additional members of the troupe.

"Masks and Mishaps" will be the first of the western pictures in the "Big V" comedy series, dealing with domestic woes.

Cobb Story with Mae Marsh in Course of Production

The filming of a story by Irvin S. Cobb, with Mae Marsh in the starring role, is the first Goldwyn Production to get under way in the Fort Lee studios. Ralph W. Ince is directing the subject.

Marguerite Marsh, Mae's real sister, is to be her screen sister also, having been engaged by Goldwyn to play a role opposite the star.

Fortune in Advertising of Linder Comedies

Appropriation of $125,000 Set Aside by Essanay Company to Exploit Pictures of the Noted French Comedian

ESSANAY has begun a national advertising campaign on the Max Linder comedies, the first release of which, "Max Comes Across," is dated February 26. One comedy a month will be released thereafter.

President George K. Spoor has set aside $125,000 for a newspaper campaign that will be nation wide for the benefit of exhibitors booking these comedies.

At a meeting of all the branch managers of United States and Canada at the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay offices in Chicago, Sunday, January 28, at which Mr. Spoor and George Kleine were present, the first of the Linder comedies was shown. The branch managers were enthusiastic over the comedy. They were so enthusiastic, in fact, that they requested that a triple amount of paper issued on five-reel features be gotten out on each subject and double the amount of all other advertising material. The request met with approval on the part of President Spoor.

In addition to this advertising, several contest and novelty advertising "stunts" are being projected for the benefit of the exhibitor.

At the meeting there were fifty-five branch managers and salesmen in attendance. In addition to twenty-four K. E. S. E. branch office managers, there were thirty-one salesmen especially employed by Essanay Film Manufacturing Company to sell the Essanay-Max Linder Comedies during the next twelve months.

These salesmen had been drawn from all parts of the country, and were selected because of their especial adaptability, wide acquaintance with exhibitors and past records as business-getters. They will cooperate with K. E. S. E. branch office salesmen, but will be under the direct supervision of E. R. Pearson, whom George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, has employed as general supervisor in connection with this campaign.

The intensified campaign just launched is to be co-operative with the exhibitors booking Max's comedies. President Spoor offers to go fifty-fifty with the exhibitors on newspaper displays advertising the productions. In other words, Essanay will pay half the expense incurred by every exhibitor in newspaper advertising of Max Linder Comedies at his theatre.

The major portion of this huge advertising fund will be expended, it is thought, within the next ninety days. Whatever results are obtained will serve as a guidance for further appropriations.

Lewis to Direct Mystery Story

Edgar Lewis who directed the filming of Rex Beach's "The Barrier," left New York for the South last week to make a picture which he claims will surpass anything he has yet attempted.

The nature of the story, the location and for whom the picture is being made is being kept exceptionally quiet.

Max Linder in His Second Essanay Comedy "Max Wants a Divorce"

Margaret Illington Departs for West Coast

Margaret Illington, announcement of whose engagement as a Lasky star to make her motion picture debut in Paramount Pictures was recently made, departed from her home in New York last Wednesday, and is now en route for the Lasky studio at Hollywood, Cal. Immediately upon her arrival at the Lasky plant, Miss Illington will begin work on the adaptation of Basil King's successful novel "The Inner Shrine" which has been chosen as the vehicle of her first appearance on the screen.

While in Hollywood, Miss Illington will occupy the same bungalow which housed Geraldine Farrar when she was engaged at the Lasky studio.

Ever since her engagement by Lasky, Miss Illington has been a frequent visitor at the Famous Players studio where she has been a very close student of the various processes of production.

Van Dyke Co. Gets Will Davis

Will S. Davis, for the past two years prominently connected with Fox, has been engaged to direct the forthcoming Van Dyke Film Co. production "The Cloud" which will be released by Art Dramas.

A Trio of the Latest Photographs of Mary Garden, the Most Recent Addition to Goldwyn's Growing Constellation

Cohan and Company Go South

George M. Cohan, accompanied by Joe Kaufman, his director, Marguerite Snow, his leading lady, and other members of the "Broadway Jones" Company, have gone to Florida where the exteriors for the initial Cohan-Artcraft picture will be taken.

A large factory has been taken over for a week at Jacksonville, where the scenes involving the chewing gum plant will be staged. Just prior to their departure a large ball-room scene was filmed at the studio on West Fifty-sixth street, in which several hundred people took part. The scene in question portrayed one of the lavish parties given by the wild "Broadway Jones" in the course of the story and the set occupied almost the entire floor space of the big studio.

New Lead Opposite Mae Marsh

Speculation which has been rife since the parting of the team of Mae Marsh and Robert Harron, as to who would be Miss Marsh's new leading man, were met with the announcement last week that Vernon Steele, a legitimate actor, would have the place.

Mr. Steele played as leading man for Billie Burke in "Love Watches." He first came to this country with Marie Tempest. In England he played Shakespearean roles and was in Arthur Wing Pinero's production "The Mind the Paint Girl."

All-Star Cast in Ivan Picture

The first release of the Enlightenment Photoplay Corporation, of which Henry J. Brock is the directing head, made its initial bid for public favor at the Park theatre a short time ago, when "Enlighten Thy Daughter" opened for an indefinite engagement.

The cast which includes players from all the larger companies is an exceptional one including as it does Zena Keefe; Frank Sheridan, Marie Shotwell, Katherine Kaelred, James Morrison, Arthur Donaldson, Violet Horner and Rubye De Remer.

Mary Garden Signs with Goldwyn Corporation

Famous Operatic Star Will Appear in Series of Pictures—"Salome" Is Predicted as the First Subject

MARY GARDEN, international opera star, is to appear in Goldwyn productions. This announcement emanated from the offices of the producing corporation last week and was the subject of wide comment by trade and lay press.

Though it is too early for official announcement to be made of her first subject, metropolitan critics are one in predicting she will be seen in Strauss' "Salome" in which she achieved tremendous operatic success.

The terms of Miss Garden's contract with the Goldwyn Corporation call for her to make a series of motion pictures. She will shortly sail for Paris to arrange for the designing and making of her costumes for the first productions.

The signing of the American star, whose spectacular personality as well as artistic ability has made her one of the greatest public favorites here and abroad took place in Miss Garden's apartment at the Ritz-Carlton, and set at rest conflicting rumors that have gone around concerning her plans, for several months.

When Miss Garden came to America to be the chief star of the Hammerstein operatic ventures she was already established as a great operatic and dramatic artist in France. Immediately she challenged the attention and gained the friendship of her fellow Americans.

It has been said of Miss Garden that she has received greater exploitation than any other woman in modern history, and that she possesses a keener knowledge of how to hold the public's attention than the redoubtable Colonel Roosevelt.

Miss Garden's publicity escapades are historic, which fact certainly will not tend to lessen her value in films. Her most recent exploit on the front pages followed her appearance at midnight in a tramp's retreat in Chicago, where she sang for several hundred specimens of bedraggled humanity. Her addition to the Goldwyn roster is welcome news to screen followers.

Speaking Sub-Titles Success in Clune Production

One of the attractive features of the Clune Production, "The Eyes of the World" now enjoying a remarkable run at the Auditorium, Los Angeles, is the method, seldom used, by which the sub-titles record the words spoken by the characters during the action of the scenes.

As the character gives utterance to his part of a dialogue, the words which his lips form suddenly "fade in," and after a proper length of time softly fade out of the scene.

The producers of the spectacle, deciding that the ordinary sub-title appeared incongruous, and broke the thread of interest, decided to use their method whereby the title flashes in and fades out without removing the characters from the screen, and results seem to warrant their conclusion that such a process really adds to the illusion.

Fans See Star in Person

Frankie Mann, star of the Ivan producduction, "Sex Lure," is making a tour of various theatres in western Pennsylvania which are showing the film. In conjunction with the feature Miss Mann gives a short talk on the making of pictures. M. Silverman of the Liberty Film Renting Company is conducting the actress' appearances.

Change in Title of Vitagraph Feature

The motion picture title of Hamlin Garland's novel, "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," photoplay rights to which were acquired some time ago by Vitagraph, has been changed to "The Long Fight" and production of this story has been begun at Greater Vitagraph's western studios. Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno are co-starred in the subject.

Simultaneous World Showings for Williamson Pictures

AN ambitious and radical move, which will inaugurate simultaneous showings and exploitation of feature productions in the larger cities of the world, has been worked out and is to be put into immediate practice by the Williamson brothers of Submarine Picture fame, according to announcement last week.

It has been known for some time past that the Williamson Brothers were perfecting arrangements to launch their own organization on rather a big scale for the producing and marketing of their future pictures.

George Williamson, secretary of the corporation, explaining the basic reasons for the marketing scheme which will be put into effect, declared his opinion was that the marketing of productions in this country by American manufacturers for a period of time before foreign release reacted against the best results which might be obtained by simultaneous showing in foreign countries.

As the first step in carrying out this plan, arrangements have been made for three special representatives to go abroad: Russell E. Shanahan, to represent interests in England and Europe, including the Scandinavian countries; Stephen T. King, who sails this week for South America, where he will handle productions and arrange business affiliations throughout the Latin-American countries; and Stanly H. Twist, who sails within a fortnight on a complete round-the-world trip, during which he will visit South and East Africa, India, Burmah, Ceylon, Strait Settlements, Java, Samatris, Siam, the Orient, Philippines, Australasia and Hawaii. Mr. Shanahan is already in London, which he intends to make his headquarters

Development of Frohman Co. Brings Farnham as Officer

CARRYING the comprehensive titles of business manager, assistant to the president and director Plenipotentiary in Exploitation of Super-Feature Productions, Joseph W. Farnham has cast his lot with the Frohman Amusement Corporation, according to announcement of President William L. Sherrill. Arrangements were definitely concluded and a contract executed early last week.

The acquisition of Mr. Farnham, according to President Sherrill, is but another step in the efforts of the corporation to acquire men who will maintain and further build the prestige and standards of the concern.

More than eight years ago Mr. Farnham first came into the motion picture field as the writer of the Gordon Trent column for a picture page of a New York newspaper. Next he became assistant general manager of the Film Supply Company of America, remaining with the firm until its dissolution, when he became American representative for several English and Canadian motion picture manufacturing companies. Work on a trade paper followed, then Mr. Farnham became associated with the All Star Feature Corporation as director of advertising and publicity. Later he succeeded to the position of general manager and director of that company following the resignation of Harry Raver.

In 1915 he was commissioned by the Carnegie Peace Foundation to represent them on a special mission to the belligerent countries of Europe, and he remained abroad for that organization for seven months. Returning he joined the Lubin Company, and later came to New York again, opening offices under his own name to exploit special productions. Shortly after the Farnham interests were merged with the Amalgamated Photoplay Service, from which corporation he has resigned to go with the Frohman Corporation.

Joe Farnham

Markowitz Starts a "Query Bureau"

Organization of a newspaper motion picture service in Southern California territory is occupying the time of L. Markowitz, general manager of the California Universal Film Exchange in San Francisco, who has been visiting Dave Bershon, manager of the Los Angeles branch. Mr. Markowitz has already approached and interested a number of newspapers in northern California on this scheme.

Editors of the California exchange will serve as editors of a query department, and all queries sent to the newspapers interested will be correctly answered by the exchange men.

Six-Reel E. I. S. Picture Complete

Dixon Boardman, president of the E. I. S. Motion Picture Corporation, announces that "Trooper 44," the new six-reel feature, in which for the first time in the history of the screen the famed "Black Hussars," the Pennsylvania State Mounted Police, figure prominently, is now practically complete. Following the return of the "Trooper 44" company from the Pennsylvania mining regions, Mr. Boardman and Roy Gahris, who directed the picture under Mr. Boardman's personal supervision, have been busy cutting and assembling.

During the past week Major John C. Groome, superintendent and founder of the State Police, through whose courteous co-operation the troopers were allowed to appear in the most active parts of the feature, visited New York, and as the guest of Mr. Boardman witnessed several of the scenes in which his dashing troops appear run off upon the screen. He expressed himself as greatly gratified with the results, and declared that he had never realized before the wonders of the motion-picture camera. Major Groome will in all probability be a guest of honor at the premier private showing of the picture, which will take place shortly, and to which the most prominent men of the country will be invited.

The plot of "Trooper 44" deals with the adventures of Trooper Jack of the Mounted in breaking up a gang of outlaws. He falls in love with the daughter of one of the desperadoes, and exciting events follow thick and fast.

Supporting him are June Daye, Roy Gahris, W. W. Black and Roy Sheldon.

Sturgeon Signed by American to Direct Gail Kane

Following negotiations conducted by S. S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Rollin S. Sturgeon, recently director-general of the Western Vitagraph studio, last week signed a long-term contract with the American company and will join his forces at Santa Barbara.

Mr. Sturgeon's initial enterprise will be the production of a photoplay starring Gail Kane, whose acquisition by the American recently was announced by Mr. Hutchinson, and who was expected to arrive from the East last week.

In accordance with the policy of "Only big stars for Mutual," the combination of noted actress and prominent producer is expected to add much strength to American-Mutual releases. Photoplay material which has been selected as Miss Kane's first vehicle under the supervision of the president will be of highly dramatic type, of a caliber to meet the star's reputation for ability in emotional roles.

Rollin S. Sturgeon has established the reputation for painstaking, analytical regard for the logical and details of his productions and for striking effects and "atmosphere." Among his latest successes, both from a box-office and popular point of view, are "God's Country and the Woman" and "Through the Wall."

Mr. Sturgeon is a native of Rock Island, Illinois, and a graduate of Harvard Law School.

Favorite Subjects Reissued by Vitagraph

Two Vitagraph pictures which attained great vogue when first produced, "A Million Bid" and "Captain Alvarez," are shortly to be reissued in de luxe form. A number of changes in cutting and titling will be made in each subject.

Anita Stewart is the heroine of "A Million Bid," with Harry Morey playing opposite her. Ralph W. Ince directed the production.

The story of "A Million Bid" is wound around a scheming mother who plans a wealthy marriage for her beautiful daughter. Desperate under her mother's constant pleading, the girl marries the man of her mother's selection. She does not love him. Their honeymoon is tragically interrupted when the yacht on which they are touring is wrecked.

Unknown to each other, the husband and the wife are saved. The man, through the shock and a number of complicating events that offer Miss Stewart exceptional opportunities for highly emotional work, loses his memory. Interest is held from the beginning of the picture to a strong dramatic climax.

Edith Storey is cast in the role of a Spanish Girl in "Captain Alvarez," which was directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon.

Briefly, the story of "Captain Alvarez" is that of an American who visits South America. There he falls in love with a Spanish girl who sympathizes with the revolutionists, although a man who is in love with her is a spy for the other side. In order to prove his devotion, he joins with the rebels under the assumed name of "Alvarez." Eventually, and after many daring escapades in which he and the girl join, the country is made a republic.

Utah Exchanges May Close

Notification has been given three exchanges located in Salt Lake City, and operating throughout Utah, by the respective head offices, that in the event the Chez Censorship bill becomes law they are to close up and vacate the territory.

Brady Company to Turn Out Comedy Features

Success of "Tillie Wakes Up" Leads to Decision to Produce Light Subjects Probably at Month Intervals

ENTHUSIASTIC acceptance on the part of public and exhibitors of the Marie Dressler farce, "Tillie Wakes Up" was the prime cause of several conferences of William A. Brady and other officers of the World Film Corporation last week on the advisability of adopting a more elastic policy than heretofore in the concern's productions.

As a result decision was reached to modify their exclusively dramatic output and manufacture a series of comedy productions to be released at stated intervals of perhaps one a month.

The Dressler subject was first comic picture made by the World-Brady interests in more than five months. The last previous experiment of this corporation in light entertainment upon the screen was called "The Summer Girl," successfully issued last August. Since then World pictures Brady-made have adhered to the serious side of the drama.

Mr. Brady, in discussing this altered view of what the public wants, said:

"I am free to say that what happened to Miss Dressler's picture took me completely by surprise. The farce had been made purely in the way of an experiment, and I was inclined to be skeptical regarding the outcome—the more so as it was a radical departure from our settled plan, but results warrant our new decision in the matter.

"It is not always good business to induce the public to look for a certain line of product and then shift over night to the direct opposite.

"Long ago in my career as a producing manager I relinquished the idea of telling the public what it wanted, and took up the more rational pursuit of listening. Occasionally this policy has been criticized as commercialism, but I have found it quite popular at the bank and profitable to the World Film Corporation.

"We recently eliminated all our male stars excepting Carlyle Blackwell in response to a clearly developed demand for woman stars, with results of a most satisfying kind, and now we will start producing comedies as a regular thing along with our highly popularized serious plays."

Silent Drama Draws Edward Ellis, Stage Star

One of the last of the prominent theatrical stars to take up picture acting is Edward Ellis, noted for his "crook" characterization in "The Dummy," which enjoyed a year's run at the Hudson theatre in New York and proportionately long engagements elsewhere, and for the character of his acting in association with Holbrook Blinn in the Princess theatre productions. Mr. Ellis is also author of "Any Night," a play which exposed "The Raines Law Hotels."

In "The Law that Failed," by Louis Reeves Harrison, Mr. Ellis will play a character to which he is admirably adapted. Apollo Pictures, Incorporated, will produce the picture for the Art Dramas Program.

Kalem and Bechdolt Pleased

In negotiating for the services of Frederick R. Bechdolt, one of the foremost short story writers of the day, to prepare the stories for its new series "The American Girl," the Kalem Company believes they have made a ten strike.

Mr. Bechdolt intends intimately concerning himself with the production of his stories, and will spend a great deal of his time at the Kalem studios in Glendale, California, suggesting bits of realism and local color.

In "The American Girl" series, which it is expected will be the most popular ever marketed by Kalem, Mr. Bechdolt is recreating for the screen the many varied and exciting experiences he has had as a newspaper reporter with the running to earth of the notorious Death Valley-Scotty.

Two Well-Remembered Vitagraphs Promised as "Re-Issues De Luxe"—In the Centre, Scene from "Captain Alvarez"; at Left and Right, "A Million Bid"

First Published Scenes from "A Poor Little Rich Girl" Seem to Promise "Little Mary" at Her Best in That Artcraft

Mary Pickford to Desert East for California

Trip Is for Purpose of Presenting Her New Artcraft Pictures with Different Locales from Those Recently Made UPON completion of her latest picture "A Poor Little Rich Girl" Mary Pickford is to temporarily forsake her Eastern studios and take up production of several new Artcraft releases on the West Coast.

A big studio has been taken over for her in Los Angeles and work on the next Mary Pickford-Artcraft picture will be commenced shortly after her arrival there. From present indications Miss Pickford's work in connection with "A Poor Little Rich Girl" will be completed in time to allow her to leave New York February 7.

It is understood that Miss Pickford will appear in several subjects during her stay in California, among these being "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," the well known Kate Douglas Wiggin story and play which was recently secured for her by the Artcraft Pictures Corporation.

Mary Pickford's trip to California makes it possible for this most popular star to appear in subjects presenting entirely different locales from those in which she has already starred for Artcraft Pictures. "Less Than the Dust," "The Pride of the Clan" and "A Poor Little Rich Girl" were staged in the East and with the facilities such as are offered the photoplay producer on the West Coast, it is felt that Mary Pickford productions of an absolutely different setting from those in which she has already appeared for Artcraft, will result in disclosing "Little Mary" in various strikingly novel creations. On her transcontinental trip Miss Pickford will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford and her personal representative, Edward Hemmer.

Activity Is Horsley's Motto in Eastern Stay

DAVID HORSLEY returned to Los Angeles last week with a number of contracts for his productions to testify to his activities during his eastern stay.

In the East Mr. Horsley arranged for the release of his Cub Comedies and Wilbur features, sold his collection of Bostock animals, marketed his Cub Comedies in all foreign countries, and also completed arrangements for distributing facilities to cover further production activities aside from the Cub and Wilbur companies.

In view of the fact that these deals concern the trade in general Mr. Horsley issued the following statement to the trade press upon his arrival in the West:

"Through contracts I signed while in the East, David Horsley productions are again marketed through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation. These productions are the Cub Comedies and the Crane Wilbur features.

"The Cub Comedies are already on the Mutual market, the first release having been made on January 4. My contract with the Mutual calls for a new subject in one reel for fifty-two weeks, following the release of the first picture.

"The Crane Wilbur features comprise a series of six five-reel subjects starring Mr. Wilbur. The general title of the series is 'The Morals of Men.' We have already completed three of the six pictures, namely, 'The Painted Lie,' 'Love Everlasting,' and 'The Single Code.' No release date has been set for the first picture, but that information will be forthcoming shortly.

"A Wilbur picture is to be released every four weeks following the first release date until the series is completed. We feel certain that the series will be among Mr. Wilbur's most popular subjects."

Aged Actors Witness Undersea Picture

Thirty inmates of the Actors' Fund Home, West Brighton, Staten Island, were the guests of President Carl Laemmle of the Universal Company last Thursday afternoon at a performance of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" at the Broadway theatre. Officials of the Universal Company lent their automobiles for the trip to and from the theatre.

New Comedy Company Producing

The Sierra Photoplays, Inc., of which Dr. C. William Bachmann is president, has been producing one-reel comedies for the past several weeks at a studio in Glendale. Roy Clements is director, and the featured players are Ed. Sedgwick, Ruth Hennessey and George Barnes. Al. Herman is assistant director, and Fred Hartman is the cameraman. The comedies will be known as the Three Star Brand, and the six completed to date have been titled "Bungalow Bliss," "We Women," "Adam's Baby," "What Could Dugan Do," "Clean Clothes" and Mr. Careful, the Constable."

Third Glyn Story Pictured

Rounding out a trilogy of screen adaptations of Elinor Glyn's famous novels, "Three Weeks" and "One Day," the B. S. Moss Producing Company issues supplementary announcement that "One Hour," with scenario by Paul McAllister, is now undergoing active preparation. The entire company, including Zena Keefe and Allan Hale, have gone to Saranac Lake, with the usual battery of cameramen and others. After a month the company will journey to Jacksonville, Fla., to complete the film for initial showing on March 1.

Mr. McAllister will direct the feature, and it was he that chose the locations, a difficult problem of four weeks. The scenic contrasts of snow and flowers will have backgrounds of splendor calling for a large outlay.

Blackton Names New Assistant

William P. S. Earle, who has staged many Vitagraph successes, will hereafter be assistant to Commodore J. Stuart Blackton. This position was previously held by Harold Bolster, who has since become business manager of the Brooklyn studios.

With the increase in the output of the Greater Vitagraph plant and the heavier demands upon Commodore Blackton's time, he found it imperative to have an assistant who would be ready to aid him at all times in the actual production of Blue Ribbon features, special releases, and the many other pictures in the weekly output.

Adventure Club Praises "Buffalo Bill" Picture

That the "Adventures of Buffalo Bill," Essanay's feature picturizing the life of the late Col. William F. Cody, is one of the real adventure films on the market was the verdict of the Adventures Club of Chicago following a private showing of the picture.

The Adventures Club is an organization composed of prominent Chicagoans who have gained fame through thrilling experiences in various parts of the world. Among its members are Captain Robert Foran, who traveled with Roosevelt through Africa and later was a commander of the British East African mounted police; Medill McCormack, noted newspaper man, and globe-trotters, war correspondents, explorers, ex-filibusters, and others.

"Adventures of Buffalo Bill" was released as a special on January 29 through the Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service. Colonel Cody is seen as the hero of the photodrama, having posed for the camera only a short time before his death. Other heroic figures of the early West, including Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, Major-General Jesse M. Lee and Brigadier-Generals Frank D. Baldwin and Marion P. Maus, actually appear in the picture.

Another Stage Play Adapted

Earle Williams will be starred in Greater Vitagraph's forthcoming production of "The Hawk," the stage play in which William Faversham and Mlle. Dazian, celebrated French actress, were seen a season ago in New York. Supporting Mr. Williams in the Blue Ribbon version of "The Hawk" will be Ethel Gray Terry, Julia Swayne Gordon, Katherine Lewis, Denton Vane and Mario Majerone.

Paul Scardon will direct the production, which was adapted for the screen by Garfield Thompson.

Unique Booking Record

A record of placing service in every house on Main street, Montreal, was made by the Universal exchange last week. Seven of the theatres are within a stone's throw of each other.

Wide Booking of "Patria" Shows Public Pulse

Extensively Advertised Serial Promises to Establish in Public's Mind the Present High Trend of Picture Industry

THE showing of "Patria," the International serial, by leading vaudeville houses in seventy-five of the important cities of the country will be, in the opinion of a number of prominent exhibitors, a direct benefit to the motion picture industry.

First, and most important, it is pointed out that a new class of patronage will be created for pictures from the ranks of those who in the past have supported only the vaudeville and the legitimate theatres. Reports from all parts of the country show that increasing crowds are viewing each episode of "Patria" in the big first-run houses. This, according to J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, demonstrates that there is no audience in the country too "high class" for the right kind of picture.

"Patria" is being extensively advertised through billboards and newspapers by the Keith, Proctor and Orpheum circuits, each episode being announced as one of the feature acts. This, it is pointed out, will establish the serial in the minds of the public as a high-class production that has played to one-dollar and two-dollar audiences.

"What does it mean?" is the question that the bookings bring on all sides. The vaudeville performers, in particular, are wondering what this move portends. Prominent managers, as well as some of the vaudeville publications, have stated that the booking of "Patria" will have an important bearing on the present agitation for closer relations between vaudeville actors and managers and will be productive of much good.

Valeska's Mole and Millinery in White Light Play

All the glitter and fascination of the White Lights is reflected in "The New York Peacock," a William Fox photoplay released February 6, in which Valeska Suratt displays more scintillating costume styles than ever before.

Through the medium of the screen, women are promised a fashion show more gorgeous and more sumptuous than a dozen mannikins could show.

Two of the many sartorial triumphs achieved by Miss Suratt in "The New York Peacock" are the big spider-web hats which she wears and a magnificent gown closely adorned with beautiful peacock feathers.

Harry Hilliard has the chief role in Miss Suratt's supporting cast. Important parts are also taken by Eric Mayne, Alice Gale, Claire Whitney, W. W. Black, John Mackin and Frank Goldsmith. Mary Murillo wrote the script.

The story is that of Billy Martin (Harry Hilliard) who comes to New York to put through a war contract for his father. Martin is steered to a gambling den where the machinations of Zena (Miss Suratt) causes him to lose the $100,000 he brought with him to clinch the deal.

Many adventures follow, and Zena finds, too late, that she loves Billy.

Detroit Papers Praise "Patria"

The Orpheum theatre of Detroit, one of the leading vaudeville houses that has booked "Patria," the International serial released by Pathe, held a special advance showing of the first three episodes for the benefit of the Detroit newspapers.

"A little selected audience of Detroit's men and women," stated the reviewer of the Journal, "had their first glimpse of Mrs. Vernon Castle in the series of daring exploits as Patria Channing, in a film entitled 'Patria,' that rival and really outshine anything her slim and graceful husband has yet done for England. 'A thrill a foot' might well be the advertising description of 'Patria,' for between the star and her hero and a pair of machinating foreigners there is something doing right off the reel."

Left: "The Mystery in the North Case" Center and Right: "A Lady in the Library" (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew)—General Film Program Releases

Ann Murdock's first picture for Mutual. "Where Love Is" is fraught with human interest touches

General Film to Screen Best of S & S Fiction

Hundreds of Stories Published in Street & Smith Magazines Will Be Chosen from; One Release Each Week

BY an arrangement just concluded with Street & Smith, the General Film Company has secured the sole rights to a vast amount of motion picture material which has heretofore remained undeveloped.

Street & Smith are publishers of Ainslee's, Popular, Smith's, People's Top-Notch and Detective Stories, all popular and widely circulated magazines.

From the 10,000 stories of romance mystery and adventure published in these magazines, the most vivid and sensational are being selected for production, and will be released by the General Film Company in a weekly series of four-reel photoplays, beginning March 2.

The details of the plan are given by the General Film Company in the following statement:

"In effecting this arrangement with Street & Smith we secure control of what is undoubtedly the richest mine of motion picture material ever developed.

"Street & Smith buy more fiction annually than all other magazine publishers combined. They pay the highest prices. They command first choice from the work of the world's leading fiction writers. The stories their able editors select are recognized as the most gripping, thrilling, red-blooded fiction published. On the strength of these wonderful stories alone—without even the aid of illustrations—these magazines have built up a reading clientele of nearly 15,000,000. Every fourth family in the United States reads one of the Street & Smith magazines.

"The first release will be founded on 'The Inspirations of Harry Larabee,' by Howard Fielding celebrated for his extraordinary stories of intrigue, complex situations and baffling mystery. This story appeared in the Popular magazine. It contains enough incident and action for an excellent five-reel picture; in four-reel form every moment is vibrant with action, suspense and vital human interest.

"The most comprehensive national advertising campaign yet attempted for motion pictures will announce and continuously accompany this series. A single or double page advertisement in every issue of all the Street & Smith publications, reaching nearly 15,000,000 interested readers, will make the following announcement:

"Our fiction has for years been the object of keen interest on the part of motion picture producers. Our six magazines, publishing the best work of the leading fiction writers of America, have naturally offered a tempting field to the progressive producer who knows what the public wants and is on the alert for the best material for scenarios.

"After careful investigation of the field and close study of the leading companies in the industry, we have decided that the General Film Company, with its great releasing system and its group of competent and experienced manufacturers, offers us the most advantageous connection."

Society Applauds at Special "Patria" Showings

Two more society showings of "Patria" were held during the week of January 21, one in Denver, Colo., and the other in Spokane, Wash.

In Denver, prominent army and navy officers attended the showing in the Brown Palace Hotel. The pictures were warmly greeted, the audience rising to its feet and cheering as the orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The Spokane showing was held in the Davenport Hotel. More than twelve hundred people turned out, and it was found necessary to hold two showings and on both occasions the house was crowded.

Howard S. Clemmer of Spokane, who has booked "Patria" is very enthusiastic over the production. This is his first experience with a serial, and he stated recently he was glad he did not miss this opportunity.

The Bijou, vaudeville house in Knoxville, reports capacity business with the first episode of "Patria."

Second Public Showing of "Secret Kingdom" Outdraws First

THE second big public showing of the first two episodes of Vitagraph's serial "The Secret Kingdom"—a sequel to the exhibition at Dreamland Rink, Chicago, was given last week on the South Side of the city.

The latest showing was at Riverview Amusement Park and more than 25,000 people, armed with coupons which they had cut from the Chicago American, witnessed the picture.

In addition to exhibiting the first two episodes of the serial, Manager Abel ran off the prologue of "The Girl Philippa," which opened at the Ziegfeld Theatre for a run on Feb. 4.

In his report on the latest public showing of "The Secret Kingdom" in Chicago to Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V. L. S. E., Mr. Abel wrote:

"The only difference between the Dreamland showing and the Riverview exhibition was that the first had so whetted the appetites of those who had not been present at the Dreamland rink, that we really were compelled to close the doors when more than 4,500 people were still outside seeking vainly for admission.

"Needless to say, perhaps, all Chicago is talking 'The Secret Kingdom,' and 140 theatres which already have started showing the serial here are doing a big business. The sealed packets, illustrating one of the details in the third episode, proved very attractive souvenirs for the women present and we gave away more than 16,000 of them during the evening.

"The management of the six-day bicycle race, which is shortly to be held at Dexter Pavilion, has put up a 'Secret Kingdom' prize in addition to the program awards, so popular has our serial become among the general public in this city."

The Lewises Again Together

Mitchell Lewis who recently jumped into the limelight through his work in Rex Beach's "The Barrier" has left the company of Mme. Nazimova in "Ception Shoals" to go with Edgar Lewis, director of "The Barrier," in a new picture which he is now making.

First Published Scenes from "Mothers of Men" Show Madam Sarah Bernhardt in War Torn France

Scots Praise Clan Picture

Since the release of Mary Pickford's current Artcraft picture, "The Pride of the Clan," many laudatory letters from prominent Scotchmen have been received by "Little Mary," as well as the Artcraft Pictures Corporation.

Dr. F. Houston Shaw, consulting actuary at Bloomington, Ill., and vice-president of the Caledonian Society of Lexington, Ky., is among the Scots who indorse the picture.

"Harlequin Comedies" Promise Big Surprises

Well Constructed Plots, Not Slapstick Action, to Be Used by Famous Stars Pictures for "Perfect Results"

"HARLEQUIN — The Comedies with the Counterplots!" is the slogan that has been adopted by the Famous Stars Pictures Corporation for their forthcoming productions of two-reel comedies. But aside from the fact that these comedies will be noteworthy because they will contain that sterling ingredient "counterplots." Harlequin comedies are guaranteed by the "Powers that be" to be real and human laughter inspiraters. The "powers that be" refers to Hynson, Derr and Company, one of New York's best known banking and brokerage firms, who are the financial representatives of the organizers of the Famous Stars Pictures Corporation.

"You can take our endorsement of the Famous Stars Pictures Corporation for all it may mean—financially and otherwise," said Mr. Derr in an interview, shortly before we went to press.

"Of course, the firm of Hynson, Derr and Company is, primarily, interested in the financial success of its clients. To be successful in any line of endeavor, whether it be that of the manufacture of films, clothing or automobiles, one must make the kind of product that will give complete satisfaction, first to the middle man, then to the consumer, or the public. It is for that very reason that we have such unlimited faith in the men who comprise this new film company. They have set out to make the very best comedies producible."

Further details regarding the Harlequin comedies at the present moment would be a trifle premature, as it is intended to give out a complete statement of plans within a very short time, However, I can say this: "Harlequin comedies will not depend upon 'slapsticks' and vulgarity to extort laughter from a blase audience. Their comedies, several of which are ready for filmization, are the works of expert writers of comedy, who based their well constructed plots upon plausibly funny situations."

The personnel of the Famous Stars Pictures Corporation, will be made public in a future announcement.

Aside from the Harlequin Comedies, the Famous Stars Pictures Corporation intends to produce a number of super-features More definite announcements regarding these productions will be forthcoming within the next few weeks, according to officials of the company, who are now busily at work on numerous big plans.

Problem Dramas, Rightly Handled, Are O.K., Says Abramson

IVAN ABRAMSON, author and director of "Enlighten Thy Daughter," the problem feature now playing at the Park theatre, was the guest of honor of the National Board of Review at a special meeting at Wurlitzer Hall, January 25.

After a review of the picture, Mr. Abramson addressed the gathering. He said, in part:

"My idea of the mission of the drama, silent or spoken, is two-fold, namely, the eradication of existing and the prevention of future evils and the promotion of high ideals.

"The film play, although in its day of dawning, appeals today to a far greater part of humanity than the spoken drama, because its mirror-like properties reflects more easily and more simply the hidden evils and griefs of life as well as its goodness and joy.

"In the field of this new art we find today two kinds of productions. One is a mere story, that we term a pseudo drama—the other is the realistic life problem story, which tells the truth, deals with facts as they are and at the same time teaches a lesson.

"It is my contention, that an author has the right to use the base phases and facts of life in depicting a problem play, providing, however, such phases be delicately handled, and used as a means to a worthy end, and not for the mere purpose of financial gain.

"It is often difficult to touch upon a life problem without offending the sensibilities of some; but I have always felt and sincerely trust that you, ladies and gentlemen, will agree with us that shocking the feeling of a few is far less injurious to a community than keeping silent about a great evil and permitting its existence and its sway.

"Censors should judge a drama according to its aim, rather than by its individual scenes. Censors should judge the drama written to express a high ideal differently from that produced solely for gain."

Changes Expected When Film Men Meet in West

Los Angeles is to be the LaJunta of film magnates within the next week. President Carl Laemmle and P. A. Powers, treasurer, of Universal are expected early during the coming week. John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation is on his way to the coast to pay the studios where productions for that program are made a short visit. Heads of the Triangle Film Corporation, H. E. Aitken, Charles Bauman, Ad. Kessle and others are said to be coming westward for a conference with heads of the producing studios. President S. S. Hutchinson of American, Signal and Vogue companies will reach the coast the first week in February.

At the several studios directors and players speak of the coming of the chiefs as indicative of changes in policies that will materially increase production, this view being entertained by many because of the glowing tales of prosperity in New York City.

IN THE STATE RIGHTS FIELD

Fourteen Territories Already Closed for "Dope"

Single Advertisement in Motion Picture News Results in Quick Sale for Big Productions Film Corporation Picture—Territories Nearly Closed

A RE-ISSUE of the six-reel drama, "Dope," in December, as announced exclusively in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, has already been disposed of in fourteen territories.

According to W. Ray Johnston, who is secretary and treasurer of the Big Productions Film Corporation, the prints of this subject have been placed in the folowing points:

New York State to Popular Exchange, Buffalo; New England to Narragansett Film Exchange, Boston; Greater New York City to S. A. Huffman, New York City; Southern territory to Specialty Feature Service, Atlanta; Ohio to Buckeye Film Company, Columbus; Michigan to Wisconsin-Michigan Feature Company; Minnesota and Iowa to Enterprise Features, Minneapolis; northern Illinois and Wisconsin to National Motion Picture Service, Chicago; Missouri, southern Illinois and Arkansas to Specialty Feature Service, St. Louis; and California to W. R. Barber, at Los Angeles.

"We are greatly pleased with the result of our experiment," Mr. Johnston said, "and with the success and sales we received from a half-page advertisement in the NEWS, which is the only advertising we have done. All of the exchanges report a good business on 'Dope,' and we expect to close out the entire territory within the next sixty days. Then we will take up the foreign distribution of the picture."

"Dope," it will be remembered, starred Laura Nelson Hall and Herman Lieb.

Mr. Johnston also stated that practically the entire United States has been disposed of on Al Jennings' picture "Beating Back," which is a dramatization of Jennings' life story written by Will Irwin and published in the Saturday Evening Post.

Wilcox Poem-Films Are Sold in Middle West

Bookings for the Ella Wheeler Wilcox poem-films have been made in Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois. The Schwartz Films, Incorporated, people are highly gratified with the assured success of the Ella Wheeler Wilcox picture. In Chicago the Ella Wheeler Wilcox dramas are going well. Among the first bookings was a circuit of theatres, including Covent Garden and the "Michigan" theatre on the south side, together with eight others.

The territorial sales organization for Schwartz Films, has been completed, and the road men are now out booking. Jack M. Schwartz will be in charge of Indiana, Wm. Weinshenker in Illinois, I. Maynard Schwartz and Paul DeOto in Wisconsin, and Louis Rosenthal, Ed. Woski and William M. Schwartz in Chicago and surrounding territory.

"The Crisis" in Louisville

The first presentation in the South of "The Crisis" was given at Louisville, at the Mary Anderson theatre the week of Jan. 22, and the run of this film was so successful that the production was held at the theatre for an additional week. The Big Feature Rights Corporation of Louisville, which controls the state rights to this picture in several southern states, spared no expense in advertising "The Crisis" in Louisville. In addition to heavy newspaper advertising and displays in store windows, the Mary Anderson theatre, where the production was screened, was decorated especially for the engagement.

"Soul of a Child" Sold in South

"The Soul of a Child," the first feature produced by the Pioneer Feature Film Corporation, has this week concluded negotiations for distribution in the eleven southern states.

Mr. Nathan Hirsh, president of the Pioneer, closed with the Golden Eagle Film Company, of Waco, Texas, whereby that concern will become exclusive distributors of "The Soul of a Child" for Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The states of North and South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, Florida and Alabama have been acquired by the Queen Feature Service, of Birmingham, Alabama.

The Pioneer is at present concluding the filming of another picture featuring Em Gorman.

"Civilization" Sold in South

Mr. J. Parker Read, Jr., General Manager of the Harper Film Corporation, announces that the All Star Features Company, Jacksonville, Florida, have acquired the state rights of the Thomas H. Ince spectacle, "Civilization." This is one of the biggest deals consummated by Mr. Read, in the state righting of the picture. The territory disposed of includes the states of Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Florida. The offices of the All Star Features Company are in the Realty Building, Jacksonville, Florida, and southern exhibitors are advised that bookings may be effected with the company at that address.

"The Deemster" to Be Shown

On Thursday morning, Feb. 8, the Arrow Film Corporation will give a special trade showing of Hall Caine's master picture, "The Deemster," at the Strand theatre, at 9:30. The showing is to be held for state rights' buyers, and friends of Hall Caine and Derwent Hall Caine exclusively.

The picture has been set to music by a Russian composer, and at the private showing the full Strand Orchestra, under the direction of Edouard, will render the score. This is the first public presentation of the Arrow Film Corporation's version of Hall Caine's novel.

Moss Film Ready February 15

"In the Hands of the Law," the latest product of B. S. Moss, is ready for initial presentation on February 15. Distribution will be made by state rights.

Lois Meredith stars "In the Hands of the Law," which will represent her first appearance as a Moss star.

The cast includes Eugene Strong, Corenne Grant, Henry King, Lucille Dorrington, Arthur Morrison, Ethel Fleming, George Moss, William Lampe, Fred Whitman, Richard Johnson and Daniel Goldfether.

State Rights Office in Atlanta

The Big Feature Rights Corporation of Louisville, Ky., which has acquired States Rights for Kentucky, Indiana, Georgia, Florida, the Carolinas, and Alabama, and is also exploiting "The Little Girl Next Door" in the southern country, has opened a branch office in Atlanta, at 75 Walton street.

U. T. Koch is booking "The Little Girl Next Door," and Hugh L. Cardoza, who has been with the Jake Wells enterprises for the past fifteen years, is handling "The Crisis."

"Pamela's Past" for State Rights Sale

W. Ray Johnston of New Rochelle, who recently state-righted "Dope," and who also disposed of the territory on the Al. Jennings feature, "Beating Back," announces in an advertisement in the current issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS a new five-reel subject to be placed on the state right plan.

The new picture is "Pamela's Past," starring Maude Fealy, with Irving Cummings, Mignon Anderson, Lucy Peyton, Harry Benham and Frank Farrington.

"Pamela's Past" is a dramatization of Frances Aymer Matthews' novel "Pamela Congrieve," and was produced under direction of W. Eugene Moore.

The new picture will be handled through the Pamela's Past Feature Film Company, with offices at 46 Main street, New Rochelle, N. Y.

BLUEBIRD
Photoplays Inc Present
Franklyn Farnum's
"THE MAN WHO TOOK A CHANCE"
A Perfect Bluebird Entertainment
Directed by Wm Worthington

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS

MARCUS LOEW

The Most Successful Moving Picture Circuit Theatre Owner in the United States, Chooses

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS

for his entire list of Theatres in New York
Indisputable evidence that Mr. Loew fully understands the ways and means of success in the Picture business.

THE bare announcement that Marcus Loew chooses BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS for his entire list of Picture Theatres in New York must impress every serious minded Exhibitor in the United States. The Exhibitor who turns his back on evidence of this character, either does not know that Marcus Loew is the largest and most successful individual owner of Moving Picture Theatres in the United States or else connot be seeking growth, profits and prestige. Mr. Loew is successful in all of his houses for one BIG reason and that is—Mr. Loew does not guess what his audience like best—HE KNOWS. Thus—every Exhibitor in America can succeed by following the methods of Mr. Loew,—eliminating all guesswork, and giving the public what they pay for and what they want—perfect photoplays,—really delightful entertainment—answered by BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS every week—52 weeks in every year.

In spite of the fact that more than a dozen costly features containing Stars, were offered in the same week Mr. Loew chose "GOD'S CRUCIBLE" to the immense satisfaction and pleasure of his patrons and with profits and prestige to all his houses. Mr. Loew realizes that in spite of all the talk about Stars in plays,—its the perfect play after all that makes people want to go to the theatre.

Mr. Loew believes with BLUEBIRD that "The Plays The Thing" Mr. Loew realizes that no Star on earth can make every picture a winner. It hasn't been done and it can't be done, because the majority of the present day Stars demand plays written to please the vanity of the Star. Its exactly the reverse in BLUEBIRD PLAYS.

In BLUEBIRD its the PLAY FIRST, last and all the time, with the perfect cast (Stars and otherwise) to portray the perfect play AND THAT'S WHAT THE PUBLIC HAVE SHOWN THEY WANT AND THAT'S WHAT BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS ARE GIVING THEM. That's why BLUEBIRD PLAYS HAVE ARRIVED. That's why BLUEBIRD PLAYS will eventually supplant the wave of ordinary, mediocre features now flooding the country. THE GREAT NATIONAL DEMAND IS "FINER PICTURES AND FINER PLAYS"—and BLUEBIRD IS THE ANSWER.

Bluebird Photoplays (Inc.)
1600 Broadway, New York

Glimpses of the Big States Rights Production "The Whip," as Picturized from the Famous Drury Lane Melodrama

Plan Marketing of "Girl Who Didn't Think"

The Creative Film Corporation, organized some months ago when the production of "The Girl Who Didn't Think" was begun, have taken offices in the Strand theatre building, 1585 Broadway, New York, and have begun an active campaign looking to the sale of the concern's initial release. Leon Wagner, president of the company; Jack Weinberg, the treasurer, and Donald Campbell, secretary, are to be found at the new offices.

"The Girl Who Didn't Think," which has been shown to a number of prospective territorial purchasers, has been favorably received. The story, by Violet Stuart, is intensely human and lives up to the claims of the producers in being very much a page from everyday life.

Jane Gail, whose past screen performances both in this country and in Europe have attracted a great deal of attention, plays the leading feminine role and is said to have one of her best parts. Stanley Walpole plays opposite Miss Gail and May Simon, the well known Russian tragedienne, is also prominent in the cast.

New Studio to Be Erected for Problem Plays, Inc.

General Manager G. P. Hamilton of Problem Plays, Inc., has purchased a five acre tract of land on Lucile street, Hollywood, and plans have been prepared for the immediate erection of studio buildings where future photoplays of this company will be produced. Mr. Hamilton will have an open air and artificial light stages built at once, and other buildings needed will be completed later.

A lease has been taken on the Norbig studio on Allesandro street, near the Keystone plant, and here the Problem Plays producing unit composed of Dorothea Farley and William Conklin, leads, Murdock McQuarrie, director, and Walter Lundin, will at once commence the filming of their next subject, "Can the Past Be Forgotten?" which will be made in six or seven reels. The new plant will be ready for work within four weeks.

"Enlighten Thy Daughter" Opens at Park Theatre, New York

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER," which is the current attraction at the Park theatre, Columbus Circle, New York, seems to have caught onto public fancy at that house. A constantly increasing patronage from the opening night, January 28, until press time, shows a daily increase of about twenty per cent. with the advance sale continuing to grow.

The Enlightment Photoplays Corporation of which Henry J. Brock is the head, is sponsoring the production at the Park.

The Reverend Thomas Gregory in a full column article in the New York American on January 30 referred to the picture as the greatest moral force the screen has ever shown and made a plea that every mother in the land should go, and take her daughter.

The criticisms of the daily reviewers were generally good. The New York Sun took exception to the fact that it was a propaganda picture. Later Ivan Abramson, author and director of the feature convinced the editorial department of that paper that he had made no pretence that "Enlighten Thy Daughter" was a propaganda and admitted that he produced it as an entertainment solely, and the fact that various people considered it an excellent propaganda, was no fault of his.

The picture opened at the Park to nine hundred dollars Sunday, January 28. Monday, an especially inclement day proved an exception, and Tuesday the business took a jump, and on Thursday with five shows, the gross receipts exceeded sixteen hundred dollars.

The engagement at the Park theatre will probably be continued for a period of eight weeks. Already theatrical managers from Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Chicago have sought the picture for presentation in their cities. Mr. Brock has not committed himself, but will probably begin the selling of the feature on a state rights basis at once.

One of the novel advertising stunts to be sent to exhibitors to aid in their work in behalf of the picture, will be a huge sheet containing the endorsement of three hundred clergymen. A special performance was given to ministers only last Friday, and was well attended.

Lea-Bel Buys "Mother Goose"

J. M. Leaverton, manager of the Lea-Bel Company, of Chicago, has purchased for his company the world rights for "Modern Mother Goose." This is a five-reel juvenile film, produced by the Fort Dearborn Photoplay Company of Chicago, a concern that is specializing in the artistic production of children's films.

The Lea-Bel Company will book this feature direct to exhibitors in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan. All other territory will be disposed of on the states rights plan.

"Modern Mother Goose" has been endorsed by the Illinois Parents-Teachers' Association, and by the Illinois Congress of Mothers.

The Lea-Bel Company will specialize in securing high-class educational and religious films.

West Under Five-Year Contract with Caws Company

Billy West signed a contract with the Caws Comedy Corporation for a period of five years at a salary of approximately $25,000 per year. These pictures will be distributed by the Caws Comedy Corporation to the film industry on the state right basis.

While there has only been three pictures of Billy West comedies put on the market, the demand for them has been so great that a special company was formed to promote these pictures exclusively.

The Caws Comedy Corporation is backed by such well-known film men as Arthur M. Werner, N. H. Spitzer, Charles Feature Abrams and Samuel Cummins. These pictures will be released single reels, two a month. The first release will be put on the market the first of March.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

No Additional Censor Restrictions for Kansas

Amusement Association Active, and Exchanges' Fees for Censoring May Be Minimized—Other Kansas City News

CONCERTED efforts of exchange men and exhibitors who make up the Amusement Association of Kansas have made it practically certain that the present censorship laws will not be made any more drastic during this legislative session. Assurance is also given that there will be a reduction in the fees which the exchanges have to pay for the censorship.

One of the bills introduced this session provides for the removal of the censors' offices to Kansas City, Kan. Heretofore the censoring has been done in the basement of the State House. This saved money which might have been spent for rent, but it caused heavy expense on the exchanges for shipping films to Topeka and back again, and for representatives to see that the films went through the censorship

If the new bill passes, the censoring will be done where films can be taken on the street car to the inspection rooms.

Activity has been the watchword among middle western exhibitors the past ten days. P. C. Wreath, manager of the Artcraft, Kansas City, Mo., has been on a tour of southern Iowa and northern Missouri, and Mrs. Rose Savine, representing the Federal Film Service, returned from a trip in the interests of bookings of "The Little Girl Next Door" with a report of exceptionally prosperous conditions in the picture business in Nebraska.

J. W. Tillory, Missouri, and George Wace, travelers for the General Film Company at Kansas City, held a conference with J. W. Hicks, manager, on plans for the release of "The Valley of Lost Hope."

The Federal Film Company is opening a branch in the film center of St. Louis to handle features. William Beckenstein, formerly with Fox, is on the road out of Kansas City for Federal now.

L. G. Parkhurst, former Pathe manager at Detroit, is now assistant manager of the Metro exchange at Kansas City and is already well in the harness.

Gossip of Southern Exchanges

District Manager Worthington, William Fox's Southern ambassador spent the week end in New Orleans to have a confab with Allan Moritz who manages the local lair.

D. L. Cornelius, assistant general manager of the Saenger Amusement Company and H. L. Gee, treasurer, have joined the local executive forces of the company, under E. V. Richards, Jr., with headquarters at 918 Gravier street. Mr. Cornelius will be the resident manager of the Strand theatre, which the Saengers are building at the corner of Baronne and Gravier street.

Heustis and Charley King, prominent gulf coast picture men were mid-week visitors to New Orleans recently. This is the first visit "J. H." made to New Orleans in the last four years.

The jolliest colony of exchange managers that New Orleans has yet beckoned to for permanent residence has been augmented by Harry Owens of Triangle and Bert Moran, representing George Kleine. Moran says he is glad to escape the wintry blasts of Manhattan; and Owens a connoisseur of things culinary is rushing the far-famed restaurants that abound here.

Naugel's Territory Increased

The territory of Western States Represetntative Harry Naugel of the Vitagraph, has been increased from eight to eleven states, and will now include Kansas City, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and New Orleans exchanges, in addition to those of the coast and mountain states. Mr. Naugel has just returned to his territory after a conference trip with the officials of the company in New York.

Film Salesmen's Dinner Feb. 17

The first annual beefsteak dinner of the Film Salesmen's Association will be held Saturday evening, February 17, at Keen's Forty-fourth street chop house.

It was finally decided that a dinner in preference to a ball reflected the majority of desire of the members of the organization, and a lengthy entertainment is promised.

The entire cabaret feature of the evening has been employed exclusively for the occasion, and several well-known vaudeville actors have, in addition, volunteered their services.

Chairman Corn, who has arranged the evening's entertainment, promises a lively time to all.

Peerless Branches Out

A new exchange, the Peerless, is about to be opened in Philadelphia. Earle Sweigert, former manager of the International in the Quaker City, will be manager of the Peerless, which is said to be controlled by the Stanley Company. The new exchange will handle special features as well as Christie Comedies. The home of the Peerless is to be 1335 Vine.

Mutual Expands in Philadelphia

William H. Rippard, former manager of the Mutual exchange of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has been appointed assistant manager of the Philadelphia exchange, of which B. R. Tolmas is manager.

William Schmid has been appointed manager of serial releases and D. Segal chief sales representative in the same exchange.

Vitagraph Branch Changes

H. M. Lentz, for some time assistant manager of the Los Angeles exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, and often the acting manager, has been promoted to the branch managership, beginning January 22.

H. J. Bayley, salesman in the Cleveland branch of Vitagraph V-L-S-E since August 28 of last year, has been promoted to be assistant manager under Branch Manager J. R. Johnson.

Mr. Reed, formerly with the Cairo, Illinois, office of the Mutual, has joined the staff of the St. Louis exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, as head of the shipping and poster departments.

The territory of the Seattle exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E has been newly divided so that it now is consolidated into two blocks instead of the previous three. The "blocks" are in charge of Ashley McRae and R. Allen, working, of course, under the direction of Branch Manager G. A. Faris.

Changes in Mutual Managers

W. J. Drummond, formerly manager of the Los Angeles exchange of the Mutual Film Corporation, has been transferred to San Francisco as branch manager.

T. C. Malcolm, lately manager of the Montreal Mutual branch, will go to Los Angeles to fill the position of manager left vacant by the transfer of Mr. Drummond. These changes will be effective January 22.

Recent changes in the eastern branches of the Mutual Film Corporation include the appointment of M. Goldstein as manager of the New Haven Mutual exchange, and the installation of C. J. Fitch as manager of the Newark Mutual exchange.

Dennison Resigns to Exploit Holmes' Pictures

D. Leo Dennison, for two years manager of the Detroit and Chicago offices of the Famous Players Film Service, Inc., and for the past six months personal representative to James Steele, secretary and treasurer of Paramount, has resigned his position to take effect February 1. Mr. Dennison will act as special representative of the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Series. He will also assist Evan Evans of Chicago in exploiting all of the Burton Holmes pictures throughout the world. Recently Mr. Dennison purchased the control in the Motion Picture Specialties, Inc., of Pittsburgh.

Sam Barrett Promoted

Sam H. Barrett, has been promoted to assistant division manager at Detroit for the Universal, and will be assistant to M. S. Bailey, manager. He will also continue to handle the Bluebird department. Mr. Barrett started with the Universal exchange about nine months ago.

New Additions to V-L-S-E Exchange

George Balsdon, manager of the New York exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E., has engaged Harold Spector, formerly associated with the World Film Corporation and the International Film Service, on special statistical work, analyzing and tabulating the records of the New York branch.

Charles R. Letts, formerly salesman with the General Film Company, has been engaged by Manager Balsdon for Vitagraph V-L-S-E. as salesman, and will travel the up-Hudson cities in Mr. Balsdon's territory.

Hoffman on "Pep" Campaign

With a purpose of personally visiting every Bluebird branch manager, and imparting a few words of peppery advice, M. H. Hoffman, general manager of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., has taken to the tall timbers West of the Hudson for a short visit.

He has a proposition to make to branch managers on the question of increasing business and gain immediate reward in cash prizes and a raise in salary, $500 a year, if they ring the prize bull's-eye five times. He means that his branch managers shall know all about the general popularity of Bluebirds; is going to tell them what Marcus Loew, man of many theatres, recently wrote in a letter commending Bluebirds; what Director Rothapfel, of the Rialto, said about "The Mysterious Mrs. M.," after it had finished last week at his house, how Mr. Rothapfel acted about booking two more Bluebirds, and so forth.

Shifts in Canadian Exchanges

James Travis, former Pathe representative at Toronto, Ont., is now manager of All-Features Limited. Wally Davidson, formerly of Mutual and Bluebird has succeeded him at the Pathe branch, known as the Specialty Film Import, Ltd. Mr. Davidson's brother, who was with the Vitagraph office at Toronto has also left, and goes to Chicago.

Announcement has been made that W. F. Barrett, Toronto Mutual manager will henceforth have general supervision of the Mutual Branches in Eastern Canada, while J. H. Boothe, manager of the Winnipeg branch will be general supervisor for the West.

Against Misuse of Film Boxes

Manager J. H. Calvert of the Bluebird exchange in Omaha, Neb., has warned exhibitors they are liable to a fine of $1,000 for returning advertising matter, photos, etc., in film boxes. The aim is to have the matter returned as shipped, in separate packages. As it is charged by weight, the cost is no more.

Mutual Branch Closed

The Cairo, Illinois, branch of the Mutual Film Corporation has been closed, and bookings for this service in southern Illinois will be handled direct from St. Louis. T. W. Chapburn, the former Cairo manager, has gone to Tampa, Fla., where he will spend the winter with his wife.

J. C. Graham, Special Foreign Representative for Famous Players-Lasky

Vita. Opens New Sub-Branch

In order to better serve exhibitors of Blue Ribbon features and Vitagraph serials and comedies, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, has authorized the creation of a new sub-branch of that company in Milwaukee.

The new office will be under the supervision of Sydney E. Abel, manager of the Vitagraph V-L-S-E exchange in Chicago, but it will be administered directly by Frank W. Redfield. The sub-branch is located in Suite 54 of the Loan and Trust Bldg., Milwaukee.

Omaha Likes Plan of General

Manager C. W. Taylor of the General exchange in Omaha, Neb., has heard from a large number of exhibitors saying they are delighted to hear of the General's new policy which will enable them to book only General pictures every day in the week and still show a big enough variety to satisfy any public.

Unity in Kansas City to Move

The Unity Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., which has been located in the Gloyd Building, moved February 1 into the building at Twenty-second and Grand streets, where it will occupy 4,500 square feet of space. The exchange will handle the pictures of the Art Dramas Company. Inc., in addition to its regular line of Unity subjects and the Mutt and Jeff films.

New K-E-S-E Office

The K-E-S-E Film Company has opened an office in Milwaukee at 600 Caswell building and placed Chubby Florine in charge. Florine is well known to exhibitors in the territory, having formerly been with the local branches of Mutual and General.

Exchange Man Advanced

C. T. Sears, formerly a salesman in the St. Louis exchange of Vitagraph V-L-S-E, has been promoted to be assistant branch manager of that exchange.

Paramount Exhibitors' Lunch at Washington

Following the Paramount policy of promoting closer relations with the exhibitor, the Famous Players exchange of Washington, D. C., held its third exhibitors' luncheon on January 29, at the Hotel Dupont, Wilmington, Del. The guests represented all parts of Delaware and nearby points in Maryland. Both in point of attendance and of results this affair surpassed even the very successful ones previously held in Baltimore and Washington.

W. W. Hines, general sales manager of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, and George M. Mann, manager of the Famous Players exchange, addressed the meeting, speaking on various questions of interest to all branches of the business. Each point was also subjected to general discussion among the exhibitors themselves.

The necessity of the deposit system, both for the protection of the exchange and of the responsible exhibitor, was strongly presented by Mr. Mann. This point seemed to be of particular interest to the exhibitors.

Advertising methods received much attention. Newspaper advertising, house programs, mailing lists, lobby display, etc., were all considered. The question of care of film was also carefully presented.

There were present: Messrs. J. N. Ginns, Wm. H. Warren, D. Lee Short, W. T. Heis, T. M. Breeding, H. A. Newman, C. C. Hubert, H. P. Fenimore, A. A. Armour, C. C. Marshall, W. H. Tunis, W. W. Hines, G. M. Mann, E. R. Carr, H. P. Mulford, Dr. Breeding and Mr. Dorson, editor of the Federalsburg Courier.

News of Kansas City Exchanges

J. W. Hicks of the Kansas City office of General Film Company is visiting Chicago for several days.

C. M. Hood, formerly business manager of the Henry W. Savage productions in the Southern district has joined the sales force of the Universal Film Company, Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Hood was on the legitimate stage for 12 years, on the Keith and Orpheum Circuits. He played Captain of Hussars with Lasky's Imperial Musicians with Jesse Lasky in vaudeville.

Charles W. Harden, manager of the Metro Exchange, Kansas City, Mo., left Monday for Topeka, Kansas, to secure bookings on several of the Metros.

Bluebirds in New England Through Metro

Bluebird photoplays are now distributed in New England through Metro, instead of Universal. The addition of Bluebird, together with the popularity of the Bushman-Bayne serial, has made it necessary to enlarge the Metro quarters in Boston and take on sixteen additional employees. Connecticut Bluebirds, which were formerly handled from New York, are now distributed from Boston.

A Very Young Exchange Man

Manager Walkley of the Vancouver, B. C., Universal offices is the proud father of an eight pound baby boy. Both mother and child are doing well, and a career is already being framed for the youngster.

JUST FOR FUN

By LONGACRE

OTIS B. THAYER, who is working for Selig, has been supplied "with a capable company of players and some beautiful sets." This certainly is raising courtesy to the director to the *n*th power.

THE low rumbling heard in Los Angeles and vicinity every morning is not caused by an earthquake or anything like that, we are told; but merely by Margarita Fischer playing with her bulldog, Peter the Great.

CARL LOUIS GREGORY is the latest gentleman of the film business to join the ranks of the benedicts. On Saturday, the twentieth of January, nineteen hundred and seventeen, Miss Myrta Belle Strong became Mrs. Carl Louis Gregory at Jacksonville, Florida. Carl, as most people know, claims everything from scenario writing to camera operating to his credit. To coin a phrase, we wish the newly mated pair all happiness on the sea of matrimony.

LEST you forget the whole country is still in a deadlock over the suggestion that "pix" be substituted for the word "movies," we mention it here so that justice may be done to Terry Ramsaye's four-page story about it.

WHAT is so rare as a trade journal not carrying an advertisement of a picture endorsed by S. L. Rothapfel?

THEDA BARA says that she receives her greatest inspirations for vampirish parts while taking a bath. Rather lucky that she doesn't stick to the pure and simple roles.

ALSO, Miss Bara receives an average of one hundred proposals a week, which makes it easy for the press agent to figure the year's total at 5,200.

GLADYS BROCKWELL is approaching Heaven.—Press Agent. Is Miss Brockwell reaching the heights of stardom or merely failing in health?

FRANK PRICE, JR., who sits at a window of Jack Cohn's office, at 1600 Broadway, looking out over the city of sighs and tears, proclaims, owing to the uncertainty of affairs caused by Lynde Denig's refusal to withdraw from the ranks of the reviewers and so sacrifice his position as handsomest of the lot, that his prize of fifty feet in the Animated Weekly will go to the prettiest revieweress instead. Incidentally, we predict that Frank is going to get in a lot of trouble when it comes to the judging. The line forms on the right.

"A JAPANESE Admirer in Tokyo" is becoming the sort of stock nom de plume to the press agent that the term "Constant Reader" is to the newspaper editor. Ever since Wallace Irwin invented the Japanese school boy letters of Hashimura Togo, the dauntless p. a. has insisted even so often as bi-monthly that one or another of his stars has received a letter from a yellow admirer begging an autographed photograph. These invariably contain the lines, "May I have the pleasure communicating to you?" "My desire in having your nice photo is out of description." "I am remain," etc., etc.

The Morosco-Pallas publicity department is the latest office which includes such a letter in its weekly press notices. This time it was addressed to Kathlyn Williams. But on reading the missive over the sneaking feeling comes to us that it was the duplicate of one which went to Sis Hopkins of Kalem fame not long ago. That little Jap in Tokyo must have a bunch of carbon copies made every time he writes an admiring letter. Not that we doubt the veracity of the press agent at all, but—well—next?

FRITZ TIDDEN, well known on the Wicked Way, is going around doing the protesting act these days, venting the major portion of his wrath on one George T. Pardy. It seems that Fritz was featured in a reviewer's sketch recently printed by the latter gentleman, and evidently the linotyper slipped up on a letter and let Tidden go through as Didden. To continue in Fritz's own language: "It's bad enough when all these bunk humorists puts me into print wit' correct spelling and all such trappings, but when a guy like him slips up on the front letter of me hind name, it's too much for to stand, it is; and if ole George T. has any common decency at all, he'll make a correction soon and quick. You can quote me as sayin' this and I'll be very much obligated."

TEN feet is the limit set for kisses by the Pennsylvania censors. Ten feet with many a miss is as good as a mile.

IF anyone is walking around with a bundle of credit that he doesn't know just what to do with, hand it over to Allen Curtis, comedy director out at U. City. Curtis, after building up the present Joker aggregation has now started work that gives great promise with a company headed by Milton Sims and Ralph McComas.

The Longacre Lampoon

All the News That Fits, We Print Longacre Square, N. Y., February 17, 1917

EDITORIAL

We love nature just as much as the next fellow, but enough is more than a sufficient plenty. We hereby want to register our mild protest against the overabundance of "back to nature" close-ups dragged into almost everyone of the later dramatic subjects. Most directors seem to think that unless they show us anywhere from ten to fifty feet of the star feeding a kitten or lisping sweetly to a canary we won't get the idea that THE GIRL is the sweetest, most home-loving thing in the world. There is some appeal, of course, in these touches of homeliness, but when they are dragged in by the heels time and time again we do get sort of tired of them.

Within the past week we have not seen only kittens and puppies a la closeup, but also suckling pigs, calves, birdlets, calflets, horselets and almost every other kind of "lets." After hours and hours of painful figuring we have reached the solution that if every animal closeup now lying in a dramatic subject were clipped therefrom and placed end to end, the result would be a high class educational equal in length to thirteen and a half times the height of the Woolworth Tower and capable of reaching from here to there and back again.

LOCAL NEWS

—The N. Jersey exhibitors held a ball on Thursday eve. last.

—Jess Lasky was expected to arrive at the Paramount show last wk. and held it up for quite a few five minutes. But he didn't come. Ah, there, Jess.

—Geo. Le Guere drops in to watch himself in 1 of McClure's sinful pictures every week these days.

—Well, Pete Schmid, when is that dinner going to come off? Keen's would be quite a nice place for it, say we and others.

—M. H. Hoffman has departed from these parts for points as far west as L. Angeles, the w. k. producing center of the bus.

—L. McKenna has taken a job with Jake Wilk, which is a good thing for both the parties involved, say we.

—Mitch. Lewis was a pleasant caller the other wk. Come again, Mitch., say we.

—R. Brown, who spends much of his time over to Universal and much more conferring with Double H. Van Loan and Ed. Mullen, says that he ought to crash into print once in a while. Ray seems to like the m. p. bus. as far as it and he goes.

—The fact that Ben Grimm is a social gangster was disclosed last wk. when he was seen by ye ed. and T. Kennedy dancing with 1 of the opposite sex in Wallack's. Ah, there, Ben!

—Joe Miles gave a party to open his new offices and projection room, the wk. just past. Joe knows how to do a thing all o. k., as many from here will testify when questioned.

—The investigation of the m. p. bus. by delegates from the state cap. continues merrily on its way.

—Attention is called to our new dep't this wk., which may or may not be con't in future editions.

PHOOLISH PHIL'S PHILM PHILOSOPHY

—They would be more folks goin' to picture shows if they wuz more'n ten dimes to a dollar.

—Censored motion pictures would be as bad as biled potatoes without salt.

—Supposin' some of the politicians who advocate censorship were censored a bit themselves-sh!

NEWSY REPORTS FROM ALL SECTIONS

Strict Fire Rules in Montreal Houses Petitioned

The Board of Control has decided to ask the head of the fire department and the city architect of Montreal to prepare an immediate report on the safety of lodgings situated over moving picture theatres. The resolution was suggested by the fatal fire in a St. Henry moving picture theatre, which resulted in the loss of several lives in a family living overhead.

Since the passing of the resolution by the board the Comet theatre on Cote St. Paul has been completely gutted. The property damage will be considerable, although luckily no lives were lost.

It is hoped that the action of the Board of Control will have some effect, as the regulations regarding fire protection in moving picture houses in Montreal are said to be loosely observed.

Two Pittsburgh Picture Houses Gutted by Fire

Two of Pittsburgh's best motion picture theatres were closed this week by a fire that caused a $3,000,000 loss in this city. The Grand Opera House, the largest motion picture theatre, and the Lyric theatre, both of them listed under the Harry Davis Enterprises, were completely gutted, and the buildings in which the two theatres were located will have to be torn down. There is doubt about rebuilding.

High Cost of Lighting Deters Sign Display

Many large electric signs are beginning to disappear from the fronts of motion picture theatres about Baltimore. This is due to a disinclination on the part of many exhibitors to pay the minor privilege tax recently decided upon by the Baltimore City government.

This privilege tax provides that all private property projecting over the building line should be taxed. These signs, as well as barber shop poles and other articles used by merchants in exploiting their line of business or goods, come under this bill. The tax in some cases is pretty heavy as it is known that some of the electric signs in front of theatres are taxed as much as a thousand dollars.

IN AND OUT OF TOWN

H. L. Wallick of Chicago, who has been looking New York over for a week, left for the Windy City again last Tuesday.

L. F. Guimond, of the Monticello Amusement Enterprises, Monticello, New York, was in the city last week.

Charles Baumann is on the way to Los Angeles, David Griffith was last reported from Richmond, and Carl Pierce, another continual traveler, is in Kansas City.

Hot Anti-Censor Fight Forecasted in Wisconsin

State Wide Publicity Campaign by Exhibitors' and Theatre Men's Committee to Be Directed Against Passage of Measure

MILWAUKEE exhibitors intend to circumvent, if possible, any effort of the state legislature to pass a stringent censorship bill.

Taking warning from the exclusive story on the proposed censorship bill published in THE MOTION PICTURE NEWS some weeks ago before even those intimately acquainted with the legislative program were aware of it, Milwaukee exhibitors and exchangemen have been busy organizing for a state wide fight. The introduction of the bill at Madison will signal the opening of one of the most vigorous publicity campaigns ever waged in the state of Wisconsin.

Already the Anti-Censorship Committee has been organized, with Alfred T. Tanzer of the Mutual Film Company, representing the exchangemen and George Fischer, manager of the Alhambra theatre representing the exhibitors, at its head. The Press Publicity Company of Milwaukee, has been secured to handle the state wide publicity campaign and to prepare editorials, news stories, etc., on the censorship question for the state papers. Petitions, slides, and talks for the manager to deliver to his patrons have been prepared and will be sent to all of the state exhibitors requesting them.

One of the salient points of this fight is that the city exhibitor has forgotten all of his former antagonism for his country brother, and finding the state exhibitor unorganized has taken the entire expense and responsibility on to his own shoulders, and is fighting the battle of the state exhibitor as well as his own.

Some two years ago the film men defeated a censorship bill, but they then had the state exhibitors' association to help them. This organization has become nonexisting since that time and a stiff battle is expected.

Mutual Western Manager's Visit

H. J. Cohen, who is spending a number of weeks on the West Coast in connection with the Mutual serial "The Great Secret," and making his headquarters at the San Francisco exchange, spent the past week with Harry Ballance, manager of the Los Angeles exchange.

He expressed himself as pleased with the attention being given the Metro pictures there and especially the excellent booking for the serial. Mr. Cohen also spent considerable time with Fred J. Balshofer and members of the Yorke-Metro organization at the Hollywood studio.

Signs First Linder Contract

Geo. Hines, manager of the Auditorium, South Bend, Ind., was the first exhibitor to affix his signature to a contract calling for the twelve Max Linder comedies, which the French film comedian is under contract to make for Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, and which are to be distributed through Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay Service.

Alfred Tanzer (Mutual, Milwaukee)

Mr. Hines was in Chicago recently and visited the Essanay studio, where he saw Linder working. The result of his visit was his signature to a contract.

Former Exchange Man Opens Supply House

C. M. Brown left the Mutual office at Memphis, January 27, and was succeeded by R. L. Smith, formerly branch manager for the Mutual at Fort Smith, Ark., an office recently closed. Mr. Brown will open a fully equipped supply house at Memphis very shortly.

Having been connected with the picture business at Memphis for more than six years, Mr. Brown has a wide acquaintance with exhibitors in the territory, and has picked Memphis as a point for his new business because of the city's location and importance as a distributing center for Southern territory.

Pathe Serial Leads Programs

From Canada comes word that "Pearl of the Army," Pathe's military-mystery serial, has been booked as a leading feature by thirteen of the leading houses in Montreal, including the Crystal Palace and the King Edward. All of these theatres will show the serial two days or more a week.

L. Ernest Ouimet, manager of the Specialty Film Import Company, also reports that Pathe's Gold Rooster plays are in great demand.

Charlotte Walker in "Sloth," Ann Murdock in "Envy," George LeGuere and Shirley Mason in "The Seventh Son," McClure Pictures Released Through Triangle

Dozen Bluebird Pictures Await Release Dates

Superior Productions with Violet Mersereau, Ella Hall, Louise Lovely, Mary MacLaren and Others Now Ready

THERE is an abundancy of Bluebirds ready for release to exhibitors during the Spring. More than a dozen subjects, a larger stock than the organization has carried since its inception, wait only the formality of affixing titles and being placed on schedule. Just now there is but one release definitely set for March.

Violet Mersereau in "The Boy Girl" is dated for March 6. John C. Brownell wrote the story and assisted Edwin Stevens in its production at Bluebird's Leonia (N. J.) studio, where Miss Mersereau, directed by Harry Millard, is now at work on "Susan's Gentleman," a play Kate Jordan has written especially for her use. In "The Boy Girl" Sidney Mason will be the leading man, others in the support being Caroline Harris, Florida Kingsley, Maud Cooling, Tina Marshall, Dean Raymond, Charles Mason, Byron Dean, and James O'Neill.

Ella Hall in "Polly Redhead," the attraction current at S. L. Rothapfel's Rialto, will be released on the Bluebird program in March, but the exact date is not fixed. Lynn Reynolds will also have another production distributed in March, identified under the temporary title of "The Cruise of the Alden Besse." Director Rothapfel has selected this as another Rialto offering at an early date. These two attractions will have March 12 and 19 on the Bluebird program, their order to be later determined.

"Polly Redhead" is a screen interpretation of Edgar Jepson's "Pollyooly" stories directed by Jack Conway. This combination of star and director has also completed "Pawned," based on a story by Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude, the scenario prepared by Maie Havey. Walter Belasco, Antrim Short, George Pearce and Marshall Mackaye will be in Miss Hall's support.

Forthcoming Bluebirds now ready for release will further include productions directed by Rupert Julian, Charles Swickard, Wm. Worthington, Joseph De Grasse, Rex Ingram, Henry McRae, Lois Weber and Fred A. Kelsey. The Rex Ingram's pieces will be "Humanity," a sociological product, and "Flowers of Doom," a play located in China. In both of these subjects Wedgewood Nowell will be featured.

Mary MacLaren has been directed in "The Plow Woman" by Charles Swickard, and in "Whispering Smith" by Fred A. Kelsey.

"The Code of the Klondyke," written and produced by Lynn F. Reynolds, will have Myrtle Gonzales, Val Paul and George Hernandez featured. Joseph De Grasse has directed Dorothy Phillips in "The Flash-Light Girl," and Wm. Worthington's production of "The Clock," based on Aaron Hoffman's story, will have Franklyn Farnum and Agnes Vernon as the featured ones. Rupert Julian will return Louise Lovely to Bluebirds in "The Gift Girl," the director being co-star in the production.

Chicago News and Comment

(Continued from page 1069)

Enid Bennett, en route from N. Y. C. to Tom Ince's Culver City studios, paid the Windy City a brief call on Thursday, Jan. 25. The star from the Antipodes first went out to Lincoln Park to see Cy DeVry's kangaroos. She wanted to pet the big marsupials and dream of that dear Australia. After this touching rite Miss Bennett poured tea at the Blackstone for a number of "our girl reporters." Since mere man was excluded, we can't report the doings.

The annual election of the Chicago local of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League will be held in the Masonic Temple Bldg., Friday, February 2d. President George Henry announced himself as a candidate for re-election. Joseph Hopp will be a rival candidate. Secretary Sydney Smith also wishes to serve another term. This Chicago local has elected a committee to combat the proposed State censorship law.

The Adventure Club of Chicago was recently given a private showing of the Essanay five-reel feature, "Adventures of Buffalo Bill." This club is an organization composed of prominent Chicagoans who have indulged in adventurous pursuits throughout the world. Their verdict was that this picture is one of the few real adventure films on the market. A review of this film will be found in the Review Department.

Fourteen St. Louis exhibitors, members of the St. Louis Theatre Managers and Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, visited Chicago last week. They were guests of the J. P. Seeburg Organ Company of this city, and during their stay were treated to many recitals on various Seeburg instruments. They also visited the model Seeburg factory.

Al Green, the Selig director, is using the local Selig studios for making some short length films. Among the stars now acting at the Western ave. plant are George Fawcett and Vivian Reed.

C. A. Rehm of the Atlas Educational Film Company announces that work will be begun shortly on a five-reel subject called "Chicago, the Wonder-City of the World." It is intended to include in this film all of the important sights of the Windy City.

Censor Bill in Nebraska

A bill to provide for state censorship of moving picture shows has been introduced in the Nebraska legislature. Recent meetings of exhibitors to organize in opposition to any severe bill had perfected an arrangement whereby a committee was ready to take up the matter at once and begin a fight. The exhibitors are now anxiously awaiting the assignment of a bill to a committee, and a copy of the bill. When it is assigned, plans for carrying the fight before the committee will be undertaken by the interested parties.

The Magic Mirror

The Hoodooed Story
Forthcoming Essanay Short Releases

Three Ways Out

No Dark Houses for Winter in West

Every year in the Middle Western territory supplied by exchanges in Omaha, Neb., a number of exhibitors decide the usual financial tightness immediately following New Year's, coupled with bad weather and bad roads, makes the motion picture enterprise too risky. As a result, every year up until this one a large number of theatres in the smallest towns notified their exchanges they would remain dark until Spring.

This year the exchange managers, after the first few days of the new year, began expecting the usual notices. But they did not come. The first week, usually marked by the flood of cancellations, passed by without the flood. Investigation and inquiry among the exhibitors in the Omaha territory show not one-tenth as many houses as usual will close this year until Spring.

One explanation stands ahead of all others. It is this: Exhibitors in the very smallest of the towns have realized that the merchant tides over the dull financial period with his "white sales" and other special inducements. The exhibitors believed they could do the same way. They are trying it. The small country papers are bristling with evidences of their efforts. No word has been received to show they are not succeeding, while the fact that they are continuing shows they are doing better than formerly.

Another explanation is that motion picture theatres as a class are specially constructed houses, built for comfort in every season; that they are not too expensive to heat, if business is fair, and that the motion picture exhibitors are men making a specialty of their business every day of the year.

Fire Sweeps Large Theatre

A loss estimated at $15,000 resulted from a fire which gutted the main auditorium of the Majestic Theatre, one of the largest Jackson, Miss., picture playhouses on January 29.

A copy of "The Crisis," slated for exhibition at the theatre, was destroyed.

Work on the rebuilding of the house will be started immediately, and it is hoped to reopen with motion pictures again in sixty days.

Plan Survey of the Industry in Minneapolis

AN exhaustive survey of the motion picture industry of Minneapolis to determine its efficiency as an entertainer, an educator and as an agency for moral progress is to be made in January and February. When the survey is complete the city will know the exact status of the motion picture as a community asset.

This work is believed to be the first of its kind, and it is to be done by the Local Board of Review, the organization that was once the board of censorship. With the inauguration of Mayor Thomas Van Lear, who said he would assume the responsibility, with the aid of the exhibitors, of seeing that Minneapolis had good pictures, the censor board ceased to have an official rating.

The survey will be a sincere effort to help the trade. There is to be no attempt to find fault, but rather to know just what the theatre does for its people and what the people can do to make it a prized public possession.

Members of the review board will visit every theatre in the city many times. They will talk with the patrons, adult and juvenile, and with the managers. They will study the subject matter of the films, the desires of the patrons, and the harmony that exists between the people of each community and its theatre. The board, among other things, wants to know the following:

How many persons attend each of the theatres, on an average, each week?

What percentage of the patronage is juvenile, what per cent composed of men and what part of the audience is made up of women?

What proportion of the weekly run of films is of special interest to children?

What kind of films do these persons like and is the manager trying to get the films the patrons want?

Does the manager really study his patronage to determine its needs and is he a resident booster for his locality or is his sole interest in the ticket booth?

Is the theatre clean, well ventilated, comfortable, and is the equipment such that eye strain is reduced to a minimum?

Does the music satisfy the better tastes that have been created by a civic music league and municipal musical organizations?

Does the seating capacity insure a gross income large enough to permit the manager to keep in the business if the business proceeds as it should?

If the exchange men and exhibitors will furnish the information cheerfully when asked for it, and if the review board accepts kindly suggestions from the trade as it goes about its work, something tangible is expected to be accomplished.

Newark Moves to Legalize Sunday Shows

Changes in the method of distributing the proceeds of Sunday motion picture shows in Newark, for charitable purposes are now being discussed by local exhibitors and public officials. It has been suggested that fifty per cent. of the net proceeds now given direct by the theatre managements to the organizations in the lists made up by the chief of police and the chairman of the police committee be turned over to the Bureau of Associated Charities and the poor and alms committee of the city council.

It is also suggested that an effort be made to legalize Sunday motion picture shows and charge a license fee for Sunday performances, this fee to go direct to the city treasury.

If the Sunday motion pictures were legalized in New Jersey, and the licenses were based on the amounts now contributed it would add between $50,000 and $60,000 to the local city treasury, according to the estimates of those who have made a study of the conditions here.

Exhibitors' Dance Planned in Baltimore

A meeting of the executive committee of the Maryland Branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America was held at the New Theater on Tuesday, Jan. 30.

Efforts are being made to hold an exhibitors' dance this spring at which a number of the leading photoplayers will be invited to attend. At Tuesday's meeting a special committee was appointed to take up the arrangements for this dance, and it is probable a date will be decided upon within the next few weeks.

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"The Gun Fighter"

(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

WILLIAM S. HART does the bad-man-who-reforms stunt again in "The Gun Fighter." As Cliff Hudspeth, alias the Killer, a gentleman who has as many notches in his gun as there are days in January, he proceeds to reformation after hearing the simple words of a young girl and gazing at a picture of his mother. Laying aside the fact that a bad man who could boast of so many dead men's names in his address book could hardly be reformed overnight, "The Gun Fighter" makes a big bid for popularity because of its star and the unusually fine production accorded its every scene. The photography is superb, and this holds with the night effects, too, which have never been equaled in pictures seen by the writer.

Cliff is leader of a ferocious gang of outlaws; El Salvador is leader of an opposition band. Presidential candidates never fought so hotly as Cliff and El. Professional jealousy reigns supreme. El Salvador and his band hold up the town and Cliff and his followers must needs stage a counter-holdup and restore the coin to the inhabitants. Then Cliff meets Norma, who, after seeing him kill "Cactus" Fuller, Salvador's chief henchman, calls him a murderer. That's the beginning of the end. Cliff thinks over his past performances and decides that he is pretty much of a murderer when he counts up. Norma begs him not to kill again. A member of the Arizona senate offers Cliff citizenship providing he "get" Salvador. And Cliff does, not because of the Senator, but because Norma is made captive by Salvador. There is a night gun fight, and both the bandits are dead when it's over, but Norma is safe.

Mr. Hart reigns supreme in bad man roles. All the tragedy of his inner struggles seems to shine from his eyes. He can get his audience worked up over an improbable situation, which speaks worlds for him. Margery Wilson is opposite, while others who give fine characterizations are Roy Laidlaw, J. J. Dowling, Milton Ross, J. P. Lockney and Georgie Stone.

"Her Life and His"

(Thanhouser-Pathe—Five reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

COMBINING one of the primary issues of the day, that of prison reform, with a plot of admirably sustained interest, this picture written by Phillip Lonergan reserves a niche for itself quite apart from the every day feature. Mr. Lonergan bases practically all of his scenarios on themes of vital interest. He may have the eternal triangle, but he will have something else back of it. He may, as in this case, bring forward the plot of a group of conspirators to ruin its enemy, but back of it is the theme of prison reform lending additional strength and purpose to the drama. In other words, he gets his idea and then goes ahead, while there are many others who attempt to go ahead without an idea. The comparison might seem uncalled for owing to the vast amount of common sense on the one side and so little of it on the other, but rather regrettably it is justified by the looks of many features.

The incidents in the plot are well developed, every one of them. The story builds to a climax that maintains throughout its length—and its length is greater than ordinary—a high degree of suspense. There seems to be nowhere any wasted action or superfluous footage. The director has done his work well. The scenes are effectively handled and in point of realism the prison scenes are exceedingly good.

Mary Murdock, a girl who has served a prison term, is anxious to reform. Ralph Howard, whose wife has run away from him, is anxious to die. Fate throws the two together. Mary tells him he has much to live for and gives him the idea of helping ex-convicts. The plan succeeds and Mary is his chief assistant. After a time the politicians of the town decide that Howard is a menace, so acting on the advice of one Mrs. Nan Travers, they secure his appointment as warden of the state's prison. Then there is the frame-up in which Mrs. Nan and a hotel room are prominent. An investigation is held and everything looks black for Howard as the witnesses testify falsely, but Mary comes to the rescue by gaining the affections of Mrs. Nan's lover and causes that lady to fly into such a jealous rage that she spoils the politicians' game and tells the truth. And afterwards it's love and happiness for Howard and Mary.

Mary Secures Her Opponent's Confession

Florence La Badie as Mary and H. E. Herbert as Howard give performances of sterling quality and receive fine support from Ethyle Cooke, Sam Niblack and Justus D. Barnes.

"Pardners"

(Mutual—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THE fame of both star and story will assure business on this production, and in neither will your audience be disappointed. Nor can the excellence of the supporting cast be overlooked. Where a production is well balanced and satisfactory as a whole, it seems needless to analyze too particularly the cause. Suffice it to say that "Pardners" is a good story, cleverly picturized, and pleasing in its simple straightforward telling and development of a heart interest that will appeal to any audience.

Justus Morrow, young civil engineer, meets and loves Olive, the little teacher of the children of his workmen on the big project, the new railroad "cut." Completing this new cut will mean serious injury to a rival railroad, which hires the "villain," Alonzo Struthers, to prevent the finishing of this job. He blows up the cut, and in the meantime also falls in love with Olive, who marries Justus.

The plot now concerns the disinheriting of Justus by his rich uncle, through the double crossing of his "friend" and cousin Alonzo; the attempts of Alonzo to cause the separation of Olive and Justus, and several "framings" which, however, do not accomplish their purpose with the loyal little wife. She believes Justus unfaithful, on the pictured evidence of his misconduct at a gold camp where Alonzo has persuaded him to go to retrieve his fortune.

Then the "pardners" enter the plot. And Justus's mining pal comes back home with him and throws the villain out by the seat of the breeches and some good comedy is injected with a highly satisfactory finish.

Charlotte Walker as Olive Troop, the girl, is dainty and attractive in every way filling a not too difficult role satisfactorily. Leo Gordon as the villain is smooth to a finish, and Richard Tucker as the hero makes a good lead for Miss Walker.

"Pardners" adds another of the Rex Beach stories to the library of pictured successes.

"Me an' Me Pal"

(Red Feather-Universal—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

IF ever there was a true delineation of a thoroughly coster character, without the extravagances that usually accompany such that surely is to be found in "Me an' Me Pal," the latest Red Feather release, scheduled for Feb. 12. 'Arry and 'Arriet, the moke and 'Awkins and every other character so ably exemplified by Albert Chevalier are truly depicted, and the scenic effects are good, particularly that of Covent Garden Market, in the grim, gray dawn where every coster in "dear ole Lunnun" is shown buying vegetables and fruits for his day's trade. The exteriors are simply exteriors—pure and simple—and show what they are designed to show, and from start to finish this film is one of absolute cleanliness, and faithfully portrays the life and habits of one of London's features—the Costermonger.

The Painting that Won Distinction

Gerald Ames makes a splendid Harry Masterman, the young artist, who, being down and out, is advised by his rich uncle to go to work. This, Harry does; another of his pictures having been rejected by the Academy, and his allowance being cut off, he is compelled to. The work he undertakes, however, is as assistant to a costermonger, Labby (Hubert Willis), whom he owes five shillings and ninepence for fruits, flowers and vegetables delivered.

An accident brings Harry's old sweetheart, Kitty Kingsland (Edna Flugarth), on the scene, and she presents Harry with a painting outfit on his birthday, and he is persuaded to make one further effort in painting. He has an inspiration. He paints Labby and Launcelot, the moke. The picture is accepted and hung by the Academy, and proves itself one of the surprises of the showing.

Uncle James Hilliard (Douglas Munro) is, of course, proud of his nephew now, and greets him with open arms.

"Me an' Me Pal," the painting, won honors at the Academy "Me an' Me Pal" will gain distinction as a photoplay.

A pretty little love story is interwoven and completes a picture that should be acceptable to Sunday audiences.

The scenario was written by Richard Ganthony and produced by Harold Shaw.

Others in the cast are, Mammy, the coster's "Missus," (S. Fairbrother); Flash Hawkins, his business rival, (Lewis Gilbert) and Mrs. Kingsland, (Gwynne Herbert), all of whom do full duty to their individual parts.

"The Princess of the Dark"

(Triangle-Ince—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THE story of the blind girl who imagines all the world a fairy land, and a crippled companion, a handsome prince, is set forth in this picture with a high degree of artistry. Incidentally, Thomas Ince takes this occasion to introduce his new star, Enid Bennett, to the public. Her performance is full of sympathy and she carries the difficult role of Fay Harron, the blind girl, to a point that never lacks in realism. Miss Bennett's popularity seems a thing assured for she has a personality that is most pleasing. Fay was a part hard to portray, no doubt, particularly for a player new to the art. Simplicity and unsophistication are its dominant qualities. That Miss Bennett is never for a moment out of character is a distinct attribute to her ability. Blind girls of the screen so often obviously see.

The plot of "The Princess of the Dark" has been screened innumerable times. Only recently was it the basis of another Triangle production. But the manner in which it has been dressed up for this particular occasion, under the directorial hand of Charles Miller, argues strongly in its favor. You get into the spirit of the story when Fay, sitting in an ugly old mine, pictures herself as a princess, her crippled playmate as a stalwart prince, and the ugly smoke stacks as towers bedecked with jewels. All this builds to a denouement of tragic power. After a successful operation on her eyes Fay asks that her Prince be the first person she looks upon. And then he is revealed to her an ugly, misshaped man. Down comes her dream palace with a crash and with her sight restored Fay awakens to the fact that the creations of her imagination are far removed from realities.

Mr. Miller's direction is charming. The double exposure scenes are handled nicely and the climax is led up to by a strong series of scenes that are only bettered by the climax itself. The photography is excellent too. Jack Gilbert handles the role of the cripple exceedingly well. Others are Alfred Vosburg, Walt Whitman and J. Frank Burke. Lanier Bartlett wrote the story.

"Greed"

(Third of the "Seven Deadly Sins" Series—McClure-Triangle—Five Reels)
REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"GREED," featuring Nance O'Neil, is not as good a picture in conception or production as either of its forerunners of the series. In fact, its level is unusually low for a feature. Eve's greed for money is not dwelt upon to any degree of prominence, the whole story leading up to a trial scene in which Adam is brought up on a murder charge. The charge is so improbable as pictured and is so conventional in shape that the denouement fails to put much of a thrill into the onlooker. The last minute pardon issued in behalf of the hero, which arrives at the crucial moment, is calculated to carry great suspense during its trip from governor to jail—and so it will providing the audience can countenance the oversight on the executive's part in not employing his telephone.

Denton Blackmails Alma

Miss O'Neil in the role of Alma has few big opportunities to display her emotional talent. The part is not really deserving of such a distinguished actress. The fact that she is distinguished is the biggest asset of the picture. The general title of the series stands next in commercial prominence. Shirley Mason and George Le Guere are seen again as the youthful couple beset by a Deadly Sin, while others are Harry Northrup, Robert Elliott and Alfred Hickman.

Adam and Eve in their pursuit of gold encounter "Doc" Denton, a bucket shop promoter. They lose heavily to him before being warned by Alma, who is acquainted with Denton's past. Through a series of incidents altogether melodramatic, Adam is accused of murdering Denton and shooting Alma. At trial he is convicted. Alma is unable to testify as she has temporarily lost her memory as a result of the shooting. But on the day set for Adam's execution she regains it. She tells that Denton died of a weak heart and a blow on the head caused by a falling ornament. When the muscles in his hand contracted after his death he pulled the trigger of a pistol and shot Alma. Adam and Eve are united again, never to be tempted by the stock market.

"Rosie O'Grady"

(Apollo-Art Drama—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE D. GOULD

WINSOME as ever, Viola Dana appears in this, her first Art Drama picture, as an East Side "newsie." Dissection of the story reveals merely a commonplace plot, and would react on the genuine merit and attraction of the feature, credit for which is due to meritorious characterizations by the principals and a rather uncommon use of the cut-back.

With her brother and protector "Chimmie," Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana) lives in a tenement on New York's East Side. Romance hitherto unknown to her life, springs into bud on the appearance at her news-stand of "Cyclone Johnny" Allen, contender for the lightweight pugilistic title. Chimmie is wounded in an encounter with a hoodlum gang, one of whom insulted Rosie. During his convalescence, Rosie meets Allen, now champion, and coming home late is deserted by Chimmie when she refuses to tell whom she was out with.

The next scene is at the trial of Chimmie for the murder of Cyclone Allen. The cut-back is resorted to for the incidents leading up to this. Rosie has gone abroad with Allen, married by mock ceremony and been deserted by the pugilist. A realistic fight is staged when, back from Europe, Allen is attacked and killed by Chimmie bent on avenging his sister's honor. The court scenes during the progress of the trial are no better or worse than the usual motion picture court scene. Despite the dramatic revelations of Rosie, who appears in the middle of the trial, a jury convicts Chimmie of murder in the first degree. And then it turns out the whole story was a dream, as Rosie is awakened to sell the "prize fight extras."

Chimmie Warns Rosie of Life's Pitfalls

There might be room for discussion as to the advisability of the dream ending. It is extremely sudden and unexpected. Yet the "happy ending" may justify its use. The disturbance of continuity in the leap from Chimmie's illness to his trial for murder at first appears too lengthy a jump. As the story unfolds through smoothly inserted cut-backs, it is found the innovation adds strength and character to the picture.

As Rosie, Miss Dana is appealing and sincere in even greater degree than in any former vehicle. James Harris, as "Cyclone Johnny," in action and physical characteristics, faithfully depicts the man of the ring. Thomas F. Blake, as Chimmie, is real. This picture will bring results wherever shown.

"Patria"

(Fifth Episode—International-Pathe)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

THERE is no let-up in the furious pace at which the previous episodes of "Patria" have traveled in this number, entitled, "The Island God Forgot." There are thrills in aplenty and quite a lot of improbable coincidence too, but the whole moves at such a breakneck gait that one has no time to pick flaws in the construction of the story. That seems to be the point of least consideration in a serial. The crashing of an aeroplane to the earth followed by a series of terrific explosions caused by nitroglycerine coming in smashing contact with stores of munitions brings the episode to a most sensational close.

Patria Rescued

Patria, who has been thrown from the Newport boat, drifts to shore in a life preserver and is rescued by Juarez, a member of Baron Huroki's band of conspirators which is at work storing munitions on the island. Captain Parr in the meantime has arrived in Newport and discovered that Elaine is posing as Patria. He takes flight in his aeroplane to the conspirators' Island. Patria attempts escape with Juarez by aeroplane, but the latter is shot. Patria takes to the water again and is picked up by Parr. Haku, the commander of the island, pursues with a can of nitroglycerine in the other machine, but a shot from Patria brings him and his machine to the ground with the result of the explosions already noted.

Mrs. Castle continues in the dual role of Patria and Elaine, while Milton Sills, Warner Oland and Dorothy Green are chief in the supporting cast.

"The Darling of Paris"

(Fox Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY F. G. SPENCER

THEDA BARA has several good opportunities to display her wonderful abilities in this picture, and she takes full advantage, but in the early stages of the picture there is room for an element of doubt, a lapse as it were, a something—to say a void that tends to keep an audience guessing the different relationships of the story.

There are finely executed interiors, and the exteriors showing the different phases of nomadic life are realistic to a degree. The close-ups are good, particularly the one where Esmerelda (Theda Bara) being tortured, shows in her facial expressions almost every vein and sinew affected.

The subtitles may be explanatory, but inasmuch as they were galloped over the screen at an alarming rate far exceeding the speed limit the reviewer had not a chance to judge.

Honors, however, are pretty evenly divided between the star and her opposite, John Webb Dillion, who, as Clapin, makes a dandy gypsy chief. The theme is rare, involving as it does the stealing of a child and the substitution of a hunchback, who has been a source of considerable trouble to the gypsy camp, and the eventual rising of the stolen child to be "The Darling of Paris." As a dancer and entertainer, she is par excellence, but following this she finds herself in the "limbo of law" and there follow some exciting periods.

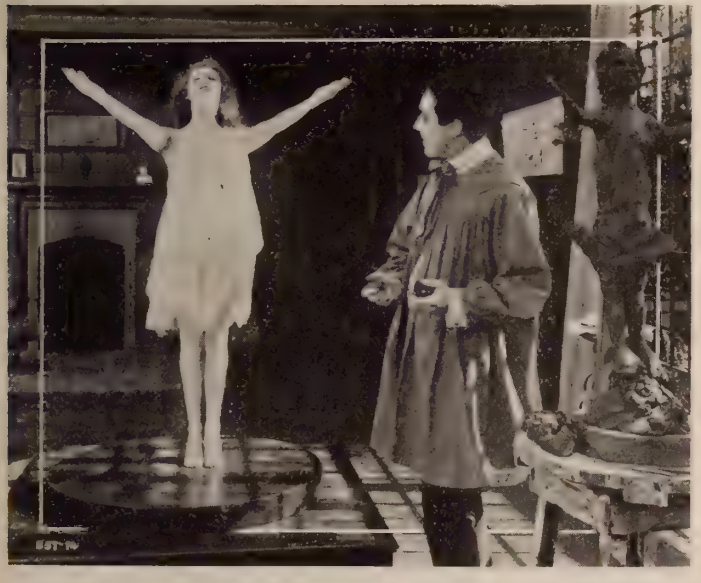
Taken in all, the play has merit, is well produced, finely photographed, and but for the hastiness as before mentioned, "The Darling of Paris" should make a hit wherever shown.

Victor Hugo's novel, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is the base whereon the film is built, and J. Gordon Edwards is director. January 22 was scheduled as the release date.



"The Wax Model"

(Pallas-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

AS a little French model, who comes to believe there is no real man, of the steadfast, serious type, whose love is for a good girl, and one girl only, Miss Martin convinces. Not an easy role, this, of one who is part and parcel of a gay life, yet not truly of it, and who, when the great love comes, secludes herself and all but dies of starvation both of the body and the soul.

The brief opening scenes, showing the suicide of the mother, and her caution to her little girl to beware of all men, lay the foundation for one of the most pleasing little plays of the year. We cannot call this a heavy production. There is a double plot in the near wrecking of the life of the innocent, trusting sister of the man who reaches Julie's heart. And the saving of the simple unsophisticated girl from a greater wrong than the sophisticated Julie had ever even contemplated. This is capably depicted in this story by G. Vere Tyler, which already has its following among the readers of "Smart Set" magazine.

Expressing the Birth of Spring

Thomas Holding as Melville Ilchester, and Helen Eddy as his sister Helen, met every requirement of difficult roles. The mounting and especially the scenes introducing the "wax model" were lavishly handled in characteristic Pallas style by Director E. Mason Hopper.

Story and acting should be classed as above average, and it can safely be predicted Miss Martin will score a big success in this play.

"Each to His Kind"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

PAUL WEST has scored a very powerful sure hit in this play. Two main factors create the intense interest here: the natural antipathy between the white races and the yellow; and the trifling with serious love by a girl who thinks only of her own selfish amusement. As Rhandah, an East Indian Prince, Sessue Hayakawa easily gives a perfect portrayal of what we feel to be the mien and demeanor of a fanatic whose gods and customs are Oriental and utterly different from our own "civilized" manners. Indeed there is a striking lesson to us in the flippant flirting of the English belle who boasts of her insincerity, and plants her giggling girl friends behind screens while she trifles with this Indian prince, and the result when he later gets her in his own country and under his power. Not a one will blame him for his adamant heartlessness and the throwing of her lover in the dungeon.

Dick Classed as a "White Dog" by His Old College Chum

From the startling title "I am glad I am not white,—they are all dogs," to the last scene when the feminine relenting wins the white girl and her lover freedom, a consistent and powerfully intense story is unfolded, in which Sessue Hayakawa as the Prince and Tsuru Aoki as his betrothed, Princess Nada, give a performance hard to conceive better done. Vola Vale as Amy and Eugene Pallette as Dick, add the balancing love theme which is very smoothly dovetailed into an unusually direct story. The only criticism of the production might be the over-use of cut-in scenes in the first reel. On the whole we believe it will be one of the talked of productions of the year. In some localities the strong title above mentioned, referring to white people as dogs, could well be eliminated. There is no doubt left in the mind of the spectator as to the intense race hatred of the dark prince for the white triflers, who have insulted his race. The title is not needed, but a stinging spur to the action, where it will not perhaps cause an actual hatred of the star depicting such a role, like the too villainous villain who sometimes finds it impossible to outlive his stage character and later depict other roles.

"The Red Woman"

(World Film—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

"THE Red Woman" shatters precedent and ends with a white man and an Indian woman in one another's arms with a priest disappearing over the brow of a hill. Precedent might have been shattered after a more artistic and convincing fashion. The loop holes in "The Red Woman" may even get mixed in with the sprocket holes, they are so many. But chiefly at fault are the subtitles, both in the matter of the printed words thereon and the sketches of the characters in poses supposed to be characteristic. They might all be changed to more useful and serious effect.

One can also suggest the elimination of a ridiculous episode that comes near the close of the picture. The Indian girl has borne a child. Its father is the white man. A deep-dyed Mexican villain enters and claims this paternal relationship to the babe, very crudely via a subtitle. He almost convinces the Indian maiden that his words are true, when she suddenly discovers the infant to possess white skin and blonde hair. So, cursing, gallery like, the villain exits. It is so useless a bit of—of, what?—that its introduction into the picture may well be the cause of condemning ridicule.

But one can not change the overacting of the principals, the obvious economy of the director exercised with regard to the settings, some poorly photographed scenes, the fact that the hero is wounded and never shows it, and the Indian makeup of Jane Gail which behaves very much as it pleases.

The scenes of the Mexican border with its rolling wastes of land and its adobe Indian village are very suitable as backgrounds to the story. The photography is not always poor; sometimes it is exceedingly good. Jane Gail, Mahlon Hamilton and Edward

Seeking a Retreat in the Indian's Home

Roseman are in the leading roles. June Elvidge, Charlotte Granville and Gladys Earlcott comprise the rest of the cast. Miss Elvidge, in a variety of costumes, takes the role of an adventuress bent on marrying the hero for his mercy, and gets off with what few acting honors there are in the picture.

"The Courage of Silence"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THE eternal triangle is given a new twist, and one for which the audience will be extremely grateful, in this new Vitagraph play which has clearly pleased Rialto audiences this week. Alice Joyce has never appeared in a role more becomingly attractive, nor one which taxes the powers of a film star more seriously. First as Mecedes the unhappy and too beautiful wife of the Spanish ambassador, who draws Bradley to her like the magnet draws the hardest steel, then as the sanctified nun, whose life is devoted to helping others and who finally is the cause of bringing the unhappy Bradley back to his deserving wife and little children, Miss Joyce is convincing and beautiful in the extreme, and in such entirely different ways. The feminine is lovable in either form of grace. Natural, and at no time overacting her role, she is deeply affected by the knowledge that Bradley has sacrificed the family ties to his love for her, and nothing counts but right. Her own sacrifice is not considered, yet a less finished actress would have been less natural and sincere in the manner of arriving at the final decision.

The usual lavishness of Vitagraph mounting distinguishes the photography and settings, and makes this silent drama as close to a real portrayal of life as we have seen. Several little incidents are pictured in careful detail, the play of the children, the well harmonized titles, and the general painstakingly artistic presentation are noticeably well handled, even for Vitagraph.

This is one of those productions which might have been called just the usual plot-weaving romance, but for the unusual acting and staging. Harry Morey plays the role of the big, strong, happy father quite satisfactorily.

"The Adventures of Buffalo Bill"

(Essanay-K-E-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY WILLIAM C. ESTY

The recent death of Buffalo Bill has filled the newspapers with details of his adventurous life and with reminiscences of the picturesque plainsman. Buffalo Bill comes pretty near being the man of the hour, and for a few days at least rubbed elbows with the European war on the front page of the dailies. All this has aroused interest in the scout—interest that the exhibitor can use to his advantage in showing this five-reel feature.

Buffalo Bill has always been the patron saint of kids. He led the sort of life that most youngsters envy. The nickel libraries and Wild West shows have perpetuated his deeds and fame. On this account the picture will have an especial appeal for the younger element in your community. Exhibitors might make a special drive for juvenile patronage by co-operating with the local Boy Scout organization, etc.

Most of the footage making up "The Adventures of Buffalo Bill" has never been released previously. A few scenes from former releases have been interpolated, but they fit smoothly into the action. The film has been well edited and titled. The photography, barring a few scenes, is good. The interest, despite an occasional sameness of theme, is well sustained.

Buffalo Bill's adventures in subduing hostile tribes of Indians are first shown. We saw a good deal of this sort of work in the old Westerns, but the authenticity of these scenes gives them new significance. Next Buffalo Bill is shown as the guide of the Prince of Monaco on a hunting trip. Details of the plainsman's home life complete the film.

"The Reward of the Faithless"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

DEPRESSING atmosphere, with the assembling of the most horrible types of the gutter in one single family, of which the unfortunate girl is a member, opens this peculiar story in which all the characters are faithless to one another and useless to themselves, with the exception of the hero and heroine, neither of whom are really strong characters.

The story proper begins with an unpleasant assault upon Katerina (Betty Schade), by Guido (Wedgewood Nowell), which eliminates all possibility of an audience having any sympathy for the principal character. Following this, Katerina is befriended and sent to a convent by Princess Dione (Claire Du Bray). Guido, an adventurer, marries the Princess for her wealth, and then the inevitable triangle results from the return of Katerina from the convent. Katerina and Guido plot the Princess's death for reasons unnatural and unexplainable, except by a title that says Katerina is jealous of the Princess's wealth, which both share in fact, though not by legal right. They murder the Princess, as they suppose, by failing to administer medicines prescribed by her physician.

Feodor, Katerina and the Dwarf

The Princess is only in a trance, and with her rightful lover, Feodor, escapes from the tomb and visits Guido as a ghost. Guido, terrified, dashes off a cliff.

Satisfactory portrayal of these strange and inhuman roles is impossible. None of the characters, except possibly the faithful Feodor (Nicholas Dunaew) and the much wronged Princess, who takes her vengeance in murder, can be expected to attract deep sympathy from the audience. Tragedy is the basis of the appeal, and there is little to lighten it.

"Skinner's Dress Suit"

(Essanay-K-E-S-E—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

HENRY IRVING DODGE'S story, which entertained readers of the Saturday Evening Post, makes fine picture material. The incidents of the written story have been well illustrated in this form by Essanay, with Bryant Washburn as "Skinner." Who does not have some friend who, like Skinner, is a faithful worker and as deserving of respected and respectable position in the world, but lacks initiative? And how many times this same sort of human being has to be kicked into prosperity by luck or circumstance beyond his control. It may be reasoned that the moral teaching of this story is a bit shady, in that his good luck started with a white lie, but we are sure even some of our censor boards will not quarrel with the author on that point, so we will not.

Skinner, requiring a sort of "before and after" treatment, is certainly well portrayed by Mr. Washburn. We feel from the very start that there is something in Skinner, more than he gets reward for, and we feel after his "dress suit" has introduced him to the world in his best aspect, that he is only getting his deserts. After all Skinner is the right sort, and we are glad to see him attain the confidence and assurance that goes with carrying through a bluff.

Skinner's home life, too, is a bit different from what we are so bored with seeing in many picture plays. He has a 'better half" that is really a help. Hazel Daly as "Honey" is very pleasing. James Carrol as McLaughlin, U. K. Houpt as Perkins, and Harry Dunkinson as Jackson were all well cast.

This play gives you the feeling of a story well told, that you want your friends to see, and it is a safe prediction it will draw well in the best theatres.

Direction and photography presented a novelty in the picturing of past and present thoughts at once which showed care and painstaking in detail, and were qnite effective in this simply told narrative where no confusion could possibly result from such an innovation.

"The End of the Tour"

(Metro—Five Reels)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

LIONEL BARRYMORE, Ethel Dayton and Frank Currier share the principal roles in this play of stage and theatre life, which opens with the running away of a love-starved wife with a traveling actor who has been good to her, and tells the story of how the little boy who ran away with his mother grew up and by chance was the instrument by which his sister was saved from a similar fate to her mother, due to the increased "grouch" the despairing father acquired as the years went on.

The real action of the play centers on the arrival of the "Chicago Ideals Theatre Company" in Mayville, where, stranded, the leading man and his buddy, "Skinny," the fat property man, undertake to get enough money to get out of town by teaching the local fire department how to put on a play.

Grace Jessup, the village belle, is an easy pupil, especially in the love-making scenes. Then one of the actors, a bad egg, returns and attempts to lead Grace into the primrose path. Byron Bennett (Lionel Barrymore) discovers just in time who the girl is that is the object of these false attentions, and following the two on a bicycle, arrives just in time to choke the villain to insensibility. The girl's father, following with a gun, shoots the man he finds with her on sight, but Byron's watch deflects the bullet and the photo of his mother in the case apprises the father that this is the boy who ran away with his mother years ago. A happy and affecting ending gives an unusual touch, for the girl he loved was his sister, and so it didn't end the usual way.

Lionel Barrymore is good in the leading role. This is a picture of average excellence, probably appealing strongly to some, but with many hundreds of feet of rather pointless working up to the climax. The scenes with the theatrical troupe are mostly necessary as character scenes extraneous entirely to the main plot.

"Pearl of the Army"

(Pathe—Tenth Episode)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

PEARL, becoming suspicious of her father's new secretary, decides to watch him. She learns through her spying that the Silent Menace has been busy mobilizing a Silent Army for the purpose of attacking the Chemical Building, where the wafers which will make legible the canal defense plans are held. With T. O. Adams she secures an aeroplane. When the Silent Army attacks the building, one of its members gains possession of the wafers and makes off in another aeroplane.

Pearl and Adams give pursuit. When the driver of the machine realizes that he is followed he turns around in order to ram the other craft. Just before the midair collision Pearl jumps and descends to earth via a parachute. The two aeroplanes go head on (in miniature) and crash to the ground. When Pearl extricates herself from the parachute she makes her way to the wrecked machines when suddenly a Silent Menace appears.

"Paula Blackton's Country Life Stories"

(Vitagraph—Five Stories Two Reels Each, One One Reel)

REVIEWED BY GEORGE N. SHOREY

THIS series is a new idea, Mrs. Blackton's own, and assured of instant success. It consists of a number of very clever and perfectly directed pictures, in two reels mostly, which are real "features" in the exact use of that term.

The pictures were made at Harbourwood, Oyster Bay, Long Island, and Charles Kent, James Morrison, Mark MacDermott and other favorite Vitagraph leads helped materially to make them the more pleasing, but Mrs. Blackton herself and the two Blackton children were the real stars, and the reception accorded them by the audience specially invited to see the premier showing at the Rialto showed how genuinely pleasing their work was, measuring quite up to any "professional" standard and superior to most. Commodore Blackton's genius in direction would account for this. Not a flaw nor one "conscious" look at the camera marred a single scene.

"The Little Strategist" told how a Southern woman was enabled to avoid the necessity of the terrible cruelty of separating the pickaninnies from their faithful mammy in the stress of the Civil War.

"The Collie Market" told how false pride should yield to love, but it takes a little child to lead them, through the market value of collie pups.

"A Spring Idyl" is a comely drama of two brothers in love with two sisters, each supposing the other is in love with his sweetheart, the older lovers sacrificing themselves resignedly for the younger, as they suppose, only to discover their own happiness as the result of this pure-mindedness.

"The Fairy Godfather" is a pretty romance of children and a lonesome old man, who is made happy in the love of the mother of the children to whom he plays fairy godfather.

"The Diary of a Puppy," told in his own language, introduces everything a well regulated puppy could be expected to do, from muddying the family wash to quarreling with the kitten next door. From the time you see him refused "my breakfast because I am being 'weaned,' whatever that may mean," to the final curtain it pulls at the heartstrings of everyone who likes animals—and who does not, at least in pictures?

"The Orang"

(First Release in the "Living Book of Nature" series—Educational Films Corporation—500 Feet)

REVIEWED BY PETER MILNE

MONDAY, February 5, marked the release of the first Educational picture of Professor Raymond L. Ditmars. It is called "The Orang" and combines something of a lesson in the orang line of zoology with some hilariously funny episodes in which such an animal is the central figure. Among other things you learn that Orang spells his last name U-T-A-N, that he is much farther advanced on the social scale than is the baboon and that by swelling his throat he can create a drum that might come in handy in the pit sometimes.

Also you see him learning the ups and downs of a chair purely by instinct. He looks at pictures and seems to appreciate them and when someone spills a pitcher of milk all over his countenance he is indignant to the extreme while wiping it off with a napkin. The manner in which he drains a beer bottle makes one marvel at his good taste.

The exhibitor has been initiated to scenic-comedies in Mr. Robert Bruce's Educationals, and now he can look forward to an educational-comedy. If the program needs doctoring up a bit see about them.

Scenarios Wanted

One reel comedy scenarios

for Kate Price and Billy Ruge, as Plump and Runt:
and Burns and Stull as Pokes and Jabs.

One reel scenarios for dramas featuring a female lead

AMBER STAR FILMS CORPORATION
Jacksonville :: :: :: Florida

For Sale or Trade

A Studio situated in the largest and most progressive city in Florida, a property that can be listed at $40,000 and which can be secured at unusually favorable terms if taken advantage of at once.

Address Box D. Motion Picture News

MR. MANUFACTURER

My Exchanges in ATLANTA and NEW ORLEANS (which have been established four years) are now prepared to handle YOUR FEATURES, COMEDIES or SERIALS on a PERCENTAGE BASIS ONLY in the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana.

I PRODUCE RESULTS and can give RESPONSIBLE REFERENCES.

MAKE ME A PROPOSITION

SAVINI :: :: ATLANTA, GA.

ALASKA

WONDERS IN MOTION

A Five Reel Feature or Five Distinctive Travelogues

The Greatest of All Alaska Pictures

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

If you are in the market for a state right feature that is new out-of-the-ordinary and guaranteed good—

Write or Wire Today SMITH FILMS 303 So. Hill St. Los Angeles, Calif.

LATE NEWS

Strong Art Drama Film, "The Accomplice," February 15

Jack Sherrill and Dorothy Bernard are the two stars who are featured in this week's art drama, "The Accomplice," which is to be released on Feb. 15. "The Accomplice" was produced by Ralph Dean for the William L. Sherrill Feature Corporation, from the story written by Anthony P. Kelly. It is described as a picturization of the manner in which New York's Smart Set, or a portion of it, at least, spends its time and money. The story is located in the metropolis, and it is said that the author has introduced into his story counterparts of a number of Broadway celebrities.

Jack Sherrill and Dorothy Bernard play the parts of Thomas and Alice Harcourt, a brother and sister. They are the children of a wealthy and influential New Yorker, whose greatest pride in life is his untarnished family name. Alice, having more time and money than she knows what to do with, takes to attending tango teas at the Broadway cafes. She becomes involved in an affair with Antonio, a professional dancer. Tom, too, is a frequenter of the white light district, but falling in love with Miriam Collins, his father's secretary, he reforms.

A murder, the compromising of Alice and other situations go to unfold a dramatic tale.

Elaborate 4 Months' Program Announced by Metro

Poems and Novels Drawn on for Strong Subjects Starring Mme. Petrova, Harold Lockwood, Viola Dana and Others

THREE features picturized from great novels, two plays based on famous poems and another play written and directed by one of the world's foremost motion picture directors are among the many offerings on the February, March, April and May release programs just announced by the Metro Pictures Corporation.

Feb. 5, "The End of the Tour," with Lionel Barrymore; Feb. 12, "One of Many," presented by Arthur James, with Frances Nelson as star and written and directed by Wm. Christy Cabanne; Feb. 19, "The Promise," based on James B. Hendryx's novel of the same name, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison; Feb. 26, "The Secret of Eve," with Mme. Petrova.

March 5, "The Barricade," by Hamilton Smith, with Mabel Taliaferro; Feb. 12, "The Beautiful Lie," an adaptation of the poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with Frances Nelson as star; February 19, "The Hidden Children," from the novel of the same name by Robert W. Chambers, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison as stars; February 26, "The Mortal Sin," with Viola Dana.

April 2, "The Waiting Soul," with Mme. Petrova; April 9, "The Power of Decision," with Frances Nelson as star; April 16, "His Father's Son," with Lionel Barrymore; April 23, "The Secret Spring," an adaptation of "The Hidden Spring," the famous novel by Clarence Budington Kelland, with Harold Lockwood and May Allison; April 30, "God's Law and Man's," with Viola Dana; May 6, "The Belle of the Season," an adaptation of the poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with Emmy Wehlen as star; May 13, "The Millionaire's Double," with Lionel Barrymore; May 20, "To the Death," with Mme. Petrova.

Miles Holds Open House in New Offices

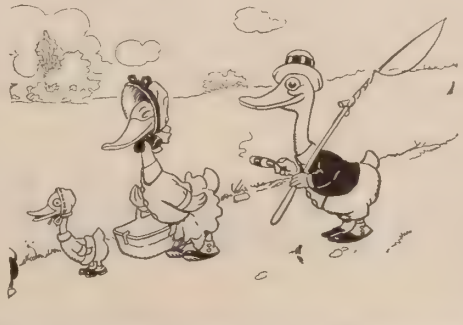
Joseph R. Miles can now transact business in his new suite of offices at 220 West 42d street, New York city. Not that he couldn't work there before, but on Saturday, January 27, from two until six in the afternoon, Mr. Miles held open house in his new place of business, entertaining with refreshments, cigars, cigarettes, and sandwiches his many friends in the film trade. Mr. Miles's desk was heaped with telegrams and letters of congratulations from prominent film men in other parts of the country who were unable to attend. Dancing was held in the handsome projecting room, one of the distinctive features of the new offices.

"Sapho," Famed in Fiction, for F. P. Production

Pauline Frederick Will Be in Title Role in Screen Version of Daudet's Work—Dark Side Avoided in Production

PAULINE FREDERICK, who since leaving the stage for the screen has gained new laurels for herself, is to be starred by the Famous Players in an adaptation of Daudet's story "Sapho," the heroine of which is one of the most picturesque characters in fiction.

Clyde Fitch's stage version of "Sapho" was presented to New York at Wallack's in 1900 with Olga Nethersole in the title role and it proved a great success. Two years later the play was successfully presented in London.



In making the photoplay adaptation of the story of "Sapho," Hugh Ford, who directed the production for the Famous Players, has carefully avoided the darkest side of the tale and has lightened the tenor of the picture so that it is not in any sense oppressive in its effect.

Among those who are playing important roles in support of Miss Frederick in this photoplay are Frank Losee as Caoudal, John Sanpolis as Dejoie, Pedro de Cordoba as Flamant and Thomas Meigham as Gaussin.

Artcraft Announces March and April Releases

As its March and April releases the Artcraft Pictures Corporation announces two subjects with Mary Pickford and George M. Cohan as the stellar attractions; this in correction of the statement published last week that two subjects would be released in March.

The Mary Pickford production will be "A Poor, Little, Rich Girl," scheduled for March 5. The George M. Cohan subject, "Broadway Jones," which is now also well under way at the New York studios on West 56th street, will follow the Pickford release, and will present the famous George M. for the first time as a screen actor on April 2.

Quackey Doodles—Latest Addition to the Paramount-Bray Cartoon Family

West Coast Studios

(Continued from page 1056)

WALTER MORTON has gotten away from the usual railroad story type in the coming release of the "Hazards" unit. This is titled "A Fight With Time," and although it has the usual big thriller, it will also have a number of society scenes and contain more dramatic action.

Al. Christie has made the last scenes for the early March release "Hubby's Flirting Ways," and is now producing a single reel subject for the second week in April, the company now having nine releases ahead of their program.

The new subject put into production this week has not been titled, but will offer Billie Rhodes, Neal Burns and Eddie Lyons as principals. It revolves about a gay deceiver, taken by Burns, who dons the attire of the fired butler when hubby returns home unannounced, and is then confronted by his sweetheart who comes for dinner. It's a wonderful mix-up of the true Christie type, and if the theatre patrons enjoy the picture half as much as the producer did in the making of it, it will be more than a laughing success for in addition to there being many ludicrous situations, the comedy is of a high class mirth-provoking character.

AMERICA FACES WAR!

CRISIS HAS AROUSED SPIRIT of PATRIOTISM

From coast to coast every American is thinking "Preparedness" and "War." The entire public is in fighting mood and all that relates to the great conflict in Europe is quickly seized upon. You can show your patrons how the allies prepared and how America will have to prepare. And you can show them the actual fighting on the battle-fields of France.

OFFICIAL GOVERNMENT-MADE PICTURES OF

THE WAR

Never before, in the history of the world, have motion pictures of a war been possible. Never again, in all probability, will there be another such war to be photographed. This is your opportunity to show your patrons the most tragic chapter in human history.

These pictures are unique and exclusive. They are released by the General Film Company for Official War Films, Inc., the corporation controlling the American rights for the Official War Pictures mentioned above. William K. Vanderbilt is president of this Corporation, and H. P. Davison is its treasurer. All its gross profits from the exhibition of these pictures in America will be devoted to deserving war relief funds.

Distributed By General Film Co., Inc.

OFFICIAL PICTURES of REAL WAR WILL CROWD YOUR THEATRE

They are the only pictures permitted to be taken on the battle fronts. They are uncensored; they show the frightful havoc of the giant guns; the desperate charges through barbed wire entanglements; the terrific explosions of mines underneath the trenches.

OFFICIAL GOVERNMENT-MADE PICTURES OF

THE WAR

In addition to the great Battle of the Somme, they show the brave American aviators in their maneuvers far above the clouds, the splendid work of the American Ambulance Corps in France, and the Grand Fleet in the North Sea—the most formidable assemblage of mighty ships ever mobilized.

Do not fail to show these pictures—they bring before your eyes every thrilling detail of the most tragic chapter in the World's history. And in showing them you will be contributing to the noblest of human charities,—the war relief funds. These pictures are now ready. Get in touch with our nearest branch today.

Distributed By General Film Co., Inc.

TABLOID REVIEWS FOR BUSY EXHIBITORS

General Film Program

"The Prima Donna's Special." (Kalem. Episode of "Hazards of Helen" Series. One reel.)—Helen Gibson's live wire stunts of bravery and daring still cast caution to the winds and apart from the thrills and things that go with such there is in this reel a real touch of pathos so delicate and yet so pungent as to reach one's soul. Dad Morley is the instrument, the agent—so to speak—around whose motley career is wound the theme. He was once a telegrapher, his wife died, his child Ruth was handed over to his wealthy brother, so what had he to live for—with wife, home and comforts gone. He evidently struck the route of least resistance and went from bad to worse, eventually associating himself with a gang of railroad footpads, if such a term be permissible. But he breaks away from the gang when their activities are such as to endanger life and Helen, the operator at Lone Point, has him appointed night operator at the forlorn, out of the way station where she is employed on the day watch. The prima donna's special is in danger, due to the work of the bunch he has discarded, and having learned that the prima donna is his daughter Ruth, he and Helen Gibson get busy and the neck-risking stunts for which Helen is already famous are still being pulled off in this latest chapter. It's a winner.

"The Net of Intrigue." (Kalem. Episode of "Grant, Police Reporter," Series. One reel.)—Beautiful exteriors, marine and land, dainty interiors of hotel, home and boat are some of the many fascinating features of this film, and George Larkin, under a new city editor, is discharged and engaged again. He has essayed almost everything where nerve and quick wit are essential and his latest stunt, that of leaping from a motor boat to the rope ladder of a departing steamer, is a hummer. All this is done to recover certain plans and incidentally to win back his position on the Chronicle, he having been fired because he refused to divulge or write up the particulars of the robbery of these plans, the information having been given to him "in confidence." Ollie Kirkby still holds her own in this series, the latest chapter of which may be well classed with any of its predecessors, both as regards ingenuity, uniqueness and excellence in the handling.

"Three Ways Out." (Essanay. Two reels. Tues., Jan. 30.)—This release has an excellent unpadded plot with a well executed surprise ending. The players are well cast and the production details are handled adequately. This two-reeler will fit nicely into almost any program. The competent leads are Harry Dunkinson, Gertrude Glover and John Cossar.

The title, "Three Ways Out," refers to the three alternatives open to a banker who loses his depositors' money—prison, suicide or—the way Samuel Carlock took in this picture. Old Tim Grogan compliments Carlock on the beauty of his daughter Gladys, and offers to advance the sum Carlock has lost if the banker will make her marry the man that Grogan has in mind. Naturally believing that Grogan is thinking of himself, Carlock refuses the offer and is about to commit suicide when his daughter walks into the room and introduces her husband, Tim Grogan's son. Old Tim is delighted, his son being the man he had in mind. The money is paid back to the bank and everybody is happy.

"Mr. Wright in Wrong." (Essanay. Split reel. Wed., Jan. 31.)—Five hundred feet of comedy share the reel with Western scenic.

"Shifting Shadows. Is Marriage Sacred?" (Essanay. Two reels. Sat., Feb. 3.)—Marguerite Clayton, Edward Arnold, Lillian Drew, Sydney Ainsworth and Thomas Commerford form the cast in this comedy-drama.

John Anderson is happy when he is a poor mechanic, but when he perfects an invention and makes $100,000 it goes to his head. He and his wife take on airs and snub all of their former friends, but John loses his fortune in stock speculations, and poor as church mice, he and his wife delightedly go back to their former simple ways.

"A Strange Adventure." (Selig. Sat., Feb. 10.)—Jack Pickford and Bessie Eyton co-star in this excellent comedy. Their appearance in a one-reeler would in itself make the release unusual, but in addition there is a sparkling plot, and unusually elaborate settings. This picture will please almost any type of audience. Harry Lonsdale also appears in the cast.

Luther Van Horn, a young idler, falls in love with a mysterious girl at a summer resort. She is attended by Arabs in native garb, and receives his ingenious advances very coldly. He finally overhears a bearded man tell the girl that she will lose her throne unless she goes at once to "the house with striped awnings." Van Horn follows, and sees the girl murdered. He is also seized and beheaded.

The audience will be puzzling over this lurid stuff when Van Horn is next shown struggling in a dentist's chair. He has been taking gas and has dreamed the foregoing events.

Christie Comedies

"Miss Billie Buttons." (Mon., Dec. 11.)—This makes an average little comedy very much like some of Mr. Christie's older ones, in which Billie Rhodes masquerades as a bell hop to win a bet. She gets into one or two ticklish complications and succeeds in meeting an eligible young man who discovers the disguise. Admirers of Miss Rhodes will find much in this to their liking, although for a perfectly neutral audience it seems to lack spontaneity. Nolan Leary and Ethel Lynne are others. The story was written by Ira W. Tichenor and produced by Mr. Christie.

"Cupid's Uppercut." (Mon., Dec. 25.)—A comedy that has been produced with the worthy idea of getting laughter from humorous complications is this, but connections haven't been made somewhere and although there are a few individual scenes that will amuse, due to the players, the whole doesn't hang together with the degree of unity sufficient for a good fifteen minutes' entertainment. Betty Compson saves it from utter mediocrity by sheer beauty and Dave Morris gets in a little of his eccentric character work. Others are Neal Burns, Harry Rattenberry, Stella Adams and George French. William Rice is the author and Horace Davey produced.

"Her Crooked Career." (Mon., Jan. 8.)—This makes a decidedly entertaining reel, showing the manner in which the "queen of the crooks" takes in the hick police force by posing as a detective. The antics of the rube cops, their burlesque drills and exhibitions of their various departments are exceedingly funny, and Betty Compson is again the centre of many a charming closeup. Eddie Barry and Neal Burns are in good character parts. Alice Creighton wrote and Christie produced.

Mutual Program

"Ashore and Afloat." (Mutual. One reel. Fri., Jan. 26.)—This, the fourth film of "Uncle Sam's Defenders," is replete with instructive and interesting data, giving as it does in minute detail the curriculum of work and play aboard the U.S.S. Texas. First is shown the coaling and provisioning of the superdreadnaught, then the recruits aboard ship are shown in the "double quick" about decks, following which comes the cleaning of decks and the shaving—not entirely painless—of the unfortunates who grow beards. Kit inspection, repairing of garments, field day, shore leave, and sharpshooting at Guantanamo follow in rapid succession. So much for the arduous part of their duties; now for the lighter there are shown boat races, diving and swimming in tropical waters, dancing, boxing, a pie-eating contest and at the end all hands are assembled on deck to listen to the word of God before retiring for the night.

"Mutual Tours Around the World," No. 12. (Gaumont. One reel. Tues., Jan. 23.)—Among the Pyrenees of France and along the banks of the River Gironde some remarkable scenic views have been obtained and these being thrown upon the screen without a blur or blot make No. 12 of this series a thing of beauty and a mine of instruction.

"The Indian's Hand." (Signal-Mutual. Two reels. Mon., Jan. 22.)—This is the title of the fourteenth chapter of "A Lass of the Lumberlands," and as there is only one more chapter to follow, the plan of the producers, J. P. McGowan and Paul C. Hurst, is unfolding itself. "Dollar" Holmes, who has been an unrelenting tyrant both in business and domestic circles, is shown in his true colors, and the stern hand of the law is slowly but surely descending upon him. An Indian has filed a claim to "Dollar" Holmes' land and bids fair to come into possession of his own, but comes to a foul end when Holmes, instead of lending a helping hand after the Indian has saved Dawson from drowning, steps upon the Indian's hand as the latter is attempting to scale a cliff. This causes the Indian to release his hold, as a result of which he is hurled down the side of a cliff into a rapid stream, where he is drowned. Dawson recovers the body and notices the imprint of a heavy shoe on the hand, takes a soft clay impression of the same and holds this as a enmace over "Dollar" Holmes. The photography in this number is not so good as in some of its predecessors, and at times is decidedly cloudy and jerky.

Universal Program

"His Wife's Relations." (Nestor. Mon., Feb. 5.)—The timid suitor gets into all sorts of comical situations when his girl introduces him to her family. They continue to monopolize his home after the marriage, and it is only after great trouble that he succeeds in putting them to rout. Eddie Lyons, Edith Roberts, Lee Moran and the other members of the Nestor comedy company put this reel over in excellent style, honors falling to Moran. Bess Meredyth prepared the scenario.

"Won by Grit." (Gold Seal. Three reels. Tues., Feb. 6.)—This depicts a Westerner's fistic entree in the city slums whence he proceeds to carry off a girl, the daughter of a saloon keeper, after innumerable blood-curdling adventures. Neal Hart is featured in this and makes the most of a bar room fight scene and fares averagely well when the action takes a more natural tone. Lois Wilson, Dick La Reno, Helen Wright and Mina Cunard are others. Willis Woods is the author.

"The Valley of Beautiful Things." (Victor. Tues., Feb. 6.—One of Lule Warrenton's kid pictures that presents a fairy story in a vastly pretty way. Some of the photographic effects are excellent. If the children really enjoy pictures such as this, made for their special entertainment, it certainly has its place on any family program.

"The Dawgone Dogs." (L-Ko. Two reels. Wed., Feb. 7.)—Featuring Sammie Burns, who is professionally an acrobat and not a comedian, this picture concerns a mixup in canines and presents a number of very humorous complications that will certainly be appreciated. Burns with his spontaneous acrobatics gets a number of laughs and causes an equal amount of surprises. A chase and a drop over a cliff brings the picture to a close after the conventional fashion.

"The Melody of Death." (Rex. Two reels. Thurs., Dec. 8.)—A strong but uncentralized plot is presented in this two-reeler written by E. M. Ingleton. An opera singer is killed by an organ grinder—her husband whom she deserted. A counter-plot of a youth who became infatuated with the singer, forsaking his fiancee, is also given, and the footage is about equally divided between the two threads. Douglas Gerrard gives a good performance as the organ grinder, while others are Ruth Clifford, Maude George, George Gebhardt and Albert MacQuarrie.

EVERETT TRUE COMEDIES
Featuring BOBBIE BOLDER as the Champion Pest Squelcher.
Single reels that are reely funny—you can purchase one or all.
Beat your competitor to it. Write us for particulars.
OUR STUDIOS CAN BE RENTED BY THE DAY OR WEEK.
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE COMPANY
J. E. WILLIS, Vice-President and General Manager
Broadway at Granville Ave., Chicago

LOBBY DISPLAY FRAME SPECIALISTS
MENGER & RING, Inc.
NEW YORK 304 W. 42nd St. CHICAGO 1021 Federal St. ATLANTA, GA. Southern Theatre Equipment Co.

FEATURES—CURRENT AND COMING

Art Dramas, Inc.

Jan.— 4. The Rainbow (Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill)..... 5
Jan. 11. Infidelity (Anna Q. Nilsson and Eugene Strong), Erbograph..... 5
Jan. 18. God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon), Apollo 5
Jan. 25. Her Good Name (Jean Sothern), Van Dyke 5
Feb. 1. Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana), Apolo 5
Feb. 8. The Accomplice (Dorothy Bernard and Jack Sherrill), Wm. L. Sherrill Feat. Corp..... 5
Feb. 15. The Moral Code (Anna Q. Nilsson and Walter Hitchcock), Erbograph 5
Feb. 22. Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon), Apollo 5

Artcraft Pictures

Nov.— 6. Less Than the Dust (Mary Pickford) 5
Jan.— 8. The Pride of the Clan (Mary Pickford.) .....

Bluebird Photoplays

Jan.—15. Her Soul's Inspiration (Ella Hall).. 5
Jan.—22. God's Crucible (George Hermandez, Myrtle Gonzales and Val Paul)... 5
Jan.—29. The Devil's Pay Day (Franklin Farnum) 5
Feb.— 5. The Mysterious Mrs. M. (Harrison Ford and Mary MacLaren)..... 5
Feb.—12. The Reward of the Faithless (Wedgewood Nowell and Betty Shade) 5
Feb.—19. The Man Who Took a Chance (Franklyn Farnum and Agnes Vernon) 5
Feb.—26. The Saintly Sinner (Ruth Stonehouse) 5
Mar. 5. The Boy Girl (Violet Mersereau).. 5

Fox Film Corporation

Jan.—15. Bitter Truth (Virginia Pearson).... 5
Jan.—22. The Darling of Paris (Theda Bara). 5
Jan.—22. The Primitive Call (Gladys Coburn) 5
Jan.—29. One Touch of Sin (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb.— 5. The New York Peacock (Valeska Suratt) 5
Feb.—12. North of 53 (Dustin Farnum).... 5
Feb. 12. The Scarlet Letter (Stuart Holmes). 5
Feb. 19. Title not announced (June Caprice). 5
Feb. 19. The Tiger Woman (Theda Bara)... 5
Feb. 26. Sister Against Sister (Virginia Pearson) 5

Ivan Feature Productions

Dec. 1. The Sex Lure (The Girl Who Did Not Care—Title in Greater New York) 6
Jan. —Enlighten Thy Daughter (Frank Sheridan, Katherine Kaelred, James Morrison and Marie Shotwell).... 5

Kleine-Edison-Selig-Essanay

Jan. 8. The Master Passion (Mabel Trunnelle and Robert Conness) Edison. 5
Jan. 15. Little Shoes (Henry B. Walthall and Mary Charleson), Essanay..... 5
Jan. 22. Princess of Patches (Vivian Reed), Selig 5
Jan. 29. Adventures of Buffalo Bill (K.E.S.E. Special) 5
Feb. 5. Skinner's Dress Suit..... 5
Feb. 12. The Heart of Texas Ryan (Bessie Eyton, George Fawcett and Frank Campesu), Selig..... 5
Feb. 19. The Royal Pauper (Francine Larrimore), Edison 5
Mar. 5. The Trufflers (Nell Craig), Essanay 5
Mar. 12. Little Lost Sister (Selig)..... 5
Mar. 19. Burning the Candle (Henry B. Walthall and Mary Charleson), Essanay 5

McClure Pictures*

Jan. 29. Seven Deadly Sins, "Envy" (Ann Murdock, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere)..... 5
Feb. 5. Seven Deadly Sins, "Pride" (Holbrook Blinn, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 12. Seven Deadly Sins, "Greed" (Nance O'Neil, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Feb. 19. Seven Deadly Sins, "Wrath" (H. B. Warner, Shirley Mason and George Le Guere)..... 5
Feb. 26. Seven Deadly Sins, "Passion" (Shirley Mason and George Le Guere) 5
Mar. 5. Seven Deadly Sins, "Sloth" (Charlotte Walker, Shirley Mason, and George Le Guere)..... 5
Mar. 12. Seven Deadly Sins, "The 7th Sin," (George Le Guere and Shirley Mason) 5
*Released through Triangle Exchanges.

Metro Pictures Corporation

Jan. 15. The White Raven (Ethel Barrymore), Rolfe..... 5
Jan. 22. The Threads of Fate (Viola Dana), Columbia 5
Jan. 29. Bridges Burned (Madame Petrova), Popular Plays and Players..... 5
Feb. 5. The End of the Tour (Lionel Barrymore), Columbia..... 5
Feb. 12. One of Many (Frances Nelson),.... 5
Feb. 19. The Promise (Harold Lockwood and May Allison), Yorke..... 5
Feb. 20. The Secret of Eve (Mme. Petrova), Columbia 5
Mar. 5. The Belle of the Season (Emmy Wehlen), Rolfe..... 5
Mar. 12. The Beautiful Lie (Frances Nelson), Rolfe 5
Mar. 19. The Hidden Children (Harold Lockwood and May Allison), Yorke.... 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Jan. 15. Beloved Rogues (Kolb and Dill), American 5
Jan. 22. The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter), American..... 5
Jan. 29. Pardners (Charlotte Walker)..... 5
Feb. 5. Where Love Is (Ann Murdock), Mutual 5
Feb. 12. Damaged Goods (New Edition), (Richard Bennett), American..... 7
Feb. 19. The Gentle Intruder (Mary Miles Minter), American..... 5

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Jan. 15. Betty to the Rescue (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5
Jan. 18. A Girl Like That (Irene Fenwick and Owen Moore), Famous Players 5
Jan. 22. Lost and Won (Marie Doro), Lasky 5
Jan. 25. The Golden Fetter (Anita King and Wallace Reid), Lasky..... 5
Jan. 29. His Sweetheart (George Beban), Morosco 5
Feb. 1. The Wax Model (Vivian Martin), Pallas 5
Feb. 5. Each To His Kind (Sessue Hayakawa), Lasky..... 5
Feb. 8. Her Own People (Lenore Ulrich), Pallas 5
Feb. 12. The Black Wolf (Lou Tellegen), Lasky 5
Feb. 15. The American Consul (Theodore Roberts), Lasky..... 5
Feb. 19. Winning of Sally Temple (Fannie Ward), Lasky 5
Feb. 22. On Record (Mae Murray), Lasky.. 5
Feb. 26. The Fortunes of Fifi (Marguerite Clark), Famous Players..... 5
Mar 1. Those Without Sin (Blanche Sweet), Lasky 5
Mar. 5. Sapho (Pauline Fredericks), Famous Players 5
Mar. 8. Out of the Wreck (Kathlyn Williams), Morosco 5
Mar. 12. Castles for Two (Marie Doro), Lasky 5
Mar. 15. The Dummy (Jack Pickford), Famous Players..... 5
Mar. 19. The Prison Without Walls (Wallace Reid and Myrtle Stedman), Lasky 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS

Jan. 14. Kick In (William Courtney, Mollie King, Robert Clugston and Suzanne Willa), Astra..... 5
Jan. 21. The Image Maker (Valkyrien), Thanhouser 5
Jan. 28. Twin Kiddies (Baby Marie Osborne, Henry King, Daniel Gilfether, R. Henry Gray and Loretta Beecker), Balboa 5
Feb. 4. A Modern Monte Cristo (Vincent Serrano, Thomas A. Curran, Helen Badgley and Boyd Marshall), Thanhouser 5
Feb. 11. Sold at Auction (Wm. Conklin, Lois Meredith, Marguerite Nicholas and Frank Mayo), Balboa..... 5
Feb. 18. Her Life and His (Florence La Badie, H. R. Herbert, Jeanne La Motte, Joe Phillips, Harris Gordon, and Ethyle Cooke), Thanhouser... 5
Feb. 25. Crime and Punishment (Derwent Hall Caine and Marguerite Cortet), Arrow 5
Coming—When My Ship Comes In (Jane Grey), International..... 5

Red Feather Productions

Jan. 15. The Double Room Mystery (Hayward Mack and Ed. Hearn)..... 5
Jan. 22. Heart Strings (Allen Holubar and Maude George)..... 5
Jan. 29. Love Aflame (Ruth Stonehouse and Jack Mulhall) 5
Feb. 5. Me and M' Pal (Edna Flugrath, Gerald Ames and Hubert Willis).. 5
Feb. 12. The Terror (Jack Mulhall)..... 5
Feb. 19. The War of Tongs..... 5

Selznick Pictures

Dec. 1. War Brides (Mme. Nazimova), Herbert Brenon, Prod..... 8
Dec. 18. The Foolish Virgin (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. —. The Argyle Case (Robert Warwick) 5
Jan. —. The Eternal Sin (Florence Reed and William E. Shay), Herbert Brenon Prod. 5
Jan. —. Panthea (Norma Talmadge)..... 5

Triangle Film Corporation

Jan. 7. Truthful Tulliver (W. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Jan. 7. The Weaker Sex (Dalton-Chas. Ray-Glaum), Kay Bee..... 5
Jan. 14. The Little Yank (G. Gish), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 14. The Bride of Hate (Keenan-Margery Wilson), Kay Bee..... 5
Jan. 21. Nina, the Flower Girl (Love), Fine Arts 5
Jan. 21. The Iced Bullet (Wm. Desmond), Kay Bee..... 5
Jan. 28. The Americano (Douglas Fairbanks), Fine Arts..... 5
Jan. 28. Chicken Casey (Dalton), Kay Bee. 5
Feb. 4. Jim Bludso (Lucas), Fine Arts..... 5
Feb. 4. The Crab (Thelma Salter-Keenan), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 11. The Girl of the Timber Claims (Constance Talmadge), Fine Arts.. 5
Feb. 11. The Gun Fighter (Wm. S. Hart), Kay Bee 5
Feb. 18. The Village Prodigal (Robert Harron), Fine Arts..... 5
Feb. 18. A Princess of the Dark (Enid Bennett), Ince-Kay Bee..... 5

Unity Sales Corporation

Dec. 1. Land Just Over Yonder..... 6
Dec. 15. Humanizing Mr. Winsby..... 5
Jan. 15. Glory 7

Vitagraph—V-L-S-E

Jan. 15. Blind Justice (Benj. Christie)..... 7
Jan. 22. Her Right to Live (Peggy Hyland). 5
Jan. 29. The Glory of Yolanda (Anita Stewart) 5
Feb. 5. Money Magic (Edith Storey, Wm. Duncan and Antonio Moreno)..... 5
Feb. 12. The Courage of Silence (Alice Joyce and Harry Morey)..... 5
Feb. 19. Kitty Mackay (Lilian Walker)..... 5
Feb. 26. Arsene Lupin (Earle Williams)..... 5
Mar. 5. Intrigue (Peggy Hyland, Marc McDermott and Bobby Connelly)..... 5
Mar. 12. The More Excellent Way (Anita Stewart) 5
Mar. 19. Aladdin from Broadway (Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno)..... 5

World Pictures

Jan. 15. The Man Who Forgot (Robert Warwick, Gerda Holmes and Doris Kenyon) 5
Jan. 22. The Bondage of Fear (Ethel Clayton) 5
Jan. 29. Tillie Wakes Up (Marie Dressler and Johnny Hines)..... 5
Feb. 5. A Hungry Heart (Alice Brady)..... 5
Feb. 12. The Red Woman (Gail Kane)..... 5
Feb. 19. A Square Deal (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Henry Hull and Muriel Ostriche) 5
Feb. 26. A Girl's Folly (Robert Warwick and Doris Kenyon)..... 5
Mar. 5. The Web of Desire (Ethel Clayton and Rockliffe Fellowes)..... 5
Mar. 12. Fascinating Olga (Alice Brady).... 5

SHORT SUBJECTS CURRENT AND COMING

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

From Ditmar's Living Book of Nature, the following Releases*

Feb. 5. The Orang.....500 feet
Feb. 12. Mammals of Strange Form.....500 feet
Feb. 19. American Bears.....500 feet
Feb. 26. The Foreign Deer.....500 feet
Mar. 5. The Beaver Prepares for Winter.500 feet
Mar. 12. Jungle Vaudeville.....500 feet

* Released through Independent Exchanges.

Foxfilm Comedies

1— 1. Social Pirates (Charles Arling).. 2 reels
1— 8. Chased Into Love (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips..... 2 reels
1—15. Noah's Ark (Hank Mann)..... 2 reels
1—22. Her Father's Station (Anna Luther) ..... 2 reels
1—29. There's Many a Fool (Hank Mann and Carmen Phillips)... 2 reels

General Film Company*

Latest Announced Releases

ESSANAY

The Lighted Lamp (11th of Black Cat Series) .....2 D
All in a Day, C., and Alaska, Sc., Split reel.
Ashes on the Hearthstone (10th of "Is Marriage Sacred?" Series).....2 D

KALEM

The Model Janitor (Ham Comedy).....1 C
Winged Diamonds (18th of Grant, Police Reporter Series).....1 D
The Sidetracked Sleeper (Hazards of Helen Series) .....1 D

KNICKERBOCKER STAR

The Beloved Vampire (Margaret Landis and Clifford Grey).....3 D

SELIG

The Redemption of Red Mullin.....2 D
Selig-Tribune, No. 13.....1 Top
Selig-Tribune, No. 14.....1 Top
For Reward of Service (George Fawcett)..1 C-D

VIM.

Title not reported.....1 C

VITAGRAPH

The Seventh Son (Ralph Ince, Mary Maurice and James Morrison).....1 D
The Footlight Lure (6th Dangers of Doris) .....1 C-D
Missing (Brinsley Shaw).....2 D

* The General Film Company has abolished the advertising of release dates.

Metro Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 29, 1917.

DREW—The Pest (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 4, From Sunshine to Shadows), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Monday, February 5, 1917

DREW—Blackmail (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 5, The Trap), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Monday, February 12, 1917

ROLMA—Winning an Heiress (Ralph Herz), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 6), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Monday, February 19, 1917

DREW—Her Obsession (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 7), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Monday, February 26, 1917

DREW—Reliable Henry (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 8), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Monday, March 5, 1917

ROLMA—A Modern Romance (Max Figman), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 9), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Monday, March 12, 1917

DREW—Locked Out (Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew), 1 C.
SERIAL—The Great Secret (Chapter 10), Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, 2 D.

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, February 12, 1917

MUTUAL SERIAL—Perils of Our Girl Reporters ("Birds of Prey," Episode No. 8), Helen Greene and Earl Metcalf, 2 D..... ..
MONOGRAM—Shorty Turns Wild Man ("Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," No. 5), 2 D.....05322-23

Tuesday, February 13, 1917

GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World (Mont St. Michel, France; Around Lake Iseo, Italy; Morocco, Yesterday and Today, Africa), 1 Trav. 05324

Wednesday, February 14, 1917

MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 111, 1 Top. 05325
GAUMONT—See America First (Los Angeles, Calif.), Sc., and Kartoon Komics, Split reel..... 05326

Thursday, February 15, 1917

CUB—Jerry's Big Mystery (George Ovey), 1 C. 05327

Friday, February 16, 1917

AMERICAN—Calamity Anne's Legacy (Louise Lester), 1 C..... 05328

Saturday, February 17, 1917

AMERICAN—The Hermit's Hoard, 1 D. 05329

Sunday, February 18, 1917

VOGUE—Lured and Cured (Paddy McQuire), 2 C 05330-31
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Oysters on the Mississippi Coast, Properties of Water, Making an Individual Dress Form, Training Man Hunters, The Dance of the Rainbow, 1 Mag..... 05332

Monday, February 19, 1917

MUTUAL SERIALS — Misjudged (Episode No. 9, "Perils of Our Girl Reporters), 2 D..... ..
MONOGRAM—Shorty Promotes His Love Affair ("Adventures of Shorty Hamilton," No. 6) 2 D.....05333-34

Tuesday, February 20, 1917

GAUMONT—Mutual Tours Around the World, Old Heidelberg, Germany; Scottish Highlands, Monoco, 1 Trav.. 05335

Wednesday, February 21, 1917

MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 112, 1 Top. 05336
GAUMONT—See America First, Kartoon Komics and Vicksburg, the Mission of San Juan de Capistrano (Calif.), Sc., Split reel..... 05337

Thursday, February 22, 1917

CUB—Jerry's Brilliant Scheme (George Ovey), 1 C..... 05338

Friday, February 23, 1917

AMERICAN—Calamity Anne's New Job (Louise Lester), 1 C..... 05339

Saturday, February 24, 1917

AMERICAN—Mouth-Organ Jack (J. W. Kerrigan), 1 D..... 05340

Sunday, February 25, 1917

VOGUE—The Butcher's Nightmare (Ben Turpin), 2 C..... 05341
GAUMONT—Reel Life, Dainty Perfume, Teaching Children to Swim, Logging in Louisiana, Making Bottles at Home, 1 Mag..... 05342

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Monday, January 29, 1917.

BURTON HOLMES—Georgian Bay to Winnipeg, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—Subject not announced.

Monday, February 5, 1917

BURTON-HOLMES — Regina to the Rockies, 1 Trav..... T-1096
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 53, 1 Mag.

Monday, February 12, 1917

BURTON HOLMES—Beautiful Banff, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 54, 1 Mag.

Monday, February 19, 1917

BURTON HOLMES—With the Stony Indians, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 55, 1 Mag.

Monday, February 26, 1917

BURTON HOLMES—Exquisite Lake Louise, 1 Trav.
COMEDY—Title not announced.
PICTOGRAPH—No. 56, 1 Mag.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Monday, February 18, 1917

Patria, No. 6 (Mrs. Vernon Castle), International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 12 (The Foreign Alliance), Astra, 2 D.
Lonesome Luke—Lawyer, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 19 (Rose), Fash.: Picturesque Algeria—Province of Constantine, Split Reel.

Wednesday, February 21, 1917

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 16, 1 Top.

Saturday, February 24, 1917

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 17, 1 Top.

Sunday, February 25, 1917

Patria, No. 7 (Red Dawn), Mrs. Vernon Castle, International, 2 D.
Pearl of the Army, No. 13 (Modern Buccaneers), Astra. 2 D.
Luke Wins Ye Ladye Faire, Rolin, 1 C.
Florence Rose Fashions, No. 20 (Rose), Fash.; Bursting Buds, Colored Educ., Split reel.

Wednesday, February 28, 1917

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 18, 1 Top.

Saturday, March 3, 1917

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 19, 1 Top.

Triangle Komedies

Sunday, January 14, 1917

Love Under Cover, 1 C.
The Pipe of Discontent, 1 C.

Sunday, January 21, 1917

A Noble Fraud, 1 C.
Honest Thieves, 1 C.

Sunday, January 28, 1917

Heart Strategy, 1 C.
A Grab Bag Bride, 1 C.

Sunday, February 4, 1917

The Male Governess, 1 C.
The Road Agent, 1 C.

Sunday, February 11, 1917

Won by a Foot, 1 C.
His Deadly Undertaking, 1 C.

Sunday, February 18, 1917

The Telephone Belle, 1 C.
When Hearts Collide, 1 C.

Unicorn Film Service*

Tuesday, December 12, 1916.

JUDY—You Never Can Tell, 1 C.....1114A
HIAWATHA—The Woman He Wed, 2 D.1114B

Wednesday, December 13, 1916.

SUNSET—The Trail of Fate, 2 D.....1115A
HIPPO—High Cost of Living, 1 C.....1115B

Thursday, December 14, 1916.

RANCHO—Desert Gold, 1 D.....1116A
GAIETY—Kisses and Fists, 1 C.....1116B
UTAH—A Belle of the Sage Brush, 1 W..1116C

Friday, December 15, 1916.

JUDY—Mary Lost Her Lamb, 1 C.....1117A
BUFFALO—Fires of Fate, 2 D.....1117B

Saturday, December 16, 1916.

SUPREME—The Challenge of Chivalry, 2 D 1118A

Sunday, December 17, 1916.

JOCKEY—A Devil in His Own Home Town, 1 C.....1119A
SUNSET—The Mystery of the Mesa, 1 D.1119B

* Releases issued every two weeks.

Universal Film Company

Monday, February 12, 1917

NESTOR—A Hasty Hazing (Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts), 1 C.. 02164

Tuesday, February 13, 1917

GOLD SEAL—The Indian's Lament (Marie Walcamp and Lee Hill), 3 D.. 02165
VICTOR—The Girl of the Hour (Herbert Brenon and Vivian Prescott), Reissue, 1 C..... 02166

Wednesday, February 14, 1917

IMP—The Girl Reporter's Scoop (Roy Stewart and Irne Hunt), 2 D..... 02167
L-KO—The End of a Perfect Day (Hank Mann and Gertrude Shelby), 1 C..... 02168
UNIVERSAL—Animated Weekly, No. 99, 1 Top..... 02169

Thursday, February 15, 1917

VICTOR—The Losing Winner (Carter De Haven and Flora Parker DeHaven, 2 C-D..... 02170
BIG U—The Half-breed's Confession (Reissue), 1 D..... 02171

Friday, February 16, 1917

LAEMMLE—The Fourth Witness (Louise Lovely and Lee Hill), 2 D..... 02172
